Whole filmy cord should bind the craving fly. Dryden.

The wags with fruitless soil
Flag. filmy pinions off, to extricate
Their feet in liquid shackles bound, 'till death Receive them of their worthless souls; such doom With false love and false gain. Philip.

Loose to the winds their airy garments few;
This glittering textures of the filmy dew;
Dip in the rich consistent skin of the skies,
When light disparts in ever-mingling dyes. Pope.

To FILTER. v. a. [from filter.] Low Latin; per filum trabere.

1. To defeat by drawing off liquor by depending threads.

2. To strain; to percolate.

Locate this liquor with fair water, filter it through a paper, and you have it purified. Moseman.

FILTER. m. [Altromium, Latin.]

1. A twist of thread, of which one end is dipped in the liquor to be defeated, and the other hangs below the bottom of Vol. I.

the vessel so that the liquor drips from it.

2. A strainer; a seine.

That the water passing through the veins of the earth, should be rendered fresh and potable, which it otherwise cannot be, is in vain; but the filmy particles will pass through a test about filter. Ray on Creation.

FINN. n. [Saxon; ain. Dutch.] The wing of a fish; the limb by which he balances his body, and moves in the water.

He that depends
Upon your favours, twines with fire of lead,
And Hew down wocks with ruffles. Shaftsbury, Obblige, He who is dependent upon you cannot control his life, nor can he help but be wholly cold, and longer, and colder, like pins and needles. More.

Thus at half-cobb a rolling sea,
Reasons, and ways to the shore.
The wavy hard, alligued at the near,
Rack on their faire whales, and nay,
Then backward take their woodying way. Dryden.

Still at his aims the taffeta, and in roten to the root. Swallow.

Though perhaps among the rest
He wildly flings his fish about;
He fills his gratitude and lance,
To spare the old that give him presence. Swift.

2. Corruption; grossfinis; pollution. Such do likewise exceedingly disfuss us to piety and religion, by pouring our fouls from the dregs and filth of the world, and kindle a fire. Filthofun.

FILTHILY. adv. [from filthy.] Nattily; grossly.

It fluck filthy in cameo's flamch that bulls, brutes, and the like, should be armed, and that a creature of his fire should be left defenceless. L'Estrange.

FINNINESS. n.s. [from filthy.]

1. Nattiness; foulness; dirtiness.

Men of wine suppress it, lest their thinking should discover these filthy spirits. Sidney.

2. Corruption; pollution. They held this land, and with their filthy sins polluted this same gentle soul long time. That their own mother loathed their bastardies, and 'gan abhor their brood's unkindly crime. All were they born of her own native flame. Spenser.

They never duly improved the utmost of such a power, but gave themselves up to all the filthy, and licenciosities of life imaginable. Saint's Sermon.

FILTHY. adj. [from filthy.]

1. Natty; foul; dirty.

Fair is soul, and foul is fair.

Hover through the fog and filthy air. Shak. Macbeth.

2. Gross; polluted. At all stories are not proper subjects for an epic poem or a tragedy, to neither are they for a noble picture: that is what the one, and of the other, ought to have nothing of immoral, low, or filthy in them. Dryden's St. John.

To FILTRATE. v. a. [from filter.] To strain; to percolate.

The extract obtained by the former operation, burst to smite, and those as they boiled in water and filtrated, yield a fiery lust. Aboriginal on Alpinism.

FILTRATION. n.s. [from filtrate.] A method by which liquids are procured fine and clear. The filtration in ice is strain ing a liquor through paper, which, by the fineness of its pores, admits only the finer parts through, and keeps the rest behind. Quincy.

We took then common nitre, and having, by the usual way of its distillation, and coagulation, reduced it into crystals, we put four ounces of this purified nitre into a strong new crucible. Boyle.

FILMBLE HEMP. n.s. [Corrupted from female.]

The light Summer hemp, that bears no seed, which is called Arctos, is fit for it. Good flax and good hemp, for to have of her own, in May a good housewife will see it best. And afterwards, as the frost is not. The Amble to fill, and the card for her foot. Tuffier.

FIN. n.s. [Saxon; ain. Dutch.] The wing of a fish; the limb by which he who balances his body, and moves in the water.

He that depends
Upon your favours, twines with fire of lead,
And Hew down wocks with ruffles. Shaftsbury, Obblige, He who is dependent upon you cannot control his life, nor can he help but be wholly cold, and longer, and colder, like pins and needles. More.

Thus at half-cobb a rolling sea,
Reasons, and ways to the shore.
The wavy hard, alligued at the near,
Rack on their faire whales, and nay,
Then backward take their woodying way. Dryden.

Still at his aims the taffeta, and in roten to the root. Swallow.

Though perhaps among the rest
He wildly flings his fish about;
He fills his gratitude and lance,
To spare the old that give him presence. Swift.

2. Corruption; grossfinis; pollution. Such do likewise exceedingly disfuss us to piety and religion, by pouring our fouls from the dregs and filth of the world, and kindle a fire. Filthofun.

FILTHILY. adv. [from filthy.] Nattily; grossly.

It fluck filthy in cameo's flamch that bulls, brutes, and the like, should be armed, and that a creature of his fire should be left defenceless. L'Estrange.

FINNINESS. n.s. [from filthy.]

1. Nattiness; foulness; dirtiness.

Men of wine suppress it, lest their thinking should discover these filthy spirits. Sidney.

2. Corruption; pollution. They held this land, and with their filthy sins polluted this same gentle soul long time. That their own mother loathed their bastardies, and 'gan abhor their brood's unkindly crime. All were they born of her own native flame. Spenser.

They never duly improved the utmost of such a power, but gave themselves up to all the filthy, and licenciosities of life imaginable. Saint's Sermon.

FILTHY. adj. [from filthy.]

1. Natty; foul; dirty.

Fair is soul, and foul is fair.

Hover through the fog and filthy air. Shak. Macbeth.

2. Gross; polluted. At all stories are not proper subjects for an epic poem or a tragedy, to neither are they for a noble picture: that is what the one, and of the other, ought to have nothing of immoral, low, or filthy in them. Dryden's St. John.

To FILTRATE. v. a. [from filter.] To strain; to percolate.

The extract obtained by the former operation, burst to smite, and those as they boiled in water and filtrated, yield a fiery lust. Aboriginal on Alpinism.

FILTRATION. n.s. [from filtrate.] A method by which liquids are procured fine and clear. The filtration in ice is straining a liquor through paper, which, by the fineness of its pores, admits only the finer parts through, and keeps the rest behind. Quincy.

We took then common nitre, and having, by the usual way of its distillation, and coagulation, reduced it into crystals, we put four ounces of this purified nitre into a strong new crucible. Boyle.

FILMBLE HEMP. n.s. [Corrupted from female.]

The light Summer hemp, that bears no seed, which is called Arctos, is fit for it. Good flax and good hemp, for to have of her own, in May a good housewife will see it best. And afterw
12. To detect; to reprehend; to catch.
When first found in a lie, talk to him of it as a strange monitory matter, and to shame him out of the lie.

13. To reach; to attain.
They are glad when they can find the grave. Job iii.
They also know, and reason not suspiciously with these; find paths, and bear rule.

14. To meet.
A clear experience and heroic mind, in all his business and their glory find.
Covely.

15. To settle; to fix any thing in one's own opinion.
Some men
The marks of old and catholic would find.
Covely.

16. To determine by judicial verdict.
They would enforce them to find as they would direct; and if they did not, convert, imprison, and fine them.

17. To supply; to furnish: as he finds money in his house.
A war with Spain is like to be lucrative, if we go roundly on at first; the war in continuance will itself.

Still govern thou my song.
Unsia, and at finding find, though few. Milton.

18. [In law.] To approve: as, to find a bill.

19. To determine: as, to find for the plaintiff.

20. To Find himself.
To be; to fare with regard to ease or pain, health, or quickness.

21. To find, how eye find yon sinner says the doctor.

22. To Find out.
To unriddle; to solve. The finding out of parables is a wearisome labour of the mind.
Eccles. i. 26.

23. To Find out.
To discover something hidden.
Can't thou by searching find out God? Can't thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? Job vii.

24. To Find out.
To invent; to excogitate.
A man of Tyre, skilful to work in gold, and to find out every device which shall be put to him. Chron. ii. 14.

25. The particle out is added often with- out any other use than that it adds some force or emphasis to the verb.
While the proudly marble'd about, greater conquords to find out.

26. To Find, is a word of very licentious and capricious use, not easily limited or explained; its first idea is the consequence of search; for second, equally frequent, is more occasional.
FIN

To Fine, v. a. [from fine.] To pay a fine. What poet ever for'told theroff or who
By rhymes or verse did ever lordly grow?

To Fine-draw, v. a. [fine and draw.] To fow up a rent with so much nicety that it is not perceived.

To Fine-ender, n. s. [from fine-draw.] One whose bums affairs is to fow up rents.

Fine-figured adj. [fine and fijger.] Nice; artful; exquisite.
The most fine-figured woman's workman on the ground, Aucher by his means was vanquished. Spanier.

Finely, adv. [from fine.]

1. Beautifully; elegantly; more than julily.
Plutarch says very finely, that a man should not allow himself to hate even his enemies; because if you indulge this passion out of some affection, it will rise in others. Addison.

2. Keenly; sharply; with a thin edge or point.
Get you black lead sharpen'd finely. Pope.

3. Not coarsely; not meanly; gaily.
He was about forty, fat, that he had two persons of honour, on either hand one, finely attired in white. Bacon's New Atlantis.

4. In small parts; subtly; not grossly.
Subtlety of this kind is a grossly basely; for it should not be finely powdered. Boyle.

5. [Ironically.] Wretchedly; in such a manner as to deference contemptuous notice.
Let laws be made to obey, and not to obey, and you will find that kingdom finely governed in a short time. For him the loves.

She made no more; that may be Torinmond, Whom the workman of this day.

Then I am finely caught in my own snare. Dryden.

FINESSE. n. s. [French.] Artifice; ini terpre
tation: an unnecessary word which is creeping into the language.

A circumstance not much to be stood upon, in case it were to come from some finesse. Heywood.

FINER, n. s. [from fine.] One who purifies metals.

Take away the dross from the silver, and these shall come forth a foil for the finer. Prov. xxiv. 4.

FINGER. n. s. [fijner.] Saxon; from fijner, to hold.

1. The flexible member of the hand by which men catch and hold.
The fingers and thumb in each hand consist of fifteen bones, there being three to each finger. Quincy.

2. By each at once their chapsy finger laying Upon her skinny lips.

Shakespeare.

3. Denotes, who is never said.
For right it ever Shakespeare.

To whine, put finger in the eye, and sob,

Because 'twas not another tub.

Hadriana.

A band of a vast extention, and a prodigious number of fingers playing upon all the organs of the body, and making every one of a particular note.

Poor Peg fevem, span, and knot for a livelihood, till the finger cuds were cut. Arbuthnot's John Hall.

Go now, go trust the wind's uncertain breath,
Remove four fingers from approaching death.

Or seven at once, when thickset is the board.

Dryden.

One of these bows with a little arrow did pierce through a piece of steel three fingers thick. Milton.

3. The hand; the instrument of work; ma ufacture; art.

Fool, that forgets her husband's look,

This fottosse from thy finger took.

Wallace.

To FINGER, v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To touch lightly; to toy with.

Go, get you gone, and let the papers lie;
You that would anger them to anger.

Shakespeare.

One that is covetous is not to highly prized with the more light and fingering of money, as with the thoughts of his being considered as a wealthy man.

Greew's Cynical. Ray.

2. To touch unseasonably or thievishly.

His ambition would need be fingering the fecrets, and holting him into his father's throne.

Shaks.

3. To touch an instrument of music.

She's in peril, but he's safe and sound.

I'd bid tell her the milkfoot her feet,

And bow'd her hand to touch her fingering.

Shak.

To perform any work exquisitely with the fingers.

Not any child in longs of fingering fine,
With this to curious out-work might compare.

Spenser.

FINGER-ERN, n. s. [finger and fern; apple
now, Latin.] A plant.

FINGER-STONE, n. s. [finger and stone; ve tive, Latin.] A Foltif resembing an ar row.

FINGER-LANGE, n. s. [from finger.] A tribe: a burlesque word.

We agree in nothing but to brave,

About the lightest fingering.

Hudibras.

5 2

FIRICAL.
FIR

Armado is a most illustrious weight. A man of fire. Some excellent jefts, is free from the. A man of such a creature, according to custom, in another lust fire, with silver buttons to it. Addit.

FIREPAN. m. f. [fire and pan.] Vessel of wood or clay for kindle fire.

FIREHARD. m. f. [fire and brand.] A piece of wood kindled.

FIREBROSE. n. f. [fire and brose.] A token in Scotland for the nation to take arms: the ends thereof burnt black, and in some parts mireed with blood. It is carried from one place to another. Upon refusal to lend it forward, or to rife, the laft person who has it showers the other.

FIRELOCK. n. f. [fire and lock.] A soldier's gun, a gun discharged by striking with fire. Prime all your firelocks, fallen well the. Gay.

FIREMEMAN. m. f. [fire and man.] 1. One who is employed to extinguish burning houses. The fireman swears beneath his crossed arms; A leathern caftle his ventous head defends, Boldly he climbs thickest smoke skies. Gay.

2. A man of violent passions.

3. A pan for holding fire.

4. [In a gun.] The receptacle for the priming powder.

FIRESHIP. n. f. [fire and ship.] A ship filled with combustible matter to fire the vessels of the enemy.

Our men hastily girt themselves of the fireship, by cutting the fireball tackle. Dryden.

FIREHOVER. n. f. [fire and hovering.] The instrument with which the hot coals are thrown up in kitchens.

Culinary. The cook, when he often sees the face of fire; as tongues, fireflowers, prongs, and irons. Boston.

The neighbours are coming out with forks and firebrands, and spits, and other domestick weapons. Dryden.

FIRESTONE. n. f. [fire and stone.] The firestones, or pyrites, is a compound metallic sulphur, composed of vitriol, sulphur, and an unmetallic earth, but in very different proportions to the several matter. The most common firestone, which is used in medicine, is a greenish sulphur kind found in our clay-pits, out of which the green vitriol or corrosivas, or its name of pyrites, or firestones, in giving fire to bring on black a feel much more freely than a flint will do; and all the sparkles, longer time, and grow larger than that, the inflammable matter of stone from the flame burning itself out before the spark becomes extinguished. Hill's Marr. Med. Firestone, if broke small, and laid on cold lands, must be of advantage. Marion's History.

FIREWOOD. n. f. [fire and wood.] Wood to burn; fuel.

FIRING. n. f. [from fire.] Jewel. They burn the tares, firing being there fierce.

To FIRE. v. a. [from fire, Latin.] 1. To take fire; to be kindled.

2. To be inflamed with passion.

3. To discharge any firearms.

4. To firebrand.

5. To fire each other.

To FIREBACK. m. [fire and back.] 1. A vessel containing nine gallons.

Stuart's firebrand is a liquor about that drop, that it will coil us many a firebrand of black bread to bring them back again. Acton.

2. A small vessel.

You lascal of that wonder of the lightning and thunder. Which made the lye so much the louder. Now lift to another, that mirable's brother, Which was done with a firebrand of powder. Dryden.
1. Strongly; impenetrably; immovably.

That hale came of force,
Though thou art nearer safety than a rock. Mil.

1. Southerly-ward placed, which, though only in a few points, can stick together, firmly, without something which causes them to be attracted towards one another. Newton.

2. Steadily; constantly.

Himself to be the man the facts require;
I firmly judge, and what I judge decide. Dryden.

The common people of Lucna are firmly persua ded, that one Jacquesbeen beat five Florentines. Additon on Italy.

Firmness, n. f. [from firm.]

Hardnefs; compactnefs; solidity.

It would be become by degrees of greater confidence and firmness, to as to be refutable an irrelatable body. Bawart.

3. Certainty; soundness.

In persons already polished with notions of reli gion, the understanding cannot be brought to change them by great examination of the truth and firmness of the one, and the flaws and weaknesses of the other. World's Sermons.

4. Steadiness; constancy; resolution.

The motion should be my friend's doke.
To God, or thee, because we have a foes.
May tempt us, I expected not to hear. Milton.

Can't thy Egyptian patriarch blame thy? Which for his firmly does, have his excuse. Rofamau. This arm job with firmness and fortitude. Aubrey.

FIRST, adj. [pyny, Saxon.]

1. The ordinal of one that is to come after another.

Fir, they are wondful of divine service.

Man's fir displeadence. Mil.

Where, fir, who laugh.
From the flumber, Mil.

Arms and the man 1 sting, the fird who bore.
His course to Latium from the Troyan hght. Dryd.

I find, quoth Mat, reproof is vain.
Which for his firmness wills to complain. Prior.

3. Highest in dignity.

Three presidents, of whom Daniel was fir. Daniel.

Fir with the dogs, and King among the fiques. Scopec.

'Tis little Will, the scourge of France.
No godhead, but the fird of men. Prior.

4. Great; excellent.

The fir fagon.
Where will you take good Comusini. With thee. Self're's Civiliams.

FIRST, a.fl. [pyny, Saxon.]

1. Before any thing else; earliest.

He, not unmindful of his usual set,
First in different acts, and quarts to part.

Then roaring bears and running stremes he tries. Dryden.

The prife, and thine was then the public voice.
First recommended Guadie to my choice. Dryd.

Heaven's fire, has kept this spot of earth uncourt.
To show how all things were created. Prior.

2. Before any other consideration.

Fir, metals are more durable than plants; fecon dly, it is difficult and hard; thirdly, they are wholly subfubernous; whereas plants are part above earth, and part under the earth. Barcan.

3. It has often at first, and means at the beginning.

In fir and the fird venom fill with eas.
And leat her cooler fees by degrees. Dryd. Ein.

FIRTLSTING, adj. [from fir.]

1. The fir produced or oifpring.

A fiphered next.
More mack, came with the firlings of his books.
Chased and h diffus to Paradifc Log.

The tender firlings of my woody breed.
Shall on his holy alter often bleed. Dryden. Virg.

The firlings of the flock are done to, Pope.

2. The thing thought or done before another.

Our play
Leape't o'er the vaunt and firlings of thee broils, Ginning th' middle. Sib. Trul. and Crift.

The firly fopis, our work's o'/school.
Unfut the dead go with it: from this moment,
The very firlings of my heart shall be
The firlings of my hand. Shakespeare's Macbeth.

FISCAL, n. f. [from ficus, a treasury, Latin.

Exchequer, revenue.

War, as it is unprotected by diet, to can it be not be long maintained by the ordinary ficral and receipt. Banon.

FISHER, n. f. [pyny, Saxon; whip, Dutch.

1. An animal that inhabits the water. Fir is ufed collectively for the race of fishe.

The boys, the fipher, and the winged fowls.
Are their males subjed. Stabh. Comed. of Err.

And now the fir ignoble faces escape.
Since Venus us'd her fatory to their shape. Grecch.

There they have fcols, that are not ftrangers to the air region; and they are both fpecies of land, and they are some birds that are inhabitants of the water, whose blood is as cold as fir; their feathers, if in like to firs, that the furpulants are allowed them on fir-days. Locke.

2. The fir of fish rafed to that of terreftrial animals, by way of enmance called fne.

I fight when I cannot chafe, and I can not fir. Shakespeare.

We mortify ourselves with the diet of fir, and think we fare contrary to what we abstain from the fir. The Cother.

Brown.

To FISHER, n. f. or [from fir.]

1. To be employed in catching fishe.
2. To endeavour at any thing by artifices.

While others fir, with craft for great opinion.
I fir, to catch mete simplicity. Shakespeare.

To FISHER, n. f. or [from fir.]

1. To search water in quell of fir, or any thing elcf.

Some have fir'd the very jakes for papers left there by men of wit.
Swift

as he fir'd her neither resluts for wit.
The goddes favour'd him, and favours yet. Pope.

FISH-HOOK, n. f. [fhir and book.]

A hook bitted, with which fir is caught.

A sharp point, bended upward and backward, like a fir now, his trembling angle ears.

FISHERBOAT, n. f. [fhir and boat.]

A boat employed in catching fir.

FISHERMAN, n. f. [fhir and man.]

One who employs and livelihood is to catch fir.

How fearfull
And dizzy 's his to call one's eyes to fow!

The firmer that walk upon the beach
Appear like mice. Shakespeare's King Lear.

At length two men of unequal fize,
Heard by the theory, fermermall. Welter.

Dokazes and fird bear price to this escr. You might have bought the firmermen for les.
Dryd.

FISHERTOWN, n. f. [fhir and town.]

A town inhabited by firermen.

Others of them, in that time burn that firter
Town Moynebold. Curren's Survey of Cornwall.

Lime in Dorsetshire, a little firtertown. Clarendon.

FISHERY, n. f. [from fir.]

The busines of catching fir.

We shall have plenty of macerel this ffair: our fir will be difturbed by privates. Additon, fir. fir. adj. [from fir.]

Abounding with fir; flourid with fir.

Thus mean in state, and calm in spirit.
My fiful payd is my delight.

Cauz. Syn. is ued and warried with the ocean, most commodious for traffick to all partes of the world, and watered with plentiful, fiful, and navigable rivers.
Camden. Remains.

To FISHERY, v. a. or [from fir.]

To turn to fir: a cant word.

Here comes Romeus.

Without his noy, like a dried hering!
O fir, how attrac'fifully! Shakespeare.

FISHING.
FISHING. n. s. [from fis.] Commodity; of taking fish.
There also would be planted a good town, having both a safe haven and a plentiful fishing. Specer.
FISHERMON . n. s. [fish and meal.] A dealer in fish; a seller of fish.
I fear to play the fishmonger; and yet to forge a commodity may not pass in silence. Carew.
The surgeon left the fishmonger to determine the controversy between him and the pike, L'Estrange.
FISHTAIL. n. s. [fish tail.] Diet of fish; ablemietious diet.
This drink doth overcool their blood, and making many commodities, they fall into a kind of male green-fickness.
FISHERMOND. n. s. [from fishtail.] A dealer in fish; a seller of fish.
Because they were sure to go to fishtail, Arcturus, John Bull.
My invention and judgment are perpetually at fists, 'till they have quite disabled each other.
FISTULA. n. s. [Latin; fisula, French.] A fistula which is recent is the easiest of cure: those of a long continuance are accompanied with ulcerations of the gland, and on the bone. Wyman's Surgery.
1. A fistulous ulcer callous within; any fistulous ulcer.
That fistula which is recent is the easiest of cure: those of a long continuance are accompanied with ulcerations of the gland, and on the bone. Wyman's Surgery.
2. Fistula Lactymalis. A disorder of the canals leading from the eye to the nose, which obstructs the natural progres of the tears, and makes them trickle down the cheek; but this is only the first and mildest stage of the disease: in the next there is matter discharged with the tears from the puncta lachrymatis, and sometimes from an orifice broken through the skin between the nose and angle of the eye. The last and worst degree of it is when the matter of the eye, by its long continuance, has not only corroded the neighbouring soft parts, but also affected the subfuscent bone. Sharp's Surgery.
FISTULAR. adj. [from fistula.] Hollow like a pipe.
FISTUOUS. adj. [from fistula; fistulose; French.] Having the nature of a fistula; callous or callousous like a fistula.
How those fistulous ulcers become fistulous, I have thought you.
FIT. n. s. [from fig.] Skinner, every fit of a disease being a struggle of nature; from in L'Esprit, frequent, Junius.
1. A paroxysm or exacerbation of any incontinent diæter.
Small stones and gravel collected and become very large in the kidneys, in which case a fist of the stone in that part is the cure. Sharp's Surgery.
2. Any short return after intermission; interval. Sometimes 'tis gratifying to the rich to try
A short viscidfig, and fit of one cold disease. Dryden.
Men that are habitually wicked may now and then, by fits and starts, feel certain motions of repentance. L'Estrange.
By fit my swelling grief appears, in rising fits and falling tears. Addison on Italy,
Thus o'er the dying lamp th' uneasy flame
Has quivering on a point, leaps off by fits.
And falls again is lost to quit its hold.
Addison.
Religion is not the bulwarks of some fits only and intervals of our life, to be taken up at certain days and hours, but a system of precepts to be regarded in all our conduct.
Rogers.
All fits of pleasure we balanced by an equal degree of pain or languid sense (pending this year, part of the next year's revenue.
Nott.
3. Any violent affection of mind or body. The fit did lay about her neck, And all her senses were with deadly fit opprest.
Addison.
An ambitious man puts it in the power of every minute to throw him into a fit of melancholy.
Addison.
Disorder; distemperance.
For your husband, He's noble, wise, judicious, and best knows
The fit of this season. Shakespeare, Macbeth.
5. It is used without an epithet of discrimination. For the hysterical disorders of women; and the convulsions of children; and by the vulgar for the epileptic.
FIT. Mr. Bull was so much enraged, that the fit down right into a fit, Arcturus: His fit of John Bull.
6. It was anciently used for any recommendation after intermission. The parts of a song, or cantos of a poem were called fits.
FIT. adj. [written, Flemish, Junius.]
1. Qualified; proper: with for before the noun, and fit before the verb.
Men of valour, fit to go out for war and battle.
He made him vain Golgah's sacred sword,
The fitting help for just fortune, doubt. Cowley.
This fury fit for her intent the choise.
Our who delights in wars and human wars, Dryden.
It is a wrong use of my understanding to make it the rule and measure of another's; a use which it is neither fit for, nor capable of. Locke.
2. Convenient; meet; proper; right.
Since we have said it was good not use men of ambitious nature, except it be upon necessity, it is we speak in what cases they are fit.
See how they could't judge of fit and meet. Mill. It is fit for a man to know his own abilities and weaknesses, and not think himself obliged to imitate all that he thinks fit to praise. Boyle.
If our forefathers thought fit to be grave and serious, I hope their poverty may laugh without offence. Addison.
To FIT. v. a. [written Flemish, Junius.]
1. To accommodate to any thing; to suit one thing to another.
The carpenter marketh it out with a fine: he fishes it with a place.
Would fate permit,
To my desires I might my fortune fits,
I would raise.
2. To accommodate a person with anything: as, the tailor fits his customer.
A trupheaker fitteth the child with a pair of bodices, fitteth on the same suit. Wyman's Surgery.
3. To be adapted to; to suit any thing.
She shall be our mediator to the country knight, I trust methought on her: she'll fit it Shakespeare.
As much of the stone was contingent to the marquess, fitteth the marquis as close as if it had been to bodily liquid. Dryden.
4. To FIT. v. Out. To furnish; to equip; to supply with necessaries or decoration.
A play, which if you dare but twice fit out,
You'll all be bandler's, and be thought devout. Dryden.
The English tees could not be paid and marked; and fitted out, unless we encouraged trade and navigation. Addison's Foilender.
5. To FIT. v. Out. To furnish; to make proper for use or reception of any.
He had fitted up his house for the Pope to Swing.
To FIT. v. a. To be proper; to be becoming.
How evil fit it me to have such a face; and how much doth that kindess upbraid my wickedness?
Sidney.
Nor fit it to prolong the flesh,
Timeless, indecent, but refine to rest. Pope's Odyssey.
FITCA. n.s. [A colloquial corruption of Biscuits.] A small kind of wild pec.
For fowling of fitches, of beans, and of season. Tyder.
FITCHE. n.s. [in fig.; French; selle.
FITCHEW. n. Dutch.] A flinking little beast, that robs the hen-woort and roo.
Toper calls him the flinking fritter; but he is much larger than the leaf; as some provinces distinguish the tree, in which the polecat is termed a fitchet, and the flinking fritter a goat.
1. 'Tis such another fitchette! marry, a perfumed one:
What do you mean by this haunting of me? Shallop.
2. He's fat, the fitchet, the hill is covered with the lake cress, study, live upon the face and waist, and the bowels of the earth.
Walton's Angler.
FITFUL. adj. [fit and full.] Varicel by a parasit.
FIX

1. A kind of play with a ball.
2. A diffuse of horses.

His horse sped with swiftness, rared with the yellows, past cure of the fowls, and dark spouled with the flagons.

To FIX. v. n. fixe, French. fasce, Latin.

1. To make fast, firm, or flable.

Bell held ther' unoffendable knight, till saw
He'vn running from his bourn, and would have fled
Affrighted, but that fate had fix'd too deep.

2. To fettle; to establish invariably.

Brighter fraught I tell
In which of all these ortho orth
His fix'd for that that hath no end.
But all these thingings orbs his choice to dwell.

1. To make fix'd, firm, and the other arbitrary pronouns.

When custom hath fix'd his eating to certain fix'd periods, his stomach will expect its share at the usual hour.

3. To direct without variation.

Why shew eyes fix'd to the fullest earth,
Gazing at that which seems to dim thy sight: Shaks.

Thus while the Trojan empress eyes his eyes,
Find's in the walls, with wonder and fatigues.

4. To deprive of volatility.

We pronounce concerning gold, that it is fix'd.

5. To pierce; to transfix.

A fence purely Latin.

While from the raging sword he rashly flies,
A bow of steel shall for his trembling thighs.

To FIX. v. n. fixe.

1. To settle the opinion; to determine the resolution.

If we should be happy, we must fix on some foundation that can never deceive us. L'Espr'nt.

He made himself his prey,
'To impose on their belief, and Troy betray;
Fix'd on his aim, and obliquely bent.
To die undaunted, or to circumvent. Dryden's Enr.

Here hope began to dawn; resol'd to try.
She fix'd on this her utmost remedy.

Death was behind; but hard it was to die. Dryden.

In most bodies not propagated by feed, it is the colour we must fix on, and are most led by.

2. To rest; to cease; to wander.

Your king is fix'd too near your fear,
Resolv'd to fix for ever here.

Waller.

3. To lose volatility, so as to be malleable.

In the midst of molten lead, when it beginneth to compound a little denser, and put quicksilver, wrapped in a piece of linen, in that hole, and the quicksilver will fix and run no more, and endured the hammering.

Bacon's Natural History.

FIXATION. n. s. [French.

1. Stability; firmness; steadiness.

Your faction in matters of religion will not be more necessary for your soul's than for your kingdom's peace.

2. Residence in a certain place.

To light, created in the first day, God gave no proper place or fixation. Raynor's History.

3. Confinement; forbearance of excursions.

They are subject to errors from a narrowness of soul, a faction and confinement of thought to a few objects.

Watts.

Upon the compound body three things are chiefly to be observed: the colour, the fragility or plianctness, and the volatility or fixation, compared with the simple bodies.

Bacon.

It is more difficult to make gold of other metals. Left ponderous and left materiale, than to make silver of lead or quicksilver, both of which are more ponderous than silver; so that they need rather a degree of that than any combination.

Bacon.

5. Reduction from fluidity to firmness.

Salt dissolved upon a fixation returns to its afflicted cub.

Cicero.

FIXEDLY. adv. [from fix.]
There is neither fruition nor pain, but facultily joined with insensibility. Women's Surgery. To FLAG-w. n. [flaggier, Dutch; flaggen, Sax.] To fly. To hang loose without stiffness or tension. A piece of cotton wool hung up between two trees, not far from the ground; to which, flagging down in the middle, men, wives and children tie together. This is used as food for cows and horses. 3. To fly spiritually or defected. My flagging soul flies under her own pitch. In a crowd in air too damp, and lags along as if it were a body in a body. My flagging body is on fire. Their edge rebated: sure fine ill approaches. Dryden's Don Sebastian. 3. To grow feeble, to lose vigour. In language is out of what least blood: for the words be but becoming and signifying, and the sense gentle, there is juice: but where that wanteth, the language is thin, flagging poor, flaved, frayed, and fragile: the bone, and the skin like fomes in a fock: some men, to avoid redundancy, run into that; and while they strive to hinder ill blood or juice, they drive the skin off which follow their Diplotomes. His flank will want victuals at the usual hour, either fretting itself into a troublesome excrescence, or flagging into a downright want of appetite. Lactes. Flocks, because it is once at a stand, naturally flag and languish. Addison's Spectator. If on fullwings of love and praise, My love shone the flary vault I cai'd, Laid by some vain conceit of pride or lust, I flag, I damp, and flutter in the dust. Arbuthnot. He fears a salt blast has been raised against him, and he only watches till it begins to flag: he goes on watching when to devour us. Swifts. The pleasures of the town begin to flag and grow languid; giving way daily to cursing innodes from the town. Swifts. To FLAG-w. v. t. 1. To let fall into feeblenees: to suffer to droop. Take heed, my dear, youth flies space. Anal. as Capreus Timeus, blind. Soon must those glories of thy face The fate of vulgar beauty find: The thousand loves, that arm thy potent eye, Must droop their quivers, flag their wings, and die, Prior. 2. [From flag, a species of flag.] To lay with broad frown. The fists and floor were all flagged with excellent marks. Sundays. A white stone used for flagging floors. Woodward. Flag, n. f. [from the verb.] 1. A water plant with a bladed leaf and yellow flower, so called from its motion in the wind. 2. The work of builsters, and laid in the flag by the river's brink. Ex. 3. Can builsters but by the river grow? Can flags there flourish where no waters flow? Sandy's, can be divers fishes that call their own waters, or none. Walcott's Angles. Cut flag roots, and the roots of other weeds. 2. The colours or effigies of a ship or land forces, by which signals are made at sea, or regiments are distinguishing in the field. These flags of France there are advanced here, Before the eye and prospect of your towns. Have hither march'd to your commandment. Shaftes. Vol. I. He hangs out as many flags as he decryth vet- fet; square, if ships galli, pendant, Democrats are left subject to fedallians as where there are lift eyes upon the persons, it is for the butties fake as fittted, and not for flags of pedigree. Bacon. With all the giddy legion that troop Under the footy flag of Acheron, Harpers and hyraxes, or all the monstrous forms. To Twist African and Indo, and force him to refurm his purchase back, Or drag him by the curl to a foul death. Milton. The French and Spaniards, when your flags appear, Forget their oaths, and come to your painter. Waller. The interpretation of that article about the flag, is a ground at pleasure for opening a war. Temple. A weather flaggers bear, Erecting crests alike, like volumns rear, And mingle friendly hiffings in the air. Dryden. Then they, whose mothers, franklins with their fear, In woods and wilds the flag of Bucanne bear, And lead his dances with diveh'd hair. Dryden. 3. A species of flone used for smooth pavements, flags, old French.] Part of two flags frated, but deeper on one side than the other. Woodward on Faggis. Flag will not split, as flat does, being found formed into flags, or thin plates, which are no other than so many flat. Faggis, Flat. In a flag, L. f. [from flag and break.] A broom for sweeping flags or pavements, commonly made of birch twigs, or of the leaves of the dwarf palm, imported from Spain. Flag officer, n. f. [flag and officer.] A commander of a squadron. Her grandfather was a flag-officer. Addison. Flagship, n. f. [flag and ship.] The ship in which a commander of a fleet is. Flag-worn, n. f. [flag and warm.] A grub bred in wetty places among flags or fledge. He will in three hot mouths bite at a flag-worn, or a green garr. Wilson's Angles. Flag, n. f. [flaggelet, French.] A small flute; a small instrument of wind music. Play us a lesson on your flaggelet. More. Flagellation, n. f. [from flagello, Lat.] The use of the scourge. By Bridewell all defend. May morning flagogen red. Garth.Flagginess, n. f. [from flaggy.] Latity; limberness; want of tension. Flaggy, adj. 1. Weak; lax; limber not stiff; not tenfe. His flaggy wings, when forth he did display, Were like two falls, in which the hollow wind Is gather'd full, and worketh speedy way. Fairy Q. That basking in the sun they may live, And reeling there, their flaggy pinions dry. Dryd. 2. Weak in table; impotent. Grant an apple-clton upon the flock of a cowlet, and it will bear a great flagg apple. Bacon. Flagitious, adj. [from flagitio, Lat.] 1. Wicked; villainous; atroceous. No villanry or flagitious action was ever yet committed upon a due enquiring into the cause of it, it will be found, that a yle was first or last the principal engine to effect it. South. Those, working upon a flagitious and per- verse nature by knowledge of their plotters, &c. Orange. First, those flagitious times. Pregnant with unknown crimes, Conspiring with their secret plots. Reflexion. Perjury is a crime of a flagitious nature, we cannot be too careful in avoiding every approach to- way. Addison. But if in noble minds some dread remain, Not yet sur'd it off, of spleen and four affidum, Discharge that rage on more provoking crimes, Nor fear a death in these flagitious times. Pope. 2. Guilty of crimes. He did, fed outcast of each church and state, And farther fill'd flagitious yet great. Pope. Flagitiousness, n. f. [from flagitio.] Profligate; villainy; flagginess. Gown, n. m. [from a word, Welsh; place, Sax.] Fargen, Danish; Fargen, French; fargar, Italian; faggin, Spanish. A vessel of drink with a narrow mouth. A mad rogue! he pour'd a flag of Rhenish on his head once. Shakespeare's Hamlet. Thus did he slay him by a alley in Chameroy two silver flaggans. Bacon's Apology. Did they coin pillets, bowls, and flaggans? Int'officers of borne and dragonos? Hudibras. His trothy flaggans with no heart; Waw: hanging by, worn thin with age and use. Reflexion. One flagg walks the round, that none that think They either change, or flirt in his drink. Dryd. Flagnance, n. f. [flagnant, Latin.] Burning; heat; fire. Lust caethth a flagnancy in the eye, as the flight and the touch are the things defined, and therefore the flagill refereth to both. Bacon's Nat. Hist. Flagnant, adj. [flagnant, Latin.] 1. Arcdent; burning; eager. It is always used figuratively. A thing which filleth the mind with comfort and beauty, such as the flowers, leaves, and affectionate answers that which the words contain. Hooker. Gliowing; fullfled. See Sappho, at her toilet's greatly talk, Then finging fagaceous to an evening muse. So morning insects, that in muck began, Shine, buzz, and fly-blow in the setting sun. Pope. 3. Red; imprinted red. Flag-staff, n. f. A flagstaff. A flag-staff is a kind of staff or pole. The beatle's last flag, flagrant on their back. Prior. 4. Notorious; flaming into notice. When fraud is great, it furnishes weapons to defend itself; and at worst, if the crimes be so flagrant that a man is laid side of perfect frame, he retires loaded with the spouts of the nation. Swifts. But, by equal poise let steady justice fly, And flagrant crimes with certain vengeance pay; But, till the proofs are clear, the fable delay. Smolth. Flagration, n. f. [flagrs, Latin.] Burning. Flagstaff, n. f. [flag, and staff.] The staff on which the flag is fixed. The duke, lets numerous, but in courage more. Oh wings of all the winds to combat dills. His murdering guns a loud defiance rear, And bloody croces on his flaggstaff rills. Dryd. Flag, n. f. [flagellaum, Latin; flag, Ger. German.] The instrument with which grain is beaten out of the car, the tool of the thrasher. Our faddlers, like the night-owl's lazy flight, Or like a lazy theather with a flall, Fell gently down as if they struck their friends. Prior. When in one ear, were glimpse of men, His thadows flall hath thred the corn, That ten day-labourers could not end. Milton. In this vile flag reign a mighty prince, Born for a couage of wit, and flag of test. Dryd. The dextros handling of the flall, or the plough, and being good workmen with these tools, did hinder Camden's and Cintra's flall's in arms and government. Locke. The theather, Duck, could o'er the queen prevail: The proveth says, no times against a flall. Swift. FLA. n. f. [flag, Latin?] 1. Any thing that appears loofly held together, like a flock of wool. Crimson circles like read flakles in the element, when the weather is hottest. Sidney. And from his wide devouring owen sent A flake.
A FLAME of fire, that flitting in his head,
Him all amaz'd, and almost all affright.

The earth is sometimes cover'd with snow two or three deep, made up only of little flakes or pieces of ice.

Small drops of a mistling rain, descending through a freezing air, do each of them sink into one of the little flakes which, being ruffled by the wind, in their fall are broken, and clustered together in small parcels, which we call flake of snow.

Upon throwing in a stone the water boils for a considerable time, and at the same time they are seen little flakes of water rising up.

1. A fretful flame. 2. Lying in layers or strata; broken into laminae.
3. To break into laminae; to part in loose bodies.

FLAKY, adj. [from flakes] 1. Loosely fitted together. 2. Of old apricot and agey. 3. Inflamed.

FLAME, n. f. [flamma, Latin; flamme; flame, French.] 1. Light emitted from fire.
2. To place in or cast to a flame.
3. Ardour of temper or imagination; brightness of fancy; vigour of thought.

FLAMMABLE, adj. [flammeable, French.] 1. That which emits fire. 2. Pigeon's plume. 3. To keep a fire.

FLAMMABILITY, n. f. [flamma, Latin.] The quality of admitting to be set on fire, so as to blaze.

FLAMMATION, n. f. [flammatio, Latin.] The act of setting on flame.

FLAMMIFEROUS, adj. [flammiferus, Latin.] Braving fire.

FLAMMIVOMOUS, adj. [flammam, and vomo, Latin.] Vomiting out fire.

FLAMMA, n. f. [flamma, Latin; flamme; flame, French.] 1. The little flakes of water rising up.
2. A fire.
3. A sort of artificer's glass, that burns with a greenish flame.

FLAMECOLOURED, adj. [flame-coloured] 1. Of a bright yellow colour.
2. Of a bright yellow colour.

FLAMEN, n. f. [Latin.] A priest; one that officiates in solemn offices.

FLAMENCA, n. f. [flammeatus, Latin.] A woman's stocking.

FLAMMABILITY, n. f. [flammam, Latin.] The quality of admitting to be set on fire, so as to blaze.

FLAMMATION, n. f. [flammatio, Latin.] The act of setting on fire.

FLAMMIFEROUS, adj. [flammiferus, Latin.] Braving fire.

FLAMMIVOMOUS, adj. [flammam, and vomo, Latin.] Vomiting out flame.

FLAMMABLE, adj. [flammeable, French.] 1. A flabby, flapping sort of cloth.
2. The little flakes of water rising up.

FLAME, n. f. [flamma, Latin; flamme; flame, French.] 1. Light emitted from fire.
2. To place in or cast to a flame.
3. Ardour of temper or imagination; brightness of fancy; vigour of thought.

FLAMMABLE, adj. [flammeable, French.] 1. That which emits fire. 2. Pigeon's plume. 3. To keep a fire.

FLAMMABILITY, n. f. [flamma, Latin.] The quality of admitting to be set on fire, so as to blaze.

FLAMMATION, n. f. [flammatio, Latin.] The act of setting on fire.

FLAMMIFEROUS, adj. [flammiferus, Latin.] Braving fire.

FLAMMIVOMOUS, adj. [flammam, and vomo, Latin.] Vomiting out fire.

FLAMMA, n. f. [flamma, Latin; flamme; flame, French.] 1. The little flakes of water rising up.
2. A fire.
3. A sort of artificer's glass, that burns with a greenish flame.

FLAMMABLE, adj. [flammeable, French.] 1. A flabby, flapping sort of cloth.
2. The little flakes of water rising up.

FLAME, n. f. [flamma, Latin; flamme; flame, French.] 1. Light emitted from fire.
2. To place in or cast to a flame.
3. Ardour of temper or imagination; brightness of fancy; vigour of thought.

FLAMMABLE, adj. [flammeable, French.] 1. That which emits fire. 2. Pigeon's plume. 3. To keep a fire.

FLAMMABILITY, n. f. [flamma, Latin.] The quality of admitting to be set on fire, so as to blaze.

FLAMMATION, n. f. [flammatio, Latin.] The act of setting on fire.

FLAMMIFEROUS, adj. [flammiferus, Latin.] Braving fire.

FLAMMIVOMOUS, adj. [flammam, and vomo, Latin.] Vomiting out fire.
To fall with flaps or broad parts depending.

When suffocating mists obfuscate the morn, Let thy wort-wog, long 'ud to fumes, be worn; Thus the apoplectic forms, and with care Beneath his flapping has fecures his hair. Gay.

F. DRAGON, n. s. [from a dragon fappoef to breathe fire.]
1. A play in which they catch raisins out of burning brandy, and, extinguishing them by closing the mouth eat them.
2. To glut with a dragon.

He plays at quota well, and eats corder and fennel, and drinks candles ends for dragons, and rides the wild mare with the boys. Shakespeare.

To FLAPDRAON. n. a. [from the nown.]

To swallow; to devour. Low cant.

But to make an end of the ship, to see how the sea flappedragon it. Shakespeare's Winter's Tale.

FLAPPEARED, adj. [apl and ear]. Having loofe and broad ears.

So wrote with loofe flapped ear. Shafpeare.

To FLARE. v. a. [from flerces, to flutter, Dutch, Skinner; perhaps accidentally changed from gleare.]
1. To glut with transient luftre.

Doctrine and life, colours, and light, in one When they combine and mingle, bring A strong regard and awe; but speech alone Dost vanish like a farking thing, And in the ear, not conscience, ring. Herbert.

2. To glut well.

When the sun begins to fling His flaring beams, me, goddles, bring To arched walks of twilight groves, Milton.

3. To be in too much light.

I cannot flay.

Flaring in furnish all the day, Prior.

4. To flatter with a splendid show. She shall be loue corrod'd, With ribbons pendant firling 'bout her head. Shakespeare.

FLASH. n. s. [fleak, Minforte.]
1. A sudden, quick, transistor blazy.

When the crofs blue lightning seem'd to open The breath of heav'ned, I did pretrench myself Even in the air and very flaysia, of it. Stukeby.

We see a flash of a piece is seen sooner than the night is head. Bacon's Natural History.

One with a flash begins, and ends in smok; The other out of smok makes glorious light. Shadwell. And as Ego. when with heaven he throve, Defy'd the forkly lightning (man asfer, At fifty mouthes his flaming breath expires, And flaysia for flaysia returns, and bears for fire. Dryd.

2. Sudden burst of wit or merriment.

Where be your gnomes? your symbols? your songs? your flashes of merriment, that were wont to set the table in a roar?

Shakespeare.

With a sudden burst of wit, light flashes of a wanton mirth, which for a while suspend reflection, and hide the funnes from himself, to such discourses as awaken content. Rogers.

3. A short tranfient flate.

The Pherens and Macdonaldians had it for a flash. Bacon.

4. A body of water driven by violence.

To FLASH, v. n.
1. To glut with a quick and tranfient flashfongtation.

[This fal powdered, and put into a crucible, was, by the injection of well kindled charcoal, made to flashfongt over, almost like melted mir. Boyle.

5. To burn out into any kind of violence.

By day and wight he wronge me; ever hour.
FLAT

1. Without prominence or elevation.

2. Without spirit; dully; frigidly.

3. Petemortem; downright.

4. He in thee wars had fally subdued his side. Sidney. Thereupon they fally disavow
To yield him more obdience, or support. Daniel.

5. Flatly unjust, to bind with laws the free. Milton.
Not any interpreters allow it to be spoken of such a flight, the bring of God; but God, but believing his existence, exclude him from directing the world. Bentley.

FLATNESS. n. s. [from flat.]
1. Evenness; level extenuation.
2. Want of relief or prominence.

3. Deadness; invidiousness; vapidness.

4. Jealously; with thought or language.

5. In the prince's path, calls of flat.

6. Foul mouth; and in its abrupt ambush lay,
Where the false sides flow o'er the covert land,
And feamen with defiled depths betray. Dryden.

7. Pleasing; and, to the utter ruin of navigation. Bentley.

8. The broad side of a blade.

10. To level; to depress; to make broad and smooth.

11. The ancient say, if you take two twigs of flat
And throw them on the tides, and bind them close, and let them in the ground, they will come up in one stick. Bacon.

12. To make flat.

13. An orange, lemon, and apple, wap't in a brown cloth, with and without, a month's feet deep within the earth, though in a moist place and rainy time, were become a little harder than they were; otherwise fresh in their colour, and their juice some". Shakespeare.

14. To make flat. [at.]

To FLATEN. v. a. [at. French; from flat.]
1. To make even or level, without prominence or elevation.
2. To beat down to the ground.

3. If they should lie in it, and beat it down, or flat it, it will rise again. Morton's Husbandry.

4. To make flat.

5. To make flat.

6. To make flat.

FLATTEN. v. n.
1. To grow even or level.
2. To grow dull and insipid.

3. Here joy that endure for ever, clear and in vigour, are opposed to satisfactions that are attended with fatuary and flatness, and flatness in the very tating. Dryden.

4. FLATTER. n. s. [from flat.]

5. The workman or instrument by which bodies are flattered.

6. To FLATTER. v. a. [flatter; French, from flat.]
7. To grow with flatting to please with blandishments; to gratify with fervle obsequiousness; to gain by flatte compliments.

8. When I tell him he hates flatterers, He says he does; being then most flattered. Shak.
He is a top of the world, and would not flatter Neptune for his trident,
Or love for'power to thunder: his heart's his mouth; What his breath forges that his tongue must want. Shakespeare.

9. He that flatters his neighbourhood, spreadeth a net for his feet. Proverbs. xlix. 2.

10. He protected himself in his own eyes, but insiety be found hateful. P. F. xxxvii. 2.
After this way of flatterer their willing bene-

11. Fall out of part, they contrived another of forcing their unwilling neighbours out of all their possessions.

12. Averse alike to flatter or offend.

13. I form to flatter you or any man. Nevin.

14. To praise falsely.

15. FLATTERER. n. s. [from flatter.]
1. One who flatters; a fawner; a wheeler; one who endeavours to gain favour by pleasing falties.

2. When I tell him he is the flatterer. He says he does; being then most flattered. Shak.
Some praises proceed merely of flattery; and if he be an ordinary flatterer, he will have certain common attributes, which may serve every man: if he be an imperial flatterer, to him all flattered, which is a man's self. But if he be an impudent flatterer, look wherein he's conscious to himself that he is a base, and it is not our nace or a compliment in himself, that will the flatterer entitle him to perform. Bacon

3. If from wealth to poverty defend,

4. Want gives to know the flatterer from the friend. Dryden.

5. After treating her like a goddess, the husband uses her like a woman: what is still worse, the whole object flatterers degenerate into the greatest tyrants, Addison's Guardian.

6. The publick should know this: yet whoever goes about to inform them, shall be cenured for a flat.

7. Swift.

8. FLATTENING. n. s. [from flatter; flatterer; French.]

9. False praise; artful obsequiousness; adulation.

10. Minds, by nature great, are conscious of their greatness.

11. And hold it mean to borrow aught from flatterer. Rovet.

13. See how they beg an alms of flatterer. They languish, Of support them with a yuge. Young.

14. FLATTENISH. adj. [from flat.]

15. Somewhat flat; approaching to flatterers.

16. There are three in a flatness; or seven; a flattofshape. Woodward on Figgis.

FLATULENCY. n. s. [from flatulent.]
1. Windines; fainines of wind; turbulence by wind confused.

2. Vegetable substance contains a great deal of air, which expands itself, producing all the disorders of flatulence.

3. Aboroutines.

4. Flatulence; vanity; levity; airines.

5. Whether most of them are not the genuine derivations of the hypothesis they claim to, may be determined by any that considers the natural tendency of that airy scheme of notions. Glavwile.

6. FLATULENT. adj. [flatulentus, flatus, Lat.]

1. Turgid with air; windy.

2. Peafl; mild and demeclemb; but being full of all clataneous are flatulent, when dilated by dis- egelation.

3. Aboroutines.

4. Flatulence tumours are such as easily yield to the pressure of the finger; but readily return, by their own pusulent fluid, against follow the tendency.

5. Empty; vain; big without flatulence or reality; pulzy.

6. To talk of knowledge, from those few indistinct representations which are made to our prosfer factions, is a flatulent vanity. Glavwile's Serfort.

7. Lines of these flatulent writers have some fink in their reputation, after seven or eight editions of their works. Dryden.

FLATUOSITY.
FLATUOSITY. n. f. [Latin.] Windy; fulness of air.

The caufe is flatuosity; for wind stirs, moveth to and fro, and all purgers have in them a raw spirit of flatuosity, which is the principal caufe of flatulence in the stomack and belly.

FLATUOUS. adj. [from flatuosity, Latin.] Windy; full of wind.

Rubes in the stomack, in a small quantity, doth comfort the patient, being not flatuosity nor inertness; and in large quantity, to the mediciynal values, and being appeasing, doth help it down. Bacon.

FLATNESS. n. f. [Latin.] Wind gathered in any cavities of the body, caused by incontinence and a gross internal perfpiration; which is therefore diffused by warm aromaticks.

FLATNESS, adj. [flat and wife; so it should be written, not flatuosity.] With the flat downwards; not the edge.

Its poifure in the earth was flatness, and parallel to the fiere of the fiarum in which it was repofed. Woodward on Earth.

To FLAUNT, v. n.

1. To make a fluttering shew in apparel.
   With levvy canopy'd, and interwove With flowering honeysuckle. Milton.

   These couriers of applause deny themselves things commodious to a bright, and looking frequently enough to immoderate their desire to their vanity.

Boyle.

Here, still'd beyond our purfe, we go,
For ufeful entertainment and flattering show;
We take it up in purple robes to the line,
And poor, are yet ambitious to be fine.
Dryden.

You, for you, you letter about alibis, or knock about the streets in your new-guifted chariot, never mentioning me nor your numerous family.

Arabian.

2. To be hung with something loufe and flying.

This fiems not to be proper; the words flaunt and flatter might with more propriety have changed their places.

Fortune in men has some small difference mull.

One flaunt in rag, one flunter in brocade. Pope.

FLAUNT, n. f. Any thing loose and airy.

Would he look to fee his work fo noble, Witty bound up, what would he say? Or should I in thee my borrow'd flaunts behold
The flames of his preference. Shakspur.

FLAVOUR, n. f.

1. Reflection of the taste.

They have a certain flavour, at their first appearance, from several accidental circumstances, which they may lose, if not taken early. Addison's Spect.

2. Sweetness to the smell; odour; fragrance.

Myrrh, orange, and the burning huile.

With hanging heads, so righ their bloom dilate,
Each feems to fiel the flavour which the other blows. Dryden.

FLAVOURS, adj. [from flavour.]

Delightful to the palate.
Sweet grapes degenerate there, and fruits declin'd From their finer flav'rous tastes, renown their kind. Dryden.

FLAW, n. f. [O. E. flaw; to break; pl. flaw, Saxon, a garment.]

1. A crack or breach in any thing.

This heart shall break into a thousand flaws.

Shakespeare's King Lear.

Oh! weep, oh! weep, being caused casually upon a veile of vexation, after some time had drunk up a great part of the vexation, though the veile were whole, without any flaw and had not the besele plate opened.

Shakespeare's Natural History.

We found it exceeding difficult to keep out the air from getting in at any imperceptible hole or flaw.

Boyle.

A flaw is in rhyhsh-bald's veile found:
'Tis hollow, and returns a jarring sound.
Dryden.

FLAY.

As great Albus, from his height,
Should sink beneath his heavenly weight;
And with a mighty flaw the flaming wall, as once it fell
Should gaze immense, and rushing down, or to the west Dyed. Screen.

Whether the nymphe shall break Diana's law
Or some freel Chatooses to the vext. Pope.

He that would keep host in repair, must attend every little breach or flaw, and supply it immediately, or a whole will hang all to ruin, and fly off.

2. A fault; defect; something that weakens or invalidates.

Yet certain though it be, it hath flaws; for that the freverines and bookes do value men to favour their own.

Bacon's Essays.

Tendres were a proof alone,
Could we be certain such they were, as known:
But since some flaws in long deceits may be
They make the weak, and in their imperfection.

Dryden. A. Sane.

To null her owrty in law,
To prove her jointure with a flaw. Hudibras.

Their judgment has found a flaw in what the general of mortals may.

They may be made.

and laid her dowry out in law.
Dryden.

3. A sudden guilt; a violent blaff.

As from flaw, Low. Obfolute.

Being incarcerated, he's flint.

As humorous as Winter, and as sudden
A flaw overcame the spring of day. Shaks. Hen. IV. 0. S. Oh, that the laws in the world in act, Should patch a wall, I expel the Winter's flaw.

Shakespeare's Hamlet.

A huge flaw, laid
Near to the cold and gathering-flower, is with a north flaw fiald, Shower back; fe, fent against the ground,
Was Guld Buthius.

Bursting their brazen dungeon, arms'd with ice,
And snow, and hail, and stormy guilt, and flaw,
Breeze, and Caeles, and Arpites loud,
And Thetis rent the woods, and see upon.

Milton.

I heard the rack.

At earth and sky would mingle; but myself
Was dastard; and their flaws, though mortals fear them,
As dangerous to the pillar's frame of heaven,
Or to the frail bark of a potential.

Milton's Par. Lost.

4. A tumult; a tempestuous uproar.

And this fell tempfall shall not cease to rage
Until the golden circump in my head
Do calm, the fury of this madhouse flaw. Shakspur.

The fort's revoked to the emperor.

The gates are open, the portcullis drawn,
And deluges of flames.

Come pouring in, I heard the mighty flaws
When fhit it broke, the crowing enzymes flaw
Which should puflhe the paffage. Dryden's Durham.

A sudden common of mind.

Oh! these flaws and faults,
Impotors to true fear, would become
A woman's flaw y's a Winter's fire. Shaks. Macbeth.

To FLAY, v. n. [from the noun.]

1. To break; to crack; to damage with fliffure.

But his flaw'd heart,
Alas, too weak the condition to support,
Twixt two extremes of palloum, joy and griefs.

Bolt filling
The cup was filled with such a multitude of little cracks, that it looks like a white, not like a crystalline cup.

Dryden.

The braine claws withons with the flaws are flaw'd,
The garment rift with ice, at hearts is thrown.

Dryden.

2. To break; to violate. Out of life.

France hath flaw'd the league, and hath attach'd us.

Shakespeare's Titus Andronicus.

Our merchant's goods. Shakespeare's Henry VIII.

FLAWLESS. adj. [from flaw.]

Without cracks; without defects.

A flaw of the fmal magnitude, which the more high, more vail, and more flawless, shows only bright enough to make itflf conspicuous. Boyle.
2. Not rigid; not inexorable; complying; obsequious.

3. Docile; manageable.

Under what wise, forsooth a child is put to be taught, or the tender, and affable years of his life, it should be, one who thinks Latin and language the least part of education. Locke.

4. That may be accommodated to various forms and purposes.

This was a principle more flexible to their purpose. Rogers.

FLEXIBILITY, n. f. [from flexible.]

1. Possibility to be bent; not brittleness; elainses to be bent; not stiffness; plianities; pliancy.

I will rather choose to wear a crown of thorns, than to exchange that of gold for one of lead, whose elasticitie shall be forced to bend. King Charles.

2. Facility: obsequiousness; complaisance.

3. That may be bent, or plianly.

The flexibility of the former part of a man's age, not yet grown up to be headstrong, makes it more governable. Locke.

FLEXILE, adj. [flexilis, Latin.] Plant; easily bent; obsequious to any power or impulse. Every flexile, wave.

Obeys the blast, the aerial tumult swells. Thomson.

FLEXION, n. f. [flexeo, Latin.]

1. The act of bending.

2. A double; a bending; part bent; joint. Of a flexible tree, and any fine; a flexion, trial would be made. Bacon's Natural History.

3. A turn towards any part or quarter.

Fifty cresses sometimes tears, and a flexion or cast of the eye afford. Bacon's Natural History.

FLEXOR, n. f. [Latin.]

The general name of the muscles which act in contraciting the joints.

Flanterns who have the flexor muscles so strong that they are always bowing and curving, might to the accomodation of being tied down upon a tree by the back. Arbuthnot.

FLEXIOUS, adj. [flexus, Latin.]

1. Winding; full of turns and meanders; tortuous.

In regard to the foul, the numerous and crooked narrow passages, and the restrained flexious rivulets of corporeal things, are all contemptible. Digby.

2. Bending; not straight; variable; not steady.

The trembling of a candle discover a wind, that otherwise we did not feel, and the flexious burning of flames doth the air begin to be unquiet. Bacon's Natural History.

FLEXURE, n. f. [flexura, Latin.]

1. The form or direction in which any thing bends.

Contrary is the flexure of the joints of our arms and legs to that of quadrupeds: our knees bend forward, whereas the same joint of their hind legs bend sideways to rear. Ray.

2. The act of bending.

The elephant hath joints, but none for courtesy; his legs are for necessity, not flexure. Shaks.

3. The part bent; the joint.

His mighty flexure lies in his able loins, After the flower of his navel joint. Sidney.

4. Obsequious or servile cringe. Not used.

Think'st thou the fiery fever will go out With titles blown from abdication? Will give place to flexure and low bends? Sh. Hen. V.

To FLICKER, v. a. [Figur'en, Dutch;
6. To call: in an ill sense.

To cause thy genus temper: the Fling from the earth of diatouron on
It frights take fire.

To force into another condition, probably into a worse.

To from beneath, fling dirt.

Dost from the pride of wonted ornaments. Spenf. Fling.

To fling away: to eject; to dismiss.

Cromwell, I charge thee, fling away ambition; By that sin fell the angels. Shakespeare.

To be or fling: to renounce; to refuse.

These are far from raising mountains, that they overturn and fling down some of those which were before standing.

To fling an off: to battle in the chase: to defeat of a prey.

These men are too well acquainted with the chase to be flung off by any false steps or doggers. Addis. Spotter's Spectator.

To fling on.

1. To fumble: to wince: to fly into violent and irregular motions. The angry beast
Begs to kick, and fling, and wince, As if it had been his fate. Hudibras.

These confidences are galled by it, and this makes them wince and fling as if they had some mettle. Townsend.

2. To fling out. To grow unruly or outrageous: from the act of any angry horse that throws out his legs.

Dungeon's horses, Tarn'd wild in nature, broke their stalls, fling out, Contending against obedience. Shakespeare.

FLING. n. [from the verb.]

1. A throw: a cast.

2. A gibe: a sneer, a contemptuous remark. No little scribler is of wit to bore, But has his fling at the poor wedded pair. Addison, who love to have a fling.

Which is at once a horse and a king, Thought no method more commodious Than to throw their wits obodious. Swift.

FLINGER. n. [from the verb.]

1. He who throws.

2. He who jeers.

FLINT. n. [flint, Sax.] A semi-polished stone, composed of crystal debased, of a blackish grey, of one similar and equal substance, free from veins, and naturally inveterate with a whirling crust. It is sometimes smooth, and occasionally extremely rough: its fize is various. It is well known to strike fire with steel. It is useful in glass-making.

Hill on Felsh. Searching the window for a flint, I found this paper. Shakespeare's Julia Cesar. Love melts the rigour which the rocks have bred: A flint will break upon a feather. Cleveland.

There is the same force and the same relaxing virtue in fire kindled by a spark from a flint, as if it were kindled by a brand from South's Sermon. Take this, and lay your flint edge'd weapon by.

I'll fetch quick fuel from the neighbouring wood, And strike the sparkling flint, and dress the food. Prior.

2. Any thing eminently or proverbially hard.

Your teeth, a heart of flint.

Might reader make.

Throw my heart.

Against the flint and hardness of my fault. Shak.

FLINTY. adj. [from flint.]

1. Made of flint: stron.

Tyrant custom

Hash made the flinty and steel couch of war

FLINT. n. [from flint.]

A pointed flinty rock, all bare and black.

Grew gibbons from behind the mountain's back. Dryden.

2. Full of fictions.

The gathering up of flints in flinty ground, and laying them on heaps, is no good husbandry.

Bacon's Natural History.

3. Hard of heart; cruel; savage; incombustible.

Through flinty Tartar's bosom, would peep forth, And answer thanks. Shakespeare.

FLIPP. n. [A cant word.]

A liquor much used in hips, made by mixing beer with spirits and graver.

The tartarin and weaver is bailing at Madagaskar, with some drunken flunkey whores, over a can of flipp. Danzi.

FLIPPANT. adj. [A word of no great authority, probably derived from flit-flip.

Nimble; movingly. It is used only of the act of speaking.

An excellent anatomist professed to dissect a woman's tongue, and examine whether there may not be in certain joints, which make it to wonderfullyvolatile. Addis. Spotter's Spectator.

2. Pert; petulant; saucy.

Away with flippant epigrams. Thomson.

FLIPPANTLY, adv. [from the adjective.]

In a flowing puting way.

To FLIRT, v. to. [skinner thinks it formed from the found.]

1. To throw away with a quick elastic motion.

Dick the scavenger
Flirts from his hand the mud in Walpole's face. Swift.

2. To move with quickness.

Permit some happier man
To kiss your hand, or flit your fan. Dryden.

To FLIRT. v. n.

1. To jeer; to gibe at one.

2. To run about perpetually; to be unflit.

FLIRT. n. [from the verb.]

A quick elastic motion.

In unfliting the fan are several little flirts and vibrations, as at gradual and deliberate openings.

Before you pass the imaginary fire.

While the spleen fan's thermal the closing eye.

Then give one flirt, and all the vision flies. Pope.

2. A faddler.

Have licence to play.

At the hedge a flirt.

For a skier, or a flirt. Ben Jonson's Flog.

5. A pert young harrie.

Scurvy knave, I am none of his flirt gill; I am none of his skins mates. Shakespeare.

Several young flirts about town had a design to cut us out of the fashionable world. Addis.

FLIRTATION. n. [from flirt.]

A quick sprung motion. A cant word among women.

A modius flance, made very full, would give very agreeable flirtation air. Pope.

To FLY n. [from To fleet; or from flirt, Danith, to remove.]

1. To fly away.

Like it seemeth, in my simple wit,
Unto the faire onshore in Summer's day.

That when a day and term away is flirt.

Through the broad world does spread his goodly ray. Dryden.

2. To remove; to migrate.

In Scotland it is still used for removing from one place to another at quarterday, or the usual terms.

His raging ghost did strive
With the frail fleet: at last it flit'ted it,
Whither the souls do die of that which live here. Dryden.

3. To pass with a light irregular course: perhaps mistaken for fleet or flit.

Floating visions make not deep impressions enough to leave in the mind clear, distinct, lasting ideas.

Dryden.
To FLOAT. v. a. To cover with water. Proud Puckhul floats the fruitful lands, And leaves a rich manure of golden sands.

Dryden's Div.

Voice, looks, as a distance, like a great town half floated by a deluge. Addison on Italy.

Now smokes with show'r the misty mountain ground, And flows with fields, lie unfish'd with'rd round. Pope.

The vast porters a thousand hands shall make: Let Cobham come, and theirs with them a lake. Pope.

FLOAT. n. s. [from the verb.]

1. The act of flowing; the flux; the contrary to the ebb. A fene now out of life. Our truth in the Almighty is, that with us contents are now at their highest float. Homer. There is some disposition of bodies to motion, particularly from East to West; of which kind we conceive the main float and redhead of the seas is, which is by constant of the universe, as part of the diurnal motion. Bacon's Nat. Hist.

2. Any body so contriv'd or formed as to swim upon the water. They took it for a ship, and, as it came nearer, for a boat: but it proved a float of weeds and rushes. L'Estrange.

A passage for the weary people makes; With other floats the flowing water flows, Of which kind it is, if it flows. Dryden.

3. The cork or quill by which the angler discovers the bite of a fish. You will find this to be a very choice bait, sometimes cutting a little of it into the plate where your fish swims. Walton.

4. A cant word for a level. Banks are measured by the float or floor, which is sixteen foot square and one deep. Mortimer.

FLOATY. adj. Buoyant and swimming on the surface. The hindrance to stay well is the extreme length of a ship, especially if the floats, and want sharpness of way forwards. Raleigh.

FOCK. n. s. [fock, Saxon.]

1. A company, usually a company of birds or beasts. She that has a heart of that fine frame, To pay this debt of love but to a brother, How will the love when the rich golden hair Hath with't the float of all affections else, That live in her. Shaksf, Twelfth Night, 2.

2. A company of sheep, distinguished from herds, which are of oxen. The cattle in the fields, and meadows green, Thou'st us in this idle company of floats, Victuring at once, and in broad herbs unprong'd. Milton.

France has a sheep by her, to fowre that the finest of the country consigned chiefly in floats and patul.

FLOAT. n. s. [from the noun.] To gather in crowds or large numbers. Many young gentlemen flock to him every day, and meet the time carelessly.

Up to the return of the ambassadors, the poor of all sorts flocked together to the great master's house. Knuts's History.

Others ran flocking out of their hovels to the near supplication.

Dryden.

To FLOCK. v. n. [from the noun.] To form crowds or large numbers. Many young gentlemen flock to him every day, and meet the time carelessly.

Up to the return of the ambassadors, the poor of all sorts flocked together to the great master's house. Knuts's History.

Others ran flocking out of their hovels to the near supplication.

Dryden.

Thus, when the people flocked about him, and that one said, The people come wondering about your dusty times to see some strange beef with you, he, to see a man which Diogenes fought with his lantern at noon-day. Bacon.

Seeing the spirits the nervous cause of the arm, and from its resistance they flock from other parts of the body to overcome it. Digby.

FLOOD. v. a. [from flagrum, Latin.] To lafh; to whip; to chastize. The schoolmaster's joy is to flog. Swift.

FLOOD. n. s. [from flog, Saxon; flat, French.] A body of water; the sea, a river. What need the bridge much broader than the flog? Shakespeare. His dominion shall be asf the one sea to the other, and from the flood unto the world's end. Job xi. 8.

2. A deluge; an inundation. You see this conflagration; this great flood of vipers. By golden flocks, and fall of waters, Buckingham's army is dipp'd and scatter'd. Shaks. R. Ill. 3.

3. Flood; flux; not ebb; not reflux; the swelling of a river by rain or inland blood. We seek to know the moving of each sphere, And the strange cause o' th' ebb's and floods of Nile. Davids.

4. The general deluge. When went there by an age since the great flood, But it was fam'd with more than with one man? Shakespeare.

It is commonly opiniioned that the earth was thinly inhabited before the flood. Brown.

5. Cateneia.

That those that have the good fortune of mifcarrying, or being delivered, escape by means of their floods, or deluges, which they have. Shakespeare.

So the earth was covered with floods, and the ark was placed on the mountains. Gen. vii. 16.

6. Floodgate. Where meadows are flooded late in Spring, roll with a large barley-roller. Mortimer.

FLOODGATE. n. s. [from flood and gate.] Gate or shutter by which the watercourse is closed or opened at pleasure. As if the opening of her mouth had opened some great floodgate of Borneo, whereof her heart could not abide the violent issue, the ficle to the ground. Sidney.

Yet there the deep flaid not, but lay bare Deep in his floods, and opened wide a red floodgate. Spenser.

His youth, and want of experience in maritime service, had somewhat been thereby touched, even before the close of floodgates of popular liberty were yet fet open. Wren.

The rain defended for forty days, the characters or floodgates of heaven being opened. Burton.

FLOOD. n. s. [flog, a plow, German.] 1. The broad part of the anchor which takes hold of the ground. 2. A flounder; a flat river fish.

FLOOR. n. s. [loph, slope, Saxon.] 1. The pavement: a pavement is always of stone, the floor of wood or stone; the part on which one treads.

His mother, making all her gestures counterfeited affections, lay almost grovelling upon the floor of her chamber. Sidney.
5. To proceed to the place where your furnaces are in a fair condition.

6. To tear up the ground with a spade, to dig it, and to set it aside.

7. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

8. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

9. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

10. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

11. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

12. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

13. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

14. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

15. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

16. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

17. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

18. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

19. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

20. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

21. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

22. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

23. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

24. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

25. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

26. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

27. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

28. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

29. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

30. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

31. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

32. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

33. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

34. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

35. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

36. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

37. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

38. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

39. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

40. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

41. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

42. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

43. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

44. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

45. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

46. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

47. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

48. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

49. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

50. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

51. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

52. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

53. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

54. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

55. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

56. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

57. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

58. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

59. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

60. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

61. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

62. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

63. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

64. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

65. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

66. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

67. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

68. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

69. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

70. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

71. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

72. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

73. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

74. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

75. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

76. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

77. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

78. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

79. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

80. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

81. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

82. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

83. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

84. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

85. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

86. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

87. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

88. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

89. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.

90. To plow the ground with a plow, to make it plowed, and to set it aside.
6. To glide smoothly without aspersion; as, a gliding period.

This corkscrew of Cyprian, and the flowers of rhetoric in it, show them to have been of a great wit and fancy. Gliding period. [Heraldic Term.]

7. To write smoothly; to speak volubly.

Virgil is sweet and flowing in his hexameters. [Dryden]

8. To abound; to be crowned.

The dry streets flow'd with men. [Chapman]

9. To be copious; to be full.

Be in these flowing cups freely remember'd. [Shak. V.]

There every eye with fulness runs the chain, and daeth the flowing goblet to the ground. [Pepp's Odyssey.]

10. To hang loose and waving.

He was clasht in a flowing mantle of green silk, interwoven with flowers. [Spenser.]

To Flow. v. a. To overflow; to deluge.

Watering horses is scarce practicable, unless you have a stream at hand to flow the ground. [Martinean's Hydrograph.]

FLOW. n.s. [from the verb.]

1. The rise of water; not the ebb.

Some, from the diurnal and annual motion of the earth, endeavor to solve the flux and motions of the tides, dividing the same by water in a bowl, that rises or falls according to the motion of the vessel. [Brown's Vulgar Errors.]

The ebb of time and their myronious flux. We are as elements shall never end. [Hekan.]

2. A sudden plenty or abundance.

The noble power of suffering braggery is as far above that of enterprising greatly, as an unembellished country set on a grand scale above an accidental flow of spirits, or a sudden flood of blood. [Page.]

A stream of dictation; volatility of tongue.

Teaching is not a flow of words, nor the divisions of an hour-glass; but an efficient procuring that a man know something which he knew not before; or to know better. [South.]

FLOWER. n.s. [flor!, French, flas, florer, Latin.]

1. The part of a plant which contains the flower; such are the pericarpial flowers which have a petal, a stamen, anep and stylos; and whatever flower wants either of these is reckoned imperfect. Verticillate flowers are divided into simple ones, which have all the parts of the flower joined, and such flowers which usually have but one single file; and compounded, which consist of many filaments, all making but one flower. Simple flowers are monopetalous, which have the body of the flower all of one entire leaf, though sometimes cut or divided a little way into many forming petals, or leaves; as in crocus, budge: or polypetalous, which have distinct petals, and those falling off singly, and not altogether, as the pinwheel-shaped or monopetalous flowers always so divided, made up one side divided into uniform and different flowers; the former have the right and left hand parts, and the forward and backward parts all alike; but the latter do not have so regular a sort, as in the flowers of fage and deadhead. A monopetalous disflor is likewise further divided into; first, semi-filillar, whole upper part erect; then they are cut off obliquely, as the stiglossza; and, liliata, which either with one lip, or as in the ascanium and foeridum, or with two lips, as in the far greater part of the labiate flowers, and is sometimes turned upwards, and so turns the convex part downwards, as in the chamomilles; but most commonly the upper lip is convex above, and turns the hollow part down to its fellow below, and regenerates a lip, or whatever is of helm, or mouth-hook; and from thence these are frequently called galatte, consonant, and galantian flowers; and in this form are the flowers of the lilies, and most vertilililose plants. Some times the lamium is inferior, and sometimes jagged or divided. 3d. Cornotus; or, that which flouher flowers have as on their upper part a kind of spurr, which is called the corolla, and the carpet, or cullier, is always imperfect at the tip or point. Compound flowers are, tilt, disflor, and corymb, or what, fishes are set close, thick, and even, to make as the surface of the flower plain and flat, which, because of its round form, will be like a diffus: which flowers are sometimes in two rows, one row being stand ing round in the disks, like the points of a flas, as in the matricaria, chamomile, &c., and sometimes, so much radiating leaves round the limb of its disk, that it is termed: as a panicle: 4th, planifolius, which is composed of plan fore, set together in circular rows round the centre, and whose form is star-like, and is adorned, as the hieracium. 5th, Vitis, which is composed of long hollow little flowers, like pipes, all divided into large jars at the ends. Imperfect flowers, because they want petals, are called capillarty, aetabolic, and capillass; and those which hang pendant by thin threads, like the jujus, are by the terms called atem, and ootytic. The term capillarity is used for such as in the shape of a half, and infundibuliformis for such as in the form of a funnel. [Miller.]

Expire before the flower in their caps. Dying or e'er they tchickon. Shakespeare's Macbeth.

Brautious flowers' why do we forspend?

Upon the moment of their manhood's close? Cowley.

Though the same fun with all diffusive rays

Bisht in the rose, and in the diamond blaze,

We praise the grandeur of his powers,

And always set the gem above the flower. Pope.

If the blossom of the plant be of most importance, we call it a flowers such as daisies, tulips, and carnations. [Watts.]

2. An ornament; an embellishment.

The ornament of perfumes to those places being so prime and imperable, a flower of his crown, he would have done himself a wrong. [Clavertan.]

This diffus: of Cyprian, and the excellent flowers of rhetoric in it, show him to have been a sweet and powerful orator. [Harbottle.]

Tromsot called sweetest and sweeter speech. [Rowley.]

3. The prime; the flourishing part.

Alas! young man, your days can ne'er be long: in flow'r of age you perish for siong. [Page.]

The edible part of corn; the meal.

The beauteous flow' in, so as it might be baked till to serve their necessary want. [Spenser.]

I can make my suit up, that all

From me back, receive the flou'r of all,

And leave me here: from me this flow'r, [Shakespeare.]

The flowers of grains, mixed with water, will make a fort of glue. [Terence.]

But by thy care twelve urs of wine be fill'd. [Pope's Odyssey.]

Next ibr in worth, and firm those ibr be seal'd; Her twice ten measures of the choice flow'r. [Pepys' Diary.]

Prepar'd, ye yet defend the evening hour. [Pepp's Odyssey.]

5. The most excellent or valuable part of any thing; quintessence.

The choice and flower of all things profitable the Paltms do more briefly contain, and more movingly express, he reality the literal poetical form. [Holler.]

Thus hail flaire.

The flower of England for his chiristry, [Shaksp.]

The French monarchy is exalted of its brete syllables: the flower of the nation is consumed in its war. [Addison.]

6. That which is most distinguished for anything valuable.

He is not the flower of courtesy, but, I warrant him, as gentle a lamb. [Shakespeare.]

FLO'wer du luce. n.s. [Master.] A beautiful iris.

Almost every flower or herb that grows in this plant; and among them the Perisan flower du luce is greatly esteemed for the sweetness and beauty of its variegated flowers, which are in perfection in February, or the beginning of March. [Hiller.]

FLO'wor'd. n.s. [from flower.']

1. The state of being in flowers.

And floridness.

FLOWERING. n.s. [from flower.]

1. A plant.

FLOWER. n.s. [from flower.]

Full of flowers; adorned with flowers real, or fictitious.

My mother Circe, with the syren trees, Amidst the flower'd foliar Naiadas. [Milan.]

Days.
FLU

Eileen we thee, my friends! event and chance,
Produced by atoms from their fluttering dance.
Prec. His thoughts are very fluttering and wandering,
And cannot be fixed attentively to any few ideas fixed.
To FLUTTER, v. a.
1. To drive in disorder; like a flock of birds suddenly roused.
Like an eagle in a dove-cote,
Eileen's pin fall in Coriolis. Shaksp.
2. To hurry the mind.
To hurry the mind.
To disorder the position of any thing.
To FLUTTER, n. f. [from the verb.]
1. Vibration; undulation; quick and irregular motion.
An infinite variety of motions are to be made use of in the flutterer: there is the airy flutterer, the model flutterer, and the timorous flutterer.

FLY

The flutter intersected, and affiduous were rife.
[Woman.]

3. [In mathematics.] The arithmetic or analysis of infinitely small variable quantities; or it is the method of finding an infinitely small or infinitely small quantity, which, being taken an infinite number of times, becomes equal to a quantity given.
Harris.
A penetration into the abstruse difficulties and depths of modern algebra and fluxions, are not worth the labour of those who design the learned to solve the difficulties of life.
Watts.
To FLY, pr.tzl., pass. p. f. or flit; a. p. of flus or flus. [pleas, Saxon. To fly is properly to use wings, and gives flus and flown.
To flee is to escape, or to go away, ayean, Saxon, and makes flit.
They are now confounded.

1. To move through the air with wings.
To move the barth flus.
His closed flight, Sackff. Fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven. Gen. 1. 20.
The eagle, and the stork, the swan, the heron, the hawk, and the owl do not comend: ye with which they have held themselves longer in, and flus so dangerously abroad before the feathers of the cause had been grown.
Huet.

2. To pass through the air.
Man is born unto trouble, as the flakes fly upward.
Job. 3.
To pass away, with the idea of twiflines or escape.
By a romance, a tune, a rhyme, Help thee to pass the tedious time, Which else would on thy hand remain; Dryden.
To pass, as rivet, making a sound, From a dissolution of space, else would break again. Dryden.

3. To pass away, with the idea of twiflines or escape.

4. To pass swiftly.
The scouts with flying speed Return, and through the city spread the news. Dryden.

Earth rolls back beneath the flying feet, Page.

5. To move with rapidity.
As flippings, the quick for sport,
On the smooth pavement of an empty court. Dryden.
The wooden right, or whirled about, Dryden.

6. To part with violence.
Glad to catch this good occasion, Moit thoroughly to be winnow'd, where my chief And corn shall fly, and flit, and flit, and flit. Shaksp.
He haftis heads to save his own, made fly; And now the fultan to preserve, must die. Waller.

7. To break: to bruise; to burn, and under a sudden explosion.
Behind, a feathery楼层, which... Be cautious, on your battle flies. Swift.

8. [clean, Saxon; luchus, German.] To run away; to attempt escape. [In this sense the verb is properly to flus, when flit is formed; but the following examples shew that they are confounded: they are confounded often in the present than in the pretter tense.

Which when the valiant el perceiv'd he, leapt, As lion fierce, upon the filling prey. Spenser.
He shall fly, as ye flit from before the earthquake. Zech. xiv. 5.
Abiather escaped and flit after David. 1. sax. xii.
What wonder if the kindly beams he thes, Reve'd the droping art of rain; If science rais'd for head,
And soft humanity, that from rebellion flit. Dryden.

He oft desir'd fly from Israel's throne.
And live in shades with her and love alone. Prior.
I'll flit from shepherds, flock, and flow'ry plains.
From shepherds, flock, and plains I'll flit O'er fields, which all the world but love, Pope.

9. To FLY at. To spring with violence upon; to fall on suddenly. A servant
FLY

A fragrant that he bred, thrill'd with remorse,
Opp'd against the act, bending his wound
To his great master: why, heretofore engag'd,
Flung on him; and amongst them fell'd him dead.
Shakespeare.

Though the dogs have never seen the dog-killer, yet they will come forth and fly at him.
Bacchus: Nat. Hist.

To no honour, no fortune, can a man keep from being miserable, when an enraged confederacy that fly at him, and take him by the throat. South.

Fly at all age that flies at all learning, and enquire especially into faults. South.

To FLY in the face. To inflmt.

This would discourage any man from doing you good, when you will either strike him fly in his face; and he must expect danger to himself.
Swift's Draper's Letters.

11. To FLY in the face. To act in defiance.

Fly in nature's face.

—But how, if nature fly in my face? —Then nature's the aggressor.
Dryden.

12. To FLY off. To revolt.

Deyy easy to speak to me? They're flick, they're weary, they've travelled all the night; mean letters.
The images of revolt and flying off. Shaksp.

* the trystor Synphax
Fly off at once with his Numidian horse.
Addison's Cato.

13. To FLY out. To burst into passion.

How easy a noble spirit discover'd.
From harth and fulphurous matter that flies out
In combustible, makes a noise, and barks.
Ben Jon. Cott.

Passion is apt to ruflie, and pride will fly out into contumely and neglect.
Editor of Friendship.

14. To FLY out. To break out into licence.

You use me like a courter spur'd and rein'd:
If fly out, my mercuries you command. Dryden.

Vapors, when unopposed, fly out in a passion of exultation; but when they are hard pressed by arguments, lie closet interchanged behind the council of Trent.

Dryden.

15. To FLY out. To fly violently from any alteration.

All bodies, moved circularly, have a perpetual endeavour to retrace from the centre, and every moment would fly off in right lines, if they were not resisted by the cohesion of their Sermons.

16. To let FLY. To discharge.

The noisy vulgarin, o'erswept, let fly.

And bursts, unaiming, is the seeded fly.
Graeviilce.

17. To be light and unencumbered: as a flying candidate.

To FLY, a.

1. To flum; to avoid; to decline.

Love like a shadow flies, when substance love purifies;
Pursuing that which flies, and flying what pursueth.
Shakespeare.

I love, I think
Foundation fly the wretched; such I mean,
Where they should be relieved.
Shaksp.

If you fly phylact in health altogether, it will be too strange for your body when you shall need it.
Bacon: Essay.

or whether that run, or which one fly.
The flight of this so horrid spectacle.
Milan.

2. To refuse association with.

Sleep flies the wretch; or when with cares oppress,
And his soul's limbs are wearied in't,
Then dreams invade.
Dryden's Juvenal.
Nature flies him like enchanted ground. Dryden.

3. To quit by flight.

Deads in, to fly the Cretan shore,
His heavy limbs on jointed pinions bore.
The fourth of the air.
Dryden's Abs.

4. To attack by a bird of prey.

If a man can tame this monster, and with her fly other raving low, and kill them, it is somewhat worth.
Bacon.

5. It is probable that flew was originally the pretetive of fly, when it signified volation, and flew when it signified escape: flyon should be confined likewise to volatation; but these distinctions are now confounded. I know not any book except the Scriptures in which fly and flew are carefully kept separate.
FLY. n.s. [Elegoy, Saxon.]

1. A small winged infect of many species.

As flies to wanton boys, are we to the gods;
Shakespeare.

They kill us for their sport.

My country neighbours begin to think of being in general, before they come to think of the fly in their sheep, or the oxen in their corn.
Locke.

To prevent the fly, some propose to low off with the feed.
Mortimer's Husbandry.

To heel'd flies the window proves
A condit. deal. Swift's Summer.

2. That part of a machine which, being put into a quick motion, regulates and equilizes the motion of the ret.

If we suppose a man tied in place of the weight, it was easy, by a single hair fasten'd unto the fly or balance of the jack, to draw him up from the ground.
Wilton.

3. That part of a vane which points how the wind blows.

To FLY BLOW. n. a. [fly and blow.]

To taint with flies; to fill with maggots.

I am well pleased that he desires to play tricks, and to fly by my words, to make others diftate them.
Stillingfleet.

4. A kind of veilt nimble and light for falling.

To FLY CATCHER, n. s. [fly and catch.]

One that hunts flies.

There was more need of Brutor in Dominian's days, to mend, than of Horace, to laugh at a catcheer.
Dryden.

The swallow was a fiscatcher as well as the spider.
L'Eprange.

FLY'ER. n. s. [from fly.]

1. One that flies or runs away. This is written more frequently fier.

They hit one another with grands, as the others do with their hands; which they never throw counter, but at the back of the flyer.
Sandy's Farnsry.

He grieves to many Prisons be left;

Taking more pains, when he behold them yield, to fly the flies than to win the field.
Walker.

2. One that ufs wings.

3. The fly of a Jack.

[In architecture.] Stairs made of an oblong square figure, whose fore and back sides are parallel to each other, and so are their ends: the second of these stairs stands parallel behind the first, the third behind the second, and so are fast to fly off from one another.

To FLY FISH. v. n. [fly and fish.]

To angle with a hook baited with a fly, either natural or artificial.

I shall give you some directions for fly-fishing.
Weisen.

FOAL. n.s. [poila, Saxon.] The offspring of a mare, or other beast of brumith. The custom now is to use colt for a young horse, and foal for a young mare; but there was not originally any such distinction.

Alsf flew his head,
With his winged heels did tread the wind,
As he had been a soul of Pegusus's kind.
F. R.

Twenty-three and ten foals. Gen. xii. 15.

To FOAL. v. a. [from the noun.] To bring forth.

Used of mares.

FOC

Give my horse to Timon: it fainst me straight
Ten able bowiers.
Shakespeare's Timon.

Such costs as are

Of generous race, straight, when they first are foa'd, May's Georgics.

To FOAL. n. To be diffus'd and spread of the foetus.

About September take your mares into the houses, where keep them 'till they foal.
Mortimer's Husbandry.

FOAL'IT. n. s. Plants.

FOAM. n. s. [sam, Saxon.] The white substance which agitation or fermentation gathers on the top of liquors; froth; spume.

The foam upon the water.
H. 7. 1.

Whitening down their muddy tindth'd dream.
Defends the billowing spume.
Thomson: Spring.

To FOAM. v. m. [from the noun.]

1. To froth; to gather spume.

What a beard of the general's cut will do among foaming bottles and ale—the'd'd win.

Shaksp. Henry V.

Ceda fell down in the market-place, and said,
and was speechless.
Shakespeare.

To fall 'st high they were, and rose high;
And sprink'd large librations on the ground.
Pop.

Upon a foaming horse.

There followed a dight of a man of royal port.
Rome.

To be in spume; to be violently spumed.
He flamecloth, and gnathet with his teeth.
Marit.

FOAMY. adj. [from foam.]

Covered with foam; frothy.

More white than Neptune's foamy faces.
When struggling rocks he would embrace.
Sidney.

Behold how high the foam billows ride!
The winds and waves are on the juter side.
Dryden.

FOR. n. s. [spagge, englacke, German.] A small pocket.

Who picked a fob at holding forth. Hudibras.

When were the dice with more profession thrown? The well-did fob, not empty'd now alone. Dryd.

He put his hand into his fob, and presented me in his name with a tobacco-stopper.
Addison.

Two pockets he called his fobs; they were two large siffs figur'd clove by the prefur of his belly.
Swift.

Orphans around his bed the lawyer fees,
And takes the plattant and degrad'd coin; he res;
His fellow pick-purse, watching for a job,
Fantas his fingers in the cull'y's fob.
Swift.

To FOB. v. a. [spagge, German.]

1. To cheat; to trick; to defraud.

I think it is fury, and begin to find myself fob'd in it.
Shaksp. Othello.

Shall there be a gallows flanding in England when thou art king, and resolution thus fob'd as it is with the ruffy curb of old father akin the law.

Shakespeare's Henry IV.

He goes prelling forward, 'till he was fob'd again with another fobbery.
L'Eprange.

2. To FOB off. To shift off; to put aside with an artículo; to delude by a trick.

You must not think
To fob off your disgrace with a tale. Shaksp.

For they, poor knaves, were glad to cheat,
To get their wives and children meat.

But those will not fob'd of so.

They must have wealth and power too.
Hudibras.

Ravena wished to know whether,
So much for wine and water mixt I paid.

But when I thought the purchase'd liquor mine,
The rafac fob'd me off with only wine. Addison.

To be a great lover of country sports; he absolutely determined not to be a miniter of fite, nor to be fob'd off with a garter.
Addison's Fine-broaders.

FOCAL. adj. [from focus.] Belonging to the focus. See Focus.

I shan't answer whether the convexity or concavity of the drum collect rays into a focal point or flattens them.
Derham.

FOCEL.
FOE.

FOEIL. n. s. [foile, French.] The greater or left bone between the knee and ankle, or elbow and wrist.

The fracture was of both the foile of the left leg.

FOCILLATION. n. s. [steller, Lat.] Conforce; support.

FOCUS. n. s. [Latin.]

1. In optics. The focus of a glafs is the point of convergence or concurrence, where the rays meet and cross the axis after their refraction by the glafs.

2. Focus of a Parabola. A point in the axis within the figure, and distant from the vertex by a fourth part of the parameter, or latus rectum.

3. Focus of an Ellipsis. A point towards each end of the longer axis; from whence two right lines being drawn to any point in the circumference, shall be together equal to that longer axis.

4. Focus of the Hyperbola. A point in the principal axis, within the opposite hyperbolas; from which if any two right lines are drawn, meeting in either of the opposite hyperbolas, the difference will be equal to the principal axis.

FOODER. n. s. [fooden, Saxon.] Dry food flour up for cattle against winter.

Their cattle, thraving for want of fodder, corrupted the air.

Kastner's History of the Turks.

Being not to be raised without watering, they had to help to force men into improvement of land by a necessity of fodder.

We are not in the way of their being rational.

To find and fodor they defir'd the streams, And of their mothers dug the thraving lambs.

Dryd. Virgil.

FOODER. v. a. [from the noun.] To feed with dry food.

Natural earth is taken from just under the turf of the bel turf ground, in a place that has been well foddered or has been ploughed.

Evelyn.

From Winter keepit,
Well fodder'd in the sty, thy tender sheep.

Dryd. Virgil.

A farm of fifty pound hath commonly three bars, with as many cowards to fodor cattle in.

Mortimer's Husbandry.

Straw will do well enough to fodder with.

Mortimer.

FOODER. n. s. [from fodder.] He who fodorries cattle.

FOE. n. s. [fath, Saxon; for, Scotch.]

1. An enemy in war.

Er he had established his throne,
He fought great battles with his favage foe,
In which he them defeated ever more.

Fairly Queen.

Never to lose war was either like To meet so great a foe.

Milton.

2. A perfecuter; an enemy in common life.

God's benifon go with you, and with thee.

That would make good of bad, and friends of foe.

Shakespeare.

Fored' by thy wayth th' for in death become,
Thy friend has lodg'd theire in a cold tomb.

Dryd.'s Fath

Thy deffes to know,
Make use of ev'ry friend, and ev'ry foe.

Pope.

3. An opponent; an illwisher.

No that considers and enquires into the reason of things, is count'd a foe to received doctrines.

Watts on the Mind.

FOEMAN. n. s. [from foe and man.] Enemy in war; antagonist. An obscene word.

FOETUS, n. s. [Latin.] The child in the womb after it is perfectly formed; but before, it is called embryo.

Quincy.

A fetus, in the mother's womb, differs not much from the state of a vegetable.

Locke.

FOG. n. s. [fig., Danith, a form.] A thick mist; a moist dense vapour near the surface of the water or earth.

Infect her beauty,
You fenfuck'd fogs drawn by the powerful fan;
To fall and blast her pride.

Shakespeare.

Leather mists, and fogs through those which covered
Greece with so long darkness, prevent great alterations
In the sun and moon.

Raleigh.

Fly, fly, proplean fog! far hence by way;
Take not parting fumes of the springing day
With your dull influence: it is for you
To fit and finished upon night's heavy brow.

Caxton.

Fogs we frequently observe after festivity, even in our hottest months.

Woodward.

FOGOGIC. n. s. [from foggy, milkly, and cloudiness.] The state of being dark or milky; cloudiness; mistsiness.

FOGGY. adj. [from foggy.] Milkily, darkly; cloudy.

Foginess, n. s. [from foggyl] The state of being dark or milky; cloudiness; mistsiness.

Poggiana, n. s. [from foggy.] The state of being dark or milky; cloudiness; mistsiness.

Virg.

Popp'd.

1. Milkly; cloudy; dank; full of miff vapours.
2. Of fogs, and of the description.

After fogs, we have fogs frequent.
We think they hurt, when miff they do affect.

Sidney.

And Pheas flying so, most shameful sight,
His blushing face in foggy cloud implicate,
And hides for shame.

Shakespeare, Henry V.

At elec the Phæbus, when fogs sky cloud
His brightnesse from the world a fudden doth throw;
Doubt by doubt begins to hide his light.

Brown.

Let not air be subject to any foggy mofomeze,
Of fogs or mists near adjoining.

Water's Architecture.

About Michaelmas, the weather falt, and by no means foggy, retire your rare plants.

Evelyn's Calendar.

2. Cloudy in understanding; dull.

For, interjeft. [from pahl, Saxon, an enemie.]
An indication of the landtron of abstinence; as if one should at the fight of any thing hated cry out a foe.

Not to affect many propofed matches
Of her own clime, comphhension and degree,
Whereunto we fee in all things nature tend,

Pope.

Psalms one may mel o'd in such a well made monst.
Foul dijproportions, thoughts unnatural.

Shakespeare.

Fitable.

n. s. [French.] A weak fide; a blind fide; a failing.

He knew the fables of human nature. Friend.

The witty men sometimes have the condition of being in the same state of mind; and therefore they cruelty put the attacks of argument.

Watts's Logick.

To Foi. v. a. [from foil, to wound, old French.]
1. To put to the wou; to defeat; though without a complete victory.

Amazement felt's.

The return of the tide in greater rage to sea.

That fould' their mightest.

Milton.

Leader of those armies bright,
Witth but this omnipotence none could have foild.

Milton.

Yet these subjed:
1. To thee dislike.

Who would touch to me, not therefore foild;
Who meet with various objects, from the finite
Variously representing; yet still free.

Approve the best, and follow what I approve.

Dryden.

Strange, that your fingers should be pencil feli,
Without the help of colours or of oil.

Waller.

Shall have been foiled in the work and head that is in nature.

Huygen's Surgery.

In their conflicts with sin they have been to often foiled, that they now despair of ever getting the day.

Colman's Seamen.

Virtue, disdain, despair, I oft have try'd;
And, fould'd, have with new arms my foe defy'd.

Dryden.

But I, the comfort of the thunderer,
Have wag'd a long and unsuccessful war;
With various arts and arms in vain have to'd.

And by a mortal man at length am fould.

Dryden.

2. [From foil, French.] To blast;
To pull down.

When light-wing'd toys
Of feather'd Cupid feld with wanton darts.

My focorative and odder'd imbricks.

Shakespeare.

3. To defeat; to puzzle.

Whilst I am following one character, I am crost'd in my way by another, and put up such a variety of odd creatures in the list, that I can fould the Iert one, another, and puzzle the chace.

Addison.

FOIL, n. s. [from the verb.]

1. A defeat; a miscarriage; an advantage gained without a complete conquest.

We of thy cunning had no difference.

One fould' sall u'er breed difficulties.

Shakespeare.

Who so overreheath his mate in fuch fort, as that either his back, or the one shouder, and contrary heel do touch the ground, shall be accounted to give the fall: if he be endangered, and make a narrow escape, it is called a fell.

Carver.

So after many a fall the temper proud,
Retaining freshness after his pride,
Fell where he stood to fee his victor fall.

Sidney.

When age shall level me to impiement,
And swellingpleasure leave me on the field.

Scarron.

Death never won a fable with greater toil,
Nor ever was fato to near a fell.

Dryden.

2. [From foleil, French.] Leaf; gilding.

A flately place, built of gilded stone.

Which cunningly was covered with a mount laid,
Whereof walls were high, but nothing strong nor thick,
And gilden fould' over all them display'd.

Shakespeare.

Rame is no place that gows on mortal soul,
Nor in the glittering fell.

Set off to th' word, nor in broad rumour's.

Milton.

5. Something of another colour near which jewels are set to raise their lute.

As the a black filk cap on him began
To fot for of his milk-white to serve.

Sidney.

Like bright metal on a folded ground,
My reformation glittering over my faits.

Shall shew more goodly, and attract more eye,
Than that which hath no fall to fet it off.

Shakespeare.

The falled passagye of thy wearty steps
Esteem a fell, whereof the wound he sets
The precious jewel of thy home,
Shakespeare.

'Tis the property of all true diamonds to unite the fell chafily to itself; and thereby he's augment'd its lute: the fell is a mixture of multih and burnt ivory.

Gien's Museum.

Hector has a fell to fet him off: we oppose the inconvenience of Paris to the temperance of Hecher.

Brown on the Odyssey.

4. [From foile, French.] A blunt sword used in fencing.

He that plays the king shall be welcome; his majesty shall have tribute of me; the adventurous knight shall o'le his fell and target.

Shakespeare.

FOILER. n. s. [from foil.]
One who has gained advantage over another.

To FOIN, v. n. [sfoines, Fr. Skinner.] To pull in fencing.
FOL

The inward cost of a lion's throne has stranger folds than a human, but in other things not much different.

6. In the foregoing signification is derived the use of fold in composition. Fold signifies the same quantity added as two fold, twice the quantity; twenty fold, twenty times repeated. But other fold into good ground, and brought forth fruit; some fold, some fold, some fold.

At first appear
All bounds high reaching to the horrid sky,
And three times fold the gates were closed.
Three times, of three, of three discoursed.
Millin.
Their man's blood and after bow.

All'ad the Indian fiddles, where till death away.
The triple rye, that from these may grow.

A hundred fold.

To FOLD. v. a. [from the noun.]
1. To fluff in the fold.
The star that bides the shepherd fold.
Now the top of heav'n doth hold.
Millin.
We see the folding of the sheep helps ground, as well by their warmth as by their compost.

Bacchus.
She in pents his rocks will fold.
And then discern himself.

With wine to drive away the cold,

And unbought dainties of the poor.

Dryden's Hor.

2. [faldin, Saxon.] To double; to complicate.
A severe flat thou sent them up. Heb. i. 2.
Yet a little steeper, a little stiffer; a little folding of the hands to sleep.

Prov. vi. 10.
They be folded together as thorns. Heb. i. 10.
I have been her rice from her bosom, unknot her cloaths, take forth paper, fold it, write upon't, read it, feed it, and again return to bed.

Shakespeare.

The book's important, it folds in arms in despair, and puts in curving in a Callier.

Both furl their folds, and ftrip them for the light;

Their folded sheets assuages the evils of life.

Dryd.

To unfold, to unfold.

To unfold and unfold in our arms. Shaks.

Witness my bone, now in the shade of death,

Whose bright shining thresholds thy cloudy wrath,

Heath in eternal darkness filled up.

Shaks.

The fires 'tis lowest hell fold in the people!

Shak. Cariol.

To FOLD. v. n. To close over another of the same name.

The two leaves, the one door were folding, and the two leaves of the other door were folding.

Kings, vi. 13.

FOLIA'CEOUS. adj. [foliaceus, from folium, Latin.] Consisting of laminae or leaves.

A piece of another, consisting of an outer crust, of a dryly fibrous skin, and a blue tincture foliaceous.

Woodward on Piff.

FOLiAGE. n.s. [folium, Latin; feuillage, French.] Leaves; tufts of leaves; the apparel of leaves to a plant.

The great columns are finely adorned with leaves and foliage, and very little dwiing about them from their very top to the bottom.

Addison.

When efting builds their odour foliage feed,

And gently harden into fruit, the wife.

Shaks.

Spare not the little olives, if they grow redundant.

Piph.

To FOLIAGE, v. a. [foliatum, folium, Latin.] To bear into laminae or leaves.

Gold, foliated, or any metal, foliated, elebashed.

Shaks.

Bacon.

FOLIATION. n.s. [foliatio, folium, Latin.]

1. The art of beating into thin leaves.
2. Foliation is one of the parts of the flower, being the collection of those fucicious coloured leaves called petals; which constitute the compass of the flower; and sometimes guard the fruit which succeeds the foliation, as in apples and pears, and sometimes stand within it, as in cherries and apricots; for these being tender and pulpy, and coming forth in the spring, would be injured by the weather, if they were not lodged up in the bark above the root, where they are safer.

FOLIATURE. n. s. [from folium, Latin.] The state of being hammered into leaves.

Diffi.

FOLIIO. n.s. [folio, Latin.] A large book of which the pages are formed by a sheet of paper once doubled.

Plumbers and Pneumo made less progress in knowledge, though they had read over more folios.

FOLiOMORT. adj. [folium mortuum, Lat.] A dark yellow; the colour of a leaf faded; vulgarly called phelomor.

A flinty pebble was of a dark-green colour, and the exterior cortex of a foliomentum colour, Whed.

FOLK. n.s. [pale, Saxon; volk, Dutch.] It is properly a noun collective, and has no plural but by modern corruption.

1. People, in familiar language.

Neter troubling himself, either with siding questions of finding fault with his melancholy, but rather fitting to his dolorous discourses of his own and other folk's misfortune.

Sidney.

Sidney.

2. Nations; mankind.

Thou that judgest the folk righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.

Psal. viii. 4.

3. Any kind of people as discriminated from others.

The river thrice hath flow'd, no ebb betwixt.

And the old folk, time's doing chronicles.

Shaks.

Say it do so a little time before.

Shalsp.

Anger is a kind of baleful;

As it appears well in the weaknesses of children, women, old folks, and their enemies of all sorts.

Rac.

4. It is now used only in familiar or burlesque language.

Old good man Dobbin of the green;

Remember'st he the tree has seen,

And goes with falks to looke the light?

Swift.

He walk'd and wore a threadbare cloak;

He don't and fupp'd at charge of other folk.

Swift.

FOLK.MOTE. n.s. [from folk and mote.]

These hills were appointed for two special uses, and built by two several nations; the one is that you call falks, the other called by the Saxons, and signifies in the FOLK a meeting of folk.

Spen.

FOLlicle. n.s. [folliculus, Latin.]

1. A cavity in any body with firm coats.

Although there be to eminent and circular follicit,

No round bag or vesicle, which long contained this humour; yet is there a manifest recepeptacle of choler from the liver into the guts.

Brow.

2. Follicle is a term in botany, signifying feed-vesicles, corpuscul fugens, or cafe, which some; fruits and seeds have over them; as that of the alkeneg, pedigree

Lars.

To FOLiow. v.a. [folgman, Saxon; volgen, Dutch.] To go after; not before, or side by side.

Shaks.

Him.
FOL

Him and all his train
Fell whom'd in bright procession, to behold
Creation, and the wonders of his might.
Milton.

But fell as faults, invisibly thus led.

2. To pursue as an enemy; to chase.

Where ranks fell thickest was indeed the place to seek Sebastian, in a track not
I follow him by groans of dying foes.
Dryden.

3. To accompany; not to forsake.

Yet doubt not but in valley and in plain
God is as here, and will be found alike
Perfident, and of his person many a face.
Lycidas.

Still following thee, still compassing thee round
With goodness and paternal love, his face
Expressed, and of his body a sacred divine.
Lycidas.

Up he rode,
Fell with'aeclamation and the found
Symphonies of ten thousand harps that tun't
Angelic harmonies.
Milton.

4. To attend as a dependant.

And the three eldest sons of Joffe went and followed Saul to the battle.
Sam. viii. 13.

Not the more than flatterer's way.

5. To go after, as a teacher.

Not yielding over to old age his country delights,
he was at that time following a morin.
Sidney.

Some wise tears and many a sigh.

And follow'd with his eyes the fleeting shade.
Dryden's AEn.

We follow fate, which does too fast part.
Dryden.

6. To succeed in order of time.

Such success follow'd him as shall be register'd,
Part good, past bad, of bad the longer ferral.
Milt.

Sign following signs, lead on the mighty years.
Pop.

7. To be confecnional in argument, as effects to causes.

I laugh, when those who at the spear are hold
Appearant, as if that fall them, think and fear
What yet they know must follow, to endure
Exile, or ignominy, or bonds, or pain.
Milton.

8. To imitate; to copy, as a pupil; or to be of an opinion or party.

Where Rome keepeth that which is sincerest and better, and others, whom we much more affect,
leaving it for newer, and changing it for worse, we had rather follow the precepts of them whom we do not, than in defects resemble them whom we love.
Hooker.
Ill patterns are fure to be followed more than good ones.

9. To obey; to observe, as a guide or direction.

If all who do not follow oral tradition as their only rule of faith are out of the church, then all who follow the council of Trent are no Christians.

Milt.

Most men admire
Vitiae, whilost not her loss.
Paradise Reg.

Please should I follow thee,
I should be asked and alone.

For thou art not in company,
And scarce are to be found.

To pursue as an object of desire.

Follow peace with, all men.
Holinshed.

Follow not that which is evil.

To confirm by new endeavours; to keep up indefatigably.

They have a credit to his laws and obedience;
and in case it had been followed upon them, as it should have been, they should have been reduced to perpetual civility.
Spenser.

To attend to; to be bidden with.

What that undertaketh and followeth other men's business for gain, shall fall into fools.
Eccles.

To follow, v. n.

1. To come after another.

The famples shall follow chief after you.
Jer.

To the oracle of Apollo.
Bun. & Sav.

2. To attend fervently.

Such flattering rogues as these fools every gallon,

That in the nature of their lands.

As knowing nought, like dogs, but following.
Shak.

3. To be politer in time.

If the neglect or abuse of liberty to examine what would really and truly make for his happiness, might lead him, the miller's marron that follow on it must be invested to a high position.

To tempt them to do what is neither for their own nor the good of those under their care, great mischief cannot but follow.
Lycidas.

5. To be confecnional, as inference to premises.

Though there are or have been sometimes dwarfs, and sometimes giants in the world; yet it does not follow that there must be such in every age, not in every country.

Dangers doth necessity follow, from making all political power to be nothing else but Adam's paternal power.

6. To continue endeavours; to persevere.

Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the Lord.
Hof.

FOLLOWER, n. f. [from follow.

1. One who comes after another; not to fore him, or ride by side.

Little gentleman, go sooner to be a follower;
but now you are a leader; whether had you rather read mine eyes, or eye your mother's heels.
Shak.

2. One who observes a guide or leader.

The underscand that should be eyes to the blind facy of the will, in blind itself; and to bring all the inconveniencies that attend a blind follower, under the conduct of a blind guide.
Stat's. Serm.

An attendant or dependant.

No follower but a friend.

An affidavit to come in a companion
How accommodated, can't thou tell that?
With Pains, and other his continual followers.
Shak. H. IV.

One under the command of another.

I hold it wise to leave to us the Irish chiefs, too much command over their kindred, but rather withdraw their followers from them as much as may be,
and gather them under the command of law.
Spenser's State of Ireland.

And fare'd Encrata, when his ships were lost,
To leave his follower on a foreign coast.
Dryden.

A Scholar; an imitator; a copyster.

Be ye followers of me, even as I am Christ.
1 Cor. xi. 1.

The true profession of Christanity invisibly engages all its followers to do good to men.
Spratt's Sermon.

Every one's idea of identity will not be the same that Pythagoras and thousands of his followers have.

The church of Smyrna professed they worthily loved the martyrs, as the disciples and followers of our Lord; and because of their exceeding great af fection to their kind and their manner.

The fouth and general mind,
Follower of God, or friend of human kind,
Poet or patriot, rude but divine.

The faith and virtue before gave.

One of the same faction or party.

FOLLY, n. f. [folle, French.

1. Want of understanding; weakness of intelligent.

This is folly childhood's guide.

This is childhood at her side.

Criminal weakness; depravity of mind.

Think thou, then, that duty should have dread to speak,
When power's to flatter bowles? To plainness honour
Is bound, when to機關 fully tells.
Shak.

3. Aft of negligence or passion unbecoming gravity or deep wisdom. In this fene it is a plural.

Love in blind, and leave never can.

The prettiness that themselves commend.
Tilbtfin.
Bann,
Foolilhnefs
Locke.
Sfenftr.
Pleafed
Lackf. am'
but
To.
Hammond.'
^'^''ff:
1
A
and H'allrr.
IVuitt.
lamtly.
One
To in
,
2.
foBie
My life,
From thing or Some does that I,

Some
to fond;
as

3. To cheat: as, to fool one of his money.

FOOLDRY, a. f. [Fool and born.]

From the birth.

FOOLERY, m. f. [From foolish]

1. Habitual folly.

Foolery, Sir, does walk about the orb like the sun: it shines everywhere; I would be merry, Sir, but the fool should be as oft with your master as with my mirth.

Shaksf. Twelfth Night.

2. An act of folly; trifling practice.

It is more foolery to multiply distinct particulars in treating of things, where the difference is in words, than in things.

Dr. watts.

3. Object of folly.

That Pythagoras, Plato, or Orpheus believed in any of these fooleries, it cannot be supposed.

L'Estrange.

FOOL-HAPPY, a. f. [fool and happy] Lucky without contrivance or judgment.

A sad trick, and Stahus under foot.

An hidden rock escaped unwary.

That lay in wait her next to bewail.

The mariner, yet half amazed.

At prickly though, yet in desire.

To joy at his fool-happy oversight.

Fairly Queen.

FOOL-HARDINESS, m. f. [from foolhardy.]

Mad ratherns; courage without fenfe.

There is a difference between daring and foolhardiness. Luken and Stella often ventured them too far, our Virgin never.

Dryden.

A false glowing parade would exalt his foolhardy daring without claim.

And then he may go on boldly because.

Sucki.

FOOL-HARDY, -y, f. [fool and hardihey: French.] Foolhardiness; adjudging fortune without judgment.

Obloque.

More huge in strength than wise in works he was.

And argued more than well.

Stern melancholy did his courage gasp.

And was, for terror more, all-ard in telling braie.

There is a difference between foolhardiness and rashness.

Shaksf.

FOOLISHLY, adv. [from foolish]

During without judgment; madly adventurous; foolishly bold.

One mother, when her foolishly child!

Did come too near, and with his tamar pays.

Half dead through fear, her little babie red.

Queen.

Some would be so foolishly as to presume to be more of the cabinet council of God Almighty than they.

Or of sober men.

If any yet be so foolishly.

To excape themselves to vain jeopardy.

If they come wounded of, and lame.

No happy in the case.

Holinsh.

FOOTLAP, m. f. [foot and trap.]

A share to catch fools in: as a flytray.

Bets at the first, were footlaps, where the wife

Like spiders lay in ambush for the flies.

Dryden.

FOOTED, a. f. [from fool.]

1. Void of understanding; weak of intellect.

Thus foolish woman, feet thou not thy ouring

In the tofts.

2. Kind.

Pray do not mock me.

I am a very foolish old man.

What will you do with the woman.

Shaksf.

He, of all the men that ever my foolish eyes

Looked upon, was the best desiring a fair lady.

Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice.

2. Impudent; indifferer.

We are come off

Like Romans: neither foolish in our bands,

Nor blind to the battle's signal.

Dryden.

3. Ridiculous; contemptible.

It is a foolish thing to make a long prologue,

And to be short in the Romy itself.

M a r t . 3 2 .

Prior.

4. [In Scripture.] Wicked; sinful.

5. Foolishly, adv. [from foolish.] Weekly; without understanding.

In Scripture, wickedly.

Although we bespore Winter sun looks bright.

And foolishly are glad to fee in it his height.

Yet to much foolish comes the long and gloomy sight.

Shaksf.

FOOLISHNESS, m. f. [from foolish.

1. Folly; want of understanding.

2. Foolish practice; actual deviation from the right.

Foolishness being properly a man's deviation from right reason, in point of principles, if this pitchman, and this pitchman's prince, as is unsuitable to his condition, or pitchings upon means unfuitable to the compelling of his end.

South.

Chaplin's by God, in their manners I argued.

And shape my foolishness to their desire.

Prior.

FOOLSTONES, m. f. A miller.

FOOT, n. f. plural feet. [foot, Sax; oad; Dutch; far; Scott; Irish;

1. The part upon which we stand.

The queen that bare thee.

Other upon her knees than on her feet.

Died every day the liv'd.

Shaksf.

South.

2. By that which any thing is supported.

In the nature of a foot: as, the foot of a table.

She stood, the foot of her name.

Shaksf.

3. The lower part; the base.

Your Lord's throne.

Knees upon which thou didst war.

South.

FOOTER, m. & f.

1. To walk; to march.

Walking; to march.

2. To walk; to tramp.

Walking; to march.

3. To run.

Walking; to march.

4. Motion; action.

While other legs are something rank on foot.

Her father had commanded her to slip.

With away to St. Mary.

In the government of the world the number and variety of the ends of arts is at least in the nature of most things to which they relate, must make a distinct remark of their congruity, in some cases easy, difficult, and in some unattainable.

Gree.

5. Step, f.

This man's foot would, every foot and ane, be taking some of his companions into the orchard.

L'Estrange.

6. A measure containing twelve inches supposed to be the length of a man's foot.

When it signifies measure, it has often, but visibly foot in the plural.

An orange, lemon, and apple, wrapped in a linen cloth, being buried for a fortnight, space feet deep, the earth came forth no way mouldy or rotten.

Bacon.

To FOOT. n. [from the noun.]

1. To dance; to tread wantonly; to trip.

Lonely the vale and full of horror bound.

Brown with the shade of a religious wood.

The moon was up, and that a gleamy light.

He saw a quire of ladies in a round.

Dace.

2. To walk; not to walk.

By this the dreadful bread draw near to land.

Halting, and half foasting in his haste.

Fair Queen.

Take heed, have open eye; for thieves do foot by stealth.

Shaksf.

The man set the boy upon the ass, and loaded it himself.

L'Estrange.

If you are for a merry jaunt, I will try for, once for all.

Shaksf.

Dryden's Spaniel praising.

With them a man sometimes cannot be a penitent, unless he also turns vagabond, and foot it to Jerusalem; or wanders over this or that part of the world to visit the shrine of such or such a pretended saint.

South.
FOOT.

What could one say about the foot?

Chapter 1: Foot.

1. Ground for the foot.

I'll read you matter deep and dangerous,

As all part of that which is from the Spirit.

On the unfaded facing of a spear, Shak. Hen. VI.

As the shepherd's god, which return'd no more.

Did flow the footpath in all the world's sands,

In streams, every step raised in a footing and help to the next.

Chapter 2: Support;

Set cloven flakes; and word! word to behold,

Their sharpen'd end in earth their footing place,

And wear the pole of life a living race. Dryd. Pirc.

Chapter 3: Bats; foundation.

All those sublime thoughts take their rise and footing here: the mind fixt not on just beyond those ideas which sense or reflection have offered.

The reasoning faculties of the soul would not know how to move, for want of a foundation and footing in good work, which cannot trace truth to its fountain and original.

Chapter 4: Place; possession.

Whether the uncouth exhalations are fixed by the foot, or Peggy-alone; or some other place more digested, slippery, which locos, footing when to mortals churn. Dryd.

Chapter 5: Tread; walk.

As he forward moved his footing old,

And build him warrant of his wrinkled face.

I would ousting he did no body come:

But back, I hear the footing of a man. Shakespeare.

Break off, break off, I feel the different sound.

Of some chaste footing near about this ground. Milton.

Chapter 6: Dance.

Make a hoyland; your eyetray hat put on;

And they fifth nuptials encourage; the foot.

In country footing. Shak. Temp.

Chapter 7: Steps; road; track.

He grew strong among the Irish; and in his footstep, he continued being his name.

Shad. on Ireland.

Like running weeds, that have no certain root,

Or like footings up and down, impossible to be traced.

Chapter 8: Entrance; beginning; establishment.

Ever since our nation had any footing in the land, the state of England did deline to perfect the conquest.

The defeat of Colonel Bellas saw them their footing in the north. Clarendon.

But all the victors and Savage does appear. Dryd.

Chapter 9: State; condition; settlement.

Gaud was on the same footing with Egypt as to terror.

Arabian.

Chapter 10: Flicker.

A flame; an humble fawner; one who licks the foot.

Do that good mischief which may make this land Thine own for ever; and I, thy Caliban,

For thy footing. Shak. Tem.

Chapter 11: Footman.

A solder that marches and fights on foot.

The numbers levied by her lieutenant did contest of footman three millions, of horsemen one million.

Racemly's Hist.

Chapter 12: Footmen.

A low menial servant in livery.

He was carried in a rich chariot, litterwise, with two horses at either end, and two footmen on each side.

Boucic.

Chapter 13: Footman's.

Like footmen running before coaches,

To tell the inn what lord approaches.

Prior.

Chapter 14: One who practices to walk or run.

Footmaship.

The art or faculty of running.

Shak. achieves enjoying this, suddenly broke up and committed the safety of their nimble footmen.

Hayward.

Yea, lost, I have baffled more of them with my wiles and shifting than ever did I, with your footmen. Shak.

Chapter 15: Fopp.

A foot; an insignificant wretch.

Where thirsty hunters broke their noble,

And handled you like a fop-puddle. Holin.

Chapter 16: Foppery.

A folly; impertinence.

Let not the found of shallow foppery enter

Upon your house.

I was three or four times in the thought they were not otherwise, and yet the gullineers of my mind,

The current of a female mind.

 Stops thus, and turns with every wind;

I have whirling rounds, together draws.

Swift.

Footmen, fops, and rakes, for chalk and straw.

Swift.

Fopp.

A foot; an insignificant wretch.

Where thirsty hunters broke their noble,

And handled you like a fop-puddle. Holin.

Chapter 17: Fop.

A foot; an insignificant wretch.

Where thirsty hunters broke their noble,

And handled you like a fop-puddle. Holin.

Chapter 18: Fop.

A foot; an insignificant wretch.

Where thirsty hunters broke their noble,
the fun, the moons, and flars, as if we were villians on necessity.

Shakespeare, King Lear.

2. Affection of show or importance; showy folly.

Shakespeare, King Lear.

3. When vain or idle praise; idle affection.

Shakespeare, King Lear.

They thought the people were better let alone in their follies, than to be suffered to break too--from that subjection which your superiors would impose upon them.

But though we fetch from Italy and France our follies of tune and modes of dance, our worthy Britons from to borrow songs, Granville. For which reason, could the follies of the populace generally be thereby shut from grave subjefts.

Swift.

Foliphej. adj. [from pop.] for pop. Saxon; pop, Dutch.

1. Because of.

That which we for our unworthiness are afraid to crave, our prayer is, that God for the worldliness of his son would withstand vouchsafe to grant.

Shaksp.

Edward and Richard.

With fiery eyes, sparkling for very wrath, Are at our backs.

Shaksp. Henry VI.

Leaves nothing out for length. Shakespeare.

For as much as the question cannot be answered, unless the time of Abraham's journey be considered, it will fetch into a tradition concerning his travels.

An allegorical fate, if it were not for two things that are contempt, no individual would ask our moment.

Bacon.

Ralph's History.

An annual visitor, if it were not for two things that are contempt, no individual would ask our moment.

Bacon.

Now for the government, it is absolute monarchy; there being no other laws in China but the king's command.

Tyrrel.

If no other happiness I own, Than to have born no title to the throne. Dryden.

For me, my stormy voyage at an end, 1 to the dearest heart securely tend. Dryden. A'Don.

After death, we forget upon such furies.

Dryden.

Shakespeare.

For our two sons, and yet so full of frites.

Shakespeare. Hamlet.

For both mild ictus, yet in mischief strong. Tate.

For who has given us a correct explanation of the fenes in general, most extraordinary, but incomparably better.

Pope.

For his kindliness, but they are stone. Pope.

For his kindliness, but they are stone. Pope.

Shakespeare.

In this fentent it has often en before it.

After the fourth it cut.

Knolles.

In the character of.

If a man be fully allowed of any thing for a truth, without having examined, what is there that he may not embrace for truth?

Locke.

But let her go, for an ungrateful woman. A.Phillips, Eye.

Shakespeare, Henry IV.

Now for our quaint deliverance is hand. The kingdom shall to Israel be restored. Milton.

The startling flight was fe'd with sudden fright. And, bounding, one by one, we all call the knight: Forward he flew, and plucked in his head.

Chaucer.

Confused as in the place of the.

Our predicament appears for happy, though we all ill, not worth, if we procure not to ourselves more. Milton.

The council-board and star-chamber held for honorable that which pleased, and for just that which profited.

Confused.

In advantage of: for the sake of.

An ant is a wise creature for itself; but it is a foolish thing in an orchard.

Bacon.

He refused not to die for those that killed him, and fled his blood for some of them that filled it.

Byss.

Conducive to; beneficial to.

It is the world, the general good of human society, and consequently of particular persons, to be true and just; and it is for men's health to be temperate.

Conducive.

Will that I think the world was made for one.

And men are born for kings, as beauties for men.

No for protection, but to be devout?

Dryden.

Read all the prefaces of Dryden.

For those our critics much in confusion.

Though neatly wrt at first for filling,

To raise the volume's price a shilling.

Swift.

Conductive to; beneficial to.

It is for the general good of human society, and consequently of particular persons, to be true and just; and it is for men's health to be temperate.

Conductive.

It can never be for the interest of a believer to do me a mischief because he is sure, upon the balance of accounts, to find himself a loser by it.

Addison.

With intention of going to a certain place.

We failed from Peru for China and Japan.

Bacon.

As the was brought for England, the ship was cut away near Harwich haven.

Hayward.

We failed directly for Fowina, and had a fair wind.

Addison.

In comparative respect.

For talks with Indian elephants he drove.

And Joe's own thunder from his mouth he drove.

Dryden.

With approbation to.

Shall I begin to soone: I prize him; for we have a number of shadows to fill up the matter-book.

Shakespeare.

After an O'expression de. or a late fate, what would ascend

Shakespeare.

The highest heaven of invention.

Shakespeare.

In account of; in solution of.

Thus must for the beginning and progress of the deluge.

Barrett's History of the Earth.

Inducing to as a motive.

There is a natural, immutable, and eternal reason for doing this, which we call virtue, and against which we call vice.

Tillotson.

In expectation of.

He must be back again by one-and-twenty, to marry and propagate: the father cannot play any longer for the portion, nor the mother for a new set of babies to play with.

Locke.

Noting power or possibility.

For a holy to be humful, for one whom all men esteem a saint, to fear left himself become a despicable man, and a prince to submit himself to be guided by tutor.

Taylor.

Noting dependence.

The colours of outward objects, brought into a darkened room, depend for their visibility upon the dimensions of the light they are beheld by.

Boyce.

In prevention of; for fear of.

Cora
1. In the place of; instead of.
To make him copious is to alter his character; and to translate him line for line is impossible.

2. In supply of; to serve in the place of.
Molt of our ingenious young men take up some erise, not for their model, but to imitate, as they think, without knowing wherein he is defective.

3. Through a certain duration.
Some pledge for once, some will for ever please.

4. To whose sleep without dreaming, can never be convinced that their thoughts are for hours busy, without their knowing it.
The administration of this bank is for life, and partly in the hands of the chief citizens. Additum.

5. Such, bid for life, thy fertile must mull.
Successions of gifts, and a glorious kingdom: And bring him laurels, whilst for they cast. Prior.

6. The transports attained, after without delay.
To know their son, to make, and a day. Garth.

7. In search of; in quest of.
Philosophers have run so far back for arguments of comfort against pain, as to doubt whether there were any such things and yet, for all that, when any great evil has been upon them, they would cry out as loud as other men.

8. According to.
Chymists have not been able, for aught is vulgarly, and a fire alone to separate true from a flame from antimony.

9. Noting a state of flinty or readines.
Nay, if you be an undertaker, I am for you.

10. If he be brave, he's ready for the stroke.
Dryden.

11. In hope of; for the sake of; noting the final cause.
How quickly nature falls to revolt, when gold becomes her object! For this the spoilish, over-careful fathers, have broke their sleep with thoughts, their brains with care.

12. Their bones with industry; for this, engross'd.
The cannon's help'd of strong arch'd gold: For this they have been thoughtful to invest.

13. Their fons with arts and martial exercises. Shakespeare.

14. To worthily best woe.
But a thing best woe, upon which concern there are set, for our instruction, two marks. Bacon.

For he write not for money, nor for praise. Nor to be call'd a wit, nor to wear Dasham.

16. There we shall see, a fight worth dying for, that baffled Saviour, who to highly deliver us of Boyle.
He is not disposed to be a fool, and to be milder.

Even death's become to me no dreadful name.

18. In fighting fields, where our acquaintance grew, I saw him, and could not him hur from you. Dryad.
And fire with love the grand Phrenician's heart.

19. Prayer for riches, riches they obtain.
Some watch'd by rabbits, for their wealth are slain. Dryden.

20. Of tendency to; towards.
The keele to the top of holt; But, with its upright bow, to show its inclination lower.

21. In favour of; on the part of; on the side of.
Ye suppose the laws for which ye strive are found In Scriptures; but those not against which we strive. Hooker.

22. It becomes me not to draw my pen in the distance of a cause; as when I have so often drawn it as for a good one.
Dryden.

23. Jove was for Venus; but he feared his son.
Dryden.

24. He for the world was made, not us alone. Catesby.
They must be void of all zeal for God's honour, who do not with sighs and tears intercede with him.

25. Aristotle is for political justice.

26. Are they for rank and soul feeding. Felton.

27. Fortune, if there be such a thing as the Spies that I hear so well his tyranny.
That the thinks nothing else to fit for one. Donne.

28. A few moments for a man, who is a man, who is a man, for the perfect good.

29. Those who pretend to the highest improvement.

30. It is for wicked men to dread God; but a virtuous man even in unthrifted thoughts, to the justice of God.
Tilton.

31. His country has good havens, both for the Adria- tic, and the Ionian seas.

32. Perissa is commonly trusted for trade both for bees and land.

33. Scholars are frugal of their words, and not willing to let any go for ornament, if they will not give for use.
Felton.

34. With intention of.
And by that justice ham remov'd the cause Of those rules which, for sufficient To o'er, alas, invovled the innocent.

35. How to choose dogs for fam'd or sped.
Waller.

36. God hath made some things for as long a duration as they are capable of. Tilton.

37. For this from Tantia's temple and her wood, Are couriers dry, that shed their master's blood.

38. Some such examples be set before them, as patterns for their daily imitation.

39. Achilles is for revenging himself upon Agamemnon, by means of Hector.
Brome.

40. Becoming; belonging to.
It were not for your quire, nor your good,
Not for your meanth, honestly, and wisdom,

41. To let you know your why.
Shakespeare. Otello.

42. Th' offers he doth make, Were not for him to give, nor them to take.
Dryden.

43. More for his honour to raise his flag, than to spend so many good men in the winning of it by force.

44. For you to range reins and land.

45. Jealousy for Dutchmen and English boys.

46. Unauthoriz'd by my supreme command.
Dryden.

47. His fire already set him for the fires.

48. And marks the fear amidst the deceit.

49. There is a signal remedy for any man to give, why he does not live as the greatest part of the world do, that he has no mind to die as they do, and perseve, with them.
Tilton.

50. Notwithstanding.
This, for any thing we know to the contrary, might be the fell-face form which Philojoenus ex- presseth.

51. God's definition shall, for ought I know, the next minute supervene.
Divry of Thury.

52. Probability loophole that a thing may or may not be.

53. For any thing yet certainly determined on either side.

54. For any thing that legally appears to the contrary, it may be a contrivance to fright us.

55. If such vastly matters of had been situated nearer to the sun, or to each other, as they might as easily have been, for any mechanical or fortuous agent, they must necessarily have caus'd a consider- able disorder in the whole system.
Brady.
The things men live for to represent how just cause of fear this kingdom may have towards Spain. — Bacon.

FOR.

1. The word by which the reason is introduced of something advanced before. Heav'n don't with us as we with torches deal, Not in things that are; but if our virtues Did not go forth of us, there were all alike: As if we had them not. Shaks. Measure for Measure. Old husbandman 1 at Sallambion know, Who for angry muttons, plough, and few; For never any man was yet to old, But hop'd his life one Winter more would hold. Denham.

Tell me what kind of thing is wise. For the first matter loves variety least. Cowley.

Thus does he foolishly who, for fear of this thing in this world, ventures to displease God; for in doing he runs away from men, and falls into the hands of the living God. Tileston.

2. Because; on this account that. It is in this fence properly followed by that, and without it is elliptical. This fence is almost altogether.

I don't not but great roops would be ready to run; yet for that the worst men are molt ready to remove, I would with them chid by direction of wise men. Bacon.

Jealous fouls will not be answer'd to. They are not ever jealous for a cause, but jealous for they're jealous. Milton, Paradise Lost.

For it is in a height with smooth pride, That heaven on his above his charge had laid; But for his great Creator would the fame, His will instruct'd, to fire augmenteth flame. Fairfax.

Many experiences of trees grow chiefly where the tree is dead or fadded; for that the natural sap of the tree corrupteth into some pretentious sublimate. Bacon's Natural History.

FORBEAR, v. n. pret. I forbore, anciently forbares; part. forbarn. [from forbear, Latin.] Full of holes; perforated in many places, porous. Soft and porous in bodies, in the first creation of the found, would deaden it; but in the passage of the found they would admit it better than harder body. Bacon's Natural History.

To FORBEAR, v. n. [from forborne, abst., Lat.] 1. To wander far; to rove at a distance. Not in ufe.

Forage, and run. To meet difficure farther from the doors, and grapple with him, ere he come so nigh. Shak.

2. To wander in search of spoil, generally of provisions. As in a stormy night, Wolves urged by their raging appetite, Denham.

Forage for prey. There was a braid of young larks in the corn, and the dam went abroad to forage for them. L'Estrange.

Nor dare they stray. When rain is promis't or a stormy day; But near the city walls their wandering take, Ne forage far, but their excursions make. Dryden.

3. To ravage; to feed on spoil. His mad pursuit on a hill Sad and fasting, to behold his turn's wheel. Forage in blood of French nobility. Shaksp.

To FORAGE, v. n. To plunder; to strip; to spoil. When both strengthen all the country round, and also be as continual holds for her majesty; if the people should revolt; for without such it is easy to forage and over-run the whole land. Spenser.

The wretched Philistines were wounded by the captivated ark, which foraged their country more than a conquering army. South.

FORAGE, v. n. [forage, German and French; from forer, Latin.] 1. Search of provisions; the act of feeding abroad. A way one band left from forage devils A bend of heaven, fair earth, and fair king; From a fat meadow ground; or greasy flock, Eyes and their bleeding lambs, over the plains. Their booby.

2. Provisions fought abroad. Some of the publick magazines provide, And some are new for to provide. Dryden.

FOR MIN. adj. [from foramen, Latin.] Full of holes; perforated in many places, porous.

The voice of reason, in all the dictates of national morality, ought carefully to be attended to; by a strict observance of what commands it, especially of that it forbids. South.

All hatred of persons, by very many Christian principles, we are most solemnly and indifferently forbade. Sprat.

The chaste and holy race Are all forbidden this polluted place. Dryd. Eccla.

2. To command to forbear any thing. She with so sweet a rigour forbade him, that he durst not rebel. Sidney.

They have determined to consume all those things that God hath forbidden them to eat by law. Judges, xvi. 12.

3. To oppose; to hinder. The moisture being forbidden to come up in the plant, thay linger in the root, and so dilate it. Bacon's Nat. Hist.

The platter alone would pen the humour, and do exasperate it as well as forbid new humour. Bacon.

Thy throne is darkness in all thy eyes of light, a chariot of smoke, and the wine bathed with battery with him. Milton, Paradise Lost.

To FORBID, v. n. To utter a prohibition.

Now the god of God, that our redeemed soul Should now eat up her own! Shaksp. Coriolanus.

Forbid, n. f. [from forbid.] Prohibition; cestit against any thing. How hast thou yield'd to tranquillity? The spirit forfaiceth free will not to violate The sacred fruit forbidden? Milton's Paradise Lost.

Forbiddenly, adv. [from forbid.] In an unlawful manner.

With all confidence he swears, as he had learnt, That you have touch'd his queen forbidden. Shak.

Forbid, n. f. [from forbid.] One that prohibits; one that makes a prohibition. This was a bold assumption of God, making the fountain of good the contriver of evil, and the forbidder of the crime an author of the fault prohibited. Brown.

Other cases, perhaps, May have diverted from continual watch. Our great forbidder! Milton's Paradise Lost.

Forbidding, participial adj. [from forbid.] Railing.
1. FORCE. adj. [from force.]

1. Strongly; might; opposed to evan.
2. To be repelled, but not by fear.

2. FORCIBLY. adv. [from forcible.]

1. Strong; forcibly opposed to evan.
2. Their punishment, which has been sometimes forcible to drive one, may grow afterwards too weak and ineffective.
3. Who therefore can invent with what more forcible we may offend.
4. Violent; impetuous.
5. To forcible means, to will must feel the influence of a form and mind.
6. Of great influence.
7. How forcible are right gods.
8. God hath afforded us, that there is no inclination or temptation to forcible which our humble prayers and desires may not frustrate and break asunder.

3. FORCIBLENESS. m.sc. [from forcible.]

1. Strongly; powerfully.

4. FORD. m.s. [from pamp.]

1. A shallow part of a river where it may be passed without swimming.

5. FORE.

1. The usual means for the q any of water is either by suckers or forcers.
2. Willins, Dadalos.

6. FORE.

1. Strong; might; opposed to evan.
2. Their punishment, which has been sometimes forcible to drive one, may grow afterwards too weak and ineffective.
3. Who therefore can invent with what more forcible we may offend.
4. Violent; impetuous.
5. To forcible means, to will must feel the influence of a form and mind.
6. Of great influence.
7. How forcible are right gods.
8. God hath afforded us, that there is no inclination or temptation to forcible which our humble prayers and desires may not frustrate and break asunder.

7. FORE.

1. To forcible means, to will must feel the influence of a form and mind.
2. Of great influence.
3. How forcible are right gods.
4. God hath afforded us, that there is no inclination or temptation to forcible which our humble prayers and desires may not frustrate and break asunder.

8. FORCE.

1. Strongly; powerfully.

9. FORCIBLY. adv. [from forcible.]

1. Strongly; powerfully.

10. FORCE.

1. Force; force.
2. Force.
3. Force.
5. Force.
7. Force.
10. Force; force.

11. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

12. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

13. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

14. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

15. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

16. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

17. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

18. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

19. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

20. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

21. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

22. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

23. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

24. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

25. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

26. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

27. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

28. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

29. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

30. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

31. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

32. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

33. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

34. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

35. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

36. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

37. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

38. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

39. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

40. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

41. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

42. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

43. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

44. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

45. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

46. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

47. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

48. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

49. FORCE.

1. Force; force.

50. FORCE.

1. Force; force.
and fafhon, and much more, if he had for did the ocean.

"For," in the current where thou seld it low.

"Denham.

Forbida//, adj. [from for.] Passable without swimming.

Plying placid the Schelde upon the Euphrates, where the fame begineth to forbode, Raleigh.

A countryman founded a river up and down, to try where it was most forbodably and where the water ran smooth, he found it deepest, and on the contrary, shallowest where it made most noise.

L'Estrange.

To forbode, "to form schemes; to contrive beforehand; to contrive antecedently;"

The node was forc'd; the time to will forsooth. That just when the defires and fruits were plac'd, the node's e'end began. Dryden, Toib, and Howitt.

To forse:; to provide against.

It is wildness to consider the end things before we embark, and to forsee consequences. L'Estrange.

To foretell. "To form schemes; to contrive beforehand; to contrive antecedently;"

And whatso heaven's in their secret doom
Ordered have, how can fraility weigh Forsooth, but it must needs to issue come?--Spen.

When broad streams and huge confines roll for going how his foe he might assay. Fairy Q.

To Forecast. n. f. [from the verb.] Contrivance beforehand; scheme; plan; antecedent policy.

Alas! that Warwick had no more forsooth; But while he thought (to deal the finge true)
The King was fally figner'd from the deck. Shaksp.

He makes this difference to arise from the forsooth and predetermination of the gods.

Admon. To Forehead.

Face, nimble maiden.--Man.

Saw helpless from whom their life began:
Mem'ry and forsooth just returns engage:
That painted back to you this on age. Pope.

To Forecast, "to form schemes;"

One who contrives beforehand.

To Forecastle, n. f. [fore and cabin.] In a ship, is that part where the foremost stands, and is divided from the rest of the floor by a bulk-head; that part of the fore-flesh which is aloft, and not in the hold, is called the prow.

Harr.

The commodity of the new-cook-room the merchants have found to be fo great, as that, in all their ships, the cook-rooms are built in these forecastles, contrary to that which had been anciently used.

Greaves.

To Forecho'sen, part, n. [fore and chosen.] Pre-elected.

To Forecited, part, n. [fore and cited.] Quoted before, or above.

Greates is of opinion, that the alteration mentioned in that forsoothed passage is continued. Addison.

To Forfeather.

Thou didst beforehand.

To Foreclose a Mortgage, is to cut off the power of redemption.

To Forego, n. f. [fore and deck.]

The antecorous part of the ship.

I to the foredeck went, and thence did look.

Fokey Stylla.

Chapman's Odyssey.

To Foredesign, n. v. a. [fore and design.] To plan beforehand.

All the steps of the growth and vegetation both of animals and plants, have been foreseen and fore-designed by the wife Author of nature.

Curen. To Forego, v. a. [from for and do, not fore.]

1. To join; to destroy.

A word obloque.

Opposed to making happy.

Beforechimg, if either false or else, A foredone wight from door of death might raife, He would at her frequent prolong her nephew's days.

Fairy Queen.

That drew on men God's hatred and his wrath, And many fouls in doleus had foredone. Fairy Q.

This doth betoken
The const they follow did with desperate hand
Foredo in its own life.

Shakespeare's Hamlet.

This is the night
That either may foredo me quite, Shak.

2. To overdo; to weary; to harrass.

Whilt the heavy ploughman sleeps
All with weary talk foredone. Shakespeare.

To Foredoom, n. v. a. [fore and doom.] To predetermine; to determine beforehand.
FORE

In it her nature, or is it her will,
To be so cruel to an humble foe?
If nature, then the way it mend with skill:
If will, then the air will growl with force.
Shaks.

For instance, before absolutely in his powers, it is remaining to be still, he having already neither forgotten nor forgive anything they might have done, but having received something from them. Shaks.

He, the great adventurer, said he—
That hath his sword through hard effay forgone;
And now hath vowed, till he be dead.

Of that, I am sure, to warm some Fairy Ra.

Special reason oftentimes causet the will to prefer one good before another; to have one for another's sake, to forgive meaner for the attainment of better things.

Mist I then leave you? Mist I need forgive?
So good, so noble, and so true a matter.
Shaks.

That for a trifle which was bought with blood.

How can I live without thee? how forgone
 Thy sweet converse, and love to dearly join'd?
To live again in these wild woods forlorn—Milts. This argument might prevail with you to forgive a little of your repose for the public benefit. Dryd.

What they have enjoyed with great pleasure at one time, has proved insipid or nauseous at another; and therefore they see nothing in it for which they should bestow enjoyment.

To go before; to be past. [from fore and go.]

By our remembrances of days forgone,
Such were our faults: O then we thought them
meaner,
It is to be understood of Cain, that many years forgone and when his people were increased, he built the city of Memphis. Dryd.

Remember the sins you forgone objections. Dryd.

This forgiving remark gives the reason why imitation pleaed.

Dryd. Doftrifyr.

Was feated in my elbow chair, where I had a
Followed the forgiving speculations. Addin.

In the foregoing part of this work I promised
Woodward.

3. To lose.

This is the very ecstasy of loss.
Whole violent property forgone itself,
And leaves the will to deliberate undertakings. Shaks.

FOREGOER, n. s. [from forge.]-Ancestor; progenitor.

Honours best thrive,
When rather from our acts we derive
Than our forgers.

Shaks.

FOR'LAND, n. s. [fore and land.]-A part of the field or expanse of a picture which seems to lie before the figures.

All agree that white can subsist on the foreground of the picture: the question therefore is to know, if it can equally be placed upon which is backed;
the light being universal, and the figures sup-pended to be in an open field. Dryd.

FOREHAND, n. s. [fore and hand.]
1. The part of a horse which is before the rider.
2. The chief part. Not in use.

For instance, a horse, a gun, a horse, which ownes commanders.
Shaks.

For the snow and the forehand of our hoth. Shaks.

FOREHAND, adj. Done sooner than is reg-lular.

You'll say the did embrace me as a husband;
And without all debate, he was taken from them. Shaks.

FOREHANDED, n. s. [from fore and hand.]
1. Early; timely.

If by thus doing you have not secured your time by an early and forehanded care, yet be sure, by a through understanding, to secure your time. Tayl.

2. Formed in the forefront.

He's a shubstantial, true bred brash, bravely fore-handed mark but the cleanliness of his flaps too.
Dryd.

FOREHEAD, n. s. [fore and head.]
1. That part of the face which reaches from the eyes upward to the hair.

The breath of Hecuba,
When she did suckle Hector, look'd not favorer
Than Hector's forehead when it felt forth blood
At Grecian swords contending. Shaks, Coriolanus.

Some ancient character, whilst I kept the picture,
And Model'd his forehead from my face:
Such majesty does from her forehead rise,
Her cheeks flushes blushing, with fair rays they glows.
Dryd.

2. Impudence; confidence; assurance; audacions; audacity. The forehead is the part on which flame visibly operates.

A man of confidence pretends forward upon every conversation: and therefore, where there is too feibly, he prevails by dint of impudence: these met of forehead are magnificent in promises, and infallible in their pretensions.

Let us not forgive Colter. Dryd.

I would know to what branch of the leguication they can have the forehead to apply. Swift.

FOREHELDING, n. s. [for and hold.]
Predictions; ominous accounts; superstitious prognostications.

How are superstitions men bagged out of their wits with the fancy of omens forebodings, and old wives tales,
L'Estrange.

FOREIGN, adj. [forain, French, forane, Spanish; from foris, Latin.]
1. Not of this country; not domelfick.
Your forlorn face.

Leads disconsolat'd steps in foreign soil.
This fair alliance quickly shall call home. Shaks.

The learned correspondence you hold in foreign parts.

The notions are so far from being new, that they are commonly to be met with in both ancient and modern, domestic and foreign writers. Atterb.

The notions and disquisitions among us many several ways bring destruction upon our country, at the same time that our united force would secure us against all the attempts of a foreign enemy. Dryd.

2. Alien; remote; not allied; not belonging; without relation. It is often used with to;
but more properly with from.
I must difsemble,
And speak a language foreign to my heart. Addin.

Fame is a good in all foreign to our nature, that we have no faculty in the soul adapted to it, nor any organ in the body to relish it, placed out of the possibility of fruition. Addin.

This is not foreign to some people's thoughts.

3. Excluded; not admitted; held at a distance.

They will not flock to say you envied him;
And fearing nothing hurt him, he is as keenly, as any man full; which to glorify'd him,
That he ran mad and died. Shaks. Henry VIII.

4. [In law.] A foreign plea; placitum foriferens; as being a plea out of the proper court of justice.

5. Extranous; adventitious in general.

There are who, fondly fushe's without
Rich foreign mould in their ill-natural land.
Induc.

FOREIGNER, n. s. [from foreign.]-A man that comes from another country; not a native; a stranger.

Just in such a foreigner,
So meagre a stranger to my thoughts I know
Not how to entertain him. Denham. Sophy.

To this fable foreigner you give your thrones,
And wroug'd a friend; a kinsman, and a Dryd. Son.

Water is the only native of England made use of in punch; but the jersey, the brandy, the figs, and the pecans, are all foreigners. Addin.

Nor could the majesty of the English crown appear in a greater luster, either to foreigners or sub-jets. Swift.

FOREIGNNESS, n. s. [from foreign.] Remonences; want of relation to something.

FORELIFT, n. s. or adj. [fore and lift.]-To muffle aloft any interiour part.

So dreadful he towards him did pass,
Forlif'ting up aloft his speckled breast;
And often bounding on the bruised gait;
As for great joy of his new-coned pigtail. Shaks.

FORELOCK, n. s. [fore and lock.] The hair that grows from the forhead of the head.
Tell her the joyous time will not be lank.

Unles she be by him by a lift take,
Hypocras a lock,
Round from his parted forelock manly hung,
Claffing, but not beneath his shoulder's bend.

Addin.

Zeal and duc be not now,
But on occasion's freehold watchful want. Milt.

Time is painted with a look before, and bold bening, figurating that we must take time by the forelock; but when it is once past, there is no reckoning
it. Swift.

FOREMAN, n. s. or adj. [fore and man.] The first or chief performer.

He is a very fine fellow, stoutly flying, and he has been several times foreman of the petty jury. Addin.

FOREMOST,
for forementioned. adj. [fore and mentioned.] Mentioned or recited before. It is observable that many participles are compounded with fore, whose verbs have no such composition.

Dacier, in the life of Aurelius, has not taken notice of the formentioned figure in the pillar. Admonition on Italy.

foremost. adj. [from fore.] 1. First in place. All three were set among the foremost ranks of fame, and deft hands to attempt, and great force to perform what they did attempt. Sidney. Our women in the foremost ranks appear; March to the fight, and meet your multitudes. Dryden.

The bold Sempronius, That still broke foremost through the crowd of patriots, As with a hurricane of zeal transported, And virtue even to madness! Addison's Cato.

2. First in dignity. Their role foremost in the field, As they the foremost rank of honour held. Dryden. Foremost, adj. [fore and most.] Nostrum, and such are free ones, As Coriolus and the fornoated Leucius. Ben Jonson. Foremost, adj. [fore and most.] The time of day thanked from the middle point, between the dawn and the meridian, to the meridian: opposed to afternoon.

The manner was, that the foremost they should run at till, the young men in a broad field in manner of a battle, till either the stragglers or the country knights won the field. Sidney. Curio, at the funeral of his father, built a temple, consisting of two parts turning on hinges, according to the position of the sun, for the convenience of forerunners and afternoons diversion. Archimedes in Coloss.

forenoctice. n. s. [fore and notice.] Information of an event before it happens. So strange a revolution never happens in poetry, but other heaven or earth gives some forenoctice of it. Kymer's Tragedy.

forensic. adj. [forensis, Latin.] Belonging to courts of judicature.

Persius is a forensic term, appropriating actions and their justifications to be considered as the result of a court of justice, and capable of a law, and happiness and misery. This personality extends itself beyond precedent excellence to what is right, only by conclusion found. Locke.

The forum was a public place in Rome, where lawyers and orators made their speeches before the proper judges in matters of property, or in criminal cases, that is to say, before the judgments in courts of justice, where several persons make their distinct speeches, may come under the name of forensic disputes. Waites in the Mind.

To foreordain. w. v. [fore and ordain.] To predetermine; to predetermine; to preordain.

The church can discharge, in manner convenient, a work of so great importance, by foreordaining some short collect wherein briefly to mention. Hooker.

forepart. n. s. [fore and part.] 1. The part first in time. Had it been so told it would deprive us of the sun's light all the forepart of the day. Raleigh.

2. The part in front in place. The ribs have no cavity in them, and towards the forpart or breast are broad and thin, to bend and give way without danger of fracture. Ray.

Forepart. adj. [fore and part.] Fail before a certain time. Now casel, ye damsel, your delights forepart; Enough it is that all the day is yours. Spenser. My forepart proof, however the matter fall, Shall in my story of little spite, Having vainly fear'd too little. Shakespeare.

Such is the treaty which he negotiates with us, an offer and tender of a reconciliation, an act of oblivion, of all forpart stuff, and of a new covenant. Foremost, adj. [fore and most.] Preoccupied; presupposed; pre-engaged. The testimony either of the ancient fathers, or of other ecclesiastical divines, may be clearly and abundantly to the falsification of any rational man, not extremely foreparted with prejudice. Sanderson.

Foremost, n. s. [fore and rank.] First rank; foremost. Yet leave our Cousin Catherine here with us; She is our capital demand, compriz'd Within the forerank of our articles. Shakespeare.

forerec'd. adj. [fore and recite.] Mentioned or enumerated before. The forerec'd privileges wherof We cannot feel too little, hear too much, Shakespeare.

To fore-run. w. a. [fore and run.] 1. To come before as an earnest of something following; to introduce as an harbinger. Against ill chances men are ever merry? But heaviness foreseen the good event. Shakespeare.

Was yet, and twilit from the East came on, Forerunning night's darkness. Milton's Paradise Lost. She bids me hope: oh heaven, the gites me! And pity still foreruns approving love, As lightning gives the thunder to behold. Dryden.

2. To precede; to have the start of. I heard it to be a maxim at Dublin to follow, if not foremost, all that is or will be practised in London. Traité, Traité.

To forerunners. n. s. [from fore.] 1. A harbinger; a messenger sent before to give notice of the approach of those that follow.

The six strangers seek for you, madam, to take their leave; and there is a forerunner come from a foreigner, the prince of Morocco. Shakespeare. A cock was fascinat'd as the forerunner of day and the sun, thereby acknowledging the light of life to be derived from the divine bounty, the daughter of Providence. Stillling. Shakespeare.

My elder brothers, my forerunners came, Rough drafts of nature, ill designed and lame: Blown up, they were to be despised: Till I came finish'd, her left hand's care. Dryden.

2. A prognostick; a sign forshowing anything. O Eve! some further change awaits us, Which heav'n, by these mute figures in nature, forewarns or signifies of our forlorn parade, Milton's Paradise Lost. Lot's of flight is the misery of life, and usually the forerunner of death. Swift. The keeping indefinable perspiration up in due measure is the cause as well of ague, and the least deviation from that due quantity, the certain forerunner of a distemper. Arbuthnot. Already Opera prepares the way. Swift. The forerunner of her gentle sway. Pope.

To forerunners of her gentle sway. Pope. To foreseer. w. v. [fore and see.] To predict; to prophecy; to fortell. Let ordinance Come as the gods foresee it. Shakespeare's Cymbel. To foresee, w. v. [fore and see.] 1. To see beforehand; to see what has not yet happened; to have precedence; to foreknow.

The forerunners of them things to come foresee; The next, could of things present best advise; The third, things past could keep in memory. Fairy Queen. If there be any thing forerun that is not usual, be armed for it by any hearty though a short prayer, and an earnest resolution beforehand, and then watch when it comes. Taylor.

At his forsee appearance, already quake The Calpain kingdoms and Medoan lake:

Their feet behold the tempest from afar, And threatening oracles denounce the war. Dryden.

2. To provide for; with. Out of office. A king against a worm must forsee to maintain his forseeable title. Hooker.

To foresawme. w. v. [fore and saw.] To thame; to bring reproach upon. Oh bill, foresawme. How that the soul should set their fathers lie Without a monument. Shakespeare's Cymbel.

To foresawem. w. v. [See foresaw.] To thame; to bring reproach upon. Oh bill, foresawem.

To forshew. w. v. [fore and show.] To forshew the forshow for the faking thine behind. The greatest parts of the body ought to appear foremost; and he forbids the forshow for the faking; because they make the parts appear little, Dryden's Duffret. To foresaw. w. v. [fore and show.] To forshow the forshow for the faking thine behind.

1. To discover before it happens; to predict; to prognosticate. Chrift had called, as a witness of his death, and resurrection from the dead, according to that which the prophets and Mofes had forshowed. Hooker. Next, like Anna, Spenser rofe, Whole pure blub the day forshowers. Dryden. You chose to withdraw yourself from public business, when the face of heaven grew troubled, and the frequent fluttering of the wind forshowed a storm. Dryden.

2. To reprent before it comes. What elfe is the law but the goft forshowed? What other the gospel than the law intellined? Hooker.

foreight. n. s. [fore and sight.] 1. Preference; prognostication; foreknowledge. The accent anciannt on the left syllable.

Let Eve, for I have drench'd her eyes. Here sleep below; while thou to foright walkst. As once thou sleep'st whilfe the life was form'd. Milton.

2. Preference; consideration. He had a sharp forseight, and working wit. That negARING idle was, no once could refl a wit. Spenser. In matters of arms he was both skilful and indolent, and as well forseight as revolution prudent and great. Heywood. Difficulties and tempers will more easily be borne by those, if with prudent forseight we arm ourselves against them. Rogers.

foresightful. adj. [forseight and full.] Precient; provident.

Death gave him no fuchs pangs as the forseightful care he had of his filly fector. Sidney. To foresightfull. w. v. [fore and signific.] To betoken beforehand; to forshow; to typify.

Discoveries of Christ already preceint, whose future coming the galms did but forseignify. Hooker. Yet as being past times nocturnal, where they light Oates, beath, plant, wufefull and whol. They oft forseignify and threaten ill. Milton.

foresignify. n. s. [fore and sign.] The preceint.

Their own hand. An hundred of the foe fell by day. And for a down their hundred forsignais page. Be Michell thy reward. Coull's Daddel.

foresignify. w. s. [fore and sign.] The pen- dulous or loose part of the coat before the breast. A thousand pounds a year for pure respect! No other obligation?

That promises more thousands: honour's train Is longer than his forsigny. Shakespeare's H. VIII. To foresignlack. w. v. [fore and lack.] To neglect by indefeit.
It is a great play to fo good an opportunity was omitted, and to happy an occasion forsaid, that might have been the enter-the good of the land.
Scarpot's State of Ireland.
To FOREST, v. a. [fore and for.]
1. To delay; to hinder; to impede; to obstruct.
No stream, no wood, no mountain could forest.
Shak.
2. To neglect; to omit.
When the rebels were on Blackheath, the king .had retired into it; he did not flie it open, by which more the more he was hel'd to protrude the thing in not encountering them, by too much the sooner to dispatch with them, that it might appear to have been no objection, in forswearing, but incribed in choosing his time, resolutely with speed to afflail them.
Bacon's Henry VII.
Our good purposes forsipted are become our tormen upon our death-bed.
Shak.
Chremes, how many fathers do you know
That rule their boats and use their nets right,
Neither, their more fish, nor their
Some such have been but, shil by tempests spite
Their boats are lost; while we may fit and moan
That few were fuch, and now these few are none.
Chlesh.
To FOREST, v. n. To be dilatory; to loiter.
This may plant courage in their choosing breaths,
For yet is hope of life and victory,
Forewarn'd, no longer, much less remain.
Shak.
To FORSPAK, v. n. [fore and fopak.]
1. To predict; to foresee; to forestall; to foretell.
Old Godfrey of Winchester, thinketh no ominous forword, no fortune can ever become.
Comed. Remains.
2. To forbid.
From fore and peck.
Thou hast forside my being in these wars,
And sayst 'it is not fit.
Shak. Ant. and Cleop.
FOREST, i. adj. [fore and sent.]
1. Walled; tired; sent.
After his came pursuing hard
A gentleman, almost forsent with speed.
Shak.
2. Forepawed; paft. [fore and sent.]
Is not enough thy evil life forspent?
Fair. Q.
You shall find his hand forspent,
And were the outwife of the Roman Butus,
Covering discretion with a coat of folly.
Shak.
If thou receivc him
According to the honour of his fender;
And towards himself, his goodfent forspent on us,
We must extend our notice.
Shak.
FOREST, ii. [forest and for.] One that rides before.
A day in April never came so fower,
To show how coldly Summer was at hand,
As this forspurer comes before his lord.
Shak.
FOREST. n, s. [forfs, French; forfs; Enf.
to for.]
1. A wild uncultivated tract of ground interspersed with wood.
By many tribulations we enter into the kingdom of heaven, because, in a forest of many wolves,
there cannot clause but feed in continual danger of life.
Macbeth.
Macbeth shall never vand't be, until Great Birnham-wood to Duniftan's high hill Shall smoke with him.
—That will never be.
Who can impugn the forest, bid the tree
Unfix his earth-bound root.
Shakefpeare-Macbeth.
There be airs which the Physicians advife their patients to remove unto, which commonly are plain champaign, but grazing, and not overgrown with hhight woods or shrubs, as is forfs.
Bacon.
How the first forest the lady of Brims.
Rafional.
2. [in law.] A certain territory of woody grounds and fruitful pastures, privileged for wild befts, and fowls of forft, chafe, and warren, to rest and abide in, in the safe protection of the king for his pleaure. The manner of making forfs is this:
The king fends out his commiion, directed to certain persons, for viewing, perufing, and bounding the place that he has a mind to affore; which return-ted into Chancery, proclamation is made, that none fhall hunt any wild beasts within that precinct, without licence; after which he appoints ordinaces, laws, and officers for the prefer-ration of the vert and venation; and this becomes a forfs by matter of record.
The properties of a forfs are these: a forfs, as it is firlty taken, cannot be in the hands of any but the king, who hath power to grant commiion to a justice in eye for the forfs; the courts; the officers for preceding the vert and veni-, as the justices of the forfs, the warden or keeper, the verdors, the foresters, agilors, regarders, bailiffs, and beadles.
The chief property of a forfs is the fwaincote, which no lawful incident to it than the court of preywewes to a fair.
Gower.
7. FORESTALL, v. a. [fore and stall.]
1. To anticipate; to take up beforehand.
If thou be matter-gunner, spend not all
That thou can't speak at once; but husband it,
And gain men turns of speech; do not forfay
By lawful things that may others wit,
As if thou mad'lt thy will,
Hore.
What need a man forfay his date of grief,
Dor.
He may run to meet what he would avoid.
Milton.
2. To hinder by precaution or prevention.
And though good luck protracted hath thy date,
Yet death then would the like miffay forfay.
Fair. Queen.
What's thy prayer, but this twofold force
To be forfayed ere we come to fall,
Or pardon'd be down.
Shakefpeare-Hamlet.
The lord forfay'd.
I had forfay'd this dear and deep rebuke,
Ere you with grief had spoke.
Shakefpeare.
3. To prevent death, as untimely
Of misery, to think on sooner.
The penalty pronou'nc'd, doubt not but God
Was hundred armed his vengeful is, than to
To the foreftall'd.
To Milton's Paradise Lost.
I will not forfay judgment of the rich.
Paff.
3. To feize or gain possession of before another; to buy before another in order to raise the price.
He bold fpeaker, Sir knight, if knight thou be,
Abandon the forf.
For fear of further harm, I countain thee.
Fair. Q.
4. To deprive by something prior: with.
Of.
Not in use.
May
This night forfay'd him of the coming day.
Shak.
FORESTALL, n. s. [from forfsay'd.]
One that anticipates the market; one that purchases before others to raise the price.
Commodities good or bad, the workman must take at his master's rate, or he'll still and labour; whereby this sort may yet arise to misrule of ingrs of fore-fay'ders having the feeding and fortifying this uumerous body of workmen, set the price upon the poor handholder.
Locke.
FORESTMAN. adj. [forfs and born.] Born in a wild.
5. To forecasting: to foresee.
To FOREST, v. a. To utter prophecy.
All the prophets from Samuel, and those that follow after, have likewise forewout of these days.
Alts. ii. 4.
FOREST, n. s. [from forftell.] Predict; foreteller.
Others are appointed, not that the forseted events should be known; but that the accomplishment that expresses them may evince, that the forseter of them was able to foresee these.
Boyle on Colours.
To FORETHINK, v. n. [fore and think.]
1. To anticipate in the mind; to have precence of.

The foul of every man
Prophecytically does forthent thy fall.
Shakefpeare.
I do pray to thee,
Thou wisent to Dathan, after not the doom
Forthought by heaven.
Shakefpeare-King John.
Adam could not be ignorant of the punishments that were to befall him for the price; and fals, by the proof thereof, in himself the terror that he had forthought, or could imagine.
Rai.
Friday, the falt day when next it came,
His foul forfayed the fand would change his game.
Dor.
2. To contrive antecedently;
Blissed be that God which hath given you an heart to forseten this, and will be the heir of his own.
Bishop Hall.
To FORETHINK, v. n. To contrive beforehand.
What's my frenzy will be call'd my crime?
What then is thine?
To pursu'd deliberate villains?
Thou Wife, forsethinking, weighing politician!
Smith.
FORETHOUGHT, n. s. [from forsethink.]
1. Preience.
For
To Foretken, n. a. [fore and token.]
To show forth, to prognosticate as a sign.
The king from Ireland hates, but did no good.
Whence ardant prodigies, first foretold by Daniel.
Foretoken, n. F. [from the verb.]

Proveniencc; anticipation.

A Sakefp., To One.
The prophetic to the infinite, and in these places blazoned.

Sakefp.

To forge, n. a. [forge and well.]

A Sakefp.

To Form.

To forge, n. a. [forgery, old French.]

A Sakefp.

To form. In common language we use forge for large work, and folly for small; but in books the distinction is not kept.

Now behold

In the quick forge and working-house of thought.

How London dith pour our citizens.

Sakefp., In other past faces, who did a forge.

Labouring, two maddly clos of iron and brass,

Hod melted.

Milton's Paradis¢ Left.

The labour'd Cyclops with his talkative

Th' Aolian forge exhausted of its fires.

Page.

2. A person obnoxious to punishment; one whole life is forfeited by his offence.

Now obsoleto.

His thought is a forfeit of the law,

And you waste your words.

Shakefp.

Claudio, whom here you have warrant to execute, is no greater forfeit to the law than Angelus, who

Shakefp.

To forfeit, n. a. [from the noun.] To lose by some breach of condition; to lose by some offence.

If then a man, on light conditions, gain

A great title to him, and hate, for ever;

If wilfully be forfeit it again,

Who doth bemish his hand, or blame the giver.

Dryd.

Men displeased God, and consequently forfeit all right to happiness.

Shakefp.

A master cannot alien the power he has over his child; he may perhaps to some degree forfeit it, but

Shakefp.

Lack.

To forfeit, participial, adj. [from the verb.]

Liable to penal forfeitures; alienated by a crime; lost either as to the right or possession, by breach of conditions.

All the fools that are, were forfeit once;

Shakefp.

And he that might the venture well have took,

Shakefp.

Find out the remedy.

Shakefp.

Men displeased God, and consequently forfeit all right to happiness. His thought may have left to hang itself;

Shakefp.

And yet, though he may have lost the value of a cord; Shakespeare.

This now fences world

Forfeit to death.

Milton

Straight his hope exhal'd in empty frakts,

Shakefp.

And his long toils were forfeit for a look.

Dryd. 1

Methought with wonder's Earl it swallow'd down his forfeit honour, to betray his trust.

Dryd.

How the murder payer paid his forfeit breath;

Dryd.

What lands do distant from that scene of death,

Dryd.

But trembling heard the fame!

Pope's Glycer.

Forfeitable, adj. [from forfeit.]

Poffesd on conditions, by the breach of which any thing may be lost.

Forfeiture, n. F. [forfaiture, French, from forfeit.]

1. The act of forfeiting; the punishment discharged by loss of something possessed.

2. The thing forfeited; a mulct; a fine.

The court is as well a Chancery to fav and delivers free goods as to decide rights; and there would be work enough in Germany and Italy, if Imperial forfeitures should go for good titles.

Shakefp.

Virtue and innocence of grace indulged by former kings, must not, without high reason, be revoked by their successors; nor forfeitures beaeated violently, nor laws ungirded rigorously, Taylor.

He has a forfeiture incurred.

Shakefp.

Forive.

The pretence of forgive.

FORGE, n. F. [forge, French.]

1. The place where iron is beaten into
FOR

Made ams ridiculous, useless the forgery
Of B's hand, and, in the hammer'd cuirass,
Chalybean temper'd steel, and flock of mail.
Adamantine proof.

Milton. Agamemnon.

To FORGET. v. a. A. to forget; part. forgotten, or forget. [from forget.]

1. To lose memory of; to let go from the remembrance.

That is not forget.

Which neither I did remember; to my knowledge, I never in my life did forget him.
Shakespeare.

When I am forget, as I shall be, and sleep in dull cold marble, where no mention
Of me more must be heard.
Shakespeare.

For the thy friend in thy mind, and let not unnatural of him to thy riches.
Eccles. xxvii. 6.

No fonder was our delivered compleatness, but we forgot our danger and our danger. Attic.

2. Not to attend; to neglect.

Can a woman forget her fucking child? Yes, they may forget; yet I will not forget thee.
Shakespeare.

If we might forget ourselves, or forget God; if we might disregard our reason, and live by humour and fancy in any thing, or at any time, or at any place, it seemed as lawful to do the same in every thing, at every time, and every place.
Law.

The mal of forget things.
Ann.

FORGETFUL. adj. [from forget.]

1. Of the memory.

Causing oblivion; oblivious.

But when a thousand rolling years are past,
Long their punishments and peaceless last,
Whole droves of minds are by the driving god
Complied to, and from the deep Lathean soul,
In large forgetful draughts to steep the care
Of their past labours, and their irksome years.
Shaks.

3. Instinctive; negligent; neglectful; careless.

Be not forgetful to entertain strangers. Heb. xiii. 2.

The Queen is comfortable, and we forgetful.

In our lang absence.
Shaks. Henry VIII.

Have you not love to bear with me.
When that rain humour, which my mother gave me,
Shaks. Julies Caesar.

I, in fact, a real interest have,
Which to my own advantage I would evade;
And, with the usual courtier's tricks, intend
To serve myself, forgetful of my friend.
Prior.

FORGETFULNESS. n. s. [from forgetful.]

1. Oblivion; a confusion to remember; loss of memory.

O gentle sleep!
Nature's first nurse, how have I slumbered thee.
That thou no more wilt weigh my eyelids down,
And steep my senses in forgetfulness.
Shaks.

All birds and beasts be hunted; deep beds are casted.
The wild delires of men and wilds of day
And brings, defending, through the cloudy air,
A forest forgetfulness of human care.
Ps. xxxiv. 16.

2. Negligence; neglect; inattention.

The church of England is grievously charged with forgetfulness of her duty.
Holin.

FORGETTIVE. adj. [from forget.]

That may forget or produce. A word, I believe, peculiar to Shakespeare.

Good wherein fear annoys me into the brain, dries me there all the foolish, dull vapours, makes it as preceptive, quick, forgetful, full of nimble shapes, which, delivered to the voice, becomes excellent wit.
Shakespeare.

FORGETTER. n. s. [from forget.]

1. One that forgets.

2. A careless person.

To FORGIVE. v. a. [from forgive.]

1. To pardon a person; not to punish.

Their heaven forger for him too.
Shakespeare.

I do before your grace for charity.
Shakespeare.

If ever any malice in your heart
Were hid against me, now forgive me frankly.
Shakespeare.

To FORGET. v. a. preter, forget; part. forgotten, or forget. [from forget.]

1. To lose memory of; to let go from the remembrance.

That is not forget.

Which neither I did remember; to my knowledge, I never in my life did forget him.
Shakespeare.

When I am forget, as I shall be, and sleep in dull cold marble, where no mention
Of me more must be heard.
Shakespeare.

For the thy friend in thy mind, and let not unnatural of him to thy riches.
Eccles. xxvii. 6.

No fonder was our delivered compleatness, but we forgot our danger and our danger. Attic.

2. Not to attend; to neglect.

Can a woman forget her fucking child? Yes, they may forget; yet I will not forget thee.
Shakespeare.

If we might forget ourselves, or forget God; if we might disregard our reason, and live by humour and fancy in any thing, or at any time, or at any place, it seemed as lawful to do the same in every thing, at every time, and every place.
Law.

The mal of forget things.
Ann.

FORGOTTEN. adj. [from forget.]

1. part. past. of forget. Not

FORGOTEN. remembered.

This song Shall not be forgotten.

That's not forgott.

Great Strafull I worthy of that name, though
All of them could be forgotten, but thy sail.
Dryden.

The soft ideas of the charming place,
Lightly receiv'd, were easily forgott.
Prior.

To FORHALL. v. a. An old word. Probably for forbund from, and from bauld.

To harras; tear; torment.

All the long tale.

Nought safeth the care that doth me forbalk.
Spen's Past.

FOR. n. s. [from for.]

1. An instrument divided at the end into two or more points or prongs, used on many occasions.

At Midsummer down with the braunles and brakhes,
And after abroad with thy forks and thy rakes.
Shaks.

2. It is sometimes used for the point of an arrow.

The bow is bent and drawn; make from the shaft.
Let it fall rather, though the fork invade
The region of my heart.
Shaks. King Lear.

3. A point.

Several are amazed at the wonder of the ancients,
That represented a thunderbolt with three forks,
Since nothing could have better explained its triple quality of piercing, burning, and melting metal.
To FORK. v. a. [from the noun.] To thrust into blades, as corn does out of The ground.

The corn begins to fork.
Milton's Hyper.
FOR

When as night bath us of light, for love,
I wish that day would shortly reappear.
Spring, what is become of great Accent's son?
Or, where hath he hung up his mortal blade?
Yet hath found his competitor won?
Is all his force (form, and all his glory done?
Fairy Queen.

3. Small; inappreciable; in a ludicrous sense. He thought that his dimensions to any thick light were invincible. "Skiasph., Henry IV.

FORLON Hope. The soldiers who are sent first to the attack, and are therefore doomed to perish. Critics in plumes,
Who looming on our foremoor freight fit,
And still charge forth, the true form of war. Dryd.

FORM.

4. n.s. ['forman', 'form.']

1. The external appearance of any thing; representation; shape.
Nay, women are trait too,
Aye, as they are, where they view themselves.
Which are as easy broke as they make forms. Shak.

2. Being, as modified by a particular shape.
When noble benefits shall prove
Not well disposed; and grown once corrupt,
They shall in forms, ten times more ugly.
Than ever they were fair. Shakespeare's H. VIII.
Here rolls and death, and death's half-brother,
Deep frauds before, and open force behind.

3. Particular model or modification. He that will look into many parts of Asia and America will find men reason there perhaps as actually as himself, who yet never heard of a fyllagymn, nor can reduce any one argument to those forms.
Lacte.
It lengthens out every act of worship, and produces more lasting and permanent impressions in the mind, than those which accompany any transient form of words that are uttered in the ordinary method of religious worship.
Addison.

5. Regular; formal; method; order. What so speak, though it lack'd a form, little,
Was not like madness. Shakespeare's Hamlet.

6. External appearance without the essential qualities; empty show. Those whom God of laws Condemned to die, when traitors judg'd their case.
Dryden.

They were young heirs sent only for form from the schools, where they were not suffered to stay three months.
Swift.

7. Ceremony; external rites. Though well we may not pass upon his life,
Without the form of justice yet our pow'r.
Shall do a courtly to our wrath, which men
May blame, but not control. Shaksp., King Lear.
A long table, and a square table, or a feast
About the walls, seem things charming:
But things are substances; for at a long table, a few at the upper end,
In effect, all the business; but in the Oaths form, there is more use of the exalted opinions to afford the Bacon's Essays.
That the parliaments of Ireland might want no decent or honorable form used in England, he caused a particular form, or the beds of Ire, of
And should appear in parliament robes. Davies.
Their general will, in all dispatches made by himself,
To observe all decency in their forms. Clarendon.
How am I to interpret, for, this wise?
Is it a compliment of form, or love?

8. Stated method; established practice; ritual and preordained modes.
He who affirms speech to be necessary amongst all men, throughout the world, doth not thereby imply
That all men must necessarily speak one kind of language, and have a community of words in all churches may be held, without holding any
One certain form to be necessary in them all.

Not are constant forms of prayer more likely to Hixter.

To lyce before.

For when the golden balderick, which play'd
Ashwath her saucy breath, and did divide
Her dainty pans, which, like young fruit in May,
Now little 'gan to swell, and being 'ly.
Through her thin weed, their places only signify'd.
Sp. 24.

If a chair be defined a feast for a single person,
With a bed belonging to it, then a Roast is a feast for
A form for a single person without a back; and a form is a feast for several persons, without a back.
Watts.
I went with her in all the manerhouse, sitting
With her upon the form, and taken following her into the park.
Shaksp.

10. A class; a rank of students.
It will be necessary to fee and examine thse
Works which have given so great a reputation to the matters of the first form.
Dryden.

11. The fear or bed of a hare.
Now for a cloud like hare in form they see
Now bolt and euded g复制rises leap to move;
Now the ambitious lark, with mirrour clear,
They catch, while he, bold to himself makes love.
Sidney.

12. Form is the essential, specific, or distinguishing modification of the matter of which any thing is composed, as that whereby to give it such a peculiar manner of existence.

In definitions, whether they be framed larger to augment or to denominate the number of cascuments, we find space expressly mentioned as their true essential form, and elements as the matter whereunto that form did adjoin itself.
Hocker.

A formal cause; that which gives efficacy.
They inferred, if the world were a living creature, it had a soul and spirit, by which it did not intend God, for they did admit of a deity besides, but only the fou1 or essential form of the universe.
Bacon's Natural History.

To Form. v. a. ['forms', Latin.]

1. To make out of materials.
God formed man of the dust of the ground.
Gen. ii. 7.

The liquid ore he draught'd
Into still moulds prepar'd; from which he form'd
First (his own self) what might else he wrought
Fulc, or gray'n in metal.
Milton.

Determin'd to advance into our room
A creature form'd of earth.
Milton.

She form'd the phantom of well-bodied air, Pint.

2. To model to a particular shape or figure.
Creature in whom excell'd.
Whatever may be thought of form'd,
Hard, divine, good, admirable forms.
Milton.

Let Eve, for I have drend't her eyes,
Here sleep below, whilst thou to forebode wait'st;
As once thou sleep'st, while the life to was form'd
Milton.

3. To modify; to scheme; to plan.
Lucretius taught him not to form his heroes, to give him pitch or valor for his manners. Dryden.

4. To arrange; to combine in any particular manner his formed his troops.

5. To adjust; to settle.
Our differences with the Romanists are thus form'd into an interest, and become the design not of single persons, but of corporations and congregations.
Dry of Pity.

6. To contrive; to coin.
The defect of the design is the routing of opinions formed for promoting it. Dry of Pity.

But and fate, if possible, must be delay'd.
The thought that labours in my forming brain,
Yet crude and immature, demands more time.
Raw.

7. To model by education or instution.
Let him to this with easy pains be brought,
And seem to labour when he labours not itself.
Thus form'd for food, he challenges the wind,
And leaves the Stygian arrow far behind.
Dryd.

FORMAL. adj. ['formal', French, 'formales', Latin.]

1. Ceremonious; solemn; precise; exact to affectation.
The justice,
In fair round belly, with good capon's lipp'd,
With eyes severe, and heard of form'd cut,
Full of wife sweats and modern infall.
And to her beauties, Shaksp. As you like it.

Form'd in apparel,
In gait and countenance.furely like a father.
Shakespeare.

Ceremonials be not to be omitted to strangers and formal natures; but the existing above the mean is not only tedious, but does diminish the credit of him that speaks.
Bacon.

2. Done according to established rules and methods; not regular; not sudden; not extemporaneous.
There is not any positive law of men, whether it be general or particular, received by formal express consent, as in constitutions, or by secret recommendation, as in customs it cometh to pass, but may be taken away, if occasion serve.
Huntlet.

As there are formal and written leagues, respective to certain enemies; so there is a natural and tacit confederation amongst all men against the common enemies of human society, so that there needs no institution or demonstration of the wars, but all such formalities the law of nature supplies, as in the case of pirates.
Bacon.

3. Regular; methodical.
The formal lists do travel fast,
As we their names and courts know;
And be that on their changes looks,
Would think them govern'd by our books.
Waller.

4. External; having the appearance but not the essence; external.
Of formal duty, make no more thy boast;
Thou shouldest't where it concernes me mod.
Dryd.

5. Depending upon establishment or custom.
Still in contrast your suffering fix remains,
Or bound in formal or in real chains.
Pope.

6. Having the power of making anything what it is; contemplative; intellectual.
Of letters the material part is breath and voice's the formal is constituted by the motions and figure of the organs of speech affecting breath with a peculiar sound, by which all such sounds are determined.
Holden's Elements of Speech.

Bellemare agrees in making the formal act of education to be subjection to a superior, but will the he makes the mere apprehension of excellence to include the formal reason of it; whereas mere excellence, without superiority, doth not require any form, but only education. Stillingfleet.

2. The very life and vital motion, and the formal efficiency and nature of man, is wholly owing to the species. Stillingfleet.

7. Retaining its proper and efficient characteristic; regular; proper.

Thou shoul'st come like a fury cover'd with snakes, Notlike a formal man. Shaksp. Ant. and Clop.

'\( \text{fo'rmulifer, French, from form.} \)

One who practices external ceremony; one who pretends appearance to reality; one who feigns what he is not. This is a ridiculous thing, and fit for a sarky to persons of judgment, to see what things formally have, and what preservatives to make fupersiors to seem a body that hath depth in it. A grave, stanch, skilfully managed face, set upon a gracing slitting mind, having gain: men a fly formality, the reputation of a primitive and more piteous. Swifl.

FORMALITY, n.f. [formaliter, French; from form.]

1. Ceremony; established mode of behaviour.

The attire, which the minister of God is by order to use in the time of divine service, is but a matter of mere formality, yet such as for common use hath hitherto been judged not necessary. Hooker.

2. Solemn order, method, mode, habit, or drefs.

If men forever the deeds and bonds they draw, Though signed with all formality of law; And through the signing and the seal proclaim, The bared-face/pejsy, and fit the shame. Dryden.

The pretender would have infalubly landed in our northern parts, and found them all hat down in their formalities, as the Gauls did the Roman senator. Swift.

3. External appearance.

To fix on God the formality of faculties, or affections, the impediment of our faculties, and contradictory to his divinity. Glencrue's Scrut.

4. Effence; the quality by which any thing is what it is.

May not a man vow to A. and B. that he will give a hundred pounds to an hospital? Here the vow is made both to God and to A. and B: But here A. and B. are only witerife to the vow; but the formality of the vow lies in the promise made to God. Stillingfleet.

To formalize, v.t. [formaliter, French; from form.]

1. To model; to modify. A word not now in use. The same spirit which assisted the blessed soul of ouraviour Christ, to found his formality, unite, and subdue his whole race, as if both he and they were so much limbs compounded into one body. Hooker.

To affect formality; to be fond of ceremony.

Formally, adv. [from formal.]

1. According to established rules, methods, ceremonies or forms. Formally according to our law, Deuce him. Shakespeare's Richard III.

2. Ceremoniously; stiffly; precisely.

The stiff and formally revered, as if the company did not declare their familiarities, is a downright charge of homagge. Collet on Pride.

3. In open appearance; in a visible and apparent state.

The Heathers and the Christians may agree in material acts of charity; but that which formally makes this a Christian grace, is the fissing from which it flows. Stow.

4. Effentially; charactristically.

This dominion and not dominion is not adequately and formally the Image of God, but only a part of it. South.

FORMATION, n.f. [formation, French; from forms; Lat.]

1. The matter discharged by vessels, and other spares, contributes to the formation of matters. Woodard.

The solids are originally formed of a fluid, from a small point, as appears by the gradual formation of a fetus. Arboison.

2. The manner in which a thing is formed. The character is a thick matter, obscuring the formation, the dam douh hearfion. Brown.

Formative, adj. [from forms; Latin.]

Having the power of giving form, power.

As we have established our affection of the fecond nature of all kinds of animals: so likewise we affirm, that the meanest plant cannot be raised without feed, by any formative power residing in the soul. Bentley's Sermons.

Formor, n.f. [from formor, Latin.]

Forms; maker; contriver; planter.

The wonderful art and providence of the contriver and formor of our bodies, appears in the multitude of intentions he hath made for the formation of several parts for several uses. Ray on the Creation.

Formor, m.f. [from pomma, Saxon, first; whence former, and formory, now commonly written fornoy, as it derived from before. Former in general is applied to place, rank, or degree, and former to only time: but when we say the last rank of the procession is the former, we respect time rather than space, and mean that he which saw before, rather than that which had precedence in place.

1. Before another in time, Thy air,

Thou other gold bound show, is like the first: A third is like the former. Shaksp. Macbeth.

2. Mentioned before another.

A bad author deferves better usage than a bad critic: a man may be the former merely through the misfortune of an ill judgment; but he cannot be the latter without both that, and an ill temper. Pope.

3. Past: as this was the customs in former times.

The present point of time is all thou hast, The first of three. Harte.

Formerly, adv. [from former.]

In former times.

The places were all of them formerly the cool retirements of the Romans, where they used to hide themselves among the mountains, during the excessive heats of their Summer. As an animal degenerates by diseases, the animal form or frame, formerly benign, approach towards an alkaline nature. Addison.

Formidably, adj. [formidabilis, Latin; formidable, French.] Terrible; dreadful; tremendous; terrific; to be feared.

I swell my preface into a volume, and make it so many pages behind. Dryden's Apo, Dedication.

Formidable, n.f. [formidabili, Latin; formidable, French.]

1. The quality of exciting terror or dread;

2. The thing causing dread.

They rather chose to shew the formidablest of their dangers, than by a blind endeavor, to perish. Decy of Pity.

Formidably, adv. [from formidable.] In a terrible manner.

Hath! e'en to remoter shores, A conquering ray proudly spread; The British cannot formidablest man. Dryden.

Formless, adj. [from form.] Shapeless; without regularity of form.

All form is formless, order orderless, Save what is opposed to England's love. Shaksp.

Formulary, n.f. [formulaire, French; from formulam.] A book containing flated and preferred models or set forms.

Formulary, adj. Ritual; preferred; stated.

FORMULE, n.f. [formula, French; from formulam, Latin.] Let or prefixed model.

To FORMULATE, v.t. [from formule, Latin.] To commit towds.

It was a new way to formulate at a distance. Brow.

FORNICATION, n.f. [fornication, French; fornicatio, Latin.] A unlawful commerce or one of unmated persons.

To FORSAKE, v.t. a. Pater, forsak; part, pass, forsook, or forsaken. [forsooken, Dut.] To leave in repentment, neglect, or dislike.

Town now the time when first Saul God forsook, God Sapl; the room in heart's wild paltuck, trill, till.

Orent comes in time

To give your honour; Pythian poet: an.

Prevent his falsehood, Hail, forsoaks, and forfaken.

To leave; to go away; to depart from.

Using I forsook your friendly state, Commanded by the god and forlay king tite. Dry.

To defect; to fail.

Truth, modesty, and shame the world forsoak; Fain, avers, and force their places took. Dry.

When men in the falling flies were last, no more. Forsaken of all the fight I left the plane. Dryden.

Their purple majesty, and all those outward shows which we call greatness, Largeness and droug, and pomp and forfoaks.

And draw the word's ung增值服务es no more. Rev.

Forsaker, n.f. [from forsak.] Defector; one that forsakes.
For

Now to their feet they are about to feed
For the loud engines which their life defend.
Waller.
He that views a fort to take
Plans his artillery 'gainst the weakest part, Danboum.
My fury feeds against a trifle.
With death ev'n strangers who but come to view.
Dryden.

Fortif. adj. [from fort. furnished or guarded by forts. Not used now.
Your defect speaks loud, and I should wrong
To lock it in the wards of covert bosom,
When it deceives with characters of brats
A forced edenence, gainst the mouth of time
Shak. Made for Misfortune.
FORT. adv. [from fort. Whence further and farther.
1. Forward; onward in time.
From that day forth I lord that face divine;
From that day forth I call in careful mind
To seek her out.
Dryden.

2. Forward in place or order.
Look at the second admonition, and to forth, where they speak in most unchristian manner.
Bun
gay.
Mad Pandars steps forth, with vengeance vow'd
For Biritan's death.
Dryden's Ein.

3. Abroad; out of doors.
Worse, I must come forth.
Shak. 0sbelo.
I have no mind of staying forth to night.
Attend you hear the door of our twin daughters?
Will the not forth?
Shak. When Venus, and Summer feares begin,
Invent them labour to be sound in
Dryden.

4. Out above; beyond the boundary of any place.
They will privately relieve their friends that are forth;
they will send the enemy secret ad
timents; and they will not allow to draw the enemy privately upon them.
Spenser.
En're that fortune bled a flow'r for him,
That wath his father's fortunes forth of France.
Shak. 0sbelo.

5. Out into a public character; publick view.
You may yetfor the fame with tarnation.
Dryden.

But when your troubled country call'd you forth,
Your flaming courage, and your matchless worth.
To fierce contention gave a profuse end, Waller.

6. Thoroughly; from beginning to end.
Out of time,
You, confid.,
Whom it concerns to hearth man forth,
Do with your injuries as seems you best.
Shak.

7. To a certain degree.
Here forth we expect justinection and salvation from the righteous of Christ; so further than we are wrought upon by his strange new workings.
Ham.

8. On to the end. Out of use.
I repeated the Ave Maria; the inquisitor bad me say for;
I said I was taught no more.

And here's a prophet, that I brought with me
From forth the streams of Pompec.
Shak.
Some forth their cabbins prep,
And tremblingly they too dare to hear so
As jealous husbands, what they would not know.
Don.

FOR'TICOING. adj. [forth and coming.]
Reant to appear; not abscending; not lost.
Carry this mad knave to jail; I charge you that he beforthcoming.
Shak. Taming of a Shrew.
We'll see your trinkets here, forshcoming.
Shak. Henry VI.

FORTHISUING. adj. [forth and influe.] Coming out; coming forward from a covert.
Forblushing thus, she gave him first to wield
A weighty axe, with trunn charpell.
And douce a his.
Bap. Ody.

FORTIRIGHT. adv. [forth and right.]
Straight forward; without flexions. Not in use.
He ever going thus with the horses, either fraught;
Or right of turning, that it seemed he borrow'd the horse's body, so he les the horses his mind.
Sidney.
The riche is not number, and lor continuously wining, as if the lower woulds would return to his spiring, or that the river had a defiance to play with it.
Sidney.
Arrived there, they paf forright.
For still to the gate it stood open. Fairy Queen.
Thither forthright he rode to note the pray.
Dry.

FORTIRIGHTS, n. s. A bright path.
Here's a man more committed, and forright.

FORTIRIGHT, adv. [forth and with.] Immediately; without delay; at once; straight.
Forthwhile he runs, with seceding festive.
Unnx his gun, and, who, after troublous fights
And dreams, 'gan now to take more found repast.
Snopic.

Few things are so restrained to any one end or purpose, that the same being extended, they should forthrightly utter become frustrate.
Hooke.
Neither did the martial men daily or prudentially serve family, but did forthrightly speak that fire.
Devil in Ardela.
Forthwith begun these fury-moving sounds.
The notes of wrath, the musick brought to hail.
Travaile drums and bruitable, butat Clevr War.
The winged heralds, by command.

Of offence powr throughout the hall proclaim
An solemn council forthwith, for all present.
At Pandemonium.
Millon's Paradis L6.
In his passage this other put into his hand a note of the whole conspiracy, defining him to read it forthwith, and to remember the giver of it a long as he lived.
Smi.

SOUTH.

SOUTH. adj. [from fort. The fourth tenth; next after the thirty-ninth.
What doth it avail
To be the forthright man in the entail?
Donne.
Burratt says, Scotland is not above a forthright part in value to the rest of Britain; and, with respect to the profit that England gains from thence, not the forty thousandth part.
Swin.

FORF🇮🇷. adj. [from fort. What may be forthright.

FORFICATION, n. s. [fortification; French; from fort.]
1. The science of military architecture.
Fortification is an art shewing how to fortify a place with ramparts, parapets, moats, and other fortification, to the end the number of men within may be able to defend themselves, for a considerate time, against the assaults of a numerous army without; so that the enemy, in attacking them, must of necessity fuller great loss. It is either regular or irregular; and, with respect to time, may be distinguished into durable and temporary.
Harris.

The Phenicians, though an unalliance nation, yet understood the art of fortification.
Broome.

2. A place built for strength.
The animals were uncoupled, and the flag thought it better to trust to the nimbleness of his feet, than to the hinder fortification of his lodging.
Sidney.
For the devices were used to make even their sports. Images, batten, and fortifications being then delivered to their memory, which, after stronger judgements, might dispute some advantage.
Sidney.

3. Addition of strength. Not much used.
To strengthen the infected parts, give some few advices by way of fortification and antidote.

Gomment of the Tangent.

FORIFIER, m. s. [from fort.]
1. One who erects works for defence.
The forifier of Pandemon's made his advantage of the commodity offered by the ground.
Corex.
2. One who supports or secures; one who upholds.
He was led forth by many armed men, who often had strong hold; a fortified place; a castle of defence.

Braking forth like a sudden tempest he overran all, breaking down all the huts and fortresses.

The trump of death sounds in their hearing flails; their weapon, faith; their fortress was the grave.

God is our fortress, in whom we trust, and he is our bulwark.

To fortify, v. To strengthen, as walls or forts.

Dryden,

To FORFEIT, v. To give up, as a claim or right.

Sidney.

Sidney.

Sidney.

Dryden.

FORT Recitation, vivid and final. Shakespeare.

He forsiied the city against the besieging. Letters. 1. 4.

To confirm; to encourage.

It greatly forsiied her desires, to fee that her mother had the like desires.

Sidney.

To forsi the former opinions Taddeus adds, that those which dwell near the falls of water are dear from their infancy; but this I hold as being false. Raleigh.

3. To fix; to establish in resolution.

But in-born worth that fortune can controul, New-strength and thither bent her foster foul.

The heroine affirmed the woman's place.

Sidney.

To forsi is to raise strong places.

Thus we impow'd.

To forsi thus lar and overlap.

Will forsi the poor front hearken the dark abyss. Milton.

FORTIFICATION, n. f. [from fort.]

A little fort; a blockhouse.

Yet was the fence thereof but weak and thin

So Nathl'd fear'd their force that fortress to win.

In all frights and narrow passages there should be some little forsiage, or wooden cassette, which with someone lightening the frights.

FORTIN, n. f. [French]

A little fort raised to defend a camp, particularly in a siege.

Hammer.

He acws his fame.

Depriving of his own arm's forsiage.

To join with witches and the help of hell! Shakespeare.

FORTLET, n. f. [from fort.]

A little fort.

FORTNIGHT, n. f. [contrasted from fourteen nights, or days, the length of the new moon, in Saxo.

It was the custom of the ancient northern nations to count time by nights; thus we say, this day seven nights.

So Tacitus, Not dorum nocturnum, ut non me solum companiae.

The space of two weeks.

She would give her a letter for walking so late, that she might keep her within doors for a fortnight.

Sidney.

Hanging on a deep well, somewhat beneath the water, for some forsiages space, is an excellent means of making drunk fools and quick.

Baron. And the crafty must be the fool, that will understand his majesty's declaration of liberty of conscience, returned.

Dryden.

It is often said in his head but never, with much apprehension, tell about a forssage. Swift.

FORTRESS, n. f. [fortress, French]

A strong house; a fortified place; a castle of defence.

This territorial globe has been surrounded by the fortune and boldness of many navigators, Temple.

No, he shall eat, and die with me, or live.

Equal claims, thus equal fortune give. Dryden.

5. Estate; possessions.

If thou do.

And this includes thee, thou must make thy way to make fortune. Shakespeare's King Lear.

That eyes is held of thine first from thine's face. Shakspere.

To make thine fortune. Shakespeare's King Lear.

Bel me, Tyrant, what's thy holy power

Prefer'd your fortune in that fatal hour? Dryden.

The fate which governs poets, thought it fit he should not refuse his fortune by his wit. Dryden.

He was younger to a gentleman of a good birth, but small fortune.

Swift.

6. The portion of a man or woman; generally of a woman.

I am thought some heretics rich in lands,

To cleft to a cruel guardian's hands.

Which may produce a story worth the telling.

Of the next sparks that go a fortune feeling.

Swift.

7. Futurity; future events.

You who men's fortunes in their faces read,

To find out mine, look at mine on me.

But mark her face, and all the features heed;

For only there is writ my destiny. Cowley's Mirthful.

To Fortune, v. n. [from the noun] To befal; to fall out; to happen; to come causally to pass.

If forsworn, as fair it then befal

Behind her back, unperceiving, wherein he stood;

Of ancient time there was a springwell well,

From which full trickled forth a silver flander.

Swift.

8. Fortune hunter.

They brought once a Turk in the camp, freely gave the watchmen warning.

Knott.

I'll tell you as we pass along.

That you will wonder what hath forsworn'd. Shakspere.

Here fortune did Clay till she Pope's Divine.

FORTUNED, adj. Supplied by fortune.

Not the impious heaven

Of the full forsworn Caesar ever shall

Be brook'd with me. Shakspere.

And Clapton.

Thus the forsworn

A book confuted to know fortune or future events.

Thou know'st a face, in whole each look.

Beauty plays o'er love's forsworn book.

On whose fair resolution.

The obstinacy of love's fate. Cowley.

FORTUNEHUNTER, n. f. [fortune and hunt]

A man whose employment is to enquire after women with great portions, to enrich himself by marrying them.

We must, however, distinguish between fortune-hunters and fortune-tellers.

Swift.

7. To forsworn.

Tell to tell and to tell.

To pretend to the power of revealing futurity.

We are simple men; we do not know what's brought to pass under the profession of fortune-tellers.
F O R

c the prisoners hold up their hands at the bar, related to some of his acquaintance that the judges were good forresterell, for if they did but look over their hands they could certainly tell whether they should live or die.

Bacon's Apologetum.

This hath given credit to vain predictions of men, to find them if we may. Once I gave unto a man no secret thing by a word. Doppie's rules for Devotions.

There needs no more than imputation on one side, and a superficial credulity on the other, to the formation of a forresterell. E. L'Estange.

Long ago a forresterell

Exactly said what now befell her.

Swift.

F O R T Y. adj. [plepererg, Saxon.] Four times ten.

On every ground I could beat forty of them. Shak. He that let his vanity quit his station, in hopes to be better, 'tis forty to one leaves. 'TisL'Estange.

F O R U M. n. f. [Latin.] Any publick place.

The forum was a publick place in Rome, where lawyers and orators made their speeches before their proper judge in matters of property, or in criminal cases, to accuse or excuse, to complain or defend.

Watts on the Mind. Cloot to the bay great Neptune's sate adjure, And near a forum flank'd with marble stairs, Where, not in base triumphs, but in busts, Shape the broad base, or smooth the taper oar. Pope.

To F O R W A R D. v. a. [for and over.] To wander wildly and wearily.

The better part now of the lying day There is to see, or rather they fare well. A weary night forward'ring by the way. Fairy Q.

F O R W A R D. adv. [propereap, Saxon.] Towards; to a part or place before; on ward; progressively.

When Davy's forrow shooked was. She wrote, considering him to find Alive or dead, and forward'ing both pafs. Fairy Q.

From smaller things the mind of the hearers may be forwarded to the knowledge of greater and climb up from the lowest to the highest things. Hooker.

He that is used to go forward, and findeth a flipp, falseth off his own favour, and is not the thing he promised. Hill's one.

F O R W A R D. adj. [from the adverb.] 1. Warm; earnest; not backward.

They would that we should remember the poor, Which I also was forward to do. Gal. 2, 10.

2. Ardent; eager; hot; violent.

You'll find it too forward, Sir. This Gent. of Per. Unkind! to dart the pointed spear.

Or lead the forward youth to noble war. Prior.

3. Ready; confident; preeminent.

Old Botet's includes square, Now to left are Atlanticus by his fires, And thus falsates the boy forward keth his years. Dydren.

4. Not reserved; not over modell.

'Tis a pernicious boy, Bold, quick, ingenuous, forward, capable. He's all the mother's from the tope to toe. Shak.<n
5. Premature; early ripe.

Short Summer lightly has a forward Spring. Shak.

6. Quick; ready; hastily.

The mind maker not that benefit it should of the information it receives from civil or natural histories, in bringing too forward or too slow in making observations on the particular facts recorded in them.

Locke.

Had they, who would persuade us that there are innate principles, confedered separately the parts out of which these prophecies are made, they would not perhaps have been so forward to believe they were true.

7. Antecedent; anterior; opposed to pofterior.

Let us take the infant by the forward top; For we are, and on our quick't it decrees

'Th' inaudible and incognizable notes, Seals, etc. we can effect them. Shak'speare.

8. Not behindhand; not inferior.

My good Camilla, She is as forward of all the rest, as She is 't is true of our birth. Shak. Winter's Tale.

F O S T E R. v. a. [from portman, Saxon.] 1. To nurse; to feed; to support; to train up.

Some say that ravens after baldom children. Shak. Our kingdom's earth should not be fertilized.

With that dear blood which it hath cover'd, Shak. That safe wretch, Bred but on limbs, and foster'd with cold dishes, With spices' th' counter'd head. Dryden.

Fostering has always been a stronger alliance than blood.

No more let Ireland beg her harmless nation Foster no venom since that Scott plantation.

Cleveland.

The son of Mulciber,

Found in the fire, and foster'd in the plains, A shepherd and a king at once he reigns. Dryden.

2. To pamper; to encourage.

A prince of great courage and beauty, but fostered up in fold to the hairy father. Sidney.

3. To cherish; to forward.

Ye fostering breeze blow; Ye fostering dewns, ye tender flowers defend.

Thomson.

F O S T E R E . n. f. [from foster.] The charge or nursing of a child.

Some one adjoining to this lake had the charge and fostering of this child. Raleigh's History.

F O S T E R B R O T H E R . n. f. [portman. Saxon.] One bred at the fame pate; one bred by the same foster.

F O S T E R C H I L D . n. f. [porter cib, Saxon.] A child nurfed by a woman not the mother, or bred by a man not the father.

The father children the love and are beloved of their foster-fathers.

Davies on Ireland.

The goddes thus begun'd.

With pleasant stories, his false fosterchild, Adlifon, Foster'dam. n. f. [foster and dame.] A nurse; one that performs the office of a mother by giving food to a young child.

There, by the wall, were laid the martial twins: Intrepid on her feeling dugs they hung; The fosterdam bolt out her famous tongue. Dryden.

F O S T E R E A R T H . n. f. [foster and earth.] Earth by which the plant is nourished, though it did not grow at first in it.

In vain the nourishing grove

Seems fair a while, which is a foster earth;

But when the alien compost is exhaust

Its native poverty again prevails.

Pilpay.

F O S T E R E R . n. f. [from foster.] A nurse; one who gives food in the place of a parent.

In Ireland they put their children to fosterers; the rich men seling, the meaner fort buying the alterage of their children: in the opinion of the Irish, fostering has always been a stronger alliance than blood.

In Ireland fosterchildren do love and are beloved by their foster-fathers, and their legs. more than their own natural parents and kindred. Dav. The Duke of Berague having been so hot and a kind of parent or fosterfather to the kings in his tenderness of age and was sometimes fortunate, did look for aid this time from King Henry. Bacon.

Tyrtelle, the fosterfather of the beant.

Then clenched a hurleth in his horne fit. Dryd.

F O S T E R N U R S E . n. f. [foster and nurse.] This is an improper compound, because foster and nurse mean the same. A nurse.

Our foster-nurse of nature it repels.

The which he lacks. Shakespeare's King Lear.

F O S T E R S E N . n. f. [foster and son.] One fed and educated, though not the born by nature.

Man.
FOU

Mature in years, to ready honours move;
Of celestial seed! O sufferer from foes! Dryd. Virg. Faud. A.D. 16, 17 [French]. In the art of war, the first in the manner of a well, scarce more than ten feet wide and twelve deep, dug under some work or fortification, and charged with barges or sacks of gunpowder to blow it up, and covered over with earth.

Didi. Fought. The pretense and participle of fight.
Thou art unknown to me, thou art fought well.
When Roperd, and who were British born. Dryd. Fought. [The passive participle of fight. Rarely used.] Confefted; defpured by arms.

On the fought field Michael and his angels, prevalent Encamp'd, in their watch round. Churcubick waving fires. Milton's Paradise Lost.

FOUL. adj. [Stuck, Gothick; saw, Saxon.]
1. Not clean; filthy; dirty. Through most of its significations it is opposed to fair.

My face is foul with weeping. Job xvi. 16.
It is monstrous labour when I waft my brains, And it grows funder. Shaksp. Antony and Cleopatra.

2. That can travel in steep and foul ways; ought not to fay that he cannot walk in fair. Tllidole.

The dream is foul with frights. Of rufhing home caufing much rain. Addifon.

3. Impure; polluted; full of filth.

With foul mouth, And in the winces of his proper ear, To call him villain. Shaksp. Mefiant for Mefiant.

Kill thy physician, and the fea below. Upon the foul diseafes. Shaksp. King Lear.

Intemperance and fentiment debate men's minds, edging their spirits, and make them grofs, foul, fictious, and uneafie. Tllidole.

3. Wicked; deteftable; abominable.
Jefus rebuked the foul spirit. Mark, i. 25.
The heart foul readings and vile flatlers. Shaksp. Tempfe.

The two fad beauties of noble gentletry. Shaksp. Romeo and Juilet. This is the goofteft and most irrational imputation, as well as the fouleft of adulteries, that can be imagined. Hales.

Satire has alfo done among the reft, And is the boldeft way if not the best, To tell men truly of their foul faults, To laugh at their vain deceit, and vain thoughts. Dryden.

4. Not lawful; not according to the eftablifhed rules.
By foul play were we haff'd there, But luckier was the king, and the fad. Shaksp. Tempfe.

5. Hateful; ugly; loathome.
'Th' other half did woman's shape retake, Most loathfome, filthy, foul, and full of vile disdain. Fairy Queene.

Hath thou forgot The foul witch Syconas, who with age and envy Was grown into a hoop? Shaksp. Tempe.

Foul fights do overthrone difpleafes, in that they excite the manner of foul things than in the immediate objects; and therefore, in pictures, those foul fights do not much offend. Bacon.

All thou thinkest to be foul and difgraceful in nature, are not really so in themselves, but only relatively.
More.

Disgraceful; fhameful.
Too well I fee and rue the dire event, That with foul treach'ry and foul defeat Hath loft us bear. "Shaksp. "A fortunate Paradise Lost."

Who fcorched them to that foul revolt,Milt. Reafon half extinct.

Or innocent, till ufeful approving, fees The foul disorder. Thomson's Spring.

7. Coarse; gross.
You will have no notion of delicacies if you table with them; they are all for rank and foul feeding, and foul the bell provifions in cooking. Peilion.

8. Full of gros humours, or bad matter; wanting purgation or mundification.
You perceive the body of our kingdom, How foul it is; what rank diseases grow, What foul and impure thoughts have made the heart of it. Shaksp.

9. Not bright; not fereen.
Who's there befide foul weather? One minded like the weather, most inquity. Shaksp. The Comedy of Errors.

Be fure not foul, or rain or thine, The joys I have profecd, in fpite of fate are mine. Dryden.

10. With rough force; with unfeafonable violence.
So in this throng bright Sacharifs forb'd, Opp'd by fuch as thofe who thefe to be her guard: As fhips, though never fo obfervant, fall foul in a tempef on their admirals. Waller.

In his faiies their men might foul fall foul of each other.
The great art of the devil, and the principal decet of the heart, is to keep foul with God himfelf, white foul fal on, but the other two did fally.

11. [Among feamen.] Entangled; as, a rope is foul of the anchor. To foul, a. [Julian, Saxon.] To daub; to bemire; to make filthy; to dirty.

Sweep your walks from autumnal leaves, let the worms draw them into their holes, and form your garden. Solomon.

While Talsus all his ordaneous feaures, To foul the earth he fcludly flatters. Swift.

She felf a thmick, do in one hour than the kitchen-wait'd doth in a week. Swift's Direct, to Serv.

Fou'd placed. adj. [foul and fated.] Having an ugly hateful vitaige.

It black; and eftou'd foul'd leprofy. Shaksp. Foul'd adj. [from foul.] 1. Filthily; naffily; odiously; hatefully; scandalously; difgracefully; shamefully.
We in the world's wide mouth Live scandaliz'd, and foully spoken of. Shaksp.
The letter to the protector was guided with other than foul words. Shaksp. Foul'd adj. [from foul.]

2. Filthily; naffily; odiously; hatefully; scandalously; disgracefully; shamefully.
We in the world's wide mouth Live scandaliz'd, and foully spoken of. Shaksp.
The letter to the protector was guided with other than foul words. Shaksp. Foul'd adj. [from foul.]

In foul'd d'crap, Approach the fequeftr'd infant. Vour more enforcement shall acquittance me From all the impure blasts and ftones thereof. Shaksp.

3. Foulmouthed. adj. [foul and mouth.] Scurrilous; habilitated to the use of opprobrious terms and epithets.
My Lord, he speaks most vilely of you, like a foulmouth'd man as he is, and foul he would confider you. Shaksp. Henry IV.

It was allowed by every body, that in foulmouth'd a witness never appeared in any caufe. Addifon.

My reputation is too well eftablisht in the world to receive any hurt from such a foulmouth'd foundled as he. Arbauton.

4. Pollution; impurity.
It is no vicious bluf, murder, or foul's. No unhatch'd life, or diuorn'd rep've, That hath depriv'd me of your grace and favour. Shaksp.

There is not to chafe a nation as this, as to be free from all pollution of foul's. It is the virgin of the world. Ercin.

3. Hatefulnes; atrociousnes.
Confuf, you are too mild. The foulmouth'd of some fable takes thence all mercy. Ben Jonfon.

It is the wickednes of a whole life, difcharging all its falls and faults with one quality, as into a great fink or common fwer. Swift.

4. Ugliness; deformity.
He by an affeotion sprung from exceffive beauty, found not defects in horrible foul's. Sidney.

He's fallen in love with my anger. Shaksp. As you like it.

The fury laid aside. Her looks and limbs, and with new methods tried. The fouldiers of th' internal form to hide. Dryden.

5. Dishonesty; want of candour.
Pity is opposed to hypocrisy and insincerity and all falfehoods or foulmouth'd epithets, especially to that perforated devotion, under which any kind of impiety is wont to be difguifed. Hammond.

FOUND. The pretense and participle passive of foul.

I am ftood of them that staid not for me: I am found of them that fought me not. Isra. iv. 13.

Authors now fhad, as once Achilles founds. The roll is mortal if a part's undone. Young.

To FOUND. w. a. [funders, Latin; fander, French.]

1. To lay the basis of any building: It fell not; for it was founded upon a rock. Matthew. It hath fucceeded it upon the lees, and eftablihed it upon a higher ground. Exe. xx. 2.

2. To build; to raife.
These tunes of reafon are Amphion's lyre, Whereas he did the Theban city found. Dryvif. Sir Giovanni being taken, and longe Fides, Nomentum, Bola with its fate found, And rafe Cebalton tow's on rocky ground. Dryden.

3. To eftablish; to erect.
This alfo shall they gain by their defign: In the wide wildernes, there they fhall found Their government, and their great femple chufe, Through the twelve tribes, to rule by laws ordain'd. Milton.

He foun'ded a library, gathered together the books of the kings and prophets. 2 Mar. lii. 13.

4. To give birth or original to; as, he founded an art; he founded a family.

5. To raife upon, as on a principle or ground.
Though some have made ufe of the opinion of fome fchooleman, that dominion is founded in grace; were it admitted as the moft certain truth, it could never warrant any foul fanguine manner.

Decay of Pity.

A right to the ufe of the creatures is founded originally in the right a man has to fatisfy. Locke.

Pity is funded on a defire of putting on them who has a right by that contral. Locke.

The reputation of the fild they found upon the ignorance of their times. Pope's Preface to the flakes.

6. To fix firm.

Fiance is escap'd.
—Then comes my fit again: I had elfe been perfect. Whole as the marble, founded as the rock. Shaksp.

To FOUND. w. a. [funders, Latin; fander, French.] To form by molting and pouring into moulds; to caff.

A fcornd multitude
With wondrous art foun'd the muffy ore,
Severing each kind, foun'd from the bullion dras. Milton.

FOUNDER, m. f. [foundation, French.]

1. The basis or lower parts of an edifice.
The flanclfees of hous, the goodnes of trees, when we behold them, delighteth the eye; but that foundation which beareth up the one, that root which miniftreth unto the other nourishment, is in the bow Hof the earth concealed. Holder.

That is the way to make the city flat, To bring the roof to the founder.

To buy a. Shaksp. Coriolanus.

O love, I think, Foundations by the wrested; fuch, I mean, Where they should be relieved. Shaksp. Coriolanus, I draw a line along thofe.

1 ləy
Men of distinction, whom people in power may with little ceremony load, as heavy, as they please, drive their latest thoughts into the deepest roads, without danger of fundering or breaking their backs, and will be sure to find them neither rife nor vicious.

To FOUNDER, v. t. [from found, French, the bottom.]
1. To sink; to break.
New ships, built at those rates, have been ready to founder in the seas with every extraordinary storm.

Raleigh's Effays.

2. To fail; to miscarry.
In this point
All his tricks founder; and he brings his phylek
After his part, and no of the ap. ty VIII.

Founder, n. s. [from founder.]
A place where figures are formed of melted metal; a casting-house.

Foundling, n. s. [from found of find.]
A child exposed to chance; a child found without any parent or owner.
We, like baffards, are laid abroad, even as foundlings, to be trained up by grief and sorrow. Sidney.

I pass the foundling by, a race unknown, At doors expos'd, whose matrons make their own, And into noble houses, to the barboury of civil and unnatural parents.
Addison.

The goddes long had mark'd the child's diffefs, And long had fought his full frings to RED.
She prays the gods to take the foundling's part.
To teach his hands some beneficial art.
Gay.

Foundress, n. f. [from founder.]
1. A woman that founds, builds, establishes, or begins anything.

2. A woman that establishes any charitable revenue.
For of their order he was patroniz'd, Alas Clarissa was their chief founder. Falry Q.

For zeal like hers, her servants were to know;
She was the fish, where need requeit to go;
Hereof the foundlings, and attendant too. Dryden.

FOUNT, n. s. [from, Latin, to give.
FOUNTAIN. n. a. [foun, French.]
1. A well; a spring.
He fet before him bread,
A table of cattell's meat.
Amorbid fruits, fetched from the tree of life;
And from the fount of life amorphib drink. Milton.

2. A small bafon of sprining water.
Proofs as clear as fount in July, when
We see each grain of ravel. Shaksper.

Can a man drink better from the fountain foonly passed with marble, than when it flows over the green turf? Taylor.

Narcifis on the gracy verdure lies;
But whilst within the crystal faunt he tries
To quench his heart, he feels new heart arife.
Add.2.

3. A jet; a fpout of water.
Fountain I intend to be of two natures: the one that sprinketh or spouteth water; the other a fair receipt of water, without fish, or slime, or mud.

Bacon.

The head or firit spring of a river.
All actions of your peace are so a piece, as waters keep the tenor of their fountains; your compofition is general, and has the fame effect as well on enemys as friends.

Dryden.

Original; firft principle; firft caufte.
Almighty God, the fountain of all goodnes.

Common Prayer.
You may reduce many thousand bodies to these few general figures, as unto their principal heads and fountains.

This one city may well be reckoned not only the fontain of trade and commerce, not only the fountain of habits and fashions, and breed, but of morally good or bad manners to all England.

Spratt's Sermons.

FOUNTAINLESS. adj. [from fountain.]
Having no fountain; wanting a spring.

So large
The project was, that here and there was room
For barren fentence fountainless and dry.
Milton.

FOUNTFULL. adj. [fount and fall.]
Full of springs.
But when the fountfull Ida's top they felt'd with usual height.

All felt upon the high-hair'd oaks.
Chapman.

To FOUNT, v. a.
To drive with, covered impetuosity.
A word out of use.
We pronounce, by the confedion of strangers, as fountfull and more fountfull than any of the northern nations, whom weep their out of the throat of fat and full spirits.
Candem.

FOUR, adj. [peepen, Saxon.]
Twice two, but as mild as the bath was cold.
Myself the fifth.
Pipp's Offisy.

FOURBE. n. f. [French.]
A cheet; a tricking fellow.
Not in use.
Jove's envoy, through the air.
Brought to fmal f PIDC a fmall care
Could reach their thoughts, or their rephe dilipab
Thus art a falle impotor, and a fprurce.
Denham.

FOURFO'D. adj. [four and fold.]
Four times told.
He shall reft the lamb fourfold, because he had no pity.

FOURFOOTED. adj. [four and foot.]
Quadruped; having twice two feet.
Augur Astlys, whole art in vain
From light diffufed into the cold and train,
Now beat the head with Notius on the plain.
Dryden.

FOURSCORE. adj. [four and score.]
Having four fides and equal lengths.

1. Four times twenty; eighty.
When they were out of reach turn'd and curd the ocean to Spain, having fouth fourfours of their fhips, and the greater part of their men.
Bacon's War with Spain.

The Chiots were first forne to join, being a commonwealth, maintaining a navy of fourfours fhips.
Sandy.
The Liturgy had, by the practice of near fourfours years, obtained great reftoration from all fester Protestant.
Clarendon.

2. It is used elliptically for fourfours years in numbering the age of man.
At feventeen years many their fortunes feek,
But at fourfours it is too late a train.
Shaksper.

Some few might be of use in council upon great occasions, till after threfcore and ten; and the two late mitlen in Spain were to till fourfours.

FOURSQUARE. adj. [four and square.]
Quadruangular; having four fides and equal lengths.

The temple of Bel was environ'd with a wall carried fourfours, of great height and breadth; and on each fquare certain brazen gates curiously engraven.
Rahel's History.

FOURTEEN. adj. [peopleny, Saxon.]
Four and ten; twice feven.
I am not fourteen peace on the score for beare ale.
Shaksper.

FOURTHENTH. adj. [from fourteen.]
The ordinal of fourteen; the fourth after the tenth.
I have not found any that the fee the ninth day,
Few before the twelfth, and the eye of fame and open before the four dand day.
Brown's Passages.

FOURTH. adj. [from four.]
The ordinal of four; the firit after the third.
A third is like the former: fifty bags.
Why do you show me this? A fourth IS the f tir.
What will the line stretch out to the edge of doom?
Shaksper.

FOURTHLY. adv. [from fourth.]
In the fourth place.

Fourthly, plants have their feed and seminal parts appendent, and living creatures have the vernix membran.
Bacon's Natural History.

FOUR-FOX

FOURWHEELED. adj. [four and wheel.] Running upon twice two wheels.

FOURTRU. n. f. [from quatre, French.] A gun; a word of contempt. Not used.

FOX TAIL. n. f. [foxtail, wild rye, wild oat, etc.] A plant.

FOX TRAP. n. f. [fox and trap.] A gin or snare to catch foxes.

FOX WREN. n. f. [from fox.] A bird.

FOXXIP. n. f. [from fox.] The character or qualities of a fox; cunning; mischievous art.

FRAGILITY. n. f. [from fragile.]

1. Brittleness; capacit to be broken. To make an adjuration with toughens, and let's fragility, decrot bodies in water for two or three days. Beca's Nat. Hlps.

2. Weakness; uncertainty; capacit to be destroyed. Fear the uncertainty of man's fragility, the common misfortune of war, the violence of fortune. Kicelt.

3. Frailty; Hallowen to fault. All could not be right, in such a state, in this lower age of fragility. Watson.

FRAGMENT. n. f. [fragmentum, Latin.] A part broken from the whole; an imperfect piece. He who late a scepter did command, Now grappes a floating fragment to his hand. Dryden. Cowley, in his unfinished fragment of the Davids, has shewn us this way to improvement.

FRAGMENTS. adj. [from fragment.] Composed of fragments. A word not elegant, not life.

She, the is gone; she's gone: when thou knowest this,
What fragmentary rubbish this world is,
Thou knowest, and that it is not worth a thought; He knows it too much that thinks it nothing.

Dana.

FRAGOR. n. f. [Latein.] A noise; a crack; a crash. Not used.

Fur'd by hideous fragors, as before.
The flames descend, they in their breaches roar.

Sandy.

FRAGRANCE. n. f. [fragantia, Latin.] Sweetness of smell; pleasing scent; grateful odour.

Eve reparte his flets,
Veil'd a cloud of fragrant flower, where the flood
Half spead.' Milton's Paradise Lost.

I am more pleased to survey my rows of eol-works and cabbages springing up in their full fragrant and verdure, than to see the tender plants of foreign countries kept alive by artificial heat.

Addison's Spectator.

Not lowlier form'd Narcissus to the eye;
Nor, when a flower could boast more fragrant.

Gibbs.

Such was the wine; to quench whose fervent flame
Scarcely twenty mutes from the living stream.

To cool one cup suffic'd: the goblet crown'd.

Breath'd amastick fragantes around. Pope's Od.

FRAGRANT. adj. [fragrant, Latin.] Odorous; sweet of smell.

Fragrant the fertile earth
After fowls' eyes; and sweet the coming on

Of grateful evening mild. Milton.

The nymph woutf'd it to place
Upon her head the various number,

The flowers, left blooming to her face;

Their fleste fragrant than her breath. Prior.

FRAGRANTLY. adv. [from fragrant.]

With sweet scent.

As the hops begin to change colour, and smell fragrant; you may conclude them ripe. Marlowe.

FRAIL. n. f.

1. A balulet made of rushes.

2. A rush for weaving wattles.

FRAIL. adj. [fragilis, Latin.]

1. Weak.
1. Wea k; easily decaying; subject to ca sualites; easily destroyed. I know my body's to fail a kind, A mple, without any power to keep well. Devitt. When with care we have raised an imaginary treasure of Happenings, we find, at last, that the materials of the structure are frail and perishing, and that the whole fabric is laid in the hands. Rogers.

2. Weak of resolution; liable to err or seduction. The truly virtuous do not easily credit evil that is told them of their neighbours; for if others may deceive them, they may, through speak ill of: man is frail, and prone to evil, and therefore may soon fail in words. Taylor's Guide to Devotion.

3. Weakness, n. f. [from frail.] Weakness, instability. There is nothing among these fraileties and uncertainties of this sublunary world so затtering and unvirtue as the virtue of a coward. Norris.

4. Frailty, n. f. [from frail.] Weakness of resolution; instability of mind, infirmity. Though Page be a seer, sole, and stands so firmly on his wife's frailty, yet I cannot put my opinion to cause. Not should thou have trusted to woman's frailty: Ere I thee, thou to thyself wait cruel. Milton. Nature, she aye fills our weakens, and requires of us no more than we are able to do. Locke.

2. Fault, proceeding from weaknesses; sins of infirmity: in this sense it has a plural.

Love did his reason blind,
And 's the nobl frailty of the mind. Dryd. Kind with In short those frailty, faults excite;
Though the same frailties of the mufe. Dryd. Death, only death, can break the lasting chain; And after, we are, till my cold dust remain. Here all its frailties, all its flames reign, and wait, 'till we join to mix with shine. Pope. We are not only like other men in their frailties and infirmities, might be in some degree excusable; but the complaint is, they are like beehives in all the main and chief articles of their lives. Law.

5. FRAIS/POR: n. f. [French.] Frenchnes; cooleens. A word foolishly innovated by Dryd. Hither in Summer evenings you repair,
To take the baffle of the green sits. Dryd.

6. To frame. v. a. 1. To form or fabricate by orderly conjunction and union of various parts. The double gate he findeth locked fast; The from fand of bound'd ivy, The other all with silver overcast. Spener.

2. To fit to one another. They rather cut down their timber to frame it, and to do necessaries to their convenient use, than to fight. Hwem timber, saw it frame, it, and fit it together. Newman.

3. To make: to compose. Then changing few words most horrible, Thereof did verses frame, Spener. Fight valiantly to-day; And yet I do thee wrong in mind thee of: Poe. And again, in the truest of the firm truth of valor. Shak.

4. To regulate; to adjust. Let us not deceive ourselves by pretending to this excellent knowledge of Christ Jesus our Lord, if we do not frame our lives according to it. Tilston.

5. To form any rule or method by rules or precedent. We art their folio, and, being bird in brooks, Halst not the soft way; but thou wilt frame Thyself forthwith hereafter theirs. Shad. Customus.

6. To form and digest by thought. The most abstruse ideas are only such as the understanding from the understanding; that is, ideas that had either from objects of sense or from their own operations about them. Locke. Full of that frame: his tender frame he be water. And frame his godhead by your matchless charms. Gravel. Urge him with truth to frame his fate replies, And lore him with words, with which he never lies. Pope. How many excellent reafonings are framed in the mind of a man, of wisdom and folly in a length of years. Watts.

7. To contrive; to plan. Unadorned the presentation and illusion to contriving and framing this letter was. Clarendon.

8. To fettle; to scheme out. Though I cannot make true wars, I'll frame convenient peace. Shad. Customus.

9. To invent; to fabricate, in a bad sense: as, to frame a story or lie. Afronemmen, to solve the phenomena, framed to their conceit eccentricities and empires. Bacon. FRAME. n. f. [from the verb.]

A fabric; any thing constructed of various parts or members. If the frame of the heavenly arch should diflodge itself, if celestial spheres should forget their wonted motions, and begin to fall, many things, at any way, as it might happen. Hooker. Cables made of trees upon frames of timber, with turrets and arches, were anciently made of magnificence. Spenser. There are these glorious works, parent of good! Almighty I think this universal frame. Milton. Divine Cecilia came. Inventors of the vocal frame. Dryd. The gate was adaman; eternal frame, Which, how'd by Mars himself, from Indian quarters. Tilton.

The labour of a god; and all along Tought iron plates were cleanced to make it strong. Dryd.

We see this vast frame of the world, and an infinite multitude of creatures in it; all which we, who believe a God, attribute to him as the author. Tilton.

2. Any thing made so as to inflame or admit something else. Put both the tube and the vessel it leaned on, into a convenient wooden frame, to keep them from mishapen. His face was so fearfully would deform a frame. Dryd. A globe of glass, about eight or ten inches in diameter, being put into a frame where it may be safely found, round its axis, will, in its turning, bend, where it is against the palm of one's hand. Newton.

Order; regularity; adjusted styes or disposition. A woman, that is like a German clock, Still a repairing, ever out of frame, and never going aright. Your steady foul preserves her frame; In good and evil times the fame. Swift.

Scheme; order. Another party did resolve to change the whole frame of the government in state as well as church, Clarendon.

5. Contra-vance; projection. In the Bahar, Whole spirits toil in frame of villainies. Shad.

6. Mechanical construction. Shape; form; proportion. A bear's a savage beast, Whelp'd without form, until the dam Had taught it into wilder sense. Huch. Frame.

7. From frame; pamphlet; Saxon; Maker; former; contriver; schemer. The forgan of his own fate, the frame of his fortune, should be improper, if actions were pretended to the law. Hammond.

There was want of accurateness in experiments in the first original frame of those metals. Alchymists.
lawyers by the name of a tenure in frank ammene, or frankmisme, which, according to British, is a tenure by divine service.

FRANKINCENSE. n. f. (frank and incense;
so called perhaps from its liberal distribution of odour.)

Frankincense is a dry resinous substance in pieces or drops, of a pale yellowish white colour; a strong fumel, but not disagreeable, and a bitter, acrid, and perishing taste. It is very inflammable. The earliest histories inform us, that frankincense was used among the sacred rites and facricates, as it continues to be by many parts. We are still uncertain of the place whence frankincense is brought, and as to the tree which produces it. Hill.

Take unto thee sweet spices, with pure frankincense.

In Dioscorides record of frankincense gotten in India.

Black when only will in India grow,
And ous'ous frankincense on the Sabean

Drieden's Virgil.

Cedar and frankincense, an ous'ous pile,
Flam'd on the hearth, and wide perfumed the life.
Pope.

FRANKLIN. n. f. [from frank.]
A reward; a baiiiad of fand. It signifies originally a little gentleman, and is not improperly Engllished a gentleman servant. Not in use.

A factious court they see,
Both plain and pleasant to be walked in,
Where doth meet a frankin fair and free.

Fairy Queen.

FRANKLY, adv. [from frank.]
1. Liberally; freely; kindly; readily.

Oh, were it but my life,
I'd throw it down for your deliverance;
And, as it was a pin.
Shaks. Me Frosh. for Meas.

2. Without constraint.

When the Conde duke had some entreaty with the duke, in which he made all the provisations of his sincere affection, the other received his protestations with all contempt; and declared, with such a profound contention, that he would have no friendship with him.

Tom made love to a woman of fents, and always trained her to such during the whole time of court-ships his natural temper and good breeding himdered him from doing any thing disagreeable, as his ferracity and frankness of behaviour made him conceived to be a stranger in the same manner
he intended to do afterwards.

Addison's Guardian.

2. Liberality; bounteouosire.

He delivered with the frankness of a friend's tongue, word by word, what Kalendar had told him to relate in the Strange story.

The thrift men that ever were, have had all openness and frankness of dealings, and a name of secrecy and veracity.

Bacon.

FRANKPLEDGE. n. f. [frankplegion, Latin;}

Vol. L

of frang, i. e. liber & plege, i. e. falsi juifer.] A pledge or surety for freemen.
For the ancient custom of England, for the prevarication of the public peace, was, that every freeborn man at fourteen years of age, religious persons, clerks, knights, and such like, having no bonds excepted, should find security for his fidelity to the crown, or else be kept in prison: when it became customary for a certain number of neighbouring to be bound for one another, to see each man of their pledge forthcoming at all times, or to answer the tranfgref-

This was called frankpledge, and the circuit to which it was related called deinceam, because it commonly confined to ten households; and every particular person, thus mend, was called deinceamier.

This custom was so strictly observed, that the sheriffs, in every county did from time to time, take the oaths of young ones as they grew to the age of fourteen years, and fee that they combined in one deinceam or other: this branch of the sheriff's authority was called usu'us frankplegion, view of frankpledge.

FRANTICK. adj. [corrupted from phremetick, phrenetick, Lat.френтик, френетик],
1. Mad; deprived of understanding by violent madness; outrageously and turbulently mad.

Far off, he wonders what makes him mad;
Of Bacchus' merry fruit they did invent,
Or Cynic's franketick rites have made them mad.

Fairy Queen.

2. Transported by violence of passion; outrageous; turbulent.

Exerting in the frantick term of their minds,
The greatest passions in the world, to be
Mad; and the highest willom foolishness.

Hooker.

To such height their franketick passion grew,
That both love, both hatred to destroy.
Dry. She tears here, and, frantick in her griefs, Calls out on Lucia.
Addison's Cats.

3. Simply mad.

The lover, frantick,
Sees Helen's beauty in the eyes of Egypt.
Shaks.

FRANTICKLY, adv. [from franketick.]
Madly; discretion; outrageously.

Fie, fie, how frantickly I square my tale.
Shaks.

FRATERNITY. n. f. [from frater,
brotherly; pertaining to brothers; becoming brothers.

One shall arise
Of proud ambitious party; who, not content
With fair equality, from fraternites.

Will arrogate dominion undeserved,
Over their brethren.

Addison's Guardian.

2. Fraternal; friendly.

The admiralities, fraternitis or patronal, of his fellow Christians, or of the governors of the church, then more publick rebellions; and upon their unfaithful and untruthful, the confines of the church, until he and returned.

Hammond.

Fraternal.

With all the strength and heats of sequence,
Fraternities, and friendship can inflame.

Addison.

FRATERNITY. n. f. [from frater,]
In a brotherly manner.

1. The state or quality of a brother.

2. Body of men united; corporation; society; association; brotherhood.

Tis a necessary rule in alliances, societies, and fraternities, and all manner of civil contracts, to have regard to the humour of those we have to do with.
F R E.

Hell, their fit habitation, fraught with sin,
Unquestionable, the house of woe and pain. Milton.
Abdallah and Belfors were so fraught with all kinds of knowledge, and possessed with a voluble passion for each other, that their foliation never lay heavy on them.
Addison.

Fraught, n. s. [from the participle.] A freight, a cargo.
Yielded up, oh, love, thy crown and parted throne,
To tyrannous lust to boist, with thy fraught.
For 'tis of apishc' tones.
Shakesp., Otello.
The bark that all our blessings brought.
Chagr'd with thyself and James, a double royal.
Dryden.

To Fraught, v. o. [for frebye, by corruption.] To load; to crowd.
Hence from my fight:
If after this command thou freu or the count
With thy unworshipful, thou by D., Shakesp., Cymb.

Fraughtage, n. s. [from fraught.] Lading; cargo. A bad word.
Our fraughtage, Sir,
I have convey'd aboard.
Shakesp., Comedy of Err.

Fray, n. s. [for fray, to fright, French.] A battle; a fight.
Tells that, on that on ever blessed day,
When Christian swords with Persian blood were dy'd,
The forlorn prince Tamerlaine from that fray
Has celebrated in forfeit wides with Alfe. After the bloody fray at Wakefield fought.
Shakesp., Henry VI.

He left them to the fate in bloody fray,
To toil and struggle through the well-bought day.
Pope.

2. A duel; a combat.
Since, if we fell before thy appointed day,
Nature and death continue long their fray.
Denham.
The beater Piss or def't the day
With Sparta's king to meet in single fray.
Pope.

3. A bolt; a quarrel; a riot of violence.
Then full-burnt, they have the rage of man and boy.
With a red voice, and turn two mining steps
Into a manly fright; and speak of freye,
Like a fineハウリング youth.
Shakesp., Henry VI.

1. To fright; to terrify.
The panther, knowing that his spotted hide
Doth please all beasts, but that his looks them sry,
Within a brush his dreadful head doth hide,
To let them gaze, while he on them may prey.
Spenser.

So diversely themselves in vain they fray,
Wilt with some more bold to measure him and sprey.
Spenser.

Fraying are thought to be fray'd with the motion caused by mice upon the water.
Bacon.

Their wheels proceed on a carpet of fox, on fuch furious minds as have not light and vigour to fray them away.
Gov. of Tong. (2.

[fray, French.] To rub.

Freak, n. s. [reek, German; facry, petulant; poy, Saxo, fugitive.]
1. A fudden and caufeful change of place.
2. A fudden fancy; a humour; a whim; a capricious prank.
Of! but a fear the tickle freke, quoth the freke.
Of fortune, and the odds of arms in field.
Fairy Q.

They with their peculiar motion and position of a foul radical head, the dittemer is incurable.
L'Estrange.
She is reliefs and peevish, and sometimes in a freak will instantly change her habitation. Speller.

To vex me more, he took a freak.
To fill my tongue, and make me speke.
Swift.

To Freak, v. o. [A word, I suppose, Scotch, brought into England by T. benofon.] To vanegate; to cheeqee.
There furry nations harbou're.
Sables of great black, and dark embroidered,
Or beaufeous, freek'd with many a mingled hue.
Thomson.

Freakish, adj. [from freak.] Capricious; humourous.

May be a question, whether the wise or the

F R E.

Why, Sir, I pray, are not the streets as free.
For me as for you? Shaks, Taming of the Shrew.
Delaming as impure what God declares.
Pure; and commands to come, leaves free to all.
Million.

To gloomy ears my thoughts alone are free,
Ill the gay spots with troubd thought's agree.
Pope.

5. Licentious; unrestrained.
O conspiracy!
Sham't thou to these thy dangour bow by night,
When evils are molt free? Shaks.
Physicians are too oft on the subjects, in the conversation of their friends.

The crickets have been very free in their confuits.
None.

I know there are to whole profoundous thoughts Thos freer beauties, ev'n in them, feem customs.
Pope.

6. Open; ingenuous, frank.
Cathō! I have doun within my heart:
Will you be free and cand to your friend? Oroon.

7. Acquainted; conversing without reference.
'Tis not to make me jealous,
To say my words are well, loves company.
Is free of speech, sing's, plays, and dances well.

Where virtue is, that make more virtuous, Shaks.
Being one day very free at a great feast, he suddenely broke forth into grace and gracefulness.
Hastwell.
Free and familiar with misfortune grow.
Be us'd to forrow, and inord to worse.
Pope.

8. Liberal; not parsimonious; with of.
Glother too, a very free and free.
O'carrying your free purses with large fins.
That feeks to overthrow religion.
Shaks.

No statute in his favour says,
How free or fmal flay I the day's
I, who at sometimes spend at others faye.
Pope.

Alexandrian verses, of twelve syllables, should never be allowed but when for a remarkable beauty or propriety in them stoney for the liberty: Mr. Dryden has been too free of them in his latter works.
Pope.

9. Frank; not gained by importunity; not purchased.
We wanted words to express our thanks: his noble free offers let us nothing to fay.
Beaco.

10. Clear from diftres.
Who seldom suffers, suffers melt th' mind.
Leaving free things and happy things behind.
Shaks.

11. Guileless; the truth.
Who doth not to do ill, yet fears the name.
Shaks.' Winter's Tale.

12. Exempt; with of; anciently; more properly from.

They are such allow'd informsities, that honestly
Is never free of.
Shaks.' Winter's Tale.

Who do not to do ill, yet fears the name.
Shaks.

And free from confidences, is a fave to fame.
Dryn.

Let envy, then, those crimzes within you fee,
From which the happy never must be free.
Dryn.

Their friends around,
Free from the names, graze the flowly ground.
Dryn.

The will, free from the determination of such desires, is left to the pursuit of sweet satisfactions.
Locke.

13. Involved with franchises; poofing any thing without vaffalage; admitted to the privileges of any body: with of.
He therefore makes all lords of every fect.
Shaks.

Their several kinds alike, and equally prote.
Dryn.

What doth thou make a shipboard? To what end
Art thou of Bethlehem's noble college free?
Stark-faring mad, that thou shouldst tempt the fce?
Dryn.

14. Without expence; by charity, as a free-school.
To Free, v. a. [from the adjective.]
1. To fet at liberty; to rescue from slavery or captivity; to manumit; to loofe.

The child was prisoner to the womb, and is

By
By law, and process of great natural thence fread' d and enfranchis'd; not a party to fher the king, nor guilty of,
If may be, the trefpafs of the queen.
Shaks.
He recovered the temple, free'd the city, and upheld laws to such an end; as to the Men. 2.
Can't thou no other matter understand,
Then him that free'd thee by the preet's wand?
Dryd.

Should thy coward tongue
Spread its cold poison through the martial throng,
My vain thin revenge to bafe a part,
And free the soul that quivers in thy heart.
Pope.

To bid him clear from any thing ill: with of or from.

It is so marv'lious, that he could think of no better way to be free' d of these inconveniences the paffions of those meetings gave him, than to difturb them.
Clarend.

Fre'd Eymanianus from the foaming boar.
Dryd.
Our land is from the rage of giants, free'd.
Dryd.

To clear from impediments or objections.
The chafe Sisyllia shall your rage convey,
And blood of o'er victim's free the way.
Dryd.

Under it was the fight, but happening to his prey,
By force the furious loves free'd his way.
Dryd.

This matter-key
Frees every lock, and leads us to his perion.
Dryd.

4. To banish; to send away; to rid. Not in use.

We may again
Give to our tables meat, sleep to our nights,
Free from our feas and banquets bloody knives.
Shaksp.

Never any fabbath of release
Could free his travels and afflictions deep.
Dante.

5. To exempt.
When a boar is dead is free'd from fin.
Rom. vi. 7.

FREEDOM. n. f. [free and man.]
A slave
manumitted. Libertus.
The freedman sells, and will be prefer'd;
Firft comes, the more, the less he cries.
Dryd.

FREEDOM. n. f. [from freehold.]
1. Liberty: exemption from servitude.
The laws themselves do so greatly rage at, as malt reguguant to their liberty and natural freedom.
Spen. on Irland

O freed'm! first delight of human kind!
Not that which bondmen from their masters find,
The privilege of dotes, yet not infirm,
Their names in this or o'other Roman tribe:
That false enfranchisement with ease is found:
Slaves are made citizens by turning round.
Dryd.

2. Privileges; franchises; immunities.
By our holy fabbaths have I sworn.
To have the due and forfand of my kind:
If you deny it, let the danger light.
Upon your charter, and your city's freedom.
Shaks.

This prince shut freedom's doors to strangers, so as to become citizens of any nation with the title,
Which very much increased the power of the people.
Swift.

4. Exemption from fate, necessity, or pre-determination.
I can't much change
Their nature, and provoke the high decrees
Unchangeable, eternal, which ordain'd
Their freedom; they themselves ordain'd their fall.
Milton.

In every fin, by how much the more free will is in its choice, by so much is the act the more lawful; and whereas there is nothing to impotence, urge, or provoke the will to any end, there is so much an higher and perfecter degree of freedom about that act.
Doubt.

5. Unenfranchis'd.
I will that all the fheads and fabbaths shall be all days of immunity, and freedom for the Jews in my realm.
Mac. 10.

The fate of being without any particular evil or inconvenience.
The freedom of their fate lays them under a greater necessity of always chewing and doing the same things.
Law.

6. Ease or facility in doing or showing any thing.
Freed'm'ed. adj. [free and fast.]
Not restrained in the march.

We will letters put upon this fear.
Which now cannot be freed'md.
Spen. Hamlet.

Freed'm'ed. n. f. [free and born.]
Not a slave; inheriting liberty.
O benefic, to support a tyrant's throne,
And crown your freedman brethren of the world.
Dryd.

I shall speak my thoughts like a freedman,
Such things; perhaps it doth not Dutch commentator understand, and I am sure no Frenchman don't.
Dryd.

Shall freedmen men, in humble awe,
Submit to ferrv flame.
Who from content and custom draw,
The same right to be rule by law,
Where kings pretend to speak freely, as not so much as to tell a friet what it is o'cock for another.
South.
The reader may pardon it, if he please, for the freedom of the controversy.

3. Generosity; liberality.
I hope it will never be said that the laity, who by the clergy are taught to be charitable, shall in their confessions exceed the clergy itself, and their sons, in spirituality of giving.

FRESCHOOL. n. f. [free and school.]
A school in which learning is given without pay.

This is a civil education to the youth of this land in the time to come. provision was made by another law, that there should be one free school at least erected in every diocese.

FREIGHT. n. v. a. preter. freighted; freight; freight'd, which being now used as an adjective, freighted is adopted. [fretter, French.]

1. To load a ship or vessel of carriage with goods for transportation.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.

FREIGHT. n. f. [free and stane.]
Stone commonly used in building.
The painful husband, plowing up his ground,
Shall find no fret, no fret, in both pikes and shield,
And empty Helm under his hollow sound.
M. 6. 1. 1.

Fright. adv. [from fret.] Adorned with rafted work.
Frighten, m. f. [from fright.] Capacity of being easily reduced to powder.
Frightful, frightfully, and power to draw iron, are qualities to be found in a loadstone. Locke.
Frightful adj. [frightful, French; frightful, Latin.] Easily crumbled; easily reduced to powder.
Fright. n. f. [from frighten.] A corruption of err, Fr.
A religious; a brother of some regular order.
Holy Franciscan friar! brother! h0! Shakespeare.
All the priests and friars in my realm.
In procession figure their beloved priest. Shakespeare.
He's but a friar, but he's big enough to be a pop.

Frielike adj. [from friar.] Monastic, unskilled in the world.
Their frielike general would the next day make one holyday in the Christian calendar, in remembrance of the thousand Hungarian martyrs killed in the Turks. Knollet.
Frielike adj. friar and like. Like a friar, or man untaught in life.
Seek not proud riches, but such as thou may'st get jutly. Coriol. and Scurf, in a corner. Shakespeare.
Frielike n. m. friar and corn. A plant. It agrees with arum, from which it differs only in having a flower resembling a cowl.
Frielike n. m. from friar.] A monastery or convent of friars.
Frielike adj. Like a friar.
Francis Cornfield did scratch his elbow when he had sweetly invented to signify his name, St. Francis, with friars, St. Francis, from a picture in London's Tomb. Shakespeare.
Frielike vb. n. To trifle.
Though cheats, yet more intelligible than those that with the star do frolick. Hudibras.
Frielike n. m. from the verb. A trifle.
A frikker is one who provokes capture for the woman, and dreads her content.
Spiller.
Fricasee n. m. [French.] A dish made by cutting chickens or other small things in pieces, and dressing them with strong sauce.
Oh, how would Homer praise their dancing dogs, their thiking sheeves, and fishty frogs of York. Boys with chamber chuck'd at Newbury. King.
Fricate n. m. friate, Latin. The act of rubbing one thing against another.
Gentle frications drawneth forth the nourishment, by making the parts a little hungry, and heating them: this frications I wish to be done in the morning. Bacon's Natural History.
Religious or uncues bodies, and such as with flame, attract vigorously, and mix thereof without frication, as good hard wor', which will convert the needle almost as effectively as the loadstone. Brown.
Firconic n. m. [from ficin, Fitz. and fiela, from ficin, Latin.] The act of rubbing two bodies together.
Do not all bodies which abound with terrestial parts, and especially with sulphurous ones, emit light as often as other parts are sufficiently agitated.

whether the agitation be made by heat, friction, percussion, paticipation, or by any vital motion? Newton's Opticks.
2. The resistance in machines caused by the motion of one body upon another.
3. Medical rubbing with the fitchbrush or chaps.
Fritizens make the parts more slyth and fall, as we see both in men and in the carrying of horses, for that they draw a greater quantity of spirits to the parts. Bacon.

Friday n. m. [from forge, Sax.] The sixth day of the week, so named from Frigg, a Saxon deity.
And she was not kin to me, she would be as fair on Friday as Helen is on Sunday. Shakespeare.
For Venus, her day, will change her cheer, and fondem shall we see a Friday clear. Dryden.
FRIEND n. m. [from, friend, Dutch; friend, Saxon.] This word, with its derivatives, is pronounced friend, frendly: the i totally neglected.
1. One joined to another in mutual benevolence and intimacy: opposed to foe or enemy.
Friends of my soul, you twain Rule in this realm, and the god's fate3 sustain. Shakespeare.
Some man is a friend for his own occasion, and will not abide in the day of thy trouble. Ecc. v. 8. God's benediction go with you, and with those. Shakespeare.
That would make good of, and friends of foes. Shakespeare.
Wondet not to see this soul extend The bounds, and seek some other self, a friend, Dryden.
2. One without hostile intentions.
Who comes so fain in silence of the night? Shakespeare.
And what was? your name? Shakespeare.
3. One reconciled to another: this is put by the custom of the language somewhat irregularly in the plural number.
He's friends with Caesar, In state of health thou fally, and thou fay'st free. Shakespeare.
My foe came then into my mind; and yet my mind Was then scarce friends with him. Shakespeare.
If the present, and would make me amiable. But bid her send me hers, and we are friends: Carew.
4. An attendant or companion.
The king ordains his entrance, and adds: regular, furnished by his friend. Dryden.
Favourer; one propitious.
Aurora rising upon pegasus, sheweth her swiftness, and how she is a friend to poetry and all ingenious inventions. P圄cian.
Familiar compellation.
Friend, how came thou in hither? Mat. xxii. 12.
What supports me, do't thou ask? The confidences, friend, I have lost mine eyes otherwise in liberty's defence. Milton.
To FRIEND n. m. [from the noun.] To favour; to befriend; to countenance; to support.
I know that we shall have him well to friend. Shakespeare.
When vice makes mercy, mercy's extended, That, for the fault's love, is still the offender friended. Shakespeare.
FRIEND adj. Well disposed; inclined to love.
Not friended by his wish to your high person, His will is most insalutant, and it stretches Beyond you to your friends. Shakespeare.
FRIENDLY adj. [from friend.] 1. Wanting friends; wanting support; without countenance; defliterate; forlorn.
As I am a woman, friendless, hopeless. Shak. in Henry VIII.

---
The captives Germans of giantick face
Are rank'd in order, and are clad in sizar, Dryden.
Hec tulip no more live without his fierce coat than without his skin.
Addison, Guardian.
See how the double nation lies,
Like a rich coat with skirts of friezes
As if a man were walking pok'd.
Should Bundle bittles up with restraint.
Swift.
FRIEZE. n. f. [In architecture.] A large Frieze. [flat member which separates the architrave from the cornice; of which there are such as many kinds as there are orders of columns
Harris.

No justing fizes.
Buttrice, nor gorge of 'Vantage, but this bird
Hath made his pendant-bed, and procreant cradle.
Shaksp.

Nor did there want
Cornice of frizze with bulky sculptures grand;
The roof was girted gold. Milton's Paradise Lost.
Polydore defied admirably well, as to the practical part, having a particular genius for friezes.
Dryden's Dryas.
FRIEZeD. adj. [from frieze.] Shagged or napped with frieze.

FrieZElike. adj. [from frieze and like.] Refsembling a frieze.

I have seen the figure of Thalia, the comick muse, sometimes with an entire headpiece and a little friendlifte tower, running round the edges of the face, and sometimes with a frieze for the fac-only.

Dryden.

2. Any small vessel on the water.
Behold the water work and play
About her little frieze, therein making way.

Milton.

FRIEGRACTION. n. f. [friega and faction, Latin.] The act of making cold.

To FRIEG, v. a. [pugnax, Saxon.] To terror; to disturb with fear; to shock with fear; to daunt; to dismayer.
This was in the old authors more frequently written o'fray, as it is always found in the Scripture.

Dryden.

Were strongly clamorous in the frightened fields.
Shaksp. Henry IV.

FRIEGID. adj. [friega, and frigidus, Lat.] Causing cold. A word used in science.

Frigidual stems or particles mean those nitrous fults which float in the air in cold weather, and occur freezing.
Quincy.

To Frill, v. a. [frillux, French.] To quack or quiver with cold. Used of a hawk; as the hawk frills.

Def.

FRINGE. n. f. [frigia, Italian; frange, French.] Ornamental appendages added to dress or furniture. It is in conversation used of leof and separate heads.

These offices and dignities were but the facings or fringes of this grandeur.

Neveux. Watson.

The golden fringe e'te get ton the ground on flange,
And drew a precious trail. Dryden. Plead, and Leaf.
The shadows of all bodies, in this light, were boreder'd with this parallel fringes, or bands of coloured light, whereof that which was contiguous to the shadow was broadest and most luminous and that which was remotest from it was narrowest, and so faint as not easily to be distinguished.

To Fringle, v. a. [from the noun.] To adorn with fringes; to decorate with orna-tmental appendages.

Either side of the bank, fringed with most beautiful tails, refuted the sun's dart.
Sidney.
FRI

What does't madman sheen would venture out
When the froth, or haul his cables from the shore?
Dyer, Virg.

Battarian fleets
defraud us of the glittering gory swarms
That leave our froths, and crowd upon our shores.
Thomson.

2. A kind of net. I know not whether Chiefly by the tenting of the Oia,
From the land to low water marks, and having in it a bust or cod with an eye hook; where the fish entering, upon their coming back with the catch, is flut from falling out again.
Curran.

FRI'E'LARY, n. f. [frillitaire, French.]
A plant.

FRI'NANTY, n. f. [frinam, Latin.]
The fever of a man, as the cricket or cicada.

The note of frib antibene is far more thrilling than that of the locust, and its life short.
Browns Vulgar Errors.

FRI'TTER, n. f. [fruitre, French.]
1. A small piece cut to be fried.
Maid, fried, fricassoed, know ye now ye mak'e;
Let shut have one pancake for company false.
Tupper.

2. A fragment; a small piece.
Sects and parties! I have lived to stand in the toart of one that makes fritters of English!
Spenser: Shep,'a料es H ammo Windor.

If you strike a body that is brittle, as glass or sugar, it breaketh not only where the immediate force is, but breaketh all about into shivers, and littles; the motion, upon the pressure, searching all ways, and breaking where it findeth the body weak.
Bacon's Natural History.

The ancient larrain shatters
Wor are all these hearts in flames;
And cut whole giants into fritters,
To put them into amorous vistas.
Haldane.

3. A cheese cake; a wig.
Ainsworth.

To FRI'TTER, v. a. [from the noun.]
1. To cut meat into small pieces to be fried.
2. To break into small particles or fragments.
Joy to great chaos! let division reign!
My racks and tortures loon shall drive them hence,
Break all their nerves, and fret all their fountains.
Dunciad.

How prologues into prefaces decay,
And thes to notes arcs fri'tter'd quite away. Pope.

FRI'VOLOUS, adj. [frivolous, Latin; fribolous, French.]
Slight; trifling; of no moment.

It is frivolous to say we ought not to use bad ceremonies of the church of Rome, and presume all such bad as it pleareth themselves to disbar. Hooker.
These term very frivolous and frivolous, for by the breach of them, little damage can come to the commonwealth.
Spenzer.

She tar'd the brinded lions,
And for thet mountain yard; but at fesh atogl.
The frivolous bolt of Eupid, Milton.

These things which now seem frivolous and flight,
Will be of serious consequence to you,
When they have made you once ridiculous.
Rackham.

All the impeachments in Greece and Rome agreed in a notion of being concerned, in point of honour, to condemn whatever person they impeached, how ever frivolous the articles, or however weak the proofs.
Swift.

It will not defend any mistake, and do not think myself obliged to answer any frivolous objection.
Ardenharn.

FRI'VOLOUSNESS, n. f. [from frivolous.]
Want of importance; triflingness.

FRI'VOLOUSLY, adv. [from frivolous.]
Triflingly, in a trifling weight.

To FRI'VOLIZE, v. a. [from frivol. Fr.] To curl in short curls like nap of frieze.

FRO

'Th' humble shrub
And but, with fried hair implicit.
Milton.
They frizted and curd their hair with hon'ter, Hackswell.

I dofd' my shoe, and swar.
Therein I spyd this yellow frieded hair.
Gay.

FRO. adv. [fro, Saxon.]
1. Backward; regrettively. It is only used in opposition to the word to and fro, backward and forward, and to and fro.

The Carthaginians having spoilt all Spain, root out all that were affected to the Romans; and the Romans, having recovered that country, did cut off all that remained. The Carthaginians to rest them both, and foe, there was scarce a native Spaniard left.
Spenzer.

As when a heap of gather'd thorns is cast
Now to, now fro, before thou'stuall calm,
Together cling, it rolls around the field.
Pope.

2. It is a contraction of from : not now used.

Tom, turn round like grindlebones,
Which they dig out fro' the detes.
For their bains bread, wires, and fulce. Ben Jonson.

FROCK. n. f. [froga, French.]
1. A dres; a coat.

That monster of Tom, is angel yet in this,
That the use of actions fair and good,
He likewise gives a frock or livery,
That apply is put on.
Shakespeare's Hamlet.

Frolicked, as the term of thee.
To wear frocked, with fill of mad.
Adamantian proof.

2. A kind of close coat for men.

I flrip my body of my shepherd's frock.
Dryden.

3. A kind of gown for children.

FROG. n. f. [frogga, Saxon.]
1. A small animal with four feet, living both by land and water, and placed by naturalists among mixed animals, as partaking of beast and fish; famous in Homer's Poem.

There is likewise a small green frog that perches on trees, said to be venomous.

Poor Tom, that eats the swimming frog, the toad, the tadpole.
Shakespeare's King Lear.

Auer is drawn with a pot or urn, pouring forth water, with which shall defend frogs. Racoeom.

2. The hollow part of a horse's hoof.

FROG'BIT, n. f. [frogb and bit.]
In herbe.
Ainsworth.

FRO'GISH, n. f. [frogb and fis.] A kind of fish.
Ainsworth.

FRO'GRASS. n. f. [frogb and grass.] A kind of herb.

FRO'GLETTUCE, n. f. [frogb and lettuce.] A plant.

FROISE. n. f. [from the French frouer, as the pancake is crisped or crimped in frying.] A kind of food made by frying bacon included in a pancake.

FROLICK. adj. [frolifick, Dutch.] Gay; full of levity; full of pranks.

We fearer, that do run
By the triple Heeach's team.

Frolicked, that cannot possess the Following darkness like a dream.
Now are frolick.

Whether, as some fages fang,
The frolick was'd in heath and Spring,
Zephyr with Aurora playing,
As he met her once a Maying:

There on beds of violet blue,
And irises blotter waves too dewy.
Fild'her with thee a daughter fair.
So busom, blithe, and dehoniar.
Milton.

After, the frou of his full-grown fall,
Rowing the Cellick and Jourian fields.
At last betakes him to this ominous wood.
Milton.

The gay, the frollick, and the loud.
Milton.

FROLICK. n. f. [from the adjective.] A wild prank; a flight of whim and levity.

15.
He would be at his frolick once again,
And his pretensions to divinity.
Ricochets.
Alchiblares having been formerly noted for the like frolicks and excursions, was immediately accelerated to his own conclusion.
Wildly.
While rain depends on the penitent cat goes off.
Her frolicks, and pursues her tail no more.
Swift.
To frolick, w. n. [from frolick.]
Frolicksome. adj. [from frolick.] Full of wild gaiety.
Frolicksome, n. s. [from frolicksome.]
Wildness of gaiety; pranks.
Frolickishly. adv. [from frolicksome.]
With wild gaiety.
From prep. [r7am, Saxon and Scottish.]
1. Away; noting privation.
Your flighting Zalema, this very hour
Will take ten thousand subjects from your dryden.
Infects one the barking porter ty'd,
And took him trembling from his for'raign's side.
Dryden.
Clariar drew, with tender grace,
A two-edged weapon from the thinning cage.
Dryden.
What time would spare from flesh receives its date.
Dryden.
3. Nothing procision, defect, or birth.
Thus the hard and stubborn race of man
From the grand rock and stone begin.
Blackmore.
The forge began from love.
Dryden.
Succeeding kings rise from the happy bed. Tronc.
The mienluners from our father and the king.
Shaksp.
5. Nothing abstraction or vacation.
I shall find time
From these enormous flake, and seek to give Leaves their remedies, Shaksp's King Lear.[
Shaksp.
6. With all following noting success.
These motions we must examine from fast to last,
To find out what was the form of the earth. Sconert.
He bid her from time's cease to be contented. Addison.
7. Out of; noting emulsion.
Eternal Father, from his secret cloud
Amitly, in thunder utter'd thus his voice. Milton.
Then pierc'd with pain, the took her haughty
Sight'd her inward soul, and thus she said.
Dryden.
8. Nothing proceeds from premises to inferences.
If an objection be not removed, the conclusion of evidence from the time past to the time present will not be found and perfected.
This is evident from that high and refined morality, which thine forefathers in some of the ancient heavens.
9. Nothing the place or person from whom a message is brought.
The king is coming, and I must speak with him from the bridge.
How now, Shallam, can't thou from the bridge?
Shaksp. Ham. V.
10. Out of; nothing extraction.
From which Methus' shiny shires I came.
Adlison.
Of poor defen'sion.
A great.
11. Because of, Nothing the reason or motive of an act or effect.
You are good, but from a nobler cause; From your own knowledge; but from nature's law. Dryden.
Vol. I.
To FRONT. n. m. To stand foremost.

To FRONT. n. m. To stand foremost.

FROST. n. f. [frosst, Latin; frost, French.] Any external form of medicine to be applied to the forehead, generally composed among the ancients of coolers and hypnoticks.

Quintus, many apply intercepts upon the temples of mastics; fronsales may also be applied. Wiseman.

The torpedo, alive, duplizes at a distance; but after death produces no such effect; which had they retained, they might have supplied opium, and served as fronsales in phrenesis. Brown.

FROSTED. adj. [from frost, Latin.] In botany, the fronsated leaf of a flower grows broader and broader, and at last terminates in a right line: used to express cutting, which is, when the leaves of a flower end in a point.

Frosty. n. f. From frost, French.] The box in the playhouse from which there is a direct line of fire to a front.

How vain are all these glores, all our pains,

Until good fenfe prepare what beauty gains!

That men may fay, when we the frontbox grace,

Behold a fhow, and build a fpleen. Pope.

FROSTED. adj. [from front.] Formed with a front.

Part fronsated brigades form.

FROSTIER. n. f. [frostier, French.] The marches; the limit; the utmost verge of any territory; the border; properly that which terminates not at the sea, but fronts another country.

Draw all the inhabitants of those borders away, or plant garrisons upon all those frontsiers about him.

Sperow on Ireland.

I am my frontier here keep reference.

That little which is left to defend. Milton.

FROSTIER. adj. Borderling; conterminous.

A place lies there on Gallia's utmost bounds,

Where rising fea inftult the frontier grounds. Addison.

FROSTINESS. n. f. [from frofty.] Cold; freezing cold.

FROSTNAIL. n. f. [frost and nail.] A nail with a prominent head driven into the horse's hooves, that it may pierce the ice.

The claws are firft only to hold, for better procefsion; as a horse that is foold with frostnails. Grew's Califol.

FROSTWORK n. f. [frost and wood.] Work in which the finiture is laid on with inequalities, like the dew congealed upon fishes.

The nature of frost is to vary to various figures,Though the fruitfull rains, and the hail composes.

The snowy fieve and curious frostwork these Produce the dew, and thofe the gentle breeze. Blackmore.

FROSTY. adj. [from frofty.] 1. Having the power of congealing; exceed congelation;

2. Without warmth of affection.

Courting, I rather think shou'd utterly Dispirite my work, than praise it frofty. Ben Jonson.

FRONT. n. m. [front, Latin; front, French.] The face.

His front yea three years, and his brow's command. Prior.

They stand front to front, to each other's view.

The other still purf'd as they pursue. Creech.

The pratt virtutes that did thy thought,

Setting the front and bow the bottom glow. Thomfion.

2. The face, in a fance of confen or differe.

like. as, a hardened front; a fierce front.

This is the usual fronte.

3. The face as oppofed to an enemy.

His forward hand, inward to wounds, makes way. Prior.

Upon the fharpe ange of the moft fierce, Daniel.

4. The part or place oppofed to the face.

The access of the town was only by a neck of land: our men had float, that thundert upon them from the rampart in front, and from the garrisons which lay at the back. Bacon.

5. The van of an army.

Twixt hoft and hoop narrow space was left.

A dreadful interval and front to front.

Prelud's, in the tempeft, Milton's Par. Left.

6. The forepart of any thing as of a building.

Both these fides are not only returns, but parts of the front and uniform without, though severally partition within, and are on both fides of a great and proper design of the midle of the front. Bacon.

Palladius advifed the front of his edifice should reflect the South, that in its fift angle it receive the rising fun, and decline a little from Winter fetting thereon. Brown.

The prince approach'd the door,

Paff'd th'off'r the porch, and on the front above

He faw the fato bough. Dryden ors ors

One fees the front of a palace covered with painted pillars of different orders. Addison on Italy.

7. The moft confpicuous part or particular.

To FRONT. n. a. [from the noun.]

1. To oppofe direly, or face to face; to encounter.

You fhall oppofe them in the narrow lane; we will walk lower. If they fcape from your encounter, then they light upon us. Shakes.

2. To oppofe in your thoughts, when you have pull'd out of your head the very tenders of them who may oppofe them, and do divide the fipation. Rowe's Eugene.

I shall front thee, like some fearing thief.

We are only oppo'd about me. Dryden. Dav. Schoflan.

3. To fland oppofed or overarmping any place or thing.

The square will be one of the moft beautiful in Italy when this flavure is ecleated, and a town house built at once end it front the church that stands at the other.

addition if they...

FROST. adj. [hrozer, Dutch, frozen.]

Frozen. This word is not used since the time of Milton.

The parching air

Scott. Burnt froze, and cold performs th'effect of fire.

FROSTY. adj. [from frost, Dutch.] Frozen; congealed with cold. Oblofete. O, my heart is cold as frost from the head. Spenser's Faery.

FROST. n. f. [frost, Saxon.] 1. The laft effect of cold; the power or act of congealing.

This is the flavure of man; to-day he puts forth

The tender leaves of hope, to-morrow blafphem,

And bears his blushing honors thick upon him;

The third day comes a froft a killing froft,

And when he thinks a froft of gold he makes barely

His greatnes is a ripening, nips his root.

And when he falls. Shakespeare's Henry VIII.

When the froft leaves upon wine, only the more warftih parts are congealed: there is a mighty fparce which can retreat into itself, and within its own compafs its fuccefs from the freezing imprefion. South.

2. The appearance of plants and trees fparkling with congealing of dew.

When the other froft leaves upon wine, and still the other froft leaves upon wine. Spenser's Faery.

Their beauty withered, and their verdure loft. Pope.

Frost-bitten. adj. [frost and bitten.] Nipped or withered by the froft.

The leaves are too much frost assistants. Mariner.

Frosted. adj. [from frosted.] Laid on in inequalities like thoce of the hoar froft upon plants.

The rich broafterd fioy unfold,

When rising flow's grow thill with frosted cold. Gay,

Frostily. adv. [from frosted.] 1. With froft; with excefs cold.

2. Without warmth of affection.

Courting, I rather think shou'd utterly Dispirite my work, than praise it frofty. Ben Jonson.

FROSTINESS. n. f. [from frosted.] Cold; freezing cold.

Frost-nail. n. f. [frost and nail.] A nail with a prominent head driven into the horse's hooves, that it may pierce the ice.

The claws are firft only to hold, for better procefsion; as a horse that is foold with frostnails. Grew's Califol.

FROSTWORK. n. f. [frost and wood.] Work in which the finiture is laid on with inequalities, like the dew congealed upon fishes.

The nature of frost is to vary to various figures, though the fruitfull rains, and the hail composes.

The snowy fieve and curious frostwork these Produce the dew, and thofe the gentle breeze. Blackmore.
And therewith all enwrap the nimble thighs
Of his flesh famy fteed.

Fairy Queen.

When wind expir'd from under the seas, as it ceaseth some Refreshing upon the rest, so saith the Astroturbe that TDEC'hight of motions of bubbles, and white circles of fleath.

Dracy's Natural History.

Surging waves against a solid rock,
Though swiftly a stream of spray thin
Vain batt'ry, and in forest bubbles and. Milton.

The wofk fleath forms on the surface, but the pearl lies covered with a mantle of waters.

Glauville.

Black sands, discoloured fleath, and mingled mud arise.

Dryden.

They were the fleath by rating folly mov'd
When it had susp'd: I knew not then, but Yet lend'm mov'd.

Dryden's Aretas.

If now the colours of natural bodies are to be mingled, let waters, a little thickened with soap, be agitated, and after that fleath has insinuated a little, there will appear to one that shall view it, in a manner, various colours every where in the surface of the bubbles; but to one that shall go so far off that he cannot distinguish the colours from one another, the whole fleath will grow white, with a perfect whitened tinge.

Hawks.

While having finished the picture of a hore, excepting the hore fleath about his mouth and his bristle; and after many unsuccessful essays, desiring to do that to his advantage, and in a great thing, a bubble, all befriended with the colours, which unfortunately falling upon the right place, by one bold stroke of chance most exactly supplied the want of skill in the artist.

2. Any empty or senseless shew of wit or eloquence.

5. Any thing not hard, solid, or substantial.

Who careth his veil, pie, and lamb being flesht, Shall twice in a week go to bed without broth.

Tatter.

To Froth, n. [from the nound. To foam; to throw out spume; to generate spume.

He feels within, frothus terrors at his mouth, And churns it through his teeth.

Dryden.

Excess muddles the best wine, and only makes it taste worse.

Grease.

Frothily, adv. [from froth.]

1. With foam; with spume.

2. In an empty trifling manner.

Frothily, adv. [from froth.]

1. Full of foam, froth, or spume.

The sap of trees is of differing natures; some watery and clear, as vines, beeches, pears; some thick, as the mulberries, or pomegranate, and fleshy, as elms; and wine, as cains.

Bacchus.

Behold a fleshy substance rise.

Swift.

2. Soft; not solid; walking.

They're bodies are so folid and hard as you need not fear that burning should make them fleshy.

Bacchus.

3. Vain; empty; trifling.

What's a voluptuous dinner, and the fleshy vanity of discourse that commonly attends them, poisons the stomach.

What is it but a mortification to a man of sense and virtue?

L'Estrange.

Though the principles of religion were never so clear and evident, yet I believe it may be made plain by the same gravel, as the gravit andウィto worth in the world may be abased by being put in a foot's coat.

Tellus.

Frounce, n. A word used by falconers for a differernt, in which white fplet gather the hok's bill.

Skinner.

To Frounce, n. [from the nound.] To frizzle or curl the hair of a horse.

This word was at first probably used in contempt.

Some frounce their curled hair in courtly guise, Some pranke their ruffs, and others timely sight Their gay attires.

Fairy Queen.

Tamed some workke sign must be used, either a Frounce, or an overblowing frounced head.

Ascham.

Thus night oft fees me in thy pale career, 'Till civil soad morn appear;

Not trick'd and frounced so in fue was wont,

Milton.

Frouzy adj. [a cant word.]

1. Foul; moist.

Petitecas in frouncy heath.

Swift.

2. Dim; cloudy.

When first Diana leaves her bed, Vapours such as saints both disilace; A frouncy diry-cooured red Sits on her closely wrinkled face.

Swift.

Froudward, adj. [frangipanis.]

Peevish, ungy, angry; perverse: the contrary of frowardly.

Tempel.

The froward pain of mine own heart made me delight to punish him, whom I esteemed the chiefest in the way.

Swift.

She's not froward, but modest as the dove.

She is not his, but temperate as the moon.

She's ways are crooked, and they froward in their paths.

Pope. 115.

This uniter frozcns, that a froward retention of counsel is as turbulent a thing as innovation, Bacon.

'Tis with froward men, and froward fictions too, as 'tis with forward children: they'll be sooner quitted by fear than by reason.

L'Estrange.

Motions occasion sleep, as we find by the common use and experience of rocking forward children asleep.

Goldsmith.

Frowardly, adv. [from froward.] Peevishly; perversely.

I bid me and was wroth, and he went forwardly in the way of his heart.

S. 1677.

Frowardness, n. f. [from froward.] Peev-shirts; ruffeness.

How many frowardnesses of ours does he foment? how many indignities does he pass by? how many affronts does he put up to our hands?

Swift.

We'll mutually forget.

The warmth of youth, and forwardness of age.

Addis, Cates.

Frower, n. f. [I know not the etymology.]

A clearing tool.

A fower of iron for clearing of laugh.

With will for a faithful, good husbandry hath.

Tatter.

To Frown, n. o. [fruguer, old French, to wrinkle.

Skinner.]

To express displeasure by contrasting the face to wrinkles; to look frown.

Sys, that the frown; I'll fare, the looks as clear.

As morning rain newly melted with dew. Shaksf. Ke. Lear.

They chuse their mignarate;

And such a one as it, who puts his shall, His popular shall, against a grave bench.

The letters in the short story of Caesar's Coriolanus.

How now, daughter, what makes that frownlet on?

You are too much of late in't frown;

Thus was a pretty fellow, when thou hadst no need to care for her frowning, Shaksf. Ke. Lear.

Heroes in animated marke frown.

Pope.

The wood.

Whose shady horror on a living brow
Way'd high, and frown'd upon the stream below.

Pope.

Frown, n. f. [from the verb.]

A wrinkled look; a look of displeasure.

Patience seems more violent; fortune, and bont notable expiation again her frownLet. Knolle.

In his half'stoud' eyes
Sterne vengeance yet and hostile terror land;

His face yet threatening, and his frowned command, Prior.

Frowingly, adv. [from frown.] Sternly; with a look of displeasure.

What, look'd be frowingly?

A contumely, that I should not consider.

Shaksf. Frouny, adv. Mutty; mossy. This word is now not used; but instead of it frowny.

But if they with dry gates should yece, They soon might be corrupted;

Or with the weeds be glutted, Speigs'r Differall.

Froinen, part. p. of frowce.

1. Congealed with cold.

What was the waffe of war, what fierce alarm

Shock Afa's crown with European arms?

Ever both here with the Amurts.

What whole earth is buried by the frozen seas.

Dryden.

Fierce Boreas, with his offspring, isues forth To invade the frozen Zachet of the North.

Dryden.

They warm'd their frozen feet, and dry'd their wet stirrings.

Dryden's Flower and Leaf.

2. Chill in affection.

Who among was the fine frozen knight, frozen in despair; but his armour naturally representing ice, and all his furniture literally anfathing thereto.

Sir Sidney.

Boreas.

Everone beguile of love will foam destroy

And melt that ice to floods of joy.

Cervus.

3. Void of heat or appetite.

Each heart, whereof the motions are saties, Love finds an altar for forbidden fires.

Pope.

F. K. S. Fellow of the Royal Society.

Who works profits.

Shine in the dignity of F. R. S.

Pope.

Fruity, frugifer, Latino. Bearing fruit.

Fruitify.

n. a. [fruicitio, French.] To make fruitful; to fertilize.

The legal levies the loweern rates as vassals which the fun exhibits, which fall down in sweet fruit, and fructify the earth.

Ganville.

Fruitificaciou.s, adj. [from fruitify.]

The act of caufing or of bearing fruit; fecundation; fertility.

Solvit.

That the lap doth powerful rise in the Spring, to put the plants in a capacity of fruitification, he, that heart behold how many gallons of water may be drawn from a birch-tree, and both faster and more

Brown's Solar Exemptions.

Fruitificatus, adj. [from fruiticatus, French; from fruitify.

Fruitful; fertile; impregnating with fterility.

Apples of price, and plentiful fixtures of corn

Glinted as abstract, with fructification.

Fitting congenial sojus, so rich the soil;

So much doth subdue moisture of eau'rous philip.

Clypeus.

Frugal, adj. [frugalis, Latin; frugifer, French.

Thriftly; sparing; parimonious; not prodigal; not profuse; not lavish.

Resolling. I on admiral.

How nature wise and frugal could commit

Such dissenterions, with superfluous hand

So many nobler bounties, and such tender reason to Greater to mankind to his own use.

Milton.

And wing'd purveyors his sharp hunger fed

With fragal strands of fish and slender shorts.

If through webs he shoots his fallen beams;

Fragal of light, in loose and struggling streams.

Subject a drooping day.

Dryden's Virgils.

Fruigate, adv. [from frugal.

Farmoniously; flagantly; thirstily.

Mean time young Fruinate his marriage pens'd,

And frugal red's; the charge to his.

To join his brother's bridal with his own.

Pope.

Fruitification, n. f. [frugali, French; from fruitify.

Thrift; parimony; good husbandry.

As for the general sort of men, fructification may be the cause of drinking water; for that is so small favoring to pay nothing for one's drink.

Bacon.

Fruitage, n. f. [from fruitify., Tho' differriffing virtues, meet in ye.

Waller.

Thus 5 Ma
FRU

FRUETFUL. adj. [fruit and full.] 1. Fertile: abundantly productive; liberal of vegetable produce. If the continued cruel, he could no more sustain his life than the earth remain fruitful in the sun’s continual absence. Sidney.

FRUETFULNESS. n. f. [fruitfulness, French.] 2. Fertility; fecundity; plentiful production. Neither can we admire the same fruitfulness to any part of the earth, nor the same virtue to any plant thereon growing, that they had before the flood. Raleigh’s History.

FRUIT-GROVES n. f. [fruit and grove.] 3. Shades, or close plantations of fruit trees.

FRUIT-TIME, n. f. [fruit and time.] 4. The Autumn; the time for gathering fruit.

FRUIT-TREE, n. f. [fruit and tree.] A tree of that kind whose principal values arise from the fruit produced by it. Lady, by yonder blest moon I vow, That tips with silver all the fruit-trees top, Skel.

FRUMENTACIOUS adj. [from frumentum, Latin.] Made of grain.

FRUMENTY, n. f. [frumentum, corn, Latin.] Food made of wheat baked in milk. To FRUMENTY, a. To mock; to browbeat. Skel.

FRUSTRATE, v. a. [frustrer, French.] To break, bruise, or crush. Ham.

FRUSTRATION, n. f. [frustra, Latin.] Vain; useless; unpromising; without advantage. Their attempts being for frustrate, and the demontonations to the contrary pernicious, it is a marvel that any man should be cautiously inclined to a method that has neither truth nor any honest usefulness in it. Mill.

FRUSTRIOUS adj. [frustra, Latin.] Vain; useless; unpromising; without advantage.
he displeasing.

To disappoint; to balk.

It is an axiom of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustration.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.

To Frustrate, v.

1. To defeat; to disappoint; to balk.

It is an axam of nature, that natural cause cannot utterely be frustrated.
FUL

words and are confidents with other traitors and fugitives there abiding. Spenser on Ireland.
Your royal height is too great and too just, either to want or to receive the homage of such fugitives. Dryden.

3. One hard to be caught or detained.
What made but his can Nature's beauties hit.
Or catch that any fugitive, call'd wit. Harris.
FugiTiveness, m. f. [from fugitiv.] 1. Voluntary fugacity.
That divers fail, emerging upon the analysis of many concrete, are very volatile, is plain from the fugitiveness of fair and of harrams attending in delus. Boile.
2. Intubility; uncertainty.
FUGUE, n. f. [French; from fuga, Latin.]
In music, some point confiting of four, five, six, or any other number of notes begun by some one single part, and then secconed by a third, fourth, fifth and sixth part, if the composition confits of so many;
repeating the same or such like notes, so that the several parts follow, or come in counter another in the same manner, the leading parts still flying by those that follow. Harris.
The reports and fugues have an agreement with the figures in rhetoric of repetition and termination. Spenser on Nature's Natural History.
The skillful organist plays his grave and fancied defect in lofty fugues. Milton on Education.
His volant touch
Infinit through all proportions, low and high,
Fied, and purd'ful tranvici the resulant fogue.
Milton.

Long has a race of heroes fill'd the flag.
That rant by note, and through the gamut rage;
In songs and airs express their martial fire,
Combat in trills, and in a fugue expire. Addison.

Fulciment, n. f. [fulcimen, fulcimento, Latin.]
That on which a body reles, which acts or is added upon at each end, as a balance or a lever.
The power that equiponderates with any weight, has the same proportion unto it, as is there between their several distances from the centre of fulciment. Wilkins.

Fulfil, v. n. [full and fall.] 1. To fill till there is no room for more.
This sense is now not used.
Six gates i'th'city, with many stables,
And correpoling and fullfiling bolic,
With walls, towers, and turrets, and crofts.
2. To anwer any prophecy or promise by performance.
They knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophectcs which are read every sabbath-day, they have fulfilled them in conforming him. Acts, xi. 27.
The fury bash'd them in every other blood;
Then, having fix'd the sight, exulting flies,
And bears full'd h'rite promide to the fakes. Dryden.
3. To give every purpose or design.
Here nature form'd full'd in all her ends.
Milton's Paradise Lost.
4. To anwer any desire by complissance or gratification.
You wounded breath thee droppl'd a tear,
Think for whose sake my breast that would die
And faithfully my lust desir'd full.
As I perform my cred'ral father's will. Dryden's Ode.
5. To answer any law by obedience.
Love waketh no ill to his neighbour, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law. Rom. xiii. 10.
This is my glory account
My exaltation, and my delight:
That thou in us well-plac'd declas'th thy will Full'd, which to full'd in all my bliss. Milton.
FULFR'IGHT, adj. [full and fraught.] Fully pour'd.
The full'd heart is a kind of blow
To mark the fulfright man, the bath end'd,
With some fulpation. Shakespeare's Henry V.

FULGENCry, n. f. [fulgent, Latin.] Splendid, don; glitter.
FULGENC, adj. [fulgent, Latin.] Shining; dazzling; exquisitely bright.
At from a cloud his fulgent head.
And flape with bright, appears. Pope.
The illustrious apparition, full'd and fulgurant as to obscure or extinguish all perspicuity of reason.
Mar's Divine Dial.
FULGID, adj. [fulgidus, Latin.] Shining; glittering; dazzling.
FULGIDE, n. f. [fulgidus, Latin.] Splendour;
dazzling glitter, Ditos.
FULGOUR, n. f. [fulger, Latin.] Splendour; dazzling brightness like that of lightning.
Glow-worms alive project a light in the dark, which fulgerant, notwithstanding, ceaseth after death.
When I set my eyes on this side of things, there shines from them such an intellectual fulgerant, that methinks the very glory of the Deity becomes visible through them. Stiling.
FULGURATION, n. f. [fulgeratio, Latin.]
The act of lightening.
FULHAM, n. f. A cant word for falle dice.
Hammer.
Let vultures skip thy guts, for good and Fulham's head, and high and low beguile the rich and poor. Sheep.

FULIGINEous, adj. [fuligineous, French, French, fulgineus, Latin.] Sooty; smoky.
Burraage hath an excellent spirit to repel the fulgineous vapours of dully melancholy, and so curts, madnesses.
Whereby the earth shoulde be the torch of truth,
he makes her places a fulgineous link of lies.

FULIMARTE, n. f. [This word of which Stimner observeth that he found it only in this passage, seems to mean the fame with float.] A kind of thinkin ferret.
The fichet, the fulimars, and the ferret, live upon the face, and within the breaht of the earth.

FULL, adj. [fulle, Saxox; ool, Dutch.]
1. Replete; without vacuity; having no space void.
Better is an handful with quietness, than both the hands full with travel and vexation of spirit.
Ecc. vi. 6.
Valley full of chariots. Is. 16.
The trees of the Lord are full of sap. Prov.
2. Rich; repleat; abounding.
Abounding in any quality good or bad.
With preception from Strehorl her guard,
He met her full, but full of waecfulness. Sidney.
You should tread a course
Pretty and full of view. Shakespeare's Cymbeline.
Followers, who make themselves as tranquill of the commendation of those they follow, are full of inconvenience: they take but few faiths through want of secrecy, and export honour from a man, and make him a return in envy. Bacon.
That must be our cure.
To be no more a pain, for who would live,
Though full of pain, this intellectual being,
Those thoughts that wander through eternity? Milt.
Goug's full of full and pomp and glee.
Milton.
In that sweet spring, as in bed day,
I turn'd my weary face, but full in vain,
Though full of youthful health and pain. Dryden.
He is full of wants which he cannot supply, and compassest with all infirmities which he cannot remove. Tulliar.
From you bright heven our author frett'd his fire,
And pain'd us; but, oh, that our eyes, inflam'd
Full of that same flame, his tender fencer he warms,
And frames his goddes by your matchless charms.
Graven.
3. Stored with any thing; well supplied with any thing.
Cyon was 20 days was he.
Two ages past, he led the 3rd to fee. Tindal.

Plump; gizated; fat.
A gentleman of a full body having broken his head by a fall, the wound inflamed. Wifeman's Sorg.

Satured; fatfed.
I am full of the burnt offerings of rains. Zos., i. 1.
The alteration of scenes feeds and relieves the eye;
before it be full of the same object. Bacon.

Crowded with regard to the imagination or memory.
Every one is full of the mysteries done by cold baths on decayed and weak constitutions. Swift.

That which flies or makes full; large; great in effect.
Every one is full of his flesh by the after digereth a full meal sooner than any liq

8. Complete; such as that nothing further is desired or wanted.
That day had seen the full accomplishment
Of all his travels. Daniel; Civil War.

Whe. am I, ye gods, But up and enter now into full bliss? Milton.
Being tried at that time only with a proviso, he gave full credit to that proviso, and still gave evidence of his fidelity as full as occasions were offered. Honeyman; Truth. Catblyn.
The reformation of Jesus from the dead hath given the full and perfect law. Tulliar.

9. Complete without abatement; at the utmost degree.
At the end of two full years Pharaoh dreamt.
Georgi.

After hard riding plunged the horses into water, and allow them to drink as they please; but gallop them full speed, to warm the water in their bellies. Swift.

10. Containing the whole matter; expressing much.
Where my expressions are not to full as his, either our language or my work were defective; but where mine are fuller than his, they are but the imperfect which the often reading of him have left out of my thoughts. Dryden.
Should a man go about with never yet to study to describe such a natural form of the year before the deluge as that which is at present established, he could scarce describe it in few words, so fit and proper is full and exact. Woodward.

11. Strong: not faint; not attenuated.
I did never know to full a voice issue from an empty heart; but the empty vessel makes the quickest found. Shakespeare.
Barrels placed under the floor of a chamber, make all noises in the full more and full resounding.

12. Mature; perfect.
In the fullness of the Mammals, flies reigned over families of free men; and much like were the cafe, if you suppose a nation, where the custom were that after full age the sons should expel their fathers out of their patrimony. Bacon.

So law appears imperfect, and but gives
With purpose to refresh them in full time
Up to a better commodity. Milton.

These thoughts
Full counsel must mature. Milton.

13. [Applied to the moon.] Complete in its orb.
Towards the full moon, as he was coming home
one morning, he felt his legs faltter. Wifeman.

14. Not continuous, or a full stop.
There with end, making a full point of a heavy figure.
Sidney.

15. Applied to view in all dimensions.
'Till about the end of the third century. I do not remember to have been led of a Roman emperor drawn with a full face: they always appear to postures, in a full face. Minios, in Medals.

FULL, n. f. [from the adjective.]
1. Complete measure; freedom from deficiency.
When we return,
We'll fee those things affected to the full. Shaksp.
He like the dump and absolute authority of a general
FULL

general well, and preferred the dignity of it to the full.

The picture of Polycrates of Skyros is given by now to the full.

Sicilian tortures and the burned brain
Emblems, rather than expressly the full
Of which, the rules do not far enough extend.

Some lucky licence answer to the full
This innocent proof of, that licence is a rule.

This heart full of fire, or armed by art,
The swan’s down feathers,
That stands upon the full of tall, of Neither way inclines.

The whole; the total,
The king’s body, and that form out
A speedy pow’r to encounter you, my best,
This is the news at full. Shakespeare’s Henry IV.

But what at full I know, thou know’st not a part;
I know all my peril, thou no art.

The rate of being nauseated.
When I had fed them to the full.

[Applied to the moon.]
The time in which the moon makes a perfect orb.

Brains in rabbits, woodcocks, and calves, are full-eff, in full; the moon.

FREE. FULL.

1. Without abatement or diminution.

He full
Refudgent all his Father manifest
Kane.

In the unity of place they are full as stupendous;
Which many of their critic’s limit to that very spot of ground where the play is supposed to begin.

Dryden.

A Adam void of the heavens, which is one
Free from deceit his face, and full as free his heart.

Dryden.
The most judicious writer is sometimes mistaken
After all his care - but the busy critic, who judges on a view, is full as liable to be deceived.

Dryden.

Since you may
Suffer’d my heart, that could not lay,
The paw I profess shall be full as good. Dryd. Virg.

With the whole effect.

’Tis the pencil, throw’d luckily full upon the horse’s mouth to express the form, which the painter,
With all his full, could not perform without it.

Dryden’s Dufiefy.

From harmony, from heavenly harmony,
This and that frame begin;
From harmony to harmony,
Through all the compass of the notes it ran,
The diapason closing full in man.

Dryden.

3. Exactly.

Full in the center of the sacred wood,
An arm arith of the Stygian flood.
Addifn.

Full nineteen fudons did the fhip convey,
A flock of nineteen dolphins round her play. Addifn.

4. Directly.

He makes full, but full of wantonfies. Sidney.
He thus confounds the bull,
And on his ample forehead aiming full.

The deadly stroke defending piercé the bull.

Dryden.

At length resolved, he throws with all his force
Fall at the temple of the warrior horse.

Dryden.

5. It is placed before adverbs and adjectives, to intend or strengthen their signification.

Tell me why on thy fields so goodly fear’d,
Beat ye the picture of that guilty head,
Full lively in the tempest, though the faintness dead.

Spyder.

I was for art
Among my maid’s, full little, God knows, looking Rather for men and such unfirms. Shaksf.

Full well ye reject the commandment. Mark viii, 19.

I faint was all in all, and to his gods,
Lamenting would full sad. Milton’s Paradise Lost.

You full little think that you must be the beginer of
The old Shakespeare’s line.

Full little thought of him the gentle knight. Dryd.

Full well the god his father’s enemy knew,
And what her aims and what her arts pursues. Dryd.

There is a questionable full as honest, by which

You have the best part of a bottle of wine for yourse-
Swift.

FULL is much used in composition to intimate the thing thus arrived at its highest state, or utmost degree.

FULL-BLOWN. adj. [full and blown.]

1. Spread to the utmost extent, as a perfect blossom.

My gloats are past danger: they’re full blown:
Things, that are blotted, are but in the bud. Dryd.

My full blown sister, that words in space
Of our boats being ’tis the foremost plate! Dryd.

2. Stretched by the wind to the utmost extent.

He who with bold Captains is infipid,
With seal and equal indignation fired;
Who at enormous villany turns pale,
And stirs against it with a full-blown fall. Dryd.

FULL-BOTTOMED. adj. [full and bottomed.]

Having a large bottom.

I was obliged to sit at home in my morning-gown,
Having a new suit of clothes and a full-bottomed wig for a sum of money. Guardian.

FULL-RAKED. adj. [full and rak’d.]

Having the heads full of grain.

As flames rise by the wind confuering force,
One full-raked corn, or torrents raging course.

Desban.

FULL-EYED. adj. [full and ey’d.]

Having large prominent eyes.

FULL-PED. adj. [full and fed.] Sated; fat;
fiagnated.

As a partridge plump, full-fed and fatisfied.
She form’d this image of well booted air.

Pop.

FULL-LADEN. adj. [full and laden.]

Laden till there can be no more added.

It was not that so excelent a reward as the Gospel promises should drop down, like fruits upon a full-laden bough, to be plucked by every idle and wanton hand.

Tillotson.

FULL-SPEAD. adj. [full and spread.

Spread to the utmost extent.

How easy this, when definy grows kind,
With full spread falls to run before the wind;
But tho’ that gain’d if lucks gaising kind,
Must be at once rebell’d and shifted too.

Dryden.

FULL-FACED. adj. [full and fatted.]

Complete in all its parts.

The cedar stretch’d forth his branches, and the king of birds nestled within his leaves, thick feathered;
and with full-furred wings fastening his talons
Baff and West; but now the plume is become half Hovel’s Vocal Farf.

To FULL. v. a. [full, Latin.]

To cleanse cloth from its oil or grease.

FULLAGE. n. s. [from full.]
The money paid for filling or cleaning cloth.

FULLER. n. s. [full, Latin.]

One whole trade to cleanse cloth.

The clotheslathers put off
The Printer’s contents, fullers, weavers.
Shaksf.

His riment being thining, excluding white as snows as so fuller on earth can whiten them.

Mark ii. 3.

FULLERS Earth. n. s.

Fullers earth is a marl of a close texture,
Extremely soft and untouchable to the touch when dry
It is of a greyish brown colour, in all degrees from very pale to almost black, and generally has a greenish cast in it. The marl fuller earth is dry;
in our own island.

Hill’s Medicinu.

The fullers earth of England very much exceeds any other fuller’s earth, and was and is reckoned by some to be the head of all fuller’s earths, which is one

In the very demonstration and fullness of the cry.

Browns’s Pl. VII.

5. Completeness; freedom from deficiency.

In thy presence of fabrics of joy.

Elysia.

He in the bold part of a blissful man,
Left to be furnish’d by such as he:
And the a fair divided excellence, whose fulness of perfection lies in him. Soldp.

6. Repetition;
FUM.

6. Repletion: satiety. I need not insist in the habitual intermixture of rich tables, nor the evil accidents and effects of fats, pride and lust, wantonness and folly.

Taylor's Rule of Eating.

7. Plenty; wealth. To lapse in fulness is forer to need; and shading, as in kings than beggars. Shakespear. Gymbeliter.

8. Stiffening perturbation; swelling in the mind. A principal fruit of friendship is the ease and dis-charge of the fulness of the heart, which pollutions of all kinds do cause and induce. Bacon's Essays.

9. Large, vast, extensive. There wanted the fulness of a plot, and variety of characters to form it as ought; and perhaps something might have been added to the beauty of the style.

10. Force of sound, such as fills the car; vigour. This fort of patrular derives almost its whole beauty from the natural ease of thought and smoothness of voice where all the most of other kinds conduce to the strength and fulness of both. Pope, FULSONE.

1. Naussa: offensive. He that brings fulsome objects to my view, With nauseous images my fancy fills, And all goes down like asylm of spirits. Reckenham. Now how the youth of Europe are in arms, How the fulness of the world is about, And see the fulness of the mind, and hear the fulness of the heart. Dryden.

2. Rank; grosos to the smell. White fumitory is of a dainty smell, if the plant puts forth white flowers only, and those not thin or dry, they are commonly of rank and fulsome. Bacon.

3. Lostful. He fumbras up before the fulsome eyes. Shakespeare.

4. Tending to obscurity. A certain epigram, which is ascribed to the emperor, is more fulsome than any passage I have met with in our poets. Dryden.

FULSONELY. adj. [fulsome.] Nau- seously; rankly; offensively.

FUMEROUS. n. f. [fulsome.]

1. Naussaful.

2. Rank smell.

3. Obfiscin. No decency is considered, no fulsome is omitted, no venon is wanting, as far as dullness can fill up the sense. Dryden.

FUMADO. n. s. [famous, Latin.] A smoked fish.

Fish that serve for the hotter countries, they used at first to fume, by hanging them up on long sticks one by one, drying them with the fum of a fuit and continual fire from which they purchased the name of famadue. Carew.

FUMACE. n. s. [from famous, Latin.] Hearthmoney.

FUMATORY. n. f. [fumaria, Latin; fume- trres, French.] An herb. It's hour.

The damned, hemlock, and rank fumatory. "Both root upon." Shakespeare's Henry V.

To FUMBLE. v. r. [fumicere, Dutch.]

1. To attempt any thing awkwardly or un-gainly.

2. To puzzle, or train in perplexity. Am I not a friend to help you out? You would have been fumbling half an hour for this excuse. Dryden's Spanish Fever.

3. To play childishly.

I saw him fumble with the flowers, and play with the flowers, and smile upon his finger's end. Shakespear.

To FUMBLE. v. r. To manage awkwardly.

As many fuevess as he flares in heav'n,
With distinct breath and confin'd kifs to them;
He fumes all up in one loose splash. Shakespeare.

Came fumbling over the heads, in such an agony
They told 'em fale for fear. Dry. Spanish Fever.

FUMBLINGLY. adv. [from fumble.] One who acts awkwardly.

FUMILY. n. s. [fumicere, French; fumus, Latin.]

1. Smoke.

Thus fight ing fires a while themselves consume.
But freight, like Turks, forced to win or die.
They flit by tender bridges of their fumes,
And over the breach in wanton vapours fly. Dryden.

2. Vapour; any volatile parts flying away.

Love is a smoke rais'd with the fume of fires.
Being purg'd, a fire sparkler in loving eyes. Shakespear.
Shall be a fume to try the King's秀丽 by pipes, as they do in tobacco, or other things, to dry and comfort.

In Winter, when the heat without is less, breath becomes so far condescended as to be visible, flowing out of the mouth in form of a fume, or crater vapour; and may, by proper vessels, set in a strong burning mixture, be collected in a considerable quanti-

4. Exhalation from the stomach.

The fumes of drink discompose and dry up the brains of a man overcharged with it. South.
FUNDAMENTAL. n. [fundamental, Latin.] The back part of the body.

FUNDAMENTAL. adj. [fundamentalis, Latin, from fundamental.] Serving for the foundation; that upon which the rest is built; essential; important; not merely accidental.

FUNDAMENTAL CAUSE. n. The cause of the most grievous war is not like to be taken from the earth. Raleigh. You that will be less fearful than distant, That know the several part of the earth. More than you doubt the charge of it. Shakespeare. Others, when they were brought to allow the threat vacant, thought the facetious should go to the

FUNEAL. m. [funus, French; funis, a bag, Latin.]
1. Stock; capital; that by which any expense is supported. He touches the patient more delicately than Ovid, and divests all this of his own said, without disturbing the arts and sciences for a supply. Dryden. Part must be left a fund when fees invoke. And part employ'd to roll the watry tale. Dryden. In preaching, no men succeed better than those who are skillful in the fund of their own reason, advanced indeed, but not overlaid by some mean with books. Swift.

2. Stock or bank of money. As my estate has been hitherto either spent on fees, or fluctuating in funds, it is now fixed in labor.

FUNDAMENTAL. n. s. [fundamentum, Latin.] The back part of the body.

FUNDAMENTAL. adj. [fundamentalis, Latin, from fundamentum.] Serving for the foundation; that upon which the rest is built; essential; important; not merely accidental.

FUNDAMENTAL AGREEMENT. n. An agreement of the most grievous war is not like to be taken from the earth. Raleigh. You that will be less fearful than distant, That know the several part of the earth. More than you doubt the charge of it. Shakespeare. Others, when they were brought to allow the threat vacant, thought the facetious should go to the

FUR. n. [fur, French.] A small cord; a small ligature; a fibre.

FUNICULAR. adj. [funicularis, French, from funiculus.] Counting of a small cord or fibre.

FUNK. n. s. A flink. A low word.

FUNNEL. n. s. [funnula, Latin; whence fundible, fundus, funnel.]
1. An inverted hollow cone with a pipe descending from it, through which liquid is poured, or solids are conveyed with narrow mouths; a tundish.

The outward ear or antituba is made hollow, and contracted by degrees, to draw the sound inward, to take in as much as may be of it, as we use a funnel to pour liquid into any vessel. Ray.

2. A pipe or passage of communication. Some of the large funnels are curious mouthpieces, through which angled notes with ease descend. Blackmore.

FUR. n. s. [fur, French.]
1. Skin with soft hair with which garments are lined for warmth, or covered for ornament.

December must be expressed with a roarful and fearful countenance; as a hedge at his back a bundle of hogs, holding in fur mistress the sign of Capronius. Ovid. Eumam. Fur. Fur.

Tis but dressing a bird of prey in his cap and fur to make a judge of him. L'Estrange.

And whether alley, fields, or air. Swift.

2. Soft hair of beasts found in cold countries, where nature provides coats suitable to the weather; hair in general.

This sight, wherein the ezbrown bear would cough, the lion and the belly-pinched wolf keep their fur dry, unembossed he must, and bids what will take all. Shakespeare King Lear.

Such animals as feed upon flesh, firstly by the want of the hair; but they prey upon, the other by devouring some part of the feathers of the birds which they gorge themselves with. Ray on the Creation.

3. Any moisture exhaled at such a degree as that the remainder sticks on the part.

Me thinks I am not right in every part. I feel a kind of trembling at my heart. My pulse unequal, and my breath is strong; as if a fiery spear upon my tongue. Dryden.

7. FUR. n. s. [from the noun.]
1. To line or cover with furs that have short hair. How did a light it was to see Damascus, the rich tile furred with lambkins? Alders. Though
FUR

Through tatter'd cloaths small vices do appear;
Robes and fur'd gowns hide all.
Shakesp.

You are for dreams and blubber, brother priest;
You vary gents with fashion.
Shakesp.

2. To cover with soft matter.
To make lambskin, take a perch and hold it under the bottom of a silent basin; and, as it grows, be fur'd and black within, strike it with a feather into some shell.
Pearson.

Three fitters, mourning for their brother's los';
Their bodies hid in bark, and fur'd with moss.
Dryden.

Their freezing blood compels to irrigate
Their dry fur'd tongues.
Phillis.

A dungeon wide and horrible; the walls
On all sides fur'd with smoky damages, and hung
With clots of very gore.
Addison.

Fur, adv. [It is now commonly written fur.]
At a distance.
Gay.

He white and lovely dove
Doth on her wing her utmost swiftness prove,
Finding the fires of faulton fierce not fur.
Sidney.

Fur-wrought, adj. [fur and wrought.]
Made of fur.
Gay.

Silent along the margin stray,
And with the fur-wrought fly they prone.
Gay.

FUR'ACIOUS, adj. [furax, Lat. Thievish; inclined to steal.
Dit.

FURACITY, n. f. [from furax, Lat.]
Disposition to theft; thievishness.
Dit.

FUR FELT, n. f. A piece of fine plaited and puckered together, either below or above, on the petticoats or gowns of women. This, like a great many other words, is the child of mere caprice.
Treu.  Dit.

Fur's, n. pl.
Fur.
Treu.  Dit.

Fur'ty, v. a. [from the noun.]
To adorn with ornamental appendages of drefs.
When arguments too fiercely press,
You calm them with a milder air;
To break their points, you turn their force,
And fur'ty the plain difcourfe.
Prior.

She was bounted and furbeated; every ribbon was crinkled and every part of her garrisons in cot.
Addison.

To FUR'ISH, v. a. [from the verb.]
To burnish; to polish; to rub to brightness.
It may enter Momwray's waxen coat,
And furry now the name of John o' Gaunt.
Shakesp. Rich. II.

Fur'loch'd, the furs, and put on the brigandines.
Ferr. vii. 4.

Some others who fur'loch'd up and reprint his old errors, hold that the sufferings of the damned are not to be, in a strict sense, eternal; but that, after a certain period of time, there shall be a general good-delivery of the souls in prison, and that not a farther execution, but a final release.
South.

As after Nun's peaceful reign,
The martial A rape did give the fierce wield;
Fur'loch'd the spiteful sword again;
Refund'd the long-for gotten shield,
And led the Latins to the duty field.
Dryden.

Inferring minutiae, to Mars repair,
His broken axle-ter, and blunted war;
And fend him forth again, with fur'loch'd arm.
Dryden.

FUR'RISHER, n. f. [furbrish, French;
from furbrish.]
One who polishes any thing;
Fur'cation, n. f. [furca, Latin.] Forkings; the flate of shooting two ways like the blades of a fork.
When flags grow old they grow less branched,
And list their crown-unters, or lower forks
Next the head.
Brown.

FUR'FUR, n. f. [Latin.] Hulk or chaff;
Scour or dandril, that grows upon the

FUR'NACE, v. a. [from the noun.]
To throw out as sparks from a furnace.
A bad word.

c.

He furnaces
That thick fights from him.
Shakesp. Comed.

To FURNISH, v. a. [furnir, French.]
1. To supply with what is necessary to a certain purpose.

She hath directed
How I shall take her from her father's house;
What gold and jewels she is furnir'd with.
Shakesp.

To his training school,
That he may furnish him with firm and good teachers,
And never seek for aid out of himself.
Shakesp.

Shall furnish him liberally out of thy stock,
Dont. v.

Come, thou stranger, and furnish a table,
And feed me of that thou hast ready.
Eccles.

Auria, having driven the Turks from Conos,
Both by sea and land, furnish'd the city with corn,
Wine, victual, and powder.  Kneller's Hispys.

I shall not need to heap up instances;
every one's reading and conversation will sufficiently furnish him, if he wants to be better furnish'd.
Locke.

2. To give; to supply.
The simple idea, the materials of all our knowledge, are foggetted and furnish'd to the mind only by these two ways, sensation and reflection.
Locke.

It is not the state, but a compact among private persons that hath furnish'd out these several remainances.
Addison.

3. To fit up; to fit with appendages.
Something deeper,
Whereof perochere these are but furnirings.
Shakesp.

Plate entertained some of his friends at dinner,
And had in the chamber a bed or couch, neatly and costly furnish'd.  Digges came in, and got up upon the bed, and trampled it, saying, I trample upon the pride of Plato. Plato mildly answered, But with greater pride, Digges.  Bacon's Advov.

We were led into another great room, furnish'd with old interlopions.
Addison on Italy.

4. To equip; to fit out for any under-taking.

Will your lardship lend me a thousand pounds to furnish me?
Shakesp. Henry IV.

Ideas, forms, and intellects.
Have furnish'd out three different facts.  Prior.

Doubtless the man Jesus Christ is furnish'd with superior powers to all the angels in heaven, because he is employed in superior work.  Watts.

5. To decorate; to supply with ornamental household fuff.
The wounded arm would furnish all their rooms,
And blest for ever scarlet in the looms.  Halifox.

FURNISHER, n. f. [furnisser, French;
from furnirb.]
One who supplies or fits out.
Furniture, n. f. [furnitur, French;
from furnirb.]
1. Moveables; goods put in a house for use or ornament.

No man can transport his large retinae, his suspense furs, and his rich furniture into another world.  South.

There are many noble palaces in Venice; but their furniture is not very rich, if we except the pictures.  Addison.

2. Appendages.
By a general confusion mankind shall be defcoufled, with the form and all the furniture of the earth.  Tillofson.

3. Equipage; embellishments; decorations.
Young Carvon, with vauntful lilyward,
After his guide did call aloud to fans.
And thereon gave his furnitures prepar'd.  Spenser.
The duke is coming; see the barge be ready,
And fit it with such furniture as suits.  Dryden.

The greatest of his genius.  Shakesp. Henry VIII.

The
FU R
The ground must he of a mixt brown, and large enough, for the hore's furaturas must he of very fentible colours. Dyden. FURRER, n. f. [from fur.] A dealer in fur.
FURROW, n. f. [ruhph, Saxon.] 1. A small trench made by the plow for the reception of yeed. Wheat must be sowed above furrows before Mihail.
Then ploughs for feed the fruitful furrowed brooks, And once laburd-first beneath the yoke. Dryden.
2. Any long trench or hollow; as a wrinkle.
My lord is, though time has plowed that face
With Volgus's furrow's force I saw it fall;
Yet I'm too well acquainted with the ground quite to forget it. Dryden, and Las's Edipus.
FURROW-WEED, n. f. [Furrow and weet.] A weed that grows in furrowed land.
Crown'd with rank fumites, and furrowed-swirls.
To FURROW, v. o. [from the noun; pytan, Saxon.]
1. To eat in furrows. While Stent with hghtsman near at hand, Whistles o'er the furrow's edd.'d. Milton.
2. To divide in long hollows. No brier tear has furrow'd her smooth cheek.
Suckling.
The billows fall, while Neptune lays his lance
On the rough sea, and smooths its furrow'd face. Dryden.
3. To make by cutting. There go the ships that furrow out their way;
Yes, there of whales enormous lights we see. Warton.
FURRY, adj. [from fur.] Covered with fur; dressed in fur.
From Volgus's bank's insipid Car
Leads forth his furry croat to war. Fenton.
Confuting of fur. Stretch out thy lazy limbs, awake, awake,
And Winter from thy furry mantle wake. Dryden.
Not arm'd with horns of arbitrary might,
Or claws to seize their furry spilts in sight. Dryden.
FURTHER, adj. [from forth; not from fur, as is commonly imagined; forth, further, furthest, corrupted from further, forth, forthright. pop.Sen. Saxon. Further is used by Sir Thomas More. See FORTH and FARTHER, of which the examples are to be referred to this word.]
1. At a greater distance.
2. Beyond this.
What further need have we of witnesses. Mar. xxi. 65.
Satan had journey'd on, passive and flow:
But further way found sense, to thicken with
As one continu'd his, the undergrowth
Of shrubs and tangling bushes had percept'd.
All path of man or beast that pass'd that way.
Milton.
Their earnest eyes they fix'd, imagining
For one forbidden tree a multitude
Now v's, to work them further woe or frame.
Milton.
I may meet
Some wand'ring spirit, from him to draw
What further would be learn'd. Milton.
3. Further has in some sort the force of a substantive in the phrase no further, for nothing further.
Let this appease
Thy doub, since man reach no further knows.
Milton.
FURTHER, adv. [from forth.] To a greater distance.
V. the angel of the Lord went further, and Slew, num. xi. 2.
97 FURTHER, v. a. [from the adverb; further, Saxon.] To put onward;
To forward; to promote; to countenance;
To assist; to help.
Things thus set in order, in quiet and rest,
Shall further thy harvest, and pleasure thee best.
Dryden.
Could their fond superstitious further their Acts, without the mixture of a true
Persuasion concerning the irresistible force of divine power.
Grant not, O Lord, the divers of the wicked:
Further not his wicked device. Ex. 31. 8.
This binds it in to further my design,
As I am bound by my profession. Dryden.
FURTHERANCE, n. f. [from further.] Promotion; advancement; help.
The Galls learned them first, and used them only for the furtherance of their trade and private benefits.
Our diligence must search out all helps and furtherance of direction, which ferriers, counsels, fathers, histories, laws and practices of all churches afford.
For gain and work, and succeed in his affairs,
He fed the furtherance of him that hath no man's power.
Harker.
Canst thou not, my body, nor blood sacrifice,
Intreat you to your wonted furtherance? Shakefes. Henry VI.
If men were minded to live purposely, to believe a God would be no hindrance or prejudice to such design, but very much for the advancement and furtherance of it. Tolstoin.
FURTHERER, n. f. [from further.] Promoter; adder.
That earnest favours and furtherer of God's true Religion, that faithful servitor to his prince and country. Spencers.
FURTHERMORE, adv. [further and more.]
Moreover; besides.
This ring I do accept most thankfully,
And so, I pray you, tell him: furthermore,
I pray you, threw my youth old Shylocks hoite.
Shakespeare.
FUNIVY, adj. [furivate, Fr. fartivate, Latin.] Stolen; gotten by theft.
Or do they, as your cheimes, I think, have flown,
Dart furivate beams and plaug, not their own,
All fervants to that source of light, the sun?
Prior.
FURONCLE, n. f. [furoncle, Fr. furoncula,
Latin.] A bile; an angry putitide.
A furoncle be of burning round, hard,
And inflamed; and as it increas'd, it grew with an acute head, and sometimes a putulate;
And then it was more inflamed and painful, when it arrives at its alite, which is about the eighth or ninetieth day.
Witkian.
FURRY, n. f. [fur, Latin; furere, French.] 1. Madness.
2. Rage; passion of anger; tumult of mind approaching to madness.
I do oppose my pitting to your fury, and am
To suffer with a quietness of spirit
The very tyranny and rage of him.
Shakespeare.
He has given him to know the natures of living creatures, and the facts of wild beasts.
Wold. vii. 20.
3. Enthusiasm; exaltation of fancy.
Taking up the lure, her wit began to be with a divine fury so pleased; and her voice would, in so beloved an occasion, second her wit.
Shelley.
A fysill, that had number'd the world.'
The fun to coarse two hundred companies,
In her propositick fury she'd the work.
Shelley.
Greater than human kind the fysill to look
And with an accent more than mortal spoke;
Her opening eyes with sparkling fyrill roll.
When all the god came rolling on her soul.
Dryden's Don.
4. [from furia; Latin.] One of the deities of vengeance, and thence a fiery, turbulent, violent, raging woman.
FUS.
The sight of any of the house of York,
Is a lurid to transport colour.
It was the most proper place for a fury to make her entry, and I believe every reader's imagination is pleased, when he sees the angry goddess thus flincking in a tempest, and glutting her throat with blood, amidst such a scene of horror and confusion.
Addison on Italy.
FURZ, n. f. [furz, Saxon; genuina spinosa, Lat.] Gorze, Coffee.
The whole plant is very thorny; the flowers, which are of the pea-bloom kind, are disposed in short thick spikes, which are succeeded by short compacted pods, in each of which are contained three or four kidney-shaped seeds. Miller.
Carry out gravel to fill up a hole.
Both timber and furze, the turf and the coke.
FUSION, n. f. [suffusion, Latin.] The Act of darkening or obliterating.
Di. 6.
FUSE, v. a. [from fuse.] Overgrown with furze, full of furze.
Wide through the furze they held their rout they take,
Their bleeding bosoms force the thorny brake.
Cap.
FUSE, v. n. To be melted; to be caused of being liquefied by heat.
FUSE, n. f. [from fuse, French.] The cone round which is wound the cord or chain of a clock or watch.
The reason of the motion of the balance is by the motion of the next wheel, and that by the motion of the fusee, and that by the motion of the spring: the whole frame of the watch carries a reasonableness in it, the passive opposition of the intellectual idea that was in the ardist.
Hall.
2. A firelock [from fusil; French]; a small nest musquet. This is more properly written fusil.
FUSE OF A bomb or granado shell, is that which makes the whole powder or composition in the shell take fire, to do the designed execution.
'Tis usually a wooden pipe or tap filled with wildfire, or some such matter; and is intended to burn no longer than is the time of the motion of the bomb from the mouth of the mortar to the place where it is to fall, which time Anderson makes twenty-seven seconds.
Harris.
FUSE. Track of a buck. Ainsworth.
FUSIBLE, adj. [from fusil.] Capable of being melted; capable of being made liquid by heat.
FUSIBLE colors are afforded by metallic bodies, either called with, or otherwise plunged into cold hot bodies, especially fusible ones. Boyle.
FUSIBILITY, n. f. [from fusible.] Capacity of being melted; quality of growing liquid by heat.
The ancients observing in that material a kind of metal nature, or at least, fusibility, seem to have resolved it into a nobler use.
Wood's Architecture.
The bodies of most airs that are fought for out of the depth of the earths are metals which are distinguished from other bodies by their weight, fusibility, and malleableness. Locke.
FUSIL. adj. [fusil, French; fusili, Latin.] 5 N 2
1 Capable
1. Made of futian.
2. Swelling; unnaturally pompous; ridiculously timid. Used of title.

When men argue, 'th' greater part
O' th' cometh falls on terms of art,
As if th' old (futurist) stuff be spent.
And then they fall to th' argument.

Hudibras.
Virgil, if he could have been the first vesels of the Sylva, would have thought Statius mad in his futian description of the statue on the brazen horse.

Dryden’s ‘D’.

Fustic. n. s. [futis, Latin.] A sort of wood brought from the West-Indies, used in dying of cloth.

To Fustigate, v. m. [futis, Latin.] To beat with a stick; to cane.

Fustilician. n. s. [from futis.] A futile, adj. [from futis.] Ill-smelling; mouldy.

Hector shall have a great caish, if he knock out either of your brains: he were as good crack a futis not with a knot.

The futatical bathe thinne honour. Shak.
The large Achilles, at this futis stuff,
From his deep chest laughs out a loud applause.

Futile. adj. [futile, French; futis, Latin.]
1. Talkative; loquacious.
2. Tiring; worthless; of no weight.

Futility. n. s. [from futile.] To make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
to make; to make use of;
to form; to form;
Gab

Gab (from gab, a harpoon or large hook.)

Gabardine, n. f. [gabardine, Italian.]
A coarse frock; any mean dress.

Gabble, n. f. [gabblle, French; gabella, Italian; gabbel, Saxo, a tribute.] An excite; a tax.

Gabble, m. s. [gabblle, French; gabella, Italian; gabbel, Saxo, a tribute.] A prater; a chattering fellow.

Gabby, m. s. [gabblle, French; gabella, Italian; gabbel, Saxo, a tribute.] An excite; a tax.

Gabble, s. m. [gabblle, French; gabella, Italian; gabbel, Saxo, a tribute.] An excite; a tax.

Gabbingly, adv. [from gab.] In a rambling, roving manner.

Gabby, m. s. [gabblle, French; gabella, Italian; gabbel, Saxo, a tribute.] A prater; a chattering fellow.

Gabble, m. s. [gabblle, French; gabella, Italian; gabbel, Saxo, a tribute.] An excite; a tax.

Gabble, m. s. [gabblle, French; gabella, Italian; gabbel, Saxo, a tribute.] An excite; a tax.

Gabble, m. s. [gabblle, French; gabella, Italian; gabbel, Saxo, a tribute.] An excite; a tax.
GAI

In my own truth, that gets not questioned on our minds by false-evidence or demonstration, the arguments that gain in silent are the vouchers and gage of its probability.

2. A measure; a rule of measuring. One judge, as the weather dictates, right. The poet is at point, and wrong at night; another judges by the hero's gage. An author's principles or parentage.

3. To gauge: to make or to move; to give a caution, pledge, or security.

A noisy competent was gaged by our king. Shakespeare. He found the Turkish merchants making merry in their market; he gave them false bills, and gage his faith for their safety, and likewise to him. Boccaccio's History.

4. To bind by some caution or security: to engage.

My chief care is to come fairly off from the great debts. Wherein my time, something too prodigious, much would be gaged. Shakespeare.

To gauge the contents of any vessel of liquids particularly. More properly gauge. See GAGE. We shall see your bearing. Nay, but I to night: you shall not gage me; nor yet do to me. Shakespeare.

5. To make a noise like a goose. Birds prune their feathers, gaggle, and crow seem to call upon rain; which is but the comfort they receive in the rotation of the air. Bacon's Natural History.

6. May safely gage in melodious voice, and never want good thieves or apple-sauce. King.

8. Splendidly. See GAILY.

GAIN, n. f. [gain, French.]

1. Profit; advantage; contrary to loss.

But what things were gain to me, those I counted los to Christ. Phil. iii. 7.

The purpose it was now, to reach to victory should be used, or the gages thereof communicated to the general content. Raleigh.

2. Intercet: lucrative views.

That, if, which serves for gain, and follows but for form, will make, when it begins to rain, and leave thee in the storm. Shakespeare.

3. Unlawful advantage.

Did I make a gage of you by any of them whom I beat unto you? 2 Cor. xii. 17. If pride, if envy, if the lust of gage, and ambition in thy bosom reign, thou boast'st, alas! I thy father feint in vain. Fitzgerald.

4. Overplus in a comparative computation; any things opposed to loss.

5. To obtain as profit or advantage. Egypt became a gaging ground by the muddy and factor brought down by the Nile, which settled by degrees into a fine land. Brown's Tulgar Errors. He gaine, to live as Man, higher degree of life. Milton.

GAI

What reinforcement we may gain from hope, Milton.

What would we gain, to win not forfe? A leper once he loth, and gaine'd a king. Milton.

To have the overplus in comparative computation. If you have two vessels to fill, and you empty one to fill the other, you gain nothing by that. Brent's Library of the Earth.

4. To obtain; to procure; to receive. I acceptance found, which gain'd me this answer from the gracious voice divine. Milton. That fade from small refilient gain of gimmering air, lest veil'd with tempest loud, Milton.

5. To obtain whatever, good or bad. Ye should not have looke from Cretes, and have gained him harm and loss. Acts ii. 21.

6. To win against opposition. They who were sent to the other pains, after a short reliance, gain'd it, Clarendon. Fat fees from the defended Umbrian towns, and only gaine the wealthy client's cause. Dryden's Persian.

7. To draw into any interest or party. Come, with pretense, laden from the pot, to gratify the queen and gain the court. Dryden. If Pervus must be wrought to play. No woman is a conqueror in court. If you gaine him, I shall comply of course. A. Phillips.

8. To obtain as a woods.

He never shall find our hotmate, but such as some mistake bring him, or mistake, or whom he wishes not shall seldom gaine. Through her perseverances, but she shall see gain'd. Milton.

9. To reach; to attain.

The West till gimmers with some freshest of days: Now sports the latertraveller space, To gain the time, Shakespeare's Macbeth. Death was the poll, which I almost did gaine: Shall I once more be toft into the main? Waller. Sun I found his prais'd. In thy extremest bounds, who in the pale, In the high noon gaine'd, and when thou failst. Milton.

10. To gain over.

To draw to another party or interest. The court of Hanover should have endeavoured to gaine over those who were represented as their enemies. Swift.

11. To gain a war.

1. To grow rich; to have advantage; to be advanced in interest or happiness. Thou hast taken vifory and increase, and thou hast greedily gaine of thy neighbour by storming. Ezek. vii. 12.

2. To encroach; to come forward by degrees; with or.

When watchful herons leave their watry tract, and mounting upright with crested flight, Gaine on the skites, and fear above the shell. Dryden's Pergil.

So on the land, while here the ocean gaine, in other parts is living wide family links. Pope.

3. To get ground; to prevail against: with or.

GAINFUL adj. [gain and full.]

1. Advantageable; profitable.

He will dazzle his eyes, and balt him in with the luxurious propoil of some gaineful purchase, some match, or advantageous project. South.

2. Lucrative; productive of money.

Nor knows he merchants gaineful care. Dryden. Marie's new commodious percepts gives, Intuitive to the fairs, or, wholly kept. On what is gaineful: sometimes the clients from flow fustains. Phillips. GAINFULLY adv. [from gaineful.] Profitably; advantageously.

GAINFULNESS. n. f. [from gaineful.]

Profit; advantage.

GAIN GIVING. n. f. [gaine and give.] The fame as giving gifts; a giving against, as gaining; giving, which is still in use, is saying against, or contradicting.

It is but fooetry; and it is such kind of gaining as would, perhaps, trouble a woman. Shakespeare's Howel.

GAINLESS, adj. [from gaine.] Unprofitable; producing no advantage.

GAINLESSNESS. n. f. [from gaineless.] Unprofitablenez; want of advantage.

The parallel holds too in the gaining of as well as laborious of the work; 1 miners, buried in earth and darknes, were these course, and all for the other they digged; no more is the insatiable mite. Dryden's Priam.

GAINSY, v. a. [gaine and say.]

1. To contradict; to oppose; to controvert with; to differ and.

Speeches which gainsey one another, must of necessity be applied both unto one and the fame subject. Shakespeare.

2. To deny any thing.

I never heard yet that any of those bold warriors vented Ils imponderant to gainsey what they did. Than to perform it itself. Shakespeare.

GAINSEYER, n. f. [from gainsey.] Opponent; adversary.

Such as may satisfy gainseyers, when suddenly, and besides expectation, they require the fame at our hands. Homer. We are, for this case, challenged as manifest gainseyers of Scripture, even in that which we read for Scripture unto the people. Homer.

It was full matter of conviction to all gainseyers. Homerus.

Others

GAL

Several lights will not be seen,
If there be nothing left of them but Men, doubt, because they stand so thick in the sky.

Go to those parts that paint the galaxy. Cowley.

We must not undertake to know what advantage is brought to us by those immovable stars in the galaxy. Bentley.

GALBANUM, n. f. We meet with galbanum sometimes in fruits, sometimes powdered with drops of tears, which is the parched and sometimes in large masses. It is soft, like wax, and ductible like the dandels of a yellowish or reddish colour; its smell is strong and disagreeable.

It is of a middle nature between a gum and a resin, being inflammable as a resin, and soluble in water as a gum, and will not dissolve in oil as pure resins do. It is the produce of an embelishful plant.

I yielded indeed a pleasant colour, like the betty myrrh, as galbanum. Eecleix. xxiv. 15.

GAL'E.'A, n. f. (gabling, hardly, sudden, German.) A wind not tempestuous, yet stronger than a breeze.

Wind.

GAL'E.'A'TI.TUS, adj. [gallatius, Latin.]

1. Covered as with a helmet.

A galatea clothed, and in shape something more comely than any of the foregoing.

Woodward on Galata.

2. [In botany.] Such plants as bear a flower resembling an helmet, as the monkshood.

Galantcula. adj. [from galerus, Latin.] Covered as with a hat.

GAL'l.'O.T, n. f. [galloite, French.] A little galley or fort of brigantine, built very light and fit for chase. It carries but one mast, and two or three pattores.

It can both fall and row, and has a large number of oars for the rowers, with one man to each oar.

Barbarossa sent two notable pirates with thirty gallots, who, landing their men, were valiantly encountered, and forced again to their gallots.

GALL, n. f. (seal, Saxox; gallo, Dutch.)

1. The bile, an animal juice remarkable for its foppished bitterneness.

Come to my woman's breast,
And take my milk for gall; you moring minimish.

A honey tongue, a heart of gall,
Is fancy's spring, but sorrow's fall. Shakespeare.

This potion informs us of a vulgar error, terming the gall bitter, for it doth imply, It's as bitter as gall, whereas there's nothing gall able sweeter; and what is most unctuous must needs partake of a sweet favor. Harvey.

Gall is the greatest relish of curdled milk. Borrahas has given at a time one drop of the gall of an eel with success.

Arboreus on Diet.

2. The part which contains the bile.

The married couple, as in large masses of silver, did cast the gall of the fisticke behind the brow.

Gall, anything externally bitter.

With mine eyes I'll drink of every word you find,
Though ink be made of gall. Shakesp. Cymbeline.

Posion be their drink!
Gall, worse than gall, the daintest meat they take! Shakespeare.

GAL.'IN, n. f. [gaining, being hit, fail of their purpose. Full.

*GAINST, prep. [for against.] See A.-

Tremble, ye nations! who, secure before,
Laugh'd at those arms, that gai.'n, ourselves we bore.

To gai.'nSTAND, v. a. [gainst and stand.] To withstand; to oppose; to resist. A proper word, but not in use.

Love proved himself valiant, that dart with the force of rent arm's duty gaint and the force of love enraged desires. Dryden.

GALRISH. adj. [gallan, to dreef, Saxox.]

1. Gaudy; flowy; splendid; fine.

Three of four will outrage in apparel, huge hole, monstrous hats, and gai'rish colours. Aicham.

I call'd thee then poor shadow, gai'rish queen,
The presentation of but what I was.
A mother, only mock'd with two fair robes;
A dream of what thou wert, a gai'rish flag. B. Bentley.

To be the aim of every dangerous shot. Shakesp.

There in cloke covert by some brook,
Where my eye never may meet,
Hide me from day's gai'rish eyes. Milton.

2. Extravagantly gay; flighty.

Fame and glory transport a man out of himself; it makes the mind loose and gai'rish, scatters the figures of fame, and leaves a kind of dissolution upon the soul. (sav.)

GAI'RENISHNESS. n. f. [from gai'rish.]

1. Finery; flaunting gaudiness.

2. Gaiety or extravagant joy.

Let your hope be without vanity, or gai'ranshies of spirit, but sober, grave, and silent. Taylor.

GAI'T, n. f. [gait, Dutch.]

1. Away; as, gange your gait. Good youth, address thy gait unto her; Be not denied access, stand at her door. Shakesp.

2. March; walk; walk.

March, n. v. gaited, n. past. a.
That fairest eye uphold thy feeble gait. Hobb. Tate.

The air is so leant and meagre waster late,
That fear thee legs uphold thy feeble gait. C. Martial.

Tou art so lean and meagre waster late,
That fearest thy legs uphold thy feeble gait. Hobb. Tate.

3. The manner and air of walking.

Great Juno comes; I know her by her gait. Shakespeare.

He had in his person, in his affect, the appearance of a man, which he preserved in his gait and motion. Clarendon.

A third, who, by his gait,
And secret demeanor, seems the prince of hell. Milton.

Leviathan.

Wallowing, unwieldy, enormous in their gait,
I defer'd his way,
Bent all on speed, and mark'd his airy gait. Milton.

My heart-blood is well nigh from me; I feel
And my gale-grown salt to my heel. Spenser.

GAL.GANGL. n. f. (galanger, French.) A medicinal root.

The larger galanga is in pieces, about an inch or two long, of the thickened of a man's little fingers; a brownish red colour, extremely hot and pungent. The smaller galanga is in pieces, about two inches long, and as thick as the preceding; its colour is brown, with a faint cast of red to it: it has a disagreeable, but much less acid and pungent smell. Hill.

GAL.'A.'GE, n. f. [gallad, galase, Fr.]

The milky way; a stream of light in the sky, consisting of many small stars.

A broad and ample road, whose dust is gold, and pavement stars, as stars they appear, See not denied access, stand at her door. Milton's Paradise Lost. A brown, for which heaven would dishearm. The galaxy, and stars be vast'd, Cleveland.

GAL.'A.'GE, n. f. (gale, an apple; galy, a sieve; galaxe, a star.) The starry way; a stream of light in the sky, consisting of many small stars.

A broad and ample road, whose dust is gold, and pavement stars, as stars they appear, See not denied access, stand at her door. Milton's Paradise Lost. A brown, for which heaven would dishearm. The galaxy, and stars be vast'd, Cleveland.

GAL.'A.'GE, n. f. (gale, an apple; galy, a sieve; galaxe, a star.) The starry way; a stream of light in the sky, consisting of many small stars.

A broad and ample road, whose dust is gold, and pavement stars, as stars they appear, See not denied access, stand at her door. Milton's Paradise Lost. A brown, for which heaven would dishearm. The galaxy, and stars be vast'd, Cleveland.
GAL

When I knew justice,
I saw good fome daring
In Raleigh's goodfome
Which a difficult effence would after said.

All fides here I solemnly deny,
Save bow to gaff and pinch this Raklebrooke.
Shak. Hen. IV.

No man commits any sin but his conftence fates him, and his guilty mind is frequently gaffed with the re membranes of it.
Tullion.

4. To haras: to mischief; to keep in a state of uneafiness.

The Helas had gotten new heart, and with a divere forts of fhot from corners of streets and house- windows gaffed them.
Sidney.

Light demifions from as fhot they threw,
Exafen'd with leaden things, to gaff the foe.
Dry. An.

In our was againft the French of old, we used to gaff them with our long bows, at a greater distance than they could flint their arrows.
Addifon.

To gaff. o. n. To fret.
I have fenn you gaffing and gaffing at this gentle- man twice of three.
Shakfeare.

GALLANT. adj. [gaffant, French; from gaffant, fine, drefs, Spanifh.]
1. Gay; well drefs'd; flowly; splendidly.
A plan of埴ual Vittors, where hall go gaffant with ours, neither hall gaffant ships pass thereby.
Sidney.

The gay, the wife, the gaffant, and the great body, all in one gaffant have. Waller.

2. Brave; high spirited; daring; magna- nimous.
Seem, that any should kill his uncle, made him feck his revenge in manner gaffant cavalier.
Sidney.

But, fare thee well, thou art a gaffant youth.
Shakfeare.

A gaffant man, whole thoughts fly at the highest game, requires no further insight.
Digby.

3. Fine; noble; spacious.
There are no tricks in plain and fimpie fath.
But hollow men, like hurIE'S box hard.
Make gaffant flew and promise of their metre.
Shakfeare.

4. Courty with refpect to ladies.
He difcourfe, how gaffant and how brave a thing it would be for his lady's fhape to make a journey into Spain, and to fetch home his miftrefs.
Clarendon.

When forth the love of fent is aboad.
The gaffant rain begin.
In gaffant thought to plume their pointed wings.
Dryden.

GALLANT. n. f. [from the adjective.]
1. A gay, sprightly, airy, splendid man.

The new proclamation.
—What is it for?
The reformation of our travel'd gaffants,
That fill the court with quarrels, talk, and taylor.
Shakfeare.

The gaffants and leaffy youths of Naples came and offered themselves unto Valier.
Kneflis.

The gaffants are to protect the lad's rich.
Their leaffy branchis's at the gaffly fpright.
Dryden.

Gaffants, look to't, you fay there are no tricks;
But I'lt come dance about your beds at night.
Dryden.

2. A whoremafter, who cares ftrife women to debafce them.
One, who to pieces with age, shews himfelf a young gaffant, Shakfeare.

She had left the good man at home, and brought away her gaffant. Addifon's Sp-Carr.

3. A wonder; one who courts a woman for marriage.
In the two latter cafes it had commonly the accent on the last syllable.
GALLANTLY. adv. [from gaffant.]

1. Gayly; splendidly.
2. Bravely; nobly; generously.

GAL.

You have not dealt gailily with us as we did with you, a part of our people. 1 last year a paper was brought here from England, which we ordered to be burned by the common hangman. Swift.

GALLANT, n. f. [gaffant, French.]
1. Splendour of appearance; show; magnifi- cence; glittering grace; oftentimes gin
Make the face shine with gaffanty, and all
The English youth flock to their admiral. Waller.
2. Bravery; noblenes; generosity.
The eminence of your condition, and the gaffant of your principles, will not confume to the toolc and crumbling body of nature.
Gay, Swift, Preface.

3. A number of gaffants;
Hector, Deiphobus, and all the gaffants of Troy,
Would do-to-day. Shakfeare.

4. Courtship; refined address to women.
The martial Moors, in gaffanty refin'd,
Invent new arts to make their charmers kind.
Granville.

5. Vivious love; lewdnes; debauchery.
It looks like a fort of combating between virtue and vice, as if a woman were allowed to be vicious, provided the be a profligate; as if there were a point where gaffancy ends, and Insanity begins.
Swift.

G'ALLASS. n. f. [gaffant, French.] A heavy low-built vessel, with both fails and posts.
It carries three masts, but they cannot be lowered, as in a gaffant.

It has thirty-two fects for rovers, and fix or seven flaves to each. To carry three trade of guns at the head, and at the ftern there are two to gaffants.
Dixit.

The Venetians pretend they could let out in a great necessity, thirty men of war, a hundred gaffants, and ten gaffantes.
Addifon on Italy.

My father hath no left.
Than three hundred gaffants, with four hundred gales, and twelve tight gaffantes.
Shakfeare.

G'ALLEON. n. f. [gaffent, French.] A large ship with four or fometimes five decks, now in use only among the Spani-

I affured them that I would defy them at Tiberias, and that no force should drive me thence, either I was funk, or fet on fire by the Spanifh gaffants.
Ralegh's Apology.

The number of velles were one hundred and thirty, whereof gaffantes and galleons feventy-two goodly ships, like floating towers or exiles.
Bacon's War with Spain.

G'ALLEY. n. f. [gaffent, French.; derived d by De Cange from gaffent, low Latin, a fine room.]
1. A kind of walk along the floor of a houfe, into which the doors of the apartments open; in general, any building of which the length much exceeds the breadth.

In most part there had been framed by art fuch pleafant arbores, that, one anfwerinf another, they became a gallery aline from tree to tree, almofl round about, which below gave a perfect fhaow.
Sidney.

High lifted up were many lofty towers.
And gallyes faire overlaid.
Spenfe.

Your gallery
Have we pas'd through, not within much content.

The row of return on the banquet fide, let it be,
all galleiues, in which galleiues let there be three cupoias.
Bacon.

The private gallery 'twixt th' apartments led.
Not to the foe yet known.
Dunham.

Nor is the fhape of our cathefals proper for our preaching auditories, as in the figure of a amphi- theatre, with galleiues gradually overlook- ing each other; for into this condition the parli-

GALLANTISE. n. f. [French.] Mere-riment; exuberant gayety. Not in ufe.
I did hear
The galing of horses: who's not come yet? Shaks.
His reeds will not refrain'd,
But gallow lively down till' western hill.
Dance, Brown.

GAL.

To run at the pace which is performed by leaps. Seeing such streams of blood as threatened a drowning life, ye galled toward them to part them. Sidney.

They can easy
An armed knight towards them gallow fall.
That seem'd from some feared toe to eye. Fairy Ley.
He was a shape grim Saturn did refrain.
His heavy limbs, and bow'd with such a mane,
When half surpriz'd, and fearing to be seen,
The teacher gallow'd from his jealous queen. Dryd.

To rise to the pace which is performed by leaps. Sidney.

GAL.

To rise to the pace which is performed by leaps. Seeing such streams of blood as threatened a drowning life, ye galled toward them to part them. Sidney.

GAL.

To rise to the pace which is performed by leaps. Seeing such streams of blood as threatened a drowning life, ye galled toward them to part them. Sidney.

GAL.

To rise to the pace which is performed by leaps. Seeing such streams of blood as threatened a drowning life, ye galled toward them to part them. Sidney.
GAM

GA'merel, n. f. [from gambe, gambarella.]  The leg of a horse.  When its strength may be more admirable than for the plan of the fibres of a tendon to be so arranged as to make it a fold body, and yet to have the strength of a horse's leg.  To appear the weight which the tendon, lying on a horse's gamerel, doth command, when he rears upon his upper, game.  Milton. 1. Sport of any kind.  We have had pâlisse here, and plessing game.  Shakespeare. 2. Jeft; opposed to earnest or serious.  Then on her head she felt a garland green, and crowned her twist earthen and twist game.  Spenser. 3. Infolent remittance; sportive insult.  Do they not seek occasion of new quarrels, On my refull, to diftrict me more; Or make a game of my calumnies?  Milton's Ag. 4. A single match at play.  Advantage in play.  Mutual vouchers for our fame we stand, And play the game into each other's hands.  Dryden. 6. Some parceled; measure planned.  This seems to be the present game of that crown, and that they will begin no other till they see an end of this.  Temple. 7. Field sports: as, the chace, falconry. About this hour he makes his way, Under the colour of his usual game, He shall here find his friends with horse and men, To him from his ignorant captivity.  Shakespeare. 8. What game is to use, or nets to frame Wild beasts to combat, or to tame, With all the myrtil of that game.  Waller.  Some sportfmen, that were abroad upon game, Spied a company of buffalos and cranes.  Le Fèrange. 8. Animals pursued in the field; animals appropriated to legal sportmen.  Hunting, and men, not beasts, till in his game, When he could chance with horses, such as erable Subjection to his empire tyrannous.  Milton. 9. There is such a variety of gamepring up before me, that I know not which to follow.  Dryden.  A bloodhound will follow the perfom he pursues, and all hounds the particular game they have in chase.  Arbutorum.  Go, with thy Cynthia hunt the pointed hare At the rough bush, or chase the flying deer.  And my Chloe take a nobler aim, At human wings we fling, nor ever mils the game.  Prior.  Proud Nimrod lift the bloody chase began, A mighty hunter, and his prey was man: Our haughty Norman bow'd that bashful name, And makes his trembling flags the royal game.  Pope.  She shafts my labour, if its length you blame, For, glore but wise, you rob me of my game.  Young.  9. Solemn contests, exhibited, as spectacles to the people.  The games are done, and Caesar is returning.  Milton.  Milo, when enting the Olympic games.  Desban.  With a huge or upon his shoulders came.  Desban.  To Game. n. n. [gaman, Saxon.] 1. To play at any sport. 2. To play wantonly and extravagantly for money.  Gaming leaves no satisfaction behind it: it no way profits either body or mind. Locke.  Gamecock, n. f. [game and cock.] Cocks bred to fight.  They manage the dispute as fiercely as two gamecocks in the pit.  Locke.  Game, n. f. [game and egg.] Eggs from which frying cocks are bred.  Thus boa'th hatches eggs under birds of prey, To make the foul more terror for the iry. Gayth.  Gamekeeper, n. f. [game and keep.] A person who looks after game and fees it is not destroyed.

GAM

Ga'mesome, adj. [from game.] Frolicksome; gay; sportive; playfulness.  Sportful.  Gerion, though old, yet gamefome, kept one end with Cofma.  Sidney.  I am not gamefome; I do lack some part of that to play.  Shakespeare.  The gamefome wind among her terrour play, And cuteth those growing riches short.  Fairfax.  But in this gamefome way.  Milton.  This gamefomef Warden children should rather be encouraged, to keep up their spirits and improve their strength and health, than curbed or restrained.  Addison.  Ga'mesomeness, n. f. [from gamesome.] Sportiveness; merriment.  Ga'mesomely, adv. [from gamesome.] Merrily. 1. One who is vitiosity addicted to play.  Keep a gamefome from the dice, and a good student from his book, and it is wonderful.  Shakespeare.  A gamefome, the greater matter he is in his art, the worse man he is.  Bawm.  Ga'mesters, n. s. [from game.] Laughers.  The whole feast.  Dryden's Journal.  Ga'mester, n. f. [from game.] One that fills a gamefome's place; What agony of soul the feels To see a knave's invented heals.  Swifts.  Her youngelf daughter is run away with a gamefome, a man of great beauty, who in delighting and dazing has no superior.  D'Urf. 2. One who is engaged at play.  When lechery and cruelty play for kingdoms, The gentler gamefome is the foolishest winner.  Shaks.  A man may think, if he will, that these two eyes see no more than one; or that a gamefome teeth always more than a looker-on: but, when all is done, it helps the good of counsel that is which fetheh business flint.  Bacon.  Ga'mer, n. f. [from game.] 3. A merry frolicksome perfon.  You're a merry gamefome, My lord Sandes.  Shakespeare's Henry VIII.  Ga'mest, n. f. [from game.] 4. A prostitute; not in order.  She's impatient, my lord, And was a common gamefome to the camp.  Shaks.  Ga'mer, n. f. [of uncertain etymology; perhaps from grand mere, and therefore used commonly to old women.] The compellation of a woman corresponding to gather, as, Ga'mer Dunton's Neecle.  Age.  Ga'mon, n. f. [gambelle, Italian.] 1. The buttوك of an hog fattened and dried; the lower end of the fitch.  At for what price thy venal tongue was sold: A nitty gammer of some forty years old.  Dryden.  Cowmons, that give a relish to the tale, And potted down and come to fo full, That ere the first is out, the second sinks.  Dryd. 2. A kind of play with dice.  The quick dice, In thunder leaping from the box, awake The founding gammer.  Thomson's Autumn.  Ga'mute, n. s. [game, Italian.] The scale of musical notes.  Madam, before you touch the instrument, To learn the notation is too fanking.  I must begin with rude motions, and at last.  Shaks.  To teach you gamut in a briller fort.  Shakespeare.  When by the gamut some musician make A ported long in others will undertake.  By the same game chang'd, to equal it:  Things sufficiently can never be unjust.  Dryd.  Long has a race of heroes fill'd the stage.  Things that can be done cannot be undone.  When in songs and airs express their mortal rage, Combat in trills, and in a fge expart.  Addison.

GAN

GAN, for began, from 'gin for begin.  The noble knight 'gan to feel His vital force to faint.  Spenser.  To Gâ'ch, n. s. [ganchere, from gancio, a hook, Italian, gance, French.] To drop from a high place upon hooks by way of punishment: a practice in Turkey, to which Smith alludes in his Pothick.  Cohors catus qua placitis Gemini omului, vel maxime trans sumum Lucantor acta, pendevide Sanguinis tristitiam in specie.  Mule Angl.  Ga'nder, n. f. [gander, Saxon.] The male of the goose.  As deep drinketh the goose at the gender.  Chasmd.  One gender will serve live geese.  Mortimer.  To Gâ'ng, n. s. [gang, Dutch; gagan, Saxon; gang, Scotch.] To go; to walk: an old word not now used, except ludicrously.  But let them gang alone, As they have brewed, to let them bear blame.  Arbuthnot. Your flaming beaus gang with their breasts bare.  Ga'ngleion, n. f. [French.] A kind of flower.  Amsworth. Ga'ngleion, n. s. [ganglëan.] A tumour in the tendinous and nervous parts.  Tumours usually formed in delicate, though passibly it be a ganglione, or other crude tumour or preternatural growth of some part of the joint.  Wil. Ga'mere, n. a. [from gangerne.] To produce a gangrene; to mortify.  Parts eristered, gangerneated, lacerated, and mortified, become black, the radical moisture or vital nature suffering an excitation.  Brown's Fol. Eng.  Ga'mere, n. s. [gangerne, French; gangrena, Latin.] A mortification; a stoppage of circulation followed by putrefaction.  This experiment may be transferred unto the cure of gangrene, either coming of themselves, or induced by malice applying malice; the oft-mentioned. Spur.  She fares the lover, as we gangrene say, By cutting hope, like a bpt limb away.  Waller. A dissoluting in the heart was suppos'd an approach of a gangrene.  Wil. The gangrene's Surgey.  If the substance of the soul is faulted with these pithions, the gangrene is gone too far to be ever cured: these infallamations will rage to all eternity.  Addison's Spectator.  To Ga'mere, n. a. [gangrever, French; from the noun.] To corrupt to mortification.  In cold countries, when men's noses and ears are mortified, and, as it were, gangrene with gold, if they come to a fire they rot off presently for that the few spirits that remain in those parts, are suddenly drawn forth, and so putrefaction is made complete.  Laus.  Gangrene'd members must be bop'd away.  Before the nobler parts are tained to decay.  Dryden.  To Ga'mere, n. n. To become mortified.  Wounds immedicable.  Randle and Satter, and gangrene To black mortification.  Milton's Agerfex.  It is a most pady subject to mortification, as in those bodies they are apt to gangrene after openening, if that be not speedily digested out.  W.

G A N G R E N E
The last of that city concerned the Christian commonwealth of mankind, whereafter issued from the opening of that gap to all that fide of Christendom.

3. Any passage.

So stands the Thracian herdsman with his spear; and at the gap and hopes the hunted beast, and he bears him running in the wood.

4. A village.

As straight as that known to all, and in the blind.

5. A breach; a deficiency.

If you violently proceed against him, mischief his purpose, it must make a great gap in your hope.

6. Any interface; a vacancy.

Each one demands, and answer to his part performed in this wide gap of time, henceforth we are differ'd. Shakespeare's Winter's Tale

7. An opening of the mouth in speech during the pronunciation of two consecutive vowels.

The hiatus, or gap between two words, is caused by two vowels opening on each other.

8. To flop a gap.

Is to escape by some stratagem; alluding to hedges meted with dead bulrush, till the quicksetts will grow.

9. To stand in the gap.

To make defence; to expose himself for the protection of something in danger.

What would become of the church, if there were not more concerned for her rights than this? What would hold in the gap? Lofly.

Adj. [gap and tooth]. Having interstices between the teeth.

The receiver, miller, and cook, are distinguished from each other, as much as the memory of poets; and the broad speaking gap-tooth'd wife of Bath.

11. To gap.

U. Oral. To open the mouth wide; to yawn.

Some men there are who love not a gaping pig; some, that madly, if they behold a cat; Shaksper.

Gaping or yawning, and stretching; do pass from man to man; for that causes gaping and stretching is what the spirits are a little heavy by any vapour.

12. To gap.

As to reeds, they are the only things that can be contrived to make a breach.

And thou, who gap'st for my estate; draw near; For I would whisper somewhat in thy ear.

4. With after.

What shall we say of those who spend their days in gapping after court-favour and preferment? L'Estrange.

5. With at.

Many have gap'd at the church revenues; but, before they could swallow them, have had their mouths full of lie and scum.

6. To open in fawdles or holples.

If it suffice me, I will have it; till hell itself should gap.

And bid me hold my peace. Shakespeare's Hamlet.

7. To open a breach.

The place to their lofty curvings walk'd away, North; No yield, and now a yawning breach display.

The roaring waters, with a hostile tide, rush through the ruins of her gap'y side, Dryden.

8. To open; to have an hiatus.

There is not to the best of my remembrance, one vowel gapping on another for want of a cleft in this manner.

9. To make a noise with open throat.

And, if my music can through path ages see, That noisy, naufeous, gaping tool is he. Reffomann.

10. To flare with hope or expectation.

Others will gaps'车辆 operate.

The cabinet designs of size; Apply to wizards, to foretell.

What shall, and what shall never be. Hudibras.

11. To flare with wonder.

Parts of different species jumbled together, according to the mad imagination of the dawer, and the end of all this to cause laughter: a very monster in a flamelike form, far, far from an animal. gap to art. Dryden.

Where elevated over the gaping crevasses, Clafyd's in the board the peregrine head is bow'd, Britton's retreat.

12. To flare irreverently.

They have gap'd upon me with their mouth.

Gapper. n. f. [from gap.]

1. One who opens his mouth.

2. One who flares foolishly.

3. One who longs or craves.

The golden bowels of the droll'd abber-londs rained well near into every gapper's mouth. Cursor.

GAR, in Saxon, signifies a weapon so Endgar is a happy weapon; Ethgar, a noble weapon. Gibbon's Camden.

To GAR, v. a. [giera, Ilandicka.]

To cause; to make. Obsolete. It is still used in Scotland.

Tell me, good Hobbino, what gars thee greet? What! hast some wolf thou art withal? yarne yarn?

Or is thy big gape brokes, that sounds so sweet? Or art thou of thy loud lies forsaken.

GARB. n. f. [garbe, French.]

1. Drie; cloth; habit.

The drie, with words cloth'd! In reason gars, Cowley; I can't garble._ peace and peaceful dress. Milton.

He puts himself into the garb and habit of a professor of physick, and fixes up.

2. Hisian; the tribe in gars. Dryden.

For thy fortune be not thou a flave; thine heart is with the fae before the grave?

3. To defile坲ly; to crave; with far.

To her grim death appears in all her haste; that deep defilement of the tribe of gars. Dryden.

4. To be thy fortune not be thou a slave; if he did not, but emult.

5. 0 2

And
GAR

And when he would like them appear,
Their gars, but not their clothes did wear. Dods.

3. Exteriour appearance.

GAR.

has is Sbake/feire.
wear extremely bruife,
Sbakeffe's
Dia. becomes for Drydcn's
as Prior.
Timfte.
lottJir.
Bucott.
Miller.
culti-
Spectator. depth
[^gargouitkr,Yx<:r\i:\
[from the Sluincy.
Aadifin's
Coarfe
To yafyafi^o';
pretty
The
to much
I.
Garbel.
Card.
to garble (hip. from
The
to feparates wftJi ful gardifis flam
of after nud roughnefs,
gar-grame
Ga'rcet,
French.
Ga'rolion.
Ga'rdener.
m.
GARDEN.
Gar-GARDINING.
m.
GAR,
GARDE.
m.
GARD.
m.
GARDEN.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.
m.
GAR.

juice from a bruise, or the like, which indurates into a hard immovable tumour.

GARGOIL. m.f. A dilletomer in bolts.

The signs of the gargoi are, hanging down of the head, mult eyes, staggering, and lots of appetite.

GARLAND. m. [garlande, garland, Fr.] 1. wreath of branches,
Sheploin, with leavy twigs of laurel-tree,
A garland made, on temples for to wear;
For he then chosen was the dignity
Of village lord that Wodehove's he bore. Sidney.
A reading world will never find upright,
Till Richard wear the garland of the realm.
—How I wear the garland! I don't thou mean the —Ay, my good lord. Shakespear's Richard III.
Then party-coloured flown of white and red
She wore, to make a garland for her head. Dryd.
Vanquish again; though he be gone,
Whole garland crown'd the victor's hair,
And reigns, though the has left the throne,
Who made thy glory worth by care.
Her gods and godlike heroes rise to view,
And all her faded garlands bloom anew.
Shakespear. Allium, Lat.

It has a boubous root, containing of many small tubeless included in its coat: the leaves are plain:
the flowers consist of fix leaves, formed into a coroa, but on the top of the flak; and are succeeded by subula fruit, divided into three cells, which con contain roundish seeds. Miller.

Garlic is of an extremely strong smell, and of an agreeable gracious taste, as may be proved by appling plaiaters of garlick to the feet, which will give a strong smell to the breath. Miller.

Garlic has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

This mortif an union to devour;
Each love of garlic is a wonder,
Religious nations fore, and blest abodes,
Where ev'ry orchard is over-run with gods. Tate.

Garlic has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

Temple.

Garlic is of an extremely strong smell, and of an agreeable gracious taste, as may be proved by appling plaiaters of garlick to the feet, which will give a strong smell to the breath. Miller.

Garlick has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

This mortif an union to devour;
Each love of garlic is a wonder,
Religious nations fore, and blest abodes,
Where ev'ry orchard is over-run with gods. Tate.

Garlic has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

Temple.

Garlic is of an extremely strong smell, and of an agreeable gracious taste, as may be proved by appling plaiaters of garlick to the feet, which will give a strong smell to the breath. Miller.

Garlick has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

This mortif an union to devour;
Each love of garlic is a wonder,
Religious nations fore, and blest abodes,
Where ev'ry orchard is over-run with gods. Tate.

Garlic has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

Temple.

Garlic is of an extremely strong smell, and of an agreeable gracious taste, as may be proved by appling plaiaters of garlick to the feet, which will give a strong smell to the breath. Miller.

Garlick has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

This mortif an union to devour;
Each love of garlic is a wonder,
Religious nations fore, and blest abodes,
Where ev'ry orchard is over-run with gods. Tate.

Garlic has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

Temple.

Garlic is of an extremely strong smell, and of an agreeable gracious taste, as may be proved by appling plaiaters of garlick to the feet, which will give a strong smell to the breath. Miller.

Garlick has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

This mortif an union to devour;
Each love of garlic is a wonder,
Religious nations fore, and blest abodes,
Where ev'ry orchard is over-run with gods. Tate.

Garlic has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

Temple.

Garlic is of an extremely strong smell, and of an agreeable gracious taste, as may be proved by appling plaiaters of garlick to the feet, which will give a strong smell to the breath. Miller.

Garlick has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

This mortif an union to devour;
Each love of garlic is a wonder,
Religious nations fore, and blest abodes,
Where ev'ry orchard is over-run with gods. Tate.

Garlic has, of all our plants, the greatest strength,
affords most nourishment, and supplies most spirits
to those who eat little flesh.

Temple.
GAR

GARROUS, adj. [from garum.] Resembling pickle made of fish.

In a civet-cast an offensive exudate proceeds, partly in food, that being especially fishy, whereas this humour may be a garous excitation, and olidious separation. Brown.

GARRAN, n. s. [Espe. It imports the same as gulling. The word is still retained in Scotland. A small horse; a hobby. A Highland horse, which, when brought into the North of England, takes the name of galloway.

When he comes in, he will make their cows and garrans to walk, if he doth no other harm to their property. Spenser.

Every man would be forced to provide Water-solfer for his team, whereas common garnans flit upon graz a yard round; and this would force men to the docking of lemons, so that the race of garnans would decrease. Temple.

GARRET, n. s. [garrote, the tower of a citadel, French.] 1. A room on the highest floor of the house.

The mob, commissioned by the government, were to demolish an empty garret tenn. Dryden.

John Boll slipped from room to room; ran up stairs and down stairs, from the kitchen to the garret. Chaucer.

On earth the god of wealth was made
Solo patron of the building trade.
Leaving the arts the fabulous air,
With license to build taller there.
And its concord its old pretence,
To lodge in garret, comes from thence. Swift.

The colour of the burning part of rotten wood, by daylight, is in some pieces white, and in some pieces inclining to red, which they call the red and white garrets. Bacon.

GARREYER, n. s. [from garret.] An inhabitant of a garret.

GARRISON, n. s. [garrión, French.] 1. Soldiers placed in a fortified town or castle to defend it.

How oft he said to me,
Thou art no soldier fit for Cupid's garrión. Sidney.

2. Fortified place flored with fellows. When the old Roman wall so fell inconfab, With a new chain of garrións you bind, Waller.

3. The flote of being placed in a fortification for its defence. Some of them that are laid in garrións do not give great heart to. Spenser in Ireland.

To GARRISON, v. a. [from the noun.] To secure by fortresses.

Others those forces join,
Which garrión the conquest near the Rhine. Dryden, Farn.

GARLIC, n. s. [from garlia. Latin. 1. Loquacity; incontinence of tongue; inability to keep a secret. Let me here
Expiation, it pass away in crime,
Shameful garliicity. Milton's Ageant.

2. The quality of talking too much; talkativeness. Some voices of speech must carefully be avoided; first of all, eloquence or garlility. Dry in the Ceri.

GARRULOUS, adj. [garulatus, Latin.] Fratling; talkative.

Old age looks out,
And garriónous reconciles the tests of thyme. Thouf.

GARTER, n. s. [garu, Welsh; jur, French; garv, from gar, Welsh, the binding of the knee.] 1. A string or ribband by which the stocking is held upon the leg.

Let their heads be fecklycomb'd, their blue coats brau'd, and their garrións of an indifferent knife. Skene, Taming of the Shrew.

When we rest in our cloaths we loothen our garters,
And other ligatures, to give the spirits free passage. Ray.

Handsome garters at your knees.
Swift.

There lay three garters, half a pair of gloves,
And all the trumpery of his former loves. Pope.

The mark of the order of the garter, the highest order of English knighthood.
Now by my george, my garter.

—The george, profum'd, hath lost his holy honour.
The garter, blemish'd, pawn'd his knightly virtues.
Shak. R. III.

You owe your Ormond nothing but a fun,
To fill in future times his father's place,
And give the garter of his mother's race. Dryden.

3. The principal king at arms.

To GARTER, v. a. [from the noun.] To bind with a garter.

He, being in love, could not die to garter his hose.
Shak.

A person was wounded in the leg, before the gartering place.
Wigan's Surgery.

GARTH, n. s. [as if gibth, from gidad. The bulk of the body measured by the girdle.

GAS, n. s. [A word invented by the chemists.] It is used by Van Helmont, and seems designed to signify, in general, a spirit not capable of being consolated: but it uses it loosely in many senses.

Harriss.

GASCOINE, n. s. [French; from Gascony, a nation eminent for boating.] A boat; a bravado.

Was it a gasonade to please me, that you fild your fortune was increas'd to one hundred a year since I left you? Swift.

To GASCONE, v. n. [from the noun.] To boat; to braze; to blister.

To GASH, v. a. [from bather, to bathe, fr. Sinker.] To cut deep so as to make a gaping wound; to cut with a blunt instrument so as to make the wound wide. Where the Engineers at arms had been defeated, many of their horses were found grievously gashed or gored to death. Hayward.

Wit is a keen instrument, and every one can cut and gash with it; but to carve a beautiful image requires art.

Tilgham.

See the gash'd with knives, or fear'd with burning steel. Rotter: Royal Cures. Smoking with blood, or bleeding with wounds; He read's, he gna'd, and at the altar fell. Phillips.

GASH, n. s. [from the verb.] 1. A deep and wide wound.

He glancing on his helm, made a large and open gash therein; were not his rage, That broke the violence of his intent, The weary soul from thence it would disengage. Rowe.

A perilous gash, a very limbs lop'd off. Shaks.

Hamilton drove Newton almost to the end of the lift; but Newton on a sudden gave him such a gash on the leg, that therewith he fell to the ground. Hayward.

But neither substance cloud'd
Not long invisible; and from the gash'd
A stream of unclear humour issuing how'd: Milt.

2. The mark of a wound. I know not if this be proper.

I was fond of back-sword and cudgel play, and I now bear in my body many a black and blue gash and fear.

GASKIN, n. s. [from Gaspereine. See GASKIN.] Wide hose; wide breeches.

An old ludicrous word.
If one point break, the other will hold; Or, it both break, your gaskin fail.
Shak.

To GASP, v. n. [from ges, Skinner; from gipsy, Danith; to sob, fumis.]

1. To open the mouth wide; to catch breath with labour.

The
The sick for air before the portal gates.

 Dryden.

They rais'd a feeble cry with trembling noise, But the weak voice di'dn't their gapping throats.

Dryden.

The gaping head flies off, a purple flood Flows from the loos'd gape, and fearlessly could refuge; The breath they drew no longer air, but fire. Dryden.

A tempest of life, a gaping for life, and geometry, and a heated gulf. Dryden.

The rich countrymen in Austria were faint and gapping for breath. Brown's Travels.

Pain and faint,

he gapes for breath; and, as his life flows from him,

Demands to see his friends. Addison's Cato.

2. To emit breath by opening the mouth convulsively.

I lay down to gape my latest breath; The voices will get a breakfast by my death. Dryden.

He flutters round, his eyeballs roll in death,

And with short sobs he gapes away his breath. Dryden's Anacreon.

5. To long for. This ffen is he, I think, not proper, as nature never expresses desire by gapping;

The Cadian and his wife had the comfort to be under the same master, who, seeing how dearly they loved one another, and gaped after their liberty, demanded a most exorbitant price for their ransom. Spedator.

Gasp. n. s. [from the verb.]

1. The act of opening the mouth to catch breath.

2. A short catch of breath in the last agonies.

His fortunes all lie speechless, and his name

Is at last gape. Shakespeare's Cymbeline.

Ah, Warwick, Montague, hath bred his last breath, and

A beautiful racer laid our for Warwick, Shakespeare.

If in the dreadful hour of death,

If at the latest gape of breath,

When the world romance knows your brow,

You hope for mercy, thou art now. Addison.

To Gasp. v. a. [from gape, Saxon. See Agast.] To make agast, to fright; to thock; to terrify; to fear; to affray.

When he saw my arm disarmed spirits

Bold in the quare and right, roused to the encounter,

Or whether gape'd by the noise I made, Full suddenly he told, Shakespeare's King Lear.

Ga'trick. adj. [from gazeg.] Belonging to the belly.

Ga'trophy. n. s. [gaze and gaster.]

In the art of cymology signifies no more than seeing up any wound of the belly; yet in common acceptance it implies, that the wound of the belly is complicated with another of the intestine. Sharp's Surgery.

Ga'tromomy. n. s. [gaze and virga.]

The act of cutting open the belly.

Gat. The pretter of get.

Make a gat up in the moment. Ex. xxi. 13.

Gate. n. s. [gate, Saxon.]

1. The door of a city, castle, palace, or large building.

Open the gate of mercy, gracious God!

My foul flies through these wounds to seek thee, Shak.

The gates of monarchs.

Are arch'd so high, that giants may jest through,

And keep their impious burdens on, without

Good-morrow to the sun. Shakespeare's Cymbeline.

2. A frame of timber uppon hinges to give a passage into inclosed ground.

Know'lt thou the way to Dover?

Both file and gate, horoway and footpath. Shak.

3. An avenue; an opening.

Austria did done nothing but wildly and politely,

In her way. We were both together by the ear with Tull,

And opening a gate for a long war. Kates.

Ga'tvein. n. s. The eua porta.

Gat. Being a king, his loved wealth, he could not and have to trade, nor any obligation to continue in the gateurin which disbled that blood.

Henry's VII.

Gateway. n. f. [gate and way.] A way through gates of inclosed grounds.

To gather, to bring into one place.

Gatherer. n. a. [gather, Saxon.]

1. To collect; to bring into one place.

Gatherer-roosts—and they took stones and made an heap.

2. To get in harvest.

The seventh year we shall not, nor gather in our increase.

3. To pick up; to glean.

His opinions

Have satisfied the king for his divorces,

Gather'd from all the famous colleges. Shakes.

Gat up highway, gather out the stotes.

If i. II. 10.

I will spend this premiere upon those from whom I have gathered my knowledge; for I am but a gater.

Wotton.

To pay the creditor, that lent him his rent, he must gather up money by degrees.

Lacke.

4. To crop; to pluck.

What have I done?

To see my youth, my beauty, and my love

With no greater care, but flighted and betray'd;

And like a Sylvia from the Falls,

But only finds, and cheaply throws aside,

To wither on the ground! Dryden's Spanish Fryar.

5. To assemble.

They have gathered themselves together against me.

All the way we went were gathered some people on both sides, standing in a row. Bacon.

6. To heap up; to accumulate.

He that by nature unjustly gain increaseth his substance, shall gather him that will pity the Prover. v. 7.

To seek and take.

Save us, O Lord, and gather us from among the heathen, to give thanks unto thy holy name.

Eccles. vii. 47.

8. To sweep together.

The kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind.

Matt. xiii. 47.

9. To collect charitable contributions.

10. To bring into one body or interest.

I will gather others to him, besides those that are gathered; for I have gathered them in mine own name.

Mark. i. 28.

11. To draw together from a state of diffusion; to compress; to contract.

Immu'rally Tully states.

The Roman under deed d the carful's throne!

Gathering by his flowing robe he seem'd to stand,

In apeak, and graceful stretch'd his hand. Pope.

12. To gain.

He gathers ground upon her in the chase;

New breath, upon her hair with sweet pace. Dryden.

13. To pucker needlework.

14. To collect logically; to know by inference.

That which, out of the law of reason or of God, men probably gathering to be expedient, they make it law. Hooker.

The reason that I gather he is mad,

Is a mad tale he told to-day at dinner,

Of his own door being brought against his entrance. Shak.

After all had the vision, we endeavoured to get into Macedonia, assured gathering that the Lord had called us. Acts.

From this doctrine of the increasing and thickening of fin in this respect, we may gather, that all sins are not alike and equal, as the stakes of ancient times, and their followers, have falsely imagined. Perkins.

Return'd

By right, and listening where the heape's pair

Sat in their sad difficulties, and various plight,

Thence gather'd his own doom. Milton's Par. Lost.
G A V
With bracelets of thy hair, rings, gaudes, conceits,Knacks,2 marks, nosegays sweetmeats. Shakespeare.
The fun is heard in the proud day,Attended with the pleasures of the world,Is all too wanton, and too full of gaudes,To give motion. Shakespeare, King Lear.
My love to Herma
I fret at the snow: seems to me now,As the remembrance of an idle gaud,Which, in my childhood, I did not unsee. Shakespeare.

To GAUDE. v. a. [gauge, gauge, a measuring rod, French. It is pronounced, and often written, gage.]
1. To measure with respect to the contents of a vessel.
2. To measure with regard to the proportions of a vessel.
The vases nicely gauged on each side, broad on one side, and narrow on the other, both which minister to the generation of the bird. Derham's Physico-Theology.

There is nothing more perfectly admirable in itself than that artificial manner in Homer, of taking measures or gauging his heroes by each other, and thereby elevating the character of one person by the opposition of size to some other he is made to excel. Pope.

GAUGE. n. f. [from the verb.] A measure; a standard.
This plate must be a gage to fire your worm and grove to equal breadth. Moon's Med. Ever. If money were to be hired, as land is, or to be had from them failing, it might then be had at the market rate, which would be a constant gage of your trade and wealth. Locke.

Timely gauged to his mirthful, that the should enter no frolic in their heads above four foot seven inches high; and for that purpose gauged a gage, by which they were to be measured. Arber.

GAUCER. n. f. [from gage.] One whose business is to measure vessels or quantities. Those eels and dukes have been privileged with royal judicature, and appointed their special officers, as sheriff, gauger, and etchman. Carv. Corn. Carniv. Gaunt.

GAUNT. adj. [As gc'vant, from cernan, to lefion, saxon.] Thin; tender; lean; meagre.
Oh, how this name befits my composition! Old Gaunt, indeed, and gaunt to be seen; Within me grief hath kept a tedious fast; And who abhairs from meat that is not gauze? For deeping England long time have I watch'd; Watching breeds leanness, leanness is all gauze; The pleasure that some fathers feel upon My brisk fast I mean my children's looks; And thence arises, that made me gauze: Gaunt am I for the grave, gaunt am I for the grave, Whole hollow womb inchoats nought but bones. Shak. R. II.

Two mailiffs, gauze and grim, her perilous, And left their fasts' and fangs in blood embitter. Dryden.

G A V I L L Y. adv. [from gaudy.] Showily; splendidly; pompously; ostentatiously; fine.
Cosily thy habitat, thy purif can hold.
But not express in fancy: rich, not gaudy.
For this apparel do proclaim the man. Shakespeare.
Fauns painted with florid gules polish, Atchick and numbrestick.
As the gay motes that peep the sun-beams, Milton.
A gaudy place I saw, and with gaudy pride
Of painted plumes, that hoped to shine to side to side. Dryden.

The Dorian duke his brigades leads,
Galatin in arms, and gaudies to behold.
A man who walks directly to his journey's end, will arrive richer much sooner than he who wanders side to gage at every thing, or to gather every gaudy flower you find in your path. Warton.

It is much to be lamented, that perfons so perfectly qualified to be great examples of piety, should, by an erroneous education, receive rude poor and gaudy spectacles of the greatest virtues. Law.

GAUDY. n. f. [gaudium, Latin.] A festival; a day of plenty. A word used in the federal.
He may have content with a bit of to-day, that is 90 of a gaudy in-morning. Chaucer.

GAV. The pretence of grieve.
Thou canst not every day give me thy heart; If thou canst not give it, then thou never gav'st it. Love's Labours.
Lovers are not, that though they heart depart, It stays at home, and thou with love liv'st. Dante.

G A V E L. n. f. A provincial word for ground. Let it be upon the ground or gavel eight or ten days. More.

G A V E L I N D. n. f. [In law.] A session, where the lands of the father are equally divided at his death among all his sons, or the land of the brother equally divided among the brothers, if he have no issue of his own. This custom is of force in divers places of England, but especially in Kent. Cowell.

Among other Welsh customs he abolished that of gavelkind, whereby the tiers female were entirely excluded, and the ballards, did inherit as well as the legitimates, which is the true Irish gavelkind. Davies on Ireland.

G A V E. A kind of thin transparent filk.

G A Z
Silken cloaths were used by the ladies, and in fees they were thin, like gauze. Arber.
Brooches and dimicks, and tattles and gauzes. Arbuthnot.
Are lately brought over.

2. A fellow with a squint.

In both sexes it is used in Scotland.

GAZ. n. f. [corrupted for galloon] A small tub, or ludings. A provincial word.

GA'N'FEE. n. f. [Scoth.] A wooden frame on which beer-casks are fet when turned.

GAY. adj. [gog, French.] 1. Airy; cheerful; merry; frolick.
Smooth flow the waves, the cypresses gently play; Belinda fidel'd, and all the world was gay. Pope.
Ev'n civil with Old Virtue's foe, and the gay mound'd, who never mount'd before. Pope.

GAY. n. f. [from the adjective.] An ornament; an embellishment.
Morose and untractable spirits look upon precepts in jargon, as they do upon goss and pictures, the footsoldiers of so many old wives' tales. Gay.

Gay. v. t. [from gaye.] 1. Cheerfulness; airiness; fretfulness.
And from those gaieties our youth requires To exclaim their minds, our age retires. Denham.

3. Finery; show; Our gavetys and sar guile are all babsh'm'ch, With rainy marching in the pleasant field. ShakESP.

G A Y L Y. adv. 1. Merrily; cheerfully; airily.
2. Splendidly; pompously; with great show.

To the ladies, gaudy dci'd and the Moll Adam With curious dishes, and paint the funny morn. Gay. Like some gay fellow, that early spring suppiles. Gage. The gosly blooms, but ev'n in blooming dies. Pope.

G A Y N E S. n. f. [from goy] Gayety; finery.
Not much in it.

To GAZE. v. n. [a-gaze, or rather gyanecan, to see, Saxon] To look intently, and earnestly; to look with eagerness.
What feel thou there? King Henry's diadem, Lest it partake with all the honours of the world; If goe, gauze dely and the Moll Adam. Pope.
From some the cait and her maid eyes below. At some her gaye glasses raving flew. Fallow. Gaye. This is a smal'd, that thou fall not by those things that are precious in the sight of Gaiety. Pope. A lover's eyes will gaze an eagle blind. Shakespeare. Highuminium tumtumis, but shant create; None think the great unhappy, but the great. Fool's gaze on envy! Envyle darts a thing, Which makes a wain as stretched as a king. Young.

To GAZE. v. o. To view fledgefully. Staint toward heath's my wondering eyes I turn'd, And gauze dible the ampe. Milton.

G A Z E. n. f. [from the verb.]
1. Intent regard; look of eagerness or wonder; fixed look; being lightened'd with her beauty's beam, And thence she drew a happy influence, And lifted up above the world in gazing. Spenser.
Do but note a wild and wanton herd, If he of muck frets the ampe eyes. Milton. Thou shalt perceive them a mutual band, Their gazing eyes turn'd to a model gage, By the sweet power of muck. Shakespeare.

'Fore your queen dy'd, she was more worth than gueze Than what you look on now. Shakespeare.
With secret gazer.
Or open admiration, him behold.
On whom the great Creator hath bestowed! World. Milton's Paradise Lost. E.
GEA

Fenrir is a dark writer, women wages connexion as to our useless toiners, who resists out of sight, and Adjun's readers at a gaze.

Dryden.

After having flound at gaze before this gate, he discovered an inscription. Adjun's Freetholder.

2. The object gazed.

I must die
Betray'd, expiring, and both my eyes put out;
Made of my enemies the room and gaze;
To guard in brass letters, under this.
With my heav'n-gifted strength. Milton's Agonist.

GAZEL. n. s. An Arabian deer.

Gazer, n. s. [from gaze.] He that gazed;
One that looks intently with eagerness or admiration.
In her checks the vivril red did shine,
Like eyes in a bed beset their bed.
The which among all flowers from them throng
And gazer fêlê with double pleurec fed. Fortune St.,
I'll lay more gazers than the ballets. Shaksp.
Bright as the sun, her eyes the gazer strike!
And like the fun, they shine on all alike.
His learned idea give him a transcendent delight;
And yet, at the same time, discover the blemishes
Which the common gazier never observed. Watts
Gazeful, adj. [gaze and full.] Looking intently.
The brightness of her beauty clear,
The check she had found wondrous was rea
To admiration of that heavenly light. Spenser.

GAZEHOUND. n. s. [gaze and hound; canis agallus, Skinner.] A hound that pursues not by the scent, but by the eye.
See thou the gazehound, how with glance severe
From the close beak he marks the defin'd preset.

Gazette.-n. s. [gazette is a Venetian halfpenny, the price of a news paper, of which the first was published at Venice.]
A paper of news; a paper of publilk intelligence. It is accented differently on the first or last syllable.
And sometimes when the los is small,
And danger great, they challenge all;
Print new additions to their feats,
And even tomes in gazettes. Hudibras.
An English gentleman, without geography, cannot well understand a gazette. Locke.

Gazetteer.-n. s. [from gazette.]
1. A writer of news.
2. A man appointed to publish news by authority, whom Steele calls the lowest minister of state.
Satire is no more; I feel it die.
No gazetteer more innocent than I. Pope.

GazinSTOCK. n. s. [gaze and stock.] A perfen gazet with form or abhorrence. These things are usages to us, by making us gaze full socks to others, and objects of their form and decision.
Ray.

GazoN. n. s. [French.] In fortification pieces of front in which covered with glass, in form of a wedge, about a foot long,
and half a foot thick, to line parapets and the traverses of galleries. Harris.

GEA. n. s. Gypsun, to cloath; gapepe, sufficient, Saxon.

3. Furniture; accoutrements; dress; habit; ornaments.
Array thyself in her most gorgeous garments. Fairy L.2.

GEF. He broke through.

He broke through. Fairfax.

When once she re

When once her eye

When she viewed the visage of this magic dress,
I shall have some harmless villains,
Whom thrift keeps up about his country gear. Mill.
GENE
To the munificent man.

Gayly conceived.

Religious Generation.

Thirty-three, and progeny.

Suetonius.

Prolific.

Moyle.

Quinville.

Milton.

The virtues of generous, magnanimous; liberality.

Can he be better principled in the grounds of true virtue and generosity than his young tutor is? He would not have been your generosity to have passed by such a fault as this.

Lack.

GENEROUS. adj. [generous, Latin; generous, French.]

1. Not of mean birth; of good extraction.

2. Noble of mind; magnificent; open of heart.

A generous virtue of a vigorous kind, pure in the left recessive of the mind.

Deddy.

That generous boldness to defend

An innocent cause.

Swift.

The generous critic fain'd the poet's fire,

And taught the world with reason to admire.

Pope.

Such was the Reformation, not more learned than good,

With manners generous at his noble head.

Pope.

The generous gods who wit and gold revere,

And ripen spirits as he ripens mines.

Pope.

His generous soul, Thanes, heavenly half,

Nutrit'd the young stranger with a mother's care.

Pope.

Pray for others in such forms, with such length, importunity, and earthenness, as you seke for yourself;

And you will find a natural path leading away,

In the common happiness of others, as you yield only to delight in your own.

Law.

It is used of animals. Spritely; daring; courageous.

The imperial eagle does not fly

Till the whole carcasse he devour,

As his generous hunger underhold.

To make his fortune.

Though he eats of that vile food,

He only robs the taintless blood.

Cowley.

Addison.

Admire.

When from his void the young companion bore

The cup the generous landlord would bestow,

And paid generous honors on the sign

The flouted kindred of this churlish fool.

Parnell.

Fall by the margin of her native food.

Whole wealthy waters are well known to fame,

Fare as the bordering flowers the prince's feast.

And rich in beauty as the generous stream. Heigh.

Strong; vigorous.

Having in a digestive furnace drawn off the ancient spirit from those good frieck, of the phlegm, even in this generous wine, was copious.

Boyle.

Those who in southerm climates complain

From Phtho's wounds to bee

Mall own that pain be well repaid,

By generous wines beneath a shade.

Swift.

GENEROUSLY. adv. [from generous.]

1. Not meanly with regard to birth.

2. Magnanimously; nobly.

When all the fruits of heaven have forsook,

Yet generously he doth his arms withhold.

Dryd.

3. Liberally; munificently.

GENEROUSNESS. n. [from generous.]

The quality of being generous.

Is it possible to conceive that the overflowings generousness of these ancient philosophers in their general彬al bearings with means or various principles? Collier.

GENESIIS. n. [YHWH; genealogical, French, English; generation; the first book of Moses, which treats of the production of the world.

GENET. n.s. [French. The word originally signified a hermaphrodite, and perhaps a gentleman or knight.] A small-sized well-proportioned Spanish horse.

You'll have your nephew neigh to you; you'll have couriers for conduct, and genius for grace.

Shakespeare.

Observe. It is no more likely that frogs should be engendered in the clouds, than Spanish genet be begotten by the wind.

Shakespeare.

He flows his statue too, where plac'd on birch.

The genet underneath it seems to fly.

Dryd.

GENETTI A.C. adj. [genettine, French, Italic, Latin.]

Tender to meat, and well calculated by alchemists, shewing the configurations of the stars at any birth.

The night immediately before he was fighting the art of these foolish allogrotes, and generical philosophers, that use to play into the knowledge of natures.

Hercules Virgil.

He who calculates natures.

The truth of astrological predictions is not to be referred to the considerations: the generiack considers by the disposition, temper, and complexon of the peron.

Drayton.

GENETTE n.s. [from genetti.]

A corruption of genesse, French, a juniper.

We used to keep a dilisious fruite water of juniper in the flate. At present only a better kind is distilled from the juniper-berries; what is commonly called made with me, and less than one of turpentine, put into the flate, with a little common salt and the corest spirit.

Herrick's Virgil.

GENIAL adj. [genital, Latin.]

1. That which contributes to propagation.

2. And with mysterious reverence I deem.

Milton.

Creator Venus, genial power of love.

The bliss of men below and gods above.

Dryden.

That gives cheerfulness or supports life.

Will not the light of life continue long.

But yields to double darkness night and dark.

So much I feel my genial spirit doop.

Milton.

3. Natural; native.

1. He chiefly proceeded from natural incapacity, and genial indisposition.

Brown's Vulgar Errors.

GENIALLY. adv. [from genital.]

1. By genius; naturally.

Some men are genially disposed to some objection, and naturally averse to others.

Glanville.

2. Gayly; cheerfully.

GENICULATE. adj. [geniculatus, Latin.]

Knotted; joined.

A piece of some geniculated plant seeming to be a part of a figurate.

Génération. n. [from genital, Latin.]

Knottingse; the quality in plants of havin' knots or joints.

GENIO. n.s. [genio, Italian; genius, Lat.]

A man of a particular turn of mind.

Some genies are not capable of pure affection; and a man is born with talents for it as much as for Talies.

Talies.

GENITALI. s. [genitalis, Latin.] Parts belonging to generation.

Ham is conceived to be Jupiter, who was the youngest son, who is said to have cut off the infant.

Browne.

GENITING. n.s. [A corruption of Jane.

French, signifying Jane or Janet; having been so called in honour of some lady of that name; and the Scotch dialect calls them Janet apples, which is the same fruit, sometimes Hereditary; Elegantly Otway's Fairy. Several
Gentilism, n. f. [gentilis, Latin.] In grammar, the name of a case, which, among other relations, signifies one be-gong of the same gentle kind; or one be-ting, as of a father.

GENIUS, n. f. [Latin; gentile, French.] 1. The protecting or ruling power of men, places, or things.

There is none but he.
Whole being I do fear, and, under him, My gentle reign a fall doth hold. Anony's Vceca. Shakespeare's Macbeth. The genius and the mortal instruments are not, in Council; and the state of man, Like to a little kingdom, fuller then. Skakespeare.

And as I awake, sweet midnight's breath, Sent by some spirit to mortals good, Orth'rous genius of the wood. Milton.

And the same demon that should guard my throne, Shrieks at a genius greater than his own. Dryden.

To your glad geniusfacilitate this day; Let every muse and genius give their song. Dryden.

2. A man endowed with superior faculties. There is no little writer of Printirk in who is not mentioned as a prodigious genius. Addison.

3. Mental power or faculties. The genius of the best poet, the genius of that royal dame. Waller.

4. Disposition of nature by which any one is qualified for some peculiar employment. A happy genius is the gift of nature. Dryden.

A happy genius, and happy genius for natural history, is a better preparation for enquiries of this kind than all the dead learning of the fecond age. Newton's Optics. Preface.

One science only will one genius fit; So vail it is art, so narrow human will. Pope on Ciceros.

The Romans, though they had no great geniuses for trade, yet were not unskilled in the proclivities of its Arbeuth.

5. Nature; disposition; Studious to please the genius of the times, With periods, points, and tropes, he flunn his critics.

Another genius and disposition improper for philo- sophical contemplations, is not so much from the narrowness of their understandings, as because they would not allow the time of contemplation.

He tames the genius of the stubborn plain. Pope.

GENTLE, adj. [gent, old French.] Gentle; soft; gentle; polite. A word now dif-used.

Veepsham, with great spoil and rage, Forewasted all: 'till Genius gent, Perfounded him to craze.
Fairy Queen. She was that noble, wise, as fair and gent, Caly bow the might their harmless lives preserve.

GENTLEEL, adj. [gentil, French.] 1. Polit: elegant in behaviour; civil.

He had a gentler manner of binding the chains of this kingdom than most of his predecessors. Swift.

Their goal in an motion of gentle comedy, and fall into the most filthy double meanings when they have a mind to make their audience merry.

Addison on Italy.

2. Graceful in mien.

So spruce he that can never be genteele. Tatter.

3. Elegantly drest.

Several ladies that have twice her fortune, are not able to shew what they always are, and to confist at all places ofpleasure and expense. Launc.

GENTLELY, adv. [from gentile.] 1. Elegantly; politely.

Those that would be genteelie learned, need not look at it, as the dear rate of being able Men. Glanv.

After a long fatigue of eating and drinking, and babbling, he concludes the great work of dining gen-tely.

2. Gracefully; handomely.

GENTLENESS, n. f. [from gentilic.] 1. Elegance; gracefulness; politeness.

He had a geni us full of gentilic and spirit, having nothing that was ungraceful in his posture and actions. Dryd. Dufaus.

Paramegiano has dignified the gentilic of modern elegancy, by uniting it with the simiplicity of the ancients, and the grandeur and severity of Mi- chael Angelo. Reynolds.

2. Qualities befitting a man of rank.

GENTILIAN, n. f. [gentilis, French; gentiliana, Latin.] Felwort or baldmomy.

The root of gentilic is large and long, of a tolerable firm texture, and remarkably tough; it has a faint, and disagreeable smell, and an extremely bitter taste.

If it be fusible, and the office small, dilute it with gentilic roots. Wifeman's Surugy.

GENTILIZ'LLA, n. f. A kind of blue color.

GENTILISSE, n. f. [French.] Complai- nance; civility. Not used.

She with her wedding-clouts undertakes Her complaisance and gentilissime. 6. Cicer.

But in the apothecaries, it would have looked like the introducing of gentillic again. Stillingfleet.

GENTILITIOUS, adj. [gentilisius, Latin.] 1. Endemical; peculiar to a nation.

That an unvarying odour is gentillicus, or national unto the Jews, reason or sense will not induce. Brow.

2. Hereditary; entailed on a family.

The common cause of this difference is a certain sort of hereditary disposition of body. Arbeuth.

GENTILITY, n. f. [gentilis, French; from gentil, French; gentila, Latin.]

1. Good extraction; dignity of birth.

2. Elegance of behaviour; gracefulness of mien; note.

3. Gentr; the clasr of persons well born.

Gavel-kind must needs in the end, make a poor gentility. Davies on Ireland.

4. Paganim; heathenism.

When people began to eyy the fallhood of oracles, whereupon all was built, their hearts were utterly averted from it. Hook.

5. GENTLE, adj. [gentilis, Latin.] 1. Well born; well defended; ancient, though not noble.

They entering and killing all of the gentle and rich fallen, for honesty fake open all estates. Sidery.

These are the fludiers wherein our noble and gentle youth ought to betray their time. Milton on Edaca.

2. Soft; bland; mild; tame; meek; peaceable.

I am one of those gentle ones that will use the devil himself with courtesy. Skakespeare. Twelfligh Night.

Her voice was ever soft.

Gentle and low; an excellent thing in woman, Skak.
GEN

GENTLEMANLIKE. adj. [gentlemanly and GENTLEMANLY. like.] Becoming a man of birth.

He holdeith himself a gentleman, and forseth to work, be he faith, is the life of a peafant or churl; but encourage him to his weapon, and to the gentlemanly trade of stealing.

Spenser.

He is a sweet-faced man; a proper man as one small fee in Summer's day; a most lovely Gentlemanlike man.

Shakespeare.

You have train'd me up like a peafant, hiding from me all gentlemanly qualities.

Shakspeare.

Two clergymen fland candidates for a freethinker, where a gentleman procured the place for the better felhor and more gentlemanly pajanion of the two.

Swift.

GENTLENESS. n.f. [from gentle.]

1. Dignity of birth; goodness of extraction.

2. Softness of manners, sweetness of disposition;
meekness, tenderness.

My lord Sebastian.

The truth, you speak, doth lack some gentleness.

Shakespeare.

Your brave and haughty form of all,
Was lately and monarchical.
All gentleness with that grace;
A dull and long since seem'd.

Gay.

Still the retinas
Her maiden gentleness, and oft at eve
Visits him, to grace them.

Milton.

The perpetual gentleness, and inherent goodness of the Ormond Family. Dryden's Fables, Ded. Changers are brought forth silently and insensibly, with all imaginable gentleness and gentleness;
Woodward's Natural History.

Matters must correct their servants with genlemanly, prudence, and mercy.

Dr. Johnson.

Women ought not to think of gentleness heart dependable in a man.

Clarissa.

The gentleness of all the gods go with thee. Shak.

GENTLESHIP. n.f. [from gentle.] Carrying on a gentlemanly Obsolete.

Some in Fenmore, which will needs be gentlemen, have more gentleship in their hat than in their head.

Auburn's Schoolmaster.

GENTLEWOMAN. n.f. [gentle and woman.]

See Gentleman.

1. A woman of birth above the vulgar; a woman well defended.

The gentlewomen of Rome did not suffer their infants to be so long swathed as poorer people. Abbot.

Doth this Sir Prothears.

Often was it said unto this gentleman. Shakespeare.

Gentlewomen may do themselves much good by kneeling upon a pillow, and weeding. Bacon.

2. A woman who waits the person of one of high rank.

The late queen's gentleman, a knight's daughter,
To be her mistress' milkmaid. Shak. Henry VIII.

Her gentlewomen, like the noisier,
So many mermaids, tending her 'tis eyes,
And make their bend adoring.

Shakspear.

A word of civility or irony.

Now, gentlewoman, you are confounding your emotions; I know it by that hypercritical downcast look.

Cotly. n.f. [from gentle.]

1. Softly; meekly; tenderly; insouffrably; kindly.

My mistress gently chides the fault I made. Dryd.

The milk-clath that come by inadvertency, or irregular, are but very gently to be taken notice.

Lack.

2. Softly; without violence.

Forbear's blow.

When mock'd drunk home, being heavily warded, crost
An apple cunning.

Shakspear. Corinbans.

A sort of great bar, as men lay alley with their legs naked, will fuck their flesh at a wound to fervise a groat as not to awake them. Crew's Navy.

GENTRY. n.f. [gentility, gentility, from gent.-]

1. Birth; condition; rank derived from inheritation.

You are certainly a gentleman,
Like such a gentleman, which no one else adorns.

Our gentrans are not our parent's noble name.

In whose success we are gentle. Shaks. Wint. Tale.

2. Cliffs of people above the vulgar; those between the vulgar and the nobility.

They laugh at a great deal of the gentrify, for whom no tax or age could be accepted for excise. Sidney.

Let those, that aim at greatness, take heed how their nobility and gentry multiply too fast.

Bacon.

How cheerfully the lawcourt!

A fars, and the gentry buy.

Swift.

3. A term of civility real or ironical.

The many coloured gentry there above,
By turns are ruled by tomahawk and by love.

Prior.

Show us in much gentrify and good-Will,
As to extend your time with us a while.

Shakespeare.

GENUfION. n.f. [genufion, French;
genius, and er/cts, Latin.] The act of bending
the knee; adoration expressed by bending the knee.

Here we all the rites of adoration, genufion, worships, indecency, oblation; prayers only expected.

Stilling feet.

GENUINE. adj. [genuine, Latin.] Not spurious; not counterfeit; real; natural; true.

Experiments were at one time tried with genuine materials, and at one time with sophificated ones.

Boyle.

The belief and remembrances, and love and fear of God, have go great influence to make men religious, that where any of these is, the rest, together with the true and genuineeffects of them, are supposed to be.

Bliflofus.

A sudden darkness covers all;
True genuine night: night added to the groves.

Dyer.

GENUINELY. adv. [from genuine.] Without adulteration, without foreign admixtures;
naturally.

There is another agent able to analize compound bodies less violently, more genuinely, and more universally than the fire.

Boyle.

GENUINESS. n.f. [from genuine.] Fredom from any thing counterfeit; freedom from adulteration; purity; natural state.

It is not essential to the genuine nature of colours to be durable.

Boyle.

GENUS. n.f. [Latin.] In science, a class of being, comprehending under it many species;
as quadrupedis is a genus comprehending under it almost all terrestrial beasts.

A general idea is called by the schools genus, and it is one common nature agreeing to several other common natures so minimal is a genus, because it agrees so bosom, but in a natural, and by birth.

Wilkes.

If minerals are not convertible into another Species, through of the same genus, much less can they be formed reducible into, into species of another genus.

Marsh on Caramanian.

GEOMETRICAL. adj. [from geometry.] Relating to the art of measuring surfaces;
comprehending or showing the art of measuring land.

GEOMographer. n.f. [from geography;
GEO

1. GEOGRAPHY
   - adj. [geomet, Latin] Carrying, bearing.
   - Geographia. n. s. A bird of prey, in size between a vulture and a hawk, and of the greatest strength next to the eagle. Bailey.
   - German. n. s. [German, French; germanus, Latin.] Brother; one approaching to a brother in proximity of blood: thus the children of brothers or sisters are called cousins, german, the only fene which in the word is now used.
   - They knew it was their cousin, the famous Amulius. Sydney.
   - And to him fald, go now, proud miscreant.
   - Thyself the game, the fearless Fairy Queen.
   - Went thou a bear, thou wouldst kill’d by the horse; went thou a horse, thou wouldst be fa’d by the leopard; went thou a leopard, thou went germ to the lion, and the facts of thy kindred were justice on thy life.
   - Shakespeare’s Timon.
   - You’ll have your nephews neigh to you; you’ll have courters for cousins, and geneas for germans.

2. GEOGRAPHIZE. v. a. [geo- + graphize, verb.] To act according to the laws of geometry. We obtained good store of crystals, whose figures were so curious, though prettily shaped, as if nature had as much to do in their figures, as yet confined herself to geometry. Boyle.

GESTALT. n. s. [geista, Latin.] The act of bearing the young in the womb.

GESTATION. n. s. [gestation, Latin; gestilit, French. To play antick tricks; to few putures.

GEOGRAPHIZE. v. a. *[geografi, Latin; geographia, French. To act according to the laws of geometry. We obtained good store of crystals, whose figures were so curious, though prettily shaped, as if nature had as much to do in their figures, as yet confined herself to geometry. Boyle.

GEOGRAPHICAL. adj. [geopa + graphical, adjective.] Relating to agriculture; relating to the cultivation of the ground. Such expressions are frequent in author geographica.

GEOGRAPHIST. n. s. [geography, verb. The science of cultivating the ground; the doctrine of agriculture.

GEORGE. n. s. [German, Latin.]

1. A figure of St. George on horseback worn by the knights of the garter.

2. Show; representation. Gefe should be intercalated after the Perian manner, by ages, young and old.

3. The roll or journal of the several days, and stages prefixed, in the progresse of our kings, many of them being still extant in the herald’s office. [from gyle, or gire, French.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.

GET. v. a. [(O.S. get, to gain, take, sec. to gain, take, etc.], to have, obtain. To accompany with action or posture. Our strife disheartish it, it is not orderly read, nor gaffarem as beffemeth. Jacky.

He undertook to to gaffe and muffe up himself in his band, as the duke’s manner was, that he should discern him. Witten.
10. To learn.

This defect he frequently lamented, it being harder with him to get one sermon by heart than ten.

Get by heart the more common and useful words of the Gallican church. Warr.

11. To procure to be.

I shall show how we may get it thus informed, and afterwards preserve, and keep it so.

Shall.

12. To put into any flate.

Nature taught them to use certain veils of a tree, which they get down, not with castings, but with fire. Take no splints, whatever the doth say.

Seek, get the leaf mean away. Shak.

Whose attempts to get another man into his absolute power, does thereby put himself into a state of war with him. Locke.

Experience was by far forth, they might be pretty well kept, to get them a little into heart. Monti.

He, who was taken up in emboniting the bodies, vitiated the place very frequently; his greatest perplexity was how to get the lovers out of it, the gates being watched. Guardian.

13. To prevail on; to induce.

Though the king could not get her to engage in a life of belief, he made her however his chief companion. Spenser.

14. To draw; to hook.

With much conversation will he tempt thee, and feigning upon thee get all the secrets. Esdras, iii. 9.

By the marriage of his grandon Ferdinand he get into his family the kingdoms of Bohemia and Hungary.

He.

15. To betake; to remove; implying haste or danger.

Get you to bed in thick'ning; I will be return'd forthwith here. Shakespeare's Globe.

16. To remove by force or art.

She was quickly got off the land again, Kneel.

The roving fumes of quicksilver, in evaporating, would oftentimes fallen upon the gold in such plenty, as would put him much to trouble to get them off from his hand. Boileau.

When mercury is get by the help of the fire out of a metal, or other mineral body, we may suppose this quicksilver to have been a perfect body of his own kind.

They would be glad to get off those weeds which their own hands have planted, and which now have taken too deep root to be easily extricated. Locke.

17. To put.

Get on thy boots; we'll ride all night. Shak.

18. To get off.

To fell or disposfe of by some expedient.

Wood, to get his halfe price off, offered an hundred years in his coin for twenty in silver. Swift.

To get G.

1. To arrive at any state or posture by degrees with some kind of labour, effort, or difficulty; used either of persons or things.

Phalantus was enthrall'd, and few their hour with him, but could not get out. Sidney.

You know he walk'd or perils, on an edge.

The stranger shall get up above thee very high, and then shall come down very low. Dryden, xxi. 33.

The sweets of life, and devices he had to get from the hounds, and the cat said he had but one, which was to climb a tree. Bacon.

That which are very cold, and especially in their feet, cannot get to sleep. Bacon's Natural History.

I utterly condemn the practice of the latter times, that some who are picked for thrifts, and were faire, should get out of the mill. Bacon's Advices to Killers.

2. To gain in profit.

Though creditors will lose one fifth of their principal and use, and barbarous one fifth of their income, yet the debtors and tenants will not get it.

Locke.

3. To gain an superiority or advantage.

If they get ground and advantage of the king. Then join you with them like a rib of steel. Shak.

4. To earn; to gain by labour.

Having no mines, nor any other way of getting or keeping of riches but by trade, so much of our trade as six, so much of our riches must necessarily go with it.

If it be so much pains to count the money I would spend, what labour did it cost my ancestors to get it?

Locke.

5. To receive as a prize or reward.

Any law laid on foreign commodities in England raises their price, and makes the importer get more for them than the manufacturer. But a prudent house-maker make his在一个 good season lessens their price.

Locke.
GET

1. to make or form; to bring into existence.
2. to acquire; to gain.
3. to attain; to reach.

AND

1. to join; to unite.
2. to unite; to combine.

In the Gettysburg Address, Lincoln says, "We are met here on a great and solemn occasion."
GIBBET, n. s. [from giant.] A liegant; a woman of unnatural bulk and height.

I had rather be a gibbon, and lie under mount Pelion.

Shakespeare.

Were this subject to the cedar, he would be able to make a great gibbon.

Skeat.

GIBBON, n. s. [from giant; and like.]

GIBBON.

Gigantick; vast; bulky.

Single course has often, without romance, overcome giantli difficulties.

Dryden.

Not withstanding all their talk of reason and philosophy, which they are deplorably strangers to, and those unanswerable doubts and difficulties, which, over their caps, they pretend to have against Christianity, a pestilence but the covetous man not to defy himself, and I dare undertake that all their gianteke objections against the Christian religion shall principally and quite the field.

Shelley.

GIBBONSHIP, n. s. [from giant.] Quality or character of a giant.

His gibbonship is gone somewhat to cock fallen.

Strolling with less uncomfortable strides, and lower books.

Miller's Agreeable.

GIBBE, n. s. Any old worn-out animal.

Hannier.

For whose that's but a queen, fair, sober, wise,
Would from a pedagogue, from a bit, a gibe.

Shakespeare's Hamlet.

To GIBBER, v. n. [from jabber.] To speak inarticulately.

The screeched dead
Did squeak and gibe in the Roman streets.

Shakespeare.

Gibber is derived by Sibthorpe from gaster, French, to cheat; it others conjectured to be formed by corruption from jabber. But as it was anciently written gibrer, it is probably derived from the chymical cant, and originally implied the jargon of Giber and his tribe.

Cant; the private language of rogues and gipsey; words without meaning.

Skeat.

Some, till they happen to hear an old word, allow, though they mean nothing, yet they turn it into a straight way, that we speak no English, but gibberish.

Spenzer.

Some of both sexes writing down a number of letters, just as it came into their heads; upon reading this gibberish, that which the men had wrote founded like High Dutch, and the other by the women like Italian.

Skeat.

GIBBET, n. s. [gibet, French.]

1. A gallows; the post on which malefactors, or on which their carcasses are exposed.

When there was ever cursed asheith brought Unto the gibbet, but he did adore

That blessed pow'r which he had set at thought?

Devil.

You scandal to the flock of verie, a re.

Able to bring the gibbet in disgrace.

Chaviland.

GIBBET, n. s. [from the verb.] Sneer; hint of contempt by word or look; scoff; act or expression of scorn; taunt.

Mark the reciter, the giber, and notable from.

That dwell in every region of his face.

Shakespeare.

The rich have still a gibbe in store,

And will be montous witty on the poor.

Dryden.

If they would flare from the bottom of their hearts, their scorn would be too strong for little time every moment.

Skeat.

But the dean, if his secret should come to his ears,

Will never have done with his gibber and his jests.

Skeat.

GIBB'ER, n. s. [from gibe.] A sneerer; one who turns others to ridicule by contemptuous hints; a scoffer, a taunter.

You are well understood to be a more perfect giber of the table, than a necessity bencher of the equal.

Shakespeare, Carew.

He is a giber, and our prentice baseness

Is of more serocious consequence.

Ben Jonson.

GIBB'INGLY, adv. [from gibe.] Scornfully; contemptuously.

His present posture,

Gib'ingly and ungallantly he did fashion

After he invertebrate he beth to be.

Shakespeare.

GIB'LESS, n. s. [According to Migneaux from gibe, gibber, according to Tantum more properly from giber, gibe, game, E.]

The parts of a goffer which are cut off before it is roasted.

To gib'staddle, to gib.

With the head seemmg to turn round.

Infinitely; unready.

To roam

Gib'dilly, adv. [from giddy.]

1. With the head seeming to turn round.

2. Inconstantly; unready.

To roam

Gib'dilly, and be everywhere but at home.

Such freedom doth a bastardism become.

Daven.

3. Carelessly; heedlessly; negligently.

The parts that fortune beshow'd against her,

Tell her, I hold as giddily as fortune.

Shakespeare.

Gib'diness, n. s. [from giddy.]

1. The state of being giddily or vertiginous; the fentation which we have when ever the eyes seem to turn round.

Medicus and giddiness are rather when we rise after long sitting, than while we sit.

Bacon.

This blessed fettle, which is sovereign against the giddiness of the brain; 'tis this will settle it.

Holody.

Vain show and noble intoxication the brain,

Begin with giddiness, and end in pain.

Young.

2. Inconstancy; unsteadiness; mutability; change of fancies.

There be that delight in giddiness, and count it a bondage to fit a belief.

Bacon.

3. Quick rotation; inability to keep its place.

The indigualion of Heaven rolling and turning us, 'till at length such a giddiness seized upon government, that it fell into the very dregs of feasibilities.

Bacon.

4. Proflick; wantonefs of life.

Then, like a caged patient,

Charitably ward'd of the fury's repent

Thee vanities and giddiness.

Donne.

GIDDY, adj. [gibis, Saxon. I know not whether this word may not come from gad, to wander, to be in motion, gad, giddy.]

1.
GIF

1. Vertiginous; having in the head a whirl, or sensation of circular motion; such as happens by swiftness or drunkenness.

2. Rotatory; whirling; running round with celerity.

3. Incon Plaintable; unsteady; changeable.

Our fancies are more giddy and uniform.

More longings, wandering, looser foot and view.

This women's are Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." It may be gates and fives have their imagination more mutable and giddy, as small birds likened to swallows.

Then to giddy chance, which never be.

That mortal bliss should last for length of years.

She calleth us headlong from her high elate,

And here in hope of thy return we wait.

The giddy vulgur, at their fancie guide,

With noisy fay nothing, and in parts divide.

You are as giddy and volatile as ever, the reverse of Pope, who hath always loved a domestick life.

Swift to Gays.

4. That which causes giddiness.

The frequent errors of a pathless wood.

The universally, and the dangerous flood, Dryden.

The giddies, which are not likely to make them walk.

The giddy fumes of the cerebro.

The giddy bowl, who is in the same hour, leap from a parent's window to a curtain. Clarke.

5. Totttering; unused.

As we pass along.

Upon the giddy footing of the hatchet.

Men thought that Gilly's humbled.

The totterings of the tottering line.

Gullible, too giddy; or, the giddy.

To Giddy. v. n. [from the noun.] To turn quick. Obloque.

A sodain North wind fetcht,

With an extreme seat, quite about again.

Our whole condescend; and our course contain

To giddy round. Chapman.

GIDDY-EARED. adj. [giddy and brain.

Careful; thoughts.

Turn him out again, you unnecessary, selfish, giddy-headed d---! Grassy's Pride preferred.

GIDDY-EARED. adj. [giddy and brain.

Without thought or caution; without steadiness or confusin.

And sooner may a gulling weather gery,

For drawing with their 'heav'n' scheme defer.

What fashions' hats or feathered nests, next year.

Our giddy-headed antick youth will wear.

That men are so misflected, melancholy, giddy-

To the backside of the world. Dryden.

GIDDY-FACED. adj. [giddy and face.

Moving without regularity.

More than light airs, and roccolled terms.

Of cheat must brisk and giddy-faced times. Shaksfp.

GIER-EAGLE. n. f. Sometimes it is written ger-eagle. An eagle of a particular kind.

These fowls shall not be eaten, the fowm and the pelican, and the gier-eagle. Lev. xi. 11.

GIFT. n. f. [from giv.] 1. A thing given or bidden; something conferred without price.

GILL. n. f. Young Taltab was not born.

To be the pillar of a giller wench. Shaksp.

The fam'd Godberall was once at point.

On a gillers fortune to make Celia's sword. Shak.

Away with those gillers too, and with his other confederate companion. Shaksp. Mephisto For Mas.

GPGOT. n. f. [French.] The hip joint, it seems to mean in Chapman a joint for the fisk.

This inwards fist,

They broll'd on coals, and eate; the red in gillers cut, they spil.

Chapman.

To GILD. v. a. gilled, gilded, or gift. [xibian, Saxon.]

1. To walk with over gold; to cover with gilded paper.

The room was large and wide, as it some gift or solemn temple were.

Many great golden pillars did upbear

The lofty roof. Spenser.

To gild refused gold, to paint the lily.

To throw a perfume on the violet. Shaksp.

And the gilded card of day

He gave them with both allay.

In the steep Atlantic's stream. Milton.

Purchasing riches with our time and care.

We left our freedom in a gilded state. Racemon.

Where Britain, lost without the gild of Britain.

Upon this gild'd majesty of Spain.

And knowing well that empire must decline;

We gave their support and favours of coin. Waller.

Her joy in gilded chains the world did sport.

And love of omph; after death survive. Pope.

2. To colour with any yellow matter.

 Thou didn't drink

The ale of horses, and the gilled puddle,

3. To adorn with lute.

No more the ruling fun shall gild the morn.

Nor ev'ning Cynthia with her horns. Pope's Misc.

4. To brighten; to illuminate.

The lightsome passion of joy was not that trivial,

Vanishing, superfluous thing, that only gilds the apprehension, and plays upon the surface of the soul.

5. To recommend by adventurous ornaments.

For my part, if lie may do thase price,

I'll gild them with such apted items I have. Shaksp.

Yet, oh! the imperfection it moves more delight.

Their gilded o'er with youth, to catch the fight. Dryd.

GILDER. n. f. [from gift.

1. One who lays gold on the surface of any other body.

Gilders use to have a piece of gold in their mouth, to draw the splinters of the quicksilver.

We have here a gilder with his anvil and hammer. Bacon.

2. A coin, from one shilling and five pence, to two shilings, Phil.

I am bound.

To Perias, and want gilders for my voyage. Shaksp.

GILDING. n. f. [from gift.

Gilding on any surface by way of ornament.

Shinering witty and lanker more than gildings, which it, if it might be acquird with a little morsel of gold, there is profit.

The church of the Annunciation, all but one corner of it, is covered with statues, gilt, and paint. Addison from Italy.

Could I propose Dryden Pimp and Fry's engage,

I not thip the gilding off a knave. Unplaid suspicion, n maus's heir or laave? Pope.

GIL. n. f. [agulla, Spanish; gula, Latin.]

1. The apertures at each side of a fish's head.

The leviathan,

Stretc'h'd like a pantomime, flora or forms,

And seems a moving hand, and at his gills

Dawa in, and at his trunk spout's out a fea. Milton.

Fishes perform perspiration under water by the gills.

Reg.

He hath two gill-gills; not behind the gills, as in most fishes, but before them. Walton.

12. Till
GIM

'Till they of farther pasture quite bereft,
Were in the mire with gills entangled fast.

The turkeys do great and swelling gills, and
The head and neck all swelled with Natural History.

3. The feel under the chin.

In many there is no pannels at all; but, contrariwise, reddens about the cheeks and gills, which is by the leading forth of spirit in an appetite to revenge
Bacon's Natural History.

Like the long bag of fishes hanging down from the gills of the people in Pembrook.

4. [Gills, barbarous Latin.] A measure of liquids, containing the fourth part of a pint.

Every bottle must be mixed with wine; some,
from mistaken thirst, will arise a dozen with the name change the wine at every second bottle: a gill may be enough.

5. A kind of measure among the tinner.

They measure their black-tin by the gill, which containing a pint.

6. In the northern counties it is half a pint of liquid measure.

7. [From Gillian, the old English word writing Italian, or Fulman.] The application of a woman in ludicrous language.

I can, for I will,
Here at Bury held Hill,
Give you a gill or ell,
Each Jack with his gill,
Ben Jobson's Gyfges.

8. [Gelatinum.] The name of a plant;
ground-ivy.

Malt liquor medicated with ground-ivy.

Gillhouse. n. f. [gill and boat.] A house where a gill is sold.

The ball each alchohol, the each gillhouse mourn,
And aw'ning ginshops fowr figh retur.

Gillyflower. n. f. [Either corrupted from gillyflower, or from gills, French.] A flower, or rather, gillyflowers, so called to the month they blow in; may be reduced to these ferts;
red and white, purple and white, scarlet and white.

Gill name. n. [from gill.] Golden show;
gold laid on the surface of any matter.

Gilt. n. f. [from gild.] Golden show;
gold laid on the surface of any matter.

Now observe:
Our gaynes and our gild are all befinch'd,
With rainy marching in the field.
Shakespeare.

When thou wait in thy gill, and thy perfume, youth thee for too much curiosity in rags thou knowd'nt none, but art defiled for the counter.
Shakespeare. Time's Arrow.

Gilt. The participle of Gild, which bee.
Where the gill chariot never mark'd its way.
Pepper. Gilt.

Gilt-head. n. f. [gill and head.] A worm so called from his yellow tall.

Gim. adj. [An old word.] Neat; spare; well dressed.

Gimcrack. n. f. [Supposed by Skinner to be ludicrously formed from gins, derived from engine.] A flight or trivial machin-ism.

For though the gimeracks are awry,
However, more reduced and plain,
The watch would ill a watch remain;
But if the hour oracle, s
The which blends full, breaks to pieces.
Prior.

What's the meaning of all these trams and

Ginebra. n. [jumping over my master's hedge, and running your lines astounds his ground.
Gimliet.

Gin.

Gimlet. n. f. [gibelet, gimblet, French.]
A bozer with a fercw at its point.

The gimmer hath a worm at the end of its bit.

Gimmel. n. f. [Supposed by Skinner and Anchow.

Gimmel. n. f. [giblet, giblet, French.

The gimmer hath a worm at the end of its bit.

Gimmal. n. f. [See Gimmal.]

Gimmal Movement; machinery.
The holding together of the parts of matter has so confounded me, that I have been prone to conclude with myself, that the gimmers of the world hold not to much by what they have, but from some natural magic.

Ginn. n. f. [See Ginn, Gimp, in old English.

The fecond, is neat, spruce,
A kind of folk twilt or lace.

Gin. n. f. [from engine.]

1. A trap; a snare.
As the day begins,
With twenty gins we will the small birds take,
And partake of life.

Which two, though treason and deceitful
Hair gins, gins, gins,
Says.

So drives the woodcock with the gin;
So doth the caney struggle in the net.
Shakespeare.

It is by gin, by gins, by futility.

If whose, who have been, can then
The engines that have them annoy'd?

Little for me there resions been.
If I could only get gins, I
I know thy trains,
Thou dearly to my cut, thy gins and toils;
No more ou me have pow'; their force is now null'd.

He made a planetary gin,
Which rats would run their own heads in,
And came on to the gins.

Without the essence of cheese and bacon. Hudibras.
Keep from daying froughe thy lkin;
And ancle feze from iron gin.

2. May think, moved with screws, as an engine of torture,

Rychaus's joints were stretched on a gin. Spencer.

3. A pump worked by rotatory tails.
The dels would be fow with waters, it being Elippotive to make any steps or toughs to drain them, that no gins or machines would suffice to lay and keep them dry.

Ray.

A bituminous plate, alternately yellow and black,
formed by water distilling on the outside of the gin, pump of Molyn coalits.

Woodward on Englands.

[Contrasted from Genomea, which see.]

The spirit drawn by distillation from ju-

Niper berries.

This calls the church to deprave our sin,
And burh the thundred of our laws on gin.
Pepper.

And aw'ning ginshops fowr figh retur.

Ginger. n. f. [zimadon, Latin; ginger,
Italian.]

The flower consists of five leaves, shaped what so like those of the Iris: these are produced in the head or club, each coming out of a separate leafy feals. The usury becomes a triangular fruit, having eight or nine seeds within. Miller.

The root of ginger is of the tuberous kind, knob-noit, crooked, and irregular; of a hot, acid, and pungent taste, though aromatic, and of a very agreeable taste. The Indians eat both the young shoots of the leaves and the roots themselves.
from girde or cut. To break a formful jet; to give; to sneer.

This wondrous error growth At which our critics girde. Drayton.

Men of all the pride to girde as me: the brain of this foolish compounded clay, man, is not able to invent any thing that tends to laugher more than I invent, or to make his body merry in myself, but the cause that wit is in other men. Shakespeare. Henry IV.

GIRD. n. [from the verb.] A twitch; a pang; it may come from the sensation caused by a bandage or girde drawn hard; it may be drawn through the foul dam efed, unless the former etymology be admitted. Swift.

So fame the bishop hath a kindly girde. For shame, my lord of Winchester, relent. Shakespeare. Confidence by this means is freed from many fearful girdes and snares which the Atalanta feet. Tillofson.

He has the glory of his conscience, when he doth well, to fet against the checks and girdes of it. Godwin.

GIRDER. n. [from girde.] In architecture, the largest piece of timber in a floor. Its end is usually flattened into the fummers, or brace fummers, and the joints are framed in at one arm to the girder. Harris.

The band that keeps the fummers and ground-plates of, though the back girde need not be so long as the front girder. Moxon's Mech. Exerc.

These mighty girdes which the fabric bind, These thin robust, and vast in order joint'd, Blackmore. GIRDLE. n. [gynbe, Saxon.]

1. Any thing drawn round the waist, and tied or buckled. There will I make thee bed of rods, With a thousand images upon: A cap of flowers, and a girde, Embroider'd all with leaves of myrtle. Shakespeare. Many people there is some what smit, until they put on their girde. Brown's Vulgar Elocure. On him his mantle, girde sword and bow, On him his heart and soul he did belowe. Caxton.

2. A girdle, a circumstance. Suppofe within the girde of these walls Are now cont'd two mighty monarchs. Shakespeare.

3. The zodiac. Great boses in great circles, such as are under the girdle of the earth, and in the heauen. Bacon. To GIRDLE. n. [from the noun.]

1. To girde; to bind as with a girde. Lay the gentle babes, girding another Within their innocent alabaster arms. Shakespeare.

2. To inclose; to environ. Those sloping townes, That as a wait do girde you about. Shakespeare. Let me look back upon thee, O thou waits. That girded in those volupts: Shakespeare. Iron, Tennyson. GIRDLEBELT. n. [girde and belt.] The belt that incircles the waist. Nor did his eyes lose longingly behold The girdebelt, with nails of burnish'd gold. Dryden.

GIRDLE. n. [from girde.] A maker of girdes. GIRD. n. [girde, Latin.] A circle described by any thing in motion. See GYRE.

GIRL. n. [from the verb.] It is an etymology of this word there is much question: Meroe Cananbon, as is his cufom, derives it from one of the fame fashion: Minyphon from garlela, Latin, a prattler, or girilla, Italian, a weathock; Jasmin thinks it comes from heroldes, Welsh, from which, says he, banter is very easily deduced. Skinner imagines that the Saxons, who used coepi for a man, might likewise have coepii for a woman, though no such word is now found. Dry, Hist.

derives it most probably from the Islandick karlinea, a woman.] A young woman, or female child. In those unbek'd days was my wife a girl. Shaks. I was the most of all the girls, my girl. Shaks. The foole Amphadiscus, to field brought gold to be his ware, Froud girls like, that doth ever bear her down upon Chapman. A weather-beaten lover, but once known, Is fport for every girl to praddle upon. Donne. A boy, like thee, would make a kingling: But oh! a girl, like her, must be divine! Dryden.

GIRLISHLY. adv. [from girle.] Suiting a girl; youthful.

In her girlish age she kept thee on the moor. Cowper.

GIRLISHLY. adv. [from girle.] In a girlish manner.

To GIRL. n. It seems to be a corruption of girne. It is still used in Scotland, and is applied to a crabbled, captious, or peevish person.

GIRL. n. [from the verb.] 1. A band by which the faddle or butcher is fixed upon the horse.

Or the faddle turn'd round, 'tis the girke brake; For low on the ground, woe for his face. The law is found. Ben Jonson's Underwood. Nor Pegasis could bear the load, Along the high celestidal road. The steer oppress'd, would break his girke, To rale the lumber from the earth. Swift.

Mordant gallop'd, and the roads are with his fellers wound; This breaks a girib, and that a bout. Swift.

2. The compasses measured by the girde, or enclosing bandage.

He's a jolly fellow that lives well, at least three yards in the girde. Addison's Fable of the Gird.

To GIRTH. v. a. To bind with a girde. To GIST. Ground. v. a. Is when the owner of it does not feed it with his own flock, but takes in other cattle to graze. Bailey.

GIRL. n. [from the verb.] Among the English Saxons, signifies a pledge: thus, Gristle is a pledge of peace: Gifferich an illusorius pledge, like the Greek Henarros. Giff. Camden. GYRE. n. [girella.] An herb called Guinea pepper.

To GIVE. v. a. preter, gave; part, past, given. [giren, Saxon.]

1. To bellow; to confess without any price or reward; not to fell.

I had a master that gave me all I could ask, but thought fit to take the thing from me again. Temple.

Confound at church and change; his gains were bare. White.
GIV

While trademen flave their Philomelons are gay;
For genorous lords had rather give than pay. Young.
Pray's and advice are all I have to giue. Harte.

2. To tranfmit from himself to another by hand, speech, or writing; to deliver.
The woman whom thou lookeft to be with me, the fuch of the trees, and I did eat. Gen. iii. 12.
They were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage. Matt. xix. 28.

These bills are printed not only every week, but also a general account of the whole year was given in upon the Thursday before Christmas. gravus.
We shall give an account of thofe phenomena.

3. To put into one's pofe or position; to confign to; to impart; to communicate.
Give us of your oil, for our lamps are gone out. Matt. xvi.
Nature gives us many children and friends, to take them away, but takes none away to giue them again. Tempel.
Give me, fays Archimedes, where to bend firm, and I will remove the earth. Granger.

4. To pay a price or reward, or in exchange.
All that a man hath will be giue for his life. July, 4.
If you did know to whom I gave the rings.
If you know for whom I gave the rings.
And how willingly I left the rings.
You would ake the strength of your dilufion. Grove.
He would give his nuts for a piece of metal, and exchange his fheep for fheels, or wool for aSparkling pearl. Locke.

5. To yield; not to withhold.
Philip, Alexander's father, gave feftiance againft a prisoner at a time he was draym, and feemed to giue small attention. The prefences before sentence was pronounced, faid, I appeal: the king, forwhat time he was faid. To whom do you appeal? The prisoner answered, from Philip, when he gave no ear, to Philip, when he fhall give ear. Bacon's Apology.

6. To quit; to yield as due.
Give us the fome, thou stranger, to an honourable man. Excez.

7. To confer; to impart.
I will blef her, and give thee a fon of her. Gen. xviii.
Nothing can giue that to another which it hath not in itself. Bembr, againah Hobbes.
What beauties I lofe in fome places, I giue to others which they had not originally. Dryden.

8. To expofe; to yield without retenfion.
All fhad in the body are giue to iuft conversion. Homer.

9. To grant; to allow.
'Tis giue me once again to behold my friend. Rev.
He has not giue Luther fahier play. Attbury.

10. To yield; not to deny.
I gave him wife propofal ways.
Nay, un'm him to go on the shallow fraud Will ruin him at the Reign's Annuall Statemper. Rev.

11. To afford; to supply.
This opinion abated the fcare of death in them which were fa reloved, and gave them courage to all their worfe fubmifions. Hooker.
Give us also facrifices and burnt-offerings, that we may facrifice unto the Lord. Ex. x. 25.

12. To empower; to commit.
Prepare
The due libation and the solemn pray'r;
Then giue thy friend to fpec the loden wine. Page.

13. To enable.
God himfelf required the lifting up of pure hearts in prayers; and hath giuen the world to understand, that the wicked, although they cry, fhall not be heard. Hooker.

14. To pay.
The applause and approbation I giue to both your fpeeches. Shaksp.

15. To utter; to manifest.
So much of the fpeech which is faid in this, will you give me the liberty to utter?

16. To exhibit; to show.
This intance giues infallibility of an exiftence in any thing entirely featable or corruptible.

17. To exhibit as the product of a calculation.
The number of men being divided by the number of hips, giues four hundred and twenty-four men a-piece. Aristotle.

18. To do any act of which the confcquence reaches others.
We defire to giue no offence ourselves, to neither fhall we take any of the difguft in judgment in other. Barnev.

19. To exhibit; to fend forth as odours from any body.
In orages the riping of the cind giues out their smell more. Bacon.

20. To addidt; to apploy.
The Helots, of the other fide, fhutting their gates, giue themfelves to bury their dead, to cure their wounds and difcover their wounded bodies. Homer.

21. To yield to a fubordinate.
When began to grow to number, the first thing we read they giue themfelves into, was the tillage of the feld and the feeding of cattle. Hooker.

22. To jurry.
Or, if he would giue his children, and giue them his wife also. Homer.

God himfelf requir'd the lifting up of pure hearts in prayers; and hath giuen the world to understand, that the wicked, although they cry, fhall not be heard. Hooker.

GIV

Virtue giue's for loth.

Dreadful and overthrown, as fcam'd
I diflike lebel-begett'd to bear.
From out her abys wond now term'd, Milton's Age.

Since no deep within her pulph can hold
Immortal vigils, though appreh'd and fail'd,
I fulled not heat to Giulio's Parar and Left.

For a man to giue his name to Christianity in thofe days, was to lift himfelf a martyr. Sand.

Ours themfelves for gone; you watch'd your land.

He fghts this day unarmed, without his rhyme.

Dydun.

The parents, after a long fearch for the body, gave him for drowned in one of the canals. Addifon.

As the hinder feet of the horfe fluck to the mountain, while he was revolv'd in up the air, the more with great difpleafe from himfelf from drifting off his back, in fo much that the people gave him for gone. Addifon's Guardian.

22. To conclude; to fuppofe.
Wherefore came you here, O friend, and whither bound?

All giue you left on the Cyclopian ground. Garib.

23. To giue away. To alienate from one's felf, to make over to another; to transfer.

The more he got, the more he fhewed that he gave away to his new miftrefs, when he betray'd his promifes to the former. Sidney.

You giue away this hand, and that is mine;
You giue away heav'n's vows, and these are mine;
You giue away myself, which is known mine. Shakesp.

Honour confidered, by the example. That have beheld me giue away myfelf.

To this muff patient, merry, and virtuous wife, Shakesp.

P. I know not how they fold themselves; but thou, like a kind fellow, giue thyself away gratis, and I thank thee for thee. Shakesp. Heny IV.

Love giues away all things, that he may advance the interest of the beloved person. Dryden.

But we who giue our native rights away.
And our land's povcrty betray's.

Are now reduc'd to beg an aim, and go.

On holliday he fee a pup Gillow.

Dyd. Jov. Alas, faid I, man was made to vanity! How he giue away to milrely and mortality!

Addifon. Theodorus made a private vow never to require after Conflantia, whom he feek'd up as giue away to his rival, upon the day on which their marriage was to have been folemniz'd.

Addifon. Whenver we could not our felves find plea in our fhare of this world, we giue away from ourfelves: what we bequeath at our death, is giuen from others only, as our nearest relations. Athurbery.

24. To Giue back. To return; to more.
Their vices perhaps giue back all thofe advantages which their victries procured. Attbury.

25. To Giue forth. To publih; to tell.
Soon after it was giuen forth, and believed by many, that the king was dead. Hayman.

26. To Giue the hand. To yield pro-eminence, as being subordinate or inferior.
Lessions being free from some inconveniences, whereunto former are more subject, they may in this refpect do not lacke than in others they must giue the hand, which before did proceff courte. Hooker.

GIV

27. To Giue over. To leave; to quit; to ceafe.
Let novelty therefore in this giue over entails contradictions, and let ancient customs prevail.

It may be done rather than that be giue over. Hooker.

Never giue her a't.
For soon at fift make after love the more, Shakesp.

If Defdemona will return me my jewels, I will giue over my fult, and repent my unlawfull fabrications. Shakesp. Othello.

All the foldiers, from the highest to the lowest, had folemly sworn to defend the city, and not to giue it over unto the left man. Knolles's History.

The troops which were fent, had no time over the prefcription of the war. Clarendon.

But what of all to giue her over,
Till she's as desperate to recover. Hudibras.

A woman.
A woman had a hen that laid every day an egg; she fancied that upon a larger allowance this hen might lay twice a day; but the hen grew fat, and gave quite two eggs in a day. Many have given over their pursuits after some other from the disappointments they have met with, or from their experience of the little pleasure which attends them.

28. To Give up. To addit; to attach to. Zelma, govern and direct me; for I am wholly given over unto thee. Sidney.

When the Babylonians had given themselves over to the Lord, it was time for the Lord that he had set up that empire, to pull it down. Greu.

I used one thing ill, or gave myself so much over to it as to neglect what I owed either to God or the public welfare. Locke.

29. To Give up. To conclude lost. Since it is lawful to profane upon them that are forsaken and given over, I will adventure to premise to you. Suckling.

'Tis not amiss, 'cire are give 'er.

Seducing one trye defrate med 'cine more; A', where your cafe can be no worse. The defpit'rate is the wilfe creature, Hudibras.

The abett, finding that the physicians had given her over, told her that Theodotus was just gone before her, and had sent her his benediction. Addid.

Yet this false comfort never give him over, That, while he creeps, his vig'rous thought can think. Pope.

Not onl one forts I shall recover; But all engraved to give me over.

Swift.

30. To Give up. To abandon. The duty of uniformity throughout all churches, in all manner of indifferent ceremonies, will be very hard, and therefore bet to give it over. Hooker.

And hence, though they did not take the world, gave over all, and betook himself to a solitary life, and there he died a mark.

Klopstock.

Sleep had looke, and give me over To death's beginning opium, as my only cure. Milton.

The caufe for which we fought and toore So boldly, shall we now give over? Hudibras.

31. To Give out. To proclaim; to publish; to utter. The fathers give it out for a rule, that whatsoever Christ is first in Scripture to have received, the same we ought to apply only to the manhood of Christ. Hooker.

It is given over, that, sleeping in my orchard, A present thing me. So the whole ear of Denmark Is by a forged process of my death. Shakespeare.

Rudely forc'd, Shakespeare's Hamlet.

One that giveth out himself prince Florian, Son of Polichnes, with his prince. Shakespeare.

It hath been given out, by an hypocritical thic, who was the first maker of my ship, that I carried with me out of England twenty-two thousand pieces of twenty-two shilling per piece. Raleigh.

He gave out general commissions for the assembly of his council for the war. The night was distastifliged by the orders which he gave out to his army, that they should forbear all inquiries about his person. Addison.

32. To Give out. To show in false appearance. His giving out were of an infinite distance From his true meant design. Shakespeare.

From his way of living, as a young gentleman, to feel her father's eyes upon her, as a matron. Shakespeare.

33. To Give up. To resign; to quit; to yield. The people weary of the miseries of war, would give it up, if they saw him think. Sidney.

He would have your buffets, and for your good. Addison's Spectator.

For certain laps of fate, your city Rome. Shaksp.

The fune, breaking out with his cheerful beams, revives, as it were, the foundering sun, to give it up the ghost, for cold, and gave comfort to them all. Kenilworth's History.

He found the Lord Hophon in trouble for the loss of the regiment of foot at Alton, and with the unexpected according of the giving up of Arundel-caste. Clarendon.

Let us give ourselves wholly up to Christ in heart and desire. Taylor's Rule of living holy, because we know, that such an expectation will never come to pass; therefore I'll enquire it no more; and I will myself. Collet against Daffar.

I can give up to the historian of your country the names of many generals and heroes which crowd their annals. He declares himself to be now satisfied to the contrary, in which he has given up the case. Dryden.

The leagues made between several states disowning all claim to the land in the other's possession, have, by common consent, given up their pretences to their natural right. If they give them up to their reasons, then they with them give up all earth and farther enquiry and the whole course of their pretensions. We should see him give up again to the wild common of nature, whatever was more than would supply the necessities of life. Locke.

John's surrender, since his father's death, Would give up Africk into Caesar's hands, And make him lord of half the burning zote. Addid.

Learn to be governed by your leaders. And pardon them, and give up the whole. Addison.

A popish priest threatened to excommunicate a Northumberland squire, if he did not give up to him the church he had given over. Addison.

He saw the celestial deities acting in a confederacy against him, and immediately gave up a cause which was excluded from all possibility of success. Addison's Frendley.

An old gentleman, who had been engaged in an argument with the emperor, upon his friend's telling him he would give up the question when he had the better, I am never ashamed, says he, to be confounded by one who is master of fifty legions. Addison.

He may be brought to give up the clearest evidence. Atterbury.

The constant health and longevity of man must be given up after a groundless contest. Bentley.

Have the physicians given up all their hopes? Cannot they add a few days to a monarch? Rowe.

These people were obliged to demand peace, and give up to the Romans all their possessions in Sicily. Addison.

Every one who will not ask for the conduct of God in the study of religion, has just reason to fear he shall be led of God, and give up a prey to a thousand prejudices, that shall be confounded by the follies of his own heart. Witty.

Give yourselves up to some hours of leisure. Witty.

34. To Give up. To abandon. If any may be given up to believe lies, some must be first given up to them all. Stillingfleet.

Our minds naturally give up themselves to every diversion which they are much accustomed to; and we always find that playing as certainty. Locke.

Addison. I am obliged at this time to give up my whole application to Homer. Pope.

Perfons, taken up, through mischiefs, chuse not to deprive, should not, however, be given to painful, Addison.

35. To Give up. To deliver. And Jack gave up the sum of the number of the people to the king. 2 Sam. vix. g.

His accounts were confused, and he could not then give them to the king. Dryden.

36. To Give way. To yield; to yield; to make room for. Private respects, with him, gave way to the common good. Carew.

Peremptory pulling and assaignment put a difficulty out of couragc, and made a freeing impossibility give way. Collet.

Scares had he spoken when the cloud gave way: The mists flew upwards, and disorders d'lay. Dryden.

And he had given his hand to his son, and beaten to his breast. Dryden.

Bardel's and bat, and beaten to his horse. Dryden.

37. The word give is used with great laxi-
Gladiator, n. f. [from gladius.] One that gives; donor; begetter; distributor; grantor;
Well, we may afford
Our glories their own gifts. Milton's Paradise Lost. By whom they are the giver now Repaid? But gratitude in thee is lost Long force.
Milton's Paradise Regained. I have liv'd since that time, and the news the gift the guilty both doth ache. Dryden.
Both gifts destructive to the giver prove; Alike both lovers fall by that eternal love. Pope.
Gives, n. s. Forgers or Shackle for the feet. Gizzard, n. s. [refer, French; gigeria, Latin.] It is sometimes called gizzard.
1. The strong muscular stomach of a fowl. Fowls have two ventricles, and pick up flakes to convey them into the second ventricles, the gizzard. More.
In birds there is no muscularisation in the mouth; but in such as are not carnivorous, it is immediately functioned to be a kind of antechamber, in which it is moistened by some proper juice from the glands discharging in it, and thence transferred into the gizzard or muscular stomach. Romans.
By their high crops and corny gizzards known. Dryden.
2. It is proverbially used for apprehension, or conception of mind: as he setts his gizzard, he harasses his imagination. But that which does them greater harm, Their spiritual gizzards are too warm; Which puts the over heated fogs In fumes and fumes.
Hodgkins. Satisfaction and refutation lie so closely hard upon the gizzards of our publicans, that their blood is not half so dear to them as the treasurers in our confer. L'Estrange.
Glaicity, n. f. [from glacer, Latin.] Smoothness; baldness. Glaical, adj. [glacial, French; glicialis; Latin;] icy; made of ice; frozen.
To Glaciate, v. n. [glacies, Latin; glacer, French. To turn into ice. Glaciation, n. f. [from glaciate.] The act of turning into ice; ice formed. Ice is plain upon the surface of water, but round in hail, which is also a glaciation, and figured in its glistening descent from the sky. Boece's Lat. Frrr.
Glaicous adj. [glicrrio, Latin.] Icy; resembling ice.
Although exhaled and placed in cold conservatories, it will crystallize and shoot into glacialcous bodies.
Glaicis, n. f. [French.] In fortification, a flopping bank. It is more especially taken for that which rangeth from the parapet of the covered way to the level on the side of the field. Harris.
Glad, adj. [xlepl; Saxon; glad, Danith.] 1. Cheerful; gay; in a state of hilarity.
When they blessed the king, and went unto their tents joyful and glad of heart. 1. Kings, viii. 69. Gladness. Weeping into the coasts of light. Milton.
The wily adier blithe and glad. Milton.
Thither they HaUid with glad precipitation. 2. Warming appearance; fertile; bright; showy.
The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them, and the desart shall rejoice and blossom as the rose. Isaias, xxvii, 26.
Then first adorn!
With their bright luminaries, that set and rock; Glad Evening and glad Morn crown'd the fourth day. Milton.
3. Pleased; elevated with joy. It has generally, sometimes at or before the cause of gladnesses; perhaps of is most proper, when the cause of joy is something gained or possessed; and at or with, when it is some accident befalms himself or another.
I am glad to see your worship. Shakespeare.
He hath an uncle in Melilla who is very much glad of it. Shakespeare.
He is that glad ar calamities shall not be unpuish'd. Proverbs.
He glad Of her attention; gain'd with serpent tongues, His fraudulent temptation thou began. If he be good, let him triumph: if he be my friend, he will be glad of my repentance. Dryden.
The gaping wound gulf'd out a crimson flood; The Trojan, glad of bright light of huffy palms. Hesp. His familiar drew. Dryden.
Glad of a quartet frail I clas the bow. Pope.
4. Pleasing; exhilarating.
More conversation.
Gladsome gladness.
Hark! a glad voice the lonely desert cheers: Prepare the way; a God a God appears! Pope.
5. Expressing gladnesses.
He saw rich nectar-thaws release their treasures. Oh! he lay naked from frost-bound Attila hands.
His adamantine fetters fell; green vapour Gladding the Lybian rocks, and Lybian sands. Crayfor.
It glads me To see so many virtues united, To restore justice and dethrone oppression. Grey.
Each drinks the juice that glads the heart of man. Pope.
6. To GLAD, v. a. [from the adjective.] To make glad; to cheer; to exhilarate.
He saw rich nectar-thaws release their treasures. Oh! he lay naked from frost-bound Attila hands.
His adamantine fetters fell; green vapour Gladding the Lybian rocks, and Lybian sands. Crayfor.
It glads me. To see so many virtues united, To restore justice and dethrone oppression. Grey.
Each drinks the juice that glads the heart of man. Pope.
If Justice Phillips' coughive head Some frigid rhymes disburbs, They shall like Perian tams be read, And glad both babes and nurses. Swift.
To GLADDEN, v. a. [from glad'd] To cheer; to delight; to make glad; to exhilarate.
Oh, he was all made up of love and charms! Delight of every eye! When he appeared, A secret pleasure gladd'd all that saw him. Addl. A kind of vital heat in the soul cheers and gladnesser, when he does not attend to it. Addl. Spect.
GLADDER, n. f. [from glad.] One that makes glad; one that gladdens; one that exhilarates.
Thus gladder of the mount of Cytheron, Have pity, goddes.
GLADE, n. f. [from glapan, to be hot, or to shine; whence the Danith glad, and the obsolete English gled, a red hot coal.] A lawn or opening in a wood. Lucan. It is taken for a avenue through a wood, whether open or fenced, and has therefore epitomies of oppisite meaning.
So that 'twas even with a blooming and reverent ice; But far within, as a hollow glade.
Those glaring lamps were set, that made a dreadfull shade.
No byer. Where they sly'd, how in a gloomy glade; The lion sleeping, lay in secret shade. Hubberd.
O might I here In solitude live, in some glade, O'erdrift, where high bold woods, impassable To heat or sun-light, spread their umbrage broad. And brown as evening. Milton's Paradise Lost.
When any, favourite of love, Chances to pass through this adventurous glade; Swift as a sparkle of a glancing star.
I float from here' n to give him false convey. Milton. For many, many years made. And for fresh evening air the op'rous glade. Dryden.
These interse in lawns and opening glades; Thin trees arise that shun each other's shade. Pope. By the heroic armed shades Glittering through the gloomy glades; By the youth that dy'd for love, Wandering in the myrtle grove, Ruffle, restore Eurydice to life! Oh! take the husband or restore the wife! Pope.
She sild'd, array'd With all the pride of him, thine, aream and glads, New drest and blooming as a bridall maid. Harte.
The Gladens. n. f. [from gladius, Latin, glader. s. [refer, Latin, gladiateur, ftr.] A sword player; a prizefighter.
The altreat, looking on, enjoys the spoils. Desban.
Below, in gratitude for such high matters, Know I have vow'd two hundred gladeters. Dryden.
Gladly, adv. [from glad.] Joyfully; with gayety, with merriment; with triumph; with exultation.
For his particular, I'll receive him gladly; But not one follower. Shakespeare's King Lear. You are going to set us right; and 'to an advantage everybody will gladly see you FOUND to be Pope.
Gladness, n. f. [from glad.] Cheerfulness; joy; exultation.
By such degrees the spreading gladnesses grew less and less.
The standing fleets with so much joy they view, That with less grief the peril'd they deplore. Dryd.
Gladsony, adj. [from glad.] 1. Pleased; gay; delighted.
The highest angels to his descend, From highest heaven in gladde son complay, Fairy R.
The gladsons that circling troops attend, And with unwary'e desks behind their friend. Dryd.
2. Causing joy; having an appearance of gayety, They even then they walk'd with a sprightly lay; Of opening heau' n they sung and gladson day.
Petr.
Gladnely, adv. [from gladsony.] With gayety and delight.
Gladnessome, n. s. [from gladsony.] Joyous.
Glaire, n. s. [glaire, French; amber, glaze, Danish; glas; glaire, French; glaire, Latin.] 1. The white of an egg.
Take the glaire of eggs, and strain it as thou as water. Peachem.
2. A kind of halbert.
To GLAIRE, v. a. [glaire, French; from the the n. [glauza, German, glister.] 1. A sudden shooht of light or splendour.

[...] and the whole world shone like a ball of fire. Shad.

2. A stroke or dart of the beam of light.

[...] to strike in an oblique direction.

3. To view with a quick cast of the eye; to play the eye.

[...] to look with fierce piercing eyes.

4. To glisten; to have a golden or reddish hue.

[...] to glisten in the eye.

5. To glisten by oblique hints.

[...] to catch a ray of light.

6. [gL]= [gL, Latin; gln, Fr.] All the glods of a human body are reduced to two sorts, viz. complements and complements. A complements or to glisten is to shine, which is separated from all the other parts, on all its sides and in every direction, and is variously shaded and shaded, and may be seen under every situation and situation.

GLARE, n. a. To move nimbly; to shoot obliquely.

Glaring is an eye of light on his loaves.

GLANCINGLY, adv. [from gldence.] In an oblique broken manner; transiently.

Sir Richard Hawkins hath done something in this kind, but brokenly and glancingly, intending a chief and leader of his own voyage.

Hawkins.

HAWKS, n. [gL, Latin; gln, Fr.] All the glods of a human body are reduced to two sorts, viz. complements and complements. A complements or to glisten is to shine, which is separated from all the other parts, on all its sides and in every direction, and is variously shaded and shaded, and may be seen under every situation and situation.

1. Overpowering lustre; splendour, such as dazzles the eye.

The frame of burnish'd steel that cast a glare
From far, and seem'd to thaw the freezing air.

Dry'd, Emb.
GLE

1. Refining glass, as in smoothness or lustre, or brilliancy.
   Man! proud man! Drest in a little brief authority, Most ignorant of what he most affend His glassy ceiling. Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven, As make the angels weep. Skid, Mefl, for Mefl. There is a willow grows amant a brook. That shows his bare leaves in his glassy theme. Shakespeare.

2. Glassware, n. f. [glass and furnace.] A species of Medlar.
   This species of thorn produces some bunches of flowers in winter, and flowers again in the spring.

3. Glassmaking, adj. [glass and grinding.] Finical; often contemplating himself in a mirror.

4. Glassfurnace, n. f. [glass and furnace.] A furnace in which glass is made by liquefaction.

5. If our dreamer glassed to try whether the glowing heat of a glass-furnace be barely a wandering imagination in a droisy man's fancy, by putting his hand into it, he may perhaps be awakened to a conviction that it is something more than human imagination.

7. Glassgrinder, n. f. [glass and grinder.]
   One whose trade is to polish and grind glass.

8. The glassgilders complain of the trouble they meet with.

9. Glasshouse, n. f. [glass and house.] A house where glass is manufactured.

10. I remember to have met with an old Roman mosaic, composed of little pieces of glass half vitrified, and prepared at the glassfoundry. Addison.

12. The profit of glassed consists only in a small present made by the glassman. Swift.

13. Glassmetal, n. f. [glass and metal.]

15. Let there be made of the incorporating of copper or brass with glassmetal. Bacon's Platy., Rem.

17. The crystalline Venice glass is a mixture, in equal quantity, of ashes of fumes brought from Paris, and the ashes of a weed called kali, gathered in a dell between Alexandria and Rosetta; by the Egyptians used first for fuel, and then they crust the ashes into lumps like a stone, and so fell them to the Venetians for their glasswork. Bacon's Natural History.

18. Glasswort, n. f. [salicornia, or saltwater.]

19. It hath an apterous flower, wanting the empoisoning for the lamination, or chives, and the embryos grow on the extreme part of the leaves; these embryos afterwards become pods or bladders, which, for the most part, contain one seed. The inhabitants near to the sea cut the plants up toward the latter end of Summer; and, having dried them in the sun, they burn them for their ashes, which are used in making of glass and soap. These herbs are by the country people callediples. From the ashes of these plants is extracted the salt called kali, or alkali, by the chemists.

20. Miller.

21. For the glass we use the purer of the sand, and the ashes of chali or glassf; and for the clearer or green grass, the ashes of brake or other Bone's Fugger Errors.

22. Glassy, adj. [from glass.]

23. Made of glass; vitreous.

24. In the valley near mount Carmel in Judaea there is a sand, which of all others, hath most affinity with glass; in much as other sandstones laid in it to a glassy subsidence. Bacon.
GLEE. n. [glee, Latin.] 1. Turf; soil; ground. 2. The land possessed as a part of the revenue of an ecclesiastical benefice. 3. The ordinary living or revenue of a parishioner is of three kinds, in the land, common reknown. The glee is another right, wherewith a man subject to our goods rendered to God the third, in other offtices. It is a church by the penal law. A trespass done on a parson's glee land, which is a freehold, cannot be tried in a spiritual court.

Many parishes have not an inch of glee.

GLORIOUS. adj. [from glee, Latin.] Turfily.

DULL. adj. [from glee, Latin.] Turfily; perhaps in the following passage fat or fruitful, if it has indeed any meaning.

Pernicious glatly thy malignant feet
In an ill hour, and by a fatal hand
Sadly diffus'd o'er virt'ous glee land,
With rising pride amid the corn appear,
And choose the horses and harvest of the year.

Prior.

GLEE. n. [glocal, Latin.] A kind of hawk.

Ye shall not eat the glee, the kite, and the vulture.

Eh. n. [glocal, Latin.] Joy; merriment; gay. It is the same with signified muficked play at feats. It is not now used, except in ludicrous writing, or with some mixture of irony and contempt.

She marcheth home, and by her takes the knighth, Whom all the people follow with great glee.

Many waysfarers make themselves glee by vesting the inhabitants; who again forsook not to bleate them with all the iron and honey. The country.

Is Blouzlenda dead? Farewell my glee.

No happiness is now reserved for me.

Gay.

The poor man then was rich, and fled with glee.

Each branch-head untast, and day-light feed.

Hear.

GLEED. n. [from glocal, Latin, to glow.] A hot glowing coal. A provincial and obsolete word.

GLEE's adj. [glee and full.] Gay; merry; cheerful.

My lovely Aton, wherefore loath thou stay,
When every thing doth make a gladful noise!

Shakespeare.

GLEEK. n. [glocal, Latin.] Music; or musician.

Vol. 1.

What will you give out? No money, but the glee; I will give you the minstrel.

Shakespeare.

To GLEEN, vi. [Aryman, in Saxony, is a mimic or a droll.

To GLEEN, vi. [from glee, Latin.] To flee; to fly; to droll upon.

Shakespeare.

I have seen glee-glancing or calling at this theologian twice or thrice.

Shakespeare.

In Scotland it is still retained, and signifies to foal or spend time idly, with something of mimicry or drudgery.

To GLEET, vi. To shine with heat or polish. I know not the final notion of this word: it may be of the same face with gloss or with glee, I have not remarked it in any other place.

To GLEET, vi. To run swiftly.

To GLEET, vi. To drip or ooze with a thin flamin liquour.

Gleets being inflamed and inflamed, it was an infection into it in the head, but gleet a few drops.

Wifeman.

To run swiftly.

The sword raised by the fun make clouds, which are carried up and down the air, divides that hit against the mountains of the place, and by this concussion are condensed, and so gleet down the cresses of these mountains, whole inner parts, being hollow, afford them.

Glover's Pell, Printed.

GLEETLY. adj. [from gleet, Latin.] Sweetly; fondly.

If the fled, life, its redudens, and the matter change to be thin and gleetly, you shall find it computing.

Wifeman.

GLEEN. n. [glean, Erse.] A valley; a dale; a depression between two hills.

From my meek gleaning mind is born,
And wove the widow's daughter of the glee.

Spenser.

Gled. n. [gloze, Latin.] A viscous cement made by dissolving the fines of sandstone in boiling water, and drying the gelly, so formed.

Shimmer. [from sense, Shimmer.]

1. Smooth; slippery; so formed as to be easily moved.

Liquid bodies have nothing to suflic for their parts, no thing to ate cement them; the parts being gelly and continually in motion, fall off from one another, which way ever from gravity inclines them.

Dryden.

Habakkuk brought him a smooth long tongue, compactly twists together with a goods that that as gelly as a bird's cratcher's eig.

2. Smooth; volubly.

I want that gelly and oilly art
To speak and purport what I am inclined; I'll do't not before I speak. Shakespeare's King Lear.

There was never so much gelly nonsense put together in well sounding English.

Now Call his name! In gelly, gelly:

Beneath his dizziness were a number of gellyes and remembrances.

Three genuine tonnes of Swift's reminiscences.

And then to make them into the gellye,

Replied he; and in the gellye.

Shakespeare.

Be sure he's a fine gelly.

Do but hear on the gelly how gelly his gelly can.

Gelly.

Shakespeare.

Gelly, vi. [from the verb, gelly; to shine; glistening, Dutch; to glow.

hanging down over their eyes, and monitioning, disdaining them.

To Gley, v. a. [from the adjective, To callate.

I'll geld them all; fourteen they shall, not less.

Shakespeare.

And I had rather gely myself, that they should not produce fair shine.

Shakespeare.

Gleely. adv. [from gley, gelly, gelly; Smoothly; volubly.

Many who would purchase at its cost, whose modesty and delicacy's, who would desire gelly into a detraction, gely in the tongue of the tongue.

Government of the Tongue.

Gleener. n. [from gley, gelly, gelly; Smoothness; slipperiness.

A polished-idee-like gelly, such aad.

The rock.

Chapman's Old Joseph.

The tongue is the most ready for motion in any animal of fish, with or without the fish glue, and by scent of humour acquires a gelly too, the more to facilitate its moving.

Government of the Tongue.

GLEE. n. [gibbain, Saxon, Gilly.]

Dutch.

1. To flow gently and silently.

By Est, among the dolly valleys glibbi. The silver streams of Jordan's crystal flood.

Faulcon.

Broke by the jutting land on either side.

In double stream, the briny waters glide, Dilthey.

Just before the confines of the wood,

To the level beach meet with the ground.

Where stray the Mufes, in what form or wise.

In those fair fields where sacred His glibbi,

Or else where Cam his winding vale divides.

Pope.

To pas on without change of rep.

Ye glibbi glibbi, permit me to relate

The mystic wonders of your silent state.

Dryden.

3. To move swiftly and smoothly along.

If one of mean affects.

May plod it in a week, why may not I

Glibbi thither in a day? Shakespeare's Cymbeline.

And the thing of arms and finding feaths.

Glibbi under the green water.

He trembled every limb, and felt a smart

As if cold steel had glibbi'd through his heart.

Dryden's Plater.

All things are beheld as in a shifty situation, where the objects only glibbi before the eye and disappear.

Dryden.

GLEE. n. [from the verb, glap, leap, act or manner of passing smoothly.

About his neck.

A green and glibbi'd snake had wretch'd the life.

With whom her head in nimble in threats, approach'd

The opening of his mouth, but hardily,

Seeing Orlando, it unluck'd itself.

And with indented glibbi'd did fly away.

Dryden's As you like it.

GLEBRE. n. [from glee, Latin.] One that glibbi.

The glinces into the heart did glibbi;

Hey to the glibbi;

There with my soul was flarym glibbi,

Such wound's from water wide.

Ayer's Poetical.

Glike. n. [glocal, glocal, See Glee,]

A fencer; a scoll; a foot. Not now in use.

Where's the bastard's thieves, and Charlot his glibbi?

Shakespeare.

To GLIMMER, vi. n. [flamme. Light, to shine; glistening, Dutch, to glow.

Shakespeare.
For there no twilight of the sun's dull ray
Glimmer upon the pure and native sky.
Oft in a glimmer bowens and gleads
His em'lered majesty.
Milton.

See thou thy dreamy plain, forlorn and wild,
The fear of desolation, void of light,
Save for a dim and faint gleam
Casts pale and dreadful light?
Milton's Paradise Lost.

The sacred influence
Of light appears, and from the walls of Heaven
Shone light out into the bosom of time.
Glimmering dawn.
Milton's Paradise Lost.

Through these sad thrones in this my soul,
Some seeds of light at length began to roll;
The glimmer of the infant ray,
Shot glimmering through the cloud, and promis'd day.
Prior.

Oh breathe winds, extost the general lies;
Or smother'd in the glimmeringocket dies.
Gay's Trivia.

When early morning glimmer'd o'er the dale,
He drost to patur all the silly makes.
Pepe.

To be perceived imperfectly; to appear faintly.

On the way the baggage post-boys, who had been at Court, got a glimmering who they were.
Warton.

The choise good woman was always in the dubs;
and there was perceivable glimmering of the Jewish rites in it, though much corrupted.
Swift.

Glimmer. m. f. [from the verb.]

1. Faintly; dimly; weak light.

2. A kind of oil.

The latter mazzae that are lodged in sparry and foamy bodies, dispersedly, from their shining and glimmering, were an inducement to the writers of poetry to give those bodies the name of mazzae and Glimmer.
Woodward on Fossilia.

Stones which are composed of plates, that are generally plain and parallel, and that are flexible and malleable, are called Glitter, or of glimmer, of which there are three sorts, the yellow or golden, the white or sulfer, and the black.
Woodward.

Glimmer. m. f. [Glimmer, Dutch, to glow.

1. A weak faint light.

Such warn matter in nature,
Only to shine, yet scarce to contribute
Each orb a glimmer of light, convey'd so far
Down to this habitable, which returns
Light back to them.
Milton.

Thousands of things, which now either wholly escape our apprehensions, or which our short-sighted reasons have got some faint glimpses of,
In the dark, in the grasp.
Swift.

2. A quick flashing light.

Light as the lightning glimmer they ran.
Milton.

My lamp of life, and that with maidly, sweet desire.
My Manhood, long mifted by warm'd fire.
Follow'd false lights; and when their glimmer was gone,
My pride fluck, out new epistles of her.
Dryden.

3. Tranitory light.

There no dear glinnes of the sun's lovely face
Strikes through the food darkest of the place.
Cowley.

1st, celestial fire, in sight
Have serv'd thy will, or gratified thy thought,
One glimmer of glory to my soul she give;
Great was the little time she had to live.
Dryden.

2nd. Short fleeting enjoyment.

If while this serv'd she draws fleeting breath,
Not Faithful with life, afraid of death,
I apply thy will that I should know
Glimmer of delight, or pain from anguiz love;
From now, from infam'tant now, great fire, dispel
The scaring thraight thyself.
Prior.

3rd. A short tranitory view.

Of friends I hear the tread of nimble feet
Hasting this way, and now by glimmer discern
Inhuman, and loathing, through a Scotchman.
Milton.

Seized upon empty, and centrally in this world, that we might have a tale or glimpse of his present judgment.
Hakewill.

A man so used to such sort of reflec'tions fees as much at one glimmer as would require a long discourse to lay before another, and make out in one entire and gradually deduction.
Locke.

What should I do! while here I was enthrall'd
No glimpse of wide-spread liberty remain'd.
Dryden.

2. If the exhibition of a faint resemblance.

No man with a vir'tue that he has not a glimpse of.
Shakespeare.

To Glisten. v. n. [glitter, German.]

To shine; to sparkle with light.
Shakespeare.

The blazing kind.
Shakespeare.

2. To glisten on the gleaming earths
With looks of dumb despair.
Thomson's Winter.

The ladies eyes glistend with pleasure.
Richardson's Pamela.

To Glipts. v. n. [glimper, German;
Glimmer, Dutch.]

To shine; to be bright.
Shakespeare.

The was flame most in Summer, and the helmet
Glipt brightened in the fairest furnihne.
Spenser.

The breeze, and range with humble lives in content,
Then to be perk'd up in a glistening grief,
And wear a golden bower.
Shakespeare.

The golden fun.
Glipt the xodjack in his glistening coach.
Shakespeare.

All that glisters is not gold.
Swift.

You were more than this, and talk
Of the court to-day than all.
Elst that glistred in Whitehall.
Dryden.

While the sun's bright fulnes, of gold and brass,
The mountains glistened therewith, and shined like lamps of fire.
Swift.

It confided not of rubies, yet the small pieces of it were delicious redish of our, and adorned prettily.
Bacon's Essay of Wit.

f. Msc. v. 39.

Glimster. m. f. [Propriety written cliysler, from klyster.]

See Clifter. It is written wrong even by Brown.

Now enters Bulk with new state airs,
His lambs, in Suftantial redish of our, and adorned prettily.

And who, in all profound affair,
Is hold as useful as his groller.
Swift.

Choler is the natural groller, or one excision Whereby nature annuls, which, depending duly on the bostals, extinguishes their parts,
And extricates them out of
Brown.

To Glimster. v. n. [Glimmer, Saxxon.]

1. To shine; to exhibit lustre; to gleam.

Steel grollers are more replentious than the atlasses plates of brass, and so is the glistening of a blade.
Bacon's Essay of Wit.

Bacon's Play. Rem.

Before the battle joins from
The field yet glitters with the pom of war.
Dryden's Virgil.

Scarce had it time as unfath the conquering
bung, to pursue.
Gay.

It did but groller, and the rebels fled.
Gay.

2. To be specious; to be striking.

On the one hand the most glistening tempta-itions to diffide, and on the other the dafffer effect of it.
Decay of Plea.

In glowering fencers, over her own heart fieve.
In crowds collected; and in courts sincere.
Young.

Glimster. m. f. [from the verb.]

Lustre; bright bow; splendour.

3. With what perswimmy glory since his fall
Was left him, or falle groller.
Milton.

Plentif not too much upon the groller of fortune,
For fear there Should be too much ally in it.
Cotiller on Pride.

Take away this mesur e from our decks and habling, one into foich point and glister, and ridiculous ornaments, as are a real thame to the Cotiller.

Glimsterand. Shining; sparkling.
A particule used by Chaucer and the old English poets. This participle termination is still retained in scotchland.

Glimsteringly, adv. [from glister.]

With shining lustre.

To Gloor. v. n. [gloen, Dutch.]

1. To quint; to look as clow.
Skinner.

2. In Scotland, to glare: as what a gloor and fog.
Locke.

To Gloom. v. n. [This word I conceive to be ignominously written for gloor.]
To cast fliide glance as a timorous lover.
Tennyson.

And her deluded eye to the gloor for you.
Row.

Glo'ward, n. f. [from gloor.]
A glowworm.

Glo'bated, adj. [from gloor.]
Formed in shape of a globe: spherical; sphe-ricalical.

Globe. m. f. [globe, French; globus,
Latin.]

1. A sphere; a ball; a round body: a body of a solid in which the surface is at the same distance from the centre.

2. The terraqueous ball.
The youth, whose fortune the vast globe obey'd,
Finding his royal enmey but'ry'd,
Went at his fall,
Where God declares his intention to give domnion, he meant that he would make a species of creatures that should have dominion over the other creatures of this terrestrial globe.

3. A sphere in which the various regions of the earth are geographically descrited, or in which the confidations are laid down
according to their places in the sky.
The Astronomer who spells the stars,
Mistakes his guide, and by his eye
Intersects heaven's physiography.

4. A body of soldiers drawn into a circle.

Him round
A globe of fiery seraphim inclo'd.
With bright imblazoning, and horrent arms.

Globe Amarantb, or everlastimg flower.
Milton.

2. Grecian Antochte, a flower.
Miller.

Globe Daily, m. f. A kind of flower.

Globe Fijb. n. f. A kind of orbicular fish.

Globe Rumanusus, m. f. [bollorine.
GLOBULAR.]
A plant.
Miller.

Globe Thistlge. m. f. [cardium orbicularus.]
A plant.

Globeose. adj. [globus, Latin.]
Spherical; round.

Regions, to which
All thy dominion, Adam, is no more
Than what this garden is.
And all the seas from one entire globe,
Strech'd into longitude.
Milton's Paradise Lost.

Globo's, and every magnitude of them.
Milton.

Globosity, n. f. [from globo.]
Sphericity; pshericalefs.

Why the same eclipse of the sun, which is seen to them that live more easterly, when the sun is elivated six degrees above the horizon, should be seen to them that live one degree westerly, when the sun is but degrees above the horizon, and so lower and lower proportionally, till at last it appear not at all: no account can be given, but the globosity of the earth.
Ray on the Creation.

Globous, adj. [globus, Latin.]
When the accent is intended to be on the left syllable, the word should be written globose, when on the first globus: I have transferred thither a passage of Miltmore, in which this rule has been neglected.
Spherical; round.

Wide over all the plain, and wider far
Than all this globose earth in plain outspread.
Such are the cours of
Milton.

The brazen instriments of earth discharge
Horrible flames, and turpid fretting clouds.
Globus luminis foxy, or dreadful blye.
Singing the air.
Philius.

GLO'BULAR.
GLOOM, n. f. [from gloomy.] 1. Want of light; obscurity; imperfect light; dimness.
2. Want of cheerfulness; cloudiness of the head; heaves of the mind; melancholy. Neaply glos'd, the gloominess upon their heads makes them grow fullen and insensible.

GLOOMYLY, adv. [from gloomy.] 1. Obscurly; dimly; without perfect light; dimly.
2. Sullenly; with cloudy aspect; with dark intentions; not cheerfully.

GLOOMINESS. n. f. [from gloomy.] 1. Want of light; obscurity; imperfect light; dimness.
2. Want of cheerfulness; cloudiness of the head; heaves of the mind; melancholy.

The gloominess in which some are the mind of the best men are involved, very often stands in need of such little incitements to mirth and laughter, as are apt to diffuse melancholy.

Addison.

GLOOMYLY, adv. [from gloomy.] 1. Obscurly; dimly; without perfect light; dimly.
2. Sullenly; with cloudy aspect; with dark intentions; not cheerfully.

See, he came; how gloriously he looked! Dryden.

Gloomyly retir'd the spider lives. Tickell.

GLOOMYLY, adv. [from gloomy.] 1. Obscurly; dimly; without perfect light; dimly.
2. Sullenly; with cloudy aspect; with dark intentions; not cheerfully.

See, he came; how gloriously he looked! Dryden.

Gloomyly retir'd the spider lives. Tickell.

GLO'Ø. If God be glorified in him, he shall also glorify himself and shall declare that he hath glorified him.

Rom. viii. 32.

GLORIOUS, adj. [glorious.] 1. Boastful; proud; haughty; ostentatious.
2. Noble; illustrious; excellent. It is frequently used by theological writers, to express the brightness of triumphant sanctity rewarded in heaven.

Let them know that thou art Lord, the only God, and that there is none else. Is. xli. 8.

He is glorious in respect of the brightness and splendor of his celestial body, still more glorious and magnificent by the authority of the church, which hath committed to him of the universal Judge.

Nelson.

GLO'ØIUS, adj. [from glorious] Nobly; splendidly; illustriously.

They inspire with those celestial flames which shine to gloriously in their works. Dryden.

Great with sometimes may gloriously offend.

And rife to faults true critics dare not meddle. Pope.

GLO'Ø'Y. n. f. [glorie, French; glorii, Latin. Among the old poets it was used sometimes as one syllable, glor.]

1. Praise paid in adoration.

2. The felicity of heaven prepared for those that please God.

Then enter into glory, and receive His feet at God's right hand, exalted high.

Above all names in heav'n. Milton's Paradise Lost.

It is hardly possible for you to bekeach and intreat God to make so much of you like to God, then nothing can be so glorious in the use of our money, as to use it in all works of love and goodw.

Law.

GLO'ØIUSLY, adv. [from glorious] Nobly; splendidly; illustriously.

They inspire with those celestial flames which shine to gloriously in their works. Dryden.

Praise paid in adoration.

2. The felicity of heaven prepared for those that please God.

Then enter into glory, and receive His feet at God's right hand, exalted high.

Above all names in heav'n. Milton's Paradise Lost.

It is hardly possible for you to bekeach and intreat God to make so much of you like to God, then nothing can be so glorious in the use of our money, as to use it in all works of love and goodw.

Law.

GLO'Ø'Y. n. f. [glorie, French; glorii, Latin. Among the old poets it was used sometimes as one syllable, glor.]

1. Praise paid in adoration.

2. The felicity of heaven prepared for those that please God.

Then enter into glory, and receive His feet at God's right hand, exalted high.

Above all names in heav'n. Milton's Paradise Lost.

It is hardly possible for you to bekeach and intreat God to make so much of you like to God, then nothing can be so glorious in the use of our money, as to use it in all works of love and goodw.

Law.

3. Honour; praise; fame; renown; celebrity.

Think it not glory to dwell in tyranny.

Sirley.

Glory is like a circle in the water.

Whomsoever exalteth to exalt shall be exalted.

Till broad by spreading it difpers to nought.

Shak. H. VI.

And with that word and warning soon was light.

Each soldier longing for near coming glory.

Faulkner.

Herel's bright speare far left glory brings.

There have been few friends on earth than kings.

Cowley.
GLO

Then I relate the freedom which I gave.
Sill thou art bound to vice, and full a slave.

Dyer's Works.

GLOSSARY.

1. glossarium, Latin.
2. glossaire, French.

A dictionary of obscure or untranslated Words.

According to Varro, when delubrum was applied to a place, it signified such a one, in qua delubrum dedicationes et; and it in the old glossaires, could add another word to the glossary maker.

Glossator.

A writer of glosses; a commentator.

The interpretation in which a single judge does not agree, the existence of judicial acts, it is because his office is to pronounce judgment, and not to become an evidence; but why may the same be found of two judges: Therefore, in this respect, the glossator's opinion must be true.

Glosser.

A Glossarium, Latin.

1. A cohort; a commentator.
2. A polisher.

Glossier.

A glossaire.

Smooth polisher; superficial lucifer.

These forces had a smoothness and glossiness much surpassing whatever I had offered in marine or common salt.

Dyer.

Glossograph.

A glossarium, a glossaire.

A commentator.

Glossography.

A glossarium, a glossaire.

The writing of commentaries.

Glossy.

A glossaire, a glossarium.

Shining; polished.

Glossy.

Shone with a glossy feed.

His forest was a beartkin on his back.

His half hung long behind, and glossy raven black.

Dyer.

Glove.

A glove.

He will search our planted grounds at home.

Dyer.

Glove.

A glove.

The whole trade is to make or fell gloves.

Dyer.

He does not wear a great round beard like a glove's paring knife.

Gloze.

To cover as with a glove.

My limbs, Weeken'd with grief, being now en cured with grief, Are thrice themselves: hence therefore, thou nice

A fealy gauntlet now, with joints of steel.

Mufh glove this hand.

Shakespeare, Henry IV.

The next he pays on is his palm.

The more he transfiguring gale.

To fad, 'tis air but once removed.'

Tender as 'twere a jelly glosed.

Chelewood.

Glover.

A glove.

One whole trade is to make or fell gloves.

Gloze.

A glove.

The low word of which I find no etymology.

To pout; to look fallen.

It is still used in Scotland.

She lurks in midst of all her dens, and streaks From out the shadow of the gloom on all her haunts.

Where, glossing round her rock, to fish the falls.

Chapman.

Gloutling with fallen flesh, the fury shook.

Her clotted looks, and bulk'd with each look.

Garth.

In Gloz.

Greek, Saxon; gloten, Dutch.

To be heated so as to shine without flame.

But
GLO

But schemes, Scheme left behind him, not in his soul.
But told it, framed, and hidden it does, gloom.
I will reveal what you so much dehre.
Spera.

coldly good eye.
That of the false and muttern of the war
Have gloved like plated Mars, now bend, now turn
Their office upon a sunny front.
Shakespeare.

Kneeling, before a golden Henry II. to know her, innocence, did take seven glowing iron, one after another, in her bare hands, and had thereby no harm.
Shakespeare.

Not, all part like, but alike, alike inform'd,
With radiant light, as glowing iron with fire.
Milton.

2. To burn with vehement heat.
Now would you find it easy to compose
The metted words, when from theirsoft lips flows
The consuming fire that in their entirety glows.
Addison's Ovid.

How op'ning hear theirs their happy regale flows,
And yawning胃口 with flames vengeant glow.
Smith.

Fires that glow,
Shadows of woe.
Pope.

3. To feel heat of body.
Did not his temples glow
Is the same fulness words and burning cheeks?
Addison, Cato.

The o'er bristles swiftly through his glowing hands.
Gay.

4. To exhibit a strong bright colour.
With smile that glory
Colours, he used to, longer hue.
Milton.

Clad in a gown that glows with Tyrian rays.
Dryden.

A malicious joy,
Whose red and fiery beams call through your visage
A glowing pleasure.
Dryden and Lettsom Gage.

From the guided strength of youth and light,
A new creation made to my sight.
Such heavy figures from his pencil flow,
So warm with life his blended colours glow,
Addison.

And all the face was gay.
And all the earth as green, the green expand.
Gay.

Savage.
Fair ideas flow,
Strive in the blush, or in the picture glow,
Pope.

Not the fair fruit that on your branches glows,
With that rite red'ti autoimmune fun belongs,
Can move the soul.
Pope.

Each pleasing Blunt shall endless smiles below,
And fair Belinda's blush for ever glow.
Pope.

Here clearer blush the round the frozen pale.
Pope.

5. To feel passion of mind, or activity of fancy.
You strive in vain
To hide your thoughts from him, who knew too well
The inward glories of a heart in love.
Addison's Cato.

For'd compliments and formal bows
Will show thee just above neglect;
The fire with which thy love glows,
Wilt fester into cool respect.
Prior.

Did Shadras's zeal my glowing breast inspire
To every musing, and rejoic in thee.
Prior.

Let the gay confidence of a life well spent
Calm every thought, inspirit e'er to grace,
Glow in thy heart, and smile upon thy face.
Pope.

With learners' hearts and letters and liquors,
Defacing, contembled.

He trembles, he glows,
Amid the flames that in his eye, glows.
Pope.

So perish all, whose breaths never blend'd to glow
For others good, or melt at others woe.
Pope.

Panick is always hard,
When real the fire gives the glowing bard.
Levys.

6. To rage or burn as a passion.
A fire which every wint'ry passion blows;
With pride it mounts, and with revenge it glows.
Dryden.

When crept into aged veins,
Love slowly burns, and long remains;
It glows, and with a fullent heart,
Like fire in logs, it warms us long.
Shadwell.

To Glow. v. n. To make hot so as to shine. Not in use.

On each side her
Stood pretty dimpled boys, like smiling Cupids,
With divers colour'd fans, whose wind did seem
To glow the darkest cheeks which they did cool.
Shakespeare.

Glow, n. f. [from the verb.]
1. Shining heat.
2. Vehemensse of passion.
3. Brightness or vivdness of colour.
The pale complection of true love.
The red glow of foam and proud disdain.

Shakespeare.

A waving glow his bloomy bed display,
Blushing in bright divisions of day.
Pope.

Such as, suppose that the great light might happily be blessed with the ornament, that the simple, grace, and majestic dignity of Radiante might unite with the glory of t'other battle at a Paolo, or Timo, were totally blanch'd.
Reinolds.

GLOWSWORM. n. f. [glove and worm.] A small creeping grub with a luminous tail.
The honey bags it eat from the humble bee,
And for want of seeds to warm their noughts,
And light them at the holy glowworm's eyes.
Shakespeare.

The glow worm doth the maiden to be near,
And to pale his ineffable fire.
Shakespeare.

A great light drowndeth a smaller that it cannot see, as the fun of that a glover worm.
Bacon.

The man, who, with this fire, light and guide,
A glover worm's eye'd, supposing he had found
A moving diamond, a breathing stone;
For life it is, and all in two words: he
Her held it dear, 'til by the springing day informed,
He found the worthwhile worm away.
Shelley.

To Glow. v. n. [glo've, Saxon.]
1. To flatter; to wheedle; to insinuate; to fawn.

Man will hearken to his glowing lies,
And cally transgress.
Milton's Paradise Lost.

So glove of the temple, and his groves turn'd
Into the heart his morning beauties turn'd.
Milton.

A late glowing parasite would call his fodder's
Value, and then he may go on boldly, because blindly, and by mocking himself for a lion, come to perish as a fox.
South.

Now for a glowing speech,
Fair pretentions, fabulous marks of friendship.
Phillip.

To comment. This should be glott.
Which Saliique lends the French unjoyful gloze.
To be the realm of France.
Shakespear.

GLOZE, n. f. [from the verb.]
1. Flattery; infination.
Now to plain dealing; lay these glozes by.

2. Specious show; glows. Not used.

Venous coothes well off are thakd with a fever,
And the body, in a bodily gloze be not hidden,
Shall fresh morning dews be an ease to the heat of a lover's fire.
Sidney.

GLOZER. n. f. [from gloze.] A flatterer.

GLOZE. n. f. [glut, French, glutien, Latin, glut, Welleth.] A vividly body commonly made by working the skins of animals to a jelly; any vivid or tenacious matter by which bodies are held one to another; to cement.

Water and all liquors, do hastily receive and dry more terrestial bodies proportionable; and dry bozors, on the earth, to fum upon the ground so, that as it was well laid by one of the ancients earthly and watery substances, one is a glut an other.
Bacon's Natural History.

The drink and most transparent glaze is the best.
Milton.

To build the earth did chance materials chafe,
And through the parson cementing glaze diffuse,
Blackmore.

The flowers of grins, mixed with water, will make a fat of glaze.
Arbuthnot.

To GLUE. v. a. [from the noun.]
1. To join with a viscous cement.
6. To glut. n. f. [from the verb.]

7. That which is gorged or swallowed.

8. Dipedous foul

Their devillish glut, chain'd thunderbolts, and hail.

Paradise Lost.

10. Plenty even to loathing and fatiety.

So death

Shall be deceit't his glut: and with us two

Be loath'd to finite his ravous maw.

Milton.

11. With the voracity of a gluton.

GLUTONOUSLY, adv. [from glutonous.]

With the voracity of a gluton.

GLUT' TONY, n. f. [glutinous, French; from glutum; Latin: glutum.]

Excess of eating of the table.

GLUTY, adj. [from glut.] Viscous; tenacious; glutinous.

It is called balmiamick mixture, because it is a glut y spumous matter.

Harvey on Conf.

With glut wax some new foundations lay.

Of virgin combs.

Whatever is the composition of the vapour let it have but one quality of being quite glut or visces, and it will mechanically solve all the phenomena of the grotto.

Addit.}

GLIN. n. f. [Irith; gleans, gmun, plir. Erfe; glens, Scottich.] A hollow between two mountains.

Though the glut not be of glut the Irith, yet he did flut them up within those two narrow corners and glis under the mountain's foot.

Spener.

To GNA'R. v. o. [gnyyan, Saxon; to GNA'RL. v. r. k. [knarren, Dutch.] To growl;

To murmur, to snarl.

When he 'gan to rear his brillions frong,

And tell glut, until day's enemy

Did him appease.

Thus is the sheep'd beaten from the fift, and

And wolves are glurining which shall glut their side.

Shaksp.

Shaksp. Rich. II.

The glurining porter durft not whine for doubt.

Still were the furies while their reverse glorified.

Fitch.

GNA'RLED. adj. [gna'r, nor, orJur, is in.

Shakespeare. Comedy of Errors.

Like rotten fruit I fall, worn like a cloth.

Gurton into rage by the devouring moth.

Sardys.

A hand may be made a match for you, a will to help him out of the snare the mouse glurinog the threads to pieces, and set the lion at liberty.

Legrange.

GNA'NER. v. o. [from gna'en.]

To GNA'NE.' v. o. [kna'fekn, Dutch.] To strike together; to clath.

The, fools, who could not yet this wrath of age,

Row'd his green eyes, that (gna'd in) with his rage.

Shaksp.

And gna'd his teeth.

Dryd. Vifg.

GNA'T, n. f. [gna't, Saxon.]

1. A small-winged biting insect.

Her whip of ezbeth's bone, the lash of film;

Her waggoner, a small grey cocked car.

Shakespeare.

2. Any thing proverbially small.

Ye blind guides, which strain at a goat and swallow not a straw.

Nahum iv. 19.

GNA'TFLOWER. n. f. [gna't and flower.] A flower, otherwise called the bee-flower.

GNA'TSNAPPER. n. f. [gna't and snap.] A bird so called, because he lives by catching gnats.

They deny that any bird is to be eaten whole, but only the fish they fish for.

To GNAW. v. o. [gna'znax, Saxon; knabken, Dutch.]

1. To eat by degrees; to devour by slow corrosion.

A knowing fellow, that would gnaw a man like a vormine, with his hollow brain.

And many an honest soule, even quick had their.

Chapman.

To you such fribb'd harsh fruit is given, as raw

Young soldiers at their earlings gnaw.

Dryd. Trv.

2. To bite in agony or rage.

Also, why gnaw you your mother's lip?

Some bloodly pallion makes your veins tingle.

Shaksp. Othello.

They gnaw'd their tongues for pain.

Shaksp. Sec. xv. 10.

He came fell, and dying gna'd the ground.

Dryd.

3. To wear away by biting.

Gnawing with my teeth my bonds slander,

I gain'd my freedom. Shaksp. Comedy of Errors.

Like rotten fruit I fall, worn like a cloth.

Gurton into rage by the devouring moth.

Sardys.

A hand may be made a match for you, a will to help him out of the snare the mouse glurinog the threads to pieces, and set the lion at liberty.

Legrange.

4. To fret; to wagg; to corrode.

His bones clean pick'd; his very bones they gnaw.

Dryd.

5. To pick with the teeth.

Shaksp. Richard III.

GNA'WE'R. n. f. [from gna'en.]

One that gnaws.

GNO'MON. n. f. [gno'mon.]

The hand or pin of a dial.

The gnomes of every dial is supposed to represent the zodi of the world, and therefore the two ends or extremities thereof must directly answer to the North and South pole.

Harris.

There were from great antiquity fun-dials, by the shadow of a style or gnomon, denoting the hour of the day.

Hieron.

GNO'MONICKS. n. l. [gno'monicks.] A science which makes a part of the mathematicks:

it teaches to find a just proportion of shadows for the conduction of all kinds of fun and moon dials, and for knowing, what o'clock it is by means thereof; as also of a gnomer or line, that throws off the shadow for this purpose. Travers.

To GO. v. o. pret. I went; I have gone.

Gnan, Saxon. This was probably changed to gone, or gane, then contracted to go. Went is the pretticer of the old verb vocat.

1. To walk; to move step by step. You know that love will keep service where it cannot go. Shakespeare.

2. To live, to flourish, to enjoy life. "Let us be going." "All, all, all, all, all!" Mrs. Sackville's "Sackville's Life.

3. To walk solemnly; not run. "To go to Hale." "To march or walk a-foot." "To go on through on my feet." Nathan. xxv. 19.

4. To go leisurely; not run. "To go, to hasten." "To do in the room where there was no sound, while they laboured; and so the fell gate round." Dydon.

5. To remove from place to place. "To be in so far, that, should I wade no more, Returning were as tedious as goer." Shakespeare.

6. To depart from a place; to move from a place; the opposite of to come. "I hope I am not to go, to tell my lord." That I might shut him. Shakespeare. At once, good-night; stand not upon the order of your going. "To go at once." Shakespeare's "Macbeth." When the had said the west was over." John. xiv. 28.

7. To move or pass in any manner, or to any end. Though the vicar be bad, or the parson be evil, "Go not for thy thyself to the devil." Totten. She may go to bed when the light; all as the will. Shakespeare.

8. Did you with that I would make her turn; sit, the can turn and turn, and yet go on. Shakespeare. I am glad to see your lordship abroad; I heard say your lordship was sick: I hope your lordship goes abroad by advice. Shakespeare. The mourners go about the streets. "To go on." Ezeki. xii. 13.

9. the sun shall go down over the prophets, and the day shall be dark over them. Mark. iii. 6.

10. Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp. "To go out." Exod. xxxiii. 27.

11. The sun, which once did shine alone, Hangs down his head, and sits as ill at night, When he beheld twelves for sons upon him about the world, and giving light. "To take light." There's more in the Reid at an awful distance, flat, as if they had been there as long a time, to sit, or to go on, as he thought good; and not pursue, but wait on his retreat. Dydon. Turn, and they go, and they take, till you have given them all the satisfaction that they are capable of. History only acquaints us that he did not wish the Emperor, he having carried his arms as far as that river, Stucl's "Directions for a Seaman."
45. To have influence; to be of weight; to be of value.
I have another reason to declare, that nor may those, who have written so many ingenious or experimental things, which is, that the trial of them is by time, and observing whether they live or no.

46. To be rated one with another; to be considered with regard to greater or less worth.
I think, as the world goes, he was a good feet of man enough.

47. To contribute; to conduce; to concur; to be an ingredient.
It's a rule that gives a great way in the government of a father's man's life, not to put any thing to hazard that may be secured by industry, consideration, or circumspection. L'Estrange.

48. To fall out; to terminate; to succeed.
Your strong position much more than your quality, Odear Bacon, is to your being with you and me. Shakespeare.

49. To be in any state. This fene is imperfannon.
It shall gill with him that is left in his tabernacle.

50. To proceed in train or consequence.
How goes the night, boy?—The moon is down: I have not heard the clock And the goes down at twelve. Shakespeare.

51. To be gone about. To attempt; to endeavor; to attempt; to set one's self to any business.
O dear father, It is thy business that I go about. Shakespeare.

52. To go off. To err; to deviate from the right.
If any man's wife go off, and commit a trespass against him. Numbers, v. 12.

53. To go between. To interpose; to moderate between two.
I dare between them as a fable, but raise more than that, he loved her; for, indeed, he was mad for her. Shakespeare.

54. To go by. To pass away unnoticed.
Do not you come my tardinets to child, That lap's in time and passion, less go by Than the important acting of your dread command. L'Estrange.

55. To go by. To find or get in the conclusion.
In argument with men a woman ever Get by the worse, whatever be her cause. Milton.

56. To go by. To be supposed; to suppose.
That one may judge of the fine and form of a plane, and indeed the frequency of the Sit, and violence of the symptoms, are a better rule to go by. Sharp's Surgery.

57. To go down. To be swallowed; to be received, not rejected.
Nothing so ridiculous, nothing so impossible, but it goes down whole with him for truth and earnestness. L'Estrange.

58. To go in and out. To do the businesse of life.
The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in. Psalms, xlix.

59. To go in and out. To be at liberty.
He shall go in and out, and no man shall make him afraid. John.

60. To go off. To die; to go out of life; to die.
I would the friends we mifs were late arrived, Some must go off, and yet, by these I les, So great a day as this is cheaply bought. Shakespeare.

61. To go off. To depart from a post.
The leaders having charge from you to hand, Will not go off until they hear you speak. Shakespeare, Henry IV.

62. To go on. To make attack.
But til they knowe. Whole valor have turned into his poison, And praised to do daring, as he would Go on upon the Gods. Ben Jonson.

63. To go on. To proceed.
He found it: it was a great war to keep that peace, but was fain to go on in his story. Sidney.

64. To go on. To be at liberty.
He shall go in and out, and no man shall make him afraid. John.
GO

I have escaped many threats of ill fits by these medicines; if they go on, the only posture I have dealt with is wool from the belly of a fat sheep. - Temple.

To look up the fond as going off with such readiness, not proper, because it sometimes suppresseth it. - Addison.

I have already handled some abuses during the last administration, and in convenient time shall go on with the rest. - Swift.

When we had found that define impracticable, we should not have gone on in so expensive a management of it. - Swift.

Many clergymen write in so diminutive a manner, with such frequent blots and interlacements, that they hardly able to go on without perpetual heresies, or extraordinary expences. - Swift.

If you wish health to go on with that noble work, Berkeley.

64. To Go over. To revolt; to betake himself to another party.

In the change of religion, men of ordinary understandings don't so much consider the principles as the practice of those to whom they go over. - Addison.

To keep their steps from fudging, when members knits, and legs grow stronger, Make use of some longer, Prior.

66. To Go over. To be extinguished.

Think thou the fiery fever will go out. With titles blown from admiration - Pope.

Bacon's Natural History.

The care of a flate, or an army, ought to be as constant as the chymill's fire to make any great production of it, and it goes out for an hour, perhaps, the whole operation fails. - Temple.

The morning, as mistaken, turns about;
And all her early fires again go out. Dryden.

To keep their steps from fudging, when members knits, and legs grow stronger, Make use of some longer, Prior.

67. To Go through. To perform thoroughly; to execute.

This is the only way every able to go through with that kind of life, he was as desirous for his sake as for his own to enter into it. - Sidney.

If you can as well go through with the fortune laid down by that land, I think you will have no lesser soberly to your time there. - Pope.

Rats ought not to suffer their coining to go through with the resolution and dedication, if it depended on them, but take the master back into their own hands. - Bacon.

He much feared the Earl of Artrim had not intention of mind enough to go through with such an under-taking. - Clarendon.

The amazing difficulty and greatness of his account will rather terrify than inform him, and keep him in his present observing about such a task, till he desires ever to go through with it. - Swift's Stowe's.

The powers in Germany are borrowing money, in order to go through their part of the expenses. - Addison on the War.

68. To Go through. To suffer; to undergo.

I tell thee that it is absolutely necessary for the common good that thou shouldst go through this obstinacy. - Addison.

69. To Go upon. To take as a principle.

This proposition I have gone upon through those papers. - Addison.

70. The fenes of this word are very diëfht; its general notion is motion or progression. It commonly expresses passage from a place, in opposition to come. This is often observable even in figurative ex.}

Vol. I.
GOD

de vour in haste; a gomand; a greedy eater.

GOD BETWEEN, n. f. [go and between.] One that transacts business by running between two parties. Commonly in an ill fene.

Even as you came in to me, her adolescent, or go-between, parted from me: I say, I think she with her between ten and eleven.

GODBEST, m. f. [goebel, French.] A bowl, or cup, that holds a large draught.

My firdwe goblet for a dish of wood. Shakes. We love not boarders, and goblets enow'd, but free from forbidding cup; if all. Denham.

Crowne the goblet with a cheerful draught; Enjoy the present hour, adjourn the future thought.

GODELIN, m. f. [French; goebelin, which Spenser has once retained; in writing it three syllables. This word some derive from the Gebelins, a faction in Italy; so that else and gobelin is Guebhel and Gebelline, because the children of either party were terrified by their nurses with the name of the other: but it appears that else is Welsh, and much older than those factions. Elie Ulises, are phenomena of the night, and the Germans likewise have lost; had spirits among them named Goblini, from which goebelin might be derived.]

1. An evil spirit; a walking spirit; a frightful phantom.

Angels and ministrants of grace defend us! Be thou a spirit of health, or gobelin damn'd, Being with thee afar from hea'nt or blaffs by hell! Shakes.

To whom the goblet, full of wrath, reply'd. Art thou that thou, 0 Milton! Paradise Lost. Spenser. Always, whilst he is young, be sure to preserve his tender mind from all impressions and notions of spirits and goblins, or any fearful apprehensions in the dark. Locke.

2. A fairy; an elf.

His form was Elfin, who overcome
The wicked goblin in bloody field; But Elfant was of most renowned fame, What all the world did Pambra build.

Spenser. Go, charge my gobelin that they grind their joints With dry convolutions; shorten up their linens With such a goblin as Shakespeare's Telemach.

Mean time the village roives up the fire, While well attest, and as well belived'd, Hear folmen goes the goblin sty round, Thomson.

GOD, n. f. [god, Saxon, which likewise signifies god. The same word passes in both senses with only accidental variations through all the Teutonic dialects.]

1. The Supreme Being.

God, a spirit, they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth. John, iv. 24

God above

Deal between thee and me, Shakespeare's Macheth.

All the churches of God are united into one by the unity of discipline and government, by virtue whereof the same Christ ruleth in them all. Prior, The Supreme Being, whom we call God, is necessitory, self-existent, eternal, immense, omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent; and therefore also a being who is or ought to be external to all forms or gods. Crew's Cyclop.

2. A false god; an idol.

He that sacrificeth unto any God, hate unto the Lord only, he shall be utterly destroyed. Exod. xxix, 13, 14. As for our part, to the God of hosts, They kill us for their sport. Shakespeare, King Lear.

Strong gods of arms, whole iron forge fawes
The freezing North, and Hyperborean snow.
And what the goblin in a Thetis Winter cost, Where Stand thy steeds, and thou art honour'd molt.

Dryden.

GOD, n. f. [god, 0 and god.] Without sense of duty to God: atheistical; wicked; irreligious.

Of these two forms of men, both gods, the one has utterly no knowledge of God, and the other finds how to persuade themselves that there is no such thing to be known. Hooker. That gods were crew Rebellious.

For faults not his, for guilt and crimes Of godly men, and of rebellious times, Him his unhappy country fett, Their bitt Camillus, into banishment, Dryden.

Godly, adj. [god and right.] Divine; refembling a divinity; supremely excellent.

Thus Adam his illustrious son begot, And that the godlike angel answer'd mild. Milton.

Musing and much revolving in his breast, How best the mightie work he might begin, Of whom my office is to murn for, which way is best, Publish his godlike office now mature. Milton.

That prince shall be a folle and godlike, as, by established laws of liberty, safe protection and encouragement to the honest industry of mankind. Locke.

GODLING, n. f. [from god.] A little divinity; a diminutive god.

Let us in our duties be content, Whole humble followers are content with brahs. Dryd. Godliness, n. f. [from godly.] 1. Piety to god.

2. General observation of all the duties prescribed by religion.

Virtue and godliness is of life are required at the hands of the minister of God. Hooker.

Godly, adj. [from god.] 1. Pious towards God.

Grant that we hereafter live a godly, righteous, and sober life. Barnes Prayer.

2. Righteous; righteous.

Help, Lord, for the godly man saitheth, for the faithfull fail among the children of men. Ps. xxi. 1.

The same church is really holy in this world, in relation to all other goblins contained in it, and in all its infarcted faculty. Pearson.

Godly, adv. Piously; righteously. By analogy it should be godly, but the repetition of the syllable is too harsh.

The apostle St. Paul teacheth, that every one that will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution. Hooker.

Godlyhead, n. f. [from godly.] Goodness, righteousness; righteousness.

An old word. For this, and many more such outrage, I crave your godlike to allow. The rancorous signe of his might. Spenser.

Godmother, n. f. [god and mother.] A woman who has undertaken sponsorship in baptism. A term of spiritual relation.

Godship, n. f. [from god.] The rank or character of a god; deity; divinity.

Deferring large things to the godfather, who is the godfather of the child. Shakespeare.

O'ers hills and dales their godships came. Prior.

Godson, n. f. [god and son.] One for whom one has been sponsor at the font.

Godward, adj. To Godward is toward God. So we read, Hec Arbuthnus tenus, for habundus Arbuthnus.

And such truth have we through Christ to Godward.

Godwit, n. f. [god, good, and pru, an animal.] A bird of particular delicacy.

Nor oratans nor godwits crown his board. Crayley.

Godlyeld, adv. [corrupted from Godly.]

Herein I teach you, How you should bid godlyeld us for your pains, And thank us for your trouble. Shakespeare, Macbeth.

Goei, adj. [goel, Saxon.] Yellow. An old word.

In March, at the utmost, dry flesh or wet! I hop most for so well chosen little godlyeld go fat. The geeler and you like the better. Weel gutted and pared, the better they prove. Tuff.

Goer, n. f. [from goe.]

1. One that goes: a runner.

I would they were in Afric both together, Mysleth, with a credle, that I might pright.

The goe back. Shakespeare's Cymbeline.

Such a man.

Might GOL

Might be a copy to these younger times;
Which, follow'd well, would now demonstrate them
But gosses backward.
Shaksp. All's well.

2. A walker; one that has a gait or manner of walking good or bad.
The earl was so far from being a good dancer,
The gaiting could hurt either of us so much as to be the intervening officious impertinence of these goers between us, who in England pretend to intimacies with you, and in Ireland to intimacies with me.
—Eye Snuff.

3. The foot. Obsolote.
A double mantle, caft
Amhurst his floulders, his faire goers great
With these.
Chapman.

Te Gogles, ex. v. To look at.
Infant's all over, with disgrace.
To be seen by her in such a place,
Which made him hang his head, and fould.
And wink and goggle like an owl.
Hudibras.

Not fighs, nor groans, nor goggling eyes did want.
Dryden.

Gogle-eyed, adj. [from eye, Saxon.] Squint-eyed; not looking straight.
Their deformed, unnatural, or lame; and very unfamiliar to look up, except men that goggle-ey ed themself.
Afoam.

Going, n. s. [from go.]
1. Gait of walking, or composition.
When nobles are their tailor takers,
There hereticks burn't, but wench's futers,
They come the time, who lives to see,
That they shall be 'ud with feet.
Shakespeare.

2. Pregnancy.
The time of death has a far greater latitude than that of our birth; most women coming, according to their rechning, with the compass of a fortnight; that is, the twentieth part of their going.
Grew's Cenisial, Sacra.

3. Departure.
The going is not lonely; with thee goes
The hand to lead, and thou art bound.
Milton.

Gola, n. s. The same with Cymatic.
In a comice the gola, or cymatium of the corona,
the coping, the mouldings or dentell, make a noble part of all their going.

GOLD. n. s. [golb, Saxon; galud, riches, Welleh. It is called gold in our English tongue, either of gell, as Seiniger says, which is in Dutch to shine; or of another Dutch word, which is gellen, and figi fies in Latin aureus, in English to be of price or value: hence cometh their ordin ary word gell, for money. Peacham on Drawing.

1. Gold is the heaviest, the most dense, the most fimple, the most ductile, and most fixed of all bodies, not to be injured by either air or fire, and seeming incorruptible.
It is soluble by means of fennel,
but is injured by no other falt.
Gold is frequently found native, and very rarely in a flate of ore.
Pure Gold is so fixed,
that Borchave informs us of an ounce of it, in the eye of a glass furnace for two months, without being a single grain.
—Hall on Phisics.

Gold hath these nature: greatness of weight, elements of parts, friction, plasments or foftneas, immorality from ruth, and the colour or tincture of yellow.
—Seiniger's Natural History.

Ah! Bookbinder's, now do I ply the touch.
To try if thou be current gold indeed.
Shaksp.

We need not this in a gold, and that a fiver gold, only by the different reflections and colours prefent in the eye by the pencil.
Locke.

The gold's frafted veifel which made tempels beat,
He frames the very lines to his recess.
Dryden.

Money.

For me, the gold of France did not induce,
We discipline betimes those other creatures we make useful and good for something. Locke.
10. Sound; not false; not fallacious. Addison.
11. Legal; valid; right; fairly or fairly held. Addison.
12. Confirmed; attested; valid. Addison.
13. With as preceding. It had a kind of negative or inverted sense; as good as, no better than. Dryden.
15. Rich; of credit; able to fulfill engagements. Swift.
16. Good; not evil; good-bred; not more good than others; no farther in spot neither, than with safety of a pure blush thou mayst in honour come off again. Addison.
17. All man's works on, of, or about good-breeding. Swift.
18. What reward awaits the good, the rest what punishment? Milton.
19. In a dark age, against example good, of good-bredness. Swift.
20. Such follow him, as shall be registred; Part good, part bad, of had the larger felicity, Milton.
21. Grant the bad what happiness they would, One they must want, which is to pass for good. Pope.
22. Why drew Mafchielli's good bithop pure breasts? When Nature fcken'd, and each gale was death? Pope.
23. Such was Rofcommon, no more learned than good-bred. Pope.
24. With manners gen'rous as his noble blood. Pope.
25. No farther intercourse with Heaven had he, But left good works to men of low degree. Pope.
27. Without good nature man is but a better kind of vermin. Bacon.
28. Here we love'd, and there we love; Good nature now and pillon thrive
29. Which of the two should be above, and Lawts unto the other give. Swift.
30. 'Tis no wonder if that which afforded little glory to God, hath no more good will for men. Dryden.

Decay of Plenty.
When you shall see him, Sir, to die for pity, 'Twere such a thing, 'twould do to deceive the world, 'Twould make the people think you were a good mas-ter.' Dryden.

To teach him betimes to love and be good natured to others, is to lay early the true foundation of an honest heart. Dryden.

Good sense and good nature are never separated, though the ignorant world has thought otherwise. Dryden.

Affability, mildness, tenderness, and a word which I would fain bring back to its original signification of virtue, I mean good nature, are of daily use. Swift.

This doctrine of God's good will towards men, this command of men's proportionable good will to one another, is not this the very body and substance, this the very spirit and life of our Saviour's whole infallibility? Swift.

It was his greatest pleasure to spread his healing wings every where, and to make every one feelable of his good will to mankind. Cal.

How could you chide the young good natur'd prince, And drive him from you with so stern an air. Addison. 26. Favourable.
GOOD.

26. Favourable; loving.
27. Companionable; sociable; merry. Often used ironically.
28. Useless.
29. In a ludicrous sense.
30. As for all other good women that love to do but little; his hand, like a thistle, it is to mould themselves in the sunbeam, which is been but white in Ireland can well wither.
31. A selfish and tedious.
32. He, there the time for the devil he intended, called upon me to follow him which both from oath, and willing by good will obeyed.
33. Sidney.
34. In good time. Not too fast.
35. Good faith. Really, feriously.
36. Good. [To make.] To keep; to maintain; not to give up; not to abandon.
37. Upon the place the whole chafe, all making good the flight without any ground given.
38. Bacon's Henry VII.
39. Sidney.
40. Sidney.
41. Women's dress.
42. Fletcher, in love with the occasion.
43. Dover.
44. With good reason.
45. Upon his bad lot to make all good.
46. Shakespeare.
47. Shakespeare.
48. Shakespeare.
49. Shakespeare.
50. Shakespeare.
51. Shakespeare.
52. Shakespeare.
1. The throat; the swallow.

There were birds also made to finely, that they did not only deceive the fight with their figures, but the bearing with their wings, which the uneasy inconstant did make their gorse deliver. Sidney.

And now how abhored in my imagination it is? my gorse rides at it. Shakespeare's Hamlet.

And the two tenderens will find us shafts, begin to heave the gorse, dishabill and abhor the Moor. Shakespeare's Othello.

2. That which is gorged or swallowed. Not in use.

And all the way most like a brutish beast, He f的操作 his gorse, that all did him detest. Spenser.

To GORGE. v. n. [gorge, French.]

1. To fill up the throat; to glut; to fatiate.

Beau with his presence gusted, gored and full. Shakespeare.

He that makes his generation metre, To gorge his appetit. Shaksp. King Lear.

Gorge with my blood thy barbarous appetite. Dryd.

I desire that you will not gorg the lion either with nonsens or obliquely. Dryd.

Once more this English and Spanish army now have joined in the battle. On Afric's sands, disdigu'd with their wounds, To gorg the wolves and vultures of Numida. Addf.

The giant, gorg'd with feasts, and wine, and blood, And breath least at length, and mewling in hidden. Addf.

2. To swallow: as, the fifth but gorged the book. GORGED. adj. [from gorg.] Having a gorge or throat.

Look up a height, the thrill gorg'd lark is far. Canott be foon or hear. Shakespeare.

GOERGEous. adj. [gorgeous, old French. Skamer.] Fine; splendid; glittering in various colours; showy; magnificent.

O, that deceit should dwindle In such a gorgeous panier. Shak. Romeo and Juliet. As full of spirit as the month of May, And gorged as the full at Midsummer. Shaksp.

He bad them look upon themselves and upon their enemies, themselves dreadful, their enemies gorgious and brave. Hoyward.

The gorgious Earl, with richbaed hand, Pour's on her kings barbaric pearl and gold. Milton.

With gorgeous wings, the mark of love-reign fly, The two contending princes make their way. Dryd.

GOERGEously. adj. [from gorg.2.] Splendidly; magnificently; finely.

The duke, one folenn day gorgously clad in a suit all over speeral with diamonds, took one of them of good value. Watton.

GOERGEousness. n. s. [from gorg.2.] Splendour; magnificence; show.

GOGET. n. s. [from gorg.] The piece of armour that defends the throat.

He with a pally fumbling on his gorg, Shakes in and out the rivet. Shak. Troilus and Cressida. He did oftentimes spend the night in the church alone praying, his headpiece, gorg, and gauntlets lying by him. Here to his gorg peers above his gown, To tell the people in what danger he was. Ben Jonson.

About his neck a threefold gorg, As rough as tressed heathen target. Holid.

GO'GN. n. s. [go.7.] A monster with swayy hairs, of which the fight turned beholders to stone; any thing ugly or horrid.

Gorgous and hydrams, and chymaturas dire. Milton. Why didn't thou not encounter man for man, And try the virtue of that gorg face face me into fashion. Dryd.

GORMAND. n. s. [gourmand, French.] A greedy eater; a ravenous luxurious feeder.

To GORMANDIZE. v. n. [from gormand.] To eat greedily; to feed ravenously.

GORMANDIZER.
G O V

Go to a gypsy's feath and goody with me,
After so long grief such satnity.

Shakesp.

At the chrintening of George Duke of Clarence,
Who was born in the cull of Dublin, he made both the E of Killame and the E of Ormond his

Evans on Ireland.

2. A tipping plan.

And sometimes lurk I in a gypsy's wol, a
In very likeal of a Mode crab,
And when I speake with a bosh, a gypsy's

Evans on Ireland.

3. One who runs about tatting like women at a lying-in.

To do the office of a neighbour,
And be a gypsy at his labour.

Lodd.

The market and exchange must be left to their own ways of talking; and gypsies do not be robbed of their ancient privilege.

Lodd.

He gives himself up to an idle gosipping,

Lodd.

2. To be a por companion.

Not met with fortune, other than at feast,
Full warm of appetite of Ruth's gypsy.

Shakesp.

Grasped or capricious, by the canon law, is a spiritual affinity; and the joury, that was gypsy to either the parties, might, in former times, be challenged as not indifferent.

Evans on Ireland.

G O V

G o t. prex. [from the verb get].

Titus Lartius writes, they fought together;
but a gipsy jug get out, and shal I.

Shakesp. Coriolanus.

If you have strength Achilles' arms to bear
Though fanc'ry Thersites get thee, thou shalt be Love'd and esteem'd.

Dryden's Jeronim.

That region in this realm my wars have got;
This mosteemful empire is the lore's lot.

Dryden.

When they began to reform about the means how the fest got thrasher, and away back again, there they were presently in the day by my side.

Wedward's Nat. Hist.

G O V

G o t. part. pass. of get.

Soldman commended them for their valour in their evil baps, in a plot to well by them laid, more than he did that policy of others get by good to not grounded upon any good reason.

Knolle.

A gentle persuasion in reasoning, when the first point of submission to your will is get, will must times step on a dice.

Dryden.

If he behoves himself to so when he dependeth on us for his daily bread, can any man say what he will do when he is not in these exstacy.

Thou writ from Etima's burning entrails torn,
By fire with withered hands, and in burned thun.

Page.

O G T E N. part. pass. of get.

Widdom cannot be gotten for gold.
Job, xviii. 15. Few of them, when they are gotten into an office, apply their thoughts to the execution of it.

Temp.

Dit.

To Gove. v. n. To bow; to put in a goose, goff, or mom. An old word.

Load safe, carry heavy, follow time being falls,
Goff just to the barm, it is out of defaul.

Temple.

To G O V E R N. v. a. [governor, French;
Governer, Lat.].

1. To rule as a chief magistrate.

This inconveniency is more hard to be reformed in the governor the governor; as a malady in a vital part is more incurable than in an external.

Sir John Mason, in his book of Etim's

Governer on Ireland.

Slaves to our passions we become; and then it grows impossible to govern men.

Waller.

2. To regulate; to influence; to direct.

I am in pretence against war, though it puts the power into my hands, and though such turbulent and saucy spirits as you are, govern all things in times of peace.

Davenant.

The chief point, which he is to carry always in his eye, which is to govern all his counsedels, designs, and actions.

Atterbury.

3. To manage; to refrain.

Go after her, that's desperate; govern her, Shakesp.

Go after her, that's desperate; govern her.

Shakesp.

4. [In grammar.] To have force with regard to syntax as, ame governs the accessory cafle.

Litten.

Litten, children unto me,
And let this your leison be,
In our language evermore
What does the governe here.
Munger's Eng. Gram.

5. To pilot; to regulate the motions of a ship.

To G O V E R N. v. n. To keep superiourity; to behave with hauinghine.

By that rule,
Your wicked aste may be working now
To give bad counsels, that you may govern.

Dryden.

G O V E R N A B L E. adj. [from govern.]
Sub-mivile to authority; subject to rule, obdient; manageable.

The insubmissibleness of the former part of a man's age, not yet grown up to be headstrong, makes it more governable and safe.

Lache.

G O V E R N A N C E. n.f. [from govern.]
1. Government; rule; management.
Jonathan took the government of his father at that time, and rule up instead of his brother Judas.

1 Mar. ii. 34.

2. Controll, as that of a guardian.
Me he knew not, neither his own ill,
'Fill through by wife handinge, and fair governance,
I him recurred to a better will.
Spen.

What shall King Henry be a papill still,
Under the false Gobernance of Shakesp.

3. Behaviour; manner, Obstecle.
He liketis to fall into mischance
That is disregarded of his governance.
Spen.

G O V E R N A N T. n.f. [governernce, French.
A lady who has the care of young girls of quility. The more uful and proper word is governers.

G O V E R N E R S. n.f. [governerness, old French, from gove.]
1. A female invoved with authority.
The moon, the governers of floods,
Pale in her anger, washes all the air,
That time of mingle of tempe.
 Shaksp.

2. A tuteors; a woman that has the care of young ladies.
He presented himself unto her, falling down upon both his knees, and holding up his hands, as the old governers of Danes was painted, when the suddenly law the golden flower.

Sidney.

His three younger children were taken from the governers in whole hands he put them.
Clarendon.

3. A tuteors; an instrucfers; a directers.
Great affliction that sever governers of the life of man brings upon thoes feits the reason.

More against Shacks.

G O V E R N M E N T. n.f. [governement, Fr.]
1. Form of a community with respect to the disposition of the supreme authority.

There seem to be but two general kinds of government in the world: the one exercised according to the arbitrary command of the monarchical and of some absolute and the other according to certain orders or laws introduced by agreement or custom, and not to be changed without the consent of man.

Temp.

England...are any so soft to limit itself: the supreme legislative power cannot make itself not to be abolute.

Lodge.

2. An established state of legal authorith.

There they shall found
Their governers, and their great senat chafe.
Through the twelve tribe, to rule by laws ordain.
Mitton.

White.
GOU

While he survives, in concord and content
The commons live, by no divisivn rent;
But the great monarch's death dissolves the government.
Addison.

Everyone known, who has confedered the duty of government, that there must be in each particular form of it an absolute unlimited power.
Addison.

Where any one person or body of men feize into the hands of the people in the last resort, there is properly no longer a government, but what Aristotle and his followers call the abuse or corruption of one.
Swift.

3. Administration of publick affairs.

Safety and equal government are things
Which objects make as happy as their kings, Waller.
Thefe governments which curb not evils, cause;
And queller not on our laws.
Young.

You need must learn, lord, to amend this fault;
Though sometimes it shews greatfulness, courage, blood,
Yet sometimes it doth prevent harsh rage.
Defect of manners, want of government,
Prudence, haughtiness, opinion, and diffidence.
Shaksp.

'Tis government's work that makes them form divine;
The want thereof makes them abominable.
Young.

5. Manageableness; compliance; obsequiousness.

Thy eyes windows fail,
Like death, when seen as the dread of life;
Each part depr'ted of regal power,
Shall thuf and dark, and cold appear, like death.
Shakespeare.

Their god
Shot many a dart at me with fierce intent;
But I them ward'd all with wary government.
Spen.

7. [In grammar.] Influence with regard to construction.

GOVERNOR, n. s. [government, French.]

1. One who has the supreme direction.

It must be confessed, that of Chrift, working as a creator and a governor of the world by providence, all are parasites.
Hobbes.

They beget in us a great idea and veneration of the mighty author and governor of such stupendous bodies, and excite and elevate our minds to his adoration and prayer.

2. One who is invested with supreme au.

For the kingdom is the Lord's and he is the governor among the nations.
Ex. xxi. 23.

To make no immediate supreme obedience upon any potent grounds as the minister, if so disposed, can urge disobedience as: for instance, if my governor should commanded me to do a thing, or I must die, or prefer my effe; and the minister in telling me, that I offend God, and ruin my foul, if I obey that command, 'tis easy to see a greater force in this persuasion.

3. One who rules any place with delegated and temporary authority.

To you, lord governor,
Remains the cenoure of this hellish villain.
Shaksp.

4. A tutor; one who has care of a young man.

To Eltam will I, where the young king is,
Being ordained' his special governor;
And for his safety there I'll belt devie.
Shaksp.

The great work of a governor is to fashion the carriage, and form the mind; toallet in his pupil good habits, and the principles of virtue and wildom.
Locke.

During the minority of kings, the elections of bishops, and other affiais of the church, must be left in the hands of their governors and curators.

5. Pilot; regulator; manager.

Behold all the ships, which though they be so great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet they are turned about with a very small helm, whichever there they are guided by.
Shaksp.

GOUJERES. n. s. [gouje, French; a camp.

trall. ] The French distaffes.
Hawmer.

GOURD. n. s. [gourd, French.]

1. A plant. The fruit of some species are long, of others round, or bottle shaped.
Miller.

But I will haft, and from each bough and brake,
Each plant, and jucup gourd, will pluck forth choice
To entertain our angel. Milton's Par. Lost.
Gourd feeds abound so much in oil, that a sweet and pleasant man may be drawn from thence by expression of the four greater cold, and are used in emulsions.
Hill.

2. A bottle [from gourd, old French. Skinner.]
The large fruit so called is often scooped hollow, for the purpose of containing and carrying wine, and other liquets; from thence any leathern bottle grew to be called by the same name, and to the word is used by Chastef, Hanner.
Gour'diness. n. s. [from gourd.]
A swelling in a horse's leg after a journey.
Farrier's Dict.

GOURMET, n. s. [cucurbita.]
A fill.
GOUT. n. s. [goutte, French.]

1. The arthritus; a periodical disaise attended with great pain.
The gout is a disaise which may affect any mem-brrnous parts, but commonly those where are the greatest distance from the heart or the brain, where the motion of the fluids is the slowest, the reftainty, friction, and frippice of the fuel parts the greatest, and the fufception of pain, by the dilacera-tion of the nervous fibres, extreme. Arbuthnot on Diet.

One that's in gout, is more than one that's in the gout.
Shaksp. Macbeth

GOURMET. n. s. [French.]
A table. An affected cant word.

Catalogues serve for a direction to any one that has a gout for the like studies. Woodward on F ight.

GO'W'RT, n. s. [gout and roost, padogratiana.]
An herb.
Aswyforth.

GO'W'RTY. adj. [from gout.]

1. Afflicted or diseased with the gout.

There does not arise above one of a thousand of the gout, although I believe that more die gouty, Graunt.

Knots upon his gouty joints appear, and chalk is in his crippled fingers found. Dryden.

Most commonly a gouty Constitution is attested with great anxieties of parts, the nervous fibres, both in the brain and the other extremities, being delicate.
Arbuthnot on Diet.

2. Relating to the gout.

There are likewise other caufes of blood fippeting; one is the settlement of a gouty matter in the sub stance of the lungs.
Blackmore.

GOWN. n. s. [goune, Italian; geou, Welsh and Erc.]

1. A long upper garment.

They make garments either short, as cloaks, or, as gowns, long to the ground.
Abbot.

If ever I laid a fielded gourne, few me up in the thick of battle, I'd essay a bottom, with a bottom of brown thread; I'd fill a gown. Shaksp.

In length of train defends her sweeping gown,
And by her graceful walk the queen of love is known.
Dryden.

2. A woman's upper garment.

I deflripe your new gown, 'till I feel you draffit in it.
Pope.

3. The long habit of a man dedicated to acts of peace, as divinity, medicine, law.
The benefices themselves are so mean in Irish counties, that they will not yield any competent maintenance for an honest minister, secretly to buy a gourne.
Spen or Ireland.

Girt in his Gabin gown the hero far.
Dryden.

Yet not superior to a fairer's care's,
The mode the fixes by the gown the wares;
Of fits and chians the last appeal;
In those great points the sound common sense.
Young.

4. The drefs of peace.

He Mars depor'd, and arms to gown made yield;
Successful councils did him soon approve
As fit for close intrigues as open field.
Dryden.

GOWNED. adj. [from gown.]
Dressed in a gown.

A noble crew about them wait'd round
Of fage and sober peers, all gravely gourd. Spen.

In velvet white as snow the troop was gourne,
The feats with sparkling emeralds set around.
Dryden.

GOWNMAN. n. s. [gown and mans.]
A man devoted to the arts of peace; one whose proper habit is a gown.
Let him with pedants
Pour out his life amongst the lawful gownsman. Roc.

Thus will that whole benc, in an age or two, be compos'd of mean, favoring goutmen, dependants upon the court for their best.

To Gra'ble, v. n. [probably corrupted from grapple.]
To grope; to feel eagerly with the hands.

My blood chills about my heart at the thought of these rogue's, with their bloody hands grappling in my guts, and pulling out my hearts with great force.
Arbuthnot's John Bull.

To Gra'ble. v. a. To lie prostrate on the ground.
Aisyworth.

GRACE. n. s. [grace, French; gratia, Latin; grace, Erfe.]

1. Favour; kindness.

If the highest love in no sect person may aspire to grace, then may I hope your beauty will not be without pity.
Sidney.

O momentary grace of mortal men,
Which we more lust for than the grace of God! Shaksp.

Such as were popular,
And well delving, were advance by grace. Daniel.

Is it enough that thou shouldest hope for so fewe so many acts of grace I have lately palfed?
King Charles.

Yet shou'dt remem.
Such grace shall one just man find in his sight,
That he relents, not to blot out mankind.
Milton.

He receiv'd all the graces and degrees, the proc-tership and the doctorship could be obtained there.
Clarendon.

Or each, or all, may win a lady's grace;
Then either of you knights may well delive
Ainterchord. Dryden's Fable.

None of us, who now your grace implete
But held the rank of foreiggn queen before. Dryden.

This was't service I repaid the fair,
That of her grace she gave her maid to know
The ferret meaning of this moral show. Dryden.

2. Favourable influence of God on the humind.

The grace of God, that paffeth understanding, keeps your heart and minds.
Common Prayer.

The evil of fadness, that we are especially to pray against, most earnestly begg of God, that he will, by the power of his grace, preferve us from falling into sin, that they will be willing to make us.
Milton.

Prevented grace defending had removed.

The glony from their hearts, and made new feth
Regenerate grow instead.

Within
Within the church, in the publick profession and essential communion thereof, are contained perfect truly good and sanctified, and heretofore saved; and with them other perfect positives of all saving grace, those perfections hereafter to be damned.

How Van wants grace who never wanted in.

4. Pardon of mercy.

Not by your hold.

His hand a while, and to their choice gave space

Which they would prove, his valour or his grace.

Wallis.

Bow and sue for grace

With suppliant knees.

Milton.

5. Favour conferred.

I should therefore esteem it greater grace.

Would you be so kind as to go in my place.

Prior.

6. Privy audience.

But to return and view the cheerful skies,

To few great Jupiter imparts this grace.

Dryden.

7. A goddes, by the heavens supposed to beauty,

This forehead, where your verse this laid.

The loves delighted and the grace play'd.

Prior.

8. Behaviour, considered as decent or unbecoming.

The same words in Phidias's mouth, as from one woman to another, so as there were no other books, they might have had a better grace; and beauty.

Sidney.

Have I reason or good grace in what I do.

Temples.

9. Adventitious or artificial beauty; pleasing appearance.

One like only, with a statelier grace,

Prejud's to the oak's and cedar's place;

And, looking round him with a monarch's care,

Spread his styled bowers to walk in.

Harle.

Her purple habits fits with such a grace.

On her smooth shoulders, and so fits her face.

Dryden.

To write and speak correctly gives a grace and gains a favourable attention to what one has to say.

Locke.

10. Natural excellence.

It doth give me, that things of principal excellency should be thus bitten at by men whom God hath endued with both of wit and learning, for better purposes.

Hocke.

Shaksf.

Their graces serve them but as enemies.

Shaksf.

In his own grace he doth himself

More to his advantage, and

Shaksf.

The charming Laufis, full of youthful fire,

To Turnbull only succeed in the grace

Of many mean, and features of the face.

Dryden.

11. Embellishment; recommendation; beauty.

Where justice grows, there grows the greater grace,

The which doth quench the brand of hellish smart.

Spenser.

Set all things in their own peculiar place,

And know that order is the grace of

Dryd.

The flow'r which firsts for little space,

A flower, and good, and an uncertain grace,

Dryd.

I pass their form and every charming grace.

Dryd.

15. Ornament; flower; highest perfection.

By their hands this grace of king must die.

If hell and creation hold their promises.

Shakespeare.

14. Single or particular virtues.

The king-becoming graces,

As justness, verity, temp'rance, habiliments,

Devotion, patience, courage, fortitude,

I have spoken of them.

Shaksf.

The graces of his religion prepare him for the most useful discharge of every relation of life.

Rogers.

15. Virtue physical.

One be the purest grace that lives in plants, herbs, stones, and their true qualities.

Shakespeare.

16. The title of a duke or archbishop;

formerly of the king, meaning the name

as your goodness, or your elements.

Here come I from my princely general,

Vol. I.
GRADUATION. n. s. [from gradual.] Proportioning. 1. By degrees; in regular progression. When we begin with small things and fix upon them, your light vanishes; not gradually, like that of the planets, but all at once. The Author of our being weasels away his work, and substitutes the world for the creature, to the end that it may seem to be all of himself. Swift.

2. In degree. Human nature doth not only gradually, but spiritually differ from the fantastick reason of brutes.

3. To dignify with a degree in the university.

John Trenchard graduated a doctor and dubbed a knight, did good service. Carew’s Surv. of Cornwall. Concerning columns and other adjuncts, architecture makes but a noise, as if the terms of architecture were, and corollaries, were equally to graduation of this art.

4. To mark with degrees. The places were marked where the spirits stood at the fevered and each greater heat, and according to these observations he graduated his thermometer.

5. To raise to a higher place in the scale of metals; a chemical term. The allusion was equal to transpose or graduate as much silver as equalled in weight that gold. Boyle.

6. To heighten; to improve. Not only virial is a cause of blackness, but the faint of natural bodies; and dyers advance and graduate their colours with fats. Brewer’s Vulgar Errors.

GRADUATE. n. s. [graduated, French; from gradu, Latin.] A man dignified with an academical degree. Of graduates I dislike the learned root, And chuse a female doctor for the guilt.

GRADUATION. n. s. [graduation, French.] From graduate.

1. Regular progression by succession of degrees. The graduation of the parts of the universe is likewise necessary to the perfection of the whole. Bacon.

2. Improvement; exaltation of qualities. Of greater regnancy unto reason is that which he delivers concerning his graduation, that is, an integral and often established; in any, or from, or iron, the last degrees an ability to extract a nail flattened in a wall. Brown.

3. The act of confering academical degrees.

GRAFF. n. s. A ditch; a moat. See GRAVE.

Though the fortifications were not regular, yet the walls were good, and the ground broad and deep. Clarendon.

GRAFF. n. s. [graffe, French.] A small graft. A branch infected into the flocks of another tree, and nourished by its sap, but bearing its own fruit; a young cion. God gave unto man all kinds of seeds and grafts of life; as the vegetative life of plants, the seminal of beasts, the rational of man, and the intellectual of angels. Raleigh.

It is likely, that in fruit-trees the grafts make a greater fruit, so in trees that bear no fruit it will make the greater tree. Bacon.

I am usual now an innate graft to fee. With infection invade a foreign tree. Dryden’s Furg. If you cover the top with clay and hoop-dung, in the same manner, as you do a graft, it will help to heal the hoar.

Now the eleft zind infected grafts receives, And yields an offspring more than nature gives. Pope.

To GRAFF. [v. a. griffer, French.] To graft.

1. To infect a cyon or branch of one tree into the flocks of another. His growth is but a wild and fruitless plant; I cut his barren branches to the flock, and graft you on to bear. Dryd. Don Sicby.

With this prinking hook disjoin’d. Unbearable its prick and name, and graft more happy in their stead. Dryden.

2. To propagate by infection or inoculation.

Let me graft my peers and prune the vine. Dryden.

3. To infect into a place or body to which it did not originally belong.

And they also, if they be not ill in unbelie, shall be grafted in; for God is able to graft them in again. Romans.

There are th’ Italian names which fates will join With ours, and grafted upon the Trojan line. Dryd.

4. To impregnate with an afflictive branch.

We’ve some old crab-trees here at home, that will be graft’d to your relish. Shakespeare’s Constance. The noble life doth want her proper limbs; Her death doth not lose an ignoble place. Swift.

To join one thing so as to receive support from another.

This resolution against any peace with Spain is a new incident grafted upon the original quarrel, by the means of a likelihood. Swift.

May one kind grave unite each hapless name. And off my love immortal on thy fame. Pope.

To GRAFF or. [n. To practice inoculation.]

In March is good to grafted the skilful do know, So long as the wind in the Ear doth blow. From inon being chang’d, till fa he be the prince. For grafted and cropping is very good time. Tepper.

To have fruit in greater beauty Merchants of Fries. To have fruit in greater plenty the way is to graft, not only upon young boughs, but upon divers boughs of an old tree; for they will bear great numbers of fruit; whereas, if you graft upon one bough, the tree will bear but few fruits.

GRÄFER. n. s. [from grafr or graft.] One who propagates fruit by grafting.

I am informed, by the trials of the most skilful graziers of these parts, that a man shall faild fast of profit from merit; this man grafted the fruit the year in which the infection is made. Evelyn.

GRAIL. n. s. [from gleve, French.] Small particles of any kind.

Hereof this gentle knight unweeting was, And laying down upon the sandy ground, Drink of the clear as clear crystal galls. Spens.

GRAIN, n. s. [graines, French; gramm, Lat.; grane, Italian] has all the following significations.

1. A single seed of corn.

2. A small bundle of chaff. See GRAFS.

3. The feed of the feeder.

Upon the lime and oaten feeds his grain, And shortly comes to harvest. Shakespeare.

Pales no longer wifell’d the teenning grain. Nor Phœbus fed his cow with grain. Dryden.

’Tis a rich full, I grant you; but oftener covered with weeds than grain, Collier on Dryd.

3. The feed of any fruit.

4. Any minute particle; any fingle body.

Thus could not thousand grains that slip out of sight. Shakespeare, Much Ado, for Melf. By intelligence.

And proofs as clear as suns in July, when the earth is grafted, and grafted. Slop. Honey VIII.

5. The smallest weight of which in physic twenty make a scruple, and in Troy weight twenty make a pennyweight; a grain so named because it is supposed of equal weight with a grain of corn.

Unity is a precious diamond, whose weight they double, twice, and twice; you double the precious, double. Shakespeare.

They began at a known body, a barley-corn, the weight whereof is therefore called a grain; which artificers, being multiplied, to scruples, drachms, ounces, and pounds. Holdor.

The trial being made between lead and lead, weighing severally seven drachms, in the air; the balance was then weighing only four drachms and twenty-one grains; and abated of the weight in the air two drachms and nineteen grains; the balance kept the same deep in the water. His
His brain

Outweigh'd his rage but half a grain.

6. Any thing proverbially small.

The smallest would before thee was a little grain of barley.

It is a sincerely pith, ductile temper, that

Unlikely not to make use of any grain of grace.

The ungrateful person lives to himself, and submits to the good-nature of others, of which he himself has not the least grain.

7. Grain.

Adverb.

Graffy.

Something indulged or remitted; something above or under the exact weight.

I would always give some grains of allowance, to the sacred science of theology. Watts on the Mind.

8. The direction of the fibres of wood, or other fibrous matter.

Knots, by the connexion of meeting sap.

Infest the found pine, and divert his grain.

Torture and errant from his course of growth. Shak.

9. The body of the wood as modified by the fibres.

The breath, the swelling aches, and the planed hard, or laden of a fatter grain. Dryden.

The body considered with respect to the form or direction of the constituent particles.

The tooth of a horse, in the midst of the solid parts, contains a celled grain not to be found in ivory.

Stones of a constitution so compact, and a grain so fine, that they bear a fine polish. Woodward.

10. Died or thinned for furniture.

How the red roses flush up in her cheeks.

And the pure sawd with goodness very firm.

Like crimson dy'd in grain.

Over his long arms.

A military set of purple flow'd.

Lighter than meelmann, or the grain of terra, worn by kings and heroes old. Milton.

Come, pasty mine, devours and parts.

All in a robe of darkest grain.

Flowing with majestic train.

The third, his feet.

Shadow'd from either heel with feather'd mail.

Sky-tin'd in one grain! Milton's Paradise Lost.

12. Temper; disposition; inclination; humour from the direction of fibres.

You minds, pre-occupied with what

You rather will be the fortunes by which you should do,

Made you against the grain to voice him confidentially.

Quert Hodiaries, it is in vain,

I fe, to argue against the grain. Hodiaries.

Old clients, want'd you with fruitless ease.

Piss their hopes of eating, and despair;

Though much against the grain, forced to retire.

Buy roots for flipers, and provide a fire. Dryden.

13. The heart; the bottom.

The one being tractable and mild, the other firm and impatient of a superior, they lived but in courting concord, as brothers gild together, but not unied in grain. Haywood.

14. The form of the surface with regard to roughness and smoothness.

The smaller the particles of cutting fulness are, the smaller the roughness by which they continued to wear away the glass, till it be polished; but it is never so small, they can wear away a particle no otherwise than by grinding and scratching it, by breaking the particles; and therefore polish it is otherwise than by breaking in roughness to a very fine grain, so that the fractures and fringes of the surface become too small to be visible.

Grained. adj. [from grain.]

Smooth, made laps smooth, though now this grained face of mine be hid

To figure, Wott's wintry snow,

Yet hath my sight of life form memory. Shakspe.

7. Grain.

The flowers of malt exhaled in brewing.

Give them grains that shall hold.

Hulks, dress to drink and fail.

Ben Jonson.

Grains of Paradise, n. f. [cardamomum, Latin.]

An Indian spice.

Grain'y. adj. [from grain.]

1. Full of corn.

2. Full of grains or kernels.

Grain'cy. interj. [contracted from grain mercy.]

An obsoleste expression of imprisonment.

Grainery fin, said he; but mote I meet

What strange adventure do ye now pursue? Spencer.

Grain'tous, n. f. [granum, Latin.]

Grassly.

Cardamom plants are such as have a long leaf without a footstalk.

Gramin'vorous. adj. [gramen and caro, Lat.] Grass-eating; living upon grasses.

The ancients were versed chiefly in the cultivation of brutes, among which the graminivorous kind have a party-coloured imagery. Swift's Surgey.

GRAMMAR.

n. f. [grammatica, French; grammatica, Latin.]

1. The science of speaking correctly; the art which teaches the relations of words to each other.

To be accurate in the grammar and idioms of the tongue, is a good of rhetoric to make all their graces serve his eloquence.

We make a countryman dumb, whom we will not allow to speak but by the rules of grammar. Dryden's Dryden's Defence Men speaking language, according to the grammatical rules of that language, do yet speak improperly of that language. Locke.

2. Propriety or justness of speech; speech according to grammar.

Varnish'd

And marked family, is the sharpest feature that ever was found on woman; for the adjetives are neuter, and animal must be understood to make them grammar.

We must speak by the rules of grammar.

Dryden's Defence.

3. The book that treats of the various relations of words to one another.

GRAMMAR School. n. f.

A school in which the learned languages are grammatically taught.

They hast made tolerably correct the youth of the realm in erecting a grammar school. Shakspe.

The ordinary way of learning Latin in a grammar school I cannot encourage. Locke.

GRAMMARian, n. f. [grammaticien, French; from grammar.]

One who teaches grammar; a philologer.

Many dispute the ambiguous nature of letters hath created among the grammarians. Holder.

Who they have called him the torture of grammarians, might also have called him the plague of Dryden.

The ordinary way of learning Latin in a grammar school I cannot encourage. Locke.

GRAMMATICAL. adj. [grammatical, Fr., grammaticus, Latin.]

1. Belonging to grammar.

The beauty of virtue still being set before their eyes, and that taught them with far more diligent care than grammar, rules.

I'll take the number of confound, not from the grammatical alphabet of any language, but from the diversity of sounds framed by single articulations with each other.

Trigram쒸, I taught by grammar.

They feld not know more than the grammatical contraction, unfurl, unfurl with a poetical genius.

Dryden's Defence.

2. Taught by grammar.

Shakspe's Newes' from Newes.

GRANITE. n. f. [granum, Latin.]

A kind of marble so called, because it is marked with small variegations like grains.

Otherwise Granite.

GRAND.

adj. [grand, French; grandis, Latin.]

1. Great; illustrious; high in power or dignity.

God had planted, that is, made to grow the trees of life and knowledge, plants only proper and becoming the paradise of so great a Lord.

Raleigh's History.

2. Great; splendid; magnificent.

A voice has been to re-enstate a grand design.

Young.

3. Principal; chief.

What cause

Most of your grand parents in that happy state,

Favour'd o'er heaven so highly, to fall off

From their creator.

4. Eminence; superiour; very frequently in an ill sense.

One grand foe, Satan. Milton.

So clomb this first grand thief into God's fold. Milton.

5. Noble; sublime; lofty; conceived or conceived with great dignity.

6. It fail to signify accent or defect of confangunuity.

GRANDAM, n. f. [grand and dam or dame.]

1. Grandmother; my father's or mother's mother.

I meeting him, will tell him that my lady was unlike his grandam, and as chaste As may be in the world.

Shakespeare.

We have our forefathers and great grandamors all before us, as they were in Chaucer's day. Dryden.

Thy typets heart better thy angel face!

Too well then show thy pedant from thine;

Thy grandame's was the first by Pythia thrown.

Dryden.

2. An old withered woman.

The women

Cry'd, one and all, the suppliant should have right,

And to the grandame had adjur'd her knight.

Dryden.

GRANCHID, n. f. [grand and child.]

The fon or daughter of my fon or daughter; one in the second degree of descent.

Augustus Caesar, out of indignation against his Daughters and Agrrippa his grandchild, would say that they were not his heirs, but imposthumes broken from him.

Thefe hymns may work on future wits and to

May great grandchilder of thy praifes grow.

Demost.

He is, his majesty did believe, that he would never make the least approach to obey the grandchild of King James.

Burton.

Fair daughter, and thou son and grandchild both!

Shakspe.

5 T 2.
He spaying, with his gods and relics fled,
And took the thorn his little grandchild led.

Granthem's. n. f. [grand and dower-ter.] The daughter of a man and dower.

Grands. n. f. [grand, French; grandad, Latin.] A man of great rank, power, or dignity.

So sanctified some fairs and some milder differences, which might easily happen in such an interview of grandees, both vehement on the parts which joined.

When a prince or grandee manifests a liking to such a thing, men generally set about to make themselves credible for such things.

Grants. n. f. [from grandeur, French; grand, Latin.] A farm; generally a farm with a house at a distance from neighbours.

Grantsor, n. f. [grand; science.] A name given to a & the sciences which are included in the sciences of the mind, in the method by which they are acquired.

Adfin.

Greatness, n. f. [from grandeur, Latin.] Great age; length of life. Diz.

Greatness, adj. [grandeur, Latin.] Long lived; of great age. Diz.

Greatly, adv. [of great age.] 1. State; splendour of appearance; magnificence. 2. Elevation of sentiment, language or men.

Greatfather. n. f. [grandfather.] The father of my father or mother; the next above my father or mother in the scale of ascent.

Greatnees; greateur; magnificence. An old word.

Grandfather, n. f. [grand and father.] The father of my father or mother; the next above my father or mother in the scale of ascent. Diz.

Greatdiss. adj. [grands, Latin.] Full of hail; confounding of hail. Diz.

Greatness, n. f. [from grandeur, Latin.] Greatnecs; greateur; magnificence. An old word.

Our greatness in grandeur and gravity, smoothness and property, in quickness and breadth, varied.

Grandmother. n. f. [grand and mother.] The father's or mother's mother.

Thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice. 1 Tim. 1. 5.

Grandsire. n. f. [grand and sire.] 1. Grandfather.

Think it thou, that I will leave my kingly throne, Wherein my grandire and my fathers were. Shak'sh.

Thy grandire, and thy grandsire, to whom fame, and glory, and great dignity, doth ascribe.

Give me two creatures, one of an hundred, and their name.

The grandsire know to rep By whose toll and mire great weight.

Prior.

Any ancestor, poetically.

Why should a man whose whole body is warm within, Sit like his grandsire eat in abasement? Shak'sh.

So much as the grandsire and their descendants.

Dryden.

Dryden. So mimicked ancient once at both.

As speck our grandsons in their doublets drest. Dryden.

Grandsor. n. f. [grand and son.] The son of a son or daughter.

Alas! joy augment your wealthy store.

Grandfathers in private families are not much observed to have great influence on their grandsons.

And, I believe, they have much less among nations. Swift.

Grange, n. f. [grand, French.] A farm; generally a farm with a house at a distance from neighbours.

One, when he had got the inheritance of an unlucky old grange, would needs sell it; and, to draw buyers, proclaiming it as if nothing ever thriven on it, faith he; the trees were all blighted, the vines died of the mealler, the cattle of the murrain, and the sheep of the rot. There was ever so no one reared there, not a duckerling or a goose. Ben Jonson.

At the moated grange resides this described Miss. Shakespeare.

The looke unletter'd birds,
When for their teeming flocks and granges full
In wanton dance they praise the bounteous Pan.

Million.

If the church was of its own foundation, they might, chance, the incumbent being once dead, whether they would put any one therein; unless, perhaps, the said church had people then they must build and curate; and of this were their granges and priories.

A stone composed of separate and very large concretions, rudely compacted together; of great hardiness, giving fire with feel not fermenting with acidity, and imperiously calcinable in great fire. The hard white, black, with black stones, commonly called Moor-stone, forms a very firm, and though rude, yet beautifully variegated mafs. It is found in immense tracts in Ireland, but not used there. In Cornwall it is found in prodigious masses, and brought to London, for the steps of publick buildings. Hard red granite, variegated with black and white, now called oriental granite, is valuable for its extreme hardness and beauty, and capable of a most elegant polish. Hill on Hith.

Alabama, marble of divers colours, both gneis and mixed, the ophite, porphyry, and the granite, something like them.

Graviousness, adj. [granious and oose, Latin.] Eating grain; living upon grain.

Granious birds, as a crane, upon the first peck of their bills, can digest nothing of hard bodies, which the fowl of men differ in not without mastication.

Brown.

Panic affords a soft demulcent nourishment, both for granious birds and mankind. Arbuthnot.

Grannon. n. f. [from gran.] Grandmother. Only used in burlesque works.

Of my kind granium told me, Tim take warning.

Guy. To GRANT, v. a. [from granere, Latin] and Skinner; perhaps as mimicrino thinks, from granius, or rather from gran or gransor.

1. To admit that which is not yet proved; to allow the yield; to concede.

They gather out of Scripture general rules to be followed in making laws; and so, in effect, they plainly grant, that we ourselves may lawfully make laws for the good of the church.

Hooker. I take it for granted, that though the Greek word which we translate faints, be in itself as applicable to what we mean, as it is; yet in this article it signifies not holy things, but holy persons. Fagin.

Grann that the faster have fir'd, by their decrees, The Trojan race to reign in Italy. Dryden's AEn. Supplice, which yet I grant not, thy desire.

A moment elder than my rival fire.

Chance of being found by any title great? Dryden.

If he be one indifferently to the present rebellion, they may take it for granted, his complaint is the rage of a disappointed man.

To GRAN'T, v. a. [from granum, Latin.] To be to small or not to be claimed of right.

The God of Israel grant thee thy petition that thou hast afled of him. 1 Sam. xviii.

Then hath God also to the grantes granted remittance unto life. Acts, xlii, 18.

Dost thou not kill this king? I grant ye.

Didst thou not, hogshead then? God grant mee too. Thou mayst be damned for that wicked deed. Dods.

He heard and granted half his prayer.

The rett the winds differ'd.

Grant, n. f. [from granum, Latin.] A gift; a boon.

1. The act of granting or conferring.

2. The thing granted; a gift; a boon.

Courtiers jubile for a grant.

And when they break their friendship plead their want.

Dryden.

3. [In law.] A gift in writing of such a thing as cannot aptly be passed or conveyed by word only; as rents, revenues, services, advowsons in gross, and of such persons as cannot give but by deed, as the king, and all bodies politic; which differences be often in speech neglected, and then is taken generally for every gift whatsoever, made of any thing by any person; and he that gives it is named the grantor, and he to whom it is made the grantee. A thing is said to lie in grant which cannot be assigned without deed. Cowell.

All the land in the queen's name there be some grant of any part thereof, to be thrown from her Majesty's hand to some person.

Not only the laws of this kingdom, but of other places, and the Roman laws, provide that the prince should not be deprived of his grants. Bacon.

4. Concession; admission of something in dispute.

But to the less a grant, we are content not to take advantage.

This grant defrays all you have urg'd before.

Dryden.

Gran'table, adj. [from grant.] That which may be granted.

The office of the bishop's chancellor was grantable for life.

Grante. n. f. [from gran.] He to whom any grant is made.

To smooth the way for poetry in Mary's time, the grantees were confirmed by the pope in the follen of the abbey-lands. Swift.

Grantor. n. f. [from grant.] He by whom a grant is made.

A duple quarte shall be granted, under pain of suspicion of the grant, from the execution of his office.

Granular, adj. [from granule.] Small and compact; resembling a small grain or seed.

Small-coal, with sulphur and nitre, proportionable to the size of granules, when burnt, do make up that powder which is used for guns. Brown's miser.

The juice of grapes, infiltrated by heat, granulata into sugar. Sprat.

To GRANULATE, v. a. [from granule, from granum, latin.] To become into small grains.

Spart.
GRA

fore its entrance into the gizzard, to be much digested by the thick fetid fluid, or it was granulated with a multitude of glands, each whereof was provided with its extraordinary vexil.

Granulation.--[granulation, French, from granule, Latin.] A small compact particle. With an excellent microscope, where the naked eye did not see a brown powder, the allayed eye could discern particular granules, some blue, and some black.

Granulous, adj. [from granulum, Latin.] Full of little granules.

GRAPES. n. s. [graphe, French; krasses, Dutch.] The fruit of the vine, growing in clusters; the fruit from which wine is expressed.

And thou shalt call this vineyard by thy name, the Lord's Mount of geranium, neither shalt thou let the grapes of it be tasted.

Here grapes discoloured on the sunny side.

The habitation, or grape vine, is delivered and graphically defined by Catullus.

Bowell.

Graphically, adv. [from graphically.] In a picturesque manner; with good description or delineation.

The hydra stedmost, or chiselled, is delivered and graphically defined by Catullus.

Graph. n. s. [graphin, French.] A little vessel.

2. A grapping iron with which in fight one ship fastens on another.

To GRAPPLE, w. n. [graspeln, German.] To fasten, to seize, to clench.

1. To contend by feizing each other, as wrestlers.

They must be well-practised in all the locks and grapples of wrestling, as need may often be in fight to tug or grasp, and to cleave.

To clench.

Lives are saved, all achievements past.

Meets any, still to grapple with at length.

Does he think that he can grapple with divine vengeance, and endure the everlasting burning flame?

South.

Anteau here and item Alexies fire, and both the grapplest forces form to live.

Abj. 7.

2. men. of a clothed, or a clothed.

I'll in my standard bear the arms of York:

To grapple with the hands of Lancaster.

Grasp.

Sometimes, from fighting squadrons of eachfleet,

Two grappling-lines on the ocean meet,

And English ships with Belgian flags contemn.

Dydd.

To GRAPPLE, v. o.

1. To fasten; to fix; to join indifferently.

Now obsolete.

Grapple your minds to slumber of the navy,

And leave your English ships at midnight still.

Shaksp.

Thatbursement

Grapples you to the heart and love of et.

Shaksp.

2. To feize; to lay fast hold of.

For Hippocrene, veils for the transporting of horse, we are able, and for the Samianians, for grappling hooks to Anchares.

Dryden.

Grapple. n. f. [from the verb.]

1. The grip or feize of the hand.

Nor wanted in his grapple

What stream'd both clear and shielded.

His hands aboard driver, and worn to the ground,

Would it have come before into my grapple,

To kill the raver.

Dydd on Sepulch.

The left arm is a little deftled, though one may see it held something in its grapple formost. Addition.

2. Possession; hold.

I would not be the villain that thou think'rt.

For the whole space that's in thy ravish'd grappes,

And the rich East to boot.

Shaksp. Mackel.

Within the dirty grapple

Of savage hunger, or of savage heat.

They looked upon it as their own, and had it even within their grasp.

Clarendon.

Grasper. n. s. [from grapple.] One that grasps, feizes, or catches.

Grass. n. s. [gra persuaded.]

The common herbage of the field on which cattle feed, or an herb with long narrow leaves.

You are grown fat as the heelers at grass, and below as boils.

Jer. 1. 11.

The beef being young, and only grass fed, was the flesh, and meat, and not at a full price to endure the fat.

Shaksp. Temple.

You'll be no more your former you;

But for a blooming nymph will pass,

And all the selfish, coming Summer's grass.

Swift.

Grass of Arna-fala, n. f. [arnofala, Latin.] A plant.

This plant is called arnoffal, from mount Par nassus, where it was frequented to grow; and because the cattle fed on it, it obtained the name of grass, though the plant has no resemblance to the kind.

Miller.

To GRASS, w. n. [from the noun.] To breed graps; to become pasture.

Land arable, driven or worn to the ground.

With oats ye may fow it, the sooner to grasses,

More soon to pasture, to bring it to pass.

Tuffier.

Grass-plot. n. s. [grass and plot.] A small level covered with short grasses.

Here on this grass plot in this very place,

Come and sport.

The part of your garden next your house should be a pasture for flowers, or grass-plots bordered with flowers.

Maritimus.

Grass-poll. n. f. A species of Willow.

Grassiness. n. s. [from grass.] The state of abounding in grasses.

Grassy. adj. [from gras.] Covered with grass; abounding with grasses.

We did he leave the mountain bare, no

Nor the grassy lands delights enthrall.'

Shaksp.

'Rain'd of grassy turf.

Their table was, as their breasts, here and round.

Miller.

The meat in fields, like hewed beefs, lie down,

To dews oblivion, on the grassy floor.

Dydd.

Grate. n. f. [grates, Latin.]

1. A partition made with bars placed near to one another, or close each other; such as in closet, in furnaces, &c.

I have granted upon my good friends for three re-

Dydd.
GRÁTFULNESS, n.f. [from gratulatio, Lat.]
1. The act of pleasing.
2. P Leasaine.
3. Reward; recompense. A low word.

To GRATIFY, v. n. [gratifico, Latin.]
1. To indulge; to grant by compliance.
You fler between the country and the court, Not gratify what's the great desire.
Not gratifying when public needs require.

Dryden.

2. To delight; to please; to humour; to footh.

But pride stood ready to prevent the blow; For who would die to gratify a foe? Dryden's Euph.
The captive generals to his car are ty'd;
The joyful citizens tumultuous tide
Eehching his glory, gratify his pride.

Pope.

A thousand little imperfections are very gratifying to curiosity, though not improving to the understanding.
Addison.

3. To require with a gratification: I, I'll gratify you for this trouble, Whatsoever is ingrate at first, is made grateful by custom; but whatsoever is too pleasing at first, growths quickly to satiation.

A man may endure the pain of hunger and thirst, and relish such means and drinks as are most grateful to his appetite, if he be persuaded that they will endanger his health.

This is more grateful to strangers, a respect that it being a frontier town, and bordering upon divers nations, many languages are understood there. "Byron's Troubles.

Our golden fruits on loaded branches shone, And grateful clusters swell with floods of wine.

Pope.

To GRATULATE, v. n. [gratulator, Latin.]
1. To congratulate; to salute with declarations of joy.

To gratify the good Andronicus, And gratulate his Grecian name, Brute.

The people will accept whom he admires. Shaks.

Whither away so fast?
No farther than the Tower.
To gratulate the gentle princes there.
Shaks.

Since nature could behold so fine a crime, I gratulate at least my native clime,
That such a brand, which such a monster bore, So far is diffus'd from our Thraican shore. Dryden.

2. To declare joy for; to mention with expressions of joy.
Yet give thy jealous subjects leave to doubt, Who this thy face from rumour gratulate.
Not less if it be peril, and devout.

But beg thy care unto thyself after late. Ben Jonson.

GRATULATIO, n. f. [from gratulatio, Latin.] Salutations made by expressing joy; expression of joy.

They are the fifth gratulatones wherewith our Lord and Saviour was glorified at his entrance into the world, by such in their hearts, arms, and bowels embraced him. Hooker.
GRAVE

The earth
Gave figs of gravitation, and each hill. Milton.
Your enjoyments, according to the standard of a Cold night, there is no addition; I shall turn say whistles into gravitation, and, consequently, to the fulness, only with their moisture. South.
GRATULATORY. adj. [from gravitate.] Congratulatory; expressing congratulation.
Grave, a final syllable in the names of places, is from the Saxon grave, a grove or cave. Gildon's Camden.
GRAVE. n. s. [grave, Sax.] The place in the ground in which the dead are reposed.
Now it is the time of night,
That the grave's, all gaging wide,
And the moon, with his bright eye,
In the church-way pathes to glide.
Shakespeare.
Thou wilt not leave me in the loathsome grave. Milton.
To walk upon the graves of our dead matters,
Is our own security. Danem. Sophy.
A flood of waters would overwhelm all those fragments which the earth has sent into its bosom, and bury in one common grave all the inhabitants of the earth. Barret.
They were wont once a year to meet at the graves of the martyrs, in order to raise their sufferings and triumphs, to praise their virtues, and to find the God for their pious examples, for their holy lives and martyrdoms. Nefton.
To GRAVE. v. a. present, grave; past, past. graves. [graver, French; gravea.] 1. To insculp;
To carve a figure or inscription in any hard substance.
Come with both sculptures gravea. Milton.
Later vews, oaths, or leagues can never blot out those former gravea of characters, which by just and lawful oaths were made upon their souls.
King Charles.
Thy fune of duty let two words contain;
O! may they gravea in thy heart remain;
Be humble and be just. Prior.
2. To carve or form.
What prodizes the graven image, that the maker thereof hath gravea it? Philo, ii. 10.
3. To copy paintings upon wood or metal, in order to be impresssed on paper.
The gravea can and ought to imitate the bodies of the ancients, and the degrees of the lights and shadows: his impatience is such as must force him to what they are, after the work of the school, to cut out imitating in some fort the colour of the objects.
Dryden's Daf.
There's no more gold: Do you damned others, and let this damn you?
Shaksp. Timon.
5. To clean, caulk, and fielsh a ship.
AUGUSTARUM.
To GRAVE, w. to. Write or delineate on hard substances, that they may make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it.
Ex. xxvii. 36. GRAVE. adj. [grave, French; gravea, Lat.] 1. Solemn; serious; sober; not gay; not light or trifling.
To more mature
A plaza that forc'd them; and to the grave,
A child that paid dollars. Steak ls. Lymp.
Your good advice, to which both have been gravea.
Even, and prosperous, in this day's council. Steak's Lymp.
The grave alwised, as in your belt brent of many sance, in harpers, as in your dogs, as modes of beauty. Even.
The grave and serious characters are distinguished by the eternal forms of gravity. Dryda.
Youth on fire with conceit; and, to grave,
Grave years come rolling on.
To grave, were want of goodness or of grace; And to grave, exceed all power of force. Petr.
GRAVITATE, v. n. [from gravitus, Latin.] To tend to the centre of attraction. Those who have nature's steps, with care purify, That matter is with active force ended. That is its parts magnetically power'd, and To each other gravitation affect. Blackmore.

That subtle matter must be of the same substance, the bodies, and as much as what, or partly, is common to both, the two sides, namely, to that body, and to each other gravitation refer. Bentley.

GRAVITATION, n. s. [from gravitation, act] of tending to the centre. The most considerable phenomenon belonging to the natural bodies of the solar system, is the general action of gravitation, whereby all known bodies, in the vicinity of the earth, do tend and press towards its centre.

When the loose mountain trembles from on high, Shall gravitation cease, if you go by? Pope.

GRAVITY, n. f. [gravitas, Latin; gravité, French.]

1. Weight; heaviness; tendency to the centre.

2. The quality by which all heavy bodies tend to the centre, accelerating their motion the nearer they approach to it, in truth philosophy has shown to be incapable of any hypothesis, and reduced into the immediate action of the Creator. Of all bodies, considered within the confines of any fluid, there is a twofold gravity, true and absolute, and vulgar or corrupted gravity. The true gravity is the weight of the body, by which any body tends downwards; but the relative or vulgar is the excess of gravity in one body above the specific gravity of the fluid, wherein it tends downwards more than the ambient fluid does.

3. Atrociousness; weight of guilt.

No man could ever have thought this reasonable, that had intended thereby only to punish the injury committed, according to the gravity of the fault. Hooke.

4. Seriousness; solemnity.

There is not a white hair on your face but should have his effect of gravity. Shaksps. Henry IV. Our youths and wildness shall no whit appease. Shakespeare. For the advocates and council that plead, patience and gravity of hearing is an essential part of justice. Justice. [John.] Great cause there, for gravity renowned. Dryden. The emperors often voted on their rivals or predecessors, but their minds still maintained their gravity. Addison. He will tell you with great gravity, that it is a dangerous thing for a man that has been used to get money, ever to leave it off. Leto.

GRAVY, n. f. The ferous juice that runs from flesh not much dried by the fire.

They love to look half raw, with the blood trickling down from it, delicately tempering it the gravy, which in truth looks more like an ochreous or raw bloody matter. There may be stronger broths made of vegetables than any gravy soup. Arbuthnot on Aliments.

GRAY, m. [gray, Sax.; gráv, Danish; gras, Dutch.]

1. White with a mixture of black.

They left me then, when the gray headed even, Like a fadeVisit of passion's need. Bacon, from the blackest dews of Phæbus' wear.

These gray and dun colours may also be produced by mixing whites and blacks, and by confonnence differ from perfect whites, not in species of colour, but only in degree of luminosities. Newton.

2. White or hoary with old age.

Living creatures generally do change their hair with age, turning it to white in some, though some earlier and some later; in horses, that are dappled and turn white in old if this colour, a nature that shaggy, and many others. Bacon's Natural History.

Gray headed men and grave, with warriours mix'd, Assemble. The restoration of gray hairs to juvenility, and renewing the exhausted marrow, was the chief topic of those days. Glareville's Seraphs.

Gray head infant! and in want grown old! Art thou to learn that in another's gold, He charms himself with the world's Jopinal. We most of us are grown gray head in our dear master's service. Addison's Spectator.

Gray hair'd Senned damns books unsee'd, And Bacon trembling for his brawned head. Pope.

3. Dark like the opening or close of day; of the colour of ashes.

Our women's names are more gracious than their Curlissis, that is, gray heads. Commed's Remarks. The gray feathers on the crowning few, Cheering the eastern clouds with streaks of light. Shakespeare.

I'll stay you gray, not the morning's eye. But the pale index of Cynthia's brow. Shaks. Soon as the gray'd eye morning breaks the slate, And in the doubtful day the woodcock flies. Gray.

Gray, n. f. A gray colour.

Down sank the sun, the closing hour of day Came onward, mantle't o'er with dusky gray. Gray.

GRAY, n. s. A badger. Ainsworth.

Gra'beard, m. [gray and beard.] An old man; in contempt.

Younging, thou canst not love so dear as I. Greyhead, thy love doth freeze. Shaksps. Have I in conquest stuck thee mine arm so far, to be afraid to grey your'd the truth? Shaksps. Gra'ling, n. f. [from glanūllus.] The umbrage, or

The greyling fishes in such rivers as the trout does, and is usually taken with the same baits, and after the same manner: he is of a fine shape, his flesh white, and his teeth, tho' little ones that he has, are in his throat. He is not so general a fish as the trout, nor so good to eat. Walmrs. Angler. Gra'ness, n. f. [from gray.] The quality of being gray.

TO GRAZE, v. n. [from graze.]

1. To eat grass; to feed on grasses.

The greatest of my pride is to see my ewes graze, and my lambs suck. Shaksps. As you like it. Graze white you will, you shall not houseth with me. Shaksps.

Leaving in his fields his grazing cows, Dryden. He fought himself some hospitable host. Shaksps. They ignoble through. Attend their fatten stiles, and slowly, graze along. Dryden.

2. To supply grass.

Physicians advise their patients to remove to such spots as have plain grass, but grazing and not overgrown with heath. Bacon. The feeders must be to the water may, not stay too long in the Spring; for then the grass grows most luxuriously where it will never graze to purpose that year. Bacon. A third part of grazing ground is that near the sea, which is commonly very rich. Masoner.

3. To move on devouring.

As ever fly last to the other that was oppressed, to the fire perpetually grazed. Bacon.

4. [From mer, French.] To touch lightly. Mark then this bounding value in our English, That being dead, like to the bullets grazed, Breaks out into a second course of mischief. Killing in rage of mortality. Shaksps. Henry V. To Graze, v. t.

GREASE, n. f. [grease, French.]

1. The first part of the fat; the oily or unctuous part of animals.

Graze, that's sweeten From the mutton's gullet, throw Into the flame. Shaksps. Macbeth. To take out a spot of grease they use a coal upon brown paper. Thou hopst, with forcible of oxen's brain, To compass wealth, and bribe the god of gain. To seize the flocks and barbs, with large encrease. Fool: I expect them from a bullock's grease. Dryd. Jew. To give up, to divest, to clothe in ordnance. Dryd.

2. In horsemanship. A swelling and gourines of the legs, which happens to a horse when a journeying by falling down in the stable. To Graze, v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To fine, or anoint with grease.

2. To brush; to corrupt with pretexts.

Envy not the flower Of the great's adoration, nor the lamb the poor. Dryd. Greasiness, n. f. [from graze.] Oiliness; fatness.

Upon the moist of these floors, after they are cut, these appear always, as it were, a kind of greasy oil. Dryd.

Greasy adj. [from graze.]

1. Oily; fat; unctuous.

The fragments, scraps, the bits and greasy refuse. Of her o'er eaten faith. Shaksps.

2. Smearcd with grease.

Even the least ruble Govertst' their moving throat, and crumbled pity; I could have hugg'd the greasy ropes; they pleased me. Dryd.

Buy sheep, and see that thy be big-boned, and have a soft greasy, well cured clove wool. Marv.

3. Fat of body; bulky: in reproach.

Let's
GREAT, adj. [great, Saxton; great, Dutch.]

1. Large in bulk or number.

2. Having any quality in a high degree.

3. Considerable in extent or duration.

4. Important; weighty.

5. Venerable; adonorable; awful.

6. Chief; principal.

7. Wonderful; marvellous.

8. Of high rank; of large power.

9. Great length; the he be never at heart's ease, Whisthe they be great than themselves. Shaks.

10. Most ancient; the fairest of the fairest, Who loved the fairest; and all could be unhappy but the great. Pope.

11. Illustrious; eminent; noble; excellent.

The great Creator thus replies, Vol. 1.
Greeves, n. f. [from grevus, French.] Armour for the legs; a sort of boots. It wants the singular number.
He had greaves of brass upon his legs, s. Sa. vii.
A shield made for him, and a helm, fast greaves, and cutandish.
As many as thy workmanship, and honour him as much.
Chapman’s Hist.
Greek, n. s. [from grca, Latin.] An idiom of the Greek language.
Gree, n. f. [grech, French; probably from graca.] Good will; favour; good grace.
And falling his round knees.
To make her present of his first service, Which the accepts with thanks and goody gree.
Greece, n. f. [corrupted from degrees.] It is written likewise greece or grice.] A flight of steps. Obsolete.
Every greece of fortune
Is smoother’d by that below.
Shakespeare.
After the procession, the king himself remaining seated in the chair, the archbishop upon the greece of the quire, made a long oration.
Bacon.
Greedily, adv. [from greedy.] Eagerly; ravenously; voraciously; with keen appetite or desire.
Greedily the engl’dg without restraint. Milton.
He swell’d it as greedily.
As parch’d earth drinks rain.
Denham.
Even deadly plants, and herbs of pois’nous juice
Wild hungerers, or gazers on our bounties.
We greedily devour our certain death.
Dryden.
Greediness, n. f. [from greedy.] Ravenousness; voracity; hunger; eagerness of appetite or desire.
For in health, wild greeuais, Shak. K. Lear.
The latter with all greeuais of affection are they gone, and they there intend to sup.
Shakespeare.
If thou wast the wolf thy greeuais would attack the shepherd.
Shakespeare’s Timon. of Athens.
I with the same greeuais did feed,
Asworn when I thirst, to swallow Greek. Denham.
Greedily, adv. [greedy. Sax. greedy. Dan. grevli, Dutch.]
1. Ravenous; voracious; hungry.
As a lion that is greedy of his prey. Ch. viii. 13.
Be not unsatisfied in any dainty thing, nor too greeuai upon meats.
Eccles. xxvii. 29.
Likewise the greeuais of a hungry man are, shall not in the case of a market, and bring him food.
King Charles.
2. Eager; vehemently desirous. It is now commonly taken in an ill sense.
Greedily to know, as is the mind of man,
The better to hang on to the fire the ran. Fairfax.
The ways of every one that is greedy of rain. Prent.
Stern look’d the land, as fruitazte of his will,
Not halt suff’d and greedy yet to kill.
Dryden.
While the reaper fills his greedy bands,
And binds the golden sheaves in binate hands. Dryden.
How fearazzeable would he be of all greedy and unjust ways of taking their tenants? Law.
GREEN, adj. [gean, German; green, Eng.]
1. Having a colour formed commonly by compoundung blue and yellow; of the colour of the leaves of trees or herbs. The green colour is said to be most favourable to the sight.
The general colour of plants is green, which is a shade of the primary blue, mixed with yellow.
Shakespeare’s Timon. of Athens.
2. Pale; sickly; from whence we call the maid’s disease the greeuais of sickness, or colo.
rosia. Like it is to the Greek word, Verdeus.
Was the hope drunk.
Wherein you drift yourself? Hath it slept since
And waks it now to seek for greeuais and pale
At what trid it so freely? Shakespeare’s Much, Abraham.
There’s never any of those demure boys come to any proof, they fall into a kind of male greeuais.
Shakespeare.
3. Flourishing; fresh; undecided: from trees in spring.
If I have any where laid a greeuais old age, I have Virgil’s authority, Sed cruda et slurta fidem, Ciceron.
Dryden.
4. New; fresh; as a green wound.
The door is open, sir, there lies your way;
You may be jogging while your boots are greeuais.
Shakespeare.
Grieves are greeuais.
And all thy friends, which thou must make thy friends,
Have but their things andTech newly taken.
Shakespeare.
5. Not dry.
If a spark of error have thus far prevailed
Even where the wood was green, and farther off
From any inclination to furious attempts; much
Not the peril thereof to be greater in men, whose minds are
Of themselves as dry as aewl, apt beforehand unto tums.
Homer’s Iliad.
6. Not roared; half raw.
Under this head we may rank those words which signify different ideas, by a sort of an unaccountable fast-followed analogy, or distant resemblance, that fancy has introduced between one thing and another,
As when we say the meat is green, when it is half roared.
Watts’s Logick.
7. Unripe; immatures; young; because fruits are green before they are ripe.
My full day.
When I was greeuais, in my youth’s prime.
Shakespeare.
You’ll find a difference.
Between the promise of his greeuais day,
And that he design now. Shakespeare, Henry V.
If you would fat greeuais geese, flatter them up when they are about a month old, Masterman’s Husbandry.
Stubble geese at Natahouse are seen
Upon the slip, next May produces green.
King.
GREEN, n. f.
1. The green colour; green colour of different shades.
Which neither hath intended,
That, quaint in green, the shall be loose en’rchet.
Shakespeare.
But with your presence chear’d, they cease to mope,
And walks where neither green at your return. Dryden.
Consibland, illuminated by this beam, appears of the same red colour as in day light; and it at the lens you intercept the green making and blue making rays, its reflects will become more full and lively.
Newton’s Opticks.
Let us but consider the two colours of yellow and blue, if you are one together in a considerable proportion, they make a green.
Watts’s Logick.
2. A grylls plain.
For this down-trodden equity, we tread
In walleth much that greeuais before your town.
Shakespeare.
GReE
O’er the smooth enamelled green,
Where no print of step hath been,
Follow me as I fling.
Milnes.
The young Aesilis, fairer to be seen
Than the fair lily on the flowery ground.
Dryden.
3. Leaves; branches; wreaths.
With green lips and with their empty, hearkens,
And seek fresh foliage to sustain their lives. Dryden.
Every brow with cheerful green is crown’d.
The foliage is doubled, and the bowls go round.
Dryden.
The fragrant greeuais I seek, my brows to bind.
Dryden.
To greeuais, &c. [from the noun.]
To make green. A low word.
Great Spring before
Greenly all the year’s first flowers and blossoms blushed in Soft sweetness on the self-same bough. Towns.
GREENBROOM, n. f. [gifus genistia, Latin.] A shrub.
Miller.
GREENCLOTH, n. f. A board or court of justice held in the counting-house of the king’s household, for the taking cognizance of all matters of government and justice within the king’s court-royal; and for correcting all the servants that shall offend.
Dict.
For the greeuais meet, take it in the largest sense.
I have no opinion of it. Bacon’s advices to Littlew.
GREENEDY, adj. [green and eye.] Having eyes to see, and green to give.
Having eyes to see, and green to give in the desert.
The Tempest.
Goodly thoughts, not rash-embrace’d despair,
And shudd’ring fear, and greenedey jealousy. Shak.
GREENFINCH, n. f. [chloris.] A kind of bird.
The chaffinch, greenfinch, dormouse, and other small birds, are injurious to some fruits. Martineur.
GREENISH, n. f. [aftellus, Latin.] A kind of fith.
Ainsworth.
GREENGAGE, n. f. A species of plum.
GREENHOUSE, n. f. [green and house.] A house in which tender plants are sheltered from the weather.
If the fever prove exceeding piercing, which you may know by the freezing of a moistened cloth let in your greenhouse, kiss’d some charcoal. Evelyn.
Sometimes our road led us into several hollow, apologies among the rocks and mountains, that look like so many natural greenhouses, as being always shaded with a great variety of trees and shrubs that never let their verdure close.
Addison.
The garden kitchen is a more pleasant flight than the finest orangery or artificial greenhouses. Spectator.
GREENISH, adj. [from green.] Somewhat green; tending to green.
With goodly greenish locks, all loose, unity.
As each had been a bride.
Scrope.
Of this order the green of all vegetables seems to be, partly by reason of the intenseness of their colo.
And partly because, when they wither, some of them turn to a greenish yellow. Newton.
GREENLY, adv. [from green.]
1. With a greenish colour.
2. Newly; frethly.
3. Immaturely.
Kate I cannot look greenly, nor gap out my elo.
quence; nor have I cunning in pronunciation. Shak.
GREENNESS, n. f. [from green.]
1. The quality of being green; viridity; viridines.
About it grew such sort of trees, as either excel.
Lency of fruit, flatlines of growth, continual green.
ness in potteries fancies have been made at any time.
Sidney.
In a meadow, though the meed grasses and greenness delights, yet the variety of flowers doth heights and be.
riages.
My reason, which discourses on what it finds in my plantable, can consider greenness by itself, or mel.
lowens, or sweetens, or coldens, winly and alone.
Bolton.
2. Immaturity;
GRI

1. Immaturitv; ripened.

This prince, while yet the errors in his nature were excused by the greenness of his youth, took all the faults upon itself, loved a private man's wife.

Sidney.

2. Frethness; vigour.

Take the picture of a man in the greenness and greenness of his youth, and in the latter date and duration of his blooming years, and you will fear, know it to belong to the same person.

Sbarb.

The discourse of maidens, so called from the peacock which produces.

Sour exhalations, and, with assistance, specially of terrestrial and animal substances, are the cause of girls in the greenness.

Arbigatb.

GREENSWARD. n. s. [green and ward.

Gardens, y e of the the fame original with green.

The turf on which grass grows.

This is the prettiest low-born lads that ever Ran on the greensward, Shakesp. Winter's Tale.
After break their fall
On greensward ground, a cool and grateful taste.
Dryden.

In shallow soils all is gravel within a few inches; and sometimes gravel a thin greensward, and floughly underneath, which last turns quite brown.

Swif.

GREENWEDD. n. f. [green and wed.

Dyrs weed.

GREENWOOD. n. s. [green and wood.
A wood, admired as it appears in the Spring or Summer. It is sometimes used as one word.

Among wild herbs under the greenwood shade.

Falstaff.

It happened on a Summer's holiday,
That to the greenwood shade he took his way;
For Cymon thund' r the church.
Dryden.

To GREET. v. a. [greet, Latin; grecean, Saxon.

1. To address at a meeting.

I think if men, which in their places live,
Durst look in themselves, and themselves retive,
They would like strangers greet themselves.
Done.
I would gladly go.
To greet my Pallas with such bow below. Dryden.

2. To address in whatever manner.

My noble partner
You greet with present grace, and great predication;
To Cymon speaks not, Shakesp. Macbeth.

Now, Thomas Mowbray, do I turn from you.
And mark my greeting well; for what I speak,
My body shall make good. Shakesp. Richard II.

3. To address to a friend or relative.

My Lord, the Mayor of London comes to greet you.

—God bless your grace with health and happy days.
Shakesp.

Now the herald lark
Left his ground nigh, high tow'ring to precy
The morn's approach, and greet her with his song.
Aitton.

Occa. once the early morn's" run
To greet her of a lovely son;
Milton.
The fear our own: and now all nations greet,
What earth, each weft of our fleet, Waller.
Thick pale, they meet, their eyes with fury burn.
None greets; for gone the greeting will return;
But in dumb furinly, each arm'd with care,
His foe procees, as breadth of the war.
Dryden.

4. To congratulate.

His lady, fearing all that chanced from fain,
Approach in haste to greet his victory.
Shakesp.

5. To pay compliments at a distance.

The king's bed.
And first great courts to your officers;
This diamond he set in my heart's waistband,
By the name of most kind hearts. Shakesp. Markbth.

6. To meet, as those do who go to pay congratulations. Not much in use.

GRi

1. His poignant spear he thrust with pellucid sway,
That through his thigh the mortal steel did glide.
Shakesp.

So fare.

The grinding sword, with disconsolate wound.
Pauly through the shroud, with his feet left.

GRiDELIN. adj. A colour mixed of white and red.

The ladies dressed in rich furs were seen;
Of Florence satins, flower'd with white and green.
And for a shade between the blooming flowers, Dryden.

GRIERON, n. s. [griev, flandick, a grage,

And iron. A portable grate on which meat is laid to be broiled upon the fire.

He had added two bars to the grie'son. Spedtora.

GRIEVE. v. a. [from grieve; grief, Welch, probably from English.

1. Sorrow; trouble for something past.

I will inflect my sorrow to be pleased;
For grief is proud, and makes his owner but. Skat.
Wringing of the hands; knocking the breast, &c.

2. Grievance; harm. [Grief, French.

Not in use.

Be faddened for redress of all this griefs.
And I will let this foot of mine as far
As goth ever.

The nature of your griefs, and whereunto
You couragie from the breath of civil peace.
Such bold boldness?
Shakesp. Henry IV.

GRIEVER. n. s. [from grief;

1. A state of unceasing.
Out of use.

2. The cause of unceasing.
Ufed of such causes as are the effects of human conduct.

What remedy can be found against grievances, but to bring religion into countenance, and encourage those who, from the hope of future reward, and dread of future punishment, will be moved to justice and integrity?

7. GRIEVE. v. a. [greet, French; grieve, Flemish; grieva, Latin.

1. To inflict; to hurt.

For he doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men.

Forty years long was I grieved with this generation.
Psal.

It repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart. Gen. vi.

Grieved at the thought, he would his whole en-

Beweared.

Should be to clofe those breaches.

2. To make forrowful.

When one man kills another, thinking that he killeth a wild beast; if the same man remembereth afterwards what he hath done, and is not grieved for the fact, in this case he hath done; because he not grieved is offensive unto God, though the fact were merely beside his will.

Perkin.

To GRIEVE. v. a. To be in pain for something past; to mourne; to forrow, as for the dead. 5.iii.

It has sometimtces and sometimtces for before the cause of grief; perhaps it is sooner before our misfortunes, and far before our faults.

Do not you grieve at this. Shakesp. Henry IV.

How else do you grieve them, Adam, to behold
The end of all thy toil and labor.
Milton.

With equal mind what happens let us bear;
Nor joy nor grieve too much for things beyond our power.
Dryden.

GRIEVINGLY. adv. [from grieve;

In sorrow; forrowfully.

Grievously, I think,

The GRI

To rub one against another.

GRI

Grinder. m. f. [from grinz]. He that grinds.

GRI

The stylish gripes, with墅ing grifes of sorrowful lead.

Gr Antigius's talk the more grievous.

3. To rub one against another.

To rub one against another.

4. To haras, to oppress.

5. In the following lines. I know not whether it be not corruptly used for grinding.

6. To give a pain in the bowels.

To ground, v. n.

1. To perform the act of grinding; to move a mill.

2. To be moved as in the act of grinding.

3. And many fame works or my grinding jaws.

Grinder, m. f. [from grind.]

1. One that grinds; one that works in a mill.

2. The instrument of grinding.

3. The back teeth; the double teeth.

4. The teeth, in iron or contempt.

5. One, who at the sight of figer's open wide.

Grindstone. m. f. [from grind and grindstone. stone, the hope on which edged instruments are sharpened.

Saw you never yet in France?

And by the tradesmen, for the noise.

That cause and like grindstones, Ben Jonson.

And to what their natural faculties, Hammonds.

Heart-struck with chynting grifes of sorrowful lead.

That all his senses bound! Milton's Paradise Lost.

5. In the plural. Belly-ach, colick.

And in the hardenss of grievers and grifiers, and the icterical have a great frowardness and griever, with windings.

Griper, m. f. [from gripe. Oppreftor; uffer, exorterion.

6. Others greted men are professed ufferers, griplers, monstors of men, and harpies.

Grippingly, adv. [from gripe.]

With pain in the guts.

Gripters help, let the medicine stop in the guts, and the grievers of the guts.

Gripe, n. f. A greedy snatchier; a gripping mifer.

A [gripe, roast meat, Itirh.]

The vertebra of a hog broiled.

Griely, adj. [griely.] Saxon. Dreadful; horrible; hideous; frightful; terrible.

Has griply locked, long grown and unbound,

Dilivered hung about his hoodiers mant.

Grijskin, m. f. [grijsk, roast meat, Ireth.]

Where I was about to fetch the honey bee.

The griply toadstool grown there might I see. Spen.

My griply countenance made others cry.

One day comes near, the fear of death.

Shakes. H. VI.

Back he'd those two fair angels, half amast'

So foden to behold the king's mighty.

Yet thus, unwise and with fear, accord him soon. Milto.

For that damned magician, let him be gilt.

With all the grisy legions that troop

Under the foory king of Acheron.

The bounteous form of fight, Incha.

And war appears a grisly sight. Dryden.

In vision thou shalt see his grisly face. The King of Rivers stand in thy face. Dryd., Age.

Thus the grisly face quite again.

Dryden.

Cloy his each other said, they pretend the ground.

Their mainly bottomed with many a grisly.

Grijs, m. f. [griys, Saxon.]

1. Corn to ground.

2. To supply the provision.

3. Matter as wife logicians say.

4. And form, say I, as well as they.

5. To supply, if matter brings no grief.

Griest. m. f. [griest, Saxon.]

A cartilage; a part of the body next in hardeness to a bone.

No living creatures, that have shells very hard, as molusks, crabs, lobsters, and the like, have burs without them, but only little griesters.

Bacon's Natural History.
where the galllent touches the windpipe, there, to fill up the circle is only a soft membrane, which may easily give way to the dilatation of the galllent. Ray.

Grizzly. adj. [from grizzle.] Cartilaginous; made of gristle.
At last they felt out pieces of their lungs; it may be small bluish bits, that are cast off from the wind-pipes. Harvy.
She has made the back-bone of several vertebras, as being more fit to bend, more tough, and less in danger of breaking, than if they were all in one bone without these grizzly junctures. More.
Ribs are made of grizzly spokes, or rays connected by their forks, which may be contrived in a man, extended like women's fans. They have a louder and stronger note than other birds of the same kind, which have only a grizzly windpipe.
Each pipe differs from its grizzly rings.
To cherish life eternal patures brings.
Blaikmore.

Grit. n.f. [grízzzą, grażoz, Saxon.] 1. The coarse part of meal.
2. Oats hufked, or coarsely ground.
Solid bone, cracking a little betwixt the teeth;
yet without the leaf particles of grit, feels as smooth as flax.
"The sturid pear-tree here
Will rise luxuriant, and with toughed root
Fierce the obstructing grit and resile marke. Phillips.
4. Grits are fossils found in minute mafes, forming together a kind of powder;
the several particles of which are of no determinate shape, but seem the rudely broken fragments of larger mafes; not to be dissolved or diffuses by water, but retaining their figure, and not cohering into a mafe.
One fort is a fine, dull looking, grey grit, which,
if wetted with salt water, into mortar or pate, dries almost immediately, and concretes into a hard flinty mafe, such as is not easily afterwards diffused by water. This is the quadri petalum of the ancients, mixed among their cements used in buildings sunk into the sea; and in France and Italy an ingredient in the plasters placed in the name of pozzolana.
It is common on the sides of hills in Italy. Another species, which is a coarse, beautifully green, dull grit, is the chryscoll of the ancients, which they used in folding gold, long suppos'd a lost fossil. It serves the purpose of fieri-ming metals better than borax. The ferruginous black glittering grit, is the black thinning fand employed to throw over writing, found on the thores of Italy.
Hill on Fossil.

Grittiness. n.f. [from gritty.] Sandiness; the quality of abounding in grit.
In fuller's-earth he could find no sand by the mi-scope, nor any grittiness. Martine's Handbandy.

Gritty. adj. [from grit.] Full of hard particles; conglomering of grit.
I could not discover the unevenness of the surface of this rock, nor that little shadows let fall from the gritty particles thereof. Newton.

Grizzle. adj. [more properly grizzle.]
See Grizzelin.

Grizzelin. adj. [grizzle.] The Bugundy, which is grizzelin or pale red, of all others, is finest to ripen in our climate. Temple.

Grizzle. m.f. [from grit, gray; griz-zel.] A mixture of white and black;
gray.
O thou trembling eath, what wilt thou be,
When time high found a grillize on thy face. Skitt.
He heard us in our course... And with his outstretched arm would turn, as grope'd. Addison.

O true delight! enlightened by thy ray, I grope and grope no more, but see my Arabians.

To grope. n. a. To search by feeling in the dark; to feel without being able to see.

How vigilant to grope stirs thoughts, and to pick out somewhat of what they might complain.

They have left us to care for ourselves to grope; and, by daylight, to have been often surprised by the night.

But Strehon, cautious, never meant

The bottom of the pao to grasp. Swift.

GRUPER. n. s. [from grope.] One that seeks for the dark.

GROSS. adj. [grost, French; grost, Italian; groste, Latin.]

1. Thick; bulky.

The crown of thoughts, that wing the midway air, Shew grace to grost as beatles. Shak., King Lear.

2. Shameful; uncensurable; enormous.

He was considered as a grost thing it were for men of their quality, and grace and grave. Boscum.

3. Intellectually coarse; palpable; impure; unreined.

All those that grost is thy grost. Pope.

4. Inelegant; disproportioned in bulk.

The faint appeare, the rosy blosome, Of beauty blushing, gives the glossy hue, And feature grost. Thomson's Summer.

5. Dense; not refined; not attainted; not pure.

It is manifest, that when the eye standeth in the finer medium, and the object is in the grost, things grow more distant, but contrariwise, when the eye is placed on the grost medium, and the object is in the finer.

Bacon's Natural History.

Of elements.

The grost feedeth the purer; earth the fee.

Earth is the grost: Meridian East. Light flames are grost; flames are same.

Both are the combustible part of Our.

Or dip their pinions in the painted bow. Pope.

6. Stupid; dull.

If the doth then the subtlest sense excel, How grost are they that draw their blood in blood?

And in clear dream and solenm vision,

Tell her of things that no grost ear can ear. Milton. Some men give more light and knowledge by the here dwelling of the question with perplexity and juries, than others by the life of it in gross confusion for whole hours together. Watts.

7. Coarse; rough; opposite to delicate.

Fine and delicate sculptures are helped with meaner, and grost, and negligent. Warton's Archnics.

8. Thick; fat; bulky.

His stature was of just height and all proportionate dimensions, avoiding, the extremes of grost and meagre. Fell.

GROSS. m. s. [from grope.]

1. The main body; the main force.

The Belgians hop'd, that with disorder'd haste

The deep-cut keels upon the sand might run: Or, if, with caution before; their vessels might chance one by one. Addison's Frederic.

Several are of opinion, that in a battle, you should discharge upon the grost of the enemy, without dwelling your piece at any particular person.

The grost of the people can have no other project in changes and revolutions than of publick bleedings. Addison.

2. The bulk; the whole not divided into its several parts.

Certain members of their constitutions are used to make salutary the grost of accidents. Herk. Ne'er it was in gross that we found, and the three. Addison.

3. Not individual; but a body together.

He hath ribbons of all the colours in the rainbow; they come to him by the grost. Shak. I cannot raise the grost up. Grost.

Of full three thousand ducats. Shak.

You see the united design of many persons to make up one figure, though they have separated themselves in many petty divisions, they join one by one into a gross. Dryden.

4. The chief part; the main mass.

Come, as out of question, have little or no power and effect over the gross and mass of things. Dryden.

The articulate sounds are most confused, though the grost of the found be greater. Bacon's Nat. Hist.

5. The number of twelve dozen. [Grost, French.]

It is made up only of that simple idea of an unit repeated; and repetitions of this kind, joined together, make those distinct simple modes of a dozen, a gross, and a million. Locke.

GRUSLY. m. s. [from grost.]

1. Balkily; in bulky parts; coarse: as, this matter is grostly palpated.

2. Without natural skill or graces; without delicacy; without refinement; coarse; palpably.

Such kind of ceremonies as have been so grossly and shamefully abused in the church of Rome, where they remain, are scandalous. Herk.

Terror and murder ever kept together; as two yoke devils sworn to other teapot's. Working to grossness in a natural cauldron. That admirers did the whole up whom. Shak. And thine eyes. See it as grossly draw in thy behaviour, that in their kind they speak it. Shak.

What I have said has been forced from me, by feeling a noble sort of poetry so highly relished by all men, and so grossly copied by almost all the rest.

If I speak of light and rays as conducing to colours, I would be understood to speak not philosophically, but grostly, and according to such conceptions as vulgar people would be apt to frame. Newton's Opticks.

While it is so difficult to learn the springs and motives of some facts or events, it should be so grossly misreferred to the publick by curious inquisitive heads. Swift.

GROSSESS. m. ʃ. [from grost.]

1. Harfness; fatuity; thicknesses; fulness; density; coarse; meagerness.

The purpose is perspicuous even as substance. Whole grost of little characters turn up. Shak. And I will persuade that mortal grostiness.

Shakes.: To the cause of the epilepsy from the stomach is the grost of the vapours which rise and enter into the cells of the brain. Bacon.

Then all this earthly grostiness quit.

Att'd with stars we shall for ever.

Triumphing over death.

In the remotest soil and lonely grost begin to recover it, it ought to be the colour of the line-and most transparent faces, in which the vapours are not arrived to that grostiness to require of other causes. Newton's Opticks.

For as 'twas, wit, as Sol eclips'd, makes known Tho' opposing body's grostiness, not its own. Pope.

2. Inelegant fames; unwick'd corpulency.

Next then, that were fat and starchy, to go to foreign abroad at the temperate diet of some sober man; and so, by little and little, eat away the grostiness that is in them. Addison.

3. Want of refinement; want of delicacy; intellectual coarseness.

I was three or four times in the thought they were not fair; and yet the graces of my mind could not grost the grossness of the folly into a receiving body, in which it should not be made slight. Pope.

Whatever beauties it may, 'tis free at least from the grostiness of those faults I mentioned. Dryden.

A grostless is then in the mind of that man, who takes time to reach a lady's heart by troubling her ears! Clarissa.

GROST or grost. m. s. [grost, French; grotto, Italian.]

1. A cave; a cavern for coolness and pleasure.

Certain to me it was of evil, thought. Prior.

Aitul to see the Egeria grost. Pope.

GROSTEQUE. adj. grotesque, French; grussice, Italian: Distorted-figure; unnatural; wildly formed.

Of a steep wilderness, whose hairy sides

With thickest overgrown, grospous and wild, Access deny'd. Milton's Paradise Lost.

There is yet a lower sort of poetry and painting, which is out of nature; far is this that in poetry which grost is in a picture; the figures and aations of a piece are all unnatural, and the manner false, that is, incomposite with the characters of mankind: grotesque painting is the just resemblance of this. Dryden.

The naked figure of their foes they draw.

Not lines, nor looks, nor leases, nor colours true, but the grotesque design express to public view. Dryden.

Palladian walls, Venetian doors, Grostous roofs, and fluoro llce. Pope.

GRO'TTO. n. s. [groste, French; grost, Italian.]

A cavern or cave made for coolness.

It is not used properly of a dark horrid cavern.

Their careless chiefs to the cool grotes many.

The bow's of kings, to flade them from the sun. Dryden.

This was found at the entry of the grost in the Park. Woodward.

GROVE. n. s. [from grost.]

A walk covered by trees meeting above.

I look'd toward Birmam, and soon meethought

The wood began to move.

Within.
Within this three mile you may feast coming; I say, a moving grove. Shakespeare: Macbeth. Fortunate fields, and groves, and flowery walks; Thrice happy they! She left the flow'ry field, and waving grove. Blackmore.

Banfield from courts and love, Abandon'd truth, pure love, pure Cheer. Granville.

When hearts pallionts vex his breast, While every gale is peace, and every grove 1st melody? Thomson's Spring. 1. GROVEL. w. n. [groafe, Islandick, flat on the face. It may perhaps be some gradual corruption from ground fell.]

To lie prone; to creep low on the ground.

The head-lead paffage wou'd peace, And through his shoulder pit's throughout to ground He groveling fell, all gored in his girding wound. Spenser.

What's that thou there? king Henry's daudent, Incha'd with all the honour of the world! If so, gaze on, and grove on thy face, Until thy head be circled with the fame. Shaksp. Oke mall and beech, and cornish fruit they eate, Grovelling like swine on earth, in foul left forts. Chapman.

Now they lie Groveling and prostrate on you lake of fire. Milton. Their holy groveling the feast go. Dryden. Let us then conclude that all painters ought to require this part of excellence: not to do it, is want courage, and not dare to shew themselves: 'tis

2. To be mean; to be without dignity or elevation.

I must disclaim what'er he can express: His groveling fow will show my patience limp. Dryden. Several thoughts may be natural which are low and groveling. Adelphi's Spectator.

GROUND, n. s. [ground, Saxon; gronid, Danish.]

1. The earth; considered as superficially extended, and therefore related to tillage, travel, habitation or almost any action. The main mass of terrene matter is never called the ground. We never distinguish the terraqueous globe into ground and water, but into earth, or land, and water; again, we never say under earth but under ground. Israel first go on dry ground through the sea. Ex. xiv. 16.

Man to till the ground None was, and from the earth a dewy mid Went up, and water'd all the ground. Milton.

To their fix'd station, all in bright array, The cherubin descended, on the ground Gliding mutur'mus. A black luminous gurge. Milton. Bails up from under ground. Milton. And yet to nimly he would stand, As if he found'd to touch the ground. Hudibras.

2. The earth as distinguished from air or water.

I have made man and beast upon the ground. Jeremiah, vi. 40. There was a dew upon all the ground. Job, iv. 18. They fam'd their wings, and soaring in the air, fled with clang despair'd the ground. Milton. Too late young Tithus to the salvation found. Paradise lost. On the floor of the valley from the ground. Dryden.

3. Land; country.

The water breaks its bounds, and overflows the level grounds. Hudibras.

4. Region; territory.

On heavenly ground they flood, and from the shore They left the hillt immeasurable abyss. Milton. With thele came they, who from the bord'ring flood Of old Euphrates to the brook that parts Egypt from Syrian ground, had general names Of Baalim and Attaranim. Milton's Paradise Lost.

5. Estate; possession.

Unce full within these narrow bounds, Thy next design is on thou neighbour grounds. Milton. The creek within the meadows, and the warrens. Thy own seems thin, because it is thy own. Dryden.

The sea Well'd o'er my ground, and my belt to the right of my ground. Milton.

7. The floor or level of the place.

Wherefore should I fine thee to the ground? 2 Sam. vii, 23. Dagon was fallen on his face to the earth. 2 Sam. vi. 4. A multitude fit on the ground. Matt. xxix. 35. Some part of the month of June, the water of this lake descends under ground, through many holes at the bottom of the lake. Brown.

8. Dregs; lees; faces; that which settles at the bottom of liquors.

Set by them cyder, verjuce, four drink, or grounds. Some insit upon having had particular success in fumping gorgones, from the use of the grounds of strong beer, mixed up with bread or oaminal. Sharp's Surgery.

9. The first stratum of paint upon which the figures are afterwards painted.

We see the limner to begin with a rude draught, and the painter to lay his grounds with dark colour. Hanoville.

When solid bodies, sensible to the feeling and dark, are placed on light and transparent grounds, as, for example, the heavens, the water and water, and everything moving in motion, and void of different objects; they ought to be more rough, and more distinguishable, than that with which they are accompanied.

10. The fundamental substance; that by which the additional or accidental parts are supported.

O'er his head A well-wrought heaven of silk and gold was spread, Are the ground, the fun in gold whose blazing. Cowley. Indeed it was but just that the finest lines in nature should be drawn upon the most durable ground. Pope.

Then, wrought into the soul, let virtues shine, The ground eternal, as the work divine. Tennyson.

11. The plain song; the tune on which defects are raised.

Get a prayer-look in your hand, And flend between two churchmen, good my lord; For on that ground I'll build a holy defeat. Shakespeare.

12. First hint; first traces of an invention; that which gives occasion to the ref. Though jealousy of his name invention found, Yet love rein'd; have been a farmer ground; That way the eyant had refer'd to fly, Pursuing hate, now serv'd to bring two lovers high. Dryden. Hudibras.

13. The first principles of knowledge.

The concords will easily be known, if the fore-ground be thoroughly beaten in. Pref. to Accidents. Here state them, or of them which they can read, May as their invention find the grounds. Dryden. The grounds are already laid whereby that is unquestionably resolved; for having granted that God gives sufficient grace, yet he who co-operates still less indispensably, he doth not irresolutely. Hammond. After evening rapells, till bed-time, their thoughts will be bell taken up in the easy grounds of religion, and the story of captivity. Milton.

14. Those fundamental cause; the true reason; original principle.

He defined the stewart to tell him particularly the ground and event of this accident. Sidney. Making happiness the ground of his unhappiness, and good, and killer's argument of his sorrow. Milton. The use and benefit of good laws all that live under them may enjoy with delight and comfort, and the grounds and first original cause, from whence we have been sprung from have been. Hooker. In the solution of the Sibylline objection, my method shall be, to examine, in the first place, the main grounds and principles upon which he builded. White.

Though could not have differ'd.

Fraid in the serpent, speaking as he spake, No ground of enmity between us known. Milton. And either of them who think fit to make any particular relation of the grounds of their proceedings, or the causes of their misadventures, Clarendon. Sound judgement is the ground of writing, etc. Reformen.

Love once given from heaven, and place'd in you, Would leave no ground I ever would be true. Dryden. It is not easy to imagine how any such resolution could arise so early, and spread so universally, if there were not a real ground for it. Wills. If it be natural, ought we not to conceive that there is some ground and reason for these feats, and that nature hath not planted them in use for no purpose. Tilloffen.

Thus it appears, that suits in law are not lawful in themselves, but may lawfully be used, if there is no unlawfulness in the ground and way of management. Audubon.

Upon that prince's death, although the grounds of an inquest with France had received no manner of addition, yet this lord thought fit to alter his sentiments.

The miraculous increase of the profectors of Christianity, was without any visible grounds and causes, and contrary to all human probability and appearance. Auditor.

The field or place of action.

Here was thy end decreed, when these men rose; And ev'n with theirs this act thy death did bring, Or hallow'd at the least upon this ground. Daniel.

And this the power of the army as they fight; advance; or retire.

At length the left wing of the Arcadians began to lose ground. Sidney. Heartlessly they fough't, and quitt'd each from their ground. When o'er their sides victory were crown'd. Dryden has left ground at the latter end of the day, by pursuing his point too far, like the prince of Conde at the battle of Senieux. Dryden.

The intervening space between the flyer and pursuer.

Ev'n milk, Rin'n from a river; or the marsh glides, And gained ground fall of Milton's Paradise Lost.

Superiors think it a detraction from their merit to fet another get ground upon them, and overtake them in the pursuit. Milton's Spectator. Even whilst we speak our conqueror comes on, and gained ground upon us every moment. Addison.

The fate in which one is with respect to opponents or competitors.

Had thou fow'd as kings should do, Giving no ground unto the house of York, They never then had sprung. Shaksp. Henry VI. If they get ground and vantage of the field, Then join you with them like a rib of steel, To make them stronger. Shakespeare's Henry IV. He will flend his ground against all the attacks that can be made upon his proibity. Auditor. Whatever ground we may have gotten upon our enemies, we have gotten none upon our views, the worst enemies of the two; but are even subdued and sect's his self with her continual motion: and gets no ground. Dryden.

The foil to fet a thing off.

Like bright metal on a fallen ground, Milton. His information made him shun the fray; Shall flow more goodly, and attract more eyes, Than that which hath no foil to it. Shakespeare.

To GROUND. v. n. [from the norn.]

1. To fix on the ground, etc.
2. To sound, as upon caufa, caufa, or principle.

Wildm. grounded her laws upon an infalible raftument.

The church of England, walking in the good and old way of the orthodox primitive fathers, grounded the religious obfervation of the Lord's-day, and of other holy days, upon the natural creation, and not upon the letter of the fourth commandment. White.

It may force us to ground conjectures more appropriaie to the truth than we have hitherto met with.

If your own actions on your will you ground, Marshall, you shall know no other. Dryden.

Some eminent spirits, having fignalled their value, becomes to have influence on the people, to grow their leader in warlike expedition, and this is grounded, no doubt, in the particular qualities of the man, which, where prudence and courage are required, rather invite us to flay to a singleton than a multitude. Shair.

3. To settle in first principles, or rudiments, of knowledge.

Being rooted and grounded in love. Eph. iii. 17.

GROUND. The pretender and part, half, of grind. How dull and rugged, ere 'tis ground, it looks ungraced. Halls.

GROUND is much used in composition for that which is next the ground, or near the ground.

GROUND-ASH. a. f. A faplin of ash taken from the ground; not a branch cut from a tree.

A fince of ground-ash the Totham throw, Rough in the mind, and known as it grew. Dryden's End.

Some cut the young after off about an inch above the ground, which, studies them to make very large of them, which they call ground-as.

Marilm. H. Sand.

GROUND-BAIT. n. f. (from ground and bait.) A bait made of barley or malt boiled; which, being thrown into the place where you design to angle, sinks into the bottom, and draws the fish to it.

Take the depth of the place where you mean after to cast your ground-bait, and fift. Wifom. A. Angler.

GROUND FLOOR. n. f. [ground and floor. The lower story of a building.

Under the ground floor, in the Mexican language, they call, the ground floor. N. f. [tercera, terresritis, Latin.] Alcove, or tanbouh. Alcove or ground-lou in, my opinion, of the most excellent use and virtue of any plants among us.

GROUND-OK. (ground and cock.)

If the planting of oak were more in use for waterwood, it would foop the cooters trade for the making of hoop, either of hulf or ash: becaufe one hoop made of the young roots of a ground-ash, would cut a fift of the best hift. Maril.

GROUND-PINE. n. f. (ground and pine.) A plant.

The whole plant has a very fingular flaem, rec fendent, and not reding, where its name ground pine. It grows on dry and barren hills, and in some places on the dutch banks by road sides. Illis.

GROUND-PLATE. n. f. [architecture. The outermoft pieces of timber lying on or near the ground, and framed into one another with mortises and tenons. In these also are mortises made to receive the tenons of the joists, the summer and girders; and sometimes the trimmers for the f chave and chimney-way, and the binding joift.

Harris.

In the orthographical schemes there should be a true definition, if it be a timber-building, or fome feveral fars of the ground plate, breath fummers, and beams. Maril.

Vol. I.

GROUND-PLÔT. n. f.

1. The ground on which any building is placed.

Wreathed Gynere, where can'tt thou find any fmall ground plot (or hope to dwell upon)? Sidney.

A ground plot or five hives of bees contains; Emblems of Industry and virtuous gains. Harte.

2. The incroachment of a building

GROUND-RENT. n. f. Rent paid for the privilege of building on another man's ground.

A foot, in front, and thirty-five feet square, would bring in a ground-rent of five pounds.

The fire was neither granted him, nor given; 'Twas nature's, and the ground-rent due to Heaven.

GROUND-ROOM. n. f. A room on the level with the ground.

I beateth him hereafter to meditate in a ground-room; for that otherwise it would be impossible for an artificer of any other kind to live near him. Taylor.

GROUNDLY. adv. [from grounded.] Upon firm principles.

He hath given the first hint of speaking groundly, and to the purpose, upon this subject. Gloaville.

GROUNDLESS. adj. [from groundless.] Without reason; wanting ground.

But when vain doubt and groundless fear
Do that dear foolish bofe tear.
Prior.

We have great reason to look upon the high pretentions which the Roman church makes to miracles as groundless, and to reject her vain and fabulous accounts of them. Atbeybury.

The party who distinguish themselves by their zeal for the perfect establishment, should be careful to discover such a reverence for religion, as may shew how groundless that reproach is which is cast upon them, of being mere to our national worship. Fieldholde.

GROUNDLESSLY. adv. [from groundless.] Without reason; without cause; without just reason.

Divers perform have produced the like by spirit of venger, or juice of lemons; but have groundedly stripped the effect to some peculiar quality of those two liquors. Boyle on Colours.

GROUNDLESSNESS. n. f. Groundless.

Want of juft reafon.

He diutifully reads the words either of my book or sermons, left the reader should have discovered the notorious fallhood and groundlessness of his catalog. Tiltman.

GROUNDING. n. f. [from ground.] A fift which keeps at the bottom of the water: hence one of the low vulgar.

Hamner.

It offers me to the fow, to bear a robufts pricking-palled fellow taffion to tatters, to very bags, to split the ear of the grounding'. Shakespeare's Hamlet.

GROUNDLY. adv. [from ground.] Upon principles; solidly; not superficially.

Not in use.

A man, groundedly learned already, may take much pleasure in grounded speculation, and then to draw other men works, for his own memory fake, into shorter room.

Achiem.

GROUNDSEL. n. f. [ground and sille.] The timber or raised pavement next the ground.

The window-frame hath every one of its lights rabbetted on its outside about half an inch into the frame; and all these rabbets, but that on the groundsel, are grooved square; but the rabbet on the groundsel is levelled downwards, that when rain may the fitter fall off.

Moxon.

GROUNDSEL. n. f. [selicis, Latin.] A plant.
1. To grow up: to be a man, and of a sweet and excellent disposition.

2. To increase in stature.

3. To come to manhood from infancy: commonly followed by up.

4. To increase in bulk; to become greater, or more numerous.

5. To improve; to make progress.

6. To advance to any state.

7. To come by degrees; to reach any stage gradually.

8. To桅im forward; to gather ground.

9. To shoot in any particular form.

10. To incubate; to be a man.

11. To grow up.

12. To come from one state to another; to become either better or worse; to turn.

13. To proceed as from a cause or reason.

14. To accrue; to be forthcoming.

15. To adhere; to flock together.

16. To swell; to be a sea term.

17. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] An increaser.

18. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

19. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

20. To murmur; to grumble.

21. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

22. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

23. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

24. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

25. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

26. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

27. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

28. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

29. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

30. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

31. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

32. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

33. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

34. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

35. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

36. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

37. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

38. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

39. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

40. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

41. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

42. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

43. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

44. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

45. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

46. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

47. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

48. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

49. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

50. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

51. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

52. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

53. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

54. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

55. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

56. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

57. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

58. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

59. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

60. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

61. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

62. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

63. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

64. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

65. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

66. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

67. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

68. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

69. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

70. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

71. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

72. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

73. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

74. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

75. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

76. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

77. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

78. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

79. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

80. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

81. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

82. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

83. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

84. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

85. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

86. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

87. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

88. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

89. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

90. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

91. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

92. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

93. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

94. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

95. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

96. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

97. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

98. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

99. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.

100. To grower. n. f. [from grow.] A gruber.
GRU

GRU

You shall bring the country and the court,
Not gratify what'er the great desire,
Nor grudging give what publick needs require,
Dryd. Fable.

3. To bevenious.
Grudge not one against another, brethren, let ye be condemned.
1 Th. v. 9.

4. To wish in secret. A low word.
E'en in the most sincere advice he gave,
He had grudging fill to be a knav, a Dryd.

5. To give up any unceasing grudge.
I know not whether the word in this fence be not rather gruegeous, or remains; gruegeur being the part of corn that remains after the fine meal has passed the sieve.
Dryd.

My Deliver.
Hath thou not fill some grudging of thy love?
Dryd.

GRUDGE, n.f. [from gruge, according to Skinner, which in French is to grind or eat. In this sense we fly of who refinents any thing secretly for becometh it.
Grugueug, in Welsh is to murmur; to grumble.
Gruguegeub, in Scotland, denotes a grumous morose countenance.

1. To envy, to see any advantage of another with discontent.
What means this banishing me from your counsels?
Do you love your sorrow so well, as to grudge me part of it?
Th' is not in thee
To grudge my pleasures, to cut off my train. Shak.
He struggles into birth, and cries for aid;
Then helpless in his mother's lap is laid;
He creeps, he walks, and, mingling into man,
Grudges their life from whence his own began.
Dryd.

These clamours with diffuss he beareth,
Much grudge'd the praise, but more the nobb reward.
Dryd.

2. To give or take unwillingly.
Let me at least a funeral marriage crave.
Now grudge not my cold embraces in the grave.
Dryd.

We have grudge'd those contributions, which have left our country at the head of all the govern-mounted of Europe. Addi.

To GRUDGE, n. v. n.
1. To murmur; to repine.
Those who love the forces of that dearful curse whence solitude, maketh subject; nor is there cause why the guilty suffering the same should grudge their comply of injustice.
Hooke.
We do not grudge nor repine at our portion, but are contented with those circumstances which the procession of God hath made to be our lot.
Nelson.

2. To be unwilling; to be reluctant.
Many times they go with as great grudging to serve in his Majesty's ships, as if it were to flaven in the gutter.
Ralph.

GRUMBLE

GRUMBLE

[To GRUMBLE, v. in. grummet, grummes, Dutch.]

1. To murmur with discontent.
A bridgroom,
A grumbling grooms, and that the girl shall find.
Shak.

Thou grumbl'st and rattle every hour on Athul-thesis, and say all as full of envy at his greatness as Cerberus in a Faber's day. L'Ejirange.

Th' secure Philistian stands on that other side,
Grumbling aloud, and smiles 'twixt rage and pride.
Cowley.

Suitors, all but one, will depart grumbling; because they mifs of what they think their due.
South.

Providences has allotted man a competency : all,
be youd it is superfluous; and there will be grumbling without end, if we reckon that we want this, because we have it not.
L'Ejirange.

But, not being half his share,
Still grumbles that he has no more.
Prior.

2. To growl; to gnarl.
The lion, though he fees the toils are set,
Yet, pieth'd with raging hunger, sous away;
Hunts in the face of danger, he grunts.
Shak.

At night, with fullen pleasure, grumbles o'er his preg.
Dryd.

3. To make a hoarse rattle.
Tho' grumbling, thunder join thy voice. Mattson.
Like a horn
That gathers black upon the frowning sky,
And grumbling in the wind. Why? Royal Conv.
Vapors.

Dath on the mountains brow and shacle the woods
That grumbling ware below. Thomson, Winter.

GRUMBER, n. s. [from grumble.]
One that grumbles; a murmurer; a discontented man.

The half-price were good half-price, and I will be paid by it; if I made them of it, it would be the same thing to the grumbler.
Swift.

GRUMBLING, n. f. [from grumble.]
A murmuring through discontent; a grudge.
I have
Without or grudge or grumblings.
Shak.

GRUMP, n. f. [from grume; French; grumus; Latin.]
A thick viscid confutation of a fluid:
as the white of an egg, or elotred like cold blood.
Quinny.

GRUMPTLY. adv. [from grum.
Sullenly; morosely.

GRUMMous. adv. [from grume].
Thick; elotred.
The blood, when he was black, grumous, the red with a distempered urine, th' old lining, shil of a yellow green. Addi.

GRUMMousness. n. s. [from grummes;]
Thickness of a confounded liquour.
The cause may be referred either to the conglu-mation of the feum, or grummes/off the blood.
Addi.

GRUSSEL. n. f. [More usal grussel, unless Milton intended to preserve the Saxon grumb.]
The groundsl; the lower part of the build-

Next came one
Who mound'd in earthen, when the captive ark
Maim'd his brute image, head and hands lopp'd off
In his own temple, on the grusell edge,
Where he fell flat, and tham's him worshipers.
Milton.

To GRUNT, a. v. n. [grummes, Latin.]

To GRUNTLE. {2. n. in. grummet, grummes.

'To murmur like a hog.
And a snape, and bark, and grunt, and roar and baw,
Like hogs, hound, hog, bear, fire, at every torn.

Lament, ye faine in grumplings: spend your griefs
For you, like me, have lost your due relief.
Gay.

The branded brows may hammer indignantly;
O'ry praesthetic beneath the chafent thud.
Teviit. 522.

The GUAR

The gauding queen to louder notes doth rise,
To her full pipes the grunting hog replies;
The grunting hog the neighbours round.
Swine's loud sounds, foajj's body, took th' bristles, grunting.
Run cow and calf, and family of hogs,
In gawkish manner of pursing dogs.
With many a deadly grunts, and doleful squeaks.
Poor swine, as if their pretty hearts would break.

From hence were heard
The grunts of bristled bears, and grunts of bears.
And herds of howling wolves.

GRUNTER, n. f. [from graunt.] 1. A kind of hog. [Large, apert, large.
To GRUNT, v. n. [corrupted from a rhyme of grudge.] To cry;
To repine; to be discontented. Not used.
The poor at the enclofe doth grunche,
But others that fall
Let none mean should have but too much,
And some again nothing at all.

But what's our woe for we must bear,
The fruit condition it.
That what to all may happen here,
It's chance to me, I must not grunts. Ben Johnson.

GRUNT, n. f. [from the verb.] Malice; ill-will.
To it be meant ledlens dolts.
To tell them as they do,
To whom he bore so fell a grunt.
He never gave quarter to any fuch.

GRY, n. s. [gregy.] Any thing of little value; as, the paring of the nails.

GUAA'CUM, n. f. Guaiacum is aromatic and aperitif. It excel-
In many chronic cafes, and was once famous
For curing the venereal disease, which it still does
In warmer climates, but not with us we find it insufficient.
We have a reft of its, incorrectly cal-
Galled guaiacum.

GUARANTEE, n. f. [guarant, French.] A power that undertakes to see fignitures fulfilled.
God, the great guarant for the peace of mankind,
In which his laws cannot secure his majesty.

A prince distinguished by being a patron of Pro-Testants, and guarant of the Welfth Treaty.

An oath is a promise made to God, and God is our Superior, superior to kings. And he is also the guarant and averger of all breach of faith and injurious.

To GUARANTY, v. a. [guarant, French.]
To undertake to secure the performance of any articles.

To GUARD, v. a. [garden, French; from our word guard, the va being changed by the French, into g; as Gallies for Whales.]
1. To watch by way of defense and fecurity.
2. To protect; to defend.

Wield the guns guarded you from all
Dangers abroad, and own your thunder flail.
Waller.
Your pow'rs you never use, but for defense.
To guard your own innocence.
Dryden.
Fix'd on defence, the Trojans are not low.
To guard their thone from an expected foe.
Dryden.
The port of Genoa is very ill guarded against the thieves.
Addison on Italy.
3. To preserve by caution.

One would take care to guard one's self against this particular imperfectior, because it is that which guarantees very strongly inclines us to.
Addison.
GUI

It is the opinion of divers good governors, that the last fit will not be more violent than advantageous, Pope.

If fortune should please but to take such a crouchet,
To thee I apply, great Sancy, my direction.
To give thee thine laceeves, a mitre and rochers.
Whom would'th reformleer I leave thee a gesfairs.
Swifts.

GUSSINGLY, adv. [from guffing.] Conjecturally; uncertainly. Not in use.

I have a letter gussingly let down.
Staksfp.

GUEST, n. f. [gæ-tier, gyst, Saxxan; gesfih, Welsh.]

1. One entertained in the house or at the table of another.

They were much misled, fancying, that he was gone to be guff with a man that is a flatterer. Luthf, xiv., 7.

Methinks a father
In, at the nuptial of his son, a gesf that shelf becomes the table.
Tell me my royal gusf.
Shaksfp.

I add to his commands my own request.
Dryden.

2. A stranger; one who comes newly to reside.

O desert, deserted! how fit a gesf am I for you,
Since my heart can ease you with wild ravenous beasts, which in you are wanting?
Sidney.

Thou hast no smiles.
That play'd on her luscious lips, doth not to know
What gusfes were in her eyes; which parted thence
As pearls from diamonds drop.
Shakespeare.

GUSTrITE, n. f. [from gusf and rite.]

Oftentimes does fit.
Uffly for gusf.
Shaksfp.

A gift esteem'd it, that he would not bear
In his black fleece that gusfite to the war.
Chapman.

GUSfCAMBER, n. f. [gusf and chamber.]

Chamber of entertainment.
Where is the gusfite chamber, where I shall eat theفور with my disciples?
Mark, xiv. 14.

To GUSfCOT, v. n. [guisadging, Italian.]

To found a gusfite running with intermisions of out of a nautsmouth vessel.

GUSfGAGE, n. f. [from guide.]
The reward given to a gusfite.
Aynsworth.

GUSfDANCE, n. f. [from guide.]
Direction; government.
They charge me with neglecting the gusfite of inferiour men.
Shaksfp.

As to these who lived under the guidance of reason alone, without the assistance of supernatural light, it is highly probable that miracles, or a message from the dead would persuade them.

Aitken.

Particular application must be left to Christian prudence, under the guidance of God's holy spirit, who knows our necessity before we ask, and our ignorance in asking.

This to the young—but the experience'd age
Wish not the gusfite of a former sage.
Shakspere.
A prince ought not to be under the guidance of influence of either faction, because he declines from his office of presiding over the whole to be the head of a party.
Swift.

To GUIDF, v. a. [gusf, French.]

1. To direct in a way.

When the spirit of truth is come, he will guide us into all truth.
John, xvii, 13.

The not light serv'd to guide them to their neighbours coopers.
Whoever has a faithful friend to guide him in the dark passages of life, may carry his eyes in another man's head, and yet see none of the worse.
South.

2. To influence.

Upon thee, or such like sacral immages, when nothing is expected of the world of man, they many times conclude that the slightest wrong are not to be put up.
Kebelling.

3. To govern by counsel; to instruct.
For thyname's sake lead me and guide me.
Ps. xlii. 3.

4. To regulate; to superintend.

Women neglect that which St. Paul assigns them as their proper business; the guiding of the house.

GUIDE, n. f. [guide, French, from the verb.]

1. One who directs another in his way.

Thus gusfeth them a burning pillar of fire to be a guide of being lost.
Migf, xvii. 1.

Can knowledge have more pride, and must advance
So far to make us wise for ignorance?
And rather in the dark to groove our way,
That, led by a falt guide to eat by day?
Dunham.

2. One who directs another in his conduct.

While yet but young, his father dy'd,
And left him to an happy guide.
Waller.

There is no name in which the time past paternal apostles,
Appointed, sustained, and subscriber'd by the appointment of God by the direction of the spirit,
To direct and lead the people of God in the same way of eternal salvation.
Pope.

Duxter.

3. Director; regulator.

Who the guide of nature, but only the God of nature?
In him we live, move, and are.
Those things which nature is said to do, are by divine art, performed, unless God be the author.
Is there any such knowledge divine in nature herself working, but in the guide of nature's work?

Some truths are not by reason to be tried,
But we have sure experience for our guide.
Dryden.

GUIDELESS, adj. [from guide.] Having no guide; wanting a governor or superintendant.

Th' ambitious Swede, like redlegs hilltop to,
Though in his life he blood and breath'd.
To his now guideless kingdom peace bequeath'd.
Dryden.

There fence winds o'er dusky valleys blest.
Whose every puff bears empty shades away,
Which guideless in those dark dominions stray.
Dryden.

GUIDER, n. f. [from guide.] Director; regulator; guide. Obsolete.

Our guider come to the Roman camp conduct us.
Staksfp.

That perforn, that being provoked by excessive pain, thrust his dagger into his body, and thereby, instead of reaching his rights, opened an imposthume, the unknown cause of all his pain, and so finished himself.
Dryden, s. 3.

He had great reason to acknowledge charity for his chirurgion, and Providence for the guider of his hand.
South.

GUIDON, n. f. [French.]
A standard-bearer; a standard. Obsolete.

A guider of the nation.

GUILD, n. f. [guile, French, a fellowship, a corporation.]
A society; a corporation; a fraternity or company, combined together by orders and laws made among themselves by their prince's licence.

Hence the common word guild or guildhall proceeds, being a fraternity or commonality of men gathered into one combination, supporting their common charge by mutual contribution.

Coxwel.

Towards three or four o'clock
Look for the news that the guildhall affords.
Staksfp. Rich. III.

In wooden cloth it appears, by some ancient guilds that were settled in England for this or that purpose, that this kingdom greatly flourished in that age.

Holbein's Andr of Mercader.

As when the long-eared miley mothers wait
At some sick mifer's triple banded gate.
For their defracted absent fath they make
A noise so loud, that all the guild awakes.
Pope.

GUINE. n. f. [gwen, old French, the name with suffix, Deceitful cunning; insidious artefact; mischievous facility.]

With
With fawning words, he courted her awhile,
And looking lovely, and oft fighting sore,
Her constant heart did court with divers guile;
But words and looks, and she did absolve.

Spenfr.

When I have made men to employ a friend,
Dio, Bish. fol. 7. come, I will do for her.
Be to me! This I do by heav'n.
When I am cold in zeal to you or yours. Shaksp. We may, with more from this excellent war.

Guileful. a. d. [from guileful].

1. Wily; insidious; mischievously artful.

The way to be uninvolved by them that are guileful through skill, is thoroughly to be instructed in that which maketh guileful against war. Hooker.

Without expense at all,

By guileful fair words, peace may be obtained.' Shaksp. Henry VI.

He saw his guileful art.

By Eve, though all unweaving, seconded

Upon her husband. Milton's Paradise Lost.
The guileful phantom clouded the thrown, and flew faftimes, and vanished in a cloud.

Dyden's Eclog.

2. Treacherously; secretly mischievous.

I train'd thy brethren to that guileful hole, Whose covert was a lowly lay. Shaksp.

Guilefully. adv. [from guileful].

Indiscreetly; treacherously.

To whom the tempter guilefully reply'd.

Milton.

Guilefulness. n. s. [from guileful].

Secret treachery; tricking cunningly.

Guileless. a. d. [from guile].

Free from deceit; void of insinuations; simply honest.

Guiler. n. s. [from guile]. See Bi-guile.

One that betrays into danger by guileful practices.

But he was wary wife in all his way, And well perceived his deceitful sleights; He suffered but his life betrayed; So guileful did beguile the guilty of the prey.

Spenfr.

Guilt. n. s. [guilt].

Saxon, originally signified the one or mult paid for an offence, and afterwards the offence itself.

1. The state of a man guiltyly charged with a crime; the quality of innocence.

It behoves guilt of crime, one reason of state, that could unseat the enmity that was upon the king for this execution. Bacon's Henry VII.

When these two are taken away, the possibility of guilt, and the possibility of innocence, what restraint can the belief of the crest lay upon any man.

Hammond on Fundamentals.

2. A crime; an offence.

Culpe. Guile is a concealing, concealing, and the art of concealing, and ask.
Thie dastard infamous grace.
Shaksp. Guiltily adv. [from guilty]. Without innocence; without clearness of conscience.

Bloody and guilty; guilty to each, And a bloody guilty to each day.
Think on Lord Hatings, and despair, and die. Shaksp. Rich. III.

Guiltiness. n. s. [from guilty].

The state of being guilty; wickedness; consciousness of crime.

He thought his flights better to proceed of a fearful force, and not of a humble faithfulness. Sidney.

The last was that I felt thy tyranny, O, in the battle think on Buckingham, And die in terror of thy guiltiness. Shaksp. I should be guiltier than my guilefulness.

Shaksp.
GUL

utter rain of navigation, for fear our heads should turn giddy at the imagination of getting all the and unoccupied gulfs of the world.

3. A whirlpool, a fucking eddy.

England his approach makes as fierce
As water to the fucking of a gulf.

4. Any thing insatiable, as the mouth or Romanch, Scowl of dragon, tooth of wolf,
Witches: mummy; maw and gulf.

Of the ravenged fast sea hawk
Remains a gulf of my mind's dark.

GULFY, adj. [from gulf]. Full of guls or whirlpools; alliteratif.

Rivers arise; whether be the sun
Of utmost Tweet, or Oze, or gulf Don. Milton.

My native gulf his boneful'd Blackmore.

The ligur in the stomach is a compound of that which is separated from its inward coat, the spittle which is swallowed, and the liquor which drills from the teeth.

The Euxine sea and the Mediterranean, small gulf, which is compared with the ocean.

To GULLY. v. n. [corrupted from guggle.]
To run with noise.

GULLY-HOLE, n. f. [from gully and hole.]
The hole where the gutters empty themselfs in the subterraneous fewer.

GULLSITY, n. f. [gulsas, Latin.]
Gulliness; gluttony; voracity.

They are very temperate, seldom offending in ebriety, not erring in gullibility, or superfluity of meat.

To GULP. v. a. [golph, Dutch.] To swallow eagerly; to suck down without intermission.

He boast the fish, gulf it down, and soon as ever the morrow was poor gulf his mouth; L'Est.

I see the double gulfon charge their hand;
See them puff'th the froth, and gulf amain,
While with dry tongue I lick my lips in vain. Gay.

GULP. n. f. [from the verb.] As much as can be gulflawed at once.

In deep situations we take more large gulfs of air to cool our heart, overcharged with love and fury.

Or as he can catch a gulf of air.

And deep above the sea, he names the fair. Dryden.

GUM. n. f. [gumma, Latin.]

1. A vegetable substance differing from a rein, in being more viscid and less friable, and generally dissolving in aqueous menstruums;
whereas reins, being more fulphurous, require a spiritualious dif\nference. Quinty.

One whole eyes,
Albeit unnoted to the melting mood,
Dropp'd tears as fast as the Arabian trees.

Their medicinal gum.
Shakespeare's Othello.

He ripens spices, fruit, and precious gum,
Which from remotest regions hither come. Waller.

Hers maiden train,
Who bore the tree, that holy rites require,
=Incestae, and od'y gone, and covered with fire.

GUMMINESS, n. f. [from gumma.] The state of being gummy; accumulation of gum.

The tendons are involved with a great guminess and collection of matter is Witsman's Surgery.

The nature of gum; gumminess.

Sugar and honey make windy liquors, and the euflicck fermenting particles are detained by their innate gummy gum. Player.

GUMMOSITY. n. f. [from gumma.] The nature of gum.

Observations concerning English amber, and relations about the amber of Prussia, prove that amber is not a gummy or resinous substance drawn out of trees by the sun's heat, but a natural fossil.

Woodward.

GUMMY, adj. [from gum.]

1. Consisting of gum; of the nature of gum.

2. A final stream or lake. Not in use.

Nature has various tender mucles placed,
By which the useful guller is embraced. Blackmore.

From the utmost end of the head branches there issues out a gummy juice, which hangeth downward like a cord. Dryden.

Not all the gummy stores Arabia yields. Dryden.

How each arising side now appears,
As o'er the Po dilutes her creamy tears. Dryden.

2. Productive of gum.

The clouds
Time the flint lightnings; whose thousand flame's drive down
Kindled the gummy bark of fir and pine. Milton.

3. Overgrown with gum.

'The yarning youths, shelve half awake, eek.
His lazy limbs and dossy head to rattle;
Then rubs his gummy eyes, and fetches his pace.

GUN. n. f. [Of this word there is no fa-satisfactory etymology. Mr. Lyce observes that gun in Iceland signifies battle; but when guns came into use we had no commerce with Iceland. May not gun come grown by corruption from cetne, gunne, gunne? Cenn is the original of cannon.]

The general name for fire-arms; the instrument from which shot is discharged by fire.

Thee dreadful curses, like the fun 'gainst gods,
Or like an overcharged gun, recoil
And turn upon thyself. Shakespeare's Henry VI.

The great instrument, fast that never Emperor was yet slain with a gun. Kneller's History.

The bullet flying, makes the gun recoil. Cleavel.

In vain the dart or glinting fow'd we than,
Condemn'd to perish by the fliuted rings.

Granville.

GUNNEL. n. f. [corrupted from gunwale.
See Gunwalk.

GUNNER. n. f. [from gun.] Cannonier; who whose employment is to manage the artillery in a ship.

The nimble gunner
With lynx'ock now the devillish cannon touches,
And down goes all before him. Shaksp. Henry V
They sew the principal gunners, and carried away their artillery. Hayward.

GUNNET. n. f. [from gunner.] The science of artillery; the art of managing cannon.

GUNNER. n. f. [gun and forcer.] The powder put into guns to be fired. It con-ists of about fifteen parts of nitre, three parts of sulphur, and two of charcoal.
The proportions are not exactly kept.

Composed consisteth of three ingredients, sal-

Boring by gun-powder frequently happens at sea.

Witman.

GUNSHOT. n. f. [gun and slott.] The reach or range of a gun; the space to which a shot can be thrown.

These who are come over to the royal party appropriated to be out of gunpowder.

Dryden.

GUNSHOT adj. Made by the shot of a gun.

The symptoms I have translated to gunpowder wounds. Witman.

GUNSMITH. n. f. [gun and smith.] A man whose trade is to make guns.

It is of particular esteem with the gunsmiths for flints. Matt.

GUNSTICK. n. f. [gun and stick.] The ranmer; or flieck with which the charge is driven into a gun.

E'en a gunstick flying into fame. Steviart.

GUNSTOCK, n. f. [gun and stick.] The wood to which the barrel of the gun is fixed.

The timber is used for haws, pullers, screw's, mills, and gunstocks. Merkner's Husbandry.
Where love is duty on the female side,
On their meek festival go, and frequented with fury.
My sight, and smell, and hearing were employed;
And all three senses in full gusto enjoy'd.
Dryden.

G. | Love; liking.
Killing, its sin's extreme.
But, in defence, by mere 'tis made just.
Stakefp.

4. Turn of fancy; intellectual taste.
The principal part of painting is to find what nature has made most proper to its art, and a thing of value; to look at the world, and to make a noise.

She led calms of thought, though he was a king.
As doth a fop, fill'd with a fretting gust.
Command an argosy to the waves.
Shakefp.

You may as well forbid the mountain piles
To wag their high tops, and to make a noise.
When they are fretted with the gusts of heaven.
Shakefp.

Prestently come forth swarms and valley of vipers,
Which are the gusts of liberty of freedom refined.
Racoon's Harley V.

As when fierce northern blasts from the Alps
Defend, from his first roots with struggling gust to rend
An aged furious oak.

Part play for passage, till a gust of wind
Ships 'er their forces in a shining storm.
Dydays.

Pardon a weak disdenn'd soul, that bull'ds
With sudden gusts, and sickens as soon in calm.
The sport of passions.
Addison's Cato.

6. It is written in Spencer vitrously for gusty
Sports.
For jolly knight he be'd, and fair did fit.
As one for knightly gusts and fierce encounters fit.
Spencer.

GUTTATE, adj. [gutta, Latin.] A drop.

GUTTER, c. a. [from gutter, a throat, Latin.] A passage for water; a passage made by water.
Gutters are usually made of ten inches and a half.

GUTTER, w. a. [gutter, a, from gutter, a throat, Latin.] To cut in small hollows.

Tempets themselves, high seas, and howling winds.
The gutters of rocks, and congregated sands,
Travails un endeav'd to clog the guttered keel.
As having fent of hearty, do order.
Their mortal nature, letting false go by
The divine Deliverance.
Shakefp. Othello.
My cheeks are gutter'd with my fretting tears.
Sangry.

First in a place, by nature clothe, they build
A narrow hollow, gutter'd, walled, and tile'd.

To GUTTER, w. a. [from gutter, a throat, Latin.] A passage for water; a passage made by water.

To GUTTULATE, w. n. [gutter, a, from gutter, a throat, Latin.] To feed luxuriously to gormandise. A low word.

His jolly brother, opposite in fends,
Laughs at his stains; and lavish of expense,
Quitts, cramns, and gutters in his own defence.

To GUTTLE, c. a. [from gutter, a throat, Latin.] To swallow. A low word.

The foot did spitt in his porridge, to try if they'd hiffs; they did not hiffs, and so he gutted them up, and scalded his chops.
L'Esperance.

GUTTURAL, adj. [guttural, Latin.] Pronounced with the throat; belonging to the throat.

The GYE

GYR

GYV

GYMNASTICALLY, adv. [from gymnastic]. Athletic ; fit for strong exercise.

GYMNASTICK, adj. [gymnastics; gymnastique, Fr.] Pertaining to athlete exercise; confounding of leaping; wrestling, running, throwing the dart, or quoit.

The Cretans widely forbid their servants gymnastic as well as arms; and yet your modern footmen exercise themselves daily, whilst their exerted arms are fastly laulling in their chariots. Arbuthnot.

GYMNICK, adj. [gymnastick, gymnastic, Fr.] Such as practice the athlete or gymnastic exercises.

GYMNOPHÆRMOUS, adj. [gymnosophical and gynephoric.] Having the seeds naked.

GYMNEOCRACY, n. f. [gymnogonia, gymnocratie, Fr.] Petticott government; female power.

GYRATION, n. f. [gyro, Latin.] The act of turning any thing about.

This effluvium attains, and impelteth the neighbour air, which, returning home in a gyration carrieth with it the obvious bodies into the electrick. Brown.

Gyrating, to move by gyrs. Plato.

A circle decribed by any thing moving in an orbit.

GYRED, adj. Falling in rings.

Hamlet, with his doublet all unbraced, No hat upon his head, his rockings loose.

GYVES, m. f. [gryps, Welsh.] Fetters ; chains for the legs.

The villains march wide betwixt the legs, as if they had gyres on. Shakespeare.

And knowing this, should I yet stay,
Like flies as blow away their lives,
And never will redeem a day.

Gyvere and the mill had tam'd the Mill.

But Telsamon roth'd in, and hap'd to meet
A rising post, that held his father's foot;
So down he fell, whom sprawling on the ground,
His brother from the wooden gyve unbound. Dryden.

To Gyve, v. a. [from the noun.] To fetter; to shackle; enchain; to ensnare.

With as little a web as this, will I ensnare as great
A fly as Cælia. Ay, smile, upon her, do, I will Gyve thee in thine own curstipshe. Shakespeare.

HA

HAB

HABERGON. n. f. [habargon, French; halbergium, Low Lat.] Armour to cover the neck and breast; breast-plate; neck-piece; gorget.

HABERDA'SHEIR, n. f. [This word is ingeniously deduced by Minfeso from haberdier, German, have this, the expenditure of a shopkeeper offering his wares to sale.] One who falls, small wares; a pedlar.

HABILIMENT. n. f. [habiliment, French.] Dres; clothes; garment.

He the fairest Usn found,
Strange lady, in so strange habiliments,
Teaching the fayres,
My riches are these poor habiliments,
Of which if you should dare disfigure me,
You take the sum and substance that I have. Shak.
HABITATION. n. f. [from habitable.]
Qualification.

1. Habitual, or accidental, as habit of body.
2. Drefs; accoutrement; garment.
3. Thrice inserted in a madman's Raft, allusive to a femeah
The very dog dafkis; and in me, Skadip. King Lear.
If you have any juflices, any pity; Shakep.
If we any thing but churchean habit, Shakep.
Because you are dreffed in the fame manner. Kesidor a, fayn with fatory, judgment may be made between them. Dryden.
The fenes are old, the habit is the fame. Scott.
We need not dread the old habits. Dryden.
Changes there are in veins of wit, like thofe of habits, or other modes.
There are among the charaters several of Venus, in different habits. Addison on Italy.
The clergy are the only fect of men who wear a diftinét habit from others. Swift.
5. Habit is a power or ability in man of doing a thing, when he has been acquired by frequent doing the fame thing. Locke.
He hath a better habit of frowning than the count Palatine. Shakep.
4. Cuftom; inveterate use.
His facial feigns, by frequent repetition of the figns, act, and continue in prufuit. It till 'tend its felf to a fettled unambitious habit; which plan the fapphry calls the face of man, ends certainly in death; death not only as to merit, but alto as to affinuation. Sidney.
No civil broils have since his death arrove.
But ftagon now by habbit does obey; and war have ten right for his repugn. As winds for halcyons when they breed at sea. Dryden.
The force of education is fo great, that we may more properly diftinguish men of the young into which habits they pafs, and give the imitations of fuch habits as shall ever afterwards remain. Attebery.
To habbit. v. a. [from the nom.] To drefs; to accoutre; to array.
Predent your finelf and your fair prifcinces.
Before Leuteus: She shall be habbit as it becomes
The partner of your bed. Shakep. Winter's Tale.
Having called to his memory Sir George Villiers, and the clothes he used to wear, in which at that time he seemed to be habbit, he thought him to be that kind of fuffer.
They habbit themselves like thofe rural defirefs and imitated them in their ruftick dances. Dryden.
HABITABLE. adj. [habitable, Fr. habitation.
In the defcription of any solitary fittestion, we are to make the narrow part of the habitable world, and are ourselves unknown.
This was her torrid and inflaming time; this is habitalable temperate climate. Donne.
The torrid zone is now habited. Cowley.
Look round the habitable world, how few are known to us, in good, or knowing it partake. Dryden.
HABITABILITY. n. f. [from habitable.]
Capacity of being drefs'd in.
The cutting of the Euclidian line decides that controversy of the habitable part of the torrid zone.
Some ancient problems of the alharac rounders

HABITABLE. n. f. [habitable, Lat.]
Dwelling a cable.
What art thou, man, if man at all thou art.
That here in deart haft thou habited?
And thofe rich heaps of wealth don't hide apart.
From the world's eye, and from beyond the fource.
Spenser's Faery Queen.
HABITANT, n. f. [habitant, Fr. habitable, Latin.]
Dweller; one that lives in any place; inhabitant.
Not to earth are thofe bright luminousldifiers; and the earth's habitants. Milton.
Pow'ders celestial to each other's view.
Stand still confifts, though distant far they lie;
Or inhabitants of earth, or else, or they.
Pope.
HABITATIONS. adj. [habitation, French; habitables, Latin.]
1. The flate of a place receiving dwellers. Amplitude almoft immeasurably, with stars numerous, and every star perhaps a world.
Of happen'd habitations. Milton.
Palaces, for want of habitation and repair.
Dismay to heaps of ruins. Dryden.
Rocks and valleys, which in the first age were high and eraggy, and consequently thees inconvenient for habitation, were by continual destruction brought to a lower pitch. Woodward.
3. Place for dwelling.
Wisdom, to the end the might have many, built her house of that nature which is common among all; the made not this or that man her habitation, but dwell in them.
God only deferts to vifit men.
Unfoten, and through their habitations walks.
To make doings.
Habitation. m. f. [Latlin.]
Dweller; inhabitant.
The fun's presence is more continued unto the northern inhabitants; and the longeth day in Cancer is longer out of that than in Capricorn unto the southern habitations.
HABITUAL. adj. [habitual, from habit, Fr.]
Customary; accufomed; inveterate; enabled by frequent repetition. It is used for both good and ill.
Sir, there in pow's before.
Once acually now in body, and to dwell habitual habitant.
Art is properly in habitual knowledge of certain rules and manner of doing.
South.
By length of time.
The foul is worn away of every committed crime:
So fpeak is left of their habitual flaws:
But the pure efl had the remains.
'Tis impossible to become an able artift, without making your art habitual to you. Dryden.
HABITUALLY. adv. [from habitual.] Customarily; by habit.
Internal greatness is a united mind inify our nation, and renders us habitually holy. Attebery.
To habituate. v. a. [habituer, Fr.] To accustomed; to use one's self by frequent repetition; with to:
Men are first corrupted by bad counfel and company, and they habituate themselves to their vicious practices.
Such as live in a racer air are habituated to the exercise of a greater moral ftrength.
Attebery.
HABITOSITY. n. f. [habitation, Lat., French.]
1. Relation; respect; flate with regard to something else.
We cannot conclude this compofition of nations from the vicinity or habitations they hold unto the sun, or fome other ftation. Browne.
The will of God is like a freight unalterable rule; but the various comportments of the creature, either swathing this rule, or holding conformity to it, occations several habitations of this rule unto it. Hake.
It reflets from the very nature of things, as they fixed in such a certain habitation, or relation to one another.
South.
As by the objeetive part of perfect happiness we understand that which is left and left, and which all other things are to be referred, fo by the formal part must be understood the left and left habituation of man toward that left object.
In all the habitations of life, The friend, the mistress, and the wife. Nortn.
2. Familiarity; conversion; frequent intercourse.
His knowledge in the noblif useful arts.
Was such dead authors could not give:
But habitations with those who lived.
Dryden.
To write well, one must have frequent habitation with the best company of men.
3. Long custom; habit; inveterate use.
This is more properly habit.
Mankind is willing to continue in a pleasing error, strengthened by a long habit.
Dryden.
 Thy ear, insured to charitable sounds.
And pitying love, must feel the hateful wounds of self obscene, and vulgar sibylary.
The ill-bred question, and the silly reply. Brought by long habitations to bad to worse.
Mufh hear the frequent oath, the direful curve.
Print.

HABITUAL. adj. [habitus, habitus.]
As would, would, or we would; will still, or we will; that is, let it happen or not. At random; at the mercy of chance; without any rule or certainty of effect.
He circles, draws, and squares.
With cyphers, alchial characters.
Then looks 'em over to understand 'em, although set down habban at random. Hudibras.
HAC. v. a. [Haccan, Saxon; MacBook, Dutch; bakker, Fr. from acaye, an ax, Saxon.

1. To cut into small pieces; to chop; to cut or divide with frequent blows; to mangle with unskillful blows. It be common some notion of contempt or malignity.
He put on that armure, whereof there was no one piece wanting, though hacked in fome places, bein any thing to the point.
What a flave art thou, to hack thy sword as thou hast done, and fay it was in fight.
Shakep.
Richard the Second here was hack'd to death.
Shakep.
I'll fight 'till from my bones my fhell be hack'd.
Shakep.
One flourishing branch of this habit royal root is hack'd down, and his fummer leaves all fared.
By envy's hand, and murder's bloody axe. Shakep.
Burns me, back me, hem me into pieces. Dryden.
Not the head of the husband nor the field.
But Purple veils, and flow'rs garland pleads. Adef.
But fate with butcher's plac'd thy priffely fally.
Meek modern faith to murder, back and murder.
Pipe.

2. To speak unruly, or with hiftation.
Difturb them, and let them question; let them keep their limbs whole, and bear our English. Shaks.
To HAC. v. a. [hackney, to burn hackney or profitute.]
HaCkney. n. f. Raw falk; any dimmy subfance unfpun.
Take the backe of a cock or eapon's neck, or a plover's top; take off one lide of the feather, and then the other, and remove the other lide of feather, and make thefe fall at the fent of the hook. Halfon.
To HACkney. v. a. To dref falt.
HaCkney.
HALF. n. f. [from hale.] He who pulls and halts.
HALF. n. f. plural balls. [Sulp., Sax. and all the Teutonic dialects. The l is often not found.]
1. A moiety; one part of two; an equal part.
2. A half acre of land.

Many might go to heaven with half the labour they go to hell, if they would venture the road the right way.

Well chosen friendship, the most noble
Of virtues all our joys makes double,
And into barley divides our trouble.

On what but riches is there known
Which can safely call his own;
In which no creature goes his half,
Unfelt it be to quaff and laugh?

No mortal tongue can half the beauty tell,
For none but hands divine could work so well.

Of our manufacture foreign markets took off one half, and the other half was consumed among ourselves.

The council is made up half out of the noble families, and half out of the plebeians.

Addison.

My death, perhaps, will be more to me than life.

If we should discover that a certain general could alleviate the general curse by mutual compassion.

Addison.

Her beauty in the fullest half.

Bury'd and lost, lies buried to a grave.

Natural was it for a prince, who had proped to himself the empire of the world, not to neglect the fear, the half of his dominions.

Addison.

Sometimes half, sometimes a whole, the plural signification when a number is divided.

Had the land felled of the belt,
Half had come hence, and let the world take the rest.

Dyer.

HALF. n. 2. In part; equally.

I go with love and fortune, two blind guides,
To lead my way; half bath, and half concerning.

Dyer.

2. It is much used in composition to signify a thing imperfect, as the following examples will show.

HALF-BLOODED. adj. [half and blood.] Degrerate.

The soul alone lies not in your good will.

—Not in shine, Lord.
—Half-blooded fellow, yes. Shakespeare.

HALF-CAP. n. f. Cap imperfectly put on, or carelessly moved.

With certain half caps, and cold moving nods, They froze me into silence.

Shakes.

HALF-DEAL. n. f. [half and deal.] Part.

Spen.

HALF-FACED. adj. [half and face.] Showing only part of the face; half faced; in contempt.

Dramatic inciting tyranny.

Burns with revenging fire, whose hopeful colours
Advance a half-faced fun driving is shining. Shaks.

This same half-faced fellow, Shadow; I give me this man; he preaches no mark to the enemy; the form may as great aim level at the edge of a penknife. Shakes.

HALF-HATCHED. adj. [half and hatch.] Imperfectly hatched.

Here, this is a half-bred pony, Turnips, and half-hatched egs, a mingled show, Among the rabble rag.

Gays.

HALF-HEARD. adj. Imperfectly heard; not heard to an end.

Not added years on years my task could clothe.
HALF

Half-wits are fools, and half at sight, We scarce could know they live, but that they bleat. Dryden.

HALF-WITTED adj. from half-wit. Imperfectly furnished with understanding. Swift.

Half-wittedness is a fault of mind. Aristoph.

HALIDOM n. f. [half-bom, holy judgment, or halg and deans, for lady.] Our blessed lady. In this it should be Halidam. By my baptism, quoth he. Ye great matter are in your degree. Hubberd.

HALIMA n. f. [halg and moft.] The seat of All-hallows. She came adorned neither like sweet May, Semp back like balmyads, or shortl bale. Shaksf.

HALITOUS adj. [halitous, Lat.] Vaporous; famous.

We speak of the atmosphere as a peculiar thin and balmy air, much lighter than that of wine. Boyle.

HALM n. f. [hal, Saxon; hale, Dutch.] A court of justice; as Wellminster Hall.

Of old our, in yonder house or hall. Pope.

Of a manour-house, too called, because in it were held rooms for the tenants. Captain Sentry, my master's nephew, has taken possession of the hall, and the whole estate. Addison.

The publick room of a corporation. With expedition on the badge call.

To summon all the company to the hall. Garib.

The first large room of a house. That light and air is burning in my hall. Shak.

Courtey is soonest found in lowly WITH shyness raters, than in tatly bals And courts of princes. Milton.

HALUHAM n. f. [haluham.] Prate ye the Lord's a long time of thanksgiving.

Then shall thy days be Uninhabed Hallidoms to Thee feg. Hymns of high praise. Milton.

Singing these hymns and heavenly anthems, in which the church militant seems ambitious to emulate the triumph of the soul of poets and of the celestial choir. Boyle.

HALL, H. B. L. [hall.] The original of this word is controverted. Some imagine it corrupt- ed from a Latin, to him! others from allain, let us go! and Skinner from hallers, to draw. A word of encouragement when dogs are let loose on their game.

Some popular chief, More noisy than the rest, but cries boller, And, in a trice, the bellowing herd comes out.

To HALLGO, n. m. [haler, French.]

1. To cry as after the dogs.

A very more loud, Was never boller'd to, nor cheer'd with horns. Shaksf.

To treat him in contempt. County folks halfored and loasted after me, as the armless coward that ever flamed his shoulders to his enemy. Sidney.

To HALLGO, n. g.

1. To encourage with shouts. If, whilst a boy, Jackran from school, Food of his friends, or game, and pole. Though gout and age his spirit detain, Old John bollors his horns again. Prior.

2. To chase with shouts.

Halle no: a Marquis.

Halles me like a bair. Shaksf.

3. To call or shout to.

To HALL, n. m. [hal, Saxen, lame; beadan, to limp.]

1. To limp; to lame.

And will yet the deck her eyes

On me, that hal and am misfit on thus? Shaksf.

That will not only the notion would engage,

Or wars of excelleh whels, for heaves.

'Till bolling vengelence overtook our rage. Dryden.

Spender himself slits the offeide, And transports their brute call on Roman feet. Pope.

2. To stop in a march.

I was forced to boll in this perpendicular march. Addison.

3. To hesitate; to stand dubious.
HAM

Ham.

To fail; to faltcr.
Here's a paper written in his hand; the baiting fonnet of his own pure braint nhent to be heard. Shakspere
All my familiars watched for my falting, saying that he was come to be engaged, and we shall prevail against him. Jeronimah.

HAM.

Halt. n. f. [from the verb.] Lame; crippled.
Bring in thither the poor, the maimed, the halt,

HALT. n. f. [from the verb.] The act of limping; the manner of limping.

Halte. n. f. [from halte.] He who limps.

Halte. n. f. [pealynpse, Saxbn, from half, the neck.
1. A rope to hang malefactors.
He's tied, his lori, and all his powers do yield;
And thus they hang, with bothers on their necks.
Expect your highest doom of life or death.
They are to be tied with the bond, if they stood upon debts, and by the seller if they yield; when for we made choice to die rather as soldiers than as dogs. Haywood.
Were I a drowsy judge, whose dismal note
Dinged sellers, as a juggler's Cleopatra
Both rambles.
He gets renown, who, to the seller near,
But narrowly escapes, and buys it dear.
Dryden.
A cord; a strong thing.
Where neither seller binds nor burthen charges.
Sandy.

To Halte. v. a. [from the noun.] To bind with a cord; to catch in a noose.
He might have enjoyed his time in the diverting delights of arching moles and bailling frogs.
Atterbury.

To Halve. v. a. [from half, halve.] To divide into parts.

Halve. interj. [from half, halve being the plural.] An exclamation by which any one lays claim to an equal share.
Have not the divided dam
Runs to the fannoms of her hungry lamb?
But when the twin cries halve, the quits the fish.

Ham, whether initial or final, is no other than the Saxon ham, a house, a farm, or village.

HAM.

HAM. n. f. [ham, Saxbn, hamme, Dutch.] The hip; the hinder part of the articulation of the thigh with the knee.
The ham was much relaxed; but there was some contraction remaining. Wiseman.

2. The thigh of a hog fatted.
Who has not learnt, dear durnian and ham pye.
Are no rewards for want and infamy?
 Pope.

HAMMED. adj. [hamated, Latin.] Hooked; set with hooks.

To Hamble. v. n. [from ham.] To cut the finews of the thigh; to hamfiring.

HAM. n. f. [hama, Saxbn.] The collar by which a horse draws in a waggon.

HAME. n. f. [ham, Saxbn, and let, the diminutive termination.] A small village.
Within the self-same bounds, pathily or hamler, lands have divers degrees of value.

HAM.

He pitch'd upon the plain
His mighty camp, and, when the day return'd,
The country walled, and the hamlets burn'd. Dryd.

HAMMER. n. f. [barnaph, Saxon, banum, Danish.

1. The instrument consisting of a long han dle and heavy head, with which any thing is forged or driven.
The hammer.
With buoy hammer's hight rivets up,
The fluff will not work well with a hammer. Bacon.
It is broken not without many blues, and will break the belt awnus and hammer'd of iron. Brown.
Every morning he beseh freth to his hammer and his anvil.
The smith prepares his hammer for the forge. Spenser.

2. Any thing drudg'ry.
That renowned pillar of truth and hammer of heretics, St. Augustine.
Halfeall on Providence.

To Hammer. v. a. [from the noun.]
1. To break.
His bones the hammer'd steel in strength forges.

To forge or form with a hammer.
Some hammer helmets for the fighting field.

2. To forge, or to form with a hammer.
Drog'd like a smith, and on the anvil beart.
'Till he had hammer'd out a valiant eftate.
Dryd.
If I may pay with hammered money instead of milled.

To work in the mind; to contrive by intellectual labour: used commonly in contempt.
Wilt thou still be hammering teachers,
To humble on thy bosom, and thy self? Shak.
He was nobody that could not hammer out of his name an invention by this witchcraft, and picture it accordingly. Dryd.

To make work; to work for, to work at.
Done spirits, by whom they were stirred and guided in the name of the people, hammer'd up the articles with a hammer. Haywood.

To Hammer. v. n.
1. To work; to be busy; in contempt.
Nor need't thou much importance me to that,
Where thou hast a hammer in hand. Shakespeare.

2. To be in agitation.
Vengeance is in my heart, death in my hand;
Blood and revenge are hammering in my head.

Hammerer. n. f. [from hammer.] He who works with a hammer.

Hammerhard. n. f. [hammer and hard.] Hammerhead is when you have rotten iron or steet with much hammering on it. Moxon.

Hammock. n. f. [hamaca, Saxon.] A swinging bed.
Prince Maurice of Nassau, who had been accustm'd to bailling hams, used all his life.

Hamper. n. f. [Supposed by Miskew to be contracted from band panier; but banaperium appears to have been a word long in use, whence banper, banper.] A large balke for carriage.
What powder'd wigs, what staves and darke
What hammers full of bleeding hearts,
Solid.

To Hammer. v. a.
The original of this word, in its proper meaning, is uncertain:
Titius observes that banaperyus in Teutonick is a quartel; others imagine that banper or banper, being the trefury to which fines are paid, to banper, which is commonly applied to the law,

means originally to fine.

1. To shackle; to entangle, as in chains or nets.
O looke this frame, this knot of man until
That my face foule may see hir going.
Which is now mutton'd with mortality,
As on entangled, bampfer'd thing.
We shall find much engines to affail,
Neither than thou thyself came of force. Milt.
What was it but a lion bampfer'd in a net?

L'Estrange.

Wear underizard-marketh their talents,
And mother wits before their gallants.
Until they're bampfer'd in the mode,
Too full to dream of breaking loose.

I'll you bampfer and entangle out our fouts, and hinder
Their flight upward.

2. To enslave; to inveigle; to catch with allurements.
She'll bampfer thee, and dandle thee like a baby.

3. To complicate; to tangle.
Engrenging heats, the one by one unbend,
Stretch their small tobes, and bampfer'd saxes un-knaughted.
Blackm.

4. To perplex; to embarras by many lets and troubles.
And when thy banper'd by the laws,
Release the labors for the cause. Holin.

Hamstring. n. f. [baw and stringing.
The tending of the ham.
A player, whose consent lies in his bammaring, doth think it rich
To hear the wooden dialogue, and found
Twist their streak'd foot and the footstall.

On the hinder side it is guarded with the two Hamstrings.

To Hamstring. v. a. To deter and part.
Part of a stringing (from the noun. To come by cutting the tendon of the ham.
Hamstring'd behind, unhappy Gygas dyd.
Then Phalaris is added to his side.

Dyer.

Ham for hauve, in the plural. Obsolete.

Hamper. n. f. [banaperium, low Latin.] A treasury; an exchequer.
The clerk of the hamper receives the fees due to the king for the fee of charters and patents.
The fines for all original writs were to be immediately paid into the hamper of the Chancery.

Hances. n. f. [in a ship.] Falls of the flat-rails placed on bannisters on the poop and quarter-deck down the gang-way.

Har.

Hances. [in architecture.] The ends of elliptical arches; and these are the arches of smaller circles than the scheme, or middle part of the arch.

Harrits.

The sweep of the arch will not contain above fourteen inches, and perhaps you must cement pieces to many of the courses in the fawes, to make them long enough to contain fourteen inches.

Hand. n. f. [hamb, hond, Saxon, and in all the Teutonick dialects.

1. The palm with the fingers; the member with which we hold or use any instrument.
They laid hands upon him, and bound him band and foot.

Kueller's History of the Turks.

Hand in hand, with wandering steps and bow.
Through Eden took their fallacy way.

Milton.

That wonderful instrument the band, was it made to be idle?

Berke.

2. Measure of four inches; a measure used in the matches of torces; a palm.

Side, right or left.
For the other side of the coste gate on this band,
HAN
and that band, were hangings of fifteen cubits.

Exod. xxviii. 15.

4. Part; quarter; side.
It is allowed on all bands, that the people of England are more corrupt in their morals than any other nation this day under the sun.
Swift.

5. Ready payment with respect to the respecter.
Of which offer the bulbs accepted, receiving in band one yeares tribute. Knolles's History.
These two must make our duty very easy: a considereable reward in band, and the assurance of their far greater recompense hereafter. Taylor.

6. Ready payment with regard to the prayer.
Let not the wages of any man carry with them, but give out our own band.
Trov. iv. 1, 3.

7. Rate; price.
Time is the measure of business; money of worst; but business is bought at a dear band, where there is small dispatch.

8. Terms; conditions; rate.
With simplicity admire and accept the mystery; but no band by pride, ignorance, interest, or vanity will it to ignoble fames. Taylor's Worthy Com. It is either a sound or an illusion, and these are at no band consistent with humility. Taylor.

9. Act; deed; external action.
Thus fawell the contradiction between my heart and King Charles.

10. Labour; act of the band.
Almucara was a very idle fellow, that never would set his hand to any business during his father's life.
Addison.

11. Rather respect my own judgment than I. believe a fault to be in that poem, which lay so long under Virgil's corroboration, and had left hand put out.

Where are these poets, these lazy knaves? I have made a fine band! fellow,
Shakespeare.

He had a great mind to try his band at a Spectator, and would fain have one of his writings in my works.

13. A friend of mine has a very fine band on the violin.
Addison.

13. Attempt; undertaking.
Out of them you dare take in hand to lay open the original and true of Ireland.
Addison.

14. Manner of gathering or taking.
As her Majesty hath received great profits, so may she, by a moderate band, from time to time reap the like.

15. Workmanship; power or act of manufucturing or making.
An intelligent being, coming out of the bands of infinite perfection, with an aversion or even repugnance to be united with his Author, the force of its own activity, is such a shock and deformity in the beautiful analogies of things, as is not consistent with fineness of form and perfection.

16. Manner of acting or performing.
The matter saw the mad. nce.
His glowing cheeks, his earnest eyes;
And while he heav'd and earth defy'd,
Chang'd by his hand to his pride. Dryden.

17. Agency; part in action.
God must have set a more thin ordain eam whom that David was not thought fit to have in his works.
Swift.

18. The act of giving or presenting.
Let Tamara deets the meat in my f rotten, that I may eat at her hand.
Sam. iii. 5.

19. To acknowledge one's hand, and defend the favour at my band.
Addison.

20. Of receiving any thing ready to one's hand, when it only waits to be taken.
His power reaches no farther than to compound and make the materials that are made to his hand; but can do nothing towards the making or defining one atom of what is already in being.
Locke.

21. To their hands, had sufficient qualifications and opportunities of rising to these high paths. Addison.

22. Care; necessity of managing.
Jupiter had a farm. a long time upon his band, for want of any other occupation, L'Epistre. Who a state man wants a day's defence.

23. Discharge of duty.
Let it therefore be required, on both parts, at the bands of the clergy, to be in means of estate as the Apostles; at the bands of the laity, to be as they who lived under the ties of Apostles.
Hokker.

24. Reach; nearness; as, at hand, within reach, near, approaching.
Your husband is at band, I hear his trumpet.

25. Court, salutation.
Cousin, I hope the days are near at band.
That chambers will be false.

26. To do you satisfaction.
Shakespeare.
The sight of his mind was like some fight or eyes, rather flying at band than to carry off. Bacon.

27. A very great sound near band hath struck many band.

28. It is not probable that any body should effect that at a distance, which, nears band, it cannot perform.
Brown.

29. When mineral or metal is to be generated, nature needs not to have at band fail, suffic, and prompt.
Boyle.

30. Mutual management.
Nor founds at band, nor hiving darts afar, Are done't at aver the tedious bloody war. Dryden.

Where is our usual manager of mirth? What service are in band? Is there no play to sole the band of the two. Shakspeare.

32. State of being in present agitation.
I look'd upon her with a folder's eye: That did but, had a rougher talk in hand, Than to draw liking to the name of war. Shakspeare.

33. It is indifferent to the matter in band which way the learned shall determine of it.
Locke.

34. Cards held at a game.
There was never a band drawn, that did double the rest of the habitable world, before.

35. That which is useful in opposition to another.
He would dispute
Confute, charge, answer, and still confute. Huldibras.

36. Scheme of action.
Confute of your owne ways, and think which band is best to take. Ben Jonson.

37. That which they thought they could never recover, except the king were first, made their mercy, were willing to change the band in carrying on the war. Clarendon.

38. Advantage; gain; superiority.
The French King, protesting to make his band by those rude vagabonds in England, broke off his treaty of peace, and proclaimed hostility. Hayward.

39. Competition; contest.
Set in his band, a bloody, bloody band, Holds band with any princes in the world. Shakspeare.

40. Transmigration; convenuey, agency of convenuey.
The salvation by the band of me Paul.
Col. v. 15.

41. Possession; power.
Sacraments serve as the moral instruments of God to that purpose, the use whereof is in our bands, the effect in his. Hooker.

42. And though you were, like petty wrangling sisters, You're in my band; and when I bid you cease, You shall be cruel'th together into peace. Dryden.

43. Between the lands and continent there must be a quarter of the revenue of the band continually in his bands.
Locke.

44. It is foolish to learn a language, which one may use by his band, though he may not speak it, as soon as an approach to manhood, setting him free from a governor, shall put him into the band of his own inclination.

45. Vectigalles Agri were lands taken from theenemy, and distributed among the soldiers, or left in the hands of the proprietors under condition of certain duties.

46. Preface of the bridle.
Hollow men, like horses, hot at band, Make gallant throw, and promise of their mettle.

47. Method of government; discipline; restraint.
Menenes had an heavy band over the citizens, having a malicious mind against his countrymen.

48. He kept a flint band on his nobility, and chide rather to advance clergy men and lawyers. Bacon.

49. However drift a band is to be kept upon all desires of fancy, yet in recreation fancy must be permitted to speak.
Locke.

50. Influence; management.
The dangerous nurse of vice.

51. Got band upon his youth; pleasures bent.
Daniel.

52. That which performs the office of a band in pointing.
The body, though it moves, yet not changing perceptible distance with other bodies, as fall as the ideas of our own minds do naturally follow another, the thing forms to band still; as it is evident in the bands of clocks and shadows of fun-dalls. Locke.

53. Agent; perfom employed; a manager.
The whole price he can give himself, and his people from ruin, under the worst admittance, what may not his fellows hope for when he changes band? Swift.

54. Given and receiver.
This tradition is more like to be a notion bred in the mind of man, than transmitted from band to band through all generations.
Tillotson.

55. An act; a workmanship; a soldier.
Your wrongs are known; impose but your commands.
This hour shall bring you twenty thousand bands.
Dyer.

56. Demereur selected the paiuter guards, pleaded that he could preserve that band from the barking and insolence of foldens.

57. A dictionary containing a natural history requires too many bands, as well as too much time, ever to be hoped for.

58. Pitch or reach without choice.
The men of Israel most as well the men of every city as the heads and all came to band. Judges.

59. A Castle from his cillage brought Firth fruits, the greatESS, and the yellow sheaf.
Uncial'd as came to band. Milton.

60. Form or cast of writing.
Here is that indiscrimination of the good Lord Hasting, What a form is fairly engag'd! Eleven hours I've spent to write it over.
Shakespeare.

61. Smyth added his own letters intercepted, asking him if he knew not that band, if he knew not that he was being discovered by their knowledge of Mr. Cowley's band, I happily escaped.

62. If my debtors do not keep their day Deny them bands, and then refuse to pay, I must attend.
Dryden.

63. Whether men write court or Roman bands, or any thing there is something peculiar in every one's writing.

64. The way to teach to write, is to get a plate graven with the characters of such band you like. Locke.

65. Contamin's few shillings the band writing agreed with the contents of the letter.

66. I present these thoughts in an ill band; but scholars in bad times, we lenton't regard the mechanical parts of writing.

67. They were wrote on both sides, and in a small band.

68. Hand over hand. Negligently; rashly; without seeing what one does.
Say they may of the bell of fear and awaiting to other nations, and the feeling of the tides, which band over hand, have fevered their turn, doth ring the peal too much the louder. Bacon.

A country
A country fellow got an unlucky tumble from a tree; he fell into a fray among the wolves, who when people do working things hand over hand, without either fear or wit.

42. Hand to Hand. Clove fight.

43. Hand of the hand. As if you had nothing to do, when you have no work to do, or when you have nothing to do.

44. Hand in Hand. In union; con-jointly.

45. Hand at hand. As near as fast and good, a kind of hand in hand combination, had been something too fast and good for any lady in Britain, Shakefs.

46. Hand to mouth. As want requires.

1. To get bread from hand to mouth, and live even at the year's end.

2. To bear in Hand. To keep in ex-pecation; to elude.

3. A rasally yea-forth knock, to bear in hand, and then hand upon security. Shakefs.

48. To be Hand and Glove. To be intimate and familiar; to talk one another.

Hand, n. [from the noun.]

1. To have or transmit with the hand.

2. To seize; to lay hands on.

3. To seize, to lay down.

4. To manage; to move with the hand.

5. To transmit in succession, with down; to deliver from one to another.

They had not only a tradition of it in general, but each had a particular habit of transmission, which they were all about amongst the graft-ers, and only revealed to the fill artist, till one great genius appears, who collects these disjointed propositions, and reduces them into a regular system. Shakefs.

One would think a story to fit for age to talk of, and infancy to hear, were incapable of being handed down to us.

Hand is much used in composition for that which is manageable by the hand, as a handbag; or borne in the hand, as a handbaw.

Handbawl, n. f. A frame on which any thing is carried by the hand, as a handbag; or borne in the hand, as a handbaw.

Handbasket, n. f. A portable bawfet.

Handbell, n. f. A bell rung by the hand.

The strength of the percussion is the principal cause of the loudness or softness of sound, in ringing a hand-bell, harder or softer. Bacon.

Handbreadth, n. f. A space equal to the breadth of the hand; a palm.

A border of an handbreadth round about. Exod.

The eaters people determined their handbreadth, through the breadth of barley-corns, fixing a digit, and twenty-four a handbreadth. Arbuthnot.

Handed, adj. [from hand.]

1. Having the use of the left or right hand, or being right handed, whose fingers are weakly united; and many use the left, in whom that part is strong.

2. With hands joined.

Into their inn hops. Milton.

Handfast, n. f. [hand and fast.] Hold; custody, Obholute.

If that shepherd be not in handfast, let him fly. Shakespeare.

Handful, n. f. [hand and full.]

1. As much as the hand can grasp or contain.

2. A palm; a hand's breadth; four inches.

Take one vessel of water, and another of wood, each full of water, and knead the tops together, and a handful from the bottom, and the found will be more refreshing from the vessel of water than that of wood.

The peaceful goblet where it dwells.

The rancour of its edge felt
For of the lower end two handfuls.

It had devoured, it was far manful.

A small number of quantity, he could not, with his handful of men, and without cannon, propose reasonably to fight a battle. Clarendon.

As much as can be done.

Being in possession of the town, they had their handful to defend themselves from firing. Raleigh.

Handgallop, n. f. A flow and easy gallop, in which the hand presses the bridle to hinder increase of speed.

Oxid, with all his softness, has as little variety of numbers and sounds as he is always upon a hand-gallop, and his verte runs upon carpet ground.

Handgun, n. f. A gun wielded by the hand.

Guns have names given them, some from serpents or ravens, others from striking remarkable accidents; others in other species, as cannons, demicannon, hand-guns, and muskets.

Handicra ftman, n. f. [handicrafts and men.] A manufacturer; one employed in any useful occupation.

A most miserable age! virtue is not regarded in handicraftsmen.

Shakefs.

He has simply the best wit of any handicraftsman in this country.

Shakefs.

The principal bulk of the vulgar natives are tillers of the ground free, servants, and handicraftsman; as smiths, masons, and carpenters.

The gentlemen and ignorance of handicraftsmen, small traders, servants, and the like, are too large, very hard to be imagined greater. Swift.

He is the landed man, the joiner, and handicraftsman. Swift.

Handily, adv. [from hand.] With skill; with dexterity.

Handiness, n. f. [handy.] Readiness; dexterity.

Handiwork, n. f. [handy and work.] Work of the hand; product of labour; manufacture.

In general they are not regnent unto the natural will of God, which witheth to the works of his own hands, in that they are his own handwork, all happiness; perhaps, although for some special grace in their own peculiar condition, and contrary determination have seemed more convenient. Heker.

As proper men as ever trod upon neats-leather hang a man's hand on his death's head. The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth his handwork. Psalms.

He parted with the greatest bleeding of human nature, and the handwork of a tailor. L'Estrange.

Handkerchief, n. f. [hand and kerchief.] A piece of silk or linen used to wipe the face, or cover the neck.

She found her fitting in a chair, in one hand holding a letter, in the other her handkerchief, which had lately dy'd up the tears of her eyes.

Sidney.

He was turn to pieces with a bear: this anovles the shepherd's frock, who has not only his innocence, but a handkerchief and rings of his, that Paulina knows. Shakespeare.

The Romans did not make use of handkerchiefs but of the latches or border of the garment, to wipe their face. Arbuthnot.

To Handle, v. a. [handeleth, Dutch, from hand.]

1. To touch; to feel with the hand.

The bodies which we daily handle, make us perceive, that whilst they remain between them, they hinder the approach of the past of our hands that press them. Locke.

2. To manage; to wield.

That fellow handles his bow like a crook's. Shakespeare.

3. To make familiar to the hand by frequent touching.

An incorruptible flynes is the general vice of the Irish horses, and it hardly ever seen in Hound, because the hardiness of the winter forces the breeder there to hounds and handle their colts six months every year. Temple.

4. To treat; to mention in writing or talk.

He left nothing fitting for the purpose Untouch'd, or slightly handiel in discourse, Shakespeare.

Her eyes, her hair, her cheeks, her gait, her voice, handiel in thy discourse. Shakespeare.

I leave to the author the exact handling of every particular, and labou'ring to follow the rules of abduction. 2 Mar.

Of other number of other like inuences we shall speak more we she handle the communication of sounds, Bacon.

By Guido Ubaldo, in his treatise, for the exclusion of this instrument, the obstinate it is largely and excessively handled. Wilson's Dudelot.

In an argument, handled thus briefly, everything cannot be said. Atterbury.

5. To deal with; to practice.

They.
To be suspended, to be supported above, not below.

Over it a fair portulicie hang, Which to the gate directly did incline, With comely compass and compassable strong. Spens. 1

To depend, to fall loosely on the lower part; to dangle.

Upon their shoulders wings the ears, Like hanging sleeves, in'through with care.

If gaming does an aged fire entice, Then my young master swiftly learns the vice, And makes in hanging sleeves the little box and diet.

To bend forward.

By hanging is merely a posture of bending forward to strike the enemy.

To float; to play.

And fall these faging from that gentle tongue, Whereof sweet speech and soft persuasion hung? Prior.

To be supported by something raised above the ground.

Whatever is placed on the head may be said to hang; as we call hanging gardens such as are planted on the top of the house.

To rest upon by embracing.

She hung about my neck, and kifs on knees. She said.

To-day might I, hanging on Hospitall's neck, Have talked of Monmouth's state.

Faintness is described in the form of a lady sitting upon an upper bed, and two little infants hanging about her neck.

To hover; to impend; he hath a heavenly gift of prophecy; and funderly hanggs about his thorow.

That with whom he hung is Shakes.

Old names of distinction, which had kept while the dread of popery hang over us were reviv'd.

To be loosely joined.

Whether go you?—To see your wife; is she at home?—Ay, and as idle as the may hang together. Shak.

To drag; to be incommodeously joined.

Life hang upon me, and becomes a burden. Addit.

To be compact or united with together; in the common cause we are all of a piece: we hang together.

Your device hang very well together; but it is not liable to exceptions. Addit.

To adhere, unwelcome or incommodoiously; a useful talent shines out in all her conversations, and dissolves those apprehensions which hang in the timorous or the modest, when admitted to her presence. Addit.

Some landscapes, gilded triumphs, and beautiful faces, disperse that gloominess which is apt to hang upon the mind in those disconsolate feasts.

To rest; to reside.

Stale neither night nor day Hang upon his penthouse lid. Shaksp. 12

To be in fupposice; to be in a state of uncertainty.

Hang the heat's with black, yield day to night; Shaksp. 13

The pavement even foul with human gore; Heads and their mangled members hang the door. Dryden. 8

To furnish with ornaments or draperies, to daze the walls.

Milk is better in chambers winnowed with hang. Addit.

It's my pious father for my sake Did grateful offerings on thy altar make, Or I increas'd them with my sylvan toils, After the custom of savage men with savage. Addit.

Give me to feaster thee. Dryden.

Sir Roger has hang several parts of his house with the trophies of his labour. Addit.

To depend.

1. To be suspend, to be supported above, not below.

Over it a fair portulicie hang, Which to the gate directly did incline, With comely compass and compassable strong. Spens.

2. To depend; to fall loosely on the lower part; to dangle.

Upon their shoulders wings the ears, Like hanging sleeves, in's through with care.

If gaming does an aged fire entice, Then my young master swiftly learns the vice, And makes in hanging sleeves the little box and diet.

3. To bend forward.

By hanging is merely a posture of bending forward to strike the enemy.

4. To float; to play.

And fall these faging from that gentle tongue, Whereof sweet speech and soft persuasion hung? Prior.

5. To be supported by something raised above the ground.

Whatever is placed on the head may be said to hang; as we call hanging gardens such as are planted on the top of the house.

6. To rest upon by embracing.

She hung about my neck, and kifs on knees. She said.

To-day might I, hanging on Hospitall's neck, Have talked of Monmouth's state.

Faintness is described in the form of a lady sitting upon an upper bed, and two little infants hanging about her neck.

7. To hover; to impend; he hath a heavenly gift of prophecy; and funderly hanggs about his thorow.

That with whom he hung is Shakes.

Old names of distinction, which had kept while the dread of popery hang over us were reviv'd.

8. To be loosely joined.

Whether go you?—To see your wife; is she at home?—Ay, and as idle as the may hang together. Shak.

9. To drag; to be incommodeously joined.

Life hang upon me, and becomes a burden. Addit.

10. To be compact or united with together; in the common cause we are all of a piece: we hang together.

Your device hang very well together; but it is not liable to exceptions. Addit.

11. To adhere, unwelcome or incommodoiously; a useful talent shines out in all her conversations, and dissolves those apprehensions which hang in the timorous or the modest, when admitted to her presence. Addit.

Some landscapes, gilded triumphs, and beautiful faces, disperse that gloominess which is apt to hang upon the mind in those disconsolate feasts.

12. To rest; to reside.

Stale neither night nor day Hang upon his penthouse lid. Shaksp. 12

13. To be in fupposice; to be in a state of uncertainty.

Hang the heat's with black, yield day to night; Shaksp. 13

The pavement even foul with human gore; Heads and their mangled members hang the door. Dryden. 8

8. To furnish with ornaments or draperies, to daze the walls.

Milk is better in chambers winnowed with hang. Addit.

It's my pious father for my sake Did grateful offerings on thy altar make, Or I increas'd them with my sylvan toils, After the custom of savage men with savage. Addit.

Give me to feaster thee. Dryden.

Sir Roger has hang several parts of his house with the trophies of his labour. Addit.

7. To depend.

To be suspend, to be supported above, not below.

Over it a fair portulicie hang, Which to the gate directly did incline, With comely compass and compassable strong. Spens.

2. To depend; to fall loosely on the lower part; to dangle.

Upon their shoulders wings the ears, Like hanging sleeves, in's through with care.

If gaming does an aged fire entice, Then my young master swiftly learns the vice, And makes in hanging sleeves the little box and diet.

3. To bend forward.

By hanging is merely a posture of bending forward to strike the enemy.

4. To float; to play.

And fall these faging from that gentle tongue, Whereof sweet speech and soft persuasion hung? Prior.

5. To be supported by something raised above the ground.

Whatever is placed on the head may be said to hang; as we call hanging gardens such as are planted on the top of the house.

6. To rest upon by embracing.

She hung about my neck, and kifs on knees. She said.

To-day might I, hanging on Hospitall's neck, Have talked of Monmouth's state.

Faintness is described in the form of a lady sitting upon an upper bed, and two little infants hanging about her neck.

7. To hover; to impend; he hath a heavenly gift of prophecy; and funderly hanggs about his thorow.

That with whom he hung is Shakes.

Old names of distinction, which had kept while the dread of popery hang over us were reviv'd.

8. To be loosely joined.

Whether go you?—To see your wife; is she at home?—Ay, and as idle as the may hang together. Shak.

9. To drag; to be incommodeously joined.

Life hang upon me, and becomes a burden. Addit.

10. To be compact or united with together; in the common cause we are all of a piece: we hang together.

Your device hang very well together; but it is not liable to exceptions. Addit.

11. To adhere, unwelcome or incommodoiously; a useful talent shines out in all her conversations, and dissolves those apprehensions which hang in the timorous or the modest, when admitted to her presence. Addit.

Some landscapes, gilded triumphs, and beautiful faces, disperse that gloominess which is apt to hang upon the mind in those disconsolate feasts.

12. To rest; to reside.

Stale neither night nor day Hang upon his penthouse lid. Shaksp.

13. To be in fupposice; to be in a state of uncertainty.

Hang the heat's with black, yield day to night; Shaksp.
To HARP, v. n. [from the noun.]
1. To happen; to have the usual confluence.
2. To come by chance; to befall casually.
3. To be; to be the case; to be right.
4. To be; to have the usual confluence.

To HAP, v. n. [from the noun.]
1. To happen; to have the usual confluence.
2. To come by chance; to befall casually.
3. To be; to be the case; to be right.
4. To be; to have the usual confluence.

HAPPINESS, n.f. [from happy.]
1. Felicity; state in which the desires are satisfied.
2. Happiness is that state whereby we attain, so far as possibly may be attained, the full possession of that which simply for its self is to be defined and contained in it after an eminent fort the contentation of our desires, the highest degree of our perfection.

Oh! how pleasing to sweet retir’d content,
To be so free and innocent.

The various and contrary choices that men make in the world, argue that the same thing is not good to every man; the variety of pursuing that every one does not place his happiness in the same thing.

2. Good luck; good fortune.
3. Portraiture; elegance; unfludged grace.
4. To be; to have the usual confluence.

Harbour, n.f. [from the verb.]
1. To entertain; to permit to reside.
2. To shelter; to protect.
3. To be; to have the usual confluence.

Harbourage, n.f. [from harbour. French, from barbary. Shelter; entertainment.

Let us, your kings, whose labour'd spirits,
To HARBOUR, n.f. [from the verb.]
1. To entertain; to permit to reside.
2. To shelter; to protect.
3. To be; to have the usual confluence.

Harbor, n.f. [from the verb.]
1. To entertain; to permit to reside.
2. To shelter; to protect.
3. To be; to have the usual confluence.
S. Vomitory.

[Excerpt from Shakespeare's works]

1. Firm: refitting penetration or separation; not soft; not easy to be pierced or broken.

2. Difficult; not easy to the intellect.

3. Unreasonable.

4. Painful; distressful; laborious action or suffering.

5. Cruel; oppressive; rigorous; as a hard heart.

6. Sour; rough; feverous.

[Excerpt from Dryden's works]

7. Unfavourable; unkind.

8. Inifensible; inflexible.

9. Unhappy.

10. Unamiable.

11. Unreasonable.

12. Powerful; forcible.

13. Favorable; favored.

14. Attractive; rough, as liquids.

15. Harsh; stiff; constrained.

17. Avaricious; faultily springing.

[Excerpt from Bacon's works]

1. Cloze; near: often with by.

2. From betwixt two aged oaks.

3. To confirm in effrontery; to make impudent.

4. To make ineptible; to finflupity.

5. To make firm; to endue with duration.

6. With difficulty; in a manner requiring labour.

7. To grow hard.

8. To confirm in wickedness; to make obdurate.

9. To confirm in firmness; to make sure.

[Excerpt from Addison's works]

1. Unusual.

2. Slightly;边际.
1. With difficulty; not easily.

Touching things which generally are required, although in themselves they be most certain, yet, when men promiseth them granted of all, we are hardly known. The finest good of their certainty...to make gainers, when suddenly and besides expectation they require the same at our hands.

There are but a few; and they ended with great ripeness of wit and judgment, from all such affairs as might trouble their meditations, instructed in the sharpest and fustulent points of learning; who have, and that very hardly, been able to find out but only the immortality of the soul.

O heaven, had delivered a law as sharp as the two-edged sword, piercing the truth and most unsearchable corners of the heart, which the law of nature can hardly, human laws by no means, profily reach. There are...make the careless issue out.

The father, mother, daughter, they invite: Hardy the man is made to return this reply. Dryden.

Recking hardly what he left before.

His right endures it much, his purchase more. Dryden.

Rafter confidence is easily taken up, and hardly laid down.

2. Scarcely; scant; not lightly; without likelihood.

The lift that once was caught, new bait will hardly bite. Faust, Dryden.

They were torn hard Confids, so that we shall hardly in our ages fee.

Their banners wave again. Shakspe.

Hardly shall you find any one so bad, but he desires the credit of being thought good.

Quick, and hardly a head.

There is hardly a gentleman in the nation who hath not a near alliance with some of that body.

4. Grudgingly; as an injury.

If unwittingly.

You have sought committed that is hardly borne.

By any in this petition, I desire to reconcile you.

Shakspe.

5. Severely; unfavourably.

If there are some reasons inducing you to think hardly of our laws, are those reasons demonstrative, are they needful policies only? Hooker.

6. Rigorously; oppressively.

Many men believed that he was hardly dealt with. Clarendon.

They are now in prison, and treated hardly enough; for there are fifteen dead within two years. Addis.

They have begun to say, and to fetch influences, where he has in many things been hardly used.

Swift.

7. Unwelcome; hardly.

Such information comes very hardly and hardly to a grown man; and, however lisened goes but ill down.

Swift.

8. Not falsely; not tenderly; not delicately.

Heav'n was her canopy; she eare her bed; So hardly low'd. Dryden.

He was d'ipped in the heads and mouth.

Disobedient to the reign; not sensible of the bit.

'Tis time my hardmouth'd corulers to control.

Apt to run riot, and transgress the goal. Dryden.

But when a youth, let fools to vice, restrain them. When once the hardmouth'd lord has got the rein, He's pak thy power to flow.

Hardness. n. f. [from hard.]

1. Durity; power of resistence in bodies.

Hardness is a firm cohesion of the parts of matter, which make up of a sensible bulk, so that the whole does not easily change its figure.

From the various combinations of these cor-
HAR

ture to differ from the received opinions of their country.

Hark! what time of ringing, and danger of fire? Excite the female breast with martial flame? And shall not love's diviner pow'r inspire More bardy virtue, and more gaudy fire? Prior.

2. Strong; hardy.

A man confident of his present strength? An unwholesome blast may flake in pieces his hardy fabric. South.

3. Confident; impudent; viciously flouting.

Hare and Here, differing in pronunciation only, signify both an army and a lord. So Harold is a general of an army; Harman, a chief man in the army; Hermin, a victorious army; which are much like Stratoche, Pellenacres, and Hegefragatus among the Greeks. Gibbon's Camb.

HARE, n. f. [hanya, Sax. ; karb, Erse. ]

1. A small quadruped, with long ears and short tail, that moves by leaps, remark- able for timidity, vigilance, and fecundity; the common game of hunters.

Dismay'd not this Our captain Macbeth and Banquo As sparrow eagles; or the bare, the lion. Shaksfp.

1. While in the open champagn a brace of twist greyhounds courting a good stout and well-breathed

Hare. More. Your dressing must be with bare's but. Wynt.

2. A constellation.

The hare appears, whole active rays supply A nimble force, and hardly wings destroy. Greek.

To HARE, v. n. [Harman, French. ]

1. To fright; to hurry with terror.

To hare and rate them, is not to teach but vex them. Lacke.

Thus shall not back

The flow'r that's like thy face, pale primrose; nor Harebrained, adj. [from hare the verb and brain. ] Volatile; unconfined: wild: flustering; hurried.

The harembrained wild fellow begins to play the fool, when others are weary of it. Bacon.

HAREFOOT, n. f. [bare and foot. ]

1. A bird.

Ainsworth.

2. An herb.

Ainsworth.

HAREFLEET, n. f. A figure in the upper lip with want of subtance, a natural defect.

Quinley.

The boles of nature's hand

Shall not in their blue stand;

Never mole, bareely, nor fear.

Shall won their children be.

Shaksfp.

The third fifth is performed with pins or needles, as in barette.

Wyman.

HARESPAIR, n. f. [bupleumum, Latin. ]

A plait.

Miller.

HARIER, n. f. [from bare. ] A dog for husting hares.

Ainsworth.

HARK, v. n. [Contrasted from bearden. ]

To life.

The king.

To me inveterate, barks my brother's fuit. Shaksfp.

Pricking up his ear to bare.

If he could bear too far the bare.

Hudibras.

HARK, interj. [It is originally the imperative of the verb barking.] Lift! lift! bareen!

What harmony is this? My good friends, bare!

Shaksfp.

The butcher fames him upon the gallop with a piece of stith, and called out, Hark ye, friend, you may make the beft of your purchase.

D'Urfange.

Hark! methinks the man that late part'd me,

Sinks like the murmurs of a failing wind. Rove.
HAR

It is used through both the Teutonick and Roman dialects, and has been long in use.

Romans. tyr placat, tibi, Barbarus harp. Vem. Fort.

1. A lyre; an instrument strung with wire and commonly struck with the finger.

2. Through the sweet music which his harp did make;

Allur'd a dolphin him from death to ease. Specer.

3. Their touch'd their golden harps, and humming praise'd

God and his works. Milton.

4. Nor wanted tuneful harp, nor vocal quire;

The muse's song, Apollo touch'd the lyre. Dryden.

5. A constellation.

Next time, the night and through the liquid stars

The helmet chironium, And forced secessiphn,

Are seen in glittering ranks with wings display'd, Harping in loud and solemn tune,

With unexpressive notes to hear's new-born heir.

6. A Cor.

The helmed chironium, And forced secessiphn,

Are seen in glittering ranks with wings display'd, Harping in loud and solemn tune,

With unexpressive notes to hear's new-born heir.

7. Two small Harrows, that clap on each side of the ridge, harrow it right up and down. Marllmore.

To Harrow. n. a. [from harpago.] A player on the harp.

8. Never will I trust to speeches pen'd,

Nor to the motion of a child's hooly's tongue; Nor were in chime, like a blind harper's long, Shak.

9. I'm the god of the harp; stop, my caitiff—in vain; Nor the harp, nor the harper, could fetch her again.

10. Harp. m. f. [from harp.] A harping iron.

A bearded dart with a line fastened to the handle, with which whales are struck and caught.

11. The boat which on the seif atélast did go,

Stuck with a harping iron the younger foe; Who, when he tell'd his side to solely guard.

12. Harp'one f. n. [harper, Fr. from harp.] He that throws the harpoon in whale fishing.

13. Harp'y. m. f. [harpy, Latin; harpe, French.] A harping iron.

14. The harpies were a kind of birds which had the faces of women, and foun long claws, very filthy creatures, which, when the tables were changed for Plimum, came flying in, and devouring or carrying away the greater part of the viuesals, did to defile the rest that they could not be endured. Raleigh.

15. That an harpy is not a centaur is by this way as much a truth, as that a square is not a circle. Locke.

16. A ravenous wretch; an extortioner.

I will do you any ambage to the pigeons, rather than hold three words conference with this harpny. Shakespeare.

HARQUEBUS. n. f. [See Archerus.] A handgun.

HARQUEBUSE. n. f. [from harqubus.] One armed with a harquebus.

20. Twenty thousand nimble harquebusiers were ranged in length, and but five in a rank. Kntoles.

HARRIAD, n. f. [corrupted from bardilfe, a worn-out worthies horse.] A decayed dragoon.

17. She just endur'd the Winter the begin. And in four months a batter'd harriad.

Now nothing's left, but wither'd, pale, and thrunk. To bawl for others, and go share with pamph. Swift.

18. Hary. n. f. [from harpe, French; barke, German, a rake.] A frame of timbers crossing each other, and fet with teeth, drawn over fownd ground to break the clofs, and throw the earth over the feed.

The land with daily care Is exercis'd, and with an iron war 's rakes and harriers. Dryden.

21. Two small Harrows, that clap on each side of the ridge, harrow it right up and down. Marllmore.

To Harrow. v. a. [from the noun.] To cover with earth by the harrow.

19. Friend, harrow in time, by some manner of means; Not only thy reason, but alfo thy beauty. Tuffier.

20. To break with the harrow.

Can't thou bind the unicorn with his bond in the harrow? or will he harrow the vallies after thee? Job.

Let the Volctians

Prow Rome and harrow truly. Shak.

3. To tear up; to rip up.

I could a tale unfold, whole lightest word. Would harrow up thy soul, freeze thy young blood. Make thy twoways, like fairs, start from their fphere. Shak.

Imagine you behold me bound and ffoot'd, My aged muscles harrow'd up with whips; Or hear me groaning on the rending rack. Rowe.

4. To pullage; to flap; to lay waffe. See Hary. which in Scottifh is the fame thing.

As the king did excel in good comenwealth laws, So he had in secret a deign to make use of them, as well for collecting of people as for correcting of manners; and so meaning thereby to harrow his people, did accumulate them the rather. Bacon.

5. To invade; to harafs: with incursions, [From Benjgin, Sax.] Obsolete.

And he that harrow'd hell with heavy flowers, The faulty souls from thence brought to his heavenly bowre. Fairy Queen.

6. Most glorious Lord of life, that on this day Did'tth thy triumph over death and fa; And having harrow'd hell, did'tth bring away Captivity thence captive, us to win. Speczen.

7. To diufhus; to put into commotion. [This should rather be written harry, harer, French.] Mod like it: it harrowes me with fear and wonder. Shakas.

HARROW, interj. An exclamation of sudden distress. Now out of use.

Harrow now out and weal away, he cried; What dismal day hath fent this cursed light.

HARROW,
HAR

HARROWER. m. f. [from harrow.]
1. He who harrows.

'Ts HARRY, v. n. [baron, French.]
1. To tease; to hare; to ruffle.

Thou must not take thy former sharpness ill.

'Tis gay to winter them. Shakespeare.

2. In Scotland it signifies to rob, plunder, or oppress: as, one harried a loft; that is, he took the young away: as also, he harried me out of house and home; that is he robbed me of my goods and turned me out of doors. See To HARROW.

HARSH. adj. [bärsfli, German, Skinner.]
1. Aurere; roughly four.

Our nature here is not unlike our wine:
Some forts, when old, become brisk and light:
So age's gravity may seem fierce,
But nothing barb or bitter ought to appear.

Sweet, bitter, sour, harsh, and fall, are all the epithets we have to denominate that numberless variety of relishes. Locke.

The same defect of heat which gives a fierceness to our nature, may contribute to that roughness of language, which bears some analogy to the harsh fruit of colder countries Swift.

2. Rough to the ear.

A name unusual to Volcanic ears,
And sullies our sweetest song and strain.

Shakespeare.

Age might, what nature never gives the young,
Have taught the smoothness of thy native tongue;
But check and curb, and so will thine
Through the harsh cadence of a rugged line. Dryden.

The unnecessary consonants make their spelling tedious, and their pronunciation harsh. Dryden.

Thy lord commands thee now
With a harsh voice, and supercilious brow,
To servile duties.

Harbor.

3. Crabbed; morose; peevish.

He was a wise man and an eloquent; but in his nature barb and taught. Bacon.

Bear patiently the harsh words of thy enemies, as knowing that the anger of an enemy admonishes us of our duty. Taylor.

No harsh rebuke let remembrance raise;
Forbear to mention what thou canst not frame. Prior.

A certain quickness of apprehension inclined him to the study of the arts, and which was a part of that motion of anger; but for a long time before he died, no one heard an intermixture or barb word proceed from him. Atterbury.

4. Rugged to the touch; rough.

When you see these living needle points, or some harsh sand; and red feels very smooth.

Dryden.

5. Unpleasing; rigorous.

With eloquence innate his tongue was arm'd;
Though harsh be the precept, yet the preacher charm'd.

Dryden.

HARSHLY. adv. [from harsh.]
1. Soourly; sucrulent to the palate, as unripe fruit.

2. With violence; in opposition to gentleness, unless in the following passage it rather signifies unripe.

3. Severely; morosely; crabbedly.

I would rather he was a man of a rough temper, that would treat me barbly, than of an effeminate disposition. Addison.

4. Unpleasantly to the ear.

My wife is in a wayward mood to-day;
I tell you, twould found barbly in her ears. Shak.

Get from him if you wish on this confounding,
Grating to barbly all his days of quiet
With turbulent and dang'rous lounge. Shak.

The rings of iron that on the doors were hung,
Seemed sharp and shrewdly barbly. Shak.

HARSHNESS. n. f. [from harsh.]
1. Sourness; sucrulent taste.

Take an apple and roll it upon a table hard: the

HARVEST. n. [from harvest.]

1. The season of reaping and gathering the corn.

As it ebb, the seedman
Upon the flame and o'er scatters his grain;
And shortly barrows to barrow work.

Barrow with work he is worse than in Spring. "I. \n
2. The corn ripened, gathered and inued.

From Scotland came with my strength,
And I have brought forth the fruit of Soul. Shak.

When the father is too fondly kind,
Such seed he fowls, such barrow shall he find. Dryden.

3. The product of labour.

Let us the barrow of our labour eat;
'Ttwas labour makes the softest diet sweet. Dryden.

HARVEST-HOME. n. f.
1. The song which the reapers sing at the faint made for having inued the harvest.

Your hay is now mow'd, and your corn is reap'd; your barns will be full, and your hogs heap'd.'

Come, my boys, come,
And merrily roar out barrow-bome. Dryden.

2. The time of gathering harvest.

And on the bearing-day, when he should thanks to Pan and Pales, pay. Dryden.

3. The opportunity of gathering treasure.

His wife I will use as the key of the cockedly rogue's coffet; and there's my barrow-bome. Shak.

HARVEST-LOARD. n. f.
'The head reaper at the harvest.

Grant barrow-loard more by a penny or two.
To call on his fellow the better to do. Tennyson.

HARVESTER. n. f. [from harvest.]

One who works in harvest.

HARVESTMAN. n. f. [barrow and man.] A labourer in harvest.

Like to a barrowman that's talk'd to now
Or all, or sloe his hire. Shakespeare.

To HAST. v. n. [baasar, French.] To mince; to chop into small pieces and mingle.

He raised his arm
Above his head, and raised a thorn
Oil blows to terrible and thick
As if he meant to dash her quick. Dryden.

What have they to complain of but too great variety, though some of the dishes be not forced in the exact order, and pointless; but boxed up in letter wise. Gann.

HASK. n. f. This seems to signify a cake, or habitation made of ruffles or flags. Obsolete.

Thee but, weary of thy yearly task,
Established hath its habits in lowly lay;
And taken up his habitation in thine haste. Spenser.

HASTER. n. f. [baasar, Hlandick, a lure.

HASTER. n. f. [baasar, French, a short bow.

The heart, liver, and lights of a hog, with the windpipe, and part of the throat to it.

HASP. n. f. Happy, Saxoue, whence in some provinces it is yet called hasp.

A chapp folded over a staple, and fastened with a padlock.

Have been open and shut at pleasure, with hasps to them. Mortimer.

To HASP. v. n. [from the noun.] To shut with a hasp.

HASSOCK. m. f. [bässk, German.] Skinner.

1. A thick mat on which men kneel at church.

He and his parishioners very irregular; and in order to make them kneel, and join in responses, he gave every one of them a hasp and common prayer book. Addison.

2. In Scotland it is applied to any thing made of rubles or privets, on which a person may sit: it is therefore probable that hasp and hasp are the same.

HASTE. n. f. [baasar, French, haste, Dutch.]

1. Hurry; speed; nimbleness; precipitation.

Spare him death!

But Oh, thou wilt not, cannot spare! Haste.

Haste, never time to bear. Grubbs.

Grubbs, that would not compose in haste, Polithe'd like marble, would like marble fast;
But as the present, to the last age wait;
In both, we find no negligence and wit.

Walter, in as much haste as I am, I cannot forebear giving an example. Dryden.

The wretched father running to their aid With please, haste, but vain, they next invade haste. Dryden.

2. Paffion; vehemence.

I said in my haste all men are liars. Psalms.

To HASTE. v. n. [hast, French, haste, hasten, Dutch.]

1. To make haste; to be in a hurry; to be busy; to he speedy.

I have not been made from being a caller to follow thee. Jer.

2. To move with swiftness; celerity; or hurry.
HA S

1. In a hurry; speedily; nimbly; quickly.
   A voice that called loud and clear.
   Hasten, rider, O come boldly!

2. Hurry; precipitation.
   A fellow being out of breath, or seeming to be for haste, with hasty-faced fellows.

3. Rash eagerness.
   Without considering the consequences, they are readily engaged in a war which both cost us forty millions.

4. Anger; feoffness; passionate vehemence.
   1. Hotly.
   2. Haste.

5. Passionately; with vehemence.
   Haste, n. f. [from hasty.] Peas that come early.

   1. Quick; speedy.
   2. To hasten.

   3. Rapidly.

   4. Early ripe.
   Beauty shall be a fading flower, and as the hasty fruit before the summer.

   5. Hastening, n. f. A pudding made of milk and flower, boiled quick together.
   Sometimes also of omelette and water boiled
   together.

   6. Hasty-pudding, n. f. A pudding made of milk and flower, boiled quick together.
   Sometimes also of omelette and water boiled
   together.

   7. HAT. n. f. [Hax. Saxo; hat, German.]
   A cover for the head.
   She's at twice as she is, and there's her thorn hat,
   and her mullet too.

   1. Out of sorts to say, you
   2. Your look to say, you
   3. A hat like a barrel, or Spanish montera.
   4. A hat of oak, or Spanish.

   5. HAT-band, n. f. [hat and band.] A firing tied round the hat.

   6. HAT' S, n. f. [from hat.] One

   7. Of the hatbands.

   8. HAT'tY, adj. [hat'ty, fr. from hest; hasty; Duth.]
HAT

Hate. n. f. [abe, Saxon.] Malignity; detestation; the contrary to love.

Hatred, to, who, mother, brother, father. Shakespeare.

Hate to Mazeppus, arm'd five hundred more. D. Derham.

Nausheces teaches that the afflued are not always the objects of divine hate. Brooke's Notes on the Odyssey.

Hateful, adj. [hate and full.]

1. That which causes abhorrence; odious; abominable; detestable.

2. Abhorr'd. — The devil himself could not pronounce a title.

More hateful to mine ear. Shakespeare.

There is no vice more hateful to God and man than an infidel. Proverbs.

What cost 1 to his commands.

Who hates me, and hath higher thirst me down.

To fit in hateful office here confus'd. Pope.

That which feels abhorrence; abhorreth; detesting; malignant; malevolent.

Palamon, compliment'd.

Now more for the fortune of the field.

And, worse than death, to view with hateful eyes.

His rival's conquest. Dryden.

Hatefulness, n. f. [from hateful.]

1. Odiously; abominably.

2. Malignantly; maliciously.

All the hearts; blood hatefully appalled.

Long side, Chapman.

They shall deal with them hatefully, take away all thy labour, and leave thee naked and bare. Eccl. xxiii. 19.

Hatchet, n. f. [from hate.] One that hates; an abhorreth; a detester.

I of her understandeth of that most noble contumacy, which whatsoever love not, from itself, to be a batter of virtue, and unworthy to live in the society of mankind. Sidney.

Which he held up and spoke.

He was my master, and I wore her life

To spend upon his hate. Shakespeare.

An enemy to God, and a hater of all good. Bronte.

The seven words that are most como the truth and convinces them of the unlawfulness of a man's being a murderer, an hater of God, and a covenant-breaker.

Hatefully, adv. [from hateful.]

Hatill; malignity; malevolence; dislike; abhorrence; detestation; abomination; the passion contrary to love.

Hatred is the thought of the pain which any thing present or absent is apt to produce in us. Locke.

I wish I had a caufe to seek him there.

To oppose his hated fully. Shakespeare.

Hate is the passion of defaminers, and there is a kind of detestation and boldness included in its very essence; but then, if there could have been hatred in the world when there was scarce any thing odious, it would have acted within the compass of its proper objects. Scalne.

Hates are often begotten from sight and almost innocent occasions, and quarrels propagated in the world.

 заняние malice nor hatred against any being are ready to do them all, the kindness you are. What. She is a Presbyterian of the most rank and virulent kind, and consequently has an inestimable hatred of the cause. Swift.

Hated is in the guilt of murder, and lust the guilt of adultery. Dodsley.

To Hatter, v. a. [Perhaps corrupt from beaver.] To harass; to weary; to wear out with fatigue.

He's better'd out with penance. Dryden.

Hatter, n. f. [from bat.] A maker of hats.

A box filled a dozen of hats for five shillings 2-piece.

A Treatise, n. f. [attache, Erfe.] A flock of corn.

A Hawk, n. f. [hauk, old French.] A coat of mail; a breast-plate.

Him on the hawk'd struck the prince's eye. That quickens on the all the linked frame, And pierc'd to the skin. Envy Queen.

Hawks and hawks are L'weed with many a wound; The necks goes with for Machiavel.

They break the bones, and make the solid armour bend. Dryden.

To Have, v. a. in the present I have.

Booth, he hastes: we, yet, beu go, pret and part puff. kid. [batten, God.

thick; habban; Saxon; fitter, Dutch; awarn; French; auerne, Italian.]

1. Not to be without.

I have brought him before you, that after examination had, I might have something to write. Act. i. 26.

2. To carry; to wear.

Upon the maids they shall a young man, who fat as on horseback wearing nothing upon him. Sidney.

3. To make use of.

I have no Levite to my priest. Judges.

4. To suffer.

He that gathered much bad enough over, and be that gathered little bad no lack. Exod. vii. 18.

5. To obtain; to enjoy; to polleuse.

Now, O Father, glorify me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was. John xvii. 5.

6. To take; to receive.

A secret happiness in Petronius is calledabilia felicitas, and which I suppose he got from the felicitas audere of Horace.

7. To be in any fate; to be attended with or united to as accident or concomitant.

Have I need of madness, that yee have brought this fellow? 1 Sam. xxii. 15.

8. To put; to take.

That done, go cart it, and have it away. Lives.

9. To procure; to find.

I would have any one name to me that you know that can speak as he should be done, by the rules of grammar. Locke.

10. Not to neglect; not to omit.

I cannot speak; if my heart be not ready to suffer! Well, victory, and content. Shakespeare.

Your plea is good; but ill I say beware.

Laws are explain'd by men, to base a case. Pope.

11. To hold; to regard.

Of the maid servants shall I be in honour. 2 Sam.

The proud bave had me greatly in derision. Phil. am.

12. To maintain; to hold opinion.

Sometimes they will have them to be natural hear, whereas some of them are crude and cold; and sometimes they will have them to be the qualities of tangible parts, whereas they are thing by themselves. Bacon.

13. To contain.

You have of these pedlars that have more in 'em than you think. Sifter. Shakespeare.

14. To require; to claim.

What would these madmen have? Fust they would have us without price; Deceive us without common lea, and without pow'r enslave. Dryden.

15. To be a husband or wife to another.

If it had been married to him, for all he was in women's apparel, I would not have bad him. Shaf.

16. To be engaged, as in a talk or employment.

If we maintain thing that are established, we have to strive with a number of heavy prejudices, deeply rooted in the hearts of men. Huker.

HAV.

HAV,. n. f. [loven, Dutch; bauve, French.]

1. A port; a harbour; a station for ships.

Love was threatened and promised to him, and his counsel, as both the templem and baven of their bett years. Sidney.

Order for seas is given. Shakespeare.

They have put forth the haven. Shakespeare.

After an hour and a half falling, we entered into a good sound, being in a fair sea. Bacon.

The queen beheld, as soon as day appeared. The navy under fall, the haven clear'd. Deman.

Shaf.

Love, favour'd once with that sweetgale, Doubles his hate, and fills his fall. 'Till he arrive, where the foe must prove The haven, or the region of love. Waller.

2. A shelter; an asylum.
HAU

All places, that the eye of heaven visit,
Are to a wise man ports and happy havens. Shaksp.

HAVENER. n. f. [from haven.] An over-\n
Mer of a port.

Thee earls and dukes appointed their special officers, stewards, treasurers, and chamberlains. Carew.

HAVER. n. f. [from haver.] Pocilloer;
holder.

Valuer is the chiefest virtue, and
Most dignifies the haver. Shaksp.

Hav is a common word in the northern counties for oasts; as, haver bread for oast bread; perhaps properly oaves, from avena, Latin.

HAUGHT. adj. [haut, French.] 1. Haughty; infolent; proud; contumacious; arrogant. Obstet.
   The proud inflating Queen,
   With Clifford and the haughty Northumberland
   Have wrought the easy-moling king, let wax. Shaksp.
   No lord of shine, thou haughty insulating man
   Nor less base born was his birth: Shaksp.
   2. High; proudly magnanimous.
   His courage haughty.
   Defd of foreign foemen to be known
   And found for strange adventures fought. Specn.
   HAUUGHTY. n. f. [from haughty] Proudly;
   arrogantly; contumaciously.
   Her heart's form too haughtily the prides
   His person bared, and his gifts defit's. Dryden.

HAUGHTINESS. n. f. [from haughty.]
Pride; arrogance; the quality of being haughty.

High. j. d. [haute, French.]
1. Proud; lofty; insolent; arrogant; contumacious.
   His wife, being a woman of a haughty and impertinent nature, and of a wit superior to his, he quickly detected the dissemblers he received from him.
   1 I shall fing of battles, blood and rage,
   And baulky fools, that mov'd with mutual hate,
   To know those who sought and found their face. Dryd.
   2. Proudly great.
   Our vanquish'd will that pleasing force obey:
   Her goodness takes our liberty away;
   And then this Britain yields to arbitrary vill. Prior

HAUING. n. f. [from haver.]
1. Possession; estate; fortune.
   My haging is not much
   I'll make my will, and give it out with you.
   Hols, there's half my offer. Shaksp.
   2. The act or state of possicing.
   Of the one side was adved the hasing a picture, which the other wanted; of the other side, the his drinking the fluid. Sidney.
   Thou art not for the lattitude of these times,
   Where none will sweat but for promotion;
   And having this crown on their front, even with the having. Shaksp. As you like it.
   3. Behaviour; regularity. This is full retained in the Scottish dialect. It may possibly be the meaning here.

He gentleman is of a havan; he kept company with the wild prince and Poul; he is of too high a nature; he knows too much. Shaksp.

HAVIOUR. n. f. [for behaviour.] Conduct; manners. Not used.
3. [Jaga; Saxon; bow, a garden, Danith.] A small piece of ground adjoining to a house. In Scotland they call it haw. Upon the haw at Plymouth is cut out in the ground the picture of two men, with clubs in their hands, whom they term Gog and Magog.

To HAW. V. n. [Perhaps corrupted from hawk or hawk.] To speak flowly with frequent intermixture and hesitation.

HAWK. n. f. [hawg, Welb; papig, Saxon; acceptor, Latin.] To fly hawks at fowls; to catch birds by means of a hawk.

1. A bird of prey, used much anciently in sport to catch other birds.

Do you love hawking? Thou wast hawks would fear, at above the morning dark. Shakespeare.

It can be no more dispiriting a great lord to draw a fair picture, than to cut his hawk's meat, Purchas.

Shewe borne on liquid wing. The founding celery yellow; or where the hawk, the celery white, its story builds. Thomson.

2. [Hawk, Welb.] An effort to force phlegm up the throat.

To HAWK. v. n. [From hawk.]

1. To fly hawks at fowls; to catch birds by means of a hawk.

Ride unto St. Alban's, whereas the king and queen do mean to hawk. Shakespeare.

One followed ruddy and knowledge, and another hawking and hunting. Lowd.

He doth the day as a larks and sparrows he has no left foot, though a much less considerate quarky, than he that flies at nobler game. Lowd.

A falconer Henry, when Emma hawks. With her of carrels and of fowls he talks. Prior.

2. To fly; to attack on the wing.

A falcon tow'ring in her pride of place, Was by a mowing owl 'hawk'd at and kill'd. Shak.

Whether upward to the moon they go, Or dream the Winter out in caves below, And rack at places elsewhere, concerns us not to know. Dryden.

3. [Jack, Welb.] To force up phlegm with a noise.

Come, sit, sit, and a song. Shall we clap into roundly, without hawking or spitting, or any of these are boastful, which are only the prolongues to a bad voice! Shak.

She complained of a thinking tough phlegm which the hawk'd up in the morning. Wilkinson.

He gives us all to know, that with winds let in, is spit out with a hawking or a small cough: that out of the gums is spit out without hawking, coughing, or vomiting. Harvey.

4. To fell by proclaiming it in the streets.

From back, German, a falseman. His works were hawk'd in every street, but seldom rode above a fleet. Swift.

HA'WED. adj. [from hawk.] Formed like a hawk's bill.

For a rod is feeterly into the moorc, an aquinole or hawk'd out into the Persian, a large and prominent mole unto the Roman. Brown.

HAWK. n. f. [from back; German.] One who sells his wares by proclaiming them in the street.

I love my labours, which had cost me so much thought, babused about by common hawkers, which I once intoced for the consideration of the greatest perfum. Swift.

Swept in by the mist of this hawd'd day, the queen proclaims, by herald hawkers, high heroic gamers: She summens all her fans; an endless band. Founts forth, and leaves unpeopled half the land. Pope.

HA'WED, n. f. [from hawk.]

Osteogloss is a species of this plant. Miller.

HA'WES. n. f. [of a ship]. Two round holes under the ship's head or beck, through which the cables pass when she is at anchor. Harris.

HAWTHORN. n. f. [hawg; Saxix; haw, a garden, Danith.] A species of meadian; the thorn that bears haws; the white thorn.

Safe to which it is applied in England is to make hawking hawds; and those varieties of it about London; but that sort which produces the smallest leaves is preferable, because its branches always grow close together, and are always green, with very little leaf.

There is a man hants the fore, that abides our young plants with crying Besprinkled on their barks: haws sedge upon hedgehogs, and elegans on broomhills. Shakespeare.

Some in their hands, beneath the lance and shield, The boogs of woodbine or of hawkbird hold. Dryden.

The barinwhites witren. Hawthorn whitens.

HAWTHORN FLY. n. f. An insect.

The barinwhites fly all black, and shaggy. Walton.

HAY. n. f. [hay, Pix, Saxan; bey, Dutch.] Grazes dried to fodder cattle in Winter.

Make hay while the sun shines. Camden's Remains.

Make poor men's cattle break their necks; set fire on hay and hay stacks in the night, and bid the owners quench with their tears. Shakespeare.

We have heats of dung, and of hay and herbs laid up in store. Bacon.

Or if the earlier season lead To the land's hay cock in the mead. Milton.

Bring the hay, and green and dry, out of the fields to the barns, Not all the Winter long lay they reck least. Dryden.

Some turners turn long and tender spires of ivory, as small as an hay falls. Donne.

By some hay cock, or some shaggy thorn, He bids his beasts both even and full. Dryden.

The belt mankind for meadows is the bottom of barinwhites and hay Roaks. Mortimer.

Hay and stacks, in the management of a groom, will make aic. Swift.

To dance the Hay. To dance in a ring; probably from dancing round a hay-cock. I will play upon the lute to the warbler, and let the dance be all black, and cock. Shakespeare.

This minds think on the heath they feer, When fires well nigh consumed be, There dancing's no bick or three, Just as your fancy calls them. Dryden.

The gun and glittling, which with art And thusly'd method, in each part Hangs down. Dryden.

Looks just as if that day Suna there had crawled the hay. Sackler.

HAY. n. f. [from haw, French; a hedge, a net which incloses the haunt of an animal.]

Cones are destroyed by hayes, curs, spaniels, or tumblers, bred up for that purpose. Mortimer.

HAYMAKER. n. f. [hay and make.] One employed in drying grass for hay.

As to the return of his health and vigour, were you here, you might enquire of his haysakers. Pope to Swift.

HA'ZARD. n. f. [hazard; French;azar; Spanish; kafy, Runick; danger.]

1. Chance; accident; fortuitous hap.

I have let my life upon a call, And will lead the hazard of the die. Shak.

I will upon all hawards well believe. Thou art my friend, that know'st my tongue so well. Shak.

Where the mind does not perceive connection, there men's opinions are not the product of judgment, but the effects of chance and hazard, of a mind flasting at all adventures, without choice and without deliberation. Locke.

2. Danger; chance of danger.

We are bound to yield unto our Creator, the Father of all mercy, eternal thanks, for that he hath delivered his law unto us, a law wherein so many things are laid open, as a light which otherwise would have been buried in darkness, not without the hazard, or rather not with the hazard, but with the certain loss of thousands of lives and multitudes of souls. Holder.

The hazard I have to run to you here, should inform you that I love not as a common rate, Dryden.

Men and women from one stage is like to another in a condition of the utmost hazard, and yet with- out the least apprehension of their danger. Rynge.

3. A game at dice.

The duke playing at hazard, held in a great many hands together, and drew a huge heap of gold.

To HA'ZARD. v. n. [hazarder; French.] To expose to chance; to put into danger.

They might, by periling in the extremity of that opinion, hazard their own estates, and to weaken that part which their places now give. Hooker.

It was not in his power to advance upon his own fortune, or bearing a public charge to hazard himself against a man of private condition. Hayward.

By dealing indifferently mercies to all, you may hazard your own state. Sherlock.

To HA'ZARD. v. n.

1. To try the chance.

I pray you try; pafs a day or two, Before you hazard any in abusing wrong.

Rynge.

2. To adventure to run the danger.

She from her fellow-province would go, Rather than hazard to have her foe. Wotton.

HA'ZARDABLE. adj. [from hazard;] Venturesome; liable to chance.

An hazardable determination, it is unto fluctuating and indifferent effects, to affix a positive tie or period. Brown.

HA'ZARDER. n. f. [from hazard.] He who hazards.

HA'ZARDY. n. f. [from hazard.] Temerity; precipitation; rash adventurousness.

OBSTINATELY. adv. [from obstinat;] Hasty, rash, and headlong hazards.

DOUBTED. adj. [from doubted;] Doubtful, uncertain, and ingenuous. Swift.

HA'ZARDOUSLY. adv. [from hazarded;] With danger or chance.

HA'ZEL. n. f. [The etymology unknown.]

Fog; mift.

To HA'ZEL. v. n. To be foggy or misty.

And to the east wind; or to bright one. Ainsworth.

HA'ZEL. n. f. [hazel; Saxan; cucullus; Latin.] Nut tree.

The nuts grow in clusters, and are closely joined together at the bottom, each being covered with an outward husk or top, which opens at the top, and when the fruit is ripe it falls out. The species are hazelum, cobnut, and filbert. The red and white filberts are mostly esteemed for their fruit. Miller.

KA'ZEL, the hazel twig. Is straight and slender, and as brown in hue As hazel nuts, and sweeter than the kernels. Shak.

Her chariot is an empty hazel nut. Shak.

Which we are not used to hazard. Which hazels, intermixed with emus, have made? Dryden.

There are some from the site of the hazel not to that of a man's foot. Woodward.

HA'ZEL. adj. [from the noun.] Light brown; of the colour of hazel.

The whole was a warm dry foil, that has a good depth of light; hazel mauve, lavender. Mortimer.

HA'ZELLY. adj. Of the colour of hazel; a light brown.

Uplands confit either of sand, gravel, chalk, rock or stone, hazel loam, clay, or black mould. Mortimer.

HA'ZLY. adj. [from hazel.] Dark; foggy; miliy.

Our
Adm. spoke
So Christ be his fair qnim, and the sheul's cheer.

When Adam wak'd, be on his side
Leaning half rais'd hang over her.
Thus talking, hand in hand along they played.
On their blissful how'rs.

He first, God, him middle.

The man to the person. It sometimes stands without reverence to any foregoing word.

He is never poor
That little heap, but be that much dearer.

Man or male being.

Such mortals are I have but Man's Law
Is death to any be that utter men.

I stand to answer thee, or any be the proudest of the form.

Enam and his race the sculptor shall employ
And be the God who built the walls of Troy. Dryden.

Male: as, a he bear, a goat. It is used where the male and female have not different denominations.

This is his bower, grey feathers. Bosan.

In the two last fenses £ is rather a noun than pronom.

HEAD. n. f. [headb, headb, Saxo; boyd, Dutch; bredd, old English, whence by contraction head.]

1. The part of the animal that contains the brain or the organ of the sensation of fear and thought.

Vein, healing nerves, and head piercing dill. Sprag.

Over bredd.

Infinitive height of Indian heads. Milton.

The dewy paths of meadows we will tread,
For crowds and chapletos to shun your heads. Dryden.

Dryden.

Young boyd, that come, who held that boys higher, would be glad to accept. Swift.

Perfin as exposed to any danger or penalty.

What he gets more of than sharp words, let it sit on his head. Shakespeare.

Who of all ages to succeed, but feeling
The effion he brought by me, will cure
My head? All fear our ancestor impure. Milton.

And Ears. The whole perfin.

In jingling names, was confounded and thronged.

He lights intouch'd 'e's'ead and ears in longs. Granville.

Denomination of any animals.

When Invenor defended the monarchs of Carpio to furnish thirty thousand head of wine, he could not spare them; but thirty thousand lawyers he had at his service.

The tax upon paturage was raised according to a certain rate per head upon cattle. Arbuthnot.

Chief; principal perfin; one to whom the rest are subordinate; leader; commander.

For their common, there is little danger from them, except it be where they have great and great heads.

Your head I him applie'd.
30. It is very improperly applied to figures. To turn the head, hide the feeling behind it: and for the closing of corne wows, wals. Gay.

People that hit upon a thought that tickles them, with their head bringing it in head and shoulders, over and under, in several companies. E. Finange.

They bring in every figure of speech, head and shoulders, by main force, in spite of nature and their subject.

Finan.

Head, adj. Chief; principal, as the head workman, the head inn.
The horse made their escape to Winchester, the head of the city. Clarendon.

9. Head, v. n. [from the noun.]

1. To lead; to influence; to direct; to govern.
Abas, who seem'd our friend, is either red,
Or, what we fear, our enemies does stand. Dryden.
Nor is what has been said of princes less true of all other governors, from him that heads an army to him that is master of a family, or of one single letter. Swift.

This lord had heads his appointed bands.

In form allegiance to his king's commands. Prior.

2. To behead; to kill by taking away the head.

If you behead and hang all that offend that way but four strokes together, you'll be glad to give out a commissary for more heads. Shaksp.

3. To fit any thing with a head or principal part.

Headed with flints and feathers bloody dy'd.
Arrows the Indians in their quivers hie.

Fairly.

Of cornel-wood a spear upright.

Headed with piercing steel, and polish'd bright.

Page.

4. Top'd oaks.

You must disbranch them, leaving only the fummit entire: it may be necessary to head them too. Martimeer.

Headache, n. f. [head and aching.] Pain in the head.

From the cruel headache.

Riches do not preserve. Sidney.

Nothing more exposes to headaches, colds, eczems, and coughs, than keeping the head warm. Locke.

In the headache he orders the opening of the veins of the forehead. Arbuthnot.

At some cold idle time, 'Not plag'd with headaches, or the want of thyme.

Headband, n. f. [head and band.] 1. A fillet for the head; a top-knot.

The Lord will take away the bonnets, and the headbands. Isaiah.

2. The band at each end of a book.

Headborough, n. f. [head and borough.] A confab, a subordinate confab.

Here is John Doe, a servant of God, to whom he is gone, Father or mother, sister or brother, he never knew.

A headborough and a confab, a man of fame. The fact of his house, and lift of his name. Camiller.

This none are able to break thorough.

Until they're faced by head of borough. Hudibras.

Headress, n. f. [head and dress.]

1. The covering of a woman's head.

There is not to variable a thing in nature as a lady's headdress: I have known it rise and fall. Addison.

If 'tis with any airs I planted heads, or disposed of the headress of a prude. Pepys.

2. Any thing resembling a headdress, and prominent on the head.

Among birds the males very often appear in a most beautiful headress, whether it be a crest, a plume, a ruff of feathers, or a natural little plume, erected like a kind of pinnacle on the very top of the head.

Head, n. f. [from head.]

One that heads nailes, or pins, or the like.

2. The first brick in the angle.

If the header of one side of the wall is too much as much as the header on the opposite, it would be a stronger thing, and the joints of the headers of one side would stand upon the side of the other; the course they lie upon of the other.

Maxim.

Headergale, n. f. [head and gale.]

A disease, I suppose in cattle.

For the backhead gale give power of festering. Martimeer.

Headiness, n. f. [from head.]

Hurry; rashness; stubbornness; precipitation; obstinacy.

If anything will stultify such his choice of old and unworthy women, he may with more全力 blame and condemn, either of wiseheaders in judging, or of headless hardheads in condemning. Spenser.

Headland, n. f. [head and land.]

1. Promontory; cape.

An hercules play ought to be an imitation of an heroic poem, and consequently love and valour ought to be the subject of it; both the Sir William Davenant began to shadow; but it so far as discovers their work and headlands and promontories. Dryden.

2. Ground under hedges.

Now down with the grapes upon headlands about.
That growth in wind and shadow, the more savoury. Tuller.

Headless, adj. [from head.]

1. Without an head; beheaded.

His flaming helmet he gan foil unlace,
And left his headless body bleeding at the place. Spenser.

2. Ground under hedges.

Were a man, a duke, and next of blood.
I would remove these tedious stumbling blocks, And smooth my way upon their headless necks. Shaksp.

On the cold earth lent his unregarded head.
A headless carcase, and a nameless thing. Denham.

Freshly flubbed, instead of trees, are found;

Headless, and hideous to behold. Dryden.

3. Without a chief.

They ruffled not until they had made the empire headless about seventeen years. Raleigh.

3. Obfinate; inconstant; ignorant; wanting intelesia; perhaps for headless.

He him must have fully blame and condemn, either of wiseheaders in judging, or of headless hardheads in condemning. Spenser.

Headlong, adj. 1. Steep; precipitous.

2. Rash; thoughtless.

3. Sudden; precipitate.

It suddenly fell from an excess of favour, which many examples having taught them, never kept his pace till he came to a headlong overthrow. Sidney.

Headlong, adv. [head and long.]

1. With the head foremost. It is often doubtful whether this word be adjective or adverb.

I'll look no more.

Left my brain turn, and the deficient light
People down headless, and bore
On at the brain.

Headlong, v. t. [from head.]

1. To lead by the head, to guide.

Who, while he fleering view'd the fiar's, and bore
His courtesie from Africa to the Latine shore,
Fell headlong down.

Heaving the thine glowing fury forwards,
And o'er the Thibean palace spreads her wings. Pope.

2. Rashly; without thought; precipitately.

To give Ahab such warning as might infallibly have prevented the essence obtained by him evil; and to put him on headlong in it, because he was found of it, was accounted good. Swift.

Some sirk for envied pow'r, which publick hate
Propels, and ever headlong to their fate.

Down go the titles.

Dryden.

3. Hastily; without delay or reprieve.

Unhappy offering of my tender weapon!
Digg'd headlong from thy cradle to thy tomb.

Dryden.
HE A

I'll try if yet I can reduce to reason
This bed-bred young youth, and make him quit his state.
You'll be both judge and party: I am sorry thou discoverest so much of thy bed-bred humorism.

Headworkman, n. f. [from head]. One who cures or heals.

Healing. participial adj. [from heal].

1. Rah! precipitate; hasty; violent; ungovernable; hurried on with pugnition.
2. Take pity of your town and of your people,
While yet the cool and temperate wind of grace
O'er all the filthy and contagious clods.

Of heady murder, spilt and villainy.

I am afraid what I try:
Neither did I with the effect of wine,
Nor heady rhum, provoked with raging ire;
Albeit my wounds might make one afer mid.
I'll forebear,
And am fallen out with my more heady will.
To take the indigot's and fickly bit.

For the sound man.

Words, the reader help.

To betray heady, rub the ear.

Those only are regarded who are true to their party; and all the talent required is to be hot, to be turned out as much as is needed; unlike the Temptation.

Men, naturally warm and heady, are provoked with the greatest hush of good-nature.

2. Apt to affect the head.

was entertained with a lot of wine which was very good, but otherwise stiffened to be forced by the necessity.

Since heady beef and mutton will not do,
Here's judge-dance, pijam of song and flows;
Give you strong food, the liquor's too hot.
You're come to face, that's still worse, mildly.

Dryden.

Flow, Weeb'd down floor, like those lapfer; beer;

Head, not strong, and beamish, though not full.

Page.

3. Violent; impetuous.

Never came reformation in a flood
That ever made a heady man agen.

Nor ever head of hearse-whistlers
So soon did lose his feat.

To heal. v. n. [from heal].

1. To cure perfon; to restore from hurt of sicknes.

I will nature health, and heal thee of thy wounds.

Who would not believe that our Saviour healed the sick, and called the dead, who are beloved by those who themselves often did the same miracles?

Addison.

Physicians, by just observations, grow up to a honourable degree of skill in the art of healing.

2. To cure a wound or distemper.

Thou hast no healing medicine.

A potion had been made in the same yard, which be was to be done by reason of the pain. Wjw.

3. To perform the act of making a face to cicatize, after it is eaten.

After separation of the ichor, I deterred and leashed.

4. To reconcile; as he healed all dissensions.

To cure the sick. To grow well. Used of wounds or fomes.

These wounds heal that men do give themselves.

Addison.

Health. n. f. [from heal]. One who cures or heals.

I will not be an healer.

Healing.
1. To a collected audience.

Plays have charm, but neither hopes nor fears;
Their fate is only in their hearers' ears. bowel.
Her hearers had no more;
In all the smoke, except to cast.

2. If the sense by which sounds are perceived.

Dees are called with found upon earth, and therefore they have hearing; Bacon's Natural History.

3. To give an audience, or allowance to speak.

He lent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith, and his mother Eve, and Adam heard.
They are the French ambassador upon that infant.

4. To attend, to listen; to hearken to; to hear with great attention.

I was bowed down at the hearing of it, and dismayed at the feeling of it.

5. To be told; to have an account: with of.

I have heard by many of this man. Acts iv. 37.

6. To perceive by ear.

The trumpeters and fingers were as one sound to be heard in praising the Lord. 2 Chron. v. 13.

7. To attend favourably.

They think they shall be heard for their much speaking, since your command, what so well are pleased to bear, I cannot grieve to tell. Denham.

8. To try; to attend judicially.

Hear the causers, and judge righteous judgments. Deut. i. 16.

9. To attend, as to one speaking.

On earth Whoso are his friends and his own confidence be heard.

10. To acknowledge a title. A Latin phrase.

Or be he thus rather pure through eternal streams. Whose fountain who shall tell?

11. Heard signifies a keeper, and is sometimes initial; as 'beard, heart, a glorius keeper; sometimes final, as cowpeker, a royal keeper.

It is now written hrd as, cowker, a cowkeeper; Pyrrha, Saxon.

12. One who hears.

And so was the dullest withal, that we could come so near to hear her speeches, and yet this noise the bears will find teeth.

St. John and St. Matthew, which have recogished their sermons heard them; and being bears, did think themselves as well respected as the Peaceker.

Word, be they never so few, are too many, when they benefit not the bearer.

Shakespeare.

Shakespeare.

1. The music which by its contraction and dilation propels the blood through the course of circulation, and is therefore considered as the source of vital motion.

2. It is suppos'd in popular language to be the seat of a sort of affections, some times of affection, sometimes of honesty, or baseness.

He who prudence and courage pass'd out, he who stood him where, and where, that her heart broke withal, and did the tide.

Shakespeare.

Shakespeare.

Shakespeare.

Shakespeare.
HEA

Josh perceived that the king's heart was towards Abdilmon.

This he thought to be a Sam. decision, and learned each other's heart.

Foolish enthusiasm for what was not real.

M. Daniel.

Not yet thy heart,

Then over-fond, on what which is not thine.

'Tis well to be tender; but to set the heart too much upon anything is what we cannot justify.

I. E. J. Angl. A friend makes me a friend, and sets all before me; but I set my heart upon one dith alone, and if that happen to be thrown down, I frame all the rest.

Then mixing powerful herbs with magic art,

She changed his form which could not change his heart.

What did I not, her stubborn heart to gain? But all my vows were answ'rd with disdain.

Dryden.

Memory: though South feems to distinguish

Whatever was attainted, concerning God and his working in nature, the fame was delivered over by heart and tradition from wise men to a pottier excellence.

We call the committing of a thing to memory the getting it by heart; for it is the memory that transmits it to the heart; and it is in vain to expect that the heart should keep its hold of the truth, when the memory has let it go.

Shall I l in Lond'on all this idle part?

Composing fongs for fools to get by heart.

Pope.

10. And let all ardour of zeal,

To take any thing, be to zealous or solicitous or ardent about it.

If he take not their caufes to heart, how should there be but in them frozen coldness, when his affections feem benumbed, from whom theirs should take fire?

Hooker.

If he would take the business to heart, and deal in it effectually it would succeed well.

Bacon.

The lady Merchifon of Herthford engaged her husband to take this business to heart.

Clarendon.

Amonge thefe, who took it most to hearts, Sir John Stawell was the chief.

Clarendon.

Every prudent and honest man would join himself to that fide which had the good of their country moft at heart.

Addison.

Learned men have been now a long time fearching after the happy country from which our parents were entitled: if they can find it, with all my heart.

Woodward.

I would not be forry to find the Pretenders mistaken in this point, which they have much at heart.

Swift.

What have I moft at heart is, that fame method fhould not be thought on for ufurpation and fuing our language.

Pope.

11. Passions; anxiety; concern.

Set your heart at reft;

The fairy kind not the child of me.

Shak.

12. Secret thoughts; recellies of the mind.

Michal saw King David leaping and dancing before the Lord, and the depifted in her heart.

2. Sam. vi. 16.

The next generation will in tongue and song and every way eft, become English; fo as there will be no difference or dilfinteion, but the Irish fea, beart with us.

Thou fawef the contradiction between my heart and hand.

Davies.

Would you have him open his heart to you, and show your advice, you must begin to do with him first.

Lear.

Men, fome to pleafure, fome to bufinesf take.

Browne's woman is at heart a rake.

Pope.

Being all things with fo prettily a grace, that it feemed ignorance could not make him do amifs, becaufe he had a heart to do well.

Sidney.

The heart is confidered as the feast of tenderness: a hard heart therefore is cruelt.

We have feen them, and thou hadft oft beheld

Heart hardening fpectacles.

Shak.

Such firm hearts are we, and fuch

The fate barbarity of human kind.

Rev.

15. To find in the Heart.

To be not wholly averve.

For in breaking the laws of friendship with you, I could find in my heart to aby pardon for it, but that your now handling of me gives me reason to confider my former dealing.

Sidney.

16. Secret meaning; hidden intention.

I will go with my speech in your privacy; and then fhew you the heart of my message.

Shak.

17. Confence; fene of good or ill.

Every man's heart and confciencethat in good or evil, even secretly committed, and known to none but itself, either like or diflike itself.

Dryden.

18. Strength; power; vigour; efficacy.

Try whether leaves of teen, swept together, with some chalk and dung mixed, to give them more heat, would not make a good compofite.

That the fent earth may gather heat again.

And, better'd by colfion, bear the heat.

Dryden.

Care must be taken not to grow outside of heat, for fear 'tis in heart, it may be improved by marl again.

19. Umtom degree.

This fay charn.

Like a right ugly, hath, at full and force.

Beg'd to be removed by heat of love.

Shak.

Life.

For my heart feems sometimes to signify, if life was at stake; and sometimes for tendernefs.

I bid the rafcal know upon your gate,

And could not get him for my heart to do it.

Shak.

I gave it to a youth,

A prating boy, that begg'd it as a fee:

I could not for love deny it him.

Shak.

20. Profoundly skill'd in the black art.

As English Merlin for his heart.

Hudibras.

21. It is much ufed in composition for mind, or affection.

Heart-ach. n. f. [heart and aeb].

Sorrow; pang; angrieff of mind.

22. To die—o be dead.

No more; and, by a sleep, to fay we end.

The heart-ach, and the thound natural shocks.

Shak. Hamlet.

Heart-break. n. f. [heart and break].

Overpowering forrow.

Better a little chiding than a great deal of heart-break.

Heart-breaker. n. f. A cant name for a woman's cnr, fuppofed to break the heart of all her lovers.

Like Samfon's heart-breachers, it grew

In time to make a nation rue.

Heart-breaking. adj. Overpowering with forrow.

Those piteous plaints and sorrowful sad rhime,

Which late you pour'd forth, as ye did fay

Beside the rivers fings of Helicon.

Heart-breach. n. f. [heart and break].

Overpowering grief.

What greater heart-breaking and confufion can there be to one, than to have all his secret faults open, and the fenfence of condemnation paffed upon him.

Heart-burned. adj. [heart and burn].

Having the heart inflamed.

How tartly that gentleman looks! I never can fee him but I am heart-burn'd an hour after.

Shak.

Heart-burning. n. f. [heart and burn].

1. Pain at the stomach, commonly from an acid humour.

Fine clean chalk is one of the moft noble aborbase, and powerful corrects and subdues the acid humours in the thrombus: this property renders it very ferificable in the carbages, or heart-burn.

Woodward.

2. Difcontents; secret ennui.

In great changes, when right of inheritance is broke, there will remain much heart-burn and discontend among the meaner people.

Swift.

Heart-dear. adj. Sincerely beloved.

The time was, father, that you broke your word.

When you were more endear'd to it than now.

When your own Percy, when my heart-dear Harry, Threw me a northward look to fee his father.

Bring up his pow'rs; but he did long in vain.

Shak.

Heart-ease. n. f. Quiet; tranquillity.

What infinite heart-eafe must kings neglo.

That private men enjoy.

Heart-easing. adj. Giving quiet.

When you were more endear'd to it than now.

In heart and soul a faithful, and free.

Shak.

By and by heart-easing mirth.

Milton.

Heart-foelt. adj. Felt in the confequence.

What nothing earthly gives, or can defroy.

The foul's calm founthine, and the heartfeel joy.

Is virtue's prize.

Pope.

Heart-peas. n. f. A plant with round feeds in form of peae, of a black colour, having the figure of an heart of a white colour upon each.

Miller.

Heart-queulling. adj. Conquering the affection.

And let fair Venus, that is queen of love,

With her heart-easing fong, upon you fhape.

Spencer.

Heart-rending. adj. Killing with anguish.

Heart-rending news, and dreadful to thofe few

Who her refmable, and her steps pure;

To fuch that devife in the high dignities

The falt, the wife, the virtuous, and the young.

Waller.

Heart-robbing. adj. Edieftick; deceiving of thought.

Obfolute.

Sweet is thy virtue, as thyfelf sweet art

For when on me thou hind'st, late in fadness,

A melting pleafure ran through every part.

And me revived with heart-robbing gladnefs.

Spencer.

Heart-sick. adj.

1. Pained in mind.

If we be heart-fick, or affifted with an uncer.

Food, than we are true defpers of relief and mercy.

Taylor.

2. Mortally ill; hurt in the heart.

Good Romeo, hide thyfe.

—Nor I, unlefs the breach of heart-fick gran.

Miftlike, inflad me from the fearch of eyes.

Hearts-ease. n. f. A plant.

Heart-eafe is a fort of violet that blows all Summer and often in Winter: it fows itself.

Mortimer.

Heart-sore. n. f. That which pains the mind.

Whatver he that godly knight may find,

His only heart-fare and his only foe.

Fairy Ayen.

Heart-string. n. f. [heart and string].

The tendons or nerves fuppofed to brace and fuffain the heart.

He was by Jove deprived

Of life himfelf, and heart-fings of an eagle rived.

Spencer.

How, out of tune on the strings?

—Not fof; but yet to falle, that he griev's me your heart-fings.

Shak.

That grate my heart-fings: what fhould difcontent him!

Except he thinks I live too long.

Spencer.

If thou thinkest thou fult perfit, I cannot blame thee to be fad 'till thy heart-fings crack.

Taylor.
HEA

Where his judgment led him to oppose men on a public account, he would do it vigorously and heartily; yet the opposition ended there.

Addition.

3. Eagerly; with desire.

As for my eating heartily of the food, know that anxiety has hindered my eating 'till this moment.

Heartyness. n. [from hearty.]

1. Sincerity; freedom from hypocrisy.

This entire free face put on; Derive a liberty from heartily. Shakespeare.

And well become the agent. Taylor.

2. Vigour; eagerness.

The anger of the heart represents our faults, or admonishes us of our duty, with more heartily than the kindness of a friend. Taylor.

Heartily, adv. [from heartily.]

Without courage; spiritless.

I joyed and the heart the trembling pricker,

Or hunt the heartless hare 'till the time was spent.

Then hopeless, heartily can the cunning thief,

Peruse us dine, to fill all further Fairy Queen.

What, art thou drawn among these heartily hinds?

Turn thee, Benavolio, look upon thy gain.

Shakespeare.

Thousands besides freed mute and heartily there,

Men valiant all; nor was I 'tis to fear. Cowley.

The peacocks were accoutered to payments, and grew heartily as they grew old. Temple.

Heartily they fought, and quitted from their ground,

While ours with easy victory were crowned. Dryden.

Heartily. adv. [from heartily.]

Without courage; faintly; timidity.

Heartliness. n. [from heartily.]

Want of courage or spirit; declension of mind.

Heartily. adj. [from heartily.]

1. Sincere; undisturbed; warm; zealously.

They did not bring that heartily inclination to peace, which they hoped they would have done.

But the kind boths their entertainment great

With heartily welcome and an open face;

In all they did, you might discern with ease

A willing mind, and a defte to please. Dryden.

Everyone must be applied to any employment, provided he has been loud and frequent in declaring himself heartily for the government. Swift.

2. In full health.

1. Vigorous; strong.

What strength are heartily, though his cheeks are carven,

And loves you belt of all, but his belt. Pope.

Page.

Pine in the heart.

And the heart's little ltees creep. Dryden.

Heartily. adj. [heartily.]

Good for the heart.

Vein-bleating vveevens, and head-punging ill,

Sound sway, and belly heartily. Spenser.

Heat. n. s. [beer; beer; Saxo; hoete; heat.]

1. The fention caused by the approach or touch of fire.

Heat is a very brisk agitation of the sensible parts of the object, which produces in us that sensation from whence we denominate the object hot; so that little sensation is heat, in the object is nothing but motion. Locke.

The word heat is used to signify the sensation we have when we are near the fire, as well as the cause of that sensation, which is in the fire itself; and thence we conclude, that there is a heat in the fire resembling our own sensations; whereas in the fire there is nothing but little particles of matter of such particular boses as we are coked to impend such motions on our flesh; evince the fone of heat. Watt.
HEA

5. To make the constitution fervid.

There are going to Lord Timon's feast.

As to see nae dill knaves, and wine heat tools.

Gav, Miller.

Whatever inaccessibly the density of the blood, even without increasing its extremity, beats, because a denser body is the less to be moved, Aristarchus.

3. To warm with vehemence of passion or desire.

A noble emolulation beats your breast, and your own fame now robs you of your reign.

To.

5. To agitate the blood and spirits with action.

When he was well brated the younger champion could not stand before him; and we find the elder contended not for the girl, but for the honour.

Hater. n. f. [from heat.]

An iron made hot, and put into a box-iron, to smooth and plait linen.

HEATH n. f. [vires, Latin.]

A shrub of low stature; the leaves are small, and abide green all the year.

In Kent they cut the heath in May, burn't it, and spread the ashes.

the heath, Tho'mas.

1. A place overgrown with heath.

Say, from whence

You owe this strange intelligence; or why,

Upon the blessed heath, you stop your way

With such prodigious songs.

Shake's. Macbeth.

Health and long life have been found rather on the peak of Derbys'heath, and the heaths of Staffordshire, than inftole hills.

Temple.

3. A place covered with flurbs of whatever kind.

Some woods of oranges, and heaths of roylamery, will dwell a great way into the sea.

Bacon.

HEATH-COCK. n. f. [heath and cock.]

A large fowl that frequents heaths.

Cornwell hath qual'd, rarl partridges, pleasant, heath-cock, and powe.

Cer'cy's Survey.

HEATH-POT. n. f. [heath and pot.]

A bird.

Now heath-pot, or the rarer bird

Which Phaeton on vantage,

More pleasing merlins would affaunt

Than the fat olives of my fields.

Dryden.

HEATH-PEAS. n. f. A species of better vetch, which fec.

HEATH-ROSE. n. f. [heath and rose.]

A plant.

Au'gurst.

HEATHEN. n. f. [bryden, German.]

The gentiles; the pagans; the nations unequainted with the covenant of grace.

Deliver us from the heathen, that we may give thanks to thy holy name.

If the opinion of others whom we think well of be a ground of affront, men have reason to believe to be heathens in Japan, mahometans in Turkey, papists in Spain, and protestants in England.

List of mortality, I consider how I may recommend the particular virtues I treat of, by the precepts or examples of the ancient heathens.

Addison.

HEATHENISH. adj. [from heathen.]

1. Belonging to the Gentiles.

When the apostles of our Lord and Saviour were ordained to alter the laws of heathenism, they were, St. Paul excepted; the rest unordained altogether, and unlettered men.

Hosker.

2d. Wild; savage; rapacious; cruel.

HEA.

The wand'ring breeze was on the wing to part;

Weak was the pulse, and hardly breath'd the heart.

Dryden.

No object affects my imagination so much as the sea or ocean: I cannot see the heaving of this vast body, but all my senses, without a very pleasing astonishment.

Addison.

Frequent for breath his panting bosom heaves.

Prior.

The heaving tide

In widden'd circles beats on either side.

Goj.

4. To knock; to feel a tendency to vomit.

HEAVE. n. f. [from the verb.]

1. Lift; exertion or effort upwards.

None could guess whether the next heave of the earthquake would settle them on the first foundation, or swallow them.

Dryden.

2. Rising of the breast.

There's matter in these fights; these profound

You must translate; 'tis fit we understand them.

Shake's.

3. Effort to vomit.

4. Struggle to rise.

But after long toils and heaves.

He got up to his father's ease.

Habibrah.

HEAVE OFFERING. n. f. An offering among the Jews.

Ye shall offer a cake of the first of your dough for an heave offering, as ye do the heave offering of the threshing floor.

Thy name, Saxon.

HEAVEN. n. f. [heaven, which seems to be derived from heaep, the places over head, Saxon.]

1. The regions above; the expanse of the sky.

A station like the herald Mercury,

Now lighted on a dovecote flying hill.

Shake's.

Thy race in time to come.

Shake's.

Shall spread the conquests of imperial Rome.

Rome, whose advancing tow'rs shall banish invade,

Involving earth and ruins in her shade.

Dryden.

The words are taken more properly for the earth and other than for the heaven.

Raleigh's History.

This act, with thou, banish'd, high, the friendly band

Applaud.

Dryden.

Some fires may fall from heaves.

Temp'd.

2. The habitation of God, good angels, and pure souls departed.

It's a skill

That famish thee to heaven, or to hell.

Shake's. Machet.

Thee, the late

Hurt's banish'd head, left desert unshod.

Hill.

All yet left of that revolted rout,

Hurt's fall'n, in factions flighted, or just array

Subline with expectation.

Shake's. Milton.

3. The supreme power; the sovereign of heaven.

Now banish'd help him!

Shake's.

And high permission of alluring banished.

Let him at large.

Milton.

The prophets were taught to know the will of God and thereby instruct the people, and enabled to prophesy, as a testimony of their being sent by heaven.

Temp'd.

4. The pagan gods; the celestial.

Take physic; pangs are trifles.

Espose thy self to feel what wretches feel.

If thou mayst not like the superfluous to them,

And shew the banished more just.

Shake's.

They can judge as well of his worth,

As I can of those mysteries which heaven.

Will not have the world to know.

Shake's.

How high he held his head, and rose at every blow.

Dryden.

5. Elevation; sublimity.

O, for a muse of fire, that would ascend

The highest heavens in suspension.

Shake's. Dryden.

6. It is often used in composition.

O B E
HEAVEN-BEGOT. Begot by a celestial power.

HEAVEN-BORN. Defended from the celestial regions; native of heaven.

HEAVEN-BRED. Produced or cultivated in heaven.

HEAVEN-DIRECTED. 1. Railed towards the sky. 2. Taught by the powers of heaven.

HEAVENLY. adj. [from heaven.]

1. Resembling heaven; supremely: excellent. As the love of heaven makes one heavenly, the love of virtue, virtuous, so doth the love of the world, make one become worldly.

HEAVENLY. adj. [heavies, Saxon.]

1. Weighty; ponderous; tending strongly to the centre; contrary to light. Mercurius tells us, that a little child, with an engine of an hundred double pulleys, might move this earth, though it were much heavier than it is.

HEAVY. adj. [heavies, Saxon.]

1. The act of dulling. 2. The state of being dulled.

HEBE. n. s. [bebetudo, Latin.]

Dulness; obtuseness; bluntness.

HEBECRISMA. n. s. [hebrayma, French, hebrjames, Latin.]

A Hebrew idiom.

HECTARE. n. s. [hebset, Latin.]

A man skilled in Hebrew.

HEBRICAN, n.s. [hebrues, Latin.]

One skilful in Hebrew.

The words are more properly taken for the air or other than the heaven, as the best Hebrews understand them.

The nature of the Hebrew verdant, as the mealy Hebrew knoutowh, consists of unseen heath.

HECATOMB, n. s. [beetombe, French; ianomome.]

A sarcifice of an hundred cattle.

In rich men's houses I bid fall from heaven, no becatombo; none harve, none surfeit so. Deme. One of these thres is a whole becatomb, and therefore only one of them shall die. Dryden. Her triumphant fans in war frescoed. And daughter's becatombe around 'em blest. Addison.
HED

1. Habitual; constitutional.

This word is joined only to that kind of fever which is slow and continual, and ending in a convulsion, is the contrary to that fever which is from a plethora, or too great fullness from obstruction. It is attended with too much a state of the excretory paillages, and generally those of the skin; whereas such for fellow runs off as leaves not sufficient enough in the contractible vessels to keep them sufficiently distended, so that they vibrate often, according to the moods, and keep them thin and hot.

A beltief fever hath got hold
Of the whole substance not to be controul'd?

Danse.

2. Troubled with a morbid heat.

No beltief's favourites the gentle maid; Taylor.

Hunic t.c.n. An heticke fever.

Like the beltief in my blood he rage.

Hucor n.f. [from the name of Hecolor, the great Hesperian warriour.] A bully; a blustering, turbulent, pernicious noify fellow.

These usurping belters, who pretend to honour without religion, think the charge of a bayonet not to be fired but by hot blood.

We'll take one cooling cup of neer's.

And drink to this celestial beltier.

To Hucor. v. a. [from the noun.] To trouble, molest with insolent affectuating terms.

They reckon they must part with honour together with their opinion, if they suffer themselves to be beltier'd out of it. Government of the Tongue.

The weak weak spirit Fortune makes her own
But she's a drudge, when beltier'd by the brave.

Dryden.

An honest man, when he came home at night, found another fellow dominiug in his family, his bastard's servants, and calling for supper.

Arbuthnot's History of John Bull.

To Hucor. v. n. To play the bully; to bluster.

They have attacked me, some with pitious moans and outcries, others grinning and coldly showing their teeth, others ranting and beltiering others, scolding and reviling.

Selwyn's fullest.

One would think the beltiering, the reviling, the fulling, and all the different species of the scolding, should be cured.

Secul. 1625-1629.

He then, who made her chief director, that she might o'er the servants beltier. —Swift.

Hedecous adj. [hedereous, Lat.]

Producing ivy.

Did.

HEDGE n.f. [hedge, Sax.] A fence made round ground with prickly bushes, or woven twigs.

It is a good wood for fires, if kept dry and is very useful for dikes in hedges.

Maritine.

The gardens unfold variety of colours to the eye every morning, and the hedge-bird is beyond all paragon.

Phys. 1701-1702.

Through the verdant maze
Of sweet-briar hedges I pursue my walk. —Thomson.

Hedge, prefixed to any word, notes something mean, vile, of the lowest class: perhaps from a hedge, or hedge born man, a man with no known place of birth. There are five in the first place; the pedlar, the braggart, the hedge-priest, the fool, and the boy.

Shakespeare.

The clergy do much better than a little hedge, contemptible, illiterate vicar can be preferred to.

Swift.

To Hedge. v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To inclose with a hedge, or fence of wood dry or growing.

Hedges are my delight, and they are with them. —Rippon.

Those upon us must be hedges at both ends, to keep out the wind.

Bacon.
HEE
Where fame, late entwirt at his beafted ear,
Hath plac'd thy beauty's image and thy virtue.
Shake. 2
To him one of the other twins was bound,
Whil't I had been like beeffed of the other.
Shake. 2
Thus, beeff'd of advice, secure proceed;
My prey's the precept; be thine the deed. Pope.
HEESPULLY, adv. [from beeff'd.] Attentionally; carefully; cautiously.
Let the learner maintain an honorable opinion of his instruction, and carefully listen to his instructor.
Times, asnone willing to be led. Win.
HEESPULLNESS, n.f. [from beeff'd.] Caution; vigilance; attention.
To excell in some art, he must carefully attend. Abbott.
HEEPULLY. adv. Scantily; vigilantly.
HEESPULLNESS. n.f. Caution; vigilance.
HEESLESS. adj. [from beeff'd.] Negligent; inattentive; careless; thoughtless; recklessly unobsturc'd; with off.
The beeff'd lover does not know.
Whose eyes they are that wound him. Waller.
Belfleds of eyes, and hopeless of the crown;
Seest hal's way, and more than half is slum. Dryden.
Some ideas which have more than once offered themselves to the senses, have yet been little taken notice of by the minds of either beeff'd, as in children, or otherwise employed, as in men.
Locke.
Surprizes are often fatal to beeff'd unguarded in nescence.
Shel.
HELIใหญ่, n. s. [from βελόνη], Atrociousness; wickedness. He who can treat offenses, provoking God, as jests and trifles, must have little fante of the great. -Rogers.
HEIR, n. s. [beir, Old French, I. er, heater.
Latin.
1. One that is inheritor of any thing after the present possessor.
An heir signifies the eldest, who is, by the laws of England, to have all his father's lands. -Larch.
What lady is that?
The heir of Alfonso, Bofalive her name. Shakef.
That I'll give my voice of Richard's plent.,
To the fair young man's heir; in true defcent.
God knows I will not do. Shakespeare.
Being heir together of the grace of life.
Suck is the hero, and his glory lods,
And I his heir in misery alone.
Ropes. The heirs to titles and large estates have a weakness in their eyes, and a tenderness in their constitutions.
2. One newly inheriting an estate.
The young extravagant heir had got a new favor, and still more occasion to his double. Swift.
To Heir v. a. [from the noun.] To inherit.
His son in blooming youth was natch'd by fate,
Oo only daughter heir'd the royal state. Dryden.
HEIRS, n. s. [from heir.] An inheritrix;
a woman that inherits.
All that was her's he did give.
Waller.
Æneas, though he married the heiress of the Gnome, yet claim'd no title to it during the latter in law. Dryden.
HEIRLESS, adj. [from heir.] Without an heir; wanting one to inherit after him.
I still think of
The wrong I did myself, which was so much,
That theirs became better virtue of my own. Shakesp.
HEIRSHIP, n. s. [from heir.] The state,
character, or privilege of an heir.
A layman appoints an heir or an executor in his will, to build an hospital within a year, under pain of being deprived of his Inheritance. Addes. Pariem.
HEIRLOOM. n. s. [heir, and gemola, goods.
Saxon.] Any furniture or moveable decred to descend by inheritance, and therefore inseparable from the freethower.
Achilles' keps was of wood,
Transmitted through the great.
There's through a long dought of kings
Carven in embonpoint, Homer sings.
Swift.
HELD. The pretreiste and paire, paif. of bail.
A rich man beginning to fall, is held up by friends.
If Minerva had not appeared and held his hand, he had executed his design. Dryden.
HELICAL. adj. [helique, French, from αλυσ.] Emerging from the lalure of the fun, or falling into it.
Held they described the heat of the season to this prow, who would not have computed from its brave affinity.
Brown.
HELICALLY, adv. [from helical.]
From the rising of the flat sun, not coëfially, that is, with the sun, but helically, that is, at its emerging, or rising off the face of the sea, the ancient writs their particular days.
Brown.
He is tempestous in the Summer, when he rides breezy and rainy in the Winter, when he rides aetherially.
Swift.
HELICAL. adv. [helice, French, from τάξις.
Spiral; with many circulations.
The fern is a kind of wedge, multiplied or continued by a helical revolution about a cylinder, receiving an motion not from any dock, but from a vesta about end of it. -Widman.
HELIOPARABOLA, in mathematics, or the parabolic spiral, is a curve which arises from the supposition of the axis of the common Apollonian parabola's being bent in the periphery of a circle; and is a line thus passing through the extremities of the ordinates, which do now converge towards the centre of the said circle.
Harris.
HELIOPHILIC, adj. [heliacentrique, Fr.
& καυτός.] The heliacentrique place of a planet is said to be such as it would appear to us from the sun, if our eye were heline and in true defcent.
HERRIES, n. s. [heliosepe, Fr. ήλιος, and σφαίρα.] A fort of telescope fitted so as to look on the body of the sun, without offence to the eyes.
Harris.
HELIOTROP. n. s. [helioscope, Fr. ήλιος, and σφαίρα.] A plant that turns towards the sun; but more particularly the turnful, or fan-flowers.
'Tis an observation of the turnfulers, that they are like the heliotropes; they open only towards the sun, but that and contract themselves at night; and in cloudy weather the sun's rays are destripe.
Harris.
HELIOSPHERE, adj. [helix and θερίς.] The helial sphere is the rhomb line in navigation, and is so called because on the globe it winds around the pole spirally, and still comes nearer and nearer to it, but cannot terminate in it. Harris.
HELIUM. n. s. [helice, French, θαύ.] Part of a spirall; a circual.
Find the true inclination of the circle, together with the quantity of water which every helix does contain.
Within.
HELL. n. s. [helle, Saxon.] 1. The place of the devil and wicked souls.
For it is a krell
That suffoms thee there or hell.
Shakesp.
If a man were a porter of bell gates, he should have old turning the key.
Shakesp. Macbeth.
Let none admire
That riches grow in delli; that toll may be
Departed from by the poor.
Milton.
He'll black tyrant trembled to behold
The glorious light he forfiekt of old.
Cowley.
2. The place of separate fouls, whether good or bad.
I will go to hell to my mon to hell, Gen.
He descended into hell.
Appled Apol.
3. Temporal death.
The pains of hell came about me; the snakes of death overtook me.
Psalm xlix. 4.
4. The place at a running play to which those who are caught are carried.
Then couple three be straight allotted there;
They of both ends the middle two do by Shakesp. Macbeth.
The two that in the mid-places, call'd were,
Muli thrive with waiting foot and watching eye,
They of them, and them to hell.
That they, as well as they, hell may fancy.
Sidney.
5. The place into which the taylor throws his shreds.
This truly figure, he had as well
As the bold Trojan knight keen toll
Not with a lying tongue.
Of golden bough, but true gold-lace.
Haller.
In Covent Garden did a taylor dwell,
Who might deface a place in his own bell.
King's Court.
6. The infernal powers.
Much danger first, much toll did he suffer,
While Saul and bell cut his strong fate in vain.
Cowley.
7. It is used in composition by the old writers more than by the modern.
HELL-BLACK. adj. Black as hell.
Helm denotes defence; as Endhelm, happy defence; Sigelma, victorious defence; Dhrum, the merchant defence; like Amynthus and Beslun among the Greeks. Gibb, Cam.

Helm. n. f. [helm, Saxon; from belen, to cover, to protect.]

1. A covering for the head in war; a helmet; a morion; an headpiece.

France wears his banners in his noblest land! With plumed helm the player begins his theme.

Shakespeare.

Metaphys lends hard load upon his helm. Dryden.

2. The part of a coat of arms that bears the crest.

More might be added of helms, crests, mantles, and supporters. Camden's Remains.

3. The upper part of the retort.

The vulgar chemists themselves pretend to be able, by repeated cohabitations, and other fit operations, to make the disfigured parts of a censer bring its own copa mortua over the boil. Boyle.

[Helma, Saxon.] The reenforcement; the rudder.

They did not leave the helm in fleers; And such they are in happy fleers. Ben Jonson.

More in prosperity is reason lost Than ships in storms, their helms and anchors lost.

Denham.

Fair occasion moves the springing gale, And interludes the helm, and honour swells the fall. Prior.

5. The station of government.

I may be wrong in the means; but that is no objection against the design: let those at the helm contrive it better. Swift.

6. In the following line it is difficult to determine whether fleetman or defender is intended; I think fleetman.

You fonder The helms of th' state, who care for you like fathers, When you curse them as enemies. Shakespeare.

To Helm. v. a. [from the noun.] To guide; to conduct.

The very breach of his life, and the buffets he hath helmed, must give them a better proclamation. Shakespeare.

Helmed. adj. [from helm.] Furnished with a head-piece.

The helmed cherubins Are seen in glittering ranks with wings display'd. Milton.

Helmet. n. f. [Probably a diminutive of helm.] A helmet; a headpiece; armour for the head.

I fast went down; thence up again, and fighting, From helmet to the four all bleeding o'er. Shakespeare.

Seven darts are thrown at once, and some rebound From his bright shield, some on his helmet found. Dryden.

Helственные. adj. [from τόξον.] Relating to worms.

To Help. n. a. preter. helped, or help; past, helped, or helped. [belpen, Gothick; belpan, Saxon.]

1. To affit; to support; to aid.

Let us work as valiant men behoves; For bolded hearts good fortune helps out. Fairfax.

O Lord, make haste to help me. Psalms.

God helped him against the Philistines. A Chron.

They helped them in all things with silver and gold.

1 Epist. a.

A man reads his prayers out of a book, as a means to help his understanding and direct his expressions.

2. It has, in familiar language, the particle out, which seems to have meant, originally, out of a difficulty.

This he conceives not hard to bring about, if all of you should join to help him out. Dryden.

What I offer is so far from doing any hindrances to the cause these gentlemen are engaged in, that it does them a real service, and helps them out with the main thing whereas they fluck. Woodward.

The God of learning and of light, Would work on him himself to help him out. Swift.

3. To raise by help: with upon.

Woe to him that is alone when he falleth; for he hath not another to help him up. Execl. iv. 10.

4. To enable to furnish: with power.

Whereas they make it plain to them presently over the difficulty without any trouble. Locke.

5. To remove by help: with effect.

Having never learned any laudable manual art, they have recourse to those foolish or ill ways in affairs. Locke.

6. To free from pain or vexation.

Help and ease them, but by no means bemoan them. Locke.

7. To cure; to heal: with of.

Obstle.

To help him of his blindness. Shakspeare.

8. It is used commonly before the definite.

The true catsmus helps brought. Gerard.

9. To remedy; to change for the better.

Cafe to lament for that thou canst not help; And fludy help for that thou lament'st. Shak.

10. To prevent; to hinder.

Those few who reside among us, only because they cannot help.

If they take offence when we give none, it is a thing we cannot help, and therefore the whole blame must lie upon them. Sanderson.

11. To forbear; to avoid.

He cannot help believing, that such things he saw and heard. Addison.

4. I cannot help remarking the resemblance between him and our author in qualities, fame, and fortune. Pope.

12. To promote; to forward.

And they helped forward the afflitive. Zerb.

If you make the earth narrower at the bottom than it is at the top, to form a kind of a sugar-loaf serrated, you will help the experiment. Bacon.

13. To help to: To supply with; to furnish with.

Whom they would help to a kingdom, those reign; and again whom they would, they discharge. 1 Mac. viii. 13.

The man that is now with Tissifia can help him to his own end. L'Estrange.

14. To prepare at table.

In plenty starving, tanze'd in state, And complaisantly help'd to all I hate; Treated, care'd for, and tir'd, I take my leave. Pope.

To Help. v. n.

1. To contribute assistance.

Sir, how comes it you Have a hammer to make up your pillow? Shakspeare.

Disdai are servants and friends help much to reputation. Bacon.

Bennet's grave look was a pretense, And Dompiercey's matchless impudence Help'd to support the knave. Dryden.

A generous parent helps to persuade as well as an agreeable perfor. Garth.

2. To bring in supply.

Somer sort of the talent to write, made it easy that the actors should help out where the matter failed.

Rymer.

Helm. n. f. [from the verb; helpe, Dutch.]

1. Assistance; aid; support; succour.

Maidens defearing to recover the city, hardly escaped their enemies hands by the good help of his uncle. Kiplinger.

2. He may be behoolden to experience and acquired notions; where he thinks he has not the least help from you. Locke.

So great is the sipacity of some of those, that they may have no sense of the help administered to them.

3. That which gives help.

Through these contrivances the power, yet they proportionably contract the times; which by such helps one man may do in a hundred days, may be done by the immediate strength of a hundred men in one day.

Virtue is a friend and an help to nature; but it is vice and luxury that destroy it, and the diseases of intestine are the natural product of the fires of incontinence. Swift.

Another help St. Paul himself afforded us towards the attaining the true meaning contained in his whole.

3. That which forwards or promotes.

Coral is in use as an help to the teeth of children. Bacon.

4. Remedy.

I live in the corner of a vast unfurnished house: my family consists of a steward, a groom, a help in the stable, a footman, and an old maid. Swift.

Helpful. adj. [from help.]

1. Useful; that which gives assistance.

Compliment, the mother of tears, is not always a more idle spectator, but an helper oftentimes of evils. More.

3. That one supplies with any thing wanted: with it.

Heaven.

Hath brought me up to be your daughter's dowr, As it hath fet her to be my motrce, And help to a husband. Shakespeare.

4. A supernumerary servant.

I live in the corner of a vast unfurnished house: my family consists of a steward, a groom, a help in the stable, a footman, and an old maid. Swift.

Helpful adj. [from help.]

1. Useful; that which gives assistance.

Coral is in use as an help to the teeth of children. Bacon.

2. One that administrs remedy.

Compliment, the mother of tears, is not always a more idle spectator, but an helper oftentimes of evils. More.

3. That one supplies with any thing wanted: with it.

Heaven.

Hath brought me up to be your daughter's dowr, As it hath fet her to be my motrce, And help to a husband. Shakespeare.

4. A supernumerary servant.

I live in the corner of a vast unfurnished house: my family consists of a steward, a groom, a help in the stable, a footman, and an old maid. Swift.

Helpful. adj. [from help.]

1. Wanting power to succour one's self.

One dire foat

Cloch by the boar the prince's main-mate boars;

All these now help'd by each other lie.

Dryden.

Let our enemies rage and persecute the poor and the helpless; but let us be our glory to be pure and peaceable. Rogers.

2. Wanting support or assistance.

How shall I then your helpless snares defend?

'Twill then be impossible to seem thy friend. Pope.

3. Irremediable; admitting no help.

Such helpless harms it's better hidden keep.

4. Unsupplied: void of With of. This is unusual, perhaps improper.

Naked he lies, and ready to expire, Help'd of all but himself with no one. Dryden.

Helpless. n. f. [from helpless.] Without ability; without succour.

Helplessness. n. f. [from helpless.] Want of ability; want of succour.
HEM

HETER-SKELTER. adv. [As Shimer's fancies of beollygen cecebo, the darknes of hell, hell fays he, being a place of confusion. In a hurry; without order; tumultuously.

Of his, in thy rable, and thy friend; And beuther-heather I rode to England, And tidings O bring. Shaks. He had no sooner turned his back but they were at it better-titter, throwing books at one another's heads. L'Estrange.

HELVE. n. f. [Belpo, Saxton.] The handle of an axe.

The flapping of an axe from the helver, whereby another is lain, was the work of God himself.

Raislier's History.

To HELVE. v. a [from the noun.] To fit with a helve or handle.

HEM. n. f. [Dew, Saxton.]

1. The edge of a garment doubled and fewed to keep the threads from spreading. Rawlers must be made of even cloth, and gentile, without hem, seam, or thread hanging by. Wiseman.

2. Hemmen, Dutch.] The noise uttered by a fudden and violent expiration of the breath.

I would try if I could cry hem, and have him. Shaksp.

He loves to clear his pipes in good air, and is not a little pleased with any who take notion of the strength which he still exerts in his morning hem. Addison.

3. Interf. Hem! [Lat.]

To HE M. v. a.

1. To close the edge of cloth by a hem or double border fewed together.

2. To border; to edge.

All the skirt about Was bemed'd with golden fringe. Fairy Queen. Along the shone of silver-streaming Thames. Whole ruby tank, the which his river bemos. Speck.

3. To enclose; to envelop; to confine; to shut: perhaps always with a particle; as, it, about, round.

So of either side, stretching itself in a narrow length, was it bemed'd by woody hills, as if inward nature had meant therein to make a place for beholders. Sidney.

What less us then the great Jerusalem.

With valiant foemen round about them? Fairly. Why, Neptunus, hast thou made us stand alone, Divided from the world for this, say they; Hemispheric to be a Cube. Trompe.

Leaving affliction hence no way to fly? Daniel.

I hurry me in haste away, And find his honour in a pound, Hemmed't by a triple circle round. Chequard with ribbons, blue and green. Pope.

To HEM. v. n. [Bemmen, Dutch.] To utter a noise by violent expression of the breath.

HEMCRANY. n. f. [spavon, half, and epasmo, the skull, or head.] A pain that affects only one part of the head at a time. Quincy.

HEMICYTE. n. f. [hemisphaer.] A half round.

HEMINA. n. f. An ancient measure: now used in medicine to signify about ten ounces in measure. Quincy.

HEMIELEGY. n. f. [spavon, half, and epasmo, to strike or seize.] A palsy, or any nervous affection relating thereunto, that feizes, one side at a time; some partial disorder of the tympan.

HEMISPHER. n. f. [spavon, half, and emisphaire, French.] The half of a globe when it is supposed to be cut through its centre in the plane of one of its greatest circles.

That place is earth, the seat of man; that light. His day, which else, as it's other hemisphere. Night would imitate no light. Milton.

A hill Of Paradise, the highest from whole top The hemisphire of earth, in clearest ken Stretched out to the amphi touch reach of prosphor. Hay.

The fun is more powerful in the northern hemisphere than in the southern, and amongst botany. With that motion is flower.

In open prospect nothing bounds our eyes. Until the earth seems joyst's unto the sky; So in this hemisphere our utmost view Is only bounded by our king and you. Dryden.

HEMISPHERICAL. adj. [from hemisphere.] Half round; containing half a globe.

The thin film of the water swells above the surface of the water itself, and commonly accompanies hemispherial bodies with it. A pyrite, placed in the cavity of another of an hemispherial figure, in much the same manner as an stone in a tunnel. Woodward.

HEMISTIC. n. f. [hemisphaer; hemisphire, French.] Half a verse.

He broke off in the hemistich, or midst of the verse; but fitted, as it were, with a divine fury, he laid up the whole of the hemistich. Dryden.

HEMLOCK. n. f. [Demloc, Saxon.] An herb.

The leaves are cut into many minute segments: the petals of the flower are bife, heart-shaped, and unequal; the flower is succeeded by two short channeled berries. The fruit is sometimes used in medicine, though it is noxious; but the hemlock of the antiques, was such deadly poison, is generally supposed to be this species. Miller.

He was met even now

Crowned with rank-fumiter and furrow-weeds, With hazellock, hemlock. Shaksp. King Lear. We cannot with certainty affirm that no man can be nourished by wood or trees; or that all men will be poisoned by hemlock. Locke.

HEMORRHAGE. n. f. [spasmod; hemorh, hemorrho.] Bleeding.

HEMORRHAGY. v. f. [spasmod; hemorh, hemorrho.] A violent flux of blood.

Great hemorrhagy vexes the separation. Ray. Twenty days fasting will diminish its quantity so much as one great hemorrhage. Arbuthnot.

HEMORRHoids. n. f. [spasmod; hemorh, hemorrho.] The piles; the emrods. I got the hemorrhoid. Miller.

HEMORRHOIDAL. adj. [hemorrhoidal, Fr. from hemorrhoid.] Belonging to the veins in the fundament.

Besides these are hemorrhoids, from the nose and hemorrhoidal veins, and fluxes of them. Ray. Embold upon the field, a battle opened Of leeches, spouting hemorrhoidal blood. Garth.

HEMP. n. f. [Beene, Saxo, hemp, Dutch; canamari.] A fibrous plant of which coarse linen and ropes are made.

It has divided leaves opposite to one another: the flowers have a bearing pistil, it is male and female in different plants. Its bark is useful for cordage and cloth. Miller.

Lea gales for dogs; let men go free, And let not hemph his woodpipe fastoke. Shak. Hemp and flax are commodities that deserve encouragement, both for their usefulness and profit. Dr. Martine.

HEMP Agrimony. n. f. A plant.

The common hemp agrimony is found wild by ditches and sides of rivers. Miller.

Hem. v. n. [from hemp.] Made of hemp.

In foul reproach of knighthood's fair degree. About his neck a down rope he wears. Fairy Q. Behold

Upon the hempen tackle ship-boys climbing. Shak.
HER

HERAPICAL. adj. [bejocatik, Latin, bepaj.]

Belonging to the liver.

Bacon.

H.B. n. f. [heptagon, Fr. & English,]

Having seven angles or sides.

H.E.N.C.E. v. a. [from the adverb.] To send off, or to dispatch distance. Observat. on Alim. 8.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforth I am the herald of the Lord, making his arrival known.

HEREFORD. a. [Henop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Hencefore I am ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I am ever ready by you. Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you. Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.

HEREFORD. a. [Henpop's, Sax.] From this forward.

Henceforward I was ever ready by you, Sir. Skals.
HERBALIST. n. s. [from herb.al.] A man tilled in herbs.

Herbalists have distinguished them, naming the male whole leaves are lighter, and fruit rounder.

Baker.

HERBA. n. s. [A word I believe only to be found in Spencer.] Plant; herb.

The roof here was arched over, and decked with flowers and herbs delightfully.

Fairy Queen.

HERBARIST. n. s. [herbarius, from herb.], and gen. herb. One skilled in herbs.

Herbists have exercised a considerable variability in growing plants of the same denomination.

Boyle.

He was too much favored by the opinions that current among herbists, that different colors, or multitude of leaves in the flower, were sufficient to constitute a specific difference.

Ray.

As to the fuel, their herb had been discovered and named me first by an ingenious herbist, Barnham.

Barnham.

HERBELENT. n. s. [Diminutive of herb, or of herbula, Latina.] A small herb.

These herbels, which we upon you know.

Shak.

HERBESCENT. adj. [herbescent, Lati.] Growing into herbs.

Herb.

HERBID. adj. [herbidus, Latin.] Covered with herbs.

Herb.

HERBODIST. n. s. [from herb.] One curious in herbs. This seems a mistake for herbist.

Herb.

A curious herbist has a plant, whose flower petals in about an hour.

Ray.

HERBROGH. n. s. [herbargs, German.] Place of temporary residence.

Written herbages.

The German lord, when he went out of Newgate into the east, took orders to have his arms set up in his herbages.

John Ffrench.

HERBOUS. adj. [herbas, Lat.] Abounding with herbs.

Ditt.

HERBRULENT. adj. [from herbula.] Containing herbs.

Herb.

HERB WOMAN. n. s. [herb and woman.] A woman that sells herbs.

Shak.

I was like to be pulled to pieces by brewer, butcher, and the like, even my herbwoman didn't play to me along.

Asbath.

HERBEY. adj. [from herb.] Having the nature of herbs.

Herb.

No substance but earth, and the procedures of earth, as a mile and stone, yield any mols or herb substance.

Bacon.

HERD. n. s. [Peop. Saxon.]

1. A number of beasts together. It is peculiarly applied to black cattle. Blocks are steep, and herds are of lines.

Note a wild and wanton herd.

Or race of youthful and unbridled calves.

Fishing mad bounds.

There found a herd of heifers, wand'ring o'er.

The neighbouring hill, and drive to the thore.

Addison.

2. A company of men, in contempt or deprecation.

Spare the world, and where one Cato shines,

Count a degraded lord of Carthage.

Dryden.

I do not remember where ever God delivered his oracles by the multitude, or nature truth by the herd.

Addison.

3. It anciently signified a keeper of cattle, and in Scotland it is still used. [Peb. Saxon.] A fence full retained in composition: as agherd.

To Herd. v. n. [from the noun.]

1. To run in herds or companies. Weak men should, in danger, herd like deer.

Dryden.

H E R

It is the nature of ingenuity, like common danger, to dared men to one another, and make them herd together, like fellow-fishers in a storm.

Norris.

2. To associate; to become one of any number of the vulgar.

Addison's Cato.

Run to towns to herd with knaves and fools.

And underestimate the common crowd.

Browne.

To Herd, v. g. To throw or put into an herd.

Here.

I'll herd among his friends, and seem.

Out of the number.

Addison's Cato.

3. In the red.

However great we are, honest and valiant.

Herb.

And that our bards may remark.

Wright.

To Herd; or a. To throw or put into an herd.

Spenser.

However, as I would not, nor could,

Thee herdsman, or herd, and gen. herdman.

A keeper of herds. Not in use.

But who shall judge the wagger won or lost?

That shall yonder herdsmen, and none other.

Spenser.

HERDSMAN. n. s. [herds and men.]

One herdsman employed in tending herds: formerly, an owner of herds.

Baker.

A herdman rich, of much account he was.

In whom no evil did reign, or good appear.

Sidney.

And that our bards may remark.

Worthy enough a herdman, if e'er thou

These rural latches to his entrance open.

Shak.

I will devise a cruel death for thee.

Shak.

Scare them from themselves know how to hold

A fêtebook, or have learnt'd out the leaf.

That to the faithful herdman's art belongs.

Milton.

There were no flocks, nor herds; no bovines,

Shelters in cool, and tends his pattering herds

At loop-holes cut through thickest thade.

Milton.

So stanch a Thracian herdman with his spear.

Full to the gap, and hopes the hunted heart.

Dryden.

The herdman, round

The cattle rife, prove his health in golets

Crowns, and that his hands.

Addison.

When their herdsmen could not agree, they parted by content.

Locke.

HERE. adv. [hen, Saxon; here, Dutch.]

1. In this place.

Before they her approach,

Old Sward, with ten thousands lusty men,

All ready at a point, was setting forth.

Shak.

Keep residence.

Milton.

Here Nature first begins

Her earthen verge.

While he has none that may sunder her.

Cowley.

To-day is ours, we have it here.

Cowley.

2. In the present state.

Thus shall you be happy herds, and more happy hereafter.

Bitter.

It is used in making an offer or attempt.

Then here's for earnest.

Dryden.

'Tis faith and drinking a health.

Here's to thee, Dick.

Cowley.

However, friend, here's to the king, one cries.

To him who was the king, the friend replies.

Prior.

It is often opposed to there; in one place, distinguished from another.

Good old fellows, do you think?

What doth that bode weeping?

'Tis neither here nor there.

Shak.

Othello.

We are come to see thee fight, to see thee frown, to see thee travel, to see thee there, to see thee there.

Shak.

Then this, then that man's aid, they crave, importune.

Put forth here for help, seek there their followers, Daniel.

Addison.

I would have in the heath some thickened made only of sweet-briar and honey-suckle, and some wild wort among them, and the ground be with yellow flowers; there be sweet, and profuse in the thade; and there be to be in the heath here and there, not in order.

Shak.

The devil might perhaps, by inward suggestions, have drawn in here and there a single profyte.

Addison's Cato.

2. In the king's garden of the Tongue.

Your city, as the dreadful fire, was rebuked, not presently, by raising conceived flames; but at first here a house, and to which, of degrees was joined.

Sprats's Sermons.

He that rides post through a country may be able to name the best determined of men there; and there a plain, a morais, and there a river, woodland in one part, and fawns in another.

Locke.

Here feems, in the following passage, to mean this place.

Burn Farrell, Cordelia, thou art kind.

Thou leftst here, a better where to find.

Shak.

HERABOUTS, adv. [here and about.] About this place.

I saw hereabouts nothing remarkable, except Augustus's bridge.

Addison on Italy.

HEREAFTER. adv. [here and after.]

1. In time to come; in futurity.

How worthy he is, I will leave to appear hereafter.

Barnet.

Rater than rozy him in his own being. Shak.

The grandchild, with twelve tons increas'd perparts

From Canaan, to a land hereafter called

Egypt.

Milton.

Hereafter she from war shall come,

And bring his Tophet peace.

Dryden.

2. In a future state.

You shall be happy here, and more happy hereafter.

Barnet.

HEREAFTER. n. s. A future state. This is a figurative noun, not to be used but in poetry.

'Tis the divinity that difts within us

That makes us think that point out an heir.

Shak.

And intimates eternity.

Milton's Cato.

I till shall wait

Some new hereafter, and a future state.

Prior.

HEREAFT'. adv. [here and after.]

At this.

One man coming to the throne, to receive his domicile, with a garland in his hand, the throne, offered hereafter, demanded what this singularity be．

Herrick.

Herby.

adv. [here and by.] By this.

In what estate the fathers reigned, which were deat before, it is not hereby either one way or other determinative; the heresy, the apostasy.

Addison.

Herrick.

The Moors are not excluded by beauty, there being in this description no confutation of colours.

Brown.

The acquisition of truth is of infinite consequence, hereby we become acquainted with the nature of things.

Watts.

HERE DITABLE. adj. [hereditary, Latin.] Whatever may be occupied as inheritance.

A means being neither hereditary, nor any of his imaginary monarchy hereditary, the power which is now in the world is not that which was Adam's.

Locke.

HERE DITAMENT. n. s. [hereditarian, Latin.] A law term denoting inheritance, or hereditary estate.

HEREDITARY adj. [hereditarian, French; hereditarius, Latin.] Poffessed or claimed by right of inheritance; depending by inheritance.

To thee and thine, hereditary ever.

Remain this sample three of our fair kingdom.

Shak.

Herby.

Have their ingratiation in them hereafter.

Shak.

Th' shall attend

The throne hereditary, and bound his reign

With em's of little bounds, his glory to the heavens.

Milton.

Thus while the mute creation downward bend

Their fight, and to their earthly mother tend,

Man look aside, and with ered eyes

Holds his own hereditary fires.

Dryden's Ode.

When hernick verce his youth shall raise,

Herby.

To hereafter, and hereditary place.

Dryden's Virgil.

HERE DITARILY. adv. [from hereditary.]

By inheritance.

Here is another, who thinks one of the greatest glories of his father was to have distinguished and loved you, and who loves you accordingly.

Pope.

Here.

adv. [here and in.] In this.

How highly foster it may please them with word,
The image contains a page of text that appears to be a historical or philosophical manuscript. The text is written in English and seems to be discussing religious and philosophical concepts. The page contains several paragraphs, some of which are quoted from other works or sources. The text includes references to names such as Hooker, Addison, Baker, and others, suggesting a discussion on religious figures or works. The content seems to delve into theological and philosophical arguments, possibly from a historical period, given the style and language used.

The document appears to be a page from a book or a manuscript, with the text discussing matters of faith, law, and religious practice. The language is formal and scholarly, indicating that it might be an excerpt from a theological or philosophical work. The text includes references to various authors, reflecting a dialogue or comparison of ideas from different sources.

The page is well-organized, with paragraphs neatly aligned and a consistent layout. The text is clear and legible, although the printed quality suggests it might be from an older or scanned document.

The content is rich with historical and philosophical references, indicating a deep engagement with religious and intellectual discourse. The text likely discusses the nature of religious heresy, its impact, and the role of religious authorities in addressing it.
H E R

HEROES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A heroine; a female hero. Not in ufe. In this, which was hyd, fide dife, Subjects and beneficts. Chapman.

HEROICAL adj. [from hero.] Befitting an hero; noble; illuftrious; heroick.

HEROICK adj. [from hero.] Befitting an hero; noble; iliuftrious; heroick.

HEROICKLY adv. [from hero.] After the way of an hero; fuitably to an hero. Not heroickly in £irving his tyannical coue. Sidney.

HEROICK, adv. [from hero; heroique, Fr.]

2. Noble; fituable to an hero; brave; magnanimous; intrepid; enterprizing; illuftrious.

3. Heroically adv. [from hero.] Suitable to an hero. Heroically is more frequent and more analogical.

HEROE. n. f. [from hero; heroine, Fr.] A female hero. Anciently, according to English analogy, heroi.; but into worth, that fortune can controul, New-draught and dibber bent her father's foul; The heroi; affum'd the woman's place, Confin'd her mind, and forc'éd her face. Dryden.

HEROISM. n. f. [heroisme, Fr.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINE. n. f. [heroin, Fr.] A bird that feeds upon fish.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; heroine, Fr.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

1. The jealous over-worn widow and her elf; Since that my brother dabb'd them genitives, Are mighty goblins in this monarchy.

HEROES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A place where heroes breed.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A heroically endowed woman. Heroiny.

HEROIN. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A venomous, defpife, heroiny.

HEROIN. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A heroically endowed woman. Heroiny.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROINE. n. f. [heroin, Fr.] A female hero. Anciently, according to English analogy, heroi.; but into worth, that fortune can controul, New-draught and dibber bent her father's soul; The heroi; affum'd the woman's place, Confin'd her mind, and forc'éd her face. Dryden.

HEROISM. n. f. [heroisme, Fr.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.

HEROISM. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] The qualities or cour. of an hero.

HEROINES. n. f. [from hero; herois, Lat.] A female individual, as distinguished from others.
H E W

Hewer. n. f. [from hew.] One whose employment is to cut wood or stone. At the building of Solomon's temple there were four score thousand hewers in the mountains.

H E X A G O N, n. f. [hexagon, French; & g. & yun.] A figure of six sides or angles: the most capacious of all the figures without any interference; and therefore the cells in honey-combs are of that form.

H E X A G O N A L, adj. [from hexagon.] Having six sides or corners. As it is a figure of crystal, it is for the most part hexagonal, or six-cornered. Brown.

Many of them shoot in regular figures; as crystal and balsam diamonds into hexagonal. Ray.

H E X A G O N Y, n. s. [from hexagon.] A figure of six angles.

When I read in St. Ambrose of hexagons, or hexagonal cells of bees, did I therefore conclude that they were mathematicians? Drury.

Hexahedrons. [g. & j.) & j.) A figure of six faces.

The Latin hexameter has more feet than the English heroic. Dryden.

H E X A N G U L A R, adj. [g. & angulis, Lat.] Having six corners.

Hexagonal figures or shoots of crystal. Woodward.

H E X A P O D, n. f. [g. & ποδ. & j.) An animal with six feet.

I take those to have been the hexapods, from which the general name of beetles comes; for that sort of hexapods are eaten in America. Ray.

H E X A S T I C K, n. f. [g. & j.) A poem of six lines.

Hey, interj. [from high.] An expression of joy or mutual exhilaration; the contrary to the Latin bei.

Shadwell from the town retires,
To blest the town with peaceful ylick.
Then hey for praise and peregriny.
Prior.

Hey-day, interj. [for hi, b.-day.] An expression of frolick and exultation, and sometimes of wonder.

Thou canst not soon he come kin to thee,
Thou spendst such hey-day wit in praising him.

Shakespeare.

'Twas a strange riddle of a lady,
Not love, if any lod'd her, hey-day!
Hudibras.

Hey-day. n.f. A frolick; wildness.

At thy age
The hey-day, when blood is tame, it's humble,
And waitest upon the judgment.
Shakespeare.

He's deceives, n.f. A wild frolick; dance, Obolete.

But friendly fairies met with many graces,
And dainty nymphs can chaste the lingering night.
With Hey-days, and trimly trodden steps.
Shakespeare.

H I A T I O N. n. f. [from bia, Lat.] The act of gaping.

Men obliterating the continual blation, or holding open their nostrils' mouth, conceived the intention thereof to receive the aliment of air; but this is also occasioned by the greatness of the lungs. Dryden.

H I A T U S. n. f. [biaitus, Latin.]

1. An aperture; a gaping breach.

That biaitus is at the bottom of the sea, whereby the abyss below opens into and communicates with it.

2. The opening of the mouth by the facilitating of an initial to a final vowel.

The Ancient Hebrews freely used more care in poetry than in oratory; and we would try to prevent it, when the cutting it off is more prejudicial to the sound than the sense itself.

Pope.

H I C COU G H, n. f. [bickus, Dan.] A convulsion of the stomack producing fumes. So by an old fashion of late I heard an echo supernumerary.

Through imperialism, and the voice restore,
As till she had the bickus of terror andGVon. Caxton,Sometimes cured the bickus, and its prevention unto women in hard labours. Brown's Vaguer Ear.

If the stomack be hurt, flegmant or bickus following,
A woman nothing. Woff. To Hiccough.

H i c w a y. n. A public road.

To Hiccough. n. [from the noun.]

To sob with convulsion of the stomack.

To Hiccup. n. v. [corrupted from bick- cough.] To sob with a convulsed stomack.

Quech, he bid me not to love,
To disturb my pulse to move,
My heart to grow, my ears to tick up,
Or, when I'm in a fit to bickup.
Hudibras.

H I D, v. adj. To hide.

H i d d e n. [part. pass. of hide.] To hide.

Thus fame shall be achieved, renown on earth;
And what most merits fame, in silence bids, Milton.

Other hidden causes
Left them suspended. Milton.

Nature and natural slaves lay hid in night:
God said, Let Newton be, and all was light. Pope.

His reasons are as two grains of wheat in two handfuls of chaff. Shakesp. Merchant of Venice.

Nile beasts him knocking at for'rest gates,
And seeks his hidden springs, and his nephew's fates.
Dryden.

The fire of gods and men below:
What I have hidden, hope not thou to know. Dryden.

The fe'ral parts lay hid in the piece;
The occasion but existed, so this,
Jesus was with evil spirits, calling them forth.
The channel, on a bridge from shore to shore. Dryden.

With what affrontment and vexation may we look into our own interior, and there with such hidden store of virtue and knowledge, such inaccessible sources of perfection? Addison.

To H I D E. v. n. a. verb; hid; part. pass. hid or hidden. [Dan; Saxon.] To conceal to withhold or withdraw from sight or knowledge.

Enter, and quit my fight; let the earth hide thee! Skelos.

Then for my person a holy grace provide,
Which love and me from publick view from my face. Dryden.

The crafty being made a much longer voyage than Ulysses, passes in practice many more miles, and hides himself under a greater variety of shapes. Addison.

Hell trembles at the fight, and hides its head
In utmost darkness, while on earth each heart
In peace, without a thought word, is hid.
L'Espr.

To H I D E. n. To lie hid; to be concealed.

A fat, hard run, begg'd of a countryman to help him to some hiding place.

Our HIDE, its full view display'd;
Your virtues open fair in the shade.
Burd to dispulse, in publick 'tis you hide,
Where none distinguished 'twixt your thame and pride,
Wakeland or destituential.

H I D E and SEEK, n. f. A play in which some hide themselves, and another seeks. They.
HID

The boys and girls would venture to come and take bids and look in my hair. Collin's Travels.

HIDE, n. [Byrce, Saxon; bande, Dutch.] 1. The skin of any animal, either raw or dried. The trembling win on past Through nine hilt-bides, each under other place. On a. Dryden. 2. Hidatus was first to grasp their hands, and spread felt bides upon the yellow hands. Pope.

3. A certain quantity of land. [Hide, byrce, Saxon; bida, barbarous Latin, as much as one plough can till.] Anyworth.

Hideoke, adj. [hide and bound.] 1. A horse is fald to be hidebound when his skin sticks so hard to his ribs and back, that you cannot with your hand pull up, or loosen the one from the other. It sometimes comes by poverty and bad keeping; at others times from over-riding, or a furious. Farrar's Dict.

2. In trees. Being in the state in which the bark will not give way to the growth. A root of a tree may be hidebound, but it will not keep open without some sort put into it. Like tinted hidebound vines, that just have got sufficient sap at once to bear and run. Swift.

3. Harsh; untractable, and hard to be bound or hidebound. The damnable prove, become the tender. Heidel. 4. Niggardly; penurious; parsimonious. Anyworth.

Hiedous, adj. [hidous, Fr.] 1. Horrible; dreadful; shocking. He could have turned himself to as many forms as Proteus, every form should have been made hideous. Sidney.

Some monster in thy thoughts, Too hideous to be the face of men. Shakep., Obel. And hid, and croy'd out death! Hell trembled at the hideous name and figh'd From all her caves, and back unwonded, death. Milton.

Her eyes grew fayen'd, and with sulphur burn'd Her hideous looks and hellish form return'd Her curing fancies with hissing tells the place And open all the stinks of her face. Dryden.

2. It is commonly used of ribble objects: the following ufe is lefs autrified. Tin is used through the lustres at the botom of the tub with such wonderfu; that it guli fact into the most horrible distortions, making it rage and rear with a most hideous and amazing noise. Woodward's Nat. Hist. Dill.

3. It is used by Spencer in a fentence not now retained; detestable. Old hang'd danger of domination! Spenser. Hardeously, adv. [from hideous.] Horribly; dreadfully; in a manner that chokes. I am myself To welcome the condition of the time; Which cannot look more hideous on me. I then have drawn it in my tawny. Shakespeare.

This is the present application, is hideous; profession; but he is an intelligible, Collin's Denomination.

Hiderousness, n. f. [from hideous.] Horribleness; dreadfulness; terror. I'berk, m. f. [from the verb.] He that hides.
4. Elevated in rank, or condition: as, high

5. Boastful; ostentatious.

6. Difficult; abstruse.

7. Violent; tempestuous; loud. Applied to the wind.

8. Tumultuous; turbulent; ungovernable.

10. At the most perfect state; in the meridian: as, by the fun it is high noon: whence probably the foregoing expression, high time.

11. High in the world, neither is it time that the cattle should be gathered.

12. Dear; exorbitant in price.

13. Covered with high piles.

14. When which the king of Gods beheld from high, he high'd. Dryden.

15. On high. Aloft; above; into superior regions.

16. High is much used in composition with variety of meaning.

19. Capital; great; opposed to little: as, high treason, in opposition to petty.

20. Rais'd to high piles.
HIN

Hinder, adj. [from bind]. That which is in a position contrary to that of the faces: opposed to to. Bear, fighting with any man, stand upon their hinder feet, and to this did, being ready to give me a shrewd embrace. In the hind foot is the horse stuck to the mountain, while the body reared up in the air, the poet with great difficulty kept himself from falling off his back.

Hindrance. n. f. [from hinder]. Impediment; let; stop; obstruction: with of, sometimes with to, before the thing hindered; with to before the person.

False opinions, touching the will of God to have things done, are wont to bring forth mighty and violent pretexts against the hinderances of them, and those praises new opinions, more pernicious than the first; yea, most extremely sometimes oppositive to the first. They must be in every Christian church the same, except more impossibility of so having it, be the hindrance.

Hindering, n. s. [from hinder]. He or that which hinders or obstructs.

Brakes, great hinderers of all growing, growth. May.

HIP

Hypocris. adj. [from bind]. A paltry, worthless, degenerate animal.

H'P

Hip. n. [hip]. A part of the body.

1. Joint of the thigh.
   How now, which of your hips has the most profound flaw? Shakespeare.

Hippocrates. [from Hippo, River]. Hippocrates, the first of the eminent physicians, in his time, was generally high-stood with the Greeks.

1. Opposite, to.
   To bring to mind by a hint, or relative allusion; to mention imperfectly. Willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike, felt a faint and hesitating dislike. Shakespeare.

To hint at; to allude to; to touch lightly upon.

2. Suggestion; intimation.
   His hint of the little cake.
   She'd me for the danger I had pifi'd. Shakespeare.

1. Find notice given to the mind; remote allusion; direct mention. Let him firstly observe the first striplings and intimations, the first hints and whispers of good and evil, that pass in his heart.

2. The first hint, a first guess.

To be on the hip. [A low phrase.]
To have an advantage over another. It seems to me from hunting, the hip or beacon of a deer being the part commonly feized by the dogs.

If this poor branch of Venice, whom I cherish, for his quick hunting, Rand the putting on, I'll have our Michael Caffo on the hip. Shakespeare.

Hippocrene. adj. [from Hipopethras]. A place of the ancients. The fountain of the god Poseidon, near the Mount Hangnitos, from which the ancients were accustomed to draw water for their use in their sacrifices. Dryden.

To Hir. n. a. [from Jup.].

1. To procure any thing for temporary use at a certain price.
   His footstool aware rakes in excrescences, and hires the jakes. Dryden, Juvenal.

2. To engage a man in temporary service for wages.
   'Tis weigh sugar in the balance, and hire a goldsmith, and he maketh it a god. S. ait. 6.

3. To hire a bear to bear their favors.
   Shakespere.

4. To engage for pay: with the reciprocal word.
   They that were full, hired out themselves for bread; and they that were hungry, ceded. Sam. ii.

5. To let; to set for a time at a certain price.
   And he gives it to the hawk, who sometimes the particle out; as, he hired out his house to strangers.

Hire. n. s. [Hype, Saxon.]

1. Reward or recompense paid for the use of any thing.
2. Wages paid for service.

Great thanks and goodly need to that good fire, he thence departing gave for his palm tree. Spenser. I have six hundred crowns, the thirsty hire I find under your fathers. Shakespeare. Though little was their hire, and light their gain, you did not subtract of what was there. Dryden. All arts and artists Thefeus could command, Who sold for hire, or wrought for better fame. Dryden.

Hireling. n. s. [from hire].

1. One who serves for wages.
   The hireling long to see the flades defended, That with the tedious day his toil might end. And he his pay receive. Sandys. The framing of Hiero's ship there were three hundred carpenters employed for a year, besides many other hirelings for carriages. Hildesley. This frequent here to see a freethorn hired. On the left hand of a rich hireling run. Dryden, Juv.

2. A mercenary; a prostitute.

Now the flades the evening walk with bays, Nut hireling he, no prostitute to praise. Pope.

HIR

Hires, n. f. [hires, French]. A miserly, rapacious, avaricious; greedy. Succiptura, Fr. A fabulous monster, half horse, and half man.

How are poetical fictions, how are hypocrites and chimeras to be imagined, which are things quite out of nature, and wherein we can have no notion. Dryden.

Hippocras. n. f. [hypo, Greek; quasi vivum Hippocratis]. A medicated wine.

Hippocrates. [from Hipo and crose]. The wine, Sack and the well-spic'd hippocras, the wine, one of the bowl; with ancient ribbands fine. King.

Hippocret's Sleeves. n. f. A woollen bag, made by joining the two opposite angles of a square piece of flannel, used to strain syrups and decoctions for clarification.

Hippocras. n. f. [Hypo and cras]. A winged horse; a being imagined by the orioo.

He caught him without, and upon wing of hippocras bore through the air sublime. Milton.

Hippopotamus. n. f. [Hypo and potamus]. The river horse. An animal found in the Nile.

Hirshot. adj. [hip and flat]. Sprained or dilocated in the hip.

Why do you go meddling and wagging like a toad, is it if you were hire? says the goat to the driving.

Hippopotamus. n. f. [hip and quart]. A plant.

A Hippopotamus, n. f. [from Jeu and termas].

To Hire. n. a. [Hypan, Saxon.]

1. To procure any thing for temporary use at a certain price.
   His footstool aware rakes in excrescences, and hires the jakes. Dryden, Juvenal.

2. To engage a man in temporary service for wages.
   'Tis weigh sugar in the balance, and hire a goldsmith, and he maketh it a god. S. ait. 6.

3. To hire a bear to bear their favors.
   Shakespere.

4. To engage for pay: with the reciprocal word.
   They that were full, hired out themselves for bread; and they that were hungry, ceded. Sam. ii.

5. To let; to set for a time at a certain price.
   And he gives it to the hawk, who sometimes the particle out; as, he hired out his house to strangers.

Hire. n. s. [Hype, Saxon.]

1. Reward or recompense paid for the use of any thing.
2. Wages paid for service.

Great thanks and goodly need to that good fire, he thence departing gave for his palm tree. Spenser. I have six hundred crowns, the thirsty hire I find under your fathers. Shakespeare. Though little was their hire, and light their gain, you did not subtract of what was there. Dryden. All arts and artists Thefeus could command, Who sold for hire, or wrought for better fame. Dryden.

Hireling. n. s. [from hire].

1. One who serves for wages.
   The hireling long to see the flades defended, That with the tedious day his toil might end. And he his pay receive. Sandys. The framing of Hiero's ship there were three hundred carpenters employed for a year, besides many other hirelings for carriages. Hildesley. This frequent here to see a freethorn hired. On the left hand of a rich hireling run. Dryden, Juv.

2. A mercenary; a prostitute.

Now the flades the evening walk with bays, Nut hireling he, no prostitute to praise. Pope.
HIS

HIBERNING. adj. Serving for hire; renal; mercenary; doing what's done for money. Then trumpers, torches, and a tedious crew Of bidding mourners for his funeral use. Dryden.

HILL, n. [from bile.]
1. One who uses any thing paying a recompence; one who employs others paying wages.
2. In footland it denotes one who keeps small horses to let.

HIN'SU'RE, adj. [hisitor, Latin.] Rough; rugged.
There are bushbub, fibbous, and hisborton roots: the bushbub is a middle far, between the bushbub and the fibbous; that, before putting forth flap upwards and downwards, produced forth in round. Barlow.

HIST. pronoun possessive. [By] Saxon.
I. The masculine possessive. Belonging to him that was before mentioned. England his places makes as fierce As waters to the foaking of a sulk. Shaksp. A. V.
You shall offend him, and extend his punishment. Shak.
Haven's and yourself.
Had part in your fair maid; now hear hath all, And all the better he was. Shak. He dare part in your fair maid; But hearken keeps bit part in eternal life. Shak.sp. If history with such disposition as he bears this last surrender'd of bits, it can we fend us. Shaksp. His that is nourished by the acres he picked up under an oak in the wood, has appropriated them to himself: nobody can deny but the nourishment is his. Locke.
Whence'th I sleep, he offers at a kiss; And when my arms I flanch, he bends his kiss. Addyson.
2. It was ancienly used in a neutral sense where we now say its. When I cam across food, bid the tree.
Not the dreadful stair.
Shall deny with more clamour Nuptis ear.
In his decent. Shaksp. Troilus and Cressida.
There's not the smallest orch, which thou befallst it, But in his motion, like an angel song, Still quelling to the young-ear'd cherubins. Shaksp.
'the rule is not the general, but that it winneth this exceptional. Carret's Survey of Cornwall.
Opium loose some of his poisonous quality if it be prepared, mingled with spirituous wine. Bacon.
3. It is sometimes as a sign of the genitivecase; as the man, his ground, for the man's ground. It is now rarely thus used, as its use proceeded probably from a false opinion that the definitive, or the genitive was his contracted.
Where is this mankind now who livest age Fin to be made, Montesquieu's page? Donne.
By thy food content, by thy father's care,
By young Telescope his blooming years. Pope.
4. It is sometimes used in opposition to this man's.
Were I king,
I should cut off the nobles for their hands,
Deface his jewels, and this other's house. Shaksp.
5. Anciently before itself. It was used, each for his self, laboured how to recover him.

To His. n. [kiffen, Dutch.]

To utter a noise like that of a serpent and some other animals. It is remarkable that this word cannot be pronounced without making the noise which it signifies.
In the height of this bath to be thrown into the Thames and cooled glowing hot, in that figure, like a horsehead; think of that; kiffen hot. Shaksp.
The merchants shall kiffen at thee. Enev. xvi. 36. See the furies arise:

See the furies that they rear,
How they kiff in their hair. Dryd. Alexander's Feast.
Against the thief he threw
His forcible pears, which, kiffing as it flew,
Pierced eight of his holding stakes. Dryden.

2. To condemn at a publick exhibition; which is sometimes done by kiffing.
Men shall pursuie with mocked disgrace;
Kiff their clap, and from his country gone.
Sandy.

To His'sor, a. [By} Saxon.]
1. To condemn by hissing; to expel.
Every one will kiff him out to his disgrace.
Eclog. t. 11.
She would so shamefully fall in the last act, that instead of a plaudite, she would be done to be kiffed off the stage.
More.
I have seen many sycophants of men, who have flatterd themselves into the world, some boasting out upon the stage with vast applause, and others kiffed off, and quitted with it disgrace. Dryden.
Will you procure your all upon a cause, which would be kiffed out of all the courts as ridiculous?
Call it on Dwellign.

2. To procure hifles or disgrace.
Thy mother plays, and I.
Play too; but in thy part, which is they will kiff me to my grave. Shaksp. Winter's Tale.
What's the newest grief?
That of an hour's age打折 the speaker.
Each minute of it, as it is seen, Shaksp. Macbeth.

Hiss. n. f. [from the verb.]
1. The voice of a serpent, and of some other animals.
He kiffs for his return'd, with forked tongue. Milton.
To forked tongue.
2. Censure; expression of contempt used in theatres.
He heard
On all sides, from innumerable tongues,
A dismal universal kiff, the sound
Of publick fear.
Fierce voices of fortune, that knows no fear.
Of difgrace, or voices, or less of care. Pope.

Hist. interj. [Of this word I know not the original: some thought it a corruption of huzz, hub it, hub, hub; but I have heard that it is an Irish verb commanding silence.] An exclamation commanding silence.
—Now, my God, kiff long!
—Let Philomel sing a song,
—A broken hearted lullaby.

Sirius.

Historian. n. f. [historicus, Latin; historia, French.] A writer of facts and events; a writer of history.
What thanks's sufficient, or what recompence Equal, I have to render thee, divine Hobiton.
Our country, which has produced writers of the first figure in every other kind of work, has been very barren in good hisstoricus. Addyson.
Not added years; on years my tusk could clothe,
The long hisstoricus of my country's wars,
Pope.

HISTORICAL. adj. [hisistoricus, French; historical.]

1. Containing or giving an account of facts and events.
Because the beginning feetsenth abrupt, it needs that you know the occasion of these several adventures; for the whole is a poet hisstorial is much so, as of an hisstoricus. Spenser.
In an historical relation we use terms that are much proper and best known.

2. Suitable or pertaining to history or narrative.
HISTORICALLY, adv. [from hisistoricus.]

In the manner of history; by way of narration.
The goffers, which are weekly read, do all hisstorically declare the thing which our Lord Jesus Christ himself either spoke, did or didst in his own person.
Hooker.
When that which the word of God doth but deliver historically, we conclude as if it were legally meant, and so urge it further than we can prove it was intended, do we not add to the laws of God?
Hooker.

After his life has been rather invented than written, I shall consider him hisistoricus as an author, with regard to those works he has left behind him.

To HISTORIFY. v. a. [from history.] To relate; to record in history.
O, mule, hissistory.
Her praise, whose praise to learn thy self hath framed me.
Sidney.

The third age they term historicum; that is, such wherein matters have been more truly hisstorial, and therefore may be believed. Brown's Plato's Err.

HISTORIOGRAPHY. n. f. [sistoricus and -graphy; hisstoriographer, French.] An historian; a writer of history.
A method of a poet hisstorical is not such as of an hisstoriographer. Spenser.

What poet idea of multy strange conceive of persons famous among us, should they then form the images of them from the writings of those out hisstoriiographers. Addison.

I put the journals into a strong box, after the manner of the hisstoriiographers of some eastern mountain. Arbuthnot's His. of John Bull.

HISTORICAL. n. f. [sistoricus; historia Latin; historic, French.]
A narration of events and facts delivered with dignity.
Juliet Cesar forms the poet's lays:
It is to hisstory he treats for praise.
Pope.

2. Naration; relation.
The hisstory part lay within a little room. Wifem.
What hisstory or other I could not declare
But still long-wanty'd nature wants repair.
Pope.

3. The knowledge of facts and events.
Hissory to far as it relates to the affairs of the bible, it necessarily to divine. Watts.

HISTORY. Piece. n. f. A picture representing some memorable event.
His works resemble a large hisstory piece, where even the least important figures have some convenient place.

HISTORICALLY, adj. [from hisistoricus.]

1. Briefly; for the sake of making the history
2. To touch with a blow.
When I first saw her I was presently frighted and, I like a foolish child, that when any thing hissor he will strike himself again upon it, would needs long again, as though he would perforce make eyes that they were deceived.
Sidney.
His confidence shall bits his teeth in the teeth, and still his heart is full and silly.
South.

3. To touch the mark; not to miss.
Is he a god that ever slie the light?
Or naked, his dumb'd in all truuth?
If he be hid, how shall he lie right?
Sidney.
So blind it is to tremble, and not to err, and to hit the mark with a shaking hand.
South.
To attain; to reach; not to fail; used of tentative experiments.

Were I but twenty-one,
Your father's image is to hit in you,
In such a form that I should call you brother.
Shakespeare.

Search every comment that your care can find,
Some here, some there, all by the poet's light.
RCommack.

Birds learning tunes, and their endeavours to hit the notes right, but it pass doubts that they have perception, and retain ideas, and use them for patterns.

Here's an opportunity to show how great a bungler my author is in birthing features.
Astbury.

To set; to be man, formable to.
Hartmann.

Wholly faintly vidage is too bright
To hit the sense of human light.
Dryden.

To strike; to catch by the right half; to touch properly.
There you hit him: St. Dominick loves charity exceedingly; that argument never falls with him.
Dryden.

To hit off. To strike out; to fix or determine luckily.
With a prince forever can hit off this great secret, need know no more either for his safety, or that of the people he governs.

To hit out. To perform by good luck.
Horn. A sound of ancient poets ringing in his ears, he thought needs in finding bit out one of their tunes.
Spenser.

To hit, v. n.
1. To clench; to collude.
If bodies be extension alone, how can they move and hit one against another? or what can make dif tinct surfaces in an uniform extension?
Locke.

But, texts, and shells being fastened in the water with metallic corpuscles, and the solid cor cpuscles meeting with and hitting upon those bodies, become conjoint with them.
Woodward.

2. To chance luckily; to succeed by accident; not to miss.
All observation falls, and most oft there Where most it promises; and oft it hits
Where hope is coldest and despair most toils.
Shakespeare.

3. To succeed; not to miscarry.
The thousand different bonds of thought would be diversified, and you are to note whether it hits for the most part.

Boston's Nat. Histroy.

But too bring't value too and fire, and
Two things that seldom fall to hit.
Hudibras.
This may hit, 'tis more than barely possible.

Shakespeare.

HIT or HIT. n.s.
A small haven to land wares out of vessels or boats:
As Queenbebe, and Lambibbe, now Lambibbe.

Hither. a. d. v. [hitęp, Sax.]
1. To this place from some other.
Men must endure
Their going hence, even as their coming hither.
Shakespeare.

Who brought me hither
Will bring me hence, no other guide I seek.
Milton.

2. It is used in opposition: hither and thither, to this place and that.

Hither & thither. [fr. hence, in Latin. Hic refer exitum.] Not much used.

Hereupon depending whatsoever diversity there is between the flames of pains in glory; hither refer whatsoever sufferings unto the highest perfection of man, by way of service, towards God.
Hiller.

Hither belong all those texts which require of u
That we should not walk after the flesh, but after the spirit.
HIE.

Hither adj. superlat. hitherto. Nearer towards this part.

After theft.
But on the hither side, a different fort,
From the high light 'way 'way which did extend.
Milton.

An eternal duration may be shorter or longer upon the hither end, namely that extreme when it is finest.

Hitherto. adv. [of hither, and adv.]
Near on this side.

That which is external can be extended too a greater extent, at the hitherto extrem.
Halsey.

Hitherwards. adv. [from hither.]

1. Yet; to this time.
Hitherly I only told the reader what ought to be the subject of a poem or a poem. Dryd.

2. In any time till now.
More ample spirit than hitherly was woof.
Here needs me, while the famous antithet.
Of my most dreadful sovereign I recount.
Fables 3.

3. In any time till now.
In this we are not their adversaries; they in the other hitherly have been ours.
Hiller.

Hitherly, lords, what your commands I been
I am but one, as you are, obeying.
Milton.

Hitherly the kept her loves conceal'd.
And with those graces every day beheld.
The grateful youth.

I cannot have not failed to add the opposition of ill spirits to the good alone; this has hitherly been the practice of the moderns.
Dryd. Jurass.

To correct them, it is a work that hitherly been Asmpted by the leargualized hands.
Swifts.

Hitherward. adv. [hitherwards, Hitherwards.]
Hitherwards. a. d. v. [in Latin. Hic refer exitum.] This way; towards this place.

Some parcels of their power are forthwithly,
And by this manner:

The king himself in person hath let forth,
Or this manner intended speedily.
Shakespeare.

Shakesp. Carlami.

Shakesp. Carlami. and is marching hitherwards in proud array.
Shakespeare. Swifts.

Look now for no enchanting voice, nor fear
The bait of honey'd words; a rougher tongue.
Milton.

Hive. n. s. [hice, Sax.]
1. The habituation or artificial recepctacle of bees.
So bees 'sir smokes, and doves with nolente fruech, are from their blower and houes driven away.
Shakespeare.

So wand'ring bees would perish in the air.

Did not a found, proportion'd to their ear.
Agape those rage, invite them to the blower.
Hiller.

Beat each of them a hole in their blower;
Their honey is their own, and every bee minds her own concerns.
Addison.

2. The bees inhabiting a hive.
The common, like an hazy bee of bees
That want their leaders, scatter up and down.
Shakespeare.

3. A company being together.
What modern madmen call a lodging, was by antiquity called a blower of free man; and therefore, when such blower happens, the going off is to day called swarming.
Swifts.

To hive, v. a. [from the noun.]
1. To put into hives; to harbour.
Mr. Addison of Oxford has been troublesome to me.

Therefore I part with him.
Shakespeare.

When bees are fully settled, and the clutter at the bigger, blow them.
Hortihum.

2. To contain, as in hives; to receive, as to an habitation.

Ambitious now to take excite
Of's more fragrant paradise.
He at Fulcris's free arrive'd.

Where all delicious sweet are hi't. Cleareland.

To hive, v. a. To take shelter together; to refuse collectively.

He seeks by day
More than the wild cat; drones blow not with me.

Therefore I part with him.
Shakespeare.

We wander in a parasitical space,
Among groves and gardens; but at this season we get into warmer houses, and blow together in cities.
Dryd. Jurass.

Hive. n. s. [from bidce.]
One who puts bees in hives.

Let the blower drink a cup of good beer, and wash his hands and face therewith.
Maritimer.

Hive. n. s. [from hive.]
A sudden exclamation to give notice of approach, or any thing else.

What noise there be? Shakespere.

Here dwells my father: bee, who's within? Stace, Shakespeare.
HOA

1. White.

A people,

Whom Ireland sent from bog and forest, to.

Fairfax.

2. Grey with age.

It grow'd was guided evermore

Through wisdom of a master grave and lord.

Spenser.

Now swarms the popular, a countless throng;

Youth and grey hair, and man drives man along.

Pop.

3. White with frost.

HOAR-FROST. n. [hoar and frost.]

The congelations of frost in early mornings on the grass.

When the dew was gone up, behold upon the face of the wildflowers there lay a small round thing, as the dew drops on the hemlock. Eton.

In Fahrenheit's thermometer, at thirty-two degrees the water in the air begins to freeze, which is hoar-frost.

Arbuthnot.

HOR. n. [hop, Saxon.]

A shore laid up in secret; a hidden flock; a treasure.

I have a venturesome fairy, that shall seek

The squirrel's board, and fetch thee thence new stores.

Spalding.

You might have even flared, had it not been for this providential reserve, this board that was flowed in the forests underneath, and now seasonably afforded me food.

To HOAR. n. To make hoards; to lay up store.

He fear'd not once himself to be need,

Nor set'd to board for those whom he did breed.

Spenser.

Happy always was it for that son,

Whose father for his hoarding went to hell.

Shak.

To HOARD. v. a.

1. To lay in hoards; to husband privately; to store secretly.

The boarded plague of the gods require your love.

Shak.

You board not health for your own private use,

But on the public spend the rich produce. Dryden.

You are wise, if you can, but if you cannot, it is observable for the public, that he squanders away the nation's money; but you may fairly relish that he board it.

Arbuthnot's Act of political living.

A superfluous abundance tempts us to forget God, when it is board'd in our treasurers, or considered as a safe, independent provision laid up for many ages.

Rogers.

2. It is sometimes enlightened by the particle up.

I have just occasion to complain of them, who be-cause they understander, would board them up as miers do their grandam gold, only to look on it themselves; and hinder others from making use of it.

Dryden.

The bafe wretch who boards up all he can

Is prais'd, and call'd a careful thrifty man. Dryden.

HOR'DER. n. [from board.]

That stores up in secret.

Some statesmen will be raised, this alteration will be an advantage to nobody but boarders of money.

Locke.

HO'AR'BOUND. n.f. [marrubium, Latin.]

A plant.

Horabound has its leaves and flower-cup covered very thick with a white hoarseness; it is famous for the relief legues in most altitudes, of which a thick and viscid matter is the exude; but it is now little used.

HOR'ARINESS. n.f. [from hoary]. The state of being whitish; the colour of old men's hair.

He grows a wolf, his hoariness remains,

And the same rage in other members reigns. Dryd.

HORSE. adj. [har, Saxon; herd, Dutch.]

Having the voice rough, as with a cold; having a rough found.

Come, fire, and a feast,

Clip into moody, without hawking or spitting,

Of saying we see hoarse. Shak.

The true boors himself is hoarse

That croaks the first entrance of Duncan. Under my battlements. Shak.

He fed his steps along the hoarse rebounding there.

Dryden.

The hoarse doke only through the forest coos,

HOARSELY. adv. [from hoarse.]

With a rough harsh voice.

The hounds at nearest distance slowly bay;

The hunter close purr'd the visionary maid.

Dryd.

HOARNESS. n.f. [from hoarse.]

Roughness of voice.

The voice is sometimes interlaced with an hoar-set,

Or with hoarse phlegm. Shak.

I had the hoar-set in my throat. Thacker.

His hoarse head into a hoarseness. Dryd. King Arthur.

The want of it in the wind-pipe occasions hoarsness

On the gullet, and difficulty of swallowing.

Shak.

HOARY. adj. [from har, harpyn, Saxon.]

See Hors.

1. White; whitish.

Thus the reed on her arm reclined,

The hoary willows waving with the wind. Addis.

2. White or grey with age.

A cow of ancient age, spirited years, and hairs all hoary grey. Spenser.

Solymas, marvelling at the courage and majesty of the hoary old prince in his so great extremity, disarmed him, and lent him again into the city.

Kalid.'s History.

Has then my hoary head defend'd no better. Rev.

Thin in full age and hoary holliness,

Retire, great preacher, to thy promised abids. Prior.

3. White with frost.

The face all hoary head'd frosts

Fall in the top of the crimson rose. Shak.

4. Mouldy; mossy; ruffly.

There was brought out of the city into the camp very coarse, hoary, moulded bread. Kalid.'s History.

HOBBIN. n.f.

This is probably corrupted from hob rob by a coarse pronunciation. See Har har.

His incumbrance at this moment is so impicable, that satisfaction can be none, but pangs of death and sepulture; hoobin is his word; goit, strangle.

To HOBBLE. v. n. [to hop, to hobble, to bubble.

1. To walk lamely or awkwardly upon one leg more than the other; to hitch; to walk with unequal and incumbered feet.

The friar was hobbling the same way too. Dryden.

Some personnes continued a kind of hobbling march on the broken arrow, but fell through. Addis.

Was he ever able to walk without leading strings, without being discovered by his hobbling? Swift.

2. To move roughly or unevenly. Feet being often so crooked, whatever is done with feet is likewise affected to them.

Those ancient Romans had a sort of extemporaneous poetry, or not unusual h obbling verse. Dryd.

While you findrick truth rehearse,

She hobbles on. Frier.

HOBB. n.f. [from the verb.] Upsetted awkward gait.

One of his heels is higher than the other, which gives him a hobble in his gait. Goldi.'s Travels.

HOBBLE. n.f. [from hobbler, John.]

For twenty hobbler arms, Irishmen so called, because they served on hobbler, he paid six-pence a-piece per diem. Dorn.

HOBBLINGLY. adv. [from hobbler.] Clumsily; awkwardly; with a halting gait.

HOBBY. n.f. [from the French.]

1. A species of hawk.

They have such a hovering disposition of the Valentine, as a hobby hath over a lark. Baines.

The people will stop, like trout on an artificial stream; dare, like larks under the axe of a painted hobby. L'Estrange.

Hurtle the air to join the hobby's flight. Dryd.

2. [Hopper, Gottick, a horse; hob, fr. a pacing horse.] An Irish or Scottish horse, a pacing horse; a garran. See Horbler.

3. A trick on which boys get aside and ride.

Those grave counterfeiters of opinionative trusses look like aged Socrates upon his boy's hobby horse.

At young children, who are try'd in such matters, to keep their legs from slipping.

When members wink, and legs grow stronger, Make the most of the machine no longer. Swift.

But leg, pride, and foot,

On horse call'd hobby, or without. Prior.

Hobby-horse, a

Could with this Rod of Sid campaign. Swift.

4. A Rapid fellow.

I have studied eight or nine wise words to speak to you, which these hobby horses must not hear. Spenser.

HOBBOLIN. n.f. [according to Skinner, for robogoblin, from Robin Goodfellow, hob the being the nickname of Robin : but more probably, according to Wallis and Jomin, hop bobgoblin, empfia, because they do not move their feet: whence, says Wallis, came the boys play of fox in the hole, the fox always hopping on one leg.] A frightful fairy.

Fairies, black, grey, green and white.

Attend your office and your quality.

Gibber bogomile, make the fairy o. yes. Shak.

HOBBIT. n.f. A small mortar to shoot little stones.

HOBBY. n.f. [from hobby and saill.] A nail used in shoeing a hobby horse or. a nail with a thick strong head. Steel, if thou turn thine edge, I beseech thee on my knees thou mayst be turn'd into hoobis.

We shall buy maidens as they buy holmains, by the hundred. Shak.

HOBBY TOOK A. v. a. [from the noun.] To disable in the hook.

HOCK. n.f. [from Hockin, on Hockamore.]

1. The Mower. Old strong Rhenic

Refined by the fining, high and mighty.

With brandy, wine, and aqua vitae.

And made 'em stoutly overcome

With brach, Hackmore and more. Hidberh.

Wine becomes thar, as lock, like vitriolic acid.

Feyer.

If cider-royal should become unpleasing, and weath to bottle as old Hackmore, mark that hoghead

The text is difficult to read due to the unusual handwriting and formatting. It appears to be a literary work, possibly a play or a poetic text, but the context and meaning are not clear. The text includes various elements such as names, dates, and references to other works and authors, which suggest it is a scholarly or literary piece. Without clearer handwriting, it is challenging to provide a coherent and natural representation of the document.
Observe the youth who first appears in sight. Dryden.

14. To pose to; to have.

He broke, to the delight of those who understood the name of Rosine. La Fontaine.

Like a savaging greyhound in the leaf, To let him slip at will. Dryden.

The plague makes a return, a return of God to his command to be suffered. Steele.

Assuredly it is more fame for a man to lose that which he hobbler, than to fall in getting that which he may obtain. Gay.

15. To pose in subordination.

He was willing to yield himself unto Solomon as his vassal, and of him to hold his fealty for a year and a day in his gift. Kntdili.

The terms too hard by which I was to hold

The good. Milton.

16. To suspend; to refrain.

Men in the midst of their own blood, and to forlornly affright, hold their hands, contrary to the laws of nature and necessity. Death! what doth! I hold thy blow

What thou doth, thou dost not know. Crashaw.

17. To flit; to float.

We cannot hold mortality's strong hand. Steele.

Fell, bearing hug! inchanters, hold thy tongue. Dryden.

When at the people, by no face CDspair'd,

Nor longer from their inclination held,

Break forth at once. Whittier.

Under a head or occasion, hold thy tongue. Dryden.

Thyself or others, careless talk may wrong. Dryden.

Hold your laughter, then divest your fellow-servants.

Swift.

18. To fix to any condition.

His gracious promise you might,

As scarce had call'd you up, have hold to.

Steele.

19. To keep; to save.

Stay but a little; for my cloud of dignity

Is hold from falling with too weak a wind.

That it will quickly drop? my day is dim. Steele.

20. To confine to a certain state.

The Moth High then flew'd for them, and Hold fill the feast, 'till they were pulled over.

2 Edyr. xii. 14.

21. To detain; to keep in confinement or subjection.

Him God hath rais'd up, having hoo'd the pains of death, because it was not possible that he should be hold of it. Acts.

22. To retain; to continue.

These reasons mov'd her fair husband's heart;

He hold his love to a woman to depair. Dryden.

23. To practice with continuance.

Night

And cheer, snuff'd of nature, held

Eternal arch, Milton.

24. To inordinate.

Sordid-thine and harvest, heat and hoary frost,

Shall hold their course. Milton.

25. To ostentate; to celebrate.

The queen this day here holds her parliament,

But little thinks we shall be of her council. Steele.

He bear'st a head in thy bace like a king of a king. 1 Sam.

26. To conserve; not to infringe.

His husband heard is, and hold his peace.

27. To solemnize.

To all the confluence derift, that with the confluence of wit, in being able to hold all arguments, than of judgment in determining what is true. Bacon.

28. To maintain.

Whereupon they also made engines against their engines, and held them battle a long season.

1 Mir. vi. 52.

29. To carry on conjunctively.

The Phaecian bold a counsel against him, Matthew.

A while discourse they hold.

Milton.

30. To procreate; to continue.

He came to the land's end, where he hold his cowards to the sea, Web, did at length persever'd through the storms.

Abbev.

31. To hold forth. To offer, to exhibit; to propose.

Chisholm came into the world with the greatest simplicity of thought and language, as well as life and manners; nor ever was there a more perfect, more charitable, and humbly, with the belief of the Messiah and of his kingdom. Temple.

Observe the condition of ideas in the propositions, which hold forth and proceed to teach as truths.

Locke.

My account is so far from interfering with Moses, that it holds forth a natural interpretation of his, of his sense.

Dartrey.

32. To hold forth; to proceed; to put forward to view.

How joyous and pleasant a thing it is to have a light hold as forth from heaven to discovering them:

Clym.

33. To hold in; to restrain; to govern by the bridle.

I have lately told my eag, and honestly told his greatest fault, which is, that he became and hold ideas of liberty, that I could force hold him in.

Swift.

34. To hold in; to refrain in general.

Their men hallucinate the warmest part of you doth not command, which was the case the ear of dying hold off the sound a little from the organ.

Holst.

I am the better acquainted with you for absence, as more will be held. And absence doth but hold a friend, to make a friend, to make on his heart.

Pipe to Swift.

35. To hold off; to keep at a distance.

Although I in the Cape Callo have his place;

Yet if you please to hold him in, you shall by that receive him. Steele.

36. To hold on; to continue; to protract; to push forward.

They took Barbarber, holding on his course to Algeria, who brought great fear upon the country. Kntdili's History.

If the obedience challenged were indeed due, then did our brethren both begin the quarre and quiet. Sanverson.

37. To hold out; to extend; to stretch forth.

The King hold out to Esther the golden FPoke that was in his hand.

Elsa. 2.

38. To hold out; to offer; to propose.

Fortune hold out these to you as rewards. Ben Jonson.

39. To hold on; to continue to do or suffer.

He cannot long hold out these pans,

Th' incontinent care and labour of his mind. Steele.

40. To hold up. To raise aloft.

I should remember him: does he not hold up his head, as it were, and stiff in his gait? Steele.

The hand of the Almighty visibly hold up, and prepared to take vengeance. Locke.

41. To hold up. To sustain; to support by influence or compulsion with they had held themselves longer in, and we'll do directly inwardly.

Holst.

42. To hold up. To sustain; to support by influence or compulsion. He had been at once either excellently good or extremely evil, but grows either as he holds himself up in virtue, or lets himself slide to viciousness. Cowley.

43. To hold up. To sustain; to support by influence or compulsion. There is no man at once either excellently good or extremely evil, but grows either as he holds himself up in virtue, or lets himself slide to viciousness. Cowley.

44. To hold up. To sustain; to support by influence or compulsion. It followed, that all which they do in this they proceed originally from some such great as knoweth, eth, appoiniteth, holdeth up, and actually frameth the same. Hooker.

45. To hold in common. To hold them, to crush us, and to counterfeit this monstrous form.

To hold our fire.

Steele.

46. To hold up. To sustain; to support by influence or compulsion. And to succeed of mischief shall be borne, and their heart shall hold their quarrel up. Shaks.

These princes have hold up their sovereignty which, they have been forsaking by their will. Steele.

47. To hold up. To sustain; to support by influence or compulsion. Then doth not flinche him dead with a denial, but hold him up in life, and chear his soul.

With the faint glimmering of a doubtful hope. Addison's Cato.
That things had their production always as now they have. When Granada for your uncle held. Yes was by no reason tried, he expected. Dryden.

Numbers held
With the faint flicker king and beard of gold: So much as there was of all the rest. Nay, you can but know your fortune well. Siddons.

The mother, if the bowl held of the lady, had rather, yes and will have her food running and hold. Dryden.

The great barons had not only great numbers of knights, but even petty barons holding under them. Swift.

My own richer, and freed of none. Dryden.

To be dependant on.
The other two were great princes, though holding of him: men both of giant-like hugenoms and able. Sidney.

Wit...well it therefore, if from Carrick, a Dryden.

A three...Ashdon.

...The house of...the village, or the Thorne, for Dryden.

...To support himself.
All the wise sayings which philosophers could utter ay, have helped only to support some few foot and obtuse minds, which, without the slight

...Shakespeare.

...Powers...influence operating on the mind. Rural.

...To...To hold fast. The Tranck. One times...Annual.

...To...To range. bear; men, Cuffdy.

...With...With will, Dryden.

...To...To hold up. Not to be foul weather. Though rose and dark like points appear, Quoth Ralph, it may hold up and place. Hiffion.

...To...To continue the same speed. When two that into the world together, the succeth of the first seems to prefer upon the reputation of the last; for why could not be bold and age? John Dryden.

...The appearance of an interjacent city, is the impertinent mood. For hear; drop; be still. Addison.

...Hold...Hold thee. To adhere to; to cooperate with. There is none that holds well in me these things but Michael. Dryden.

...The house has the appearance of an interjacent city, is the impertinent mood. For hear; drop; be still. Addison.

...Hold...Hold off. To keep at a distance without doing with others. There are interjacent cities important enough, and yet we must be wise enough to consider them; they, that does not prevail neutrally, but with a peremptory five we hold off. Decay of Piety.

...To...To continue; not to be interrupted. The trade held on for many years after the foreign men...Philips.

...To...To hold on. He hold on however, till he was upon the very point of breaking. L'Estrange.

...To...To hold out. To last; to endure. Before those dews that form manna came upon the mountain, they disipated, and could hold out. Baron.

...At...At as there are mountebanks for the natural body so are there mountebanks for the political body; men that perhaps have been lucky in two or three experiments, but want the grounds of science, and therefore cannot hold out. Baron. Truth, fidelity, and justice, are a fare way of thriving, and will hold out; when all fraudulent arts and devices will fail. Tileston.

...By...By an exactly extreme regimen a consumption the patient may hold out for years; if the symptoms are not violent. Ambroins.

...To...To hold out. Not to yield; not to be subdued. The great merit went with his company to a plague; his apostate, fore charged by Achilles, had much ado to hold out. Knolles's History.

You think it strange a person, obliquous to those he loves, should hold out so long against importance. Dryden.

Nor could the hardest in't hold out. Against his blows. Hadibras.

...But...But yet my heart hold out. Dryd. Spaniol. Pryor.

...The...The citizen of Milan has hold out temerity, after the conquest of the rest of the dutchy. Addison.

...That...That you have; that you want. Pierce Egan.

...To...To hold out, and fight it to the last. Or are your hearts sub'd at 10'tm. and wrought, by time and ill success, to a submission. Addison.
1. Cavity: state of being hollow. If you throw a stone or a dart, they give you no sound; nor more do bullets, except they happen to be a little hollowed in the calling, which bullets do peneth the air. Bacon.

2. Decit: insincerity; treachery. Thy youngest daughter does not love thee lest; nor are they empty-hearted, whose low fond

4. Hollow. n. f. [Poleyn, Saxon.] A plant. The leaves are set about the edges with long, sharp, thistle-like leaves; the berries are small, round, and generally of a red colour, containing four triangular files of seeds. Each of this tree there are several species, some variegated in the leaves, some with yellow berries, and some with white. Miller. Pairs of bullions drop every with ease. Sack. But the brown beauty will like hollows last. Gay.

6. Hollow. n. f. [Poleyn, Saxon.] A plant. The leaves are set about the edges with long, sharp, thistle-like leaves; the berries are small, round, and generally of a red colour, containing four triangular files of seeds. Each of this tree there are several species, some variegated in the leaves, some with yellow berries, and some with white. Miller. Pairs of bullions drop every with ease. Sack. But the brown beauty will like hollows last. Gay.

7. Hollowness. n. f. [from hollow.] A cavity; state of being hollow. If you throw a stone or a dart, they give you no sound; nor more do bullets, except they happen to be a little hollowed in the calling, which bullets do peneth the air. Bacon.

8. Hollow. n. f. [Poleyn, Saxon.] A plant. The leaves are set about the edges with long, sharp, thistle-like leaves; the berries are small, round, and generally of a red colour, containing four triangular files of seeds. Each of this tree there are several species, some variegated in the leaves, some with yellow berries, and some with white. Miller. Pairs of bullions drop every with ease. Sack. But the brown beauty will like hollows last. Gay.

9. Hollowness. n. f. [from hollow.] A cavity; state of being hollow. If you throw a stone or a dart, they give you no sound; nor more do bullets, except they happen to be a little hollowed in the calling, which bullets do peneth the air. Bacon.

10. Hollow. n. f. [Poleyn, Saxon.] A plant. The leaves are set about the edges with long, sharp, thistle-like leaves; the berries are small, round, and generally of a red colour, containing four triangular files of seeds. Each of this tree there are several species, some variegated in the leaves, some with yellow berries, and some with white. Miller. Pairs of bullions drop every with ease. Sack. But the brown beauty will like hollows last. Gay.
The gods great mother, when her heav'nly race
Do homage to her.

They faw, and thitherward they bent their way;
To this both knights and dames their homage made,
And due obesience to the dazly paid.

Go, go, with homage you proud and great,
Accomplish your vows meet!
Go, lie like dog beneath your masters' feet.

To HOMAGE, v. a. [from the noun.] To reverence by external action; to pay homage to; to profess fealty.

HOMAGE, m. s. [hommage, French; hommage, Low Latin.]

1. Service paid and fealty professed to a sovereign or superior lord.

Call my sovereign yours; And do him homage as obedient subjects. Shakespeare. The chiefs, in a solemn manner, did their homage, and made their oaths of fidelity to the earl marshal.

2. Obedience; respect paid by external action.

That complest homage to the businesse, and takes off the objection clearly.
HOM

them/des, the more they expose the defects they hide. —Clarendon.

Homely. a. Plainly; coarsely; rudely. Thus, like the god, his father, bony, drest, he frizes into the hall, a horrid guest. —Dryden.

Homely, n. A kind of calf. —Amsop.

Homemade. a. [home and made.] Made at home; not manufactured in foreign parts.

A cake laid on your native produd, and homemade commodities, makes them yield the first felts.

Homely, n. A Hebrew measure of about three pints.

A duck's barley feed shall be valued at fifty shillings of the.

Homespun. adj. [home and spun.]

1. Spun or wrought at home; not made by regular manufacturers.

Instead of homespun coats we see Good pirates, egl. 150, with silver.

2. Not made in foreign countries.

He appeared in a suit of English broadcloth, very plain, but rich; every thing he wore was substantial, bony, homespun ware. —Swift.

Plain; coarse, inegant; rude, untaught, ruffick man. Not in use.

What homespun homespun have we (wagging here, so near the eddle of the fairy queen? —Shakespeare.

Homestead. n. [farm and pride.]

Homestead. n. [the] the home of.

Both home and homestead into ears are born, and rocks are from their foundations torn.

Dryden.

Homeward. a. [home and peal.]

Homeward. n. [Saxon.] Towards home, towards the native place; towards the place of refidence.

When the Emperor's homeward did strie,
Leaving in pain their well-fed hungry eyes. —Sidney.

My affairs Do even drag me homeward. —Shakespeare.

Shakspeare's love's nationation is, my soul. My love defend, and journey down the hill, Not pampering after growing beauties: so I shall be on them who homeward go. —Donne.

Look homeward, angel now, and melt with ruth; And ye, odyspeus, whet the happiesly youth! Milton.

Like a long team of soave swans on high, Which clip their wings, and clear the liquid sky, Which homeward from their watery pathes borne, They face, and Asia's takes their notes return. —Dryden.

What now remains, But that once more we tramp the watery plains, And wondring homeward, fear our safety hence.

Dryden.

Homicide. n. [bomicide, Fr. bomicidium, Lat.; I. homicide.] Muder; manquoring.

The apostles command to abstain from blood: continue this according to the law of nature, and it will seem, that bomicide only is forbidden; but confide it in reference to the law of the Jews, about which the question was, and it shall eayer appear to have a clear other sense, and a true, when we are bound to it, of eating, and not of shedding blood. —Homer.

In the following lines it is not proper.

What wonder is there that black destruction thrives? The bomicide of men is like those of beasts. —Dryden.

[Homicide, Fr. bomicidium, Lat.] A murder; a manqaring.

I undertake the death of all the world, So might I live one hour in your sweet bosom.

Hone.

—If I thought that, I tell thee, bomicide, These nails shall rend that beauty from my cheeks. —Shakespeare.

Hector comes, the bomicide, to yield his conq'ring arms, with corps to wreak the field. —Dryden.

Homicidal. adj. [from bomicide.] Murderly.

The troop forth slaving from the dark reeds, With whited edges, with burning opprobri. —Pope.

Homiletical. adj. [hymnatical.] Social; conversible.

His life was holy, and when he had leufr for re- tlements, fereve: his virtue active chieflv, and bomicidical, not thoe late fully incessant of the chylcman. —Hawthorne.

Homesly. n. f. [homesly, French, bomicide.] A discourse read to a congregation.

Homicides were a third kind of readings usual in former times; a most commendable institution, as well then to supply the casual, as now the necessary defect of sermons. —Hawker.

What tedious bomicide of love have you wearied your partihons viral, and never cried, have patience, and seek people? —Shakespeare. As do you like it. If we suffer the bomicides of the ancient church, we shall desist that, upon festival days, the subject of the communion was constantly the bullness of the day. —Thyestes.

Homogeneity. n. f. [homogeneity, Fr. homogenie.]

Having the same name or principles; suitable to each other.

The means of reduction, by the fire, is but by congregation of homogenes, of same kind.

Ice is a truly homogeneous, and homogeneous concretion, whose material is properly water. —Browne's Vul. Er.

An homogeneous mail of one kind is easily disunited, from any other gold from iron, sulphur from alommon, and of of the salt. —Woodward.

The light, whose rays are all alike refrangible, I call simple, homogenes, and similar; and that, whose rays are some more refrangible than others, I call compound, heterogeneous, and disfiriarr.

Homogeneity. n. f. [from homogeneity, or homogenes.]

Homogeneously. adv. [from homogeneity.]

Homogeneously. Participates of the same principles or nature; fimplitude of kind.

The mixtures acquire a greater degree of fluidity and similarity, or homogeneity of parts. —Arbuthnot.

Upon this supposition of only different diameters, it is impossible to disunite the homogeneity or similarity of the conected liquids. —Cheyne.

Homogeneity, n. f. [homogenea.] Joint nature. Not used.

By the driving back of the principal spirits, which preferre the body, their government is diffused, and every part returneth to his nature or homogeneity. —Bacon.

Homologous. adj. [homologue, Fr. homologue.] Having the same manner or proportions.

Homonymous. adj. [homonyme, Fr. homonome.] Denominating different things; equivocal; ambiguous.

As words signify the same thing are called synonymous, fo equivocal words, or those which signify several things, are called homonymes, or ambiguous; and when words are such ambiguous words, we may be deceived, it is called equivocation. —Watts.

Homonymy. n. f. [homonymie, Fr. homonymie.] Equivocation; ambiguity.

Homotonicous. adj. [homotonic.] Equable; said of such differens as keep a constant tenour of rife, flate, and declension. —Quincy.

Hone. n. f. [This word M. Cafaban derives from woman; Junius from hog jayen.

Honefli. adj. [from homely.]

—A very bome hearted fellow, and as poor as the king. —Shakfspe.

An homely physician leaves his patient, when he cannot continue so far as to relieve him. —The way to relieve ourselves from those sophisms, is an homely and diligent enquire into the real nature of every thing. —Watts.

Charle.

Wives may be merry and yet homely too. —Shakespeare.

Just; righteous; giving to every man his dues.

Fat will subside; but sit on certain day. —He's homely, and as wit comes in will pay. —Tate.

Honesty. a. [from homely.]

1. Upright; true; sincere.

Thus guilt not have thy husband's lands.

Why then, mine honesty shall be my dome. —Shakespeare.

Goddess, as that which makes men prefer their duty and their promise before their passions or their interests, and is proper both to the good and the false. In our language goes rather by the name of bomicide, though what we call an honest man, the Romans called a good man; and bomicide, in their language, as well in French, rather signifies a composition of those qualities which generally acquire honour and esteem. —Temple.

Honey. n. f. [honey, Saxon; honie, Dutch; bone, German.]

1. A thick, viscid, yellow liquid, of a wherther or yellosk color, sweet to the taste, soluble in water, and becoming vinous on fermentation, inflammable, likable by a gentle heat, and of a fragrant smell. Of honey, the first and finest kind is virgin honey, not very firm and of a fragrant smell; it is the first produce of the swarm, obtained by draining the combs without prefing. The second is almost atid flowd, procured by prefure: and the worst is called common yellow honey, extracted by heating the combs, and then prefing them. In the flowers of plants, by certain glands near the basis, in the petals, is secrete a sweet juice, which the bee, bents of its proboscs or trunk, sucks up, and distiches again from the stomach through the mouth into the comb. The honey deputed in the comb, is defined for the young offspring: but in hard feasons the bees are reduced to the necessity of feeding on it themselves. —Hill.

So work the honey bees, Creatures that by a ruling nature teach The art of order to a peopled kingdom. —Shakespeare.

Amongst his other maxims he made some affirm, that he was fed by honey bees. Raleigh's Hist. In ancient time there was a kind of honey, which, either of its own nature, or by art, would grow as hard as sugar, and was not miscible with any. —Bacon. —6 E 2
When the patient is rich, there's no fear of physicians about him, as thick as wafers to a honey Pot.

Honey is the most elaborate production of the vegetable kind, being a most exquisite vegetables, a relevish of the bile, balsamick and pecoral: honey contains no inflammable spirit, before it has the form of fermentation; for by distillation it affords nothing that will burn in the fire. Arbuthnot.

New wine, with honey temper'd milk we bring, Then living waters from the Chrysalid spring. Pope.

Sweetness: lusciousness.
The king hath found
Matter against him, that for ever mars
The honey of his language.
A honey tongue, a heart of gall
In the honey-day but baw'ry's fall.
Shaksp.

Sweet; sweetness: a name of tendernefs.
[Mel; cerculum]
Honey, you shall be well desir'd in Cyprus;
I've found great love amongst them. Oh, my sweet,
I pasture out of fashion, and I do.
Shaksp. Othello.
Why, honey bird, I bought him on purpose for thee.
Shaksp.
To honey. o. n. [from the noun.]
To talk fondly.
Nay, but to live
In the rank sweet of an inchoate bed,
Stew'd in corruption, honeying and making love
Over the nasty land.
Shaksp. Hamlet.
Honey-bag. [honey and bag]
Honey-bag is the topsam, which bees always fill to satisfy, and to spare, vomiting up the greatest part of the honey to be kept against Winter. Grever.
Honey-comb, n. f. [honey and comb.]
The cells of wax in which the bee stores her honey.
All with a milk-white honey-comb surround,
Which in the midst the country banquet crown'd.
Shaksp.
Honey-combed. adj. [honey and comb.]
Spoken of a piece of ordinance flawed with little cavities by being ill cast.
A mariner having discharged his gun, which was honey-combed, and loading it suddenly again, the powder took fire.
Wifeman.
Honey-dew. n. f. [honey and dew.]
Sweet dew.
There is a honey-dew which hangs upon their leaves, and breeds insects.
Mortimer.
How honey-dew embalm the fragrant morn,
And the fair oak with luscious sweets adorn.
Shaksp.
Honey-flower. n. f. [melanthis, Latin.]
A plant.
It hath a perennial root, and the appearance of a thistle. This plant produces large folakes of chocolate-coloured flowers in May, in each of which is contained a large quantity of black sweet liquor, from whence it is supposed to derive its name. Miller.
Honey-grat. n. f. [melis, Latin; honey and graze.] An insect.
Honey-moon. n. f. [hony and moon.]
The first month after marriage when there is nothing but tenderness and pleasure.
A man should keep his fancy for the latter fession of marriage and not begin to dress till the honey-moon is over.
Addison.
Honey-suckler. n. f. [caprifolium, Latin.]
Woodbine.
It hath a climbing stalk, which twists itself about whatsoever tree friends near it; the flowers are tubulous and oblong, consisting of one leaf, which appears to be a flower itself, and is divided into two lips; the uppermost of which is subdivided into two, and the lowermost is cut into many segments; the tube of the flower is short, somewhat resembling a cock's horn. They are produced in clusters, and are very sweet. Miller enumerates ten species of which three grow wild in our hedges.
But here they into the plugged bowers,
Where honey-flickets, raptur'd by the sun;
Forbidden the fruit to enter like favourites,
Made proof by princes, that advance their pride
Against the power that bred it.
Watch upon a bank
With Ivy canopied, and inmore
With flattering honey-flickets.
Then melliflou beat and honey-flickets pound; with these alluring favours flew the ground. Dryd.
Honey-wort. n. f. [citririne, Latin.]
A plant.
Honeyed. adj. [from bony.]
1. Covered with honey.
The bee with bounteous gift,
That at her flowr-y work dost sing. Milton.
2. Sweet; luscious.
When he speaks,
The air, a charter'd libertine, is still;
And the mute wonder larkesh in men's ears.
To steal his sweet and boundent tenentes.
Look now full on enchanting voice, or no fear.
The bount of bony's words; a rougher tongue.
Draws hitherword. Milton.
Honey-bark. [honey and bag.]
Honey-bark is the bosam, which bees always fill to satisfy, and to spare, vomiting up the greatest part of the honey to be kept against Winter. Grever.
Honey-comb. n. f. [honey and comb.] The cells of wax in which the bee stores her honey.
All with a milk-white honey-comb surround,
Which in the midst the country banquet crown'd.
Shaksp.
Honey-combed. adj. [honey and comb.]
Spoken of a piece of ordinance flawed with little cavities by being ill cast.
A mariner having discharged his gun, which was honey-combed, and loading it suddenly again, the powder took fire.
Wifeman.
Honey-dew. n. f. [honey and dew.] Sweet dew.
There is a honey-dew which hangs upon their leaves, and breeds insects.
Mortimer.
How honey-dew embalm the fragrant morn,
And the fair oak with luscious sweets adorn.
Shaksp.
Honey-flower. n. f. [melanthis, Latin.]
A plant.
It hath a perennial root, and the appearance of a thistle. This plant produces large folakes of chocolate-coloured flowers in May, in each of which is contained a large quantity of black sweet liquor, from whence it is supposed to derive its name. Miller.
Honey-grat. n. f. [melis, Latin; honey and graze.] An insect.
Honey-moon. n. f. [hony and moon.] The first month after marriage when there is nothing but tenderness and pleasure.
A man should keep his fancy for the latter fession of marriage and not begin to dress till the honey-moon is over.
Addison.
Honey-suckler. n. f. [caprifolium, Latin.]
Woodbine.
It hath a climbing stalk, which twists itself about whatsoever tree friends near it; the flowers are tubulous and oblong, consisting of one leaf, which appears to be a flower itself, and is divided into two lips, the uppermost of which is subdivided into two, and the lowermost is cut into many segments; the tube of the flower is short, somewhat resembling a cock's horn. They are produced in clusters, and are very sweet. Miller enumerates ten species of which three grow wild in our hedges.
But here they into the plugged bowers, Where honey-flickets, raptur'd by the sun, Forbidden the fruit to enter like favourites,
4. Accompanied with tokens of honour.

5. Not to be disgraced.

6. Free from taint; free from reproach.

7. Honesty; without intention of deceit.

8. Equitable.

Honourable, n. s. [from honourable.] Eminence; magnificence; generosity.

Honourably, adv. [from honourable.] One that honours; one that regards with veneration.

I must not omit Mr. Gay, whose zeal in your concern is worthy a friend and honourer.

Hoo, in composition, is derived from the Saxons, and in German heard, in Dutch hooft. It denotes quality; character; condition: as, knighthood; childhood; fatherhood. Sometimes it is written after the Dutch, as mainhood. Sometimes it is taken collectively: as, brotherhood; a confraternity: jifferhood, a company of sufferers.

Hoo. n. s. [hob, Saxon, probably from hechp, head.]

1. The upper covering of a woman's head. In writers, white, worn by the groom; and their hoods and sleeves the same.

2. Any thing drawn upon the head, and wrapping round it.

3. A covering put over the hawk's eyes, when he is not to fly.

4. An ornamental fold that hangs down from the back of a graduate, to mark his degree.

To Hoo. v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To draw in a hood.

2. To blind as with a hood.

3. To cover.

An hollow crystal pyramid he takes,

In firmamental waters dip above;

Of it a broad extinguisher he makes,

And loads the flames that to their quarry flame.

Dryden.

Hoodman Blind, n. s. A play in which the person hooded is to catch another, and tell the name; blindman's buff.

What devil was,

That thus hath cast thee out at hoodman built *?

Shaksp.

7. To hide, v. a. [hood and winch.]

1. To bind with something bound over the eyes.

They willingly bound-writh themselves from feeling his faults, he often abused the virtue of courage to defend his soul rise of injudicious

Sidney.

We will bind and hood-writh him so, that he shall suppose he is carried into the league of the adversaries.

Shaksp.

Then the who has been hood-writh'd from her birth,

Doh first herself within death's mirrour: Davies.

So have I seen, at Christmas sports, one lost,

And hood-writh'd, for a man embrace a poft.

Ben Jonson.

3. To cover; to hide.

Be patient; for the price, I'll bring thee to.

Shaksp.

4. To deceive; to impose upon.

She delighteth in infamy, which often hath used to her husband's flame, filling all men's ears, while he is hood-writh'd with kindreds, fear of all men knew who trick him.

Shaksp.

5. To cover, v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To catch with a hook.

The huge jack he half caught was served up for the first dish: upon our setting down to it, he gave us a long account how he had looked it, played with it, feized it, and at length drew it upon the bank.

Addison.

2. To intrap; to insnare.

3. To draw as with a hook.

But the I eat book to me.

Shaksp. Winter's Tale.

4. To fall as with an hook.

5. To draw by force or artifice.

There are many branches of the natural law no way reducible to the two tables, unless books in by diversious consequences.

Hooked, adj. [from book.] Bent; curvated. Gyrus signifies eage or vortices: from whence the epilates gyrus, for a book or aquiline nose. Heron.

Now thou arthalf, with unjust degree, To seize the prize which I for dearly bought: Match mean to thine; for still above the rest, Thy book'd rapacious hands sharp the belt. Dryd.

The guilts have claws and teeth; the claws are hooked, to take the better hold in climbing from twig to twig, and hanging on the bickides of leaves.

Hookedness. n. s. [from hooked.] State of being bent like a hook.

Hookened, adj. [from hooked.] Having the aquiline nose rising in the middle.

I may justly say with the booked fellow of Rome there, Caesar, I came, law, and overcome.

Shaksp. Henry IV.

HOOP, n. s. [loop, Dutch.]

1. Any thing circular by which something else is bound, particularly calves or hurets.

Thus shalt prove a thresher to thy friends, A loop of gold to bind thy brothers in, The united wealth of their blood.

Shall never leak.

If I know what loop would hold up a branch, from edge to edge O'th' world, I would pursue it.

Shaksp.

A quarrel, ho, already! what's the matter?

About a loop of gold, a paltry ring.

To view her level, and to refrain,

What loops of iron could my spleen contain! Dryd.

And learned Athenian to our art must loop, Could the behind us tumbling through a loop? Pope.

The
2. The whalebone with which women extend their petticoats; a farthingale.

At coming in you saw her flop:
The entry still'd against her hoop.
Swift.
All that hoops are good for is to clean dirty shoes,
and to keep fellows at a distance.
Clariss.
3. Anything circular.
I have seen at Rome an antique statue of Time, with a hoop or boop of marble in his hand. Addison.

To Hoop. a. (See the note.)
1. To bind or enclose with hoops.
The three hoops 'twill have ten hoops, and
I will make it felyo to drink small beer.
Shakespeare.
The eels for his Majesty's dinner were roped
as with wine-c活动中 a call. Raileigh.
2. To encircle; to clasp; to surround.
I ever henceforth thou
Shalt keep his body more with thy embrasures,
I will devise a death.
Shakespeare. Winter's Tale.
I keep the firmament, and make
This my embrace the adobe.
Cleveland.
That flabby guard, which hoops in the eye,
and hides the greater part of it, might occasion his mistake.
Gree.
To Hoop. v. n. [from eepgan or eepgan,
Gothick, or hopper, French, derived from the Gothick.
This word is generally written hoop, which is more proper.
If we shall get hoop from the Gothick; and hoop if we derive it from the French.
To hoop; to make an outcry by way of call or pursuit.

To Hoop. v. a.
1. To drive with a hoop.
Daffid noblest
Suffer'd me, by the voice of slaves, to be Hillock agued our sport.
Shakespeare's Coriolanus.
2. To call by a hoop.
Hopaper. n. f. [from hoop, to inclose with hoops.]
A cooper; one that hoops tubs.
Hopoping-cough, n. f. [or hoop-cough, from, to hoop.] A convulsive cough, called from its noise; the chincough.
To Hoot. v. n. [Hoot, Welsh; Hue, Fr.]
1. To hoot in contempt.
A number of country folks happened to pass thither, who hollowed and bated after me as at the arrantest coward.
Sidney.
Matrons and girls shall hoot at thee no more.
Dryden.
2. To cry as an owl.
Some keep back
The clamorous owl, that nightly hoots, and wonders
At our sporty sports.
Shakespeare.
To Hoot. v. a.
To drive with noise and shouts.
We lov'd him; but, like beasts
Our coward nobles gave way to your clutters,
Who did bear him out of th' city.
Shakespeare.
The owl of Rome, where boys and girls will howl
That were I set up for that wooden god
That spread our gardens, could not fright the crows,
Or the leaf bird, from muting on my head.
B. Jonson.
Partridge and his clan may toast me for a cheat
And impostor, if I fail in any particular of moment.
Dryden.
Hoot. v. s. [Hoot French, from the verb.]
Clamor; hoot; noise.
Its affraction would be entertained with the hoot of the rabbit.
Glawium's Scraps.
To HOP. v. n. [hoppin, Saxon; hopfen, Dutch.]
1. To jump; to skip lightly.
I would have thee go
dear yet no farther than a wanston's bird,
That lets be hop a little upon her hand,
And with a glimpse Voy to catch again. Shalt.
Go, hop me over every kennel home;
For you shall hop without my custom, sir.
Shakespeare.
Be kind and courteous to this gentleman,
Hop in his walks, and gambol in his eyes.
Shakespeare.

HOPE.

2. But what and where we would be; thus art thou
Our absent present, and our future now.
Crafters.
Faith is opposed to infidelity, and hope to despair.
Taylor.
He fought them both, but with his hope might end,
Every day he played, not with hope.
What of so feldman's chance? when to his wish.
Milton.
Beyond his hope, Eve separate he spirits.
The Trojan dames
to Pallus fame in large pronouncing go.
In hopes to reconcile their heavily foe.
Dryden.
Why not comfort myself with the hope of what may be,
As torment myself with the fear of what?
Leibniz.
To encourage our hopes, it gives us the highest assurance of most lasting happiness.
In cases of obscure fortune.
The deceased really lived like one that had his hope in another life; a life which he hath now entered upon.
Having exchanged hope for light, desire for enjoyment.
Young men look rather to the past age than the present,
And therefore the future may have some hopes of them.
Swift.
2. Confidence in a future event, or in the future conduct of any person.
It is good, being put to death by men, to look for hope from God, to be ruffled again by him.
W. Tickell.
Blissful is he who is not fallen from his hope in the Lord.
Ecclesiastes. xiv. 3.
3. That which gives hope; that on which the hopes are fixed, as an agent by which something desired may be effected.
I might he from far from home.
Some torchsmen draw to her focure, which were the hope of the Strand, where the was quarter'd.
Shak. Henry VIII.
4. The object of hope.
Thy mother felt more than a mother's pain,
And yet brought forth less than a mother's hope.
To wit, an indelighted deform'd lump.
Shakespeare.
She was his hope, his life, and his delight.
Milton in his thoughts of the Mercury.
Dryden.
Hope. v. n. Any sloping plain between the ridges of mountains.
Confavour'd.
To Hope. v. n. [from the noun.]
1. To live in expectation.
Hope for good successes, according to the efficacy of the causes and the instrument; and let the household man hope for a good harvest.
Taylor.
My muse, by storms too long,
Is thrown up on thy hospitable coat;
And finds more favour by her false effects
Than the could hope for by her hardships.
Dryden.
Who knows what adverse fortune may befall! Arm well your mind, hope little, and fear all.
Dryden.
To place confidence in another.
He that strengthens your heart, all ye that hope in the Lord.
mil. xxxii. 24.

To Hope. v. a. To expect with desire.
The sunniest hot; and if we feel delay,
Cold bringth Winter more our hope'd for bays.
Shak.
So stands the Thracian herdmaster with his spear
Full in the gap, and hopes the hunted bear.
Dryden.
Hopeful adj. [hope and full.]
1. Full of qualities which produce hope; promising; likely to gain success; likely to come to maturity; likely to gratify desire, or answer expectation.
He will advance thee:
I know thy noble nature, not to let
Thy hopeful service perish.
Shakespeare.
You serve a great and glorious master, and there is a most hopeful young prince whom you must not desert.
Bacon.
What to the old can greater pleasure be,
Than hopeful and ingenuous youth to fee?
Denham.
They take up a book in their declining years, and grow very hopeful scholars by that time they are.
Addison.
2. Full of hope; full of expectation of success. This fene is now almost confined to Scotland, though it is analagous, and found in good writers.
Thou a greater horologium, n. [from horae, whence they have suede.]

Drummond.

Hornet, n. f. (hiera, Saxon, from its horns.) A very large strong stinging fly, which makes its nest in hollow trees.

Silence, in times of full ring is the belt:
'Tis dangerous to disturb a hornet's nest.
Dyson.

Hornets do mischief to trees by boring in them.

Timber.

I have often admired how hornets, gathering dry materials for building their nests, have found a proper matter to tire in embers.

Dyson.

Hornfoot, n. f. [born and foot.] Hoofed.

Mad frantick me, that did not instantly quake.
With hornfoot horses, and beats wheels, jove's horses to emulate.

Hornet's nest in Provintice.

Hornbill, n. f. [horn and pipe.] A country dance, commonly danced to a horn.

A lusty taberne,
"That to the many a hornpipe play'd,
Where they daunten each one with his flutist.

Kitch.

Let all the quicksilver 'tis mine
Run to the feet veins, and refine
Your yolkish jharm to a dance
Shall fether the fiddles out of France.
To wonder at the hornpipes here
Of Nottingham and Derbyshire.

Ben Jonson.

Bent d'arque,
Danced the Derbyshire hornpipe in the presence of several friends.

Taiter.

Hornstone, n. f. A kind of blue stone.

Anisouarto.

Horn-work, n. f. A kind of angular fortification.

Horny, adj. [from horn.

1. Made of horn.

2. Refembling horn.

He thought he by the brook of Cherith stood,
And saw the ravens with their bony beaks
Food to Elijah bringing even and morn.
Milton.

The bony or pellicol coat of the eye doth lie in the same interstices with the white of the eye, but rithin up above its convexity, and is of an hyperbolic figure.

Ray on the Creation.

Rough are her ears, and broad the bony feet.

Dryden.

The pinial gland was encompassed with a kind of bony substance.
Adiston.

The blood of the blood is refusible by a small heat, a greater heat coagulates it so as to turn it bony, like parchment; but when it is thoroughly putrid, it will no longer coagulate. Aubry.

3. Hard as horn; callous.

Typhus, the stouter-father of the beast,
Then chencl'd a hatcher in his bony fit. Dryden.

Hornography, n. f. [boryphagic, Fr. aye, and ayo.] An account of the horns.

Horsology, n. f. [borylogiam, Latin.

Horsology | n. f. [borylogium, Latin.

Horsology | [Any instrument that tells the hour; as a clock, a watch; an hourglass,

We'll watch the borylogue a double fit.
If drink rock not his cradle, Shakespeare.

Before the days of Jerome there were borylogues, which measured the hours not only by drops of water in glass tubes called clerapines, but also by sand in tubes, called cledempina. Brown.

Horsometry, n. f. [borymetric, French; aye and aye.] The art of measuring hours.

It is no easy wonder how the borymetry of antiquity discovered not this artifice.

Brown.

Horsoscope, n. f. [borysope, French; aye.

The configuration of the planets at the hour of birth.
How much greater may be the number of planets in the course of the hours, than the number of planets in the course of a year. Goddard.

A proportion of the boryscope unto the seventh houses, or opposite signs every seventh year, oppositely favorable to the sun.
Br'er.

Him born beneath a boding boryscope,
His sire, the bleary-eyed Vulcan of a fish,
From Mars his forge fent to Minerva's school.
Dyson.

The Greek names this the boryscope;
This governs life, and this marks out our parts.
Our humours, manner, qualities and arts.
Greek.

To these is added the notion of the hour by instinct, and tell to drawing schemes of their own boryscope in the same fult they sprung out from.

Bentley.

Horribant, adj. [hornet, Latin. Horribilia psils agmina.] Pointed outwards; briddled with points; a word perhaps introduced by Milton.

Him a globe
Of bery seraphim circled round
With both his seven combatant arms. Milton.

Horrribile, adj. [boryrible, French; boryrible, Latin.] Dreadful; terrible; shockling; hideous; enormous.

No colour affecteth the eye much with displeasure: there be fights that are boryrible, because they excite the memory of things that are angriest or fearful.
Bacon.

A damon boryrible on all sides round,
As one great furnace flam'd. Milton.

O fight,
Of terror, soul and ugly to behold,
Horrid to think, how horrible to feel.
Milton.

External happiness and internal misfortunes, meeting with a persuasion that the soul is immortal, are, to all others, the first the most describable, and the latter the most horrible to human apprehension.
South.

Horribleness, n. f. [from boryrible.

Dreadfulness; hideousness; terrifleness; fearfulness.

1. Dreadfully; hideously.

What hideous noise was that.

Horribly loud.

2. Dreadful to a degree.

The distingusion of their ill precedents, both in civility and virtue, horribly infects children. Locke.

Horrid, adj. [horridus, Latin.

1. Hideous; dreadful; shocking.

Give colour to my pale cheek with thy blood,
That we the borydor may see to those Which chance to find us. Shakespeare's Cymbeline.

Not in the legions
Of borydor hell can a comely demon's
In evils to top Macheth. Shakespeare.

And borydlous sympathy. Milton.

2. Shocking; offensive; unpleasing: in women's cant.

Already I your tears survey,
Already hear the demented things they say. Pope.

3. Rough; rugged.

Horrid with form, and intricate with thorn,
Few paths of human feet or tracks of beasts were worn.
Dryden.

Horridnes, n. f. [from boryridus.

Horrible, adj. [horrificus, Lat.] Causing horror.

His Jaw boryrical, arm'd with three-fold fate,
Hes dwell the direful think.

Thomson.

3.
HOR

Couslso, the great captain, a gentleman proudly hoisted and armed: Diego de Mendoza asked the great captain, Who's this? The captain answered, It is St. Elmo, who never appears but after the battle. Bacon.

2. To carry one on the back.
3. To ride anything.

Stallions, but windows
Are another, leads are full'd, and ridges broad!
With variable complexes; all agreeing
In cleanliness to fee him. Shakespeare.

Horseback. n.s. [horse and back.] Riding posture; the state of being on a horse.

Horsehair. n.s. [horse and hair]. The Hair of horses.

Horseman. n.s. [horse and man]. One who employs horses in any employment.

Horsebreak. n.s. [horse and break]. A Block on which horses climb to a horse.

Horseboat. n.s. [horse and boat]. A Boat used in ferrying horses.

Horseboy. n.s. [horse and boy]. A boy employed in dressing horses; a stableboy.

Horsebreaker. n.s. [horse and break]. One who employs horses in any employment to the saddle.

Horse-crusts. n.s. [horse and crusts]. A tree.

Horse-curse. n.s. [horse and curse].

Jovius derives it from horse and curse, an old Scotch word, which signifies to change; and it should therefore, he thinks, write horsecurs. The word now used in Scotland is horsecursen, to denote a jockey, fellow, or other changer of horses. It may well be derived from curse, as he that sells horses may be supposed to curse or excite him.

1. One that runs horses, or keeps horses for the race.
2. A dealer in horses.
3. A servant to a horsecursen was thrown off his horse.

Wise man.

A Florentine bought a horse for so many crowns, under condition to pay half down; the horsecursen comes to him next morning for the remainder.

L'Estrange.

Horse-cраб. n.s. A kind of filth. Athen.

Horse-Scrub. n.s. A kind of large bee. Athen.

Horse-match. n.s. A bird. Athen.

Horsemeat. n.s. [horse and meat].

The

Though green peas and beans be eaten sooner, yet the dry ones that are used for horsemeat are ripe late.

Bacon.

Horse-mint. n.s. A large coarse mint.

Horsemusick. n.s. A large muscle.

The great horsemusick, with the fine fish, that breedeth in ponds, do not only give and that at the easters do, but remove from one place to another.

Bacon.

Horse-play. n.s. [horse and play]. Carroie, rough, rugged play.

He is too much given to horse-play in hisクリック, and comes to battle like a dictator from the plough.

Dryden.

Horsepond. n.s. [horse and pond]. A

Pond for horses.

Horse-sace. n.s. [horse and race]. A match of horses in running.

In horse-saces men are curious that there be not the least weight upon the one horse more than upon the other.

Bacon.

Trajan, in the fifth year of his tribune ship, entertained the people with a horse-sace.

Addison.

Horse-radish. n.s. [horse and radish]. A root acid and biting; a species of curiously

Curiously is increased by sprouts spreading from the old roots left in the ground, that are run down broke off.

Horse-shoe. n.s. [horse and shoe].

1. A plate iron nailed to the feet of a horse.

I was thrown into the Thames, and coold glowing hot in that forge, like a horse-shoe. Shakespeare.

2. An herb.

Horse-tailer. n.s. [horse and tail]. A thief who takes away horses.

He is not a pickpocket, nor a horse-tailer; but for horsemanship in horsemanship, I do think him as conceiv as a covered goblet, or a worm's casten-out.

As you like it.

Horse-tail. n.s. A plant.

Horse-tongue. n.s. An herb.

Horse-Whay. n.s. [horse and way]. A kind way by which horses may travel.

Know'st thou the way to Dover?

-Both ride and gate, horse-Whay, and footpath.

Shakes. King Lear.

Hortic.ation. n.s. [horti- and Latin]. The art of exhorting; a hortatory precept; advice or encouragement to something.

Hortative. n.s. [from horti, Latin].

Exhortation's precept by which one excites or animates.

Generals commonly in these hortations put men in mind of their wives and children.

Bacon.

Hortatory. adj. [from horti, Latin].

Encouraging; animating; advising to anything; used of precepts, not of persons; a hortatory speech, not a hortatory speaker.

Hortici.ture. n.s. [hortus and culture, Latin]. The art of cultivating gardens.

Hortulan. adj. [hortulanus, Latin]. Belonging to a garden.

This seventh edition of my hortulan calendar is yours.

Evelyn.

Hortus.ena. n.s. [hortus and Latin]. An exclamation of praise to God;

It founded, and the faithful armies runn

Hortus to the Hight.

Milan.
The public entrance which Christ made into Jerusalem was celebrated with the bojesans and acclamations of the people. Flies.

Hos. n. s. plur. bojes. [hors; Saxon; bojan, Welsh; offen, Erse; affance, plur. chauff, French.]

2. Stocks; covering for the legs. He being in love, could not force to garst his bojes; and you, being in love, cannot force to put on your bojes. Dryden.

3. (From bojes, Latin.) An army; numbers assembled for war.

4. Any great number.

5. Give to a gracious message.

6. An act of a tagus: but let ill tidings tell themselves, when they are felt. Shakes.

7. (Hos', Latin; ho', French.) The sacrifice of the maus in the Romish church; the confecrator.

To *Hos.'s. [from the noun.]

1. To take up entertainment; to live, as at an inn.

2. To encounter in battle. Struggling to win it.

3. To review a body of men; to muster.

Hospital. n. s. [hostel, French; hosptial, Latin.]

1. A place built for the reception of the sick; or support of the poor.

2. A place for shelter or entertainment.

3. Obsolete. They sped a goodly castle, placed a forgey a river in a pleasant place, which chased for that evening's hospitality.

Hospitality. n. s. [hospitality, French.]

The practice of entertaining strangers.

Hospitable, adj. [hosptabilis, Latin.]

Giving entertainment to strangers; kind to strangers.

I'm your host.

With robbers' hand my hospitable favor.

With friends' the wish-wald on your friendly face; with hospitable sites relieve the poor. Dryden.

Hospitably, adv. [from hospitable.] With kindliness to strangers.

Ye thus hospitably live, and strangers with good cheer receive. Prior.

The former live as piuetly and hospitably as the other. Swift.

HOSPITALITY. n. s. [hospital, Latin.]

An inn.

Hostel. n. s. [hostel, French; hostelarius, low Latin, from hostal.*

1. A female host; a woman that gives entertainment.

2. A keeper of hostels; a woman that gives entertainment.

3. A woman that keeps a house of public entertainment.

Alluding toth' city civility is like a whore or a hostess. Temp.

Hostess-ship. n. s. [from hostel.] The character of an hostess.
The text is a page from a book, containing a mix of historical and literary references. The text is not readable due to the quality of the image. The content includes references to authors such as Camden, Prior, Addison, and Shakespeare, among others. The text seems to be about various topics like weather, literature, and natural phenomena, but the specific details are not discernible from the image provided.
is nothing to feel, to nourish redemption. Shakespeare.
By delaying my last line, upon your grace's acceptance of the presents made to you by my bower and may seem to have made a sacrifice. Dryden.
A poet is not to be cloyed rate; Two of a bower's fruit are never, and mono to records. Dryden's Fables.
A body of the parliament, the lords or commons collectively considered. Nor were the crimes objected against him so clear as to give convincing satisfaction to the major part of both bower's, especially that of the lords. King Charles.
To House, v. a. [from the noun.]
To have to; to admit to residence. Palatines gifted him to bower to all the Herods.
Upon the North Sea, a valley bower a gentleman, who hath worn out his former name. Carew.
Shatter lives upon succession. For ever bower where it gets possession. Shakesb.
Mere cottagers are but bower beggars. Bacon.
Oh, can your counsel his defeat defect, Who now is bower in his fellowshop? Sandys.
We find them bowering themselves in dens. South.
In expectation of such times as these, A chapel bower's 'tis, truly call'd of a desire. Dryden.
To shelter, to keep under a roof. As we can't make it our plant to face them, so may bower our own to forward them. Bacon.
Bower your choice cottages, or rather let them under a penthouse, to preserve them in extremity of weather. Evelyn.
In our northern climates will not blow, Except, like orange trees, 'tis bower'd from snow. Dryden.
To House, v. n.
To take shelter; to keep bower; to refade. Ne'er suffer it to bower there half a day. Hubbard, Table.
Graze where you will, you shall not bower me. Shakespeare.
Summers three times eight, save one, She had told; alas! too soon, After so short time of breath, To bower with dark wives and with death. Milton.
To have an allegorical situation in the heavens. In fear of this, observe the fary signs, Where Saturn bower's, and where Hermes joins. Dryden.
1. a bower in the lion's hateful gyn, Bought saints, and defetering troops are mine. Dryden.
HOUSEBREAKER. n. f. [bowe and break].
Burglar, one who makes his way into houses to steal.
All housebreakers and thieves had this written in their hearts. L'Estrange.
HOUSEBREAKING. n. f. [bowe and break].
Burglary. When he hears of a rogue to be tried for robbing or breaking, he will send the whole paper to the government. Swift.
HOUSEDOG. n. f. [bowe and dog].
A muffiff kept to guard the bower.
A very good housedog, but a dangerous ear to strangers, had a bell about his neck. L'Estrange.
You the goodness of the matter even in old bower. Addison.
HOUSEHOLD. n. f. [house and hold].
1. A family living together.
Two bower'd, both alike in dignity, In fair Venice, where we lay our forest,
From ancient groves break to new mutiny. Shakespeare.
A little kingdom is a great bowerdog, and a great bowerdog a little kingdom. Bacon. Advertise to Killers. Of God observe'd
The one just man alive, by his command, Shall build a worldamous ark, as thou behold'st,
To save himself and bower'd from amid.
A world devote to universal Wilt. Milton.
He has always taken to himself, among the sons of men a peculiar bowerdog of his love, which at all times he has cherished as a father, and governed as a master; this is the proper bowerdog of faith in

The first eight of the world, 'twas sometimes literally, no more than a single bower's, or some few families.
Sprat.
Great crimes must be with greater crimes repaid. The second funeral on the former laid; Let the whole bowerdog in one ruin fall, And may Diana's curse take effect. Dryd. Fables.
Learning's little bowerdog did embark, With her world's fruitful system in her sacred ark. Swift.
In his own church he keeps a feast, Says grace before and after meat; And calls, without affecting airs, His bowerdog twins to-day to prayer. Swift.
2. Family life; domiclack management.
An inventory, thus importing The several parcels of his plate, his treasure, Rich stuff, and ornament of bower-shakesb.
3. Is used in the manner of an adjective, to signify domecklick; belonging to the family.
Cornelius called two of his bower's servants. Asti. x. 7.
For nothing leaveller can be found In woman, than to fluty bowerdog good; And good works in her husband to promote, Milton.
It would be endless to enumerate the oaths among men, among the women the neglect of bower's affairs.
HOUSEHOLDER. n. f. [from bowerOfficers.]
1. A certain bowerdog planted a vineyard. Mat. xxi.
HOUSEHOLDSTUFF. n. f. [bower and stuff].
Furniture of an house; utensils convenient for family use.
In this war that he maketh, he fill flicht from his foe, and lurketh in the thick woods, waiting for advantage: his choke is his bed, yea and his bower.
Bacon.
A great part of the building was confirmed, with much coaly bowerstuff. Bacon.
The woman had her jet for the bowerstuff. Bacon.
HOUSEKEEPER. n. f. [bower and keep].
1. Householder; master of a family.
To be said an honest man and a good housekeeper, goes as fairly as to play a graceful man and a great scholar.
If I may credit housekeepers and substantial tradesmen, all sorts of provis'ons and commodities are nigh inexhaustible.
2. One who lives in plenty; one that excels hospitality.
The people are apt to applaud housekeepers than housefriers. Wotton.
1. One who lives much at home.
How do you both? You are maniféstly housekeepers. What a place you keep; carest. Carew.
2. A woman servant that has care of a family, and superintends the other maid servants.
Merry folks, who want by chance A pair to make a company; speak, Sparrow on Ireland.
Call the old housekeeper, and get her, To fill a place for want of better; Swift.
5. A houledog. Not in use.
Diluting the housekeeper, the hunter. Shaks.
HOUSEKEEPING. n. f. [bower and keep].
Domiclick; useful to a family.
His house for pleasant prospect, large scope, and other bowerkeeping commodities, challenge the pre-eminence.
Carew.
HOUSEKEEPING. n. f. Hospitability; liberal and plentiful table.
I bear your grace hath sworn out bowerkeeping. Shakespeare.
His table was one of the last that gave us an example of the old bowerkeeping of an English nobleman, his attendance required, which is the master's hospitality.
Prior.
HOUSEL. n. f. [hous, Saxon, from bower, Gothick, a sacrifice, or bough, dimin. bower's, Latin.] The holy eucharist.
To House, v. a. [from the noun.] To give or receive the eucharist. Both the noun and verb are obsolete.

Housekeeper. n. f. [house and keep.] A plant. Miller. The seeds supply their quantity of cedar acids; as juices of apples, grapes, the forbeis, and houseleek.

Houseless. adj. [from house.] Wanting abroad; wanting habitation. Poor-assed wretches, How shall your boufe9's heads and unfed sides, Your loo9d and window'd raggedens, defend you! Lillo.

This hungry, houseleek, suffering, dying Jeph, fed many thousands with four leaves and two loaves. Swift.

Housemaid. n. f. [house and maid.] A maid employed to keep the house clean. Provided you may put out the candle against the looking glass. Swift.

Housekeeper, n. f. [house and room.] Place in a house. The house that puts him nothing; he believes Yet still we fiibsible on, though still we lose. Dryden.

Housemaid. n. f. A kind of flail. Swift.

Housewarming. n. f. [house and warm.] A feast of merry-making upon going into a new house.

Housewife, n. f. [house and wife.] This is now frequently written, housewife, or housewif.

1. The mistress of a family.
You will think it unfit for a good housewife to flirt in or to busy herself about her housewifey. Spencer on Ireland.

I have room enough, but the kind and hearty housewife is dead. Pope to Swift.

2. A female economist.
Fitting is a mantle for a bad man, and surely for a bad housewife it is no lewd convenient: for some of them, that be willingly worn, is half a wedding. Spencer on Ireland.

Let us fet and mock the good housewife; Fortune, from her wheel, that her gains may henceforth be diffused equally. Shak.

Farmers in degree, He a good husband, a good housewife the Dryden, the lady of the bed. When living embers on the hearth are spread.

Dryden.

The fairest among the daughters of Britain how themselves good family women as well as good housewives. Addison.

3. One skilled in female busines.
He was bred up under the tuition of a tender mother, till she made him as good a housewife as herself; he preferred apocryphal, and makes jelly.

Housewifery. adj. [from housewife.] Skilled in the acts becoming a housewife. Addison.

Housewifery. adv. [from housewife.] With the utmost care of a careful woman.

Housewifery, n. f. [housewife.] How to domestick or female businesse, manage- ment becoming the mistress of a family. You will think it unfit for a good housewife to flirt in or to busy herself about her housewifey. Spencer on Ireland.

He ordained a lady for his price. Generally peacefull; fair and young, and did in housewifery. Chapman's Moll. Lodged in all his majesty's apartments, and that discerned by the housewife of the Irish in exercising that art.

2. Female economy.
The latter good works for necessary ufe; for St. Paul exhorts the obligation of Christian women to good housewifery, and charitable provisions for their family and neighbourhood. Taylor.

House, n. f. [from house.]

1. Quantity of inhabited building.
London is supplied with people to increase its inhabitants, according to the increase of building. Grew.

2. [from boufe9, benet, or boufe9, French.] Cloth originally used to keep off dirt, now added to saddles as ornamental.

Hosuing. adj. [from house.] Provided for entertainment at first entrance into a house; houfeswarming.

His own two hands, for such a turn must suit. The boufesfire did kindle and provide. Fairy 2.

Houses. n. f. [from house, or houses, Fr.] Covered wth cloth originally used to keep off dirt, now added to saddles as ornamental signs. This word, though used by Dryden, I do not remember in any other place.

Six lions' hides with things together fast, His upper parts defended to his watt; And what his manner, the continu'd rest. Spread on his back, the boufes and trappings of a beast. Dryden.

HOW, adv. [thu, Saxo, loe, Dutch.]

1. To what degree.
How long will thou refuse to humble thyself before me? Exodus.

How much better is it to get wisdom rather than silver, and to get understanding rather than to be choen of gold? Prov.

How is the candle of the wicked put out? And how oft cometh their destruction upon them? Job, 17.

Our love every way, it is my meditation, Psalms. How many children's plaints and mother's cries!

How many woeful widows left to bow To last disgrace? Dryden's Civil War.

Consider to bow many differing substances it may be analyzed by the fire. Bayf.

2. In what manner.
Mark'd ye not, How that the guilty kind of the queen Look'd pale, when they did hear of Clarence's death? Shakespeare.

Profess'd the means of thy deliverance By ransom, or bow seate, Milton's Agazntes. We examine the weight and bow of the things, L'Etranger.

'Tis much in our power bow to live, but not at all where or under what bow, L'Etranger.

It is pleasant to see bow the small territories of this little republic are cultivated to the best advantage. Addison on Italy.

For what reason; from what cause.
How now my love? Why is thy cheek so pale? Houghton.

How chance the roves there do fale to fail? Shakespeare.

How is it thou hast found it so quickly? Gen. xxxvi.

By what means.
Men would have the colours of birds feather, if they could tell bow; or they will have gay fawns instead of gay clothes. Bacon's Natural History.

In what place.
For bow shall I go up to my father? Gen. xiv. 34. Wherein am I bowed? Job, xxxvii. 10.

How, and with what reproach shall I return to Dryden.

6. It is used in a fene marking proportion or correspondence.
Behold, he put no trust in his servants, bow much lefs in them that dwell in loutes or hav, what foundation is in the dust? Job, iv. 19.

A great division fell among the people, to much the more dangerous by bow much the spirits were more active and lively. Dryden.

By bow much they would diminish the extent of the sea, so much they would impair the fertility, and fountains and rivers of the earth. Bentley.

7. It is much used in exclamation.
How are the mighty fallen! Ham.

Though the city fiy military as a widow Lam. i.

1. In an affirmative sense, not easily explained; that so it is; that, Spenser.

HOW, adj. [how be it.] Never.

Houfe. n. fr. theleth; notwithstanding; yet; however. Not now in use.

Siker thou speak'st like a jweed loren.

Houfes I am but rude and boreol,

Yet nearer ways I know. Spenser.

Things so ordained are to be kept, howbeit not necessarily, but not any longer than will, therefrom urgent ease to ordain the contrary. Hooker.

There is a knowledge which God hath always revealed unto them in the works of nature: this they honour and esteem highly as profound wisdom, howbeit this wisdom favour them not, Hooker.

There was no army transmitted out of England, howbeit the English colonies in Ireland did win ground by their owne hand. Davier.

Trov'ye. [Contraicted from how be it.] In what flate is your health? The meafure of civility.

I now write no letters but of plain busines, or plainnesse, to those few I am forced to cor- respond with. Pope.

However, adv. [how and ever.] In whatsoever manner; in whatsoever degree.

That his ring he holds
In most rich choise; yet in his idle free,
To buy his will, it would not seem too dear. Shakespeare.

To trace the ways
Of highest agents, or howsoever wise. Milton.

2. At all events; happen, however, or at least.
Our chief end is to be freed from all, if it may be, howsoever from the greatest evils; and to enjoy, if it can be, all whatever the chiefest. Hilleson.

3. Nevertheless; notwithstanding; yet.
In your excise your love doth little this or that. Shakespeare.

You might bowsew' have took a fairer way. Dryden.

Its views are bounded on all sides by several ranges of mountains, which are at present so great a distance, that they leave a wonderful variety of beautiful prospects. Addison on Italy.

I do not build my reasoning wholly on the cause of perfecution, however I do not exclude it. Addison.

Few turn their thoughts to examine how these differences in a state are bred, that happen in end; which would, however, be a very useful enquiry.

4. To some of these meanings this word may be commonly reduced, but its power is sometimes almost evinceent.

To Hovl, v. n. [bugles, Dutch; sole, Latin.]

1. To cry as a wolf or dog.
Metaphor'd a legion of bold friends Eviron'd me, and howsew'd in mine ears Such hideous cries, that with the very noise I trembling walk'd. Shakespeare's Richard III.

If wolves had ada howsew'd that stern time. Spenser.

'Thought I should have said, Go pove, for the very sake of it. Shakespeare.

He found him in a deject land, and in the wallow howsew'd wolves. Dryden, xxix. 10.

At when a foot of wolves infet the night With their wild howsew'd at fair Cynthia's light. Walter.

Hard as his native rocks, cold as his frozen. Spenser.

Fierce as the wolves that howsew'd about his brim. Heilser the tyrant, and the urlaginous forms. Smiths.

2. To utter in diffrets.
Therefore I will howsew, and cry out for all Mobs. Jerv. xviii.

The damned ufe that word in hell, Howsew'd and read, their selfe. Roman and Julian.

Each new morn
Now widows howsew, new orphans cry, new sorrows, Strike Heaven once the face. Shakespeare's Marcellus.

That would be howsew'd out in the defirart, Where hearing should not eat them. Shak, Much.
There should be a confederacy of all servants, to drive those China back-fellers from the doors. Swift.

You must not be so stiff that you can never be changed. Swift.

A man of very small fortune; he is buffeted by difficulties. So in some provinces we shall fear the bread buff up, when it begins to be scarce, or for want: to be in a buffet is then to be in a ferment, as we now speak.

1. Swell or sudden anger or arrogance. Swift.

2. To vuelv citizens; we shall try before a civil magistrate who's the greatest player. Dryden.

3. To entertain with insolence and arrogance, or brutality. Arbuthnot.

4. To buffet; to piff. Arbuthnot.

5. To buffet, flatly, and inspiring arrogance; a carkensward of peace, was raised above him. Dryden.

This indifferent creature of theirs made us buff at the doctrine of repentance, as a thing below them. South.
HUG

1. To press close in an embrace.
   He bewept my fortune, and buggd'me in his arms.
   Shakespeare.

2. To talk with difficulty.
   What would not she do now to bug the creature that had given him an admirable face.
   L'Estrange.

To in that urn their brother they confined,
And bug in it their arms, and to their bosom prefixed.
Dryden.

3. To fiddle; to treat with tenders.
   King Xerxes was enamoured upon an oak, which he would bug and kiss.
   Harvy on Conflagrations.

To, To, To,
        To,
To, To, To,
        To,
To, To, To,
        To,
To, To, To,
        To,
To, To, To,
        To,
To, To, To,
        To,
The simile of a buggermugger
Where a secret is buggermugger lurk'd,
I'll make them rue their handie work.
L'Estrange.

4. To pluck; to treat with tenderness.
   There's a distinction between what's done openly and bare-faced, and a thing that's done in bugger-mugger, under the veil of secrecy and concealment.
   L'Estrange.

5. To pluck; to treat with tenderness.
   There's a simile of a buggermugger
   Where a secret is buggermugger lurk'd,
   I'll make them rue their handie work.
   L'Estrange.

HUM

1. To make an inarticulate and buzzing sound.
   But it night-blooming lilies the will-o' th'-wisp might live,
   An humming through their waxy city grows.
   Dryden.

2. To make a dull heavy noise.
   The musical accents of the Indians to us, are but inarticulate hummings; as are ours to their other-worldly organs.
   Milton.

But a man's humm'd upon, it is, he write.
   Still acquiesce;
   I'll still acquiesce,
   And never humm'd and staid sedition,
   Nor finn'd treason.
   Milton.

3. To make an inarticulate and buzzing sound.
   The cloudy messenger turns me his back,
   And bums; as who should say, You'll rue.
   Shakespeare.

To make a dull heavy noise.
   The musical accents of the Indians to us, are but inarticulate hummings; as are ours to their other-worldly organs.
   Milton.

But a man's humm'd upon, it is, he write.
   Still acquiesce;
   I'll still acquiesce,
   And never humm'd and staid sedition,
   Nor finn'd treason.
   Milton.

4. To make a dull heavy noise.
   The musical accents of the Indians to us, are but inarticulate hummings; as are ours to their other-worldly organs.
   Milton.

5. To make an inarticulate and buzzing sound.
   The cloudy messenger turns me his back,
   And bums; as who should say, You'll rue.
   Shakespeare.

To make a dull heavy noise.
   The musical accents of the Indians to us, are but inarticulate hummings; as are ours to their other-worldly organs.
   Milton.

But a man's humm'd upon, it is, he write.
   Still acquiesce;
   I'll still acquiesce,
   And never humm'd and staid sedition,
   Nor finn'd treason.
   Milton.

6. To make a dull heavy noise.
   The musical accents of the Indians to us, are but inarticulate hummings; as are ours to their other-worldly organs.
   Milton.

But a man's humm'd upon, it is, he write.
   Still acquiesce;
   I'll still acquiesce,
   And never humm'd and staid sedition,
   Nor finn'd treason.
   Milton.

7. To make a dull heavy noise.
   The musical accents of the Indians to us, are but inarticulate hummings; as are ours to their other-worldly organs.
   Milton.

But a man's humm'd upon, it is, he write.
   Still acquiesce;
   I'll still acquiesce,
   And never humm'd and staid sedition,
   Nor finn'd treason.
   Milton.

8. To make a dull heavy noise.
   The musical accents of the Indians to us, are but inarticulate hummings; as are ours to their other-worldly organs.
   Milton.

But a man's humm'd upon, it is, he write.
   Still acquiesce;
   I'll still acquiesce,
   And never humm'd and staid sedition,
   Nor finn'd treason.
   Milton.
HUMBLE adj. [humble, Fr. humble] Lat.
1. Not proud; modest; not arrogant. And mighty proud to humble weak does yield.
2. Low; not high; not great.

HUMANITY n.s. [humanity, Fr. humanité] Latin.
3. The nature of man.

HUMANE adj. [human, Fr. Kind; civil; benevolent; good-natured.
Love of others, if it be not spent upon a few, hath naturally spared itself towards many, and maketh some human and civilized. Bacon.

HUMANKIND n.s. [human kind] mankind.
2. The race of man.

HUMBLE adj. [from human] Lat.
1. After the notions of men; according to the power of men.
2. Kindly; with good-nature. This is now written humanly.

HUMERUS n.s. [from humerus and bird] Lat.
The humming bird. All ages have conceived the will of birds, yet our own plantations have thwed one or two, that in the humbuck, one much exceeding. Brown.
The greatest crooked needle should be used, with a ligature, in taking up the humoral arteries in amputation.

Humication. n. f. [humi and cabes, Latin.] The act of lying on the ground. Fainting and fastness, and step and tears, and humications, used to be companions of repentance.

Humid, adj. [humide, French; humidus, Latin.] Wet; moist; watery.

Iris there, with humid bow, Wade the odorous drugs that blow.

Flowers of more might! Than her purpled ear can view.

The queen, recoverd, rear her humid eyes, And first her husband on the poppy elipe.

Humidity. n. f. [humidity, French; from humid.] That quality which we call moisture, or the power of wetting other bodies. It differs very much from fluidity, depending altogether on the congruity of the component particles of any liquor to the pores or surfaces of such particular bodies as it is capable of adhering to. Thus quicksilver is not a moist liquor, in respect to our hands or clothes, and matters, though it will not stick to them, but it may be called so in reference to gold, tin, or lead, to whose surfaces it will presently adhere. And even water itself that wets almost every thing, and is the great standard of humidity, is not capable of wetting every thing, for it flands and runs easily off in globular drops on the leaves of cabbages and many other plants; and it will not wet the feathers of ducks, swans, and other water-fowl.

We'll use this unwitfulone humidity, this gross watery pamphlet. Shakespeare.

Of sileeping-breeding fun ward from the earth, Renten humidity: by below the fly's orb.

Infest the air. Shakespeare's Timon of Athens.

Young animals have more tender fibres, and more humidity, than old animals, which have their juices more hurryed, and set right back.

Humiliation. n. f. [French.]

1. Deficient from greatness; act of humility. The former was an humiliation of Deity, the latter an humiliation of mankind; for which cause there followed upon the latter an extasiation of that which was humbled; for with power he created the world, but reforted it by obedience.

2. Mortification; external expression of sin and unworthiness. John died poorly, according unto the apparel he wore, that is, of camel's hair; and the doctrine he preached was preaching of repentance and repentance. Boston.

With tears Waiting the ground, and with our fights the air. Frequently, sent from heavens country, in sign Of sorrow unfeigned, and humiliationreaks. Milton.

3. Abatement of pride. It may serve for a great lesson of humiliation to mankind, to behold the habits and patterns of man's humbling over others, friendship, honour, and their own personal safety, as well as that of their country.

Humility. n. f. [humilitie, French.]

1. Freedom from pride; modesty; not arrogance. When we make profession of our faith, we stand; when we acknowledge our fins, we fall down; because the guesture of

Vol. L

2. Confection consisted us left in the one, in the other the behaviour of humility.

Hooker.

I do not say that Englihem alive, With whom my soul is any jot at odds, More than the infant that is born to-night:

I thank my God for my humility. Shak. Rich. III.

What the best hue to reverence, the humility of a Christian teacheth to forgive.

King Charles.

The humility of the flye gained them many friends. Clarendon.

There are some that use

Humility to serve their pride, and seem

Humility upon their way, to the peculier.

At their wish'd journey's end, Dem Wallpaper.

It is an easy matter to extol humility in the midst of honour, or to begin a fall after dinner. South.

At high berrets, for their airy steep,

Require foundations in proportion deep;

And lofty cedaris as far upwards shoot,

As to the other heavens they drive the root:

So low did her suret foundation lyve.

She was not humble, but humility. Dryden.

With these humilities they satisfied the young king, and his bowing and bending awaked the present storm. Davies.

Hum'ser, n. f. [from hum.] That which hums; an applanator.

A humble.

Humoral. adj. [from humour.]

Proceeding from the humours.

This fever}' is often contracted under constant humoral fevers. Harvey on Conflammations.

Humorist, n. f. [humorist, Italian; humorist, French.]

1. One who conducts himself by his own fancy; one who gratifies his own humour.

The notion of a humorist is one that is greatly pleased, or greatly delighten, with little things; his actions seldom directed by the reason and nature of things.

This humorist keeps to himself much more than he would, and gives his particularities to purchase heaven. Addison.

2. One who has odd conceits.

The wit flinks insensibly into an humorist. Spottiswoode.

3. One who has violent and peculiar humors.

By a wife and timorous inquisition the peremptory humors and humorists must be discovered and purged, or cut off; mercy, in such a cafe, in a king, is truly cruel. Baron to Pillars.

Humorously. adv. [from humour.]

1. Full of grotesque or odd images.

Some of the commentators tell us, that Marvius was a lawyer who had lost his cause; others that this passage alludes to the merits of the great Marvius, who contended with Apollo, which I think is more humorous. Addison on Italy.

2. Capricious; irregular; without any rule but the preferd whim.

I am known to be a humorous person, on being what every thing is, in favouring the first complaint; bally and the like, upon too trivial motion. Shakespeare's Coriolanus.

Thou Journeymen's champion, that're not ever devout when he's been doped in the liver of a jildy.

To teach thee safety. Shaksp. King John.

He's humorous as Winter, and as fidden

As faws congeil'd in the spring of day. Shaksp. Henry IV, 2.

O, you awake then: come away,

Times be short, are made for play;

The humours moon too will not fly:

What doth make you thus delay? Ben Jonson.

Vast is his courage, boundles in his mind,

Rough as a storm, and humourous as the wind. Dryden.

He that would learn to laugh must feature great passions and things, must take heed of a fancifol temper of mind, and an humourous conduct in his action.

Mar's Logick.

3. Pleasant; jocular.

Thy humorous vein, thy pleasing folly,

Lies all neglected, all forgot;

4. Prefent disposition.

It is the case of kings to be attended

By slaves, that take their humour far warrant.

To intrigue into the heart of life. Shakespeare.

Their humour are not to be won,

But when they are impey'd.

Temp not his heavy brain;

But one subtil and significative word which you let fall,

Will make him in good humour with all. Dryden.

5. Grotesque imagery; jocularity; merit.

1. Conversation humour is more than wit, enlights more than knowledge.

Temple.

6 G

9. Tendency
Tendency to disfigure; morbid disposition. He denied himself nothing that he could eat or drink, which was a body full of blemishes, and made his fits of the goat frequent and violent. The child had a blemish which was cured by the waters of Glashonbury.

Petulance; pecuniaphia. Is my friend all perfection, all virtue and distinction? Has he not blemishes to endure, as well as kings to be envied?

A trick; a practice. I like not the blemish of lying: he hath wronged me in some blemish: I should have borne the blemish rather to her.

Critics; which; predominant inclination. In private, men are more bold in their own blemishes; and in conformity, men are more obnoxious to others blemishes; therefore it is good to take both.

To blemish. v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To gratify; to stoop by complaisance. If I had a suit to master Shallow, I would blemish his men if to his men, I would curry with master Shallow.

2. To fit: to comply with. To after age thou hast but writ the man, that with smooth air could blemish hell his tongue. Milton.

HUMP. n. / [corrupted perhaps from bump. See BUMP.] The protrusion formed by a crooked back. These defects were blamed by matches; the eyes were opened in the next generation, and the fault fell. Tanner.

HUMPBACK. n. f. [bump and back.] Crooked back: high shoulders. The chief of the family was born with a bumpback and very hump, Additions.

HUMPBACKED. adj. Having a crooked back.

To HUNCH. v. a. [buck, German.]

1. To strike or punch with the fists. Jack’s friends began to bunch and push one another: why don’t you go and cut the poor fellow down? Arbuthnot.

2. [Hacker, a crooked back, German.] To crook the neck. They crooked mind within bunched out thy back, and wander’d in thy limbs. Dryden.

HUNCHBACKED. adj. [bunch and back.] Having a crooked back. His person deformed to the highest degree, flattened, and lopshanked. L’Estrange.

HUNGER. n. f. [bunch, Saxon; bung, Dutch.]

1. Desire of food; the pain felt from fasting. An uneasy fenation at the stomach for food. When the stomach is empty, and the fibres in their natural tension, they draw us up close to rub against each other, so as to make that senation: but when they are distended and fat, they are again removed; unless when a person suffepeth in long as for want of spirits, or nervous fluid, to have those fibres grow too ftead to corage, and then we say a period has fainted away his stomach.

2. Any violent desire. The immaterial felicities we expect, do naturally ftrick the notion of preparing our appetites and bungers for them, without which heaven cannot be a heaven to us. Dury of Poetry. For hunger of my gold I dye. Dryden.

To HUNGER. v. n. [from the noun.]

1. To feel the pain of hunger. My more having, would be as a sauce to make me hunger more, Shakespeare’s Macbeth.

2. To declare with great cagneousness; to long, to desire. Dull thou to hunger for my empty chair, that thou wilt needs inve it with thy own blemish, before thy breath be gone! G. Selwood, Youth.

HUNGRY. adj. [banger, and bitt.] Pained or weakened with hunger. His strength shall be hungerijten. Job, xliii. 12.

The time to seek water, and in the desert, and hunger (his feet as he drank). Shakespeare.

HUNGRILY. adv. With keen appetite. You have seen my longing, and I feel Moat hungerily on your sight. Shakespeare.

HUNGRILYSTARVED. adj. [hunger and Starved.] Starved with hunger; pinched by want of food.

All my followers to the eager foxe Turn back, and fly like ships before the wind, Or lams paried by hunger harry’s wolves. Shakspg., go, cheer up thy hungry men, and beat the dogs. As to some holy house the afflicted came, Th’hungryward’s, the naked, and the lame, Want and dudles, fed before her name. Dryden.

HUNGRILY. adj. [from hunger.] Pinched by want of food.

Time do in a small degree nourish, and we see men an hungered love to smell hot bread. Bacon.

HUNGRILITY. adv. [from hunger.] With keen appetite. That much to make both kind rural gods we owe, Who pity’d suffering mortals long ago; When on hard acorns hungrily they fed, And gave ’em colder palates, better bread. Dryden.

HUNGRY. adj. [from hunger.]

To feeling main leen want of food. That taste of his the hungry can nibals Would not have touch’d, would have stain’d with blood. Shakespeare.

By eating before he was hunghy, and drinking before he was dry, he was sure never to eat or drink much at a time.

That they talk thus may say a man is always hungry, that he doth not always feel it; whereas hunger continueth in that very senation. Locke.

2. Not fat; not fruitful; not prolific; more dispoused to draw from other substances than to impart to them. Caius has a lean and hungry look. Shakespeare.

The more fat water will bear fog tont; for the hungry water doth kill its unctuous nature. Bacon.

In ruddy ground springs are found at the first and second foot, and sometimers lower in a bunggrave. Mortimer.

To the great of retribution our Saviour refers us, for reaping the fruits that we here low in the bungers and barren soil. Smollett’s Sermant.

HUNKS. n. f. [banger, forrdid, Ilandick.] A covetous forrid wretch; a mifer; a curmudgeon.

The old buns was well served, to be tricked out of a whole hog for the securing of his puddings. L’Estrange.

She has a husband, a jealous, covetous, old buns. Dryden.

He has given all the intimations of being a close buns, with much of Additions.

HUN. n. [bunt, Saxon, from bunt, a dog.]

1. To chase wild animals. The man that once did fell the lion’s fain, While the beast liv’d, was kill’d in bunting him. Shakespeare, Wilt.
HUN

Wilt that brief, the prey for the lion, or fill the appetite of the young lions? [Jes. xxix. 39.]

You shouldingleverycriminaloutoftheherd, and lead them down, however formidable orgrown; and, on the contrary, flatter and defend virtue.

The heart strikes five hundred forts of pulses in an hour, and is turned unto such continual palpitations, through anxiety, that then would be break.

Harvey on Compunction.

J.

To search for.

Not certainly affirmin anything, but by considering of times and monumens, I do but out probably.

Spen.

All that is found in books is not rightly deduced from principles; such an examen every reader's mind is not forward to make, especially in those who have given themselves up to a party, and only hunt for what may favour and support the secret of it.

Locke.

To direct or manage hounds in the chase.

He keeps a pack of dogs better than any, and it is famous for finding hares.

1. To follow the chase.

When he returns from hunting, I will not speak with him. Shakespeare's King Lear.

Give way to the field to hunt for venison.

Gen. xxvii. 4.

One followed stately and knowledge, and another hunting and burning.

L knots.

On the old pagan tombs, masts, hunting matches, and Bacchus's are very common. Add. dit. on Italy.

To pursue or fear.

Very much of kin to this is the hunting after agents to make good one side of a question, and wholly to neglect and refuse those whom the other side.

Locke.

HUNTER. n. [from hunt.]

1. Of hunting bounds.

These common hunts, though from their rage refrain'd: By tyr' reign power, her company disdain'd.紧盯' as they pass'd: Dryden's Hind and Panther.

HUNTER. n. [from hunt.]

2. A chase.

The hunt is up, the morn is bright and gray; The fields are fragrant, and the woods are green. Shakespeare.

HUNTER. n. [from hunt.]

1. Who one chases animals for amusement or food.

The English lords had been good hunters, and reduced the mountains, bogs, and woods within the limits of forests, chases, and parks, the forest law would have driven them into the plains.

Dawson on Ireland.

Down from a hill the beast that reigns in woods, First hunter then, purs'd a gentle brace, Goodliest of all the hunt, best and blind. Another's 'chair no happier beaver bore, Glutting his father's eyes with guiltsed goe. Dryden's Æn.

This was the arms or device of our old Roman hunters, a pallas of Minuilus let us know the pagan hunters had Meaeger for their patron. Add. dit.

Bold Nimrod fight the savage chase began, A mighty hunter, and his name was man.

Pope.

2. A dog or men that sees game or beasts of prey.

Of dogs, the val'd fields.

Distinguishes the twish, the flow, the subtle, The bowkicker, the hunter. Shaft's Macheth.

Hunter. n.s. [from hunting and born.]

A young, a born used to the hounds. Whilt a boy, Jack ran from school.

Fond of his hunting born and pole. Prior.

HUNTER. n. [from hunter.]

A woman that follows the chase.

And shook t'other crowned queen of night, survey With thy shames eyes, from thy pale sphere above, The merchant that does view His high from far came with'ty wilderths, He hurst our town. Spenser.

HUR.

Thy hunter's name, that my full life doth sway.

Shall I call

Antiquity from the old schools of Greece,

To tell the arms of chastity.

Hence was the hunting Diana her dread bow,

Fair silver-flashed queen, for ever chaste.

Let old Arcas boast her ample plains,

Th' immortal hunting, and her virgin train;

Nor envy Winiford.

Homer reports Diana with her quiver at her shoulder; but at the same time he describes her as hunting.

Hunsman, n.s. [from hunt and m.m.]

1. One who delights in the chase.

Like as a dog, they ran the chase, seeing the game escape from him away, Sits down to rest him, Spen.'s Sonnets. Such game, whilst yet the world was new, The mighty Nimrod did pursue: What huntsman of our feeble race,

Huntsman ship. n. [from huntsman.]

The qualifications of a hunter.

At court your followers every day

Give the art of rhiming, hunting ship, or play. Donne.

HURLEY. n. f. [byrnel, Saxon.]

1. A texture of Ricks woven together; a crate.

The sled, the slumb'l, hurdle and the ball. These all must be prepared. Dryden's Georg. Of grade on which criminals were dragged to execution.

Settle your fine joints 'gainst Thursday next, Or I will drag thee on a hurdle-thither. Shakespeare.

The blackamore hunged, drawn, and quartered at Tyburn, taking pleasure upon the hurdle, to think that he should be famous in after-times. Hazen.

Hurdle. n.s. [from hurdle.]

The refuse of hemp or flax.

To hurl. v. n. a. [from hurlt, to throw down, Ilissick; or, according to Simmer, from nubil,]

1. To throw with violence; to drive impetuously.

If heav'n's have any grievous plagues in store, O, let them keep it 'till thy son be ripe, And then hurl him down from the top. On the 1 Shakespeare's Richard III.

He holds vengeance in his hand, To hurl upon their heads that break his law, Shaykib.

I wish my child's did'st zones out of the ground. To hurl at the bothers of my dame. Shakespeare.

If he hurl him of hatred, or hurl him as by laying of wait. Xeniv. 240.

They use both the right hand and the left in hurling stones. Camb. xii. 2.

Hurl. v. t. and w. [from hurlt;]

As madmen, Ben. Jonson.

His darling foes, Hurl'd headlong to partake with, shall bear Their trait original and foule beholde. Milton.

She fired her late; but if it found, Threatens to hurl it on the ground. Milton.

Corrupted light of knowledge hurl'd, Wil. rage, and death, ignorance, over all the world. Deman.

Young Phaeton, From East to North regularly hurl'd, Birth set himself in fire, and then the world. Dryden.

Conjure him far to drive the Grecian train, And hurl'd them headlong to their fleet and main. Shakespeare.

2. To utter with vehemence. [hur'ter, French, to make an howling or hideous noise.] This feme is not in use.

The gled merchant that does view His high from far came with'ty wilderths, He hurst our town. Spenser.

HURLING, n. s. [from hurl.]

Highly they rage' against the Highest, hurling defiance towards the vaults of heav'n.

Milton.

3. To play at a kind of game.

Hurling: take this its denomination from the throwing of the ball, and is of two sorts; to goals, and to the country: for hurling to goals there are fifteen or thirty players, more or less, chosen out on each side, who shift themselves, and then join hands in ranks, one against another; out of these ranks they match themselves by pairs, one embracing another, and so pass away: every person of course are watching one another during this play.

Carew.

HURLY. n. s. [from the verb.] Tumult; riot, commotion.

He in the fame hurling murder such as he thought would withstand his delf, was chosen king.

Knolles.

HURLY. n. s. [from hurl and bat.] Whirlbat.

HURLY. n. s. [from hunt.]

One that plays at hurling.

The hurles must man to man to meet, and not two feet upon one man at once. Carew's Survey of Cornwall.

HURLING. n. s. [from hurl and wind.] A whirlwind; a violent gulf. A word not in use.

Like scatter'd by howling Eurus blown, By rapid hurlings from his manion the wind, Dry.

HURLY. n. s. [from the French;]

Hurluberly. n.s. hurluberly, inconsiderately. Tumult; commotion; buffle.

Winds take thy rusian billows by the top.

That with the ball death infallalemaketh. Shaksp.

Poor differences,

Which gape and rub the elbow at the news

Of hurluberly innovation. Shakespeare.

Methinks, I see this hurlly all on foot. Shaksp.

All these were fine and free; in hurlbury, every man measured the danger by his own fear; and such a pitiful cry was everywhere, and in cities presently to be befogged. Knolles.

HURLY. n. s. [from hurl and wind;]

Hurluberly, inconsiderately. Tumult; commotion; buffle.

Winds take thy rusian billows by the top.

That with the ball death infallalemaketh. Shaksp.

Poor differences,

Which gape and rub the elbow at the news

Of hurluberly innovation. Shakespeare.

Methinks, I see this hurlly all on foot. Shaksp.

All these were fine and free; in hurlbury, every man measured the danger by his own fear; and such a pitiful cry was everywhere, and in cities presently to be befogged. Knolles.

HURLY. n. s. [from hurl and wind;]

Hurluberly, inconsiderately. Tumult; commotion; buffle.

Winds take thy rusian billows by the top.

That with the ball death infallalemaketh. Shaksp.

Poor differences,

Which gape and rub the elbow at the news

Of hurluberly innovation. Shakespeare.

Methinks, I see this hurlly all on foot. Shaksp.

All these were fine and free; in hurlbury, every man measured the danger by his own fear; and such a pitiful cry was everywhere, and in cities presently to be befogged. Knolles.

HURLY. n. s. [from hurl and wind;]

Hurluberly, inconsiderately. Tumult; commotion; buffle.

Winds take thy rusian billows by the top.

That with the ball death infallalemaketh. Shaksp.

Poor differences,

Which gape and rub the elbow at the news

Of hurluberly innovation. Shakespeare.

Methinks, I see this hurlly all on foot. Shaksp.

All these were fine and free; in hurlbury, every man measured the danger by his own fear; and such a pitiful cry was everywhere, and in cities presently to be befogged. Knolles.
HUR

That hurry'd o'er
Such swarms of English to the neigh'ring shore.

Dryden.

A man has not time to judge his passions,
Establish his soul in virtue, and come up to the Perfection of his nature, before he is hurried off the Flag of Addision.

Stay those sudden gusts of passion,
That hurry you away, Restor. Royal Curnt.

If a council be called, or a battle fought, you are Not always informed, the reader is hurried out of himself by the poet's imagination.

To HURRY, n. v. To move on with precipitation.

Did you but know what joys your way attend,
You would not hurry to your journey's end. Dryd.

HURRY, n. v. [from the verb.] Tumult; precipitation; commotion.

Among all the horrible burries in England, Ireland
There was then almost quiet. Hayward.

It might have pleased him in the present heat and hurry of his rage; but must have displeased him increasingly in the fable reflection. Swift.

After the violence of the hurry and commotion was over, the water came to a state somewhat more calm. Woodward.

Ambition raises a tumult in the soul, it infires
the mind, and puts it into a violent hurry of thought.
Addison.

A long train of coaches and fire ran through the hearts one another. In a very hurry. Ashby.

I do not include the life of those who are in a perpetual hurry of affairs, but of those who are not always engaged. Addison.

The pavement founds with trampling feet,
And the midst hurry barracades the street.

HURST, n. f. [ rhyme, Saxon.] A grove or thicket of trees.

Airy wood.

To HURT, v. a. to hurt; part. past. have hurt. [ rhyme, wounded, Saxon; dever, to strike, French.]

1. To mischief; to harm.
He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death. Revolutions.

Victory may be advis'd, but never hurt;
Surpriz'd by unjust force, but not enthral'd. Milton.

The Adonis of the sea is so called, because it is loving and innocent fish, that hurts nothing that has life. Walten.

2. To wound; to pain by some bodily harm.
My heart is turn'd to stone: I strike it, and it hurt my hand. Shakespeare's Cymbeline.

It breeds contempt
For kinder's, or presum'd to prey,
Unto the strong gums of his den. Dryden.

3. To damage; to impair.
See thou hurt not the oil and wine. Revelations.

HURT, n. f. [from the verb.]

1. Harm; mischief.
The hurt thereby is greater than the good.

I have shin a man to my hurt, Congreve.

I found it stand there uncorrected, as if there had been no hurt done. Baker on Learning.

2. Wound or bruise.
Where is the wounded?
There will be large scabies to chew the people:
he received seven harts' t' body. Shakespeare's Coriolanus.

Cesar ventured bravely, and received two great harts in his body.
The pains of scibles and harts, hunger, thirst and all manner of pain. Locke.

In arms and science lies the fame,
Our rival harts create our fame, Prior.

3. Injury; wrong.
Why should damage grow to the hurt of the King?

HURTER, n. f. [from hurt.] One that does harm.

HURTFUL. adj. [hurt and full.] Mif chievous; pernicious.
Secret neglect of our duty is but only our own hurt: one man's contempt of the common prayer of the church of God may be most hurtful unto many.

The hurtful haste in the vineyard bun.
Nor plant it to receive the fleeting fun.

HURTULLY. adv. [from hurtful.] Mif chievously; perniciously.

HURTFULNESS. n. s. [from hurtful.] Mischiefouesness; perniciousness.

To HURTE, v. n. [hearter, French; wurt, Italian.] To chaf; to skimth; to run against any thing; to jumble; to meet in thock and

Make him give battle to the lions.
Who quickly fell before him; in which hurrying.
From miserable lumber I awak'd.

Shakesp. As you like it.

To HURTLE. v. a. To move with vio lence or impetuosity. This is probably the original of hurt.
Obloque.

His hurried club he ran to hurt high,
And threaten battle to the fairy knight. Fairy Queen.

Hurtleberry, n. f. [short bar, Danitish.] Bilberry; batac vita idea.

Hurtless. adj. [from hurt.]
1. Innocent; harmless; innocuous; doing harm.
Unto her home he oft would go,
Where bold and hurtless many a play he tries,
Her parents liking well it should be so;
For simple goodreses thined in his eyes. Sidney.

She joyd to make proof of her cruelty
On gentle dame, so hurtless and so true.

Shoerer cry's gay he takes,
And vain efforts and hurtless blows he makes.

Drury's Eon.

2. Receiving no hurt.
Hurtlessly, adv. [from hurtless.] Without hurt.
Your neighbours have found you so hurtlessly strong, that they thought it better to rest in your friendship than make new trial of your enmity.

Sidney.

HURTLESSNESS. n. s. [from hurpless.] Freedom from any pernicious quality.

HUSBAND, n. s. [husband, Saxon; bur, to strike, French.

1. The correlative to wife; a man married to a woman.
Thy husband is thy lord, thy life, thy keeper,
Thy head, thy sovereign, Shak. Teming of the Shrew.

Why, woman, your husband is in his old times again: he so takes on yonder with my husband, and so rails against all married mankind. Shakespeare.

This careful husband had been long away,
Whom his chaste wife and little children mourn.

Dryden.

The contract and ceremony of marriage is the occasion of the denomination of relation of husband.

Locke.

2. The male of animals.
Ev'n though a snowy ram thou shalt behold,
Prefer him not to halfe, for husband to thy yold.

Dryden.

3. An economist; a man that knows and practises the methods of frugality and profit. Its signification is always modified by some epithet implying bad or good.

Edward I. feared himself a right good husband owner of a lordship ill husbanded. Davison, Ireland.

I was no fortune of life, and what ill husbanded we are of to tender a fortune. Collier.

4. A tiller of the ground; a farmer.

HUSBAND. n. s. [husband, Saxon; bur, to strike, French.

1. Tiller of the ground, in the English sense of a man who cultivatea the land.
He began with a wild method to run over all the art of husbandry, especially employing his tongue with much diligence of a field. Sidney.

What is in husbandry he ought did know not,
To plough, to plant, to reap, or low. Hubberd's Tale.

Hubberd's husband supplies all things necessary for food.

Smith.

Peace hath from France too long been chas'd;
And all her husbands, doth lie on heads,
Corrupting in its own fertility. Shakesp. Henry V.

Her plenty being secured; Hubberd.

Ereexpress its full tillth and husbandry.

Shakesp. The seeds of virtue may, by the husbandry of Christian's count'fly, produce better fruit than the strength of self-nature. Raleigh.

Hubberd the Spaniards wanting in the valleys of Mexico, could not make our winter beef beat.

Ralegh.

A family governed with order will fall naturally to the several trades of husbandry, tillage, and purlaige.

Temple.

But may any one consider the difference between an acre of land sown with wheat, and an acre of the same land lying without any husbandry upon it, and he will find that the improvement of labour makes the value.

Locke.

2. Thrift; frugality; parsimony.

There's husbandry in heaven.

Shakesp. The cures are all out.

The candles are all out. Shakespeare's Macbeth.

You have already saved several millions to the publick, and that what we ask is too incomodatable
by
H U S

1. Care of domestic affairs.
   The kg., put into your hands
   The kyd. which manages all the house.

H U Z

The dryad sat in water and again empley.
The pond's water;
Barley for flax was first steeped in water till it swelled; after wards dried in the sun, then bat the
Su. was taken off, and ground.

Do not consent yourselve with mere words, let
You feed upon Su. instead of kernels.

To H U S. To strip off the outward integument.

Abounding in huks; covered with a huik.

A bufo harvett from the grudging ground.

With timely care
Shave the goat's thaggy beard, left thou too late
In vain shoul'd it lack a finner, to dispart
The bufo terreus dregs from purest Pholus.

H U S.

To H U S. To still; to silence; to quiet; to appease.

You can not flee from State patience boof.

As to be bufo's, and nought at all to say.

Shakespeare: "The Tempest."

To H U S. To still; to silence; to quiet; to appease.

To H U S. To still; to silence; to quiet; to appease.

Yet can I not flee from State patience boof.

As to be bufo's, and nought at all to say.

Shakespeare: "The Tempest."

To H U S. To still; to silence; to quiet; to appease.

To H U S. To still; to silence; to quiet; to appease.

Hu's MONEY. To HU S.

A barker to hinder information; pay to secure silence.

A decoy. Reward, when his tricks are found,

Hymen's tend to all the neighbours round.

His master, unmerciful of his hands,

Pays all the cost, and gives the alliance thanks.

H u s. a. [bulldish, Dutch, or bukses, from buxus].

The outmost integument of fruits.

Do not behold you poor and tharved band,

And your fairth shall be luck; away their souls,

Leavening them but the blacks and buks of men.

Shakespeare.

Softest, in their growing, leave their buks or riod about the root.

Bacoon: "Natural History of Fruits."

The food shall be

The fresh smock muslons, wistered roots, and buks.

Wherein the acorn cradled.

Shakespeare: "The Tempest."

From all kinds, in coat

Rough, or incoats, and some bearded, or a leaf,

She gathered; tribute large, and on the board.

Heaps with unifiring hand.

William.

Sometimes these leaves, and some in caldrons boil
Over gentle fires; the excrretid juice to drain,

And in all the flatting firma with fruitful grain.

Drydon.

Some when the prep

Has drained the pulpy mast, regale their swine
With the dry refuse; thou, more wise, filthreip.

Drydon.
HYDRAULICA. adj. [from hydraulick.] Relating to hydraulicks.

HYDRAULICK. { from hydraulick. } Relating to the conversion of water through pipes or conduits.

HYDRAULICKS, n.s. [water-pipes, and &c.; a pipe. ] The science of conveying water through pipes or conduits.

HYDROCE'PHALUS, n.s. [from hydro & cephale. ] A watery rupture.

HYDROCE'PHALOUS, n.s. [from hydro & cephale; hydrocephalic, Fr. ] Deflection of the watery part of the terartidgious globe.

HYDROGEN, n.s. [from hydro & genere. ] Prediction by water.

Division was invented by the Periains: there are four kinds of detonation: divagation, vacillation, reversion, and compignony.

HYDROMET: n.s. [from hydro & metron. ] An instrument to measure the extent or profundity of water.

HYDROMETRY, n.s. [from hydro & metron. ] The art of measuring the extent of water.

HYDROPHOBIA, n.s. [from hydro & phobos. ] Dread of water.

Among those dilation symptoms that follow the bite of a mad dog, the hydrophobia, or dread of water, is the most remarkable.

HYDROPHILA. n.s. [from hydro & phile. ] Love of water.

The general balm the hydrophilk earth hath drunk.

HYDROPHILIC, adj. [from hydro &philos. ] Tending to water.

HYDROPHILE. S. [from hydro & philos. ] Tending to water.

HYDROPHOBIC. S. [from hydro & phobos. ] Fearing water.

HYDROPOIKILIA. n.s. [from hydro & poikilos. ] A variable water.

HYDROPOIKILIC, adj. [from hydro & poikilos. ] Subject to variable water.

HYDROPOIKILY, n.s. [from hydro & poikilos. ] Variable water.

HYDROPS, n.s. [from hydro & pepsis. ] Enlarged water.

HYDROSTATICAL, adj. [from hydro & statikos. ] Relating to hydrostaticks.

HYDROSTATICS, n.s. [from hydro & stasis. ] The science of weighing fluids; weighing bodies in fluids.

HYDROTICK, n.s. [from hydro & tyx. ] Purger of water or phlegm.

He seems to have been the first who divided purges into hot and unctional bile.

HYDROSYRUP, n.s. [from hydro & syrups. ] One who draws maps of the sea.

It may be found in the writings of our hydrostatists.

HYDROGRAPHY, n.s. [from hydro & graphos. ] Description of the watery part of the terartidgious globe.

HYDROMANCY, n.s. [from hydro & mancy. ] Divination by water.

In Heaven's well joined with the bever, as having a bag in those parts, whereby we understand the hydrostatics, or bivulcate.

HYDRONEM. n.s. [from hydro & nem. ] Honey and water.

HYDROMELE. n.s. [from hydro & mel. ] Honey and water.

HYDROPICK, n.s. [from hydro & pik. ] An instrument to measure the degree of moisture.

A sponge, perhaps, might be a better hydropermeter than the earth of the river.

HYDROSCOPE, n.s. [from hydro & skopein. ] An instrument to view the moisture and dryness of the air, and to measure and estimate the quantity of the moisture.

Quinny. Moisture in the air is discovered by hygrometers.

HYLARCHELICAL, adj. [from hyla & archelos. ] Preceding over matter.

Hyms, n.s. A species of dog; unless it is by mistake for Lymo. Avant, you curst!

Maltish, greyhound, mungill grim, Hound or spaniel, brace or hyme; or boatish like, or tramde tall.

Hymns, n.s. [from hydro & mone. ] A mar.-

HymeneAN, n.s. ringe fong.

And here he throneth the hymencan fung. Milton.

For her white virgins hymenesd fung. Pope.

Hymn, n.s. [from hymn, Fr. &c. ] An encomiaifick fong, or song of adoration to some superior being.

As I earl, in praine of mine own dame, So use we hymn, to praise her name.

To hymn, n.s. [from hymn, Fr. &c. ] To raise in songs to worship with hymns.

They touch'd their golden harps, and hymned praise'd

God and his work.

Had he not left this patient sain,

The whole body of aliorts, but him.

To hold a peaceful branch of palm above,

And hymn it in the quire.

From the Spanish Priar.

HYMICK, adj. [from hymn, Fr. ] Relating to hymns.

He rounds the air, and breaks the hymnicks notes

In birds, heaven's chorists, organick voices.

Which, if they did not die, might seem to be a matchwork in the church hierarchy.

Done.

HYMPSICHORON, n.s. [from hymns & choros. ] To make melancholy; to dispirit.

I have been to the last degree, hypped since I saw you.

HY'PALLAGE, n.s. [from hypallai. ] A figure by which words change their cases with each other.

HYPER, n.s. [from hyper. ] A word barbarously curtailed by Prior from hypercritick.

A hypercritick; one more critical than necessity requires.

Prior did not know the meaning of the word.

Criticks I read on other men,

And they upon me.

Prior.

HYPERBOLA, n.s. [from hyperbola, Fr. &c. ] In geometry, a section of a cone made by a plane, fo that the axis of the section inclines to the opposite leg of the cone, which in the parabola is paralleld to it, and in the ellipsipis intersects it.

The axis of the hyperbolical section will meet also with the opposite side of the cone, when produced above the vertex.

Harriss.

Had the velocities of several planets been greater or less than they are, or had their distances from the sun, or the quantity of the sun's matter, and consequently his attractive power been greater or less than they are now, with the same velocities, they would not have resolved in concentrick circles, but have moved in hyperbolas very eccentrically.

Bentley.

HYPERBOLE, n.s. [from hyperbole, Fr. &c. ] A figure in rhetoric by which any thing is increased or diminished beyond the exact truth: as, he runs faster than lightning.

His passions are fullest to his.

He was so gaudy, the cafe of a flagellat was a maniaj for him.

Shakes.

Terms unqualified

Which, from the tongue of roaring Typhon drop,

Would seem hyperboles. Shaks. Troilus and Cressida;

Tartuffe phraseis, liken terms precisely.

These pref. hyperboles, figure alliteration.

Tartuffe pedantic, the Summer stike on.

Have blown me full of maggots ostentation. Shakes.

They were above the hyperboles, that forc'd poetry bellows upon its admiral objects.

Garrick, Hyperboles.
HYPER

Hyperbolical, fo daring and so bold,
Defying bounds, are yet by rules control'd;
Above the clouds, but yet within our sight:
They mount with truth, and make a tow'ring flight.

Graves in.

HYPERBOLICAL. adj. [hyperbolique, Fr.]
HYPERBOLIC. from hyperbol, Lat.]
1. Belonging to the hyperbola; having the nature of an hyperbola.

Cancellerated in the middle with squares, with triangles before, and behind with hyperbolic lines.

Grew's Museum.

The heavy or pelucid coat of the eye rifeeth up as a hill, above the convexity of the white of the eye, and is of an hyperbolic or parabolic figure.

Ray in the Creation.

2. [From hyperbol.] Exaggerating or explaining beyond fact.

It is parabolical, and probably hyperbolical, and therefore not to be taken in a strict sense. Boyle.

HYPERBOLICALLY. adv. [from hyperbolical]
1. In form of an hyperbola.
2. With exaggeration or extenuation.
Yet may all be solved, if we take it hyperbolically. Dean.

Scully is seated upon a narrow mountain, which thrusts into the sea a steep high rock, and hyperbolically defended by Homer as inaccesible.

Grew's Notes on the Odyssey.

HYPERBOLUM. adv. [hyperbolically and formally]. Having the form, or nearly the form of the hyperbola.
HYPERBOREAN. n. f. [hyperborean, Fr. hyperboreus, Lat. Norn.]
HYPERCRITIC. n. s. [hypercritique, Fr. hypercritique, ang.]
A critic exact or captious beyond use or reason.

Those hypercritic in English poetry differ from the opinion of the Greek and Latin judges, from the Italian and French, and from the general taste of all ages.

HYPERCRITICAL. adj. [from hypercritic.]
Critical beyond necessity or use.

We are far from imposing those nice and hyperbolical punctilious, which some authors oblige our gardens with.

Evelyn.

Such hypercritical readers will consider my subject as the means was to make a body of reined fayings, only taking care to produce them in the most natural manner.

Swift.

HYPERMETRE. n. f. [mesure et hyper.] Any thing greater than the standard requires.
When a man rises beyond six foot, he is an hypermeter, and may be admitted into the tall club.

Admiral.

HYPERSCARISIS. n. f. [hyperacaris, Lat. and ang.-ske-] The growth of fungous or proud flesh.

Where the hyperacaris was great, I sprinkled it with the most of what I more specifically called the ulcer of its potestation.

Swift.

HYPERHEN. n. f. [super]. A note of conjunction: as virue, ever-living.

HYPER-TICK. n. f. [hyper.] Any medicine that induces sleep.

HYPOCHONDRIAC. adj. hypercondria.
HYPOCHONDRIACK. gue, Fr. from hyperboulare.

1. Melancholy; disordered in the imagination.

Socrates laid down his life in attestation of that most fundamental of all truths, the belief of one God; and yet he's not recorded either as fast or hyperboulare.

Decay of Piety.

2. Producing melancholy; having the nature of melancholy.

Cold sweats are many times mortal, and always suspected: as in great fears, and hyperbolical passions, being a relaxation or forfaking of the spirits.

Bacon's Natural History.

HYPOCRIST. n. s. [hypocrite, Fr.]
HYPOCRITY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.]
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.]

HYPOCRITE. n. s. [hypocrity, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.]
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.]

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.

HYPOCRISY. n. s. [hypocrify, Fr.
JABBER. n. f. [from jabber.] One who talks inarticulately or unintelligibly.

JAC. n. [from jack, a coat of mail.] Boots which serve as armour to the legs.

JABBERER. n. f. One who talks inarticulately or unintelligibly.

JACENT, adj. [jacens, Lat.] Lying at length.

JACINTH. n. f. [for hyacinth, Jerusalem for Hierusalem.] 1. The name with hyacinth. 2. A gem of a deep reddish yellow approaching to a flame colour, or the deepest amethyst.

JACK. n. f. [Probably by mitake from Jaquts, which in French is James.] 1. The diminutive of John. Used as a general term of contempt for saucy or paltry fellows.

JACK Boot. n. f. [from jack, a coat of mail.] Boots which serve as armour to the legs.

JACK by the hedge. n. f. Erythrum. Jack by the hedge in an herb that grows wild under hedges, is eaten as other fallals are, and much used both to make and to preserve.

JACK Pudding. n. f. [jack and pudding.] A zani; a merry Andrew. Every jack pudding will be ridiculous palatable weaknesses which they ought to cover. L'Estrange.

JACKANENT. n. f. [Jack in Lent, a poor flaved fellow.] A mirthful heathen.

Jackal. n. f. [chacal, Fr.] A small animal suppofted to flart prey for the lion.

JACQUES. n. f. [jack and ape.] 1. Monkey; an ape. 2. A coxcomb; an impertinent.

JACKDAW. n. f. [jack and daw.] A cock daw; a bird taught to imitate the human voice.

JACETY. n. f. [jaquet, Fr.] A short coat; a close waftcoat.

JACEN'T. adj. [jacens, Lat.] Lying at length.
A J A D

And here, and dogs, and hogs are feeding;
And here a sailor's jacket hangs to dry.

1. To be on a jacket, to be the man.

The fell upon the jacket of the parson, who stood up to take it off. L'Estrange.

JACOB'S Ladder, n. f. Polemonium; the same with Greek valerian.

JACOB'S Staff, n. f. 1. A pilgrim's staff.

2. Staff concealing a dagger.

3. A crook staff; a kind of asilage.

JACOBINE, n. f. A pigeon with a high ruff.

JACOBITISM, n. f. [jacobit, Lat.]

1. Tailing; motion; ruffling; heaving.

If the patient be surprized with jaundice, or great oppression about the thorax, expect no relief from cordials. Harvey.

2. A term in the canon law for a false pretention to marriage.

JACULATION, n. f. [jaculation, Latin.] The act of throwing missive weapons.

So bills amid the air, encounter'd hills, Hunt'd to and fro with jauntion dire. Milton.

JADE, n. f. [The etymology of this word is doubtful: Skinner derives it from gaud, gay, or fair.]

1. A horse of no spirit; a hired horse; a worthless nag.

Ales, what witless thee that load my heart.

I am as dull as Winter-starved sheep.

That's a jade in overladen cart.

Sidney.

The plain nag came upon the trial to prove choice to be a jade that made sport with him. L'Estrange.

Jade's flaps help to renew their race,

As, after tumbling, jade would mend their pace. Pope.

2. A sorry woman. A word of contempt not since times age, but generally vice.

Shall they, these old jades, pull the flower

Of youth, that you have, pull you.

Chapman.

The cunning's jade alive, Say's, it's the ready way to thrive. Steevens.

Get in, hurry; now will I perambulate this young jade, and discover the intrigue. Southey.

In d'oumbarr, pearls, and rich brocades,

She shires the shift of battered jades,

And flutters in her pride. Swift.

3. A young woman: in irony and flight contempt.

You wrong and then some hand-made jades among them; the flutes have very white teeth and black eyes. Addison.

JADE, n. f. A species of flone.

The jade's the flesh of the jaundice, and of extreme hardness. Its colour is composed of a pale bluish grey, or ash-colour, and a pale-green, not uniform. It appears dull and coarsely on the surface, but it is of the clearest polish. It is used by the Turks for handles of handles. Hill.

To J A D E, v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To tire; to haraize; to dispirit; to weary; applied originally to horsemanship.

With his eyes on the gelding ranks, The never-yet-beaten horse of Parthenia. We're jaded out of his field. Shak. Ast. and Cleo.

It is good in discourse to vary and intermingle speech of the present occasion with arguments for...

J A I

It is a dull thing to tire and jade anything too far.

If feet drag, it's the presage of the elephant.

It's a sign, and in frequent matches cast

No favour for the ballon we rate,

And no respect for the ball that is met with. Dryden.

3. To employ in vile purposes.

The honourable blood

Mufl be not befl'd by such a jade.' Dryden.

4. To ride; to rule with tyranny.

I do not now fool myself, to let imagination jade me for every reason exciting to this. Dryden.

To J A D E, v. n. To lose spirit; to sink.

Many offer at the effects of friendship, but they do not fail: they are promising in the beginning, but they fail and jade the time in the prosecution. South.

J A D I, n. f. 1. Vitious; bad; an horfe.

That hoo'd us on their backs, to show us

A jadify trick at last, and throw us. Hudson.

This once the people get the jadify trick of thro'ing off their king, no ruler's safe. Southern.

2. Unchaste; incontinent.

Tis to no boot to jealous a woman; for if the humour takes her to be jadify, not all the locks and fops in nature can keep her honest. L'Estrange.

To J A G G, v. a. [gaguer, sles or holes, Welsh.] To cut into indentures; to cut into teeth these of a faw.

Some leaves round, some long, some square, and many jagged on the flutes. Basew. Nat. Hist.

The jagging of pinks and glittifiers is like the inequality of oak leaves; but they never have any small plain parts.

The banks of that mea must be jagged and torn by the impetuous affaults, or the silent underminings of waves; violent rains must wash down earth from the tops of mountains. Tickell.

An elder-tree is one among the lefter trees, whose younger branches are soft, and whose leaves are jagged. Watt.

3. From the verb.] A prodogeneity or denticulation.

The figure of the leaves is divided into many jagges or eccalps, and curiously indented round the edges. Ray.

Take off the flaring flames, twigs, and jaggs in the hive, and make them as smooth as possible. Mortimer's Hydriades.

JAGGY, adj. [from jagg.] Uncen; denticulated.

His tow'ring crift was glorious to behold;

His shoulders and his sides were clo'd with gold;

Three tongues he brandish'd when he charg'd his fong;

His teeth bed jaggy in three dreadful rows. Add.

Amid these angles, infantly strain'd,

They joyful leave their jaggy teeth behind. Thomson.

JAGGEDNESS, n. f. [from jagger.] The flat of being denticulated; unevenness.

Find denticulated leaves, making them plain, before you give them their veners and museum. Peacock on Drawing.

JAIL, n. f. [gaul, Fr.] A gaol; a prison; a place where criminals are confined. See GAOL. It is written either way; but communally by latter writers jail.

Away with the dotter, to the jail with him. Shakespeare.

A dependant upon him paid six thousand pounds ready money, which, poor man, he lived to repent in a jail. Clarendon.

He gird'd and turn'd his eyes, because he knew 'twas but a larger jail he had in view. Dryden.

One jail did all their criminals restrain,

Which now the walls of Rome can scarce contain.

J A S B I R D, n. f. [jail and bird.] One who has been in a jail.

J A T T E R, n. f. [from jail.] A gaoler; the keeper of a prifon.

Seeking many fears to speak with her, and ever kept from her, as was known, till she was distained, and dissembling his mind, as because of her jealous jatter.

Sidney.

a jailer, to bring forth

Some monstrous makefacto.

Shakespere.

His poor to hollow caverns confin'd;

There let him reign, the jailer of the wind;

With horfes commands his breathing subjects call,

And hoist and bluster in his empty hall.

Damon, the pris'en knight,

Reflects for war, and then before the light;

And, with his prison leave, deift's to breathe

An air more welcome than the dampaph黑夜. Dryden.

I will this imbolden villain into mortar, and dash the walls of jades, ad infinitum. Shaksp.

Their forlorn aviance rakes

In excrescences, and hires the very jake. Dryden.

Some have asht the very jakes for papers left there by men of wit. Swift.

J A L A P, n. f. [jalap, French; jalapium, Low Lat.] Jalap is a firm and solid root, of a wrinkled surface, and generally cut into fines, heavy and hard to be reduced to a powder, and of an acid and nauseous taste. It had its name jalapum, or jalapa, from Jalapa, a town in New Spain, in the neighborhood of which it was discovered; though it is now principally brought from Mexico. It is an excellent purgative where scrofulous humours are to be evacuated. Hill's Med. Met.

J A M, n. f. [I know not whence derived.] A conserve of fruits boiled with sugar and water.

J A M B, n. f. [jambe, French, a leg.] Any supporter on either side, as the posts of a door.

No timber is to be laid within twelve inches of the foreside of the chimney jambe. Moon.

J A M B I C K, n. f. [iambique, Fr. iambicus, Lat.] Verbs composed of lambick feet, and of a short and syllable alternately; ift from originally in iathre, therefore taken for future.

In thy telosom heart through venem lips

It does but touch thy Irish pen, and dies:

Thy genius walkls thee not to purchase fame

In keen lambicks, but mild anagram

Dryden.

J A N

To J A N G L E, v. n. [jangle, French, Skinner.] To altercate; to quarrel; to bicker in words. Now a low word. Good will is jangling; but, gentle, agree.

This civil war of wits we much better understand.

So far am I glad it did so fort

And this their jangling I esteem a sport.

Shakesp.

There is no error which has not some appearance of probability remembering truth, which when men, who study to be singular, find out, (training reasons,) they then publish to the world matter of contention and jangling.

Reid.

To J A N G L E, n. a. To make to found unseemliness.

Now see that noble and that sovereign reason,

Like sweet bells jangle out of tune and harf.

Shakespeare's Hamlet.

Ever Gaslick forms were known in Greece,

And in our verse 'tis monkeys rhymes.

Had jangled their fantastic charms.

Prior.

1 6 J A N G L E R.
ICE

JAC. n. s. [from the verb.] Ramble; flight, excursio. It is commonly used indulgently, but solely by Milton. Our Saxon name for it means, with an unsavoury mind, after his airy jants, though hurry'd, fore, hungry and cold, betook him to his rest. Milton.

He feeds me out on many a jants.

Old notes in the night to haunt. Hudibras.

They parted, and away scot the cavalier in quest of his new mistress: his jants is court to jants.

L'Eyage.

If you are for a merry jants, I'll try for one you can foot it farther. Dryden's Spanish Fyars.

Thus much of the scheme of my design in this part have run me, and my reader's mind, and tedious jants, in tracing out those metallic and mineral bodies. Woodward.

J'antuines. n. s. [from jants, ot janty, corrupted from gentil, French. See janty.] Airyments; flutter, gentilements.

A certain blinness in my limbs entirely detained that jantiness of air I was once master of. Addison.

Jaw. n. s. [june, a cheek, French; whence janesone, or cheekbone, then jawn.]

1. The bone of the mouth in the middle of the face.

A generation whole teeth are as swift, and their jaw teeth as knives, to devour the poor. Prov. 27.

The jaw bones, hearts, and galls of pitids are very much like the bones, hearts, and galls of men. Walcot's Angler.

Pigs, who probably begrudges Aristotle's picking off the eyes of the crocodile doth not only move his upper jaw, but that his nether jaw is immovable. Grew.

I saw a hydra bands within, whose jaws with iron teeth terribly grip. Dryden.

2. The mouth.

My tongue cleareth to my jawn, and thou hast brought me into the dust of death. Exod. xv. 15.

My bended book shall pierce their slimy jaws. Shakespeare.

A finery foam works o'er my grinding jaw.

Skinner.

JAY. n. s. [named from bit cry.] Skinner.

A bird; pignolandra.

Two sharp winged things.

Deck'd with divers plumage, like painted jays, were fixed at his back, to cut his airy ways. Fairy Queen.

We'll use this unworthy humility, this grov'ry passion—all we'll teach him to uncrow from jays. Shakespeare.

What, is the joy mere precious than the lark?

Because the voiceless is as beautiful Shakespeare. I am highly delighted to see the jay on the thorn hopping about my walks. Spenser.

Amidst the jays, the insects gilded wings.

O happy bird in hawk, when Philomela sings. Pope.

Jazel. n. s. A precious stone of an azure or blue colour.

DIE. n. s. [Ij, Saxonn; eje, Dutch.]

1. Water or other liquor made solid by cold.

You are no furer, not.

Than is the coal of fire upon the ice. Or halfbore in the fun. Shakespeare's Cordelius.

Thou set art all ice, thy kindred trees. Shakespeare. I could althinks whether ice and water were two different fluids of things, and doubt not but I should be answered in the affirmative. Locke.

2. Concreted sugar.

3. To break the jay. To break the jay's opening to any attempt.

If you break in on the jay, the old eagle, or the young jay, it is justly, the elder, the younger rise.

Fryer. It is the custom which the young fairest, the young fairest of the jays, and the jay that are yet added. Dryden.

Brown's Valley Errors.

Some of our own nation, and many other

Canalizing, whose names and ice, are known, have different good commendation. Hacket on the ICONOCLAST. n. s. [iconoloffe, French; (continued); a breaker of images.]

Ilconologue, n. s. [iconoloffe, French; (continued); a breaker of images.]

The doctrine of picture or representation.

I C Y

2. To cover with concreted sugar.

I CHOU. HOUSE, n. s. [ice and boug.] A house in which ice is repasted against the warm months.

I CHU. EMON. n. s. [chiow.]

A small animal that breaks the eggs of the crocodile.

INCHINEELY. n. s. A fort of fly.

The generation of the ichneumon in the bodies of caterpillars, and other nymphs of insects.

Doeby's Physico-Theol.

ICHOGRAPHY. n. s. [ichograph.] The ground-plan. It will be impossible to have a draught of each form in paper by itself, and also to have a draught of the ground-plan of icography of every figure in paper by itself. Maxan.

IC.HOR. [from ich.] A thin wavy humour like serum.

Quint.

Milk, drawn from some animals that feed only upon ivy, will be more apt to turn rancid and putrid, acquiring first a faint taste, which is a sign of putrefaction, and then it will turn into an ichor.

Arbuthnot on Alliments.

ICHOROUS. adj. [from ichor.] Serous; thin; undigested.

The long-iory is imputed to a superficial fijious or ichorous skin; called Confum. The pus from an ulcer of the liver, growing thin and ichorous, corrodes the vessels. Arbuth. on Dist. Ichthyology, n. s. [ichthyology, French; ichthyology, French; ichthyology, Latin; fsh and igo.]

The doctrine of the nature of fish. Wordsworth's Natural History.

There some are, as canals and streams, which carry no name in ichthyology. Brown's Valley Errors.

I CHTYPHAGY. n. s. [chyles and chyem.]

Diet of fish; the practice of eating fish.

ICICLE. n. s. [from ice.] A shoot of ice commonly hanging down from the upper part.

If distilled vinegar or aqua-forte be poured into the powder of leadstones, the fusiling powder, dried, retains some magnetical virtue: but if the menstruum be evaporated to a consistence, and afterwards doth shoot into icicles, or crystals, the leadstone hath no power upon them. Brown's Valley Errors.

From locks unequall'd, and from the frozen beard, Long lepidsdepends, and cracking sounds are heard. Dryden.

The common dropstone consists principally of spiders, and is frequently found in forests, and in icicles, hanging down from the tops and sides of rocks. Wordsworth's Natural History.

ICINESS. n. s. [from cry.] The state of generating ice.

ICON. n. s. [icon.] A picture or representation.

Boywardus, in his treatise of divinity, hath set forth the icon of the thre of ten, yet added two.

Brown's Valley Errors.

Some of our own nation, and many other

Are known, have different good commendation. Hacket on the

I CHOCALLY. n. s. [iconoloffe, French; (continued); a breaker of images.]

The doctrine of picture or representation.

I C T Y.

ICEY. adj. [from ice.]

1. Full of ice; covered with ice; made of ice; cold; frothy.

But my poor heart first felt free,

Bowed in the bliss of chains by live.

Skryd.

2. Cold; free from passion.

Thou wouldst not have learned

The icy precepts of respect. Shakespeare's Timon.

3. Frigid; backward.

If thou dost find him tradable to us, Endeavour him, and tell him all our reasons.

If he be leanest, thy cow can do no worse.

Be thou too.

Shakespeare's Richard III.

4. Contrasted for I would.

IDEA. n. s. [idea, French; idia.] Mental image.

Whatever the mind perceives in itself, or in the immediate object of perception, thought, or understanding, that I call idea. Locke.

The form under which these things appear to the mind, or the effect of our apprehension, is called an idea. Watts.

Happy you that may to the faint, your only idea. Although simply attend, your mind shall effectual utter.

Our Saviour himself, being to set down the perfect idea of that which we are to pray and with force for, he did not touch to pray or wish, but than only that here it might be with us, as with

It is in heaven.

Hakew.

Her sweet idea wander'd through his thoughts.

Folger.

I did infer your lineaments,

Being the right idea of your father.

Both your form and characters of mind. Skryd.

How good, how fair,

Answering his great idea! Milton's Paradise Lost.

If Chasus by the idea wroust.

The fairest nymph bore, and his eyes he let.

Dryden.

IDEAL. adj. [from idea.] Mental; intellectual; not perceived by the senses.

There is a two-fold knowledge of material things; one real, when the thing, and real impression of things on our senses, is perceived; the other idea, when the image or idea of a thing, absent in itself, is represented to and considered on the imagination. Bayle's Dict. Phil. Phys.

IDEAL. adj. [from idea.] Intellectually.

A transmutation is made materially from some parts, and ideally from every one. Brown's Valley Errors.

IDENTICAL. adj. [identique, Pr.]

The idea, a name; implying the same thing; comprising the same idea.

The beard's the identique mark you know.

The name numerically.

There majors is identical with magis. Hale.

These ridiculous identical propositions, that teeth is faith, and rule is a rule, are first principles in this controversy of the rule of faith, without which nothing can be solidly concluded either about rule or Grin.

If this pre-existent eternity is not compatible with a successive duration, as we clearly and distinctly perceive it that it is not, then it remains, that some being, though infinitely above our finite comprehension, must have had an identical, invariable continuance from all eternity, which being no other than God.

IDENTITY. n. s. [identique, French; ideation; school Lat.] Sameness; not diversity.

There is a falsity of equivocation from a society in name, inferring an identity in nature; by this falsity he was deceived that aqua-aquae fists for those which he call Aqua-Aqua. Fairer.

Certainly those actions must needs be regular, where there is an identity between the rule and the fact.

Considering any thing as existing, at any determined time and place, we compare it with itself.

11 411
1. Lazy;averse from labour. For shame! I do much to do, and yet Idle. Bull.
2. Not engaged; affording leisure. For often have you writ to her; and the in mo-
3. Unactive; not employed. Or else for want of idle time, could not again reply. Shakespeare.
4. Useless; barren; not productive of good. All verse, all idle words you drop.
5. Unfruitful; barren; not productive of good. On ant's valet, and deferts idle. Shakespeare.
7. Inefficacy; unprofitable. Where here was then The power that guards the sacred lives of Kings? Why kept the lightning and the thunderbolt, Or bent the Earth, and fixed and trees? Dryden.
8. Unprofitable; not productive of good: as, an idle story. Suffer it then, thou money god, quoth he, That all these idle offers I refuse; All that I need have: what needeth me To cover more than I have caufe to use? Fairy Queen.
9. Inefficacy; unprofitable. This answer is both idle in regard of us, and repugnant to themselves. Hooker.
10. Inefficacy; unprofitable. As an idle fish, this fellow dreams. Dryden.
11. Inefficacy; unprofitable. Rejects as an idle man his fellow dreamers. Hooker.
12. Inefficacy; unprofitable. His friend find him scornful and, with proud contempt, Rejects as an idle man his fellow dreamers. Dryden.
13. Inefficacy; unprofitable. He wishes to recast the precious hours he has spent in tracts, and in stead of idle unprofitable di-

DID. n. f. [didere, Fr. idier, and L. idere.] A primary disflaie which neither depends on nor proceeds from another.

IDIOSYCRASY. n. f. [idioscyra, Fr. idiosc, and Gr. idios.] A peculiar temper or disposition of body not common to another.

IDIOM. n. f. [idiom, Fr. idiom, and L. idiom.] A particular cast of a tongue; phra-IDIOGRAPHY. n. f. [idiograph, Fr. idio, and Gr. idios.] A primary disfase which neither depends on nor proceeds from another.

IDIOT. n. f. [idiot, Fr. idiot, and L. idiot.] A fool; a natural; a changing-

IDOL. n. f. [idole, Fr. idole, and L. idol.] An image worshipped as God.

IDOLATER. n. f. [idolatrer, Fr. idolater, and L. idolatre.] One who pays divine honours to images; one who worships for God that which is not God.
JEAN
An atheist may be no Christian; he may be an idolater or a pagan; but I would hardly think astrology to be compatible with rank atheism.

JEAN
To worship idols.

IDOLATRIOUS. adj. [from idolatr.-] Tending to idolatry; comprising idolatry, or the worship of false gods.

NEITHER may the pictures of our Saviour, the apostles, and the elect church, be drawn in an idolatrous use, or be set up in churches to be worshipped.

POEM on Drawing.

IDOLATRIOUSLY. adv. [from idolatr.-] In an idolatrous manner.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY. n. s. [idolatr.-, Fr. idolatr.-, Lat.] The worship of images; the worship of any thing as God which is not God.

IDOLATRY. n.s. [idolatr.-, Fr. idolatr.-, Lat.] The worship of images; a poetical word.

Gold, silver, and stones.

In the church, he draws an idolatrous use, or be set up in churches to be worshipped.

JEAN.
To worship idols.

JEAN.
To worship idols.

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.

Might therefore the wholesale idolaters have either thought or done; but let whatsoever they have either thought or done, therefore, be so far forth abhorred.

JEAN.
Who are the gods of the idolatry?

IDOLATRY.
JET

When you the dulness of all things have found,
And then ask pardon for the JET you made.

1. The object of JET; laughter, mock.

If I did but wish to make you either laugh or cry, may you then make jest or sobs at me then let me be your JET, I deserve it.
Shakespeare.

2. Manner of doing or speaking feigned, not real; ludicrous, not serious; game, jest.

When his playfellows chose him their king, he spake and did those things in JET, which would have become a king in earnest.
Gower.

3. A sudden spring; a quick jail that thocks or flarts.

Jerome.

This is the JET, the abbot's jest;
His jadge gave him a JET,
As he would have his rider hurt.

Gower.

His hood after the kirk.

Ben Jonson.

To jest, to jest, to jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, jest, j
IGNORANCE. n. f. [ignorance, Fr. ignorne, Latin.] 1. Want of knowledge; unlearnedness. If all the clergy were as learned as themselves are, that most complain of ignorance in others, yet our book of prayer might remain to this hour. Shakspe. Ignorance is the curse of God. Knowledge the wing wherewith we fly to heav'n. Shakespeare. 2. Want of knowledge respecting some particular thing. It is in every body's power to pretend ignorance of the law. Sterte. 3. Want of knowledge discovered by external effect. In this sense it has a pl. Forgive us all our sins, neglecters, and ignorance. Cen. Frey. 4. Want of knowledge not to me for my sins and ignorances. Tes. 5. Ignorant; adj. [ignorant, Fr. ignorant, Latin.] 1. Wanting knowledge; unlearned; uninstructed; unenlightened. So foolish was I and ignorant, I was as a beast. Ps. xlix. 6. Uninstructed man, whose ignorance being discovered. They have transported me beyond me. This ignorant present time, and I feel now The future in the instant, Shakespeare's Macbeth. 7. In such busineses A lion is eloquence, and the eyes of th' ignorant More learned than the ear. Shakspe. Carissimi. He that doth not know those things which are of use to him, to know them, is an ignorant man, whatsoever he may be befides. Tillotson. 8. Foolish grant whatever ambition craves, And men, once ignorant, are slaves. Pope. 9. Unknown; undiscovered. This is merely poetical. If you know aught, which does become my knowledge Thereof to be informed, impri'm not In ignorance conscious. Some of our Wits. 10. Without knowledge of some particular. Let not judges be fo ignorant of their own right, as to think there is not left to them, as a principal part of their office, a wife application of laws. V. Billops. 11. O villain ill foreseen! Better had I Liv'd ignorant of future! I had borne My part of evil only. Some of our Wits. 12. Unacquainted with. In a good sense. Ignorant of guilt, I fear not shame. Dryden. 13. Ignorantly made or done. Unnatural. His flourishing Poor ignorant bauble, on our terrible fear Like egg-helms mov'd. 14. Ignorant. n. f. One untought, unletter'd, uninstructed. Did I for this make pains to teach? Our foolish ignorance to grace! 15. Ignorantly, adv. [from ignorant.] Without knowledge; uselessly; without information. The gr. and most cruel lies we have. Are those whom you would ignorantly love. Dryden. Where are comprised, an ornament. Shakespeare's Sonnet. It was ignorantly done, as too. Warr. To ignorant. v. o. [signify, Fr. ignorer, Lat.] Not to know; to be ignorant of. This word Boyle endeavoured to introduce; but he has not been received. I ignored not the thunder interpretation, given by modern critics to divers texts, by me alleged. Boyle. 1. Reproach. Bo. Philosophy. 2. Such bodies only strike fire which have fulplur or ignomino-\underline{us}. Byron's Pagan Errors. Vomiting fire. 3. Ignotous, adj. [ignomino-\underline{us}, Lat.] Vol-
JIN

Philosophy would boldly be established, if men were made carefully distinguish those things that they know from those that they imagine.

IGNORABLE. adj. [ignobilis, Lat.] Notorious.

Jig, n. s. [gig, Italian; geej, Teutonic; a fiddle.] A light careless dance, or tune.

When Cyrus had overcome the Lydians, that were a warlike nation, instead of their warlike mukech, he appointed to them certain lascivious lutes and jigs; by which he so mollified and abated their courage, that they forger their former ferocieness.

Sponsor on Ireland.

As fidlers kill, though they be paid to be gone, yet needs will Thrive one more jig upon you. Down.

Potticorful shall testify that you dare, in these jig-giving times, to countenance a legitimate good.

Ben Jonson.

All the strains that there abide,
With jigs and rural dance dote.
Milton.

The mutts bled’t to see their friends excelling. Theirs elegant delights of jig and waltzing. Fenton.

They wrote to her friends in the country, that she should dance a jig next October at Wethertown.

Abbotsford.

Another Phoebus, thy own Phoebus reigns, Joys in my jigs, and dances in my chains.

Pope.

To JIG, v. n. [from the noun.]. To dance carelessly; to dance. Expressed in contempt.

As for the jiggling part and figures of dances, I count that little.

Locke.

'Jig'-maker. n. s. [jig and make.] One who dances or plays merrily.

Your only 'Jig'-maker! and to what end a man do but be merry?

Shakespeare’s Hamlet.

Jiggersnobs. n. s. [A cant word.] A trinket; a nick-knick; a light contrivance in machinery.

He did all his polices and fobs Of gingersnacks, whills, and jiggersnobs. Hudibras.

Jilt. n. s. [gillt, Islandick; to intrap in an amour, Mr. Iye. Perhaps from giggot, by contraction; or giglet, or gigles, the diminutive of gill, the ludicrous name of a woman. ’Tis also called jillet in Scotland.]

1. A woman who gives her lover hopes, and deceives him.

Avoid both courts and camps,
Where idle fortune plays the jilt.
With the brave, noble, honest, gallant man.
Your only jilt! and to what end.

Shakespeare’s Orphan.

2. A name of contempt for a woman.

When love was all an easy monarch’s care,
’Jilt’ rul’d the state, and state men faced warts.

Pope.

To JILT, v. a. [from the noun.]. To trick a man by flattering his lover with hopes, and then leaving him for another.

Tell who loves who;
And who is jilted for another’s sake.
Dryden.

Tell a man a flattering love in love, that he is jilted; bring witticisms of the falsehood of his mistress, and three kind words of hers shall invalidate all their refinements.

Jilted. n. v. n. To play the jilt; to practice amorous deceits.

She might have learn’d to coo: jilt, and tham,
Haf Covent-garden been at Surinam. Congreve.

To JINGLE, v. n. [A word made from jing, a little bell, and an exclamation intended to be expressed.] To clink; to sound with a kind of haphazard rattle.

What should the wan do with these jingling fools?

Shake.

With noises
Of rearing, shrieking, bowing, jingling chains,
We were awaked.

Shakespeare’s Tempest.

The bells the jingle, and the whistle blow.

To JINE, n. s. [from the verb.]

1. Any clink, or haphazard rattle.

2. It is used, I think, improperly, to express the correspondence of found in the effects of rhyme.

Vulgar judges are nine parts in ten of all nations, who call common and jingle white.

Dryden.

3. Any thing founding; a rattle; a bell.

If you plant where favours are, do not only entertain them with trifles and jingles, but use them with more serious things.

Dryden.

4. [corrupted from ajile, Fr.] A walk or alley in a church or publick building. Properly aile.

Upwards the column shaft, the roof ascends, and arches widen, and long aisles extend.

Pope.

JILEUS, n. s. [Latin.]

An iles, commonly called the twigling of the guts, is really either a circumvolution, or infection of one part of the gut within the other. Abbotstow.

JILIX, n. s. [From iles.]
The ileus, or great fealet oak, thrives well in England, it is hardly fort of tree, and easily raised of acorns. The Spaniards have a fort call ewing the wood. Some, when old, it finely shell embled, as if it were painted.

Literis.

JILAC, adj. [Jilacus, Lat.] Relating to the lower bowels.

The ileus passion is a kind of convulsion in the belly.

JILAC Paffon. A nervous of ccharious, whose heat is the illium, whereby that gut is twined, or one part enters the cavity of the part immediately below or above; whence it is also called the volvulus, from volvulus, to roll.

Those who were of the iliac passion have their bellies much swelled.

Figure on the Humauns.

JILK. adj. [silk, Sax.]
The fame. It is still retained in Scotland, and denotes each as: ik one of you, every one of you. It also signifies the fame; as, Macintosh of that ilk, denotes a gentleman whose surname and the title of his estate are the same; as, Macintosh of Macintosh.

If you hear the malice in their roundels, feathr, to a drollsfe ful, Of Rofalind, who knows not Rofalind, That Colin make il ilk can I yee refthe. Speaker.

JILK, adj. [contradicted from Evill, and retaining all its fens.] A. Bad in any respect; contrary to good, whether physical or moral; evil. See EVILL.

There some ilk planet reigns;
I must be patient, till the Heaven looks
With an aspect more favourable.

Of his own body he was ill, and gave
The clergy ilk example.

Some, of an ilk and melancholy nature, incline the company to be sad and ill-disposed; others of a jovial nature, dispise them to be merry.

Bacon’s Essays.

2. Sick; disordered; not in health. I know not what is evil ever used in this fene.

With you and health in very happy season.

For I am on the sudden something ill.

I have known two towns of the greatest conceit lobby, by the governoring falling ill in the time of the siegen.

Temp.

JILII, n. s. [from the verb.]

1. Wickedness; depravity; contrariety to holiness.

Ill, to man’s nature, as it stands perverted, hath a nature motion strongest in holiness.

Bacon.

2. Young men to initiates all ill are prone; But are compass’d to avarice alone; For those in virtue’s shape they follow vice.

Dryden.

3. Misfortune; misery.

They who can all fene of others ill escape,
Is but a brute at bed in huma shape.

Tate’s Jove.

Though plagues & in ill and exercis’d in care.

Yet never let the noble mind despair;
When prey by dangers, and befit by loss,
Then are the time most fitted, and in their hasten’s Essays.

And when our virtue sinks, o’rewhelmed with grief, By unforeseen expending bring relief.

A. Phillips.

I. Not well; not rightly in any respect.

Ill at ease, both the and all her train
The forching fun had borne, and baining rain.

Dryden.

2. Not easily; with pain; with difficulty.

They do not yet;
The punishment all on thyself! alas!
Bear thou first own insult; ill able to sustain
His full wrath, and do not often as yet least part,
And my displeasure bear’t ill.

Milton.

Ill bear’s the fea a youthful lover’s fate;
When just approaching to the nuptial flat.

Dryden.

3. Subjective or adverb, is used in composition to express any bad quality or condition, which may be easily understood from the following examples.

Ill, subjectively.

Dangerous conjurations in ill breeding minds.

Shak. Hamlet.

I have an ilk-distilling soul.

Methodis I thee, now thou art below,
As one dead in the bottom of a tomb.

Shakespeare.

No look, no last advice before he went!

In an ilk boding whom to laugh lest.

Dryden. E.

I know
The voice ill boding, and the solemn found.

Phillips.

The wifhest prince on earth may be deceived by the craft of ill designing men.

Swift’s Examiner.

Your ill meaning political lords,
Under pretence of friendly friends and guests,
Appointed to avert the present danger,
Who threatening cruel death, constrain’d the pride
To wring from me and tell them my secret.

Milton.

A spy distinguished from his airy stand,
To brieve whose vigilance, Adrastus told
A mighty fum of ill perishing food.

Pipe.

I. adverb.

There founded an ilk ascendency of any of the enemies, and a lamentable noise was carried abroad.

Walf. viii. 10.

My colleague,
Being so afflicted with the gout,
Will not be able to be there in person.

Ben Jonson.

The examples
Of every minute’s instance, present now,
I have put them in these ill beheading arms.

Shake.

Lead back thy Saxons to their ancient Ehle.

I would reforfe the fruitful Kent, the gift
Of Vortigern, or Hengist’s ill-bought aid.

Dryden.

We simple toasters take delight
To see our women’s teeth look white;
And evry fancy ill blest.

Smirner at a mouth profoundly yellow.

Prior.

The ungrateful tressa of ill chosen husband
Overthrows her.

Sloane.

Hurry, does it look? How meagre and ill composed? It prey us impartial, and exults the spirits.

Collier.

Where grows
In my midst, the greenness of contentation
Aunchiefs avarice, that, were I king,
I should cut all the nobles for their lands.

Shake.

To what end this ill concocted lie,
Palpable and gross?

Dryden’s Don Sebastian, Act.
Our generals at present are such as are likely to make the best use of their numbers, without throwing away on any ill-concerted projects.

The second daughter was a peevish, forward, ill-conditioned creature as ever was, Arbatington.

Addison on the War.

The father's anguish was by brother's death.

Addison.

She was not found in a fair lodging, when I am bound to seek it in an ill-favoured creature, like a pear in a dunghill.

Sidney.

Next to so old ill-favoured cattle they meant to perform their unquestionably errant.

Sidney.

A man had but an ill-favoured nose, the deep shadow would be to impute the cause to the prejudice of his education.

Addison.

I was at her house the hour she appointed.

Sidney.

and you fed, for.

Vol.

They would not make bold, as every where they do, to destroy formed and self-fashioned productions.

Locke.

The fabled dragon never guarded more.

Locke.

The golden fleece, than he his ill-got store.

Dryden.

Did he employ his care for these his friends, and make good use of his ill-gotten power, by prevailing upon much better himself.

Addison, Coro.

ill-govern'd passions in a prince's breast.

Haller.

That knowledge of those courts is splendid, and ill-grounded.

Dryden.

ill-grounded passions quickly away.

Locke.

What's built upon esteem can never decay.

Haller.

of ill-join'd fond and daughters born.

Frank from the ancient world these giants came.

Milton.

nor has he ered above once by ill-judged superfluity.

Milton.

Did you never taste delicious drink out of a looked vessel.

Le Grange.

The match had been in to make for Fletwater, the double life was meant to be taken out, had there not come fifty to his defence.

Sidney.

Those are the products.

Of those ill-mated marriages thus where.

Milton.

Where great was bad though match's.

Milton.

The works are weak, the garrison but thin, Difficult with favour, when I and Gonzales, already warrying on their ill-mann'd walls.

Dryden.

He will not hear me out.

Dryden.

Was ever criminal forbid to plead.

Curb their ill-manner'd zeal.

Dryden.

It is impossible for the most ill-minded, avaricious, or cunning clergyman to do the least injustice to the meanest cottager, in any bargain for tithes.

Locke.

Soon as the ill-omen'd reach 'tis a car.

Who can describe this amusement in his face!

Dryden.

The eternal law of things must not be altered.

Dryden.

Comply with his ill-ordained choice.

Dryden.

When you expense the fence.

Locke.

Down the ill-organ'd engine fall.

Off they vizards.

Dryden.

For Phileas he is my return.

Dryden.

Better at home my noble path to mourn.

Locke.

From there an equal horn helms the public form.

Dryden.

There mostly imag'ry such fancy strike.

Dryden.

Pirates ill-past, 'tis said, their blood's white.

Pope.

Sparsra has not boat of such a woman.

Norr Tyroy to thank her, for ill she's lap'd love.

Dryden.

I shall give you, a talk for which I take myself not to be ill-qualified, because I have had opportunities, to observe the follies of women.

Swift.

You are pleasing or displeasing, either in themselves, because they live as a greater, and more definable end; the eating of a well-seasoned dish, fitted to a man's palate, may move the mind, by the delight that itself accomplishes the eating, without reference to any other object to which the consideration of the pleasure there is in health and strength may add a new guilt, able to make us swell.

Locke.

Blushes, ill'ClassNotFoundException, betray

Her thoughts incontinent on the bridal day.

Pope.

Boots, for the fruit of ill rewarded pain.

Dryden.

This ill-shap'd body with a dashing soul.

Dryden.

There was plenty clever, but the silks were ill forced; whole pyramids of sweetness for boys and women, but little of solid meat for men.

Dryden.

It does not belong to the priest's office to impose that name in baptism; he may refuse to pronounce the name, if the parents give them licentious, filthy, or ill-bounding names.

Dryden.

Ay, life.

Dryden.

ill spirited Weather, did we not feed grace,

Parson and sentiment.

Dryden.

From thy holiest heart, win mad, remove.

Shaks.

An adorer forgets, and an ill-hart'd love.

Pope.

Ah, when, if any living heart be I?

Pope.

To gloomy care, my shoots and these are free.

Shaks.

To the gay sports with troubled hearts agree.

Pope.

Holding of ill-tasted things in the mouth will make a small salivation.

Locke.

The maid, with downcast eyes, and mute with grief.

Dryden.

For death unfinish'd, and ill'thin's relief,

Stood fast to her feet.

Dryden.

Ovid's Oil.

How should opinions, thus fast'd, be given up, if there be any fiction of interest or design, as there never fail to be, where men find themselves ill treated?

Locke.

That being our spirit which lies get amongst their playfellows at school, has ordinarily a mixture of rusticate and ill turn'd confidence; so that their misbehaving and dangerous ways of shifting in the world must be unlearned.

Locke.

ill.

Before words beginning with I, stands for in.

Ill-Chrysmable. adj. [illychrysmable].

Lat.

Incapable of weeping.

Dio.

I.L.

Gradual omission of entrance into one thing.

Dio.

As a format of iron red hot, by reason of the illage of the flux, and of the fire, in its end, to the fouls of the bled'd, by the illage of the defile enchain'd in them, shall be all overflow divine.

Norton.

2. Sudden attack; casual coming.

Life is oft preferred.

By the bold swimmer in the swift illage.

Thaniaso's summer.

To I.L..

Entangle to; to entrap; to enframe.

I am ill-ascertained, but not truly capitivated into your conclusion.

Mars's Divine Dialogue.

I.L.

1. The act of catching or enfining.

The word in Matthew does not only signify falperion, or pendulous illage, but also suffocation.

Brown.

2. A snare; any thing to catch another; a noose.

I.L.

Lat.

Inference; conclusion drawn from premises.

Herein there seems to be a very erroneous illage from the indulgence of God unto Cain, concluding an immortality of all; because the illage of the illage.

Brown.

I.L.

In order to the intermediate ideas as to discover what connection there is in each link of the chain, whereby the extremes are held together.

Locke.
ILLUSTRATE.  adv. [from illustrat, L. Latin] Deceiving by false tokens.

Illustrate stands, with idle fables dress'd, Enlightenment in mythick forms expert.

Illustrate in gay visions of moral strife.

Still paint'st 'tis false form.

Illustrous.  adj. [from illustrius, L. Latin; illustrate, French] Deceiving; fraudulent.

Illustrous is that who make pretensions to teach or defend truths due to false virtues; a virtuous ideal, which, confounding the mind's page to long, but the fallacious and illustrous use of obscure or devotional terms, is only fit to make men more convicted in their ignorance.

illustrate.  n. f. [illustration, Fr. from illustrer] Explanation; elucidation; exposition. It is seldom used in its original signification for material brightness.

Whoever looks about him will find many living illustrations of this emblem. ILLUSTRIOUS, and of dedication, being ideas that have something very valuable and peculiar in their nature; the examining them one with another may perhaps tell of use for the illustration.

ILLUSTRATIVELY.  adv. [from illustration. ILLUSTRATE. In a way of explanation. Things are many times delivered hierarchically, metaphorically, illuminatively, and not with reference.

ILLUSTRIOUSLY.  adv. [from illustriously, L. illustriously, nobly, eminently.

In other languages the most illustrious titles are derived from thence accedé.

Such as these have cleared a lane. Dryden.

ILLUSTRIOUSLY.  adv. [from illustriously. ILLUSTRIOUSLY. Conspicuously; nobly; eminently.

It did not not to appear at first entertainments, that he might more illustriously manifest his charity.

You carrying with you all the world can boast. Pope.

Illustrousness.  n. f. [from illustriously. Emminence; nobility; grandeur.

This Contracted from I am.
A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B

A M B
IMM

1. Worthy to be imitated; desiring to be copied. How could the most bafo men, and separate from all imitation, assume to honour by honour? by an observed fashion? As of parliament are not regarded by most imitable writers, I account the relation of them imitable, by a new sort of imitation.

2. Possible to be imitated: within reach of imitation. The characters of men placed in lower stations of life, are more useful, as being imitable by greater numbers.

Imitatable, adj. [imitabilis, Latin.] Art; prodigiously great.

Immanent, adj. [immanent, French; die and morsis, Latin.] Intrinsick; inherent; internal.

Judging the infinite excellence by our narrow selves, we be filled with obligations of a holy religion, and thus like immanent actions to that nature which hath nothing in common with us.

But what he wills and intends once, he wills and intended from all eternity; it being godly contrary to the very first motions we have of the infinite perfections of the Divine Nature to raise or suppose any new immorality in it, or the same.

Immanently, adv. [in and manifest.] Not manifest; not plain. Not in use.

A time not much unlike that which was before time immemorial and unknown. Brown's Falstaff. Err.

Immanence, n. f. [immanent, Lat.] Barbarity; ravines.

It was both impious and unnatural; That such immorality and bloody strife

Should reign among professors of one faith. Shak.

Immaterial, adj. [in and matteres, Latin.] Unfading.

Immaterial adj. [in and martial.] Not warlike.

My pow'rs are unit,

Myself immortal.

To make. q. v. [in and magick.] To cover; to disguise.

I have cause of buckram for the nonce, to make our noted outward garments. Shakespeare's Henry IV.

Immaterial. adj. [immaterialis, French; in and materia, Latin.]

1. Incorporeal; distinct from matter; void of matter.

Angels are spirits immaterial and intellectual, the glorious inhabitants of those sacred palaces, where there is nothing but light and immortality; no shadow of matter for tears, discontents, griefs, and uncomfortable passions to work upon; but all joy, tranquillity, and peace, even for ever and ever, do well.

As then the soul a substance hath alone, Besides the body, in which she is confined.

So hath the not a body of her own, But spirit, and immaterial mind. Daven.

Those immaterial ideas to which we expect, suggested the necessity of preparing our appetites, without which heaven can be no heaven to us. Dryg. Pity.

No moral pernicious in that, which is, such a thing as is immaterial, and does not contain any principle of corruption. filch. Pity.

A material, without weight, impermanent; without relation. This faculty has crept into the conversation and writings of barbarians; but ought to be utterly rejected.

Immateriality. n. f. [from immaterial.]

Incorporeity; distinctness from body or matter.

Since we know cognizance is the prime attribute of a spirit, we infer its immateriality, and thence its immortality. Watts.

Immaterially. adv. [from immaterial.]

In a manner not depending upon matter.

The visible species of things like not our senses immaterially; but lingering in corporeal rays do carry with them the qualities of the object from whence they flow, and the medium through which they pass. Buck. Met.

Immaterialized. adj. [from in and materia, Latin.]

Distinct from matter; incorporeal.

Though affinity in the most fixed copulation be no trouble to immaterialized spirits, yet is it none "than our embedded souls can bear without fatigue. Glaw. Sept. Immate.
IMMATURE, adj. [immature, Latin.] 1. Not ripe; not perfect; not arrived at fulness or completion.

Immature enterprise of Panama was an ill measured and immature counsel, grounded upon a false account, that the paffles were no better furnished than Drake had left them. This is your time for fable and satire, for partial favour, and petticoat hate. Let now your immature dijconfion cease, Sir quiet. Dryden.

2. Hasty; early; come to pass before the natural time. We are pleased, and call not that death immature if the love of the world beFallopian. Taylor.

Immiscibility, adv. [from immature.] Too soon; too early; before ripeness or completion.

Immediacy, n. f. [from immature.] Unripened; incompleteness; a flate short of completion.

Immediateness. n. f. [from immature.] Want of power to pass. So it is used in the example; but it is rather, incapability of affording pajage.

Immeasurable, adj. [in and measure.] Immense; not to be measured; indefatitely extensive.

Churches cleared up to an bright immeasurable, and adorned with more beauty in their restoration than their founders before had given them. Hooker.

From the floor They view'd the vast immemorial abyss, Overarch'd as a fea, dark, wat'ry, wild, Milton. Immeasurable through they might behold it, in me, of wifdom nothing more than mean. Milton.

What a glorious show are those beings entertained with, that can see such tremendous objects wondering through those immemorial depths of ether! Addison's Guardian.

Nor friends are there, nor velles to convey, Nor laws to cut the immensurale way. Pope; Giff.

Immeasurably, adv. [from immeasurable.] Immensify; beyond all mcaure.

The Spaniards immemorably bewail their dead. Spenser.

There ye shall be fed, and fill'Immeasurably; all things shall be your prey, Milton. Immemorial, or not according to the laws of mechanicks. We have nothing to do to show any thing that is immemorial, or not according to the habitable laws of nature. Chynge.

Nothing will clear a head perplex'd with immemorial notion.

Immemorial, n. f. [from immature.] Personal greatness; power of acting without dependence. This is a harsh word, and of peculiar, I believe, to Shakespeare. He led our pow'res, Bore the commination of my plate and perfon, The which immundity may well stand up And call lift your brother. Shakespeare, King Lear.

Immense, adj. [immense, French; in and medius, Latin.] 1. Being and such a flate with respect to something else as that there is nothing between them; proximate; with nothing intervening.

Moses mentions the immediate causes of the deluge, the rains and the waters, and St. Peter mentions the more remote and fundamental causes, that contrib-tution of the heavens. Burns.

2. Not acting by second causes. It is much to be ascribed to the immediate will of God, which giveth and taketh away beauty at pleasure. Prior.

3. Infant; present with regard to time. Prior therefore should not have written more immediate.

Immediate are my needs, and my relief, Must not be too and turn'd to me in words, But find supply immediate. Shakespeare, Timon.

Death denounc'd that day, Which he presumeth already vain, and void, Because not yet infixed, as he fears, By some immediate, 'tis. Paradise Lost.

But the, the-wreath of victory sure, Commemor the wreath too long delay'd; And with less immediate crow's, Calls crass effence to her aid. Prior.

Immediately, adv. [from immediate.]

1. Without the intervention of any other cause or event. God's acceptance of it, either immediately by himself, or mediately by the hands of the bishop, is that which vells the whole property of a thing in God. South.

2. Infinitely; at the time present; without delay. Her father hath commanded her to slip Away with him immediately, and with him at immediately to marry. Shakespeare.

Immediate steadiness. n. f. [from immediate.]

1. Preference with regard to time.

2. Exemption from second or interfering causes. Imme dicable. adj. [immedicabilis, Lat.] Not to be healed; incurable.

My griefs fume and I pant Nor heat that is not immeasurable, Rinkle and felter, and goonge To black mortification. Milton. Agecroft.

Immemorable. adj. [immemorial, Lat.] Not worth remembering.

Immemorial. adj. [immemorial, French; in and medius, Latin.] Past time of memory; so ancient that the beginning cannot be traced. All the laws of this kingdom have some immemorials in writing, yet all have not their original in writing; for some obtained their force by immemorial usage or custom. Hall.

By a long immemorial practice, and prescription of an ush thorough-paced hypocrify, they come to believe that for a reality, which at first practice of it, they themselves knew to be a cheat. South.

Immense. adj. [immensus, Fr. immense, Lat.] Unlimited; unbounded; infinite, O goodness infinite! goodness immense! That all this good of evil shall produce. Milton. As infinite duration hath no relation unto motion and time, so infinite or immense effege hath no relation unto body, but is a thing distinct from all corporal magnitudes, which we mean when we speak of immensity, and of God as of an immense being. Grew.

Immensely, adv. [from immense.] Infinitely; without measure.

We shall find the whole space of our systen is immensely bigger than all its corporeal mate. infinity.

Immensity. n. f. [immensus, French.] Unbounded, greatness, immensity.

By the power we find in ourselves of repeating, as often as we will, any idea of space, we get the idea of immense. Locke.

He that will consider the immensity of this fabric, and the greatest variety that is to be found in this inconsiderable part of it which has to do with, may think that in other manious of it there may be other and different intelligible beings. Locke.

All these illusory worlds, And millions which the glass can ne'er defey, Left in the wilds of vast immensity, are centers of Blackmore's Creation.

Immensurable, n. f. [from immem-surable.] Impossibility to be measured.

Immensurableness, n. f. [in and measureabilis, Latin.] Not to be measured.

Imme'rit. n. f. [im memor, Latin.] Want of worth; want of desire. This is a better word than democrat which is now used in its stead.

When I receive your lines, and find there expressions of a passion, reason and my own immorit tell me it must not be for me. Saucevit.

To put under water.

Imme'tam, n. f. [immemor, Latin.] To put under water.

2. To fink or cover deep. He fook More than a mile immemor'd within the wood. Dryden.

They esteemed that which were immemorial in their rocks, quarries and mines, in the manner as they are at this day found in all known parts of the world. Woodward.

3. To keep in a state of intellectual depression. It is a melancholy reflection, that our country, which, in times of prosperity, was called the nation of faineants, should now in this latter day of infamy, and religion in it than any other neighbouring state or kingdom; whether they be such as continue still immemoral in the errors of the church of Rome, or such as are recovered out of them. We are prone to engage ourselves with the businesses, the pleasures, and the amusements of this world; we give ourselves up too greedily to the purfuit, and immemoral ourselves too deeply in the enjoyments of them. Atterbury.

It is impossible to have a lively hope in another world, and yet be deeply immemoral in the experiences of this world. Atterbury.

Immem'or. adj. [immemor, Latin.] Buried; covered; funk deep.

After long inquiry of things immemoral in matter, I interpose some object which is immemorial, or left mame upon the face of the earth, which, the intellect may become not partial. Bacon.

Immem'sion. n. f. [immemor, Latin; immemor, French.] 1. The act of putting any body into a fluid below the surface.

Achilles' mother is said to have dipped him, when he was a child, in the river Styx, which made him invulnerable all over, excepting that part which the mother held in her hand during this operation. Addison.

2. The state of sinking below the surface of a fluid.

3. The state of being overwhelmed or lost in any respect.

Many persons, who, through the heat of their lufts and passions, through the contagion of all example, or too great immemorals, in the affairs of life, have, by their behavior, made themselves out of the rules of their holy faith; yet would, upon extraordinary warning, be brought to comply with them. Atterbury.

Immetrical. adj. [in and metrical.] Confused; being without regularity, being without method.

St. Bale compares the answering of an immemorial author to the hunting of a duck when you
The heat weakened more and more the arch of the earth, frowning out the moulder that was the cement of its parts, drying it immediately, and chapping it.

Burnet's Theory.

IMMORALITY. n. f. [immoralit,y Fr. from immortal.] Want of moderation; excess.

IMMODERATE. adj. [immoderate, Fr. immoderate, Lat.] Excessive; exceeding the due mean.

One means, very effectual for the preservation of health, in a quiet and cheerfair mind, not afflicted with violent passions, or distracted with immediate cases.

IMMODERATELY. adv. [from immoderate.] In an excessive degree.

the weeps for Tybalt's death.

Shakespeare.
3. Freedom.

Common apprehensions entertain the antithetical condition of Ireland, consisting only in that anomalous and invariable condition of being the same, and yet differing in every respect. Brown.

If this anacreontic condition of the crown,

Immutability from errors, you discern.

Dryden.

To IMMU'RE, v. a. [in and manner, Lat. cmmerere, so that it might be written emmetare.]

To incline within walls; to confine; to shut up; to imprison.

Try, you ancient fates, these tender babbies,

Whom envy hath immured within your walls! Shaks. One of those contains her heart's picture. Shakespeare.

My love will think in favor she's immured! Dryden.

At the first defiance on shore he was not immured with a wooden velveteen, but he did countenance the landing in his long-boat. Walton.

Lyfiasmus immured it with a wall. Sundays.

Though a foul foolish privity her immurate.

On earth, the, when, ofcaped, it wise and pure.

Denham.

IMMU'RE, n. f. [from the verb.] A wall; an inclosure, as in Shakespeare, but perhaps no where else.

Their vow is made:

To lock Troy, within whose strong immurations The ravish'd Helen, Mentheus' queen,

With wanted Paris steep.

Shakespeare.

IMMUSCAL. adj. [in and musical.] Inharmonious; wanting proportion of sound.

All sounds are either musical, which are ever equal, or immusical, which are ever unequal, as the voice in speaking, and whisperings.

Bacon.

We consider the inharmonious note of all sounds we ever heard of heard.

Brown.

IMMUTABIL'ITY, n. f. [immutabilitian, Lat. immutabili see. From immutability.] Exemption from change; invariableness; unchangeableness.

The immutability of God they strive unto, by working after age and the fame manner.

Hooker.

His existence will of itself continue for ever, unless it be destroyed; which is impossible, from the immutability of God.

Brown.

IMMUTABILE, adj. [immutabilitian, Lat.] Unchangeable; invariable; unalterable.

By two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to liee, we have a strong confutation.

Hooker.

Thy threatenings, Lord, as thine, thou mayst revoke;

But if immutabill and fixed they stand,

Continue still thyself to give the strike.

And let not foreign foes oppose thy land.

Dryden.

IMMUTABLY, adv. from immutability.] Unalterably; invariably; unchangeably.

His love is like his essence; immutably eternal.

IMP, n. f. [imp, Welch, a shoot, a sprout, a spig.]

A son; the offspring; progeny.

That noble imp your son.

Lord Cremalls to King Henry.

And thou, most dreadful imp of highest Jove,

Fair Venus' son.

Fair Queen.

The tender imp was weaned from the teat.

Hooker.

A lad of life, an imp of fame.

Shakespeare.

Henry V.

2. A sublateral devil; a puny devil. In this sense 'tis still retained.

Such we deny not to be the Imps and limbs of Satan.

Hooker.

The serpent after long debate, irresolute Of thoughts revolv'd, his final sentence chose,

Fit vehicle, litchip imp of frauds, in whom

Townshend, some base forgeries functioned from shipwreck. Milton's Paradise Lost.

As soon as you can hear his knell,

This heathen turn d—— in hell; and

And, lo! his minions of state,

Transform'd to Imps, his feveat wave.

Swift.
Not a refusal to Temple heat, to acquaint with fanciful impertinent. Not a refusal to Temple heat, to acquaint with fanciful
impertinent. Not a refusal to Temple heat, to acquaint with fanciful
impertinent.
To IMPEND. v. n. [impendus, Lat.]
1. To hang over.

Description for or till your head impends;
Upon a head, and death his steps attends. Pope.

2. To be at hand; to press nearly. It is used in an ill sense.

It expresses our deep sorrow for our past sins, and our lively sense of God's impending wrath.

Swift's Sermon.

No story I unfold of publick woes,
Nor bear advice of impending lock. Pope's Odyssey.

IMPE'NENT. adj. [impendens, Fr. from impendere.]

1. Quality of not being piercable, or penetrable.

All stones, so far as experience reaches, are either hard, or may be hardened; and we have no other evidence of universal impermeability, besides a large experience, without an experimental exception.

Newton's Optics.

2. Incurvability of intellectual impression.

IMPERMEABLE. adj. [impermeabilis, Lat.]

1. Not to be pierced; not to be entered by any external force.

With hardening cold, and forming heat,
The cyclop did their frocks repeat,
Before th'impermeable shield was wrought. Dryden.

2. Impervious; not admitting entrance.

Deep into some thick covert would I run,
Impermeable to the sun or sun. Dryden.

The mind frights itself with any thing reeked on in gods: things, thus offered to the mind, carry the smell of nothing but difficulty in them, and are thought to be wrapped up in impermeable obscurity.

Locke.

3. Not to be taught; not to be informed.

4. Not to be affected; not to be moved.

It is the most impermeable part
Their knees, all within.

—Let him alone;
I'll follow him no more with bootless prayer.

Some will never believe a proposition in divinity, if any thing can be said against it: they will be credulous in all affairs of life, but impermeable by a sermon of the gospel.

Taylor.

IMPER'NENTLY. adv. [from impendens.]

With hardiness to a degree incapable of impression.

Blunt the fence, and fit it for a stall
Of solid proof, impermeably dull. Pope.

IMPENDENCY. n. f. [impendentia, Fr.]

Impdency. n. f. (in and penitus, Latin.) Obduracy; want of remorse for crimes; final disregard of God's threatenings or mercy.

When one man ever comes to repent, a thousand end their days in final impendence. South. Before the revelation of the gospel the wickedness and impendency of the heathens was a much more excusable thing, because they were in a great measure ignorant of the rewards of another life.

Tillotson.

He will advance from one degree of wickedness and impendence to another, 'till at last he becomes hardened without remorse.

Rigler.

IMP'NENTLY. adv. [from impendens.]

In a manner not to be perceived.

Upon reading of a fable we are made to believe we advide ourselves: the moral infinuates itself imper-emptibly, we are taught by furbish, and become wiser and better unawares.

IMPERFECT. adj. [imperfectus, Fr. imperfect.]

1. Not complete; not absolutely finished; defective. Used either of persons or things.

Something he left imperfect in the state,
Which since his coming forth, is thought of,
Which brought the kingdom so much fear and danger,
That his return was most required. Shakspere.

Opinion is a light, vain, crude, and imperfect thing, settled in the imagination; but never arriving at the understanding, there to obtain the solidity of reason.

Ben Jonson.

The middle action, which produceth imperfect bodies, is fifty called, by some of the ancients, inquisition or incensure, which is a kind of pure faction.

Barrow.

The ancients were imperfect in the doctrine of the miracles, by their ignorance of gunpowder and fireworks.

Divers things we agree to be knowledge, which yet are so uneasy to be satisfactorily understood by our imperfect intellects, that let them be delivered in the clearest expressions, the notions themselves will yet appear obscure.

Boyle.

A marble is either imperfect, tending to a greater withering, which is credible; or perfect, that is, an instant wafting of the body, excluding all cure.

Harvey on Conjunctions.

The sill-born founds upon the palest hung.

And dy'd imperfect on the falvating tongue. Dryden.

As obscure and imperfect ideas often involve our reason, so do dubious words puzzle men.

Locke.

2. Frail; not completely good; as, our best worship is imperfect.

IMPERFECTION. n. f. [imperfectus, Fr. from imperfect.]

Defect; failure; fault, whether physical or moral; whether of persons or things.

Laws, as all other things human, are many times full of imperfection; and that which is supposed befoveful unto men, proves oftentimes most pernicious.

The duke had taken wife Anne Stanhope, a woman for many imperfections intolerable; but for pride most mortifying.

Hayward.

Imperfections would not be half so much noticed of, if vanity did not make proclamation of them. L'Estrange.

The world is more apt to vent the blame, and himself fuller of imperfections than those, said Aelian's Spectator.

Those are rather to be imputed to the impecuniosity of the age than to any imperfection in that divine being, said Aelian's Spectator.

IMPERFECTLY. adv. [from imperfect.]

Not completely; not fully; not without failure.

Should linking nations fammon you away,
Mark's love might justify your fly; said

Imperfectly the many vows are paid.

Which for your safety to the gods were made.

Spence.

Those would hardly understand language of a nation to any tolerable degree; but only a little and imperfectly about things familiar.

Locke.

IMPERFORABLE. adj. [in and perfora, Lat.]

Not to be bored through.

IMPERFORATE. adj. [in and perforus, Lat.]

Not pierced through; without a hole.

Sometimes children are born imperforate in which case a small puncture, dieted with teeth, effects the cure.

Shakspere.

IMPERIAL. adj. [imperialis, Fr. imperial.]

1. Royal; poefling royalty.

Aim him.

At a fair vernal, throned in the Weald;
But I might see young Cupid's fiery dart

Quench'd in the chaste beams of the wat'ry moon;

And IMP

And the imperial vot'ry'sd on
In maiden meditation, fancy free.
Shakespeare.

2. Betokening royalty; marking forereignty. My due from thee is this imperial crown,
Which, as immediate from thy place and blood,
Doth give thee power to frame the state or wound,
Shakespeare’s Henry IV.

3. Belonging to an emperor or monarch;
regal; royal; monarchical. The main body of the marching throng Against th' imperial palace is degot'd.
Dryden.

Inexorable; [from imperious.] One that will not tolerate an infringement of any law or right.

Imperiousness. n. f. [from imperious.] The state of being imperious; a manifestation of the imperious disposition.

Imp. Not to be moved by per-fusion.
Every pious person ought to be a Noah, a preacher of righteousness; but he who has an impe'riously auditory, if he cannot avert the silence, it will yet deliver his own soul, if he cannot benefit other men.
Decay of Piety.

Imperiousness. n. f. [from imperious.] The state of being imperious; a manifestation of the imperious disposition.

Impetuosity n. f. [from impetuous.] Violence; fury; vehemence; force.
I will set upon Agamemnon a notable report of value, and drive the gentleman into a most hideous opinion of his rage, skill, fury, and impetuous
courage.
Shaks. Troilus Night.
The whole intrigue was conceived by the duke,
and so violently pursued by his spirit and impetuous
courage.
Clarendon.
The mind gives not only licence, but incitement to the thundering passions to stretch their free range, and set with the utmost impetuous desire.
Decay of Piety.

Impetuous. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence;
force. The king, 'tis true, is noble, but impetuous.

Impetuously. adv. [from impetuous.] Violently; vehemence: both of men and things. They view the windings of the hoary Nat.
Through rocks and woods impetuously they glide,
While froth and foam the tossing lecture rain.

Impetuousness. n. f. [from impetuous.] Violence; fury; vehemence of passion.

Impetuous, impetuously. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence of passion.
I with all words of rage might vanish in that breath that utter them; that as they replace the wind in fury and impetuous, so they might in transcendent fire.

Acres. n. f. [Latin.] Violent ten-

tency to any point: violent effort.
Why did not we use a gentle voice? Why did we not to them. I will set upon Agamemnon a notable report of value, and drive the gentleman into a most hideous opinion of his rage, skill, fury, and impetuous
courage.
Shaks. Troilus Night.
The whole intrigue was conceived by the duke,
and so violently pursued by his spirit and impetuous
courage.
Clarendon.
The mind gives not only licence, but incitement to
the thundering passions to stretch their free range, and set
with the utmost impetuous desire.
Decay of Piety.

Impetuous. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence;
force. The king, 'tis true, is noble, but impetuous.

Impetuously. adv. [from impetuous.] Violently; vehemence: both of men and things. They view the windings of the hoary Nat.
Through rocks and woods impetuously they glide,
While froth and foam the tossing lecture rain.

Impetuousness. n. f. [from impetuous.] Violence; fury; vehemence of passion.

Impetuous, impetuously. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence of passion.
I with all words of rage might vanish in that breath
that utter them; that as they replace the wind
in fury and impetuous, so they might in transcendent fire.

Acres. n. f. [Latin.] Violent ten-

tency to any point: violent effort.
Why did not we use a gentle voice? Why did we not to them. I will set upon Agamemnon a notable report of value, and drive the gentleman into a most hideous opinion of his rage, skill, fury, and impetuous
courage.
Shaks. Troilus Night.
The whole intrigue was conceived by the duke,
and so violently pursued by his spirit and impetuous
courage.
Clarendon.
The mind gives not only licence, but incitement to
the thundering passions to stretch their free range, and set
with the utmost impetuous desire.
Decay of Piety.

Impetuous. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence;
force. The king, 'tis true, is noble, but impetuous.

Impetuously. adv. [from impetuous.] Violently; vehemence: both of men and things. They view the windings of the hoary Nat.
Through rocks and woods impetuously they glide,
While froth and foam the tossing lecture rain.

Impetuousness. n. f. [from impetuous.] Violence; fury; vehemence of passion.

Impetuous, impetuously. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence of passion.
I with all words of rage might vanish in that breath
that utter them; that as they replace the wind
in fury and impetuous, so they might in transcendent fire.

Acres. n. f. [Latin.] Violent ten-

tency to any point: violent effort.
Why did not we use a gentle voice? Why did we not to them. I will set upon Agamemnon a notable report of value, and drive the gentleman into a most hideous opinion of his rage, skill, fury, and impetuous
courage.
Shaks. Troilus Night.
The whole intrigue was conceived by the duke,
and so violently pursued by his spirit and impetuous
courage.
Clarendon.
The mind gives not only licence, but incitement to
the thundering passions to stretch their free range, and set
with the utmost impetuous desire.
Decay of Piety.

Impetuous. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence;
force. The king, 'tis true, is noble, but impetuous.

Impetuously. adv. [from impetuous.] Violently; vehemence: both of men and things. They view the windings of the hoary Nat.
Through rocks and woods impetuously they glide,
While froth and foam the tossing lecture rain.

Impetuousness. n. f. [from impetuous.] Violence; fury; vehemence of passion.

Impetuous, impetuously. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence of passion.
I with all words of rage might vanish in that breath
that utter them; that as they replace the wind
in fury and impetuous, so they might in transcendent fire.

Acres. n. f. [Latin.] Violent ten-

tency to any point: violent effort.
Why did not we use a gentle voice? Why did we not to them. I will set upon Agamemnon a notable report of value, and drive the gentleman into a most hideous opinion of his rage, skill, fury, and impetuous
courage.
Shaks. Troilus Night.
The whole intrigue was conceived by the duke,
and so violently pursued by his spirit and impetuous
courage.
Clarendon.
The mind gives not only licence, but incitement to
the thundering passions to stretch their free range, and set
with the utmost impetuous desire.
Decay of Piety.

Impetuous. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence;
force. The king, 'tis true, is noble, but impetuous.

Impetuously. adv. [from impetuous.] Violently; vehemence: both of men and things. They view the windings of the hoary Nat.
Through rocks and woods impetuously they glide,
While froth and foam the tossing lecture rain.

Impetuousness. n. f. [from impetuous.] Violence; fury; vehemence of passion.

Impetuous, impetuously. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence of passion.
I with all words of rage might vanish in that breath
that utter them; that as they replace the wind
in fury and impetuous, so they might in transcendent fire.

Acres. n. f. [Latin.] Violent ten-

tency to any point: violent effort.
Why did not we use a gentle voice? Why did we not to them. I will set upon Agamemnon a notable report of value, and drive the gentleman into a most hideous opinion of his rage, skill, fury, and impetuous
courage.
Shaks. Troilus Night.
The whole intrigue was conceived by the duke,
and so violently pursued by his spirit and impetuous
courage.
Clarendon.
The mind gives not only licence, but incitement to
the thundering passions to stretch their free range, and set
with the utmost impetuous desire.
Decay of Piety.

Impetuous. adj. [impetuous, Fr. from impetus.] Violently; fury; vehemence;
force. The king, 'tis true, is noble, but impetuous.

Impetuously. adv. [from impetuous.] Violently; vehemence: both of men and things. They view the windings of the hoary Nat.
Through rocks and woods impetuously they glide,
While froth and foam the tossing lecture rain.
For never felt his imperturbable breast
So wondrous free from hand of living wight.

Impervious, n. s. Impervious, French; implacable, Latin.

1. Irreverence to the Supreme Being; contempt of the duties of religion.
   To keep that oath were more impious than Jephtha's, when he sacrificed his daughter.

2. An act of wickedness; expression of unrestrained lust.

Joy in such impertinent appeals.

We have a melancholy prospect of the state of our religion; such amazing impertinences can be equalled by nothing but by those arts confirmed by old facts.

To implore, v. a. [in and inquisitor, Latin] To pray; to plead.

The act of a prayer or putting to prayer.

I am no mock impertinent, nor do I think.

That which Nature has implanted in the mind.

There grew out of the system an insatiable, capable of motion by the help of some materials that were implanted with after done, yet in.

Thus did God endow men with faculties of knowing, that was no more allowed to implant those innate faculties in their minds, than that, having given them reason, hands, and materials, he should build his fingers.

The act of setting or planting; the act of engraving or setting.

The act of planting or planting.

Nothing can better improve political schools than the art of making plausible or implausible hampers against the very opinion for which they resolve to determine.

IMPLORE, v. a. [implorator, Latin] To call upon in supplication; to solicit.

They their oaths, and crown with wine.

The holy goblet to the powers divine.

Imploring all the gods that reign above.

To ask; to beg.

Do not lay this infamous, that.

And then implor he bleeding.

Shakespeare, Winter's Tale.

Implicate, n. s. [from the verb.] The act of beguiling; intent; solicitation. Not in use.

Used for

With piercing words and pitiful implor.

Him hastily to arise.

Falsh queen.

Imploiter, m. s. [from implorer.] Solicitor.

More implorers of unholy faiths.

Breathings, like falsified and pious.

The better to beguile.

Shakespeare's Hamlet.

To.

Dr. To.
To IMP, n. v. [implo'ger, French; im-ple'ce, Latin,].
1. To unfold; to cover; to intangle. Not in use.

His courage shone,
Serving to loose the knot that fast he tied,
Himself in frighten bold to rash import.

Dryden.

And Phoebe flying to most fearful height,
His blushing face in foggy clouds import.

Fair Queen.

2. To involve or comprize as a consequence or concomitant.

That it was in use among the Greeks, the word

Bouret's Vulgar Errors.

What follows next is no objection, for that import

Dryden.

Does the strength of brawny arms import

Boote.

Where a malicious act is proved, a malicious intention is importum.

Sheilbock.

To IMPROVISON, n. v. [imp'sagens, French, It might be written empassion.]

1. To corrupt with poison. One doth not know

How much an ill word doth importen liking.

Shakespeare.

2. To kill with poison. This is rare. See Empassion.

A man by his own aims import'd,

And with his charity plain.

Shakespeare.

IMPO'RIARILY, adv. [in and polar. Not] Not according to the direction of the poles.

Little used.

Being Importarily adjointed unto a more vigorous loadstone, it will, in a short time, exchange its poles.

[Latin.]

IMPOLITICALLY, adj. [in and politick.]

Impolitic. impudent; indirect; void of art or foresight.

Brought.

For it was not for want of an enemy's policy, do the court's counsellors to be importuned; but rather to use all prudent foresight and circumstance, lest our simplicity be over-reach'd by cunning fleets. Hooker.

IMPLO'RICALLY. adj. [in and politick.]

Without art or foresight.

IMPR'ONERous adj. [in and poderant.]

Void of perceptible weight.

It produces visible and real effects by imponderable and invisible emissions. Bouret's Vulgar Errors.

IMPORT, n. v. [import, Latin; importe, French; import, Latin; import, French.] Importune, importune, French.

Of the import of the next paragraph; of the imponderable

Of the import of the next paragraph; of the imponderable

Of the importance of the next paragraph.

Bouret's Vulgar Errors.

Definitely, imponderable; compactness; cloineness.

The porosity or imponderability between the tangible parts, and the greatness or infiniteness of the point.

Baron.

IMPRO'وضوع, adj [in and pourous]. Free from pores; free from vacuities or interstices; close of texture; completely solid.

It has its earthly and salines parts so exactly resolved, that its body is left imponderous, and not disintegrated by atomic terminations.

[Latin.]

TO IMPORT, n. v. [import, Latin.]

1. To carry into any country from abroad; opposed to export.

For Else I would fall with utmost speed,
'T import twelve marts, which there luxur'd feed.

Pope.

2. To import; to infer.

Himself not only comprehended all our necessities, but in such fort also framed every petition as might most naturally serve for many; and doth, though not alse in measure, yet always import a multitude of speakers together.

Ogilby.

The name of discipline importes not as they would fail in it confined; but the self-same thing it signified which the name of doctrine doth.

Hooker.

This question we now askd, imported, as that we thought that had a land of magicians. Bacon.

3. To produce in consequence.

Something he left imperfect in the state,

Which since its coming forth is told of, which

Imported the king to much fear and danger,

That his return was so removed. Shakspeare.

4. [Import, importes, French. Importual-iety.] To be of moment; as, it importes, it is of weight or consequence.

Her length of flickens, with what else mere serious

Imported he to know his condition. Shakspeare.

Let the heat be such as may keep the metal per-melted; for that above Importes to the work.

Bacon.

Number in armies Importes not much, where the people is of weak courage.

This to attain, whether heavy'rn, or earth,

Imports not, if thou reckon right.

Milton.

It may import us in this case to breakers more than we have done to the storms that are now rising abroad.

Temp. Dryden.

If I err in what import is it you?

Shakespeare.

IMPORT, n. f. [from the verb.]

1. Importance; moment; consequence.

What occasion of import

Hath all so long detain'd you from your wife?

Shakespeare.

Some buffets of import that triumph wears.

When there is any dispute, the judge ought to appoint the sum according to the excellence and ability of the advocate, and in proportion to the importance of the cause.

Asfifta.

2. Tendency.

Add to these former observations made about vegetables a third of the same importance made in mineral substances.

Bouret's Vulgar Errors.

3. Any thing imported from abroad; as, our importes ought not to exceed our ex-

IMPORTABLE adj. [in and portable.]

Unimportable; not to be endured. A word accused by Shakespeare at first sight fillable.

It is used in the Apocalypse.

Both at once him charge on either side.

With hideous strokes and importable powers,

That forced him his ground to traverse wide,

And wisely watch to that deadly aim.

Fair Queen.

IM'PORTANCE, n. f. [French.]

1. Thing imported or implied. Rare.

A notable passion of wonder appeared in them, but the widest wonder, that kindred to any more but feel ings, could not say if the importance were joy or for row.

Shakspeare, Winter's Tale.

It had been pity you should have been put togeth er with so mortal a knowledge; this being each bore, upon importance of his flight of nature.

Shakspeare.

3. Consequence; moment.

We consider

The importance of Cyprus to the Turks. Shakspeare

That you may be known by your importance;

Nor bound thy narrow views to things below. Pope.

4. Importance. An improper use peculi ar to Shakspeare.

Maria went

The letter at Sir Toby's great importance;

In consequence whereof he hath married her. Shakspeare.

IMPORT'ANT adj. [import, French.]

1. Momentous; weighty; of great consequence.

The utmost importance and pressing care of a new and vigorous king was his marriage, for mature establishment of the royal line.

Wors.

This futur'd treachery to the crime: 'tis the crushing the most important truth. Decay of Vener.
to be fo imperityently important, that a great part of the liturgy was addressed solely to her. *Hervet's Vocal Forl."
The bloom of beauty other years demands, Nor will it be gathered by such wretched hands: You impofe it with a false desire." Dryden.

Everyone hath experimented this troublesome intrusion of some trifling ideas, which thus importance the understanding, and binds it from being employed.

Locke.

We have been obliged to hire troops from several princes of the empire, whose ministers and adherents here have perennially impeded the court with unreasonable demands.

Swift.

*IMPOR'TUNE adj. [importuna, Latin. It was anciantly pronounced with the accent on the second syllable.

1. Contantly recurring; troublesome by frequency.

All that did fervently apply,
With greedy malice and importune toil; And planted there their huge artillery, With which they daily made most dreadful battery.

Spenfoer, Henry, king of England, needed not to have be-flowed such great arms, nor so to have bullied himself with improper and incessant labour, to provoke my death and ruin, if I had been a disposed person.

Bacon's Henry VII.

2. Troublesome; vexatious.

And th' armed of their creatures all, and home Do it, and with importunity might War against us, the vaflals of their will. Spenfoer.

If the upper soul can check what is contended to by the will, in compliance with the faith, and can check that after a few years of fentiment, that importunely rebellious fervant shall be eternally cut off, this would be some colour for that novel persifion.

Hammond.
The fame arms, which some entertain with most delightful transports, to others are importune.

Glanville's Seript.

3. Unfeafonable; coming, asking, or happening at a wrong time.

No fair to thee Equivalent or second I which compell'd Me thus, though impotunely perhaps, to come. And gaze and worship thee.

Spenfoer.

*IMPOTENTLY a. [from importuna.]

1. Troublesomely; incessantly,
The Palmer went his ear unto the noise,
To wet what call'd so importunately;
Again he heard a more efferted voice,
That made him come in haste.

Fairy Quaer.

2. Unfeafonably; improperly.
The constitutions that the apostolies made concerning deacons and widows, are, with much importunity but very improperly used by the disciplinarians.

Sanderson.

*IMPOR'TU'UITY n. s. [importunitas, Latin; importuitate, French, from importum.]

Incefsant solicitation.

Overcome with the importunity of his wife, a woman of a joyft spirit, he altered his former purpose.

Knapp.

Thrice I deluded her, and turn'd to sport Her importunity. Milton's Agamem.

To IMPOSE. v. a. [imposer, French; imposum, Latin.]

1. To lay on as a burden or penalty. It shall not be lawful to impose toll upon them.

If a fon de fall into a lowed action, the imposition, by your rule, should be imposed on the father.

To tyrants others have their country sold, Impofed foreign lords for foreign gold. Dryd. Ena.

On impious realms and bare-vein'd kings impofe. Thy plaguies, and curse them with such ill as thee.

Popes.

2. To enjoin as a duty or law. What good or evil is there under the sun, what action correspondent or repentant unto the law which God hath imposed upon his creatures, but is upon

*IMPOTES adj. [impo'sum, Fr. in and po'sible.] Not to be done; not to be attempted; impracticable.

It was impofible that the state should continue quiet.

With men it is impofible; but with God all things are possible. Matt. xix. 26.

Every thing impofible for any creature to be lawful, if that which should legitimate it is subfquent to it.

Decay of Piety.

It is impofible the mind should be fo perplex'd and where in its progress in this space, how far it ever extends its thoughts.

Locke.

We cannot believe it impofible to God to make a creature with more ways to convey into the understanding the notice of corporeal things than five.

Locke.

I own my thoughts deceive,
With hope of things impofible to find.

Walshe.

*IMPO'SIBILITY n. s. [impo'sibilia, Fr. from impotable.]

1. Impracticability; the fate of being not feafonable.

Simple Philofo Phics, it is the impoferibility that doth torment me; for unlawful defires are punifhed after the effect of enjoying, but impofible defires in the defire itfelf.

Sidney.

For their impoferibilities and great abfurdities to be pofter and convenient. Whiffield.

Let the mutinous winds
Srike the proud eedurs 'gainft the ftyr fair,
Murdering impoferibility.

To what cannot be, flight work.

Shaks. Coriol.

They confound difficulty with impoferibility. They that afTrict the impoferibility of space existing without matter, must make body infinite.

Locke.

When we fea a man of like paffions and weaknefs with ourfelves going before us in the paths of duty, it continues all laws pretendions of impoferibility. Rogers.

2. That which cannot be done.

Though men do, without offence, with daily that the affair, which with evils fuccefs is path, might have fallen out much better; yet to pray that they may have been any other than they are, this being a manifest impoferibility in itself, the rules of religion do not permit.

Hooker.

Inpo'sibities oh no, there's none.

Could I bring thy heart captive home. Cowley.

I'MPOSE'TU'MATE. v. n. [from impofum.]

To form an abfecfes; to gather; to form a cyft or bag containing matter.

The bruife impoferumated and afterwards turned to a thinking ulcer, which made every body fly to come near her. Arnaudot.

To IMPO'SI'TU'MATE. v. a. To allait with an impoferumate.

They would not fly that furgeon, whofe lance threaten'd none but the impoferumated parts.

Decay of Piety.

I'mpofumation. n. s. [from impoferumate.] The act of forming an impoferumate; the state in which an impoferumate is formed.

He that maketh the wound bleed inwards, endangereth malign ulcers and pernicious impoferumates.

Bacon's Essay.
There sat a certain man, impatient in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked. Acts 3:14

I have learn'd that fearfull commenting
It leaden servitor to dull decay;
leads impatient and final pac'd beggary.

The impatient poor might be relieved, and the idle forced to labour.

3. Without power of restraint. [Animi impotentia, St. John's Bible]

With jealous eye at distance she had seen,
Whipping with Jove, the flat-footed queen;
Then, impatient of tongue, her silence broke,
Thrust turbulent in rattling tone the spoke. Dryden.

4. Without power of propagation.

He told be neath a tree it thought impatient, that his misfortunes would not have him, because he was a flaver, and had committed a rape.

Tailer.

IMPOTENTLY, adv. [from impotent]

Without power.

Proud Caesars, midst triumphal cars,
The spoils of nations, and the pomp of wars,
Ignobly vain, and impatient great,
Shew'd Rome her Cato's figure drawn in state.

To IMPound, v. a. [in and pound. See Pound.

1. To inclose as in a pound; to shut in; to confine.
The great care was rather how to impound the rebels, rather than to confine them. Bacon.

2. To shut up in a pinfold.
England

Hath taken and impounded as a thief.
The king. Seeing him wander about, I took him up for a thief, and impounded him, with intention to restore him again to the right of them might escape, than that any doubt was made to vanish them. Bacon.

To IMPower. See EMPOWER.

IMPRacticable, adj. [impracticable, French, and in practicable.]

1. Not to be performed; unfeasable; impossible.
Had there not been still remaining bodies, the legitimate offspring of the antient inhabitants of the island, 'twould have been an extravagant and impracticable undertaking to have gone about to determine any thing concerning it. Woodward.

2. To surmise, to conjecture; that which our experience tells us is utterly impracticable, were to affright mankind with the terrible prospect of universal desolation. Rogers.

Untractable, unmanageable; stubborn.

That brittle impracticable nature
Is governed by a dainty fingered girl.

Rev.

IMPRacticableness, n. f. [from impracticable.]

1. Impossibility.

I do not know a greater mark of an able minister than that of sightly adapting the several faculties of men, nor is any thing more to be lamented than the impracticableness of doing this, Swift.

2. Untractable; stubborn.

To IMPRact, v. a. [impract, Latin.]

To call for evil upon himself or others.

Implication, n. f. [impracticable, impracticable; from impracticable, French, from impracticable, French, from impracticable.]
Curse; prayer by which any evil is wished to another or himself.

My mother first the hard'rd fares raise
With implications.
Sir John Hoocham, uncour'd by any implication of mine, pull his own and his father's legs, King.
With implications thus he fill'd the air,
And angry Neptune heard't unrighteous pray'r.

Pope.

Imprecatory, adj. [from impracticable.]

Containing wishes of evil.

To IMPRign, v. a. [in and prging, Latin.]

To fill with young; to fill with any matter or quality; to make pregnant.

In her ears the sound
Yet rang of his pernicious words, impregnd With malice, to her hearing,

Milton.

Th' unfruitful rock, itself impregnd by them,
Forms fucile tones.

Milton.

IMPREGNABLE, adj. [impregnable, Fr.]

1. Not to be formed; not to be taken.

Two giants kept themselves in a castle, seated upon two Rocks, itself impregnable, because there was no coming to it but by one narrow path, where one man's force was able to keep down an army. Sidney. Act he as he back'd with God, and with the fear.

While he had given them strength, and With their help alone defend yourselves. Shak.

Hast thou not him, and all
Who calls his, inclosed with a wall
Of tremendous height, the city.

Sandy.

There the capital thou feest,
Above the rest lifting his statues head
On the Teppurian rock, the citadel Impregnable.

Milton.

2. Untaken; unmove; unaffected; invincible.

The man's faction remains wholly unconcerned and impregnable just like a rock, which, being piled continually in the sea, filleth blows them back again, but is not at all moved. South.

IMPREGNABLY, adv. [from impregnable]

in such a manner as to defy force or hostility.

The cable strongly fastened on a high rock, joined by an illusory to the land and it is impregnable.

Sandy.

To IMPregnate, v. a. [in and prgrage, Latin.]

1. To fill with young; to make prolific.

Her husband therefore, although they include the parts of both sexes, cannot impregnate the impregnable. Bacon.

Christianity is of so prolific a nature, so apt to impregnate the hearts and lives of its profelytes, that it is hard to imagine that any branch thou want a due fertility. Decy of Flitus.

2. [Impregnare, French.] To fill; to saturate.

3. (In the following example, impegnate may be perhaps an adjective.

The water flows from their0s to fill
A finny juice.

Dryden's Virgin.

With native earth their blood the monsters mix's; The blood, end'd with animating heat,

Drys.

IMPregnation, n. f. [from impegnate.]

1. The act of making prolific; fecundation.

They ought to refer matters unto councillors, which is the first begetting or impregnation; but when they are elaborate in the womb of their counsel, and grow ripe to be brought forth, then they take the matter back into their own hands. Bacon.

2. That with which any thing is impregnated.

What could implant in the body such peculiar impregnations, as should have such power Dyesham.

3. [Impregnation, Fr.] Saturation. Anyw.

IMPREJUDICATE, adj. [in pra, and iudic, Latin.] Unprejudiced; not prepossessed; impartial.

The solid reason of one man with imprejudicata appearances, beggars as firm a belief as the authority of aggregate testimony of many humble or.

Brown.

IMPREPARATION, n. f. [in prepara, and iudicatio]. Unpreparable; want of preparation. Impregnative and unprepossessing when they find it in us, they turn it to the soothing up of the pain.

Hookers.

To IMPRESS, v. a. [impressare, Latin.]

1. To print by pressure; to stamp.

When
When God from earth form'd Adam in the East,
He his own image on the clay impress'd,
Denou'd, The conquering chief his foot impress'd
On the firming neck of that destructive dust, Dryden.

To fix. 2. To fix. We should dwell upon the arguments, and impress the motives of persuasion upon our own hearts, till we feel the force of them.

3. To impress by a flap. So fool and ugly, that exceeding fear
Their visages impress, when they approached near.

4. To force into service. This is generally now spoken and written. he design has charm in it, his title more,
To pluck the common boons from his side, And turn our impress launcest in our eyes.
Which do command them, Shakespeare. King Lear.
Macbeth shall never vanish'd be, until Great Birmam-wood to Dunsinane's high hill Shall come again him.

That will never be.

Who can impress the forest, bid the tree
Under his earth-bound root. Shakespeare, Macbeth.
Osmond should contribute all he could for the
To mark, as impress should mark a Feat.

3. Mark of distinction; stamp. God, surveying the works of the creation, leaves us this general impress or character upon them, that they were exceeding good.

4. Device; motto. To describe emblem'd shields, impress'd against, caparisons, and fleeds, Bales, and tinsel, trappings. Milton.

5. Act of forcing any into service; compulsion; seizure. Now commonly impress.
Ajax was here the voluntary, and you as under an insect. Shakespeare.
Why such impress of shipwrights, whole fare task
Does not divide the Sunday from the week? Shakespeare.

Your mariners are mulitiers, rapers, people
Intrust'd with impress. Shakespeare, Ant, and Chop.

Impression, n. f. [impress.' Lat. impressed, Fr.]
1. The act of pressing one body upon another.
Sensation is such an impression or motion, made in some part of the body, as produces some perception in the understanding. Locke.

2. Mark made by preussure; stamp.
Like a clock, or any thing bearable, That carries no impression like the dam.
Shakespeare.

3. Image fixed in the mind.
The were the office of religion to all the external decencies, they would not make a due impression on their country.
The false representations of the kingdom's enemies had made some impression in the mind of the people.

4. Efficacious agency; operation; influence.
The king hath made him high steward of Suffolk, that he might the better make impression upon that country.

When we are in the street, he first of all, Impressionists, nothing, except to the wall; And so impression'd and hemm'd in by me, Sells for a little flate his liberty.
Dryden.

Try to impress the relifed wind! So swift it is, so hard it is confin'd.
Dryden.

If a man impress himself in his cloth, and employs reason to find out the nature of the corporeal world; without experiments, he will frame a scheme of chimeras. It is not improbable, that all the virtual heat in the juices of vegetables, metals, and minerals, may be owing to the action of the impressed rays.

Chenery.

Impres'sion, n. f. [impression, Fr. from impress.] Confinement; claustrum; state of being shut in imprisonment. It may be written imprisonment.

There is a real knowledge of material things, when the thing itself, and the real action and impression thereof on our senses, is perceived. Chomsky.

Effect of an attack.

Such a number of small two hundred horse, fecund'd with two thousand foot, may surely endure a companion with any of the bravest impressions in ancient time. Witsen.

6. Edition number printed at once; one course of printing.
To be distracted with many opinions, makes men to be of the last impression, and full of change.

For ten impressions, which his works have had in so many years, at present a hundred books are fearfully purchased once a twelvemonth. Dryden.

Impr'essible, adj. [in and prefix, Latin.] What may be impressed.

The differences of impression and not impression, figurative and not figurative, are plebeian notions of Bacon's Natural History.

Impres'sure, n. f. [from impress.] The mark made by preussure; the dint; the impression.

Lean but upon a ruth, The clear and distant impression
Thy palm some moments keeps, Shakespeare.

To impress, v. a. [imprimere, French.]
1. To mark upon any substance by preussure.

Of one of the same, that has impressed upon pieces of war of different colours. Hidden's Elm, of Speech.
Having surveyed the image of God in the soul of man, we are not to omit those characters of majesty that God impressed upon the body. South.

She awed his specious mounds belows; inclines her turn upon his fatten'd lands, and feeds her num'rous hinds impressed her sands. Prior.

2. To stamp words on paper by the use of types.

3. To fix on the mind or memory.

There is a kind of conveying of effectual and impressing paffages, amongst compliments, and persuasions, which is of singular use. Bacon.

We have all these ideas in our understandings which we may make the objects of our thoughts, without the help of such feeble qualities which first impressed them. Locke.

Retention is the power to revive again in our minds these ideas, which, after impressing, have disappeared.
Locke.

By familiar acquaintance he has got the ideas of these two different things distinctly impressed on his mind.

Locke.

4. To impress in is less proper.
When we set before our eyes a round globe, the idea impressed in our mind is of a flat circle, variously shadowed.

To imprison, v. a. [imprison, Fr. in and prefix.]
To shut up; to confine; to keep from liberty; to restrain in place.
He imprison'd was in chains remorseless; For that Hippolytus sent corne he did redress.
Dryden.

Now we are in the street, he first of all, Impressionists, nothing, except to the wall; And so impression'd and hemm'd in by me, Sells for a little flate his liberty.

Dryden.

Try to impress the relieved mind! So swift it is, so hard it is confin'd.

Dryden.

If a man impress himself in his cloth, and employs reason to find out the nature of the corporeal world; without experiments, he will frame a scheme of chimeras. It is not improbable, that all the virtual heat in the juices of vegetables, metals, and minerals, may be owing to the action of the impressed rays.

Chenery.

Impri'ssionment, n. f. [imprisonment, Fr. from imprison.] Confineement; claustrum; state of being shut in imprisonment. It may be written imprisonment.

His fences knew weak and raw, Through long imprisonment and hard constraint.
Spen'er.

Which shall I fear, besides,
Thy bondage or lost fights?
Thou art become, O work imprisonment!
The dungeon of thyself.
Millen's Ages of Man.

When fallen Philomel escapes her notes.
She varies, and of part imprisonment
Sweetly complaints.
Phillips.

Mount Serin, still close prisoner in this cell,
Lost his fences by his long imprisonment and afflictions. Dryden.

Addison.

It is well if they don't fix the brand of hereby on the man who is leading them out of their long imprisonment, and looking the fetters of their souls.

Watts on the Mind.

Improb'ability, n. f. [from improbable.]
Unlikelihood; difficulty to be believed.
The difficulty, and the improbability of attempting this successfully is great. Hammond.

As to the improbabilities of a spirit appearing, I boldly answer him, that a heretic poet is not tied to the bare representation of what is true, or exceeding probable.
Dryden.

Improb'able, adj. [improbable, Fr. improbable, Latin; in and probable.] Unlikely; incredible.

This account of party-patchers will appear improbable to those who live at a distance from the fashionable world. Addison.

Improb'ably, adv. [from improbable.]
1. Without likelihood.

2. In a manner not to be approved. Obloque.

Aristotle tells us, if a drop of wine be put into ten thousand measure of water, the wine being overpowered, will be turned into water: he speaks of it by implication.

To implicate, v. a. [to implicate, Latin.]
Not to approve.
Ainsworth.

Implication, n. f. [from implicat, Latin; implication, French.] Act of disallowing.
Ainsworth.

Improcity, n. f. [impromit, impromus, Latin.]
Want of honesty; dishonestly; barbarism.

He was perhaps uncommunicable, yes, and cut off for notorious impertinency.
We balance the improbability of the one with the improbability of the other.
L'Estrange.

To implicate, v. a. [in and prefix.]
To implicate; to impregnate; to fecundate. A word not used.

A difficulty in eggs is how the sperm of the cock is impressed, and makes the oval conception fruitful.
Brown.

Imprec'd, adj. [impro'pre, Fr. impro'pre, Latin.]
1. Not well adapted; unqualified.
As every science requires a peculiar genius, so likewise there is a genius peculiarly improper for every one.
Burnett.

2. Used not conducive to the right end.
The methods used in an original dissection would be very improper in a gyro cafe. Arbuthnot.

Ditts.

3. Not just; not accurate.
He disfavored, was rated.

For his account of speech for he dy'd:

Dryden.

He was cabal'd.

Dryden.

Impropr'fully, adv. [from improper.]
1. Not fitly; incongruously.

2. Not justly; not accurately.

Improperly we measure life by breath.

Such do not truly live who merit death. Dryden.

Justly suffering one of their influence in committing my faults where I spoke improperly, I was encouraged.
Dryden.

To impr'priate, v. a. [in and proprius, Latin.]

To
To IMPROVE a thing is to make it better; to IMPROVABLE it is to make it better.

The expression has been but very imprudently attempted.

Boyle.

Imprudence, n. f. [from imprudent.] Want of forethought.

Her imprudence would be justly accountable. Brown.

Impudence, n. f. [impudence, French; impudentia, Latin.] Want of prudence; indiscretion; negligence; inattention to the feelings of others.

IMPUDENT, adj. [impudent, French; impudentius, Lat.] Shameless; impudently.

Heard's ear.

That any of these bold wits were allowed to Improvisation. n. f. [in and improvis.] Want of forethought.

Her improvisation would be justly accountable. Brown.

Impudence. n. f. [impudence, French; impudentia, Latin.] Want of prudence; indiscretion; negligence; inattention to the feelings of others.

IMPUDENT, adj. [impudent, French; impudentius, Lat.] Shameless; impudently.

Heard's ear.

That any of these bold wits were allowed to Improvisation. n. f. [in and improvis.] Want of forethought.

Her improvisation would be justly accountable. Brown.

Impudence. n. f. [impudence, French; impudentia, Latin.] Want of prudence; indiscretion; negligence; inattention to the feelings of others.

IMPUDENT, adj. [impudent, French; impudentius, Lat.] Shameless; impudently.

Heard's ear.

That any of these bold wits were allowed to Improvisation. n. f. [in and improvis.] Want of forethought.

Her improvisation would be justly accountable. Brown.
There were my natural Impulses for the undertaking; but there was an accidental motive, which was not forethinkable.

Moles saw the bush burn without being confused, and heard a voice out of it: this was something, besides finding an Impulse upon his mind to go and burn the bush, that might have been his brethren out of Egypt.

3. Hostile impression. Like two great rocks against the raging tide,

To the Impulsion there is requisite the force of the body that moveth, and the resistance of the body that is moved; and if the body be too great, it yieldeth too little; and if it be too small, it resisteth too faintly on the other. Bacon's Natural History.

2. Influence operating upon the mind.

But thou didst please Divine Impulsism, prompting how thou mightst find some occasion to instruct our fets. Milli. Agurges.

1. Accept of. a [impulse, French, from impulse.] Having the power of impulse; moving; impellent.

Nature and duty bind him to obedience;

That these being placed in a lower sphere,

His first ambition, like the highest moveth,

Has hurried with a strong impulsive motion

Against their proper course,

Dembs. Sophy.

What is the fountain or impulse cause of this generation of evil? It is perfectly free grace. South.

Poor men! poor papers! we and they

Do some impulsive force obey,

And are but play'd with, do not play.

Prior.

1. Impulse, n. f. [impulse, French, imputibilit, Latin.] Freedom from punishment; exemption from punishment.

In the condition of subjects they will gladly consider, as long as they may be protected and jutly governed, without oppression on the one side, or impulsion on the other. Davelot.

A general Impunity would confirm them; for the vulgar will never believe, that there is a crime where there is no penalty. Men, potent in the commonwealth, will employ their ill-gotten influence towards procuring impunity; or extorting undue favours for themselves or dependents.

IMPURE, adj. [impur, French; impure, Latin.]

1. Defiled with guilt; unholy: of men.

No more can Impure man retain and more In that pure region of a worthy love.

Than stand'st with mind and soul asunder,

And leave him to continue with fire, Duone.

2. Contrary to sanctity; unhallowed; unholy: of things.

Hypocrisies audibly talk,

Condemning as impure what God has made pure, and commands holy, makes free to all. Milton.

3. Unchaste.

If black, scandal, or soul-fac'd reproach,

Attend the fleight of your impulsion,

Your total enforcement shall acquittance me

From all the impure blots and stains thereof. Shake.

One could not devise a more proper hell

In this impure spirit, than that which Plato has touched upon. Addison.

4. Feculent; foul with extraneous mixtures; droolly.

IMPURELY, adv. [from impure.] With impurity.

IMPURENESS, n. [impurei, French; impurity, Latin, from impur-.

1. Want of sanctity; want of holiness.

Foul impurity reigns among the monstrosity.

Acruet.

3. Feculent admixture.

Cleanse the alimentary fluid by vomiting and

Eysters; the impurities of which will be carried into

The blood.

IMPUTABLE, n. f. [from impute.] To impute.

1. Chargeable upon any one; that of which one may be accused.

The first sort of foolishness is imputable to them. South.

2. Accusable, chargeable with a fault.

Not proper.

If the wife departs from her husband, through any default of his, as on the account of cruelty, then he shall be compelled to allow her alimony; for the law deems her to be a dutiful wife, as long as the fault lies at his door, and in no wise imputable.

Antig.

IMPUTABLENESS, n. f. [from impute.] The quality of being imputable.

'Tis necessary to the imputability of an action,

That it be done with malice.

IMPUTATION, n. f. [imputation, French, from impute, from impute.]

1. Attribution of any thing; generally of ill.

To trust me, Ulysses;

Our imputations shall be oddly paid.

In this wild action. Shake.

Turlus and Catala.

If a son be sent by his father about mercantile,

Do fall into some lived action, the impute

For his wickedness, by your rule, should be imposed upon his father.

Shake.

To use ilections and violations in the infinite essence, as hypothetical, is allowable; but a rigorous Imputation is derogatory to him, and arrogant in us. Gianville's Society.

I have formerly said that I could disqualify your writings from those of any other's; 'twas now time to clear myself from any 'imputation of self-conceit on that subject.

Shake.

2. Sometimes of good.

If I had a foil to matter Shallow, I would humour his men with the imputation of being near their master.

Shake.

3. Censure; reproach.

Whatever happens they all the least feel that belongs to vulgar Imputations, which withstanding they defend.

Harker.

Let us be careful to guard ourselves against these groundsll Imputations of our enemies, and to rife above them.

Adfor.

Neither do I reflect upon the memory of his late

Majesty, whom I entirely acquit of any imputation upon this matter.

Swift.

4. Hint; dig notice.

Ambitious is a good man.

—Have you heard any imputation to the contrary?

—No no; my meaning is to have you understand me that he is insufficient.

Shake. Merchant of Venice.

5. Foul; unclean.

To IMPUTE.E, n. a. [impure, French, impure, Latin.

That which may impugned.

To IMPUTE.E, n. a. [impure, French, impure, Latin.

1. To charge upon; to attribute; generally ill; sometimes good.

It was impugned to him for righteousness.

Romans, iv. 21.

Men in their innovations should follow the example of that time, which innovateth but quietly, and by degrees scarce to be perceived; for otherwise whatsoever is new and unlooked for, ever mends; time, and impugns others; and he that boldly takes it for a fortune and thanks the tale; and he that

Harker.

I made it by your persuasion, to satisfy those who imputed it to folly.

Temple.

To guard your dangers to our ignorance.

Locke.

I have a read a book impugned to lord Bathurth, called a perpetual persecution of the church. Swift.

2. To reckon to one what does not properly belong to him.

Thy merit

Impugned shall solve them who renounce

Their own both righteous and unhurtful deeds.

Milton.

IMPUTER, n. f. [from impute.] He that impugne.

1. Noting the place where anything is present; not without.

In school love are all things taught we see;

There's learned a maid of arts the divinest

Fairfax.

Is in this place here not sufficient strong

Turgot to us?

Daniel's Civil War.

2. Noting the state or thing present at any time.

The other is only by error and misconception named the ordinance of Jesus Christ; no one proof is yet brought forth, whereby it may clearly appear to be in God's very deed.

Locke.

Like one of two contending in a prize,

That thinks he hath done well in people's eyes.

Sir Edmund Courtney, and the haughty pretence,

With many more confederates, are in arms.

Shak.

Danger before, and, in, and after the art.

You need must great is great. Daniel's Civil War.

However it be in knowledge, I may truly say it is of no use at all in probabilities; for the attest there, is so determined by the presupposition, after a due weighing of all the proofs on both sides, nothing is so unfit to ally the mind in that as syllogism.

Locke.

God hath made our eternal and temporal interests, in most cases, very confident.

Smalridge's Sermons.

None was so little in their friendships, so much in that of those whom they had most abused.

Dowell.

3. Noting the time.

When we would consider eternity a parte ante, what do we but, beginning from ourselver the present time we are in, to repeat in our minds the years of ages past?

Locke.

4. Noting power.

To feed men's souls, youth, he is not in man.

Habb. Tall.

5. Noting proportion.

Let us figure in general to be reduced to five in the hundred, and let that rate be proclaimed to be free and current.

Bacon.

I cannot but lament the common course, which, at last, nine in ten of those who enter into the militia are obliged to enter.

Swifts.

According to.

In all likelihood I brought all my limbs out of the bed, which, 'tis probable, he has not done off the breach.

College.

7. Concerning.

I only consider what he, who is allowed to have carried this argument further, has laid in it. Locke.

8. For the fake.

A foolearn phrase.

Now, in the names of all the gods at once,

Upon what meat does this our Cæsar feed,

That he is grown so great?

Shake. Cæsar's Cæsar.

In the name of the people,

And in the power of the tribune, we,

Banne him our city.

Shake's Cæsar's Cæsar.

Now, in the name of honour, of glory,

That I may see your father's death reveng'd.

Doh.

King Henry, by the title right or wrong,

Lord Clifford vows to fight in thy defence.

Shake.
INA

Some things they do in that they are men; in that they are wife, men, and christian men, some things in that they are men miffed, and blinded with error.

This, Shakespeare, phrase, as well, as he shall run into; in that it is a thing of his own search.
Shakespeare.

11. In as much. Since, seeing that men are done by us, which others creatures do naturally, as much as we might say doing of them if we would.
Hooker.

In. adv.
1. Within some place is not out.

How infamous is the false, fraudulent, and unconscionable person; especially if he be arrived at that commodity and habitude of falsehood as to play in and out, and show tricks with oaths, the farcical bands which the confidence of man can bind with

South.

2. Engaged to any affair.

We know the world can come; its thought upon;
We cannot that being in, we must go out.
Daniel.

These dramatical flies value themselves for being in at every thing, and are found at last to be joll

Eloquence.

3. Placed in some state.

Poor rogues talk of court news,
Who tales and who wins; who's, as who's, out.
Shakespeare.

Must never pretend then declaim at gin.
Unles, good man, he has been fairly in.
Pope.

Go to those fellows; bid them cover the table, serve in the dishes, and we will come in to dinner.
Shak.

He's too big to go in there; what shall I do?

Let me see: I'll in, I'll in a follow your friend's advice.

I'll in.
Shaksp. Merry Wives of Windsor.

5. Into any place.

Next fill the hole with its own earth again,
And trample with thy feet, and tread it in.
Dryden.

If I have some of thee come in with a bound in that way, than be told at sea with a storm? Cocil.

In the valid cavity lies looth the thrill of some fort of divine larger that could be introduced in that hole.
Woodward.

6. Cloze; home.

The posture of left-handed fencers is so different from that of the right-handed, that you run upon their flanks if you push forward; and they are to with you, if you offer to fall back without keeping your guard.
Talor.

7. In commonly in composition a negative or privative sense, as in the Latin ones, one of which denotes that which institut that which does not act.
In before r is changed into r; as irregular:
before l into l; as illative: and into m before some other confonants; as impro-able.

INABILITY. n.s. [in ability.] Impu-silence; impotence; want of power.

If no natural or casual inability croft their de\ntire. Their hands being to assume themselves with abilities most beneficial to others, cannot but rather great experience, and through experience the more wifdom.

Hooker.

Neither ignorance nor inability can be professed and what plea can offer to divine justice to prevent condemnation?

Rogers.

INABILITY. n s. [in and ability.] Impotence; want of power.

There are things, that are beyond our limited, no
the common run.

Million.

INACCESSIBLE. adj. [inaccessible, French, in and inaccessible.] Not to be reached; not to be approached.

Whatever you are,
That is this defect inaccessible,

Under the shade of melancholy bought,
Lose and neglect the creeping hours of time. Shaksp.

Many other hidden parts of nature, even of a far lower form, are inaccessible to us.

Hart.

Here we see the ends and uses of their things, which here were too noble for us to penetrate, or too remote and inaccessible for us to come to a distinct view of.

This part, which is so noble, is not altogether inaccessible; and that easy way may be found to its right to consider nature and to copy her.
Dryden.

INACCURATE. n s. [from inaccurate.] Want of accurately.

INACCURATE. adj. [in and accurate.] Not exact; not accurate. It is used sometimes of persons, but more frequently of performances.

In actions, n. s. [inaction, French, in and action.] Cessation from labour; forbearence of labour.

The times and movements past are not more like a dream to me, than which are present I lie in a refreshing kind of inaction.
Pope.

INACTIVE. adj. [in and active.] Not busy;
not diligent; idle; indolent; neglectful.

INACTIVELY. adv. [from inactive.] Idly; without labour; without motion; flaggantly.

In the secret of perfect freedom, mark how your son spends his times; whether he inactively loiters it away, when left to his own inclination.
Locke.

INACTIVITY. n.s. [in and activity.] Idly-ness; rest; flagginess.

A doctrine which manifestly tends to discourage the endeavours of men, to introduce a lazy inad-vance, and neglect of the ordinary means of grace.

Rogers.

Virtue, conceald within our breast,
Is inactively at best.
Swift.

INADEQUATE. adj. [in and adequate, Latin.] Not equal to the purpose; decorative; falling below the due proportion.

Remove for rice.

What further means can reason now direct? Dryden.

Inadequate ideas are such, which are but a partial or incomplete representation of those archetypes to which they are referred.

INADEQUATLY. adv. [from inadequate.] Defective; not completely.

Those poets may either exactly fill, or but inadequately.

Boyle.

INADVERTENT. n.s. [inadvertent, Fr.
INADVERTENCY. n.s. [from inadvertent.] 1. Carelessness; negligence; inattention.

There is a difference between them, as between inadverancy, and deliberation, between surprife and fet purpose.

South.

From an habitual heedless inadverancy, men are so intent upon the present that they nothing else.
L'Estrange.

2. Act or effect of negligence.

Many persons have lain under great and heavy finds, which have taken their first rise only from some inadvertence or indifference.

Government of the Tongue.

The productions of a great genius, with many lapses and inadvertences, are infinitely preferable to the works of an inferior kind of author, which are scarcely useful.
Addison.

INADVERTENT. adj. [in and advertent, Latin.] Negligent; careless.

INADVERTENTLY. adv. [from inadvertent.] Carelessly; negligently.

As it is said of the man as the son of Circé and Ulysses, who afterwards flew his father with the bone of a fish inadvertently.

Brown.

Worthy persons, if inadvertently drawn into a decision, will endeavour instantly to rectify their left ground.
Clariss.

INADMISIBLE. adj. [in and admissible.] That cannot be admitted, or granted to another.

INALIMENTAL. adj. [in and alimental.] Affording no nourishment.

Dissolution imparts a degree to nourishment;
and the making of things inalimental to become alimental, may be an experiment of great profit for making things virtual.

INAMISIBLE. adj. [inamissible, French, in and assimilat.] Not to be lost.

Their advantages are inamissible.
Hammond.

INANE. adj. [inanis, Latin.] Empty; void.

It is used licentiously for a substantile.

It sometimes speak of all in the great frame beyond the compass of the world.
Locke.

To INULATE. v. a. [in and animate, Lat.]
To animate; to quicken.
This word is not in use.

There's a kind of world remaining still,
Though the which did inanimate and fill
The world be gone; yet in this last long night
Her ghoft doth walk, that is, a glittering light.
Taine.

To animate. {adj. [inanimatns, Latin;
TO INIMATE. {adj inanimate, Fr.}
VOID of life; without animation.

The spirits of animate bodies are all in some degree kindled; but inanimate bodies have spirits no where kindled.

The golden godsesss, present at the prayer:
Well knew he the animated fair,
And gave the sign of granting.

Dryden.

All ideas of feasible qualities are not inherent in the inanimate bodies; but are the effects of their motion upon our nerves.

Dont.

Both require the confant influence of a principle different from that which governs the inanimate part of the universe.

Choe.

From roofs when Verrio's colours fall,
And leave inanimate the naked wall.

Still in thy long should vanquish'd France appear.

Pope.

INANIMENT, n.s. [inanissitate, French; inanitns, Latin.] Emptiness of body; want of fulness in the vehicles of the animal.

Weakness which avails fewer proceeds from too great fulness in the beginning, and too great transition in the latter end of the difease.

Arbuthnot an Diet.

INANITY. n. s. [from inanis, Latin.] Emptiness; void space.

This opinion extends all such inanit, and admits no vacuities but so little ones as the body whatever can come to, but will be bigger than they,
and must touch the corporal parts which those Dorat an Bodr.

INAPPECUTY. n. s. [in and appetite, Latin.] Want of stomach or appetite.

INAPPLICABLE. adj. [in and applicable, Latin.] Not to be put to a particular use.

INAPPLICABILITY. n. s. [from inap-licable.] Unfitness for the particular purpose.

APPLICATION. n.s. [inapplication, Fr. in and application.] Indolence; negli-

INARABLE. adj. [in and aro, Latin.] Not capable of tillage.

Dill.

To INARCH, v. a. [in and archs.

Inarching is a method of grafting, which is commonly called grafting by approach. This method of grafting is used when the stock and the tree may be joined: take the branch you would inarch, and, having fitted it to that part of the stock where you intend to join it, pare away the wind and wood on one side about three inches: after the same maner cut the stock or branch in the place where the graft is to be united, so that they may join equally that the stock may meet: then cut a little tongue upwards in the graft, and make a notch in the stock to admit it; so that when they are joined the tongue will prevent their slipping, and the graft will more closely unite with the stock. Having thus plated placed them exactly together, tie them; then cover the place with grafting clay, to prevent the air from entering to dry the wound, on the other side, getting in from the bottom; you should fix a stake into the ground, to which that part of the stock, as also the graft, should be fastened, to prevent the wind from breaking them asunder. In this manner they are to remain about thirty months, in which time they will be sufficiently united; and the graft may then be cut from the mother-tree, observing to tie it off close to the stock, and to fit the joined parts with fresh grafting clay. The operation is always performed in April or May, and is commonly practiced upon oranges, myrtles, jasmines, walnuts, oaks, and pines, which will not succeed by common grafting.

M. Miller.

Inarticulate, adj. [inarticulate, fr. in and articulate.] Not uttered with distinct letters, like that of the syllables of human speech. Observe what inarticulate sounds resemble any of the particular letters.

By the harmony of words we elevate the mind to a sense of devotion; as our solemn musick, which is inarticulate poetry, doth in church.

D. Dryden.

Inarticulately, adv. [from inarticulate.] Without art; in a manner contrary to the rules of art.

- I have ranked this among the defects; and it may be thought insufficient to make it the cause alone.

S. Defey of Piety.

Inarticulateness, n.s. [from inarticulate.] Confusion of sounds; want of distinctness in pronouncing.

Inarticulacy, adj. [in and artificial.] Contrary to art.

- I have ranked this among the defects; and it may be thought insufficient to make it the cause alone.

S. Defey of Piety.

Inaugurate, v. a. [inauguro Latin.]

To consecrate; to invest with a new office by solemn rites; to begin with good omens; to begin.

Those beginnings of years were propitious to him, and to this day, if they should rise to a day to inaugurate their favors, that they may appear acts as well of the time as of the will. Wotten.

Inauguration, n.s. [inauguration, Fr. inaugurer, Latin.] Investiture by solemn rites.

The royal ola was solemnly worn, at his inaugural ceremony, to observe these things inviolable. Hor. At his regal inauguration his old father renounced the kingdom to him. Brown's Fagot Errours.

Inauguration, n.s. [inaugura, Latin.] The act of gilding or covering with gold.

The Romans had the art of gilding after our manner; but some sort of their incantation, or gilding, must have been dearer than ours. A. Shakspeare on Cain.

Inauspicious, adj. [inauspicious, Latin.] Ill-omened; unlucky; unfortunate.

Oh here
I will set up my everlasting rest,
And make the yoke of inauspicious fears
From this world's trammels to depart.
Though heaven's inauspicious eye
Lay black on love's nativity,
Their terrors all they can give:
Beauty, and love, all is false.
Confucius.
The fears not do the discourses of inauspicious influence produce.'
With incantations love's wretched flame
Pur'd the fairest nymet of all the plain;
She plunged him hopeless in a deep despair. Dryden.

Inbeing, n.s. [in and bring.] Inherence; inseparable.

When we fly the bow in round the bay, is within there are proper or inherent modes for they have a sort of being in the substance itself, and do not arise from the addition of any other substance to it.

G. W. W. Whitt.

Inborn, adj. [in and born.] Incanatic, implanted by nature.

Led by the sense of good,
Inhabit to all, I fought my needful food.
Dryden.

All passions broiling within us, we are almost equally judges of them.

Some Carolinos. to Heaven's dictates true,
Thy Incantations worth with conscious eyes shall see,
And highincantations shall be.
Addison.

Inbreathed, adj. [in and breath.] Inpired; inspired by inspiration.

Blest pair of syrens, pledges of Heaven's love,
Sphere-born harmonious singers, Voice of Love,
Wing your divine sounds, and mixt power employ.

Dread things with inbred't spleen, able to pierce.

 Milton.

Inbred, adj. [in and bred.] Produced within; hatched or generated within.

My inbred enemy
Forth issu'd.
Milton's Paradise Lost.

A man thinks better of his children than they deserve; but there is an impulse of tenderness, and there must be some effect of the fudging of that inbred affection at work.

L'Estrange.

- But he unmoved confumns their idle threat;
And inbred worth doth boating vapour rife.

Dryden.

To Inca'Cate, v. a. [in and cage.]

To coop up; to shut up; to confine in a cage, or any narrow space.

And yet incaged in so small a vesse.
The walls of which he cannot.' Storck.

It made my incimation a pleasure;
Ay, such a pleasure as incaged birds

Conceive.

Shakspeare. Henry VI.

Incidence. n.s. [in, incanation, Latin.]

Incapacity, n.s. [inaeapt, French, in and capacity.]

Incapacity; want of containing space.

To Incapticate, v. a. [in and capacity.]

Narrow; want of containing space.

Souls that are made little and incapacity cannot enhance their thoughts to take in any great compass of things or times.

Burrr.

Incapacityness, n.s. [from incapacity.]

Narrowness; want of containing space.

To Incapticate, v. a. [in and capacity.]

Narrow; want of containing space.

Souls that are made little and incapacity cannot enhance their thoughts to take in any great compass of things or times.

Burrr.

Incapacityness, n.s. [from incapacity.]

Narrowness; want of containing space.
INC

The infatuation of the soul is its insensibility to be moved with any thing common.

INCERATE, v. a. [in andcife, Latin.] To incense. To impress: to confine. It is used in the Scots law to denote imprisoning or confining in a g alop: otherwise it is fall dom. Confuption may be propagated by bodies, that eaclly incerase the infected air; as woolen cloths. Inrnsy.

INCARCERATION, n. f. [from incarcerate. Imprisonment; confinement.

To INCARN. v. a. [Incarnado, Latin.] To cover with flesh.

The flesh will soon axle in that part of the bone, and the addition of what is once incar and I encase its. Wismar.

To INCARN. v. a. (incarnado, Latin.) To breed flesh.

The fough came off, and the uleper happily incared.

To INCARNADE, v. a. [Lincaerado, Fr. incaradon; pale red, Italian.] To dye red. This word I find only once.

Will all great Neptune's ocean with this blood Clean from my hand? No, this my hand will rather

The multiitudina fact in the earth. Shakespeare's Macbeth.

To INCARNATE, v. a. [incarnato, Fr. incarnation; incarnam, Lat.] To clothe with flesh: to embody with flesh.

I, who erst contended

With the highest, am now confounded

Into a heap, and mix with bodily filth,

This effence to incarnate and imbute. Milton.

INCARNATE. participial adj. [incarnate, French, from the verb.

1. Clothed with flesh; embodied with flesh.

Unincarnedly the nature of God infide, in the par of the person, is incarnate, and hath taken to it telf-flesh. Hooker.

A most ule pressure of redemption and salvation, by the fafity and death and obfolence of the incarnation of God, Jesus Christ; God bleffed for ever. Sanderson.

Here shall thou fit incarnate, here shall reign

Both God and man.

2. It may be doubted whether Swift un derstood this word.

But he posits,

He incarnated a thousand imps. Swift.

In Scotland incarnate is applied to any thing tinged of a deep red colour, from its reformation to a flesh colour.

INCARNATION, n. f. [incarnation, French, from incarnate.]

1. The act of affuming body.

We must beware we exclude not the nature of God from incarnation, and so make the son of God incarnate not to be very God. Hooker.

Upon the Annunciacion, or our Lady-day, mediate on the incarnation of our beloved Saviour. "Taylor's Guide toitation."

2. The state of breeding flesh.

The pollution under the ciercic proceeded from the too lax incarnation of the wound. Wismar.

INCARNATIVE, n. f. [incarnato, French, from incarnar.] A medicine that generates flesh.

I detested the abscess, and incarne the common incarnate. Wismar's Surgery.

To INCREASE, v. a. [in and cife, English.] To cover: to inclofe: to intro.

Richly fold the folding doors interro.

The pillars flow. Pope's Odyssey.

INCAUTIOUS, adj. [in and cautious.] Un-wardy; negligent; heedless.

His rhetorical expressions may easily explicate any incarnation, or carnal constitution, or carnal body, and all against.

INCAUTIOUSLY, adv. [from incustous.] Un-wardy; heedlessly; negligently.

A proverbial name for a tribe.

They'll give him death by incens. Shak. Coriolanus.

As in laying, so in length is man.

From the top to the inch, was a fan.

And set the limb that was the adroin.

must be of such a condition as inlent.

The comings were growing by degrees into property, and the patient. (inlent by its.

Sult.

3. A nice point of time.

Baldine, I think, we watch you at an inch.

Shakespeare.

To inlent. v. a. [from the noun.]

1. To drive by inches.

Vallant they fay, but very popular.

He gets too far into the fodlets graces, and inches out our matter.

Airywork.

2. To deal out by inches; to give sparingly.

To inlent. v. a. To advance or retire a little at a time.

Inched. adj. [with a word of number before it.]

Containing inches in length or breadth.

Poor Tom, proud of heart to ride on a bay trotting back.

Richard III.

Incident. n. f. Some of the incident of a deer.

Inciment. n. f. [inlent and meal.]

A piece an inch long.

All the infectious that the sun takes up.

From long, fons, Bantam, Professor Fair, and make him.

By inciment a dislike! Shakespeare's Tempest.

To incinere. v. a. [incinere, Lat.]

To begin, to commence.

It is neither a substance perfect, nor a substance incident or in the way of peculiar. Ralph Philp.

Incinitation. n. f. [inciniter, Lat.]

Incision, beginning.

It differenf of four kinds of causes: forces, frauds, crimes various of Italecte, and the inci.

It is or middle ad into towards crimes capital, not actually perpetrated.

The letting out fome of thofe arts in fale parties would be looking upon as the first incineration of them, which yet would be but the reft of the frying.

Hale's Origin of Mankind.

Incinitative. adj. [incinire, French; inincinitiitntis, Lat.]

Inceptive; noting incinering or beginning.

To incinerate. v. a. [from incinere, to cut, lat.]

Incinerate. n. f. [incinere, to cut, Lat.]

Incineration. n. f. incineration, French.

Incineration, which on body strikes upon another, and the angle made by that fine, and the plane struck upon, is called the angle of incineration. In the occurrences of two moving bodies, their incineration is faid to be perpendicular or oblique, as their directions or lines of motion make a right fine or an oblique angle at the point of contact.

Quinsy.

In mirrors there is the angle of incineration, from the object of the glass, and from the glass to the eye.

He enjoys his happy state when he communi-icates it, and receives a more vigorous joy from his being than from the direct incineration of his happiness.

Norton.

In equal incineration there is a considerable inequality of refractions, whether it be that some of the incident rays are reflected more and others left constantly, or one and the fame ray by incineration direction.

The permanent whitened figures, that is like incinerations of the rays there is no such refraction of the emergent rays.

Newton.

[Incident, Lat.] Incident; hap; catualty.

What incinerary thou dost guess of harm declare,

Is creeping towards me. Shakespeare's Winter's Tale.

INCIDENT. adj. [incident, Fr. incident, Lat.]

1. Casual; fortuitous; occasional; happening incidentally; issuing in the main design; happening before expectation.

As the ordinary course of common affairs is disposed of by general laws, so whenever men's races incident needs and utilities should be with special equity considered.

I would note in children not only their articulate anwers, but likewise families and towns upon incident occasions.

Wren.

In a complex proposition the predicate or subject is sometimes made complex by the pronouns who,

which, whole, whom, &c which make another subject, as men who fay, it is not proper, hurled: Julius, whose furname was Caesar, overcame Pompey: bodies, which are transparent, have many pores. Here the whole proposition is called the primary or chief, and the additional proposition is called an incident proposition.

Watts.

2. Happening; apt to happen.

Contagion is such a finners of friendship as overlooks all the other kindnesses, that through paffion, incident to human nature, a man may be guilty.

South.

INCIDENT. n. f. [incident, Fr. from incinerate, Lat.]

Having the quality of cutting or dividing.

The colour of some copulations will cohere by being boiled or indited in the coo. and are cut down by the effusion of very piercing and incinerous liquors.

Boyle.

Incisor. n. f. [incisus, Lat.] Cutter.

Tooth in the forefront of the mouth.

Incisor. adj. [incisus, Fr.] Having the quality of cutting.

Incisure. n. f. [inciariu, Lat.] A cut; an aperture.

In some creatures it is wide, in some narrow, in some with a deep incisure up into the head, for the better catching and holding of prey, and combing of hard food.

Derham.

Incision. n. f. [incisus, Lat.]

Incipient; incentive; motive; impulse; the act of inciting; the power of inciting.

Dr. Ridley designes magnetic attraction to be a natural incitation and disposition conforming unto conquity, an union of one magnetic body unto another.

Brown's Vulgar Errors.

The multitude of objects do proportionately multiply both the possibilities and incitation.

Graemen of the Tzong.

The mind gives not only licence, but incitation to the other paffious to act with the utmost immodesty.

Boyle.

To incite. v. a. [incitare, Lat. incline, Fr.]

To stir up; to push forward in a purpose; to animate; to spur; to urge on.

How many now in health

Shall drop their blood in approbation

Of what your reverence shall incite us to,

Shak.

To be ambiguous to the ear, which

Love, dear love, and our aged father's rights.

Shak.

Antiquity, when he feared Pruditas to join in war, fore him before the greatness of the Roman, comparing it to a fire, that took and spread from kingdom to kingdom.

Bacon.

Nature and common reason, in all difficulties, when incitement or courage are insufficient, rather incite us to fly for sufficiency to a single person or a multitude.

Shakes.
INCITEMENT, n. [from incite.] Motive; incentive; impulse; inciting-cause.

A murmur it were, if a man of great capacity, having such inducements to make himself defirous of all furtherance unto his cause, could esp in the whole scripture of God nothing which might breed at the least probability of the likelihood, that divine authority was the same way efficacious. Harriot seems most hit by some good providence, to be the occasion and incitement of great matters of Holland. Il. 8. 14. 9.

Incl. Inclined, Fr. indis. Unpolished.

To incline, v. a. [in and eloc.] To flint up in a cloister.

To incline, v. a. [in and cloud.] To darken; to obscure.

In their thick breasts.

Rank of gross deity, shall be included, and forced to drink their vapours.

Shakespeare.

To incline, v. a. [inclined, Lat.]

1. To incline; to flint in: as, the shell inclines a pearl.

2. To compare; to comprehend.

This desire being recommended to her Majesty, it liked her to incline the same within one entire leaf.

Swift.

The marvellous face inclines whatever is supernatural, and especially the machines of the gods.

Pope.

Instead of inquiring whether he be a man of virtue, the question is only whether he be a Whig or a Tory; under which terms all good and ill qualities are included.

Swift.

To incline, v. a. [inclined, Fr.]

1. Inclining; encircling.

O, would that the incline verge Of golden metals, that must round my brow. Wayne.

Unfod, lost field, from which the brain:

Swift.

2. Comprehended in the firmament of knowledge:

as, from Wednesday to Saturday incluse; that is, both Wednesday and Saturday taken into the number.

Swift.

I'll search where ev'ry virtue dwells,

Franklin.

Encircling, and incluse; to end.

Swift.

Inclusively, adv. [from inclusius] The thing mentioned reckoned within the account. See inclusive.

Thus much shall serve for the several periods or growth of the common law, until the time of Edward, inclusive.

Hale.

All articulation is made within the mount from the throat to the lips inclusively; and is differentiated partly by the organs used in it, and partly by the manner and degree of articulation.

Heller.

Incoagulable, adj. [in and coagulabil.)

Incapable of coagulation.

Incoherence, n. [in and coenesis.] The quality of not existing together: non-allocation of existence. An unnatural word.

Another more incertive part of ignorance, which fear no more ought to restrain from a certain knowledge of the coextensive or incoercibility of different ideas in the same subject, is, that there is no discoverable connexion between any secondary quality and those primary qualities which are considered.

Leibnitz.

Incoeger, adv. [corrupted by mutation from incoeger, Latin.] Unknown; in private.

But if you're rough, and ufe him like a dog.

Depend upon it, he'll remain incog. Addison.

IncoIGGERY, n. [incipiugintia, Latin.] Want of thought.

One man's facility is laws to succeeders, who afterwards misname all unobstructed to their incoegerity, presumption.

Boyle.

Next to the stupid and merely vegetable state of incoercibility, we may rank partial and occasional consideration.

Dryden.

Incohitivite, adj. [in and cogitativa.] Wanting the power of thought.

Want of thought,

Purify material beings, as clippings of our heads, and sensible, thinking, perceiving beings, such as thought to find ourselves, we call intuitive and incoegerative beings.

Incongruity, adv. [inconguity, Latin.] In a state of concealment.

Twas long ago.

Since gods came down incongruity.

Pilgrim.

Incongruity, n. [in and coherence.]

1. Want of cohesion; looseness of material parts.
Our disputations about vacuum of space, incommeasurable quantities, in the infinite divisibility ness, and eternal duration, will lead us to the weakness of our nature.

Incommensurable. adj. [in, ren, and menfura, Lat.]. Not admitting one common measure.

The diagonal line and side of a quadrat, which, unto the apprehension, are incommensurate, are commensurable to the infmite comprehenion of the divine power, and his infinite knowledge.

At all other measures of time are reducible to three; so we labour to reduce these three, withly divided of themselves incommensurate to the common measure.

If the year comprehend days, it is but as any greater space of time may be reduced to a side of the lea.

Heldr on Time.

To INCOMMODATE. n. v. [incommode,
To INCOMMODE. [Latin; incommeder, Fr.]. To be inconvenient to;
to hinder or embarrass without very great inhain.

A grant, planted upon the horn of a bull, bridg the bull's pond; but than incommoda yays be, I'll remove.

L'Estrange. They sometimes mock and 5rory the inhabitants, yet the agt, whereby both the one and the other is effected, is of that indispensable neceflity to the earth and to mankind, that they their own.
IN C

May not the outward expressions of love in many good Christians be greater to some other object than to God? Or is this incompatible with the lucidity of the soul of God?

We know these colours which have a friendship with each other, and those which are compatible, by mixing together those colours of which we would make them together.

Dryden.

Sentences have proved to be compatible with mere bodies, even those of the most complex and elaborately.

Bent.

2. It is sometimes with us.

The repugnancy of incompatibility is equally compatible to continued or successive motion, and depends upon the impossibility of things successive with infinitude.

Hammond.

INCOMPATIBILITY. adv. [for incompatibility, from incompatible.] Inconsistently.

INCOMPATIBILITY. n. [incompatibility, Fr. from incompeteant.] Inability; want of adequate ability or qualification.

Our not being able to discern the motion of a fly, when on a slow step, or that of the index upon a clock, ought to make us sensible of the incompatibility of our eyes to discern some motions of natural bodies incompatible slower than these.

Locke.

INCOMPATIBILITY. n. [in compatible.] Not possible; not adequate; not proportionate. In the civil law it denotes some defect of right to do any thing.

Richard III. It was not the reason of his action, to dissemble his virtues, upon false and incompatible pretences, the one of timidity, the other of impertinence.

Bacon.

Every spark does not blind, a man, nor does every instance make one unable to discern, or incompatible to reproduce, the greater fault of others.

Government of the Tongue.

I thank you for the commission you have given me; but it disturbs my soul to think of the opinion of the world, in spite of any pretence which I can enter against the present age, as incompatible or corrupt judges.

Dryden.

Laymen, with equal advantages of part, are not the most incompatible judges of farcical things.

Dryden.

INCOMPATIBILITY. adv. [from incompatibility.] Unsuitably; unduly.

INCOMPLETE. adj. [in and complete.] Not perfect; not finished.

It pleases him in mercy to account himself imperfect and without us. Locke.

In this sense, we shall apt to impose upon ourselves, and wrangle with others, especially where they have particular and familiar names.

Locke.

INCOMPLETENESS. n. [from incomplete.] Imperfection; unfinished state.

There is a decided difference between a healthy lover’s happiness, in his fruition, proceeds not from what they call happiness, but of an intense habit. Stiles.

INCOMPATIBILITY. n. (in and compliance.)

1. Unadaptable; impracticable; contradiictory temper.

Self-will undoes all compliance and incompatibility of human beings. There is a great and insuperable obstacle. Ticknor.

2. Refusal of compliance. Consider the vast disproportion between the world’s inconvenience - that can attend our compatibility with men, and the eternal difficulties of an afflicted people. Rogers.

INCOMPLETELY. adv. [incomplete.] Disturbed; discomposed; disordered. Not much used.

Hicks.

INCOMPATIBILITY. n. [from incompatible.] Quality of being not possible but Vol. I.

by the negation or destruction of something; inconsistency with something.

The manifold incompatibilities and unities of matter cannot have the same freeness in any modification.

Marr.

Though the repugnancy of infinitude be equally incompatible to continued or successive motion, and depends upon the impossibility of things successive with infinitude, yet that incompatibility is more conspicuous in different quantity, that arritheth from individuals already actual, distinguished. Hume's Origin of Mind.

INCOMPATIBLE. adj. [in, and compatible.] Not possible together; not possible but by the negation of something else.

INCOMPATIBILITY. n. [incompatible, Fr. from incompatible.] Unconceivableness; superiority to human understanding.

INCOMPATIBLE. adj. [incompatible, Fr. in and incompatible.] 1. Not to be conceived; not to be fully understood.

2. Not to be contained. Not now used.

Hence it is that we cannot but be satisfied that the God, of whom and from whom all things are incomprehensible infinite.

Locke.

Incomprehensible. adj. [incompatible, Fr. in, and comprehensible.] Not capable of being comprehended into finite space.

Harden is the reason why water is incomprehensible, when the air is in its state of congestion.

Chryseus.

INCOMPATIBILITY. n. [from incompatible.] Incomprehensible; incapacity to be squeezed into less room.

INCONCERNING. adj. [in and concern.] Not concuring.

They derive effects not only from incompatible causes, but without all efficiency. Brown.

INCONCEALABLE. adj. [in and concealed.] Not to be hid; not to be kept secret.

The incoherence of consequences will hourly prompt us our corporeality, and boldly tell us we are sons of earth. Brown.

INCONCEIVABLE. adj. [inconceivable, Fr. in, and conceivable.] Incomprehensible; not to be conceived by the mind.

INCOMPATIBILITY. n. [from incompatible.] Quality of being not possible but Vol. I.
INC

Incongruence. n. f. [in and congruence.]

Unsuitableness; want of adaptation.

Humility is but relative, and depends upon the congruity or incongruity of the component particles of the liquor to the pores of the bodies at torture.

INC CONGRUENCE. n. f. [incongruity, Fr. from incongruity;]

1. Unsuitableness of one thing to another.

2. Inconsistency; inconsequence; absurdity; impertinency.

To avoid absurdities and incongruities, is the same law established for both arts; the painter is not to paint a cloud at the bottom of a picture, nor the poet to place what is proper to the end of the beginning of a poem.

3. Disagreement of parts; want of symmetry.

She, whom after what form you see, I perceive to be a woman, is the dead; the dead is the dead.

INC CONGRUOUS. adj. [incongruous, Fr. incongru, and congruous,]

1. Unsuitable; not fitting.

When heathens consider the worship of God as incongruous to a divine nature and a divinity; Stillingfleet.

2. Inconsistent; absurd.

INC CONGRUOUSLY. adv. [from incongruous,]

Improperly; untruly.

INC CONGRUOUSLY. adv. [in and congruous,]

Without any connexion or dependence.

INC CONSEQUENT. adj. [in and consequent, Lat.]

Without just conclusion; without regular inference.

The ground he advances is unfounded, and his ilation from thence deduced inconsequent.

Sed denique in falsa specinles existimati, nec inconsequentia divinationis suae contentione solvuntur, nempe quae in ilia fide et audita nempe omni posse, vel tamen tranquillae, sed abstruse nempe non sequitur, quam ab illa perspicuitate negauisse, Bovvus.

INC CONSEQUENT. adj. [in and consequent, Lat.]

Unworthy of notice; unimportant; mean; of little value.

I am an inconsequent fellow, and know nothing.

Sed ne nec tantum in falsa specinles existimati, nec inconsequentia divinationis suae contentione solvuntur, nempe quae in ilia fide et audita nempe omni posse, vel tamen tranquillae, sed abstruse nempe non sequitur, quam ab illa perspicuitate negauisse, Bovvus.

INC CONSEQUENTLY. adv. [in and consequence,]

Without just conclusion; without regular inference.

The ground he advances is unfounded, and his ilation from thence deduced inconsequent.

Sed denique in falsa specinles existimati, nec inconsequentia divinationis suae contentione solvuntur, nempe quae in ilia fide et audita nempe omni posse, vel tamen tranquillae, sed abstruse nempe non sequitur, quam ab illa perspicuitate negauisse, Bovvus.

INC CONSEQUENTLY. adv. [in and consequence,]

Unworthy of notice; unimportant; mean; of little value.

I am an inconsequent fellow, and know nothing.

Sed ne nec tantum in falsa specinles existimati, nec inconsequentia divinationis suae contentione solvuntur, nempe quae in ilia fide et audita nempe omni posse, vel tamen tranquillae, sed abstruse nempe non sequitur, quam ab illa perspicuitate negauisse, Bovvus.

INC CONVENENT. adj. [in and consequent, Lat.]

Without just conclusion; without regular inference.

The ground he advances is unfounded, and his ilation from thence deduced inconsequent.

Sed denique in falsa specinles existimati, nec inconsequentia divinationis suae contentione solvuntur, nempe quae in ilia fide et audita nempe omni posse, vel tamen tranquillae, sed abstruse nempe non sequitur, quam ab illa perspicuitate negauisse, Bovvus.

INC CONVENENTLY. adv. [in and consequent,]

Unworthy of notice; unimportant; mean; of little value.

I am an inconsequent fellow, and know nothing.
INC.

INCONSUMABLE. adj. [in and consummation]. Not to be waited.

By art were weaved apertures, flaps, and coats, incombustible by fire; and whereas they burnt the body, they incinerated not the soul.

INCONSUMABLE. [in and consummation, Lat.]. Not to be spent; not to be brought to an end; not to be disturbed by fire. This seems a more elegant word than incombustible.

Before I give any answer to this objection of prejudices, I would not see the effect of it in any prejudice.

To be, or to be not, that is the question.

digite in bodies.

INCONSUMABLE. adj. [incustable, Fr. in and consummation]. Not to be disputed; not admitting debate; incontestable.

But if we mix with us an evident and incontestable fact, he believes no body can avoid the censure of it, who will carefully attend to us.

INCONSUMABLE. adv. [inconsumatbly]. Indispensably; incontestably.

INCONSUMABLE. adj. in and consummation. Not touching each other; not joined together.

They seem part of small packets, consisting of very little insignificant seeds.

INCONSUMABLE. n. s. [inconsumatbly, Lat.]

INCONSUMABLE. adj. in and consummation. Inability to refrain the appetite; unchastity.

The converse of her inconsummation is Thurs; the first bought the name of whom thus began.

But beautiful, like the fair Highland tete,

Inhabitants, with unanchored eye,

Of dragon-watch with unanchored eye;

From the path of bald inconsummability.

This is my desire,

I pleaded mercy, I shunned incrimination,

And, understanding them, indulged my fancy.

The words are better Dianum agree better with this, who first are of the name of chastity, than with either of their judges, who were both noted for inconsummacy.

Dionysus.

Dionysus.

INCONSUMMABLE. adj. [inconsummable, Lat. in and consummation].

1. Unchaste; indulging unlawful pleasures.

2. Unchaste; indulging unlawful pleasures.

Others have made a part of the inconsummable marriage, which they will incombustible, or life be inconsummable before marriage.

2. Unchaste; indulging unlawful pleasures.

This is a meaning now obsolete.

They ran towards the far rebound'd moors,

Upon the place they stood incombustible.

Come, mount with me for what I do lament.

and person fail in incombustible. Shek. 2. H. 9.

He flie he will return incombustible and contumacious.

and person fail in incombustible. Shek. 2. H. 9.

INCONSUMMATIBLY. adv. from incombustible.

1. Unchastely; without restraint of the appetites.

2. Immediately; at once. An obsolete sense.

Speroni.

The cause of this war is no other than that we will inconsummately burn something to our advantage.

We might, inconsummably, as he had a more and easy way through several navies.

INCONSUMMATE. adj. in and consummable. Indispensable; not to be distinguished.

INCONSUMMATE. adv. [inconsummately]. To a degree beyond controversy to dispute.

The inconsummately is inconsummately the primitive and sufficient text to rely upon; and to preserve the fame uncorrupted, there had been used the highest caution humanity could invent.

INCONSUMMATE. n. s. [inconsummable, Lat.]

1. Unchaste; indulging unlawful pleasures.

2. Unchaste; indulging unlawful pleasures.

INCONSUMMATE. adv. [inconsummately]. To a degree beyond controversy to dispute.

The inconsummately is inconsummately the primitive

And with the incorruptible air doth discontinue.

Shakespeare

Learned men have not resolved us whether light be corporeal or incorporeal: corporeal they say I cannot; because then it would neither make the air, nor solid diaphanous bodies, and yet every day we see the air lightfined: incorporeal it cannot be, because sometimes it addeth the light with offence.

Ralph.

Incorporeal. n. s. [inincorporeal, Fr. from incorporeal] Immaterialness; distinctness from body.

INCORPORALLY. adv. [from incorporeal]. Without matter; immaterially.

To INCORPORATE. n. s. [incorporator, Fr.]

1. To mingle different ingredients so as they shall make one mass.

A fifteenth part of silver, incorporate with gold, will not be recovered, except you put a greater quantity of it into the fire, and thus it will add.

Who the foundling chiefs in bladders tie,

To mollify the thumbed clods with rain,

And facetious dapple incorporate again.

Shakespeare

2. To conjoin inseparably, as one body.

Villainous thoughts, Rodrigo, when thy multitude is marred the way, hard at hand comes the master and main exercise, the incorporeal conclusion.

By your leaves, you shall not fail alone,

Till holy church incorporate two into one.

Shakespeare.

Upon my knees, I charm you, by that great yow

Which did incorporate and make us one.

Shakespeare.

Death and full;

Are found eternal, and incorporate both.

Milton

3. To form into a corporation, or body politic.

In this fens fhey fay in Scotland, the incorporate trades in any community.

The apostle affirmeth plainly of all men christians, that they are Jews of all the tribes, bond or free, are not all incorporated into one company, they are both but one body.

Miltion.

The fame is incorporate with a majority, and incorporate his Carolus.

4. To unite; to associate.

It is Cefa, one incorporate.

To our attempts.

Shakespeare, Julius Caesar.

Your most greefe be well deliberate,

Not rash, like his accusers, and thus answer'd,

True it is, my incorporate friends, quoth he,

That I receive the general food at first,

With you do I live incorporeal, Ciceroniens.

The Romans did not subdue a country to put the inhabitants to fire and sword, but to incorporate them in their own community.

Addison's Philo.

5. To work into another material.

All this learning is ignoble and mechanical among them, and the Conustinian only essential and incorporeal in their government.

To incorporate us.

6. To embody, or give a material form.

Courts, that seemed incorporated in his heart, would not be perjured by danger to offer any offence.

Shelley.

The ideators, who worshipp'd their images as gods, suppos'd some spirit to be incorporated therewith, and do to make together with it a person fit to be worshipp'd.

Shelley.

To incorporate us.

1. To unite with something else. It is commonly followed by with.

Painters colours and alhes do better incorporate with oil.

If not universally true, that acid salts and oil will not incorporate or mingle.

Shelley.

2. Sometimes it has into.

It finds the mind unprepossessed with any former notions, and to easily gain the alliance, grows up with it, and incorporates it into itself.

Milton.

6 M 2

INCORPORATION.
INCORPORATE, adj. [in and corporate.] Immaterial; unbodied. This is now diffused to avoid confusion, incorporating being rather used of things mingled. Moles forebore to speak of angels, and things incorrigible.

Raleigh.

INCORPORATION, n.s. [incorporation, Fr. from incorporate.]

1. Union of divers ingredients in one mass. Make proof of the incorporation of iron with flint; for if it can be incorporated without very great difficulty, the cheapest of the flint dust does make the compound thuff profitable. Bacon.

Thus incorporated spirits to smallest forms
Reduce'd their shapes immense.
Milton.

2. Position of a body politic.

3. Adoption; union; association; with caste.

In him we actually see, by our actual incorporation into that society which has him for their head.

Hooke.

INCORPORABLE, adj. [incorporable, Lat. incorporated, Fr. in and corporate.] Immaterial; unbodied.

It is a virtue which may be called incorporated and immaterial, whereof there be in nature but few.

Bacon.

Thus incorporated spirits to smallest forms
Reduce'd their shapes immense.
Milton.

INCORRECTLY, adv. [from incorrigible.] Inaccurately; not exactly.

INCORRECTNESS, n.s. [in and correctness.] Inaccuracy; want of exactness.

INCORRIGIBLE, adj. [incorrigible, Fr. in and corrigeable.]

1. Bad beyond correction; deprived beyond amendment by any means; erroneous beyond hope of instruction: of perfons.

Proved by their incorrigible folly.

Bacon.

I left declaring in pedantic foolishness.

Dryden.

The most violent party-men are such as are died over to false sense of religion or morality; and when such are laid aside, as shall be found incorrigible, it will be difficult to reconcile the rest.

Steele.

What we call perfection becomes a full atrocity of our incorrigibilities.

Dryden.

Never have chiding used, much less blown, till obstinacy and incorrigibilities make it absolutely necessary.

Locke.

INCORRIGIBLY, adv. [from incorrigible.] Hopelessly depravity; badness beyond all means of amendment.

Some men appear incorrigibly mad.

They continue incorrigible.

Rem.

INCORRUPT. adj. [in and corrupta.]

INCORRUPTED. Lat; incornmatus, French.

1. Free from faults or deprivation.

Sim, that hurt.

Dispense all things, and, of incorruptible.

Milton’s Paradisa Lost.

2. Pure of manner; honest; good. It is particularly applied to a man above the power of bribes.

INCORRUPTIBILITY, n.s. [incorruptibility, Fr. from incorruption.] Insubceptibility of corruption; incapacity of decay.

In the book of the world's incorruptibility, alhikes the verse of a Greek tragic poet.

Heraclitus.

INCORRUPTibly, adv. [incorruptible, Fr. in and corruptible.] Not capable of corruption; not admitting of decay.

In fact above characterizing our choice.

As leaves a great forest of fruit untouch'd,

Still hanging incorruptible.

Milton’s Par. Lost.

Our bodies shall be changed into incorruptible and immortal substances; our souls be entertained with the most enviable objects, and both continue happy throughout eternit.

Wall.

INCORRUPTION, n.s. [incorruption, Fr. in and corruption.] Incapacity of corruption.

So also is the resurrection of the dead: it is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption. 1 Cor.

INCORRUPTNESS, n.s. [in and corrupt.]

1. Purity of manners; honesty; integrity.

Probity of mind, integrity, and incorruption of manners, is preferable to fine parts and fabulous speculations.

Woodward.

2. Freedom from decay or degeneration.

To increase, n.f. [from incorrigible.]

1. The act of thickening.

2. The state of growing thick.

Nothing doth concomitant but water; for the determination of quickfire is fixation, that of milk coagulation, and that of all incrustation.

Brown.

INCRACTIVE, n.s. [from incorruptible.] Having the quality of thickening.

The two latter indicate reluctitions to thicken, and incorruptibility to thicken the blood.

Dryden.

To INCREASE, n.f. [in and creas, Lat.]

1. To grow more in number, or greater in bulk; to advance in quantity or value, or in any quality capable of being more or less.

Hear and obserbe to do it, that it may be well with the, that ye may increasable mighty.

Dent. vol. viii.

Profane and vain babbling will incrase unto godlessness.

2 Tim. ii. 16.

So that I therefore do not rest in fancy and judgment, the effect of observation, still increaseth.

Dryden.

I, Henry, in know, involve his Emman’s name.

Upon the breast, and make the tender mark.

Grew with the years, and widened with the back.

Venus had heard the virgin’s soft address,

That as the wound the passion might increase. Prior,

INCREDULOUSNESS, n.f. [from incorrigible.] Hopelessly depravity; badness beyond all means of amendment.

What we call penitence becomes a full atrocity of our incorrigibilities.

Dryden.

Delay of Philip.

If you have chiding used, much less blown, till obstinacy and incorrigibilities make it absolutely necessary.

Locke.

INCREDIBLE, adj. [incredible, Fr.] The quality of supposing belief.

For objects of incredibility, none are more removed from the appearance of truth as that of Cornell’s Andromeda.

Dryden.

INCREDIBLE, adj. [incredible, Lat.] Supposing belief; not to be credited.

The ship Argo, that there might want no incredible thing in this fable, spake to them.

Raleigh.

Prefenting things impossible to view,

They wunder through incredible to true. Graville.

INCREDIBILITIES, n.f. [from incredible.]

1. Quality of being not credible.

2. Quality of being not believing; hardnaces of belief.

He was more large in the description of Paradise, to take away all people from the incredibility of future ages.

Raleigh.

INCREDULOUS, adj. [incrédule, French; incrédul, Lat.] Hard of belief; refusing credit.

I am not altogether incredulous but there may be such candles as are made of Samaritan’s wool, being a kind of mineral which whitens in the burning, and confutes the.
INCREDULOUSNESS, n. f. [from incredulitas.] Handnife of belief; incredulity. Insincere, adj. [in and crede, L.]
Not confomable by fire.
1. From the skin of the fishamander, these incomparable pieces are compofed. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
INCREDULITY, n. f. [from incredula.]
1. Act of growing greater.
2. Incrude matter.
This Rémum is expanded at top, ferving as the seed which is the birth matter for the formation and increasing number of animal and vegetable bodies.

3. Produce.
The orchard loves to wave
With Winter winds; the loofed roots now droop
Large increments, earneft of happy years. Ptitipps.
To INCREASE, a. v. [increre, Latin.]
To chide; to reprehend.
INCRESATION, n. f. [incresation.]
Reparation; chiding. The amends, fraternal or paternal, of his fellow Christians, or of the governors of the church; then more publich reprehensions and incresations. Thus Kngd. and Pikes.
To INCREASE, a. v. [increase, Fr.]
To cover with an additional cost adhering to the internal matter. The finer part of the wood will be turned into air, and the gratter flack baked and incrusted upon the pieces of the velv. Some rivers bring forth stones, and other mineral matter, fo as to cover and incrue the ftones.
Save but our army; and let love incrue
Words, pikes, and guns, with ever-flogging Poes.
Any of the fun-like bodies in the centers of the several fertors, are fo incrusted and weazed at as to be carried about in the vortex of the true fun.

The fluid was purchased by Woodward, who incrusted it with a new phth. Abbot and Pikes.

INCRIPTION, n. f. [incriture, L.]
from incrupte, Latin] An adherent covering; something superincrued.
Having such a prodigious flack of marble, their charge of keeping open from incruetions as cannot be found in any other part. Adoin on Italy.

To INCUBATE, v. a. [intero, L.]
To fit upon eggs.
INCUBATION, n. f. [incubation, French: incubatio, Lat.] The act of fitting upon eggs to hatch them. Whether that vitality was by incubation, or how else, is only known to God. Raleigh.
Birds have eggs enough at first conceived to them to hafe them, allowing such a proportion for every year as will serve for o. or two meals. Roy.
When the whole tribe of birds by incubation produce the multitude of eggs, it is wonderful consideration, that so few families should do it in a more novel way. Darby.
As the white of an egg by incubation, to can the forum by the action of the fumes be adforned. Abkounds.

INCUBUS, n. f. [Latin; incubus, French.]
The nightmare. The incubus is an infusion of the membranes of the thums, which bends the motion of the d perfume, lungs, and palate, with a state of a weight opprefing the breath.
Flower.
To INCUBATE, a. v. [incubus, Latin; incubare, Fr.""] To imprufe by frequent admonitions; to enforce by conftant repetition.
Whofe truth may deferve fometimes to be incrusted, because we are too apt to forget it.

Quarter.
"Homer continually incurs the mortality and piety to the Gods. - Brown's Notes to Pope's Odyssey.
InCULATIVE, n. f. [from inculto.
The act of improving by frequent admonition; admonitory repetition.
INCULATIVE, adj. [in and culto, French; inculto, Latin.]
Un cultivato; until it.
Her felf's hinge.
Incult, robust and tall, by Nature's hand.
Planted of old.

The weather of Autumn.
INCULABLE, adj. [in and culto, Latin.]
Unblamable; not reprehensible. Ignorance, so far as it may be related into natural inability, is as men, of Infable, and consequently not the object of fear, but pity.
South.
INCULABLE, adv. [in and culto, Latin.]
Unblamable; without blame.
As to errors or infirmities, the frailty of man's condition has invisibly, and therefore insidiously, expofed him.
South.

INCUBMENT, n. f. [from incubant.]
1. The act of lying upon another.
2. The state of keeping a benefice.
These fines are only to be paid to the pope, during his incubation, or during his time of publick incubation.
Swift.

INCUMBENT, adj. [incumbent, Latin.]
Reposing; lying.
The infant with expanded wings he fres his flight
Alto, incubant on the diry air.
That frequent, upon the education of the infant's Paradise Left.
The ascending parcels of air, having now little more than the weight of the incubant water to formate, were able both to expand themselves as to fill up that part of the pipe which it pervaded, and by precluding every way against the sides of it, to lift upwards with them what废物 they found above them.
Boyel.
With wings expanded wide ourselves we'll rear,
And by incubant on the diry air. Dryden.
Here the rebel gaiety lose,
And when to move the incubant load they try,
Ascending vapours on the day prevail.
Addison.

Man is the devil's prey
Of pedileuce, and o'er his guilty dome.
She draws a hideous incubant cloud of death.
Thomson.

2. Imposed as a duty.
All men, only zealous, will perform those good works that are incumbent on all Christians. Spratt's Sermons.

There is a double duty incumbent upon us in the exercise of our powers. Thucydides.
Thus think, and act, we shall then shew ourselves duly mindful not only of the advantages we receive from thence, but of the obligations which are incumbent upon us.
Althory.

INCRIMINATION, n. f. [from incrimina, Latin.]
The whole places the whole ecclesiatical duties are, in tidy hands, and the incumbent lies at the mercy of his patron.
Swift.

To INCriminate, v. a. [incriminee, French.]
To embarrafe. See ENCUMBER.

My cafe is call'd, and that long look'd for day
Is still incubant' with some new delay. Dryden.

To INCUR, a. v. [incuro, Latin.]
1. To become liable to a punishment or reprehension.
We have incured divers infeftions from giving way to the faults of other. Heyward.
They, not obeying, incur'd, what could they feel the penalty? Anonymus.
So judge thou well, prefomous thief! guilt the whole, Which thou incure's, by flying, meet thy death.
Swift.

They had a full perseverance that not to do it were to defeat God, and consequently to incur damnation.
South.

INCURABLE, n. f. [from incurable, Latin.]
Crookedness.

INCURABLE, adv. [from incurable.]
Utter incurability of remedy. We'll instantly open a door to the manner of a proper and improper consumption, together with the shadows of the incurableness of the forms, and incurable other.
South.

INCURABLE, adj. [incurable, Fr. in and incurable.] Not admitting remedy; not to be removed by medicine; irremediable; hopeless.

The wound doth, for the present time's fo bad. That present medicine must be miflimed.
Swift.

The treatment Shock not, or for the present time's fo sick.

If idiots and lunatics cannot be found, incurables may be taken into the hospital.
Swift.

INCURABLE, n. f. [from incurable.]
State of not admitting any cure.
INCURABLE, adv. [from incurable.] Without remedy.
We cannot know it is or is not, being incurably ignorant.
Locke.

INCURIOUS, n. f. [in and curious.] Negligent; inattentive.
The Creator did not behove so much skill upon his creatures, to be looked upon with a cursatory eye.
Darby.

Yet, not incurious, was inclin'd
To know the converse of mankind.
Swift.

INCURSION, n. f. [from incurus, Latin.]
1. Attack; mischiefous occurrence.
The motions of the minute parts of bodies are invisible, and incur'd not to the eyes; but yet they are depredated by experience.
Bacon.

The mind of man, even in spirituals, acts with sanguinary dependence; and so he is helped or hindered in its operations according to the different quality of external objects that incur into the fent.
South.

INCURABILITy, n. f. [incurabiliy, Fr. from incurable.] Impossibility of cure; utter incurableness of remedy.

The motions of the minute parts of bodies are invisible, and incur'd not to the eyes; but yet they are depredated by experience.
Bacon.

The mind of man, even in spirituals, acts with sanguinary dependence; and so he is helped or hindered in its operations according to the different quality of external objects that incur into the fent.
South.
CROOKEDNESS; THE STATE OF BENDING INWARD.

1. THE INCURVATURE OF A DOLPHIN MUST BE TAKEN NOT REAL, BUT IN APPEARANCE, WHEN THEY FLY ABOVE WATER, AND SUDDENLY HIDE THEMSELVES AGAINST THE SKY, IN A TOSSING AND JUMPING MANNER, DOWN TO THE BOTTOM, ETC.

INDAGINE, v. n. [inquisitor, Latin.]

TO INVESTIGATE a. (in and doubt.)

TO INVEST, a. [in and doubt.]

INDUCTION, n. f. [from inductive.

SEARCH; INQUIRY.

Examination.

To find the indications of colour to have an eye, generally upon flats.

BYLLE.

Part has been discovered by himself, and some by human induction.

BYLLE.

A teacher, an examiner, an examiner.

The number of the elements of order requires to be searched into by such difficult inductive nature.

BYLLE.

INDIVIDUAL adj. [in and distinct.]

Not varied by terminations.

Pondus is an inelastic word, and when it is joined in numbers it signifies lia. Archimedes.

INDUCEABLE adj. [indefinite, Latin.]

Deceit, unbecoming.

What can be induced against, or for a creature to violate the commands, and trample upon the authority of such a willing excellence to whom he owes his life?

Nobis.

INDUCEMENT, n. f. [Latin.]

Indecency; something unbecoming.

The so-called, the cantying grace, Art indefinitus in the modern world.

Young.

Indefinite, adj. [in and definite, Latin.]

Not liable to fix or define.

Indefinite, adj. [indefinite, French.]

Not to be fix or define, to be vacant, irrevocable.

So indefinite is our state, that, if we do not tell it in relation, we fail, when once named, be beyond the possibility of all further description.

Indefinite, adj. [in and definite, Latin.]

What cannot be defined or maintained.

As they extend the rule of confounding Scripture to all the doctrines of common sense, even so far as the taking up of a straw, so is it altogether else in indefinites.

Sunderland.

Indefinite, adj. [indefinite, Latin, indefinit, Fr.]

Not determined; not limited; not fetled.

Though a position should be wholly rejected, yet that negative is more pregnant of direction than an indefinite, as alleys are more pregnant than duties.

Her advancement was left indefinite; but there was

Indefinite, adj. [indefinite, Latin, indefinit, Fr.]

That it should be as great as ever any person quoted of England had.

Inns.

Fragrants and picture are more narrowly confin
duced by place and time than the epoke poems; the time of this last is left indefinite.

Dryden.

Large beyond the comprehension of man, though not absolutely without limits.

Though it is not infinite, it may be indefinite; though it is not boundless in itself, it may be so to human comprehension.

Speculator.

Indefiniteness, n. f. [from indefinite.

Without any settled or determinate limitation.

We observe that custom, wherein St. Paul abode, and whereas the fathers of the church in their writings make often mention, to these indefinites, because that was done without any other proceeding.

Wiltze.

4. It is used sometimes as a slight allusion or recapitulation in a concise, hardly perceptible or explicable, and though some degree of obscurity power is perceived, might, even where it is properly enough inferred, be omitted without mist.

I said, then, it was contamination, between the jugler and the two servants, tho' indeed I had no reason to think so.

Baron.

There is indeed no great pleasure in visiting the magazines of war, after one has seen two or three.

Addison.

5. It is used to note concession in comparisons.

Against these forces were prepared the number of near one hundred ships, not so great or bulk in decent, but much more than Bacon.

Indefatigable adj. [indefatigable, and indefatigable, Latin.]

Unweaned; not tired; not exhausted by labour.

Whom shall spread his airy flight, Uphaste with indefatigable wings.

Oxford.

Indefatigably, adv. [from indefatigable.

Without weariness.

A man indefatigably active in the service of

INDISPENSABLE, adj. [in and able, Latin.

The church and state, and whose writings have highly defered of both.

Indehilable.

Indefatigable adj. [indefatigable, and indefatigable, Latin.]

Not being subjected to no defect.

Indefectibility, n. f. [from indefectible.

The quality of suffering no decay, of being subject to no defect.

Indefectible adj. [indefectible, French.

Not to be but off; not to be vacated, irrevocable.

So indefectible is our state in those states, that, if we do not tell it in relation, we fail, when once named, be beyond the possibility of all further description.

Indefectible adj. [indefectible, French.

That which cannot be defined or maintained.

As they extend the rule of confounding Scripture to all the doctrines of common sense, even so far as the taking up of a straw, so is it altogether else in indefinites.

Sunderland.

Indefinite, adj. [indefinite, Latin, indefinit, Fr.]

Not determined; not limited; not settled.

Though a position should be wholly rejected, yet that negative is more pregnant of direction than an indefinite, as alleys are more pregnant than duties.

Her advancement was left indefinite; but there was

Indefinite, adj. [indefinite, Latin, indefinit, Fr.]

That it should be as great as ever any person quoted of England had.

Inns.

Fragrants and picture are more narrowly confin
duced by place and time than the epoke poems; the time of this last is left indefinite.

Dryden.

Large beyond the comprehension of man, though not absolutely without limits.

Though it is not infinite, it may be indefinite; though it is not boundless in itself, it may be so to human comprehension.

Speculator.

Indefiniteness, n. f. [from indefinite.

Without any settled or determinate limitation.

We observe that custom, wherein St. Paul abode, and whereas the fathers of the church in their writings make often mention, to these indefinites, because that was done without any other proceeding.

Wiltze.

4. It is used sometimes as a slight allusion or recapitulation in a concise, hardly perceptible or explicable, and though some degree of obscurity power is perceived, might, even where it is properly enough inferred, be omitted without mist.

I said, then, it was contamination, between the jugler and the two servants, tho' indeed I had no reason to think so.

Baron.

There is indeed no great pleasure in visiting the magazines of war, after one has seen two or three.

Addison.

5. It is used to note concession in comparisons.

Against these forces were prepared the number of near one hundred ships, not so great or bulk in decent, but much more than Bacon.

Indefatigable adj. [indefatigable, and indefatigable, Latin.]

Unweaned; not tired; not exhausted by labour.

Whom shall spread his airy flight, Uphaste with indefatigable wings.

Oxford.

Indefatigably, adv. [from indefatigable.

Without weariness.

A man indefatigably active in the service of

INDISPENSABLE, adj. [in and able, Latin.

The church and state, and whose writings have highly defered of both.

Indehilable.
INDICATIVE. adj. [indicativus, Lat.]
1. Showing; informing; pointing out.
2. In grammar. A certain modification of a verb, expressing affirmation or indication.

INDICATI NELY. adv. [from indicativus.]
In such a manner as shows or betokens.

INDICION. n. [indicium, Fr. indice, Lat.]
1. Declaration; proclamation.
2. In chronology. The indication, instituted by Constanine the Great, is properly a cycle of tributes, orderly diphased, for fifteen years, and by accounts of that kind were kept. Afterwards, in memory of the great victory obtained by Constantine over Mezentius, 8 Cal. Oct. 312, by which an entire freedom was given to Christianity, the council of Nice, for the honour of Constantine, ordained that the accounts of years should be no longer kept by the Olympians, which till that time had been done; but that, instead thereof, the indication should be made life of which, by which to reckon and date their year, which hath its epoch. A.D. 313.

INDIFFERENCE. n. f. [indifference, Fr. indifferente, Latin.]
1. Neutral; not determined on either side.
2. Unconcerned; indifferent.
3. Not to have such difference as that the one is for its own fake preferable to the other.

INDIGENOUS. adj. [indigens, Fr. indigene, Latin.]
Native to a country, originally produced or born in a region.
IND

Bringing indignity; disgraceful. This is a word used in a proper and all indignities and base adversities
Make head against my extremity.

Shakes.

Indignant. adj. [indignant, lat.]
Angry; raging; inflamed at once with anger and disdain.
He found out again the spouse's

What rage was in my soul, I shall,
Let chirgs imagine, and let lovers guess!
He flies indignant, and with haughty cries
To angle fight the prince de
t'.

Shakespeare. Julius Caesar.

Indignitious. adv. [from indiginate.]

1. Not in a right line; obliquely.
2. Not in express terms.

Still the superscription the name, which continues his doubts and hopes; and at last the indignity mentions it.

Browne.

Indirect. n. s. [in and directive.

1. Obliquity.
2. Unfairness; dishonesty; fraudulent art.

Indiscernible. adj. [in and discernible.

Not perceptible; not discoverable.

Speculation, which, to my dark
Deprives of reason, is indiscernible.

As colours to my body, wanting fight. Denham.

Indiscreetly. adv. [from indiscreet.

In a manner not to be perceived.

Indiscrtable. adj. [in and discretable.

Not to be separated; incapable of being broken or destroyed by dissipation of parts.

Indiscrptibility. n. s. [from indiscrptible.

Incapability of dissipation.

Indiscrvey. n. s. [in and discrvey.

The state of being hidden. An unusual word.

The ground of this assertion was the magnifying effect of the ancients, arising from the discrvey of its head.

Brown.

Indiscrct. adj. [indiscreet, Fr. in and discreet.

Imprudent; incautious; inscon siderate; injudicious.

Loosely.

Are mortal men to fond and indiscreet,
So evil gold to seek unto their aid ;
And having not complaining, and having it uplifted.

Sproat.

If thou be among the indiscreet observe the time:
but be continually among men of understanding.

Echec.

Indiscrctely. adv. [from indiscreet.

Without prudence; without considera tion;
without judgment.

Job on justice both afterfions sung,
And spoken indiscreetly with his tongue.

Sandy.

Let a great presage unwethe atitle passion nately, but let him manage it indiscreetly, and be shall have enough to flatter him.

Taylor.

Indiscretion. n. s. [indiscreet, Fr. in and discretion.

Imprudence; rashness; inconsideration.

Indiscretion sometimes serves us well,
When our discretion fails.

Shakes. Harriot.

His offences did proceed rather from negligence, rashness, or other indiscretion, than from any dangerous thought.

Heywood.

What pleasures have been obtained from us by the importunity and divulged by the indiscretion of friends, although restrained by promises.

Swift.

6 n.

Indis
Indiscriminate. adj. [indiscriminatus, Lati.] Undistinguishing; not marked with any note of distinction.

Indiscriminately. adv. [from indiscriminate.] Without distinction.

Others use defamatory discourse purely for love of talk, whose speech, like a flowing current, bears away indiscriminately with it some lies in its way.

Governor of the Tongue.

Liquors, strong of acid spirits, destroy the finer scents of our moods; and liquors, indiscriminately that abound with sulphurous faults, destroy it. Boyle.

Indispensable. adj. [French.] Not to be remitted; not to be spared; necessary.

Rocks, mountains, &c., against which these exceptions are made, are of indispensable use and necessity, as well as earth as to man. Woodward.

Indispensableness. n. s. [from indispensable.] State of not being to be spared; necessity.

Indispensably. adv. [from indispensable.] Without dispensation; without remission; noticeably.

Ever one must look upon himself as indispensably obliged to the practice of duty. Addison.

Indispose. v. a. [indisposer, Fr.]

1. To make unfit; with for.

Nothing can be reckoned good or bad to us in this life, any further than it prepares or indisposes us for the enjoyment of another. Atterbury.

2. To distress; to make averse; with to.

It has a strange efficacy to indispose the hearts to religion. South's Sermons.

3. To disorder; to disqualify for its proper functions.

The soul is not now hindered in its acting by the tempers of its organs. Carlyle.

4. To injure; to injure, with regard to health.

Though it weakened, yet it made him rather indisposed than sick, and did no ways disable him from studying. Walton.

5. To make unsavourably; with respect to.

The king was sufficiently indisposed towards the priest or the principles of Calvin's disciples. Clarendon.

Indisposedness. n. s. [from indisposed.] State of unfitness or disqualification; indisposition.

It is not any innate harshness in pity that renders the first essays of it unpleasant; that is owing only to the indisposedness of our own hearts.

Dissipation. n. s. [indispose, Fr.]

1. Disorder of health; tendency to sickness; flight disease.

The king did complain of a continual infirmity of body, yet rather as an indisposition in health, than as any sickness. Haywards.

If we have known a great fleet lose great occasions, by an indisposition of the admiral, while he was not well enough to exercise, nor ill enough to leave the command, Temple.

Wisdom is still looking forward, from the first indispositions into the progress of the disease. Locke.

2. Indisposition; dislike; with to or towards.

The indisposition of the church of Rome to reform herself, must be this unto us from performing our duty to God.

Addison's Preface.

The mind, by every degree of affected conduct, contract more and more of a general indisposition towards believing.

Atterbury.

Indisputable. adj. [in and disputable.] Uncontrovertible; incontestable; evident; certain.

There is no maxim in politics more indisputable, than that a nation should have many honours to referee for those who do national services. Addison.

The maxim was clear indisputable concerning which could admit of no question. Rogers.

Indisputableness. n. s. [from indisputable.] The state of being indisputable; certainty; evidence.

Indisputably. adv. [from indisputable.] Without controversy; certainly; evidently.

The thing itself is unquestionable, nor is it indisputable certain what death the died. Brown.

2. Without opposition.

They questioned a duty that had been indisputably granted to so many preceding kings. Brown.

Indissolubleness. adj. [in and dissoluble.] 1. Indissoluble; not separable as to its parts. Metals, corroded with a little acid, turn into rust, which is an earth taftable and indisoluble in water; and this earth, imbued with more acid, becomes metallic salt.

2. Obligatory; not to be broken; binding for ever.

Deposition and degradation are without hope of any remission, and therefore the law isles them an indisoluble bond; but a cenure, a dissoluble bond. Burnet.

Indissolubleness. n. s. [in and dissoluble.]

1. Resistance to a dissolving power; firmness; stability.

What bonds hold this mass of matter in so close a precipitation, from whence fleat has its firmness, and the parts of a diamond their hardness and indisolubleness? Locke.

2. Perpetuity of obligation.

Indissoluble. adj. [indissolubility, Fr. in and dissoluble.] 1. Replacing all separations of its parts; firm, stable.

When common gold and lead are mingled, the lead may be severed almost unalter’d, yet, if instead of the gold, a tartalum of the red elixir be mingled with the silver, their union will be so indestructible, that there is no possible way of separating the dissipated elixir from the fixed lead. Boyle.

2. Binding for ever; subsisting for ever; not to be loosened.

For more than an hundred years it was for us, to be joined with you in bands of indissoluble love and amity, to live as if our persons being many, our souls were but one. Hooker.

There is the supreme and indissoluble conjunction between men, of which the heathen poets foretold we are all this generation. Bacon's Lucky Wor.

They might justly wonder, that men so foolish, so oblig’d to be kind to all, should behave themselves so contrary to such heavenly intuitions, such indissoluble obligations. Staub.

Indissolubleness. n. s. [from indissoluble.] Indissolubility; resistance to separations of parts.

A mixture consisting of a composition insensibly dissoluble, might have been held, by the Divine Will, a state of immortality and indissolubleness of his composition. Pope.

Indissolubly. adj. [from indissoluble.]

1. In a manner reftifning all separation.

On they move Indissolubly firm; nor obvious hill, Nor straining vale, nor wood, nor flame divide.

Their perfect course, by nature, may be indivisible united into ghosts. Boyle.

They were indissolubly united, Indissolubly firm; from Druid south.

To northern Orleans. Philipse.

For ever obligatory.

Indissolent. adj. [indissoluble, Fr. in and dissoluble.]
Longevity shall crease our blue.
With an individual soul.
Under his great weapon he reigns noble,
Unto, the same individual soul.
For ever happy.

Separate or distinct existence.
He would tell his instructeur, that all men were nothing, and that individuality could hardly be produced of any man; for it was commonly said, that a man is not the same be, and that men are beneath themselves.

1. With separate or distinct existence: num-ercially.
How should that subsist solitarily by itself, which had no substance, but individually the same be, whereby others subsist with it?

2. Not separably; incomunicably.
I dare not pronounce him omniscient, that being an attribute individually proper to the godhead, and incomunicable to any created substance.

To individual, a. [from individual.]
To distinguish from others of the same species; to make single.
Life is individual into infinite numbers, that have their distinct fince and pleasure.
In an individual, a. [from individual.]
If the state of being an individual; separate existence.
Indemnity, n. [in and indentity.]
Want of divine power. Not in use.
How openly did the oracle betray his indentity unto Ceres, who being raised by his amphibology, and expounding with him, received on higher answer than the excuse of his impotency?

Individuation, n. [from individual.]
The state of being an individual; separate existence.
Indivisibility, n. s. [in and indivisibility.]
Stare in which no more division can be made.
A petel and mortar will as from bring any particle of matter to indivisibility as the asuit thought it.
Indivisibility. adj. [indivisible, Fr. in and indivisibility.]
What cannot be broken into parts; so small as that it cannot be smaller; having reached the last degree of divisibility.

By atom, no body will imagine we intend to express a perfect indivisible, but only the least foot of material things.

Indivisibly. adv. [from indivisibility.]
So as it cannot be divided.
Indoctrina, v. a. [from indoctrinize.]
Teach; instruct; with any science, or opinion.
Under a matter that disdained excellently, and took much delight in indoctrinating his young enemies, doctrine, Bucking-ahomad unto a quick conception of speaking very gracefully and pertinently.

They never professe beyond the common belief, in their early under standings, but were at first indoctrinated, are strongly suffused of the truth of their receptions.

Indoctrination. n. s. [from indoctrin.
Instruction; information.
Although convertible unto junior indoctrinations, yet are those attributes not to be embraced beyond the minority of our intercupuncture.

Indolence. n. s. [in and indolence.]
Indoctrination, French.
1. Freedom from pain.
As there must be indolence where there is happy-ness, so there must not be indolence.

2. Laziness; inattention; littlefeasts.
Let Epicurus give indoctrination as an attribute to his and place it in the heart of the blest: the not only will our minds be professed as not a precept against it, but his own example to the contrary.

Dydon.

The Spanish nation, roused from the indolence and ignorance, feels now to improve trade.

Indolent. adj. [French.]
1. Free from pain. So the chirurgeons speak of an indolent tumour.
2. Carelessly; lazily; inattentively; littlefeast.

To wake long nights in indolences repose.
Pope's Iliad.

Indolently, adv. [from indolent.]
1. With freedom from pain.
2. Carelessly; lazily; inattentively; littlefeasts.
Indolently. adv. [from indolent.]
To portion; to enrich with gifts, whether of fortune or nature. See Endow.

Indolous, n. s. [in and draughts.
1. An opening in the land into which the sea flows.

2. Inlet; passage inwards.
Navigable rivers are indoluous to attain wealth.

To Indolous. v. a. [from drach.]
To seek; to drown.
My hopes lie drown'd, in many fathoms deep.
They lie indolous'd, Shaks. to India and Ceylon.
Indolous. adj. [in and doubtful.]
Not doubtfully; not suspecting; certain.

Hence appears the vulgar vanity of reposing an indolous confidence in those antipathetical spirits.

Indolous. adj. [indolousible Lat. indolousible, Fr. in and dubius.
Indolousibility. adj. [in and dubious.
Indolousibility. adv. [indolousible.]
Indolousibility. Un-doubtful; unquestionable; evident; certain in appearance; clear; plain.

When general observations are drawn from so many particulars as to become certain and indolousible,
Indolousibility. Lat. indolousible, Fr. in and dubius.

Indolously, adv. [from indolous.]
Undoubtedly; unquestionably.

If we transport these proportions from audible to visible objects, there will indolously return from either a graceful and harmonious comement.

Indolously, adv. [indolousible.]
Watts's Architectur.
To INDULGE. v. a. [indulge. Latin.]

1. To encourage by compliance. The lazy gluton safe at home will keep;
   Indulge his sloth, and fatten with his sleep. Dryden.

2. To fondle; to favour; to gratify with condescension; to fetch.
   If the matter of indulgence be a single thing, it has with before it; if it be a habit, it has in a, as he indulged himself with a draught of wine; and,
   be indulged himself in shapeless drunk.

A master was wont to indulge his daughters with dogs, squirrels, or birds; but then they must keep wide, that is.

Loki.

To live like those that have their hope in another things, implies that we indulge ourselves in the gratifica-
   of this life very sparingly. Atterbury.

3. To grant not of right but favour.
   Ancient privileges, indulged by former kings to their must not without high reason, be revoked by their successors.

The virgin entering bright, indul'd the day.

1. To brown caves, and bristled the dreams away.

To INDULGENCE. n. f. [from indulge.] A parsuader; one that influences.

To INDUCE. v. a. [indulguus. Latin.]

1. To introduce; to bring in.
   The things in the following compilation were first indulged by the Venetians. Sandys's Travels.

2. To put into actual possession of a benefice.
   If a person thus instituted, though not indulged,
   takes a second benefice, it shall make the first void.

INDUCTION. n. f. [indulgence. Fr. indulguus. Latin.]

1. Introduction; entrance; anciently preface.
   These promises are fair, the parties sure,
   And our indulgences full of prosp'rous hope. Shaksp.

2. Induction is when, from several particular propositions, we infer one general: as, the doctrine of the Socinians cannot be proved from the gospels, it cannot be proved from the acts of the apostles, it cannot be proved from the epistles, nor the book of revelations; therefore it cannot be proved

The inquisition by indulgence is wonderful hard;
   for the things reported are full of fables, and new experiments can hardly be made but with extreme care. Bacon.

Mathematical things are only capable of clear demonstration: conclusions in natural philosophy are proved by induction of experiments, things moral by moral arguments, and matters of left by credible testimony.

Although the arguing from experiments and observations by induction be no demonstration of general conclusions, yet it is the best way of arguing which the nature of things admits of, and may be looked upon as so much the stronger by how much the indulgence is more general: and if we come to phenomena, the conclusion may be general.

He brought in a new way of arguing from inducion, and that grounded upon observation and experience.

Baker.

3. The act of rolling taking possession of an ecclesiastical living.

INDUCTIVE. adj. [from inducet.]

1. Leading; persuasive; with re.
   A Smith vise.

Inductive mainly to the fin of Eve. Milton.

2. Capable to infer or produce.
   Abstentions may take away inconsiderable conclusions in these evidences of fact, yet they may be probable and inductive of credibility, though not of science.

Hale's Origin of Mankind.

3. Proceeding not by demonstration, but induction.

1. To invect; to clothe.
   One first matter all
   Induced with various forms. Milton.

2. It seems sometimes to be, even by good writers, confounded with endow or induce, to furnish or enrich with any quality or excellence.

The angel, by whom God induced the waters of Bethsaida with supernatural virtue, was not, yet the angel's presence was known by the waters.

Hooke.

His pow'rs, with dreadful strength end'd.

Chapman.

To INDULGENT. adj. [indulgent. Latin.]

1. Kind; gentle; liberal.
   God has done all for us that the most indulgent
   Governor could for the work of his hands. Dryden.

2. Mild; favourable.
   Hereafter such in thy behalf shall be the indulgent confence of pity. Miller.

3. Gravitating; favouring; giving way to:
   with of.
   The treble old indulgent of their cafe. Dryd.

INDULGENTLY, adv. [from indulgent.]

Without severity; without censure; without self reproach; with indulgence.

INDURE. v. a. [indure. Latin.]

He that not only commiss some a don, but indure.

1. To encourage by compliance. The lazy gluton safe at home will keep;
   Indulge his sloth, and fatten with his sleep. Dryden.

2. To fondle; to favour; to gratify with condescension; to fetch.
   If the matter of indulgence be a single thing, it has with before it; if it be a habit, it has in a, as he indulged himself with a draught of wine; and,
   be indulged himself in shapeless drunk.

A master was wont to indulge his daughters with dogs, squirrels, or birds; but then they must keep wide, that is.

Loki.

To live like those that have their hope in another things, implies that we indulge ourselves in the gratifica-
   of this life very sparingly. Atterbury.

3. To grant not of right but favour.
   Ancient privileges, indulged by former kings, to their must not without high reason, be revoked by their successors.

The virgin entering bright, indul'd the day.

1. To brown caves, and bristled the dreams away.

INDURE. v. a. [indure. Latin.]

To grow hard; to harden.

1. Stones within the earth at first are rude earth or clay; and so minerals come at first of julices concrete, which afterwards hardens. Bacon's New. Hi.

That plants and ligneous bodies may indure under water without approach of air, we have experi-

2. To harden the mind; to fear the confidence

INDUTOR. n. s. [ital. and French.]

To INDURATE. v. a. [indure. Latin.]

To grow hard; to harden.

To harden the mind; to fear the confidence.
To INEBRIATE, v. a. [inebriis, Latin.] To intoxicate; to make drunk.
Wine fogged inebriates less than wine pure:
for the quantity for quantity, inebriates more than wine of itself.
Bacchus.

To INEBRIATE, v. r. To grow drunk;
to be inebriated.
At Contaminople, fish, that come from the Euxine sea to the bush water, do inebriate and turn up their bellies, so as you may take them with your hand.

INEBRIATION, n. f. from inebriate.] Drunkenness; intoxication.
That sound and bloody form may be of virtu;
excellence will make us great; but that not an ineffability, n. f. from ineffable.] Un-speakingness.

INEFFABLE, adj. [ineffable, Fr. ineffectual. Lat.] Unspeaking; unutterable; not to be expressed. It is used almost always in a good sense.

The sun, with calm aspect, and clear,
Lightning divine, ineffable, serene.
Made answer.

Milton.

Reflect upon a clear, unclouded, acquired conficence, and upon the ineffable comforts of the memorial of a conquered temptations.

Swinburne.

INEFFABLY, adv. from ineffable.] In a manner not to be expressed.
He all his father eel expressed,
Ineffably into his face received.
Milton.

INEFFETUOUS, adj. [ineffettuus, Fr. in effecteu.] That which can produce no effect; uneffectual; inefficient; useless.
At the body, without blood, is a dead and lifeless trunk; so is the word of God, without the spirit, effectual and inefficacious letter.
Taylor.

He that allureth himself he never err, will always err, and his pernicious will render all attempts to inform him inefficacious.

Glavaux.

INEFFICUALLY, adv. [inefficaciously.]
Unable to produce in effect; weak;
wanting power.
The deity, to the American, Apecebya they condemn as thing effectual unto evil: the bare reading even of Scriptures themselves they delight, as a thing ineffectual to do good.
Huxley.

The apostle Pntrouus, joined to the offer of Agamemnon, which of itself had proved ineffectual.
Pope.

INEFFICUALLY, adv. [inefficaciously.]
Want of power to produce the proper effect.

Su. James speaks of the inefficaciously of some men's devotion: Ye ask, and receive not, because ye are afflicted.
Wade.

INEFFICACY, n. f. [from inefficaciously.]
Want of power to perform the proper effect.

INEFFACIOUS, adj. [ineflicious, Fr. inefficace, Latin.] Unable to reduce effects;
weak; feeble.
Efficacious rather denotes an actual failure; and inefficacious, an habitual impotence to any effect.

I know that better than always to have the rod in hand; and, by frequent use, malice and resistance indefatigably to his useful remedy.

Inefficacy. n. f. [in and effectue, Lat.] Want of power; want of effect.

INELEGANCE. n. f. [inelegante, Lat.] Absence of beauty;
want of elegance.

INELEGANT, adj. [inelegant, Lat.] 1. Not becoming; not beautiful: opposite to elegant.
Inexorable, adj. [inexpressible, Fr. inexorable. Lat. in and expressible.] Not to be expressed; not to be palliated by apology. Exceedingly, adv. [from inexorable.] To a degree of guilt or folly beyond excuse. It will inexorably condemn some men, who having received excellent endowments, yet have frustrated the intention. Brown.

Inexhaustible, adj. [in and exhaustion.] That which cannot evaporate. A new laid egg will not so easily be boiled hard, because it contains a great fume of humid parts, which must be evaporated before the heat can bring the inexhaustible parts into cœlidity. Arrer.

Inexhausted, adj. [in and exhausted.] Unemptied; not possible to be emptied. So weath born into a tuneful strain. Dryden.

Inexpressible, adj. [in and expressible.] Not to be drawn away; not to be spent. Reflect on the variety of combinations which may be made with number, whose stock is inexhaustible, and truly infinite. Locke. The fock that the mind has in its power, by varying the idea of space, is perfectly inexhaustible, and so it may multiply figures in infinitum. Locke.

Inexistent, adj. [in and existent.] 1. Not having being, not to be found in nature. To express complex significations, they took a liberty to compound and piece together creatures of allowable forms into mixtures inexpressible. Boyle.

2. Existing in something else. This use is rare. We doubt whether these heterogeneities be so much as inexpressible in the concrete, whence they are obtained. Boyle.

Inextricable, adj. [in and existent.] Want of being; want of existence. He calls up the heroes of former ages from a state of inexpressible to adorn and diversify his poem. Homer on the Odyssey.

Inexpressible, adj. [inexpressible, Fr. inexpressible, Latin.] Not to be treated not to be moved by intertrary.
of certain manours to judge any thief taken within their fee.

Infant. n.s. [infant, Fr. infant, Lat.]

...
INFECTIOUSLY. adv. [from infectious.] Contagiously.

The last does, that is incalculable.

To what infinitely inferiors.

STAGE.

INFECTIOUSNESS. n. f. [from infectious.] The quality of being infectious, contagious.

INFECTION. adj. [from infect.] Having the quality of acting by contagion.

True love, well considered, hath an infectious power.

STAGE.

INFECTION. n. f. [from infectious, Latin.] Unfruitful; infectious.

1. How firmly, the more contagious, the earth is to vegetables, is requisited from their rooting, drying, or being rendered infectious in the waters, or the air: Slatin the earth their vigour is long preferred.

2. To infest.

a. [infer, Fr. inférer, Lat.] To bring on; to induce.

Vamnis infectum same small deposit to the lungs.

b. To infer is nothing but, by virtue of one proposition laid down as true, to draw in another as true, i. e. to use for supposing such a conclusion of the two ideas of the inferred proposition.

Locke.

Yet what thou canst attain, which best may move
To glorify the Maker, and infer
Though also happiness, shall not be with-held.

The heart, Milton.

Great.

Or bright, infer not excellence; the earth
Though in comparison of heav’n so small,

Nor glistening, may of fabled good contain
More plenty than the sun, that barren flowers.

Milton.

One would wonder how, from so differing principles, they should all infer the same conclusion.

Declay Neely

They have more opportunities, than other men have of purchaser public citizens, by deferring will of mankind; and such opportunities always infer ability.

Attarkey.

3. To offer; to produce. Not in use.

Full well hath Clifford played the oar,

Inferior arguments of mighty force.

Shakespeare.

INFERENCE. n. f. [inference, Fr. from inferer.] Consequence drawn from previous arguments.

Though it may chance to be right in the conclusion, it is yet unjust and mistaken in the method of inference.

Glævett.

These infinences or conclusions are the effects of reasoning, and the three propositions taken together, are called sylogism or argument.

Watt.

INFERRIBLE adj. [from inferer.] Deducible from premised grounds.

As simple mistakes commonly beget fallacies, so mistaken from fallacious foundations, and misapprehended mediums, erect conclusions no way inferible from their premises.

Brown.

INFERRIBILITY. n. f. [inferribility, French, from incomer.] Lower rate of dignity of value.

The change, though not of equal dignity, yet is as near approaching to it as our modern barbarism will allow; and therefore we are to set contented with that only inferribility which is not possibly to be amended.

Dryden.

INFERIORLY. adv. [inferior, Latin, from incomer.] Lower rate of dignity of value.

The love of liberty with life is given,
And life itself the inferior gift of heav’n.

Dryden.

I have added some original papers of my own, which, though not so much equal in this to other poëms, an author is the most improper judge of.

Milton.

SUBJECTIVE.

General and fundamental truths in philosophy, religion, and human life, conduct our thoughts into a thousands inferior and particular propositions.

Watt.

INFERIORLY. n. f. [from the adjective.] One in a lower rank or station than another.

A great performer gets more by obliging his inferiour than by disdainful him.

South.

INFERNAL. adj. [infernal, Fr. infernaire, Lat. Hellish; turraceous; detestable.

His giberous beholders
Infolds nine several infernal space.

Dryden’s Aen.

INFERNAL STATE. n. f. Infernal state, or the inner cavities, is prepared from an evaporated solution of fire, or from crystals of fire; in the mean while this cavality, eating away the flesh and even the bones to which it is applied.

Hilli, Mas. Medica.

INFESTILE. adj. [inferile, Fr. and inferer.] Unfruitfully; want of fertility; uncleanness;

Infest, want of fertility; barrenness.

INFESTIBILITY. n. f. [infribili, French, indiferabilis, Latin.] Unhappiness; miseries; calamity.

Whatever is the ignorance and infestibility of the present state, we were made wise and happy.

Chatelet.

Here is our great infestibility, that, when single words signify complex ideas, one word can never dishonestly manifest all the parts of a complex idea.

The Judge.

3. Treachery; deceit; breach of contract or trust.

The infestibilities on the one part between the two, and the cures on the other, the vanity and weaknesses of the men, make such delights that make up this business of life, render it filthy and uncomfortable.

Spectator.

INFINITE. adj. [infini, Fr. infinitus, Lat.] 1. Unbounded; boundless, unlimited; imme-

Infinite, having no boundaries or limits to its nature.

2. It is hyperbolically used for large; great.

INFINITELY. adv. [from infinite.] 1. Without limits; without bounds; im-

Nothing may be infinitely defined, but that good which indeed is infinite.

Hobbes.

2. In a great degree.

This is Antonio.

To whom I am infinitely bound.

Shakespeare.

The king law that contrariwise it would follow, that perhaps, though much left in territories, yet should have infinitely more settlements of their native forces than other nations have.

Boase.

Infinite the greater part of mankind have professed in ad under a full persuasion of this great article.

Regius.

INFINITENESS. n. f. [from infinite.] Im-

Infineness; boundlessness; infinity.

The cunning of his flatteri, the readiness of his tongue, though much left in territories, yet should have infinitely more settlements of their native forces than other nations have.

Boase.

Infinite the greater part of mankind have professed in ad under a full persuasion of this great article.

Regius.
of intimates the intention of affirming, which is one use of the indicative; but then it does not do it absolutely. Clarke.

INF. or infinity. Many infinities made it appear more requisite, that a wiser man should have the application of his interest.

How difficult is it to preserve a great name, when he has acquired it, is so obvious to such little weaknesses and infinities, as are no diminution to the reputation of these men. Addison.

3. Diseafe; malady. General laws are like general rules of physics, according-whereunto, as now, no wise man will define himself to be cured, if there be joined with his disease some special accident, in regard that thereby others in the same infirmity, but without the like accident, may.

Sometimes the rates of man may be depredated by the infirmities of birth. Temple.

INFIRMITY. n. f. [infernus, Fr. infirmité, Lat.] Weakness; feebleness.

Some experiments may discover the infirmities and inefficiency of the preternatural doctrine.

To inflx, v. a. [inflix, Lat.] To drive in; to set; to fullen.

And at the point two things fixed are,
Both deadly sharp, that harpeth steel exceedeth far.
Spenzor.

I never lovd thyelf,
"Till now, indeed, I behold myself,
Drawn in the darting table of her eye.
Shaksper.

Immediate table, round. Addison.
That thing infidt within her haughty mind,
And her proud heart with secret force pinned.
Dryden.

The fast dart a readiness found
And deep within her heart inflx'd the wound.
Dryden.

To inflame, v. a. [infiamare, Lat.]
1. To kindle; to set on fire; to make to burn.
Love more clear, dedicated to a love more cold, with the cleanest lays a night of sorrow upon me, and with the coldness inflames a world of fire within me.

2. To kindle any passion.
Their lust inflamed towards her. Safian. 8111.

3. To kindle with passion.
More infidt with light than rage.
Satan.

4. To exag敬erate; to aggravate.
A friend exaggerates a man's virtues, an enemy inflames his defects.

5. To heat the body morbibly with obstructed matter.
6. To provoke; to irritate.
A little vain curiosity weighs so much with us, or the chance was so little, that we sacrifice the one to the weightling and inflaming of the other.

Decay of Flity.

To inflame, v. n. To grow hot, angry, and painful by obstructed matter.

If we flake a body, those inflames we inflame. Wifersan.

Infiammation, n. f. [from inflamare, L.] The thing or person that inflames.
Interest it is a great inflamer, and sets a man on perfection under the colour of zeal.
Addison.

Infiammables, who act upon publick principles, proceed upon influence from particular leaders and inflamers.
Swift.

Infiammability, n. f. [from inflamable, L.] The quality of catching fire.
This is it [fire], at the uncertain air to be impregnated with sensible inflammables.

Choler is the most inflammable part of the body; whence, from its inflammability, it is called a fulmen.
Harvey.

Infiammable, adj. [French.] Eafy to be set on flame; having the quality of inflaming.

The juices of olives, almonds, nuts, and pineapples, are all inflamablers. Bacon's Natural History.

Lactesce the juices to extrait an inflamable oil from the same albus.
Wilkins.

Out of water grow all vegetable and animal subflantes, which consist as well of inflammables, fat, and inflammable parts as of earthly and calcinable one.

Nerone's Opicars.

Inflammable spirits are folid, volatile, inflammables which come over in distillation, miscible with water, and wholly combustible.
Ardonius on Aliments.

Infiammables, n. f. [from inflammable.] The quality of easily catching fire.

We may treat of the inflammables of bodics.

Inflammation, n. f. [inflammare, Lat.]

1. The act of setting on flame.
Inflammation of an inflammable, or meteors, may have a powerful effect upon men.

2. The state of being in flame.
The flame extendez not beyond the inflammable influence, but closely adheres unto the original of its inflammation.

Some arms have had inscriptions on them, representing that the lamps within them were burning when they were first buried; whereas the inflammation of fat and viscous vapours doth perfectly vanish.
Wilton's Dedukts.

3. [In chirurgia.] Inflammation is when the blood is obstructed fo as to crowd in a greater quantity into any particular part, and gives it a greater colour and heat than usual.
Quincy.

If that short fire set in his place, it is an inflammation of the burning.
Levi, 8. 3.

4. Fervour of mind.
Prayer kindles our desire to behold God by speculation, and the mind, delighted with that contemplative light of God, taketh every where new inflamations to pray the riches of the mysteries of heavenly wisdom, continually stirring up in us corresponding desires and workings.
Wm.

Inflammatorv, adj. [from inflame, L.]
Having the power of inflaming.

The extremity of pain often creates a coldness in the extremities; such a sensation is very confinable with the inflammation of the lungs, and this inflammation let hurried him out of this life in three days.
Pope to Swift.

To inflame, v. a. [inflamare, Lat.]
1. To swell with wind.
To the music that followed in time of war appears to the very eye in the faces of children. Rey.

Vapours are no other than inflamed veicles of wind.
Dorcrum.

2. To fill with the breath.
With may and wind they chal'd the murdes cors.
With brass trumpets and inflamed box, To kindle Mars with military sounds, Not wornci horns t' inflame fopulous louds. Dryd.

Inflation, n. f. [inflato, Lat. from inflarire.] The state of being swelled with wind; fatulence.

Wind coming upwards, inflation and torsoms of the belly are signs of a phlegmatic constitution.
Barkebone on Diet.

To inflcct, v. a. [inflcctare, Lat.]
1. To bend; to turn.
What makes them this way their race directly.
While they a thought or stand.
Why do they never once their couplc inflcct?
Blackmore.

Do not the rays of light which fall upon bodies, begin to bend before the arrow at the bodies? And are they not reflected, reflected, and inflccted by one and the same principle, acting variously in various circumstances?
Newton's Opticks.

2. To vary a noun or verb in its termina-inflcct. n. f. [inflccto, Lat.]

1. The act of bending or turning.
Neither the divine determinations, perfusions, or inflctions of the understanding orwill of rational creatures, doth accept the understanding, receiveth the will, or necessitate either to any moral evil.
Hila.-

2. Modulation.
2. Modulation of the voice.

This is done by the power of the diaphragm, which is a large muscle situated under the lungs, and which is capable of expansion and contraction, and thus influences the voice.

Influential, adj. [from influence]. Having the power of bending.

This influential quality of the air is a great influence and can influence the voice.

Influence, n. s. [from influence, L. influere]. Power of the celestial aspects operating upon terrestrial bodies and affairs. The faceful influence of light appears.

Influential, adj. [from influence]. Having power of directing and modifying.

It was anciently believed by some that the influence of the stars was great, and that the stars had the power of directing and modifying the course of events.

Influential quality of the air is a great influence and can influence the voice.

Influence, n. s. [from influence, L. influere]. Power of the celestial aspects operating upon terrestrial bodies and affairs. The faceful influence of light appears.

Influential, adj. [from influence]. Having power of directing and modifying.

It was anciently believed by some that the influence of the stars was great, and that the stars had the power of directing and modifying the course of events.

Influential quality of the air is a great influence and can influence the voice.

Influence, n. s. [from influence, L. influere]. Power of the celestial aspects operating upon terrestrial bodies and affairs. The faceful influence of light appears.

Influential, adj. [from influence]. Having power of directing and modifying.

It was anciently believed by some that the influence of the stars was great, and that the stars had the power of directing and modifying the course of events.

Influential quality of the air is a great influence and can influence the voice.
INF

1. think it necessary, for the interest of virtue and morality, to make this subject known. It is not to be shewn to those in any part of your character. Swift.

3. To offer an accusation to a magistrate. Terrius informed the governor against Paul. 2 Tim. ...

To INFORM, v. To give intelligence. It is the bloody bulletins which informs Thus to mine eyes. Shakesp. Macbeth.

INFORMAL, adj. [from inform.] Irregular; not competent. A word not used. There was no informing of some more mighty member, that first them on. Shakesp. Measure for Measure.

INFORMANT, n. f. [French.] 1. One who gives information or instruction. He wrote the sentence, as it is made up of terms which his informant understands, though the words he uses are not comprehensible. Watts.

2. One who exhibits an accusation. INFORMATION, n. f. [informatio, Lat. from informare]

4. Intelligence given; instruction. But reason with the fellow. L. and S. Left you should chance to whip your information, and have the evidence without it. Of what is it to be dished. Shakesp. Coriolanus.

The active informations of the intellect filling the passive reception of the will, like form closing with substance, a new edifice and distinct perfection of practice. Sweet's Sermons.

They gave those complex ideas names, that the things, they were continually to give and receive information about, might be the easier and quicker understood. Locke.

He should regard the propriety of his words, and give some information in the object he intends to handle. These men have had longer opportunities of information, and are equally concerned with ourselves, Rogers.

2. Charge or accusation exhibited.

3. The act of informing or accusing. INFORMER, n. f. [from informare]

1. One who gives instruction or intelligence. This writer is either biased by an inclination to believe the word, or a want of judgment to judge his informers. Swift.

1. One who doth offenders to the magistrate. There were spies and informers let to work to the company. L. and S. Let no courtly sophist pervert my sense. Nor fly informer watch their words to draw Within the reach of treason. Pope.

Informers are a detestable race of people, although sometimes necessary. Swift.

INFORMABLE, adj. [in and formabilis; Latin.] Not to be feared; not to be dreaded. Of strength, of courage, haughty, and of limb. Hieron. basis, though of terrestrial mold; For not informable, except from wounds, Milton.

INFORMATION, n. f. [from informatio, Latin.] Shapeless.

From this narrow time of edification may arise a smallness in the-exclusive; but this instruction is not information. Brown's vulgar Errors.

INFORMOUS, adj. [informare, French; infor- matum, Latin.] Shapeless; of no regular figure.

That a bear brings forth her young informous and unshaven, which the fathomthick after by locking them over, is an opinion delivered by ancient writers. Brown's vulgar Errors.

INFORTUNATE, adj. [infortunatus, French; infinitutatunus, Latin.] Unhappy. Some are unhappy, fortunate, which is commonly used. Perkin, defitute of all hopes, having bowed all either fate, fate, of informans, did gladly accept of the condition, which might be informed in some parts of your character. Swift.

INFRACTION, n. s. [infraction, French; infraditus, Lat.] The act of breaking; breach; violation of treaty. By the same Gods, the justice of whose wrath Punish'd the infraction of my former faith. W. H. T.'s Summer.

INFRAIBLE, adj. [in and irregular]. Not to be broken. The primitive stones are supplex infrangible, extremely compacted and hard, which hardeneds and hardens is a demonstration that nothing could be produced by them, since they could never cohere.

INFREQUENT, n. f. [infrquentia, Lat.] Uncommonness; rarity. The absence of the gods, and the infrequency of objects, makes fortune the god of the poor. Cic.

INFREQUENT, adj. [infrequent, Lat.] Rare; uncommon.

To INFUNDITATE, v. a. [in frigidus, Latin.] To chill; to make cold. The drops reached a little further than the surface of the liquor, whose coldness did not infrigidate those upon its edge. Pope.

To INFURGNE, v. a. [infringes, Latin.] 1. To violate; to break laws or contracts. Those many had not dare'd to do that evil, which the firm man that did it think infringed. H. W. I. had answer'd for his deeds. Shaks. Mid. Night.

Having infrig'd the law, I wave my right. As king, and thus submit myself to fight. W. H. T.

2. To destroy; to hinder. Houses, being plain and popular inflammations, do not infringe the efficacy, although but read. Hooker.

Bright as the deathless gods and happy the From all that may infringe delight is free. W. H. T.

INFRINGEMENT, n. f. [from infringe.] Breach; violation. The passagery of this infringement is proper to that jurisdiction against which the contempt is. Clarendon.

INFRINGER, n. f. [from infringe.] A breaker; a violator. A clergyman's habit ought to be without any lace, under a severe penalty to be inflicted on the infringers of this institution. Addison.

INFUNDIBULAR, n. f. [infundibulum and forma, Latin.] Of the shape of a funnel or tunnish.

INFUENTE, adj. [in and fortius, Latin.] Enlarged; raging. At th' other bore, with touch of fire Dilated and inflamed are. Milton.

Fort'd by the torch of noon to tendal rage, Th' infuicere hill forth shoots the pillar's flame. Thomson.

INFUSCATION, n. f. [infuscatus, and forma, Latin.] The act of darkening or blenching.

To INFUSE, v. a. [infusio, French; infusi, Latin.] 1. To pour in; to infill. Thou almost make'st me forsake my faith. Tho' to hold opinion with Pythagoras, That few of animals are themselves Into the trunks of men. Shakesp. Merck, of Venice.

My early children, now my ancient self, That often stone itself cures itself. Shall, W. H. T. whereon thou didn't she of her heart. Cowden. Why should we desire 'twixt qualities infused into his son, which himself never suffered? Swift.

2. To pour into the mind; to infuse into.
Such of high quality, or rather of particular note, as shall fill our pews, shall not last past half a century, out their due character, being part of my professed ingenuity.

My constancy to the planets gives
My truth, as the stone does the court do live;
Mine ingenuity and openness.

To join is to baffle my principles.

I know not whether it be a voice or words, that men enquire into ingenuity, and the native greatness of their kind, as to defend to be fast, be glorious a vice.

Government of the Tongue.

If a thing, when questioned for any thing, directly contests, you must commend his ingenuity, and pardon the fault, be it what it will.

Lord.

2. [From ingenious.] Wit; invention; genius; subtlety; acuteness.

There are the effects of wit, and become not the genius of matly ingenuity.

Brow.

The ancient astrological hypotheses might have slept for ever, had not the ingenuity of the present age re covered this vast remembrance.

Such fits have neither parts nor wit, ingenuity of discourse, nor niceness of conversation, to entertain or delight any one.

A prudent instance how far virtue forgoes ingenuity, and how much an honest simplicity is preferable to face parts and favourable speculations.

Woodward.

INGENIOUS, adj. [ingenious, Latin.] 1. Open; fair; candid; generous; noble.

Many speeches there are of Job's, whereby his wisdom and other virtues may appear; but the glory of an ingenuous mind he bath portrayed in these words which now I lay mine hand upon my mouth; I have spoken once, yet will I not therefore maintain argument; yet twice, howbeit for that I will not pronounce.

Infuse into their young breasts such an ingenuous and noble ardour, as would not fail to make many of them renowned.

Milton.

It is a prudent instance of delicacy and exactness, that is true and genuine method to obviate dilemma.

Locke.

2. Freeborn; not of servile extraction.

Subjection, as it preserves property, peace, and safety, it will never diminish right nor ingenious liberties.

INGENUITY.  adj. [ingenious, French; ingenuus, Latin.] 1. Witty; inventive; possessed of genius.

'T is a proper talent, bold, quick, ingenious, forward, capable. Shaftsb.

In divers children their ingenuity and natural powers lie deep, and are of slow disclosure. Wotton.

Their noble habits are ingenuated in the soul, as religious, gravitude, obedience, and tranquillity.

Ingenious.

2. Unbegotten. Not commonly used.

Yet still we demonstrate the same, from persons presumed as far from us in condition as that; they are said to be ingenuated forefathers. Brown.

INGENIOUS, adj. [ingenious, French; ingenuus, Latin.] 1. Witty; inventive; possessed of genius.

Of his many favours I better like it. Shaftsb.

INGENUOUSLY. adv. [from ingenious.] Wit- tily; subtly.

I will not pretend to judge by common fear, or the schemes of men too ingeniously politic, Temple.

INGENUOUSLY. n. s. [from ingenius.]

Wittiness; subtlety; strength of mind. Love.

That there is in the practice I am disproving, the more dangerous it is. Boyle.

INGENIOUS. adj. [ingenious, Latin.] Innate; born; native; ingenious.

The idea of this expression hath there is in the practice I am disproving, the more dangerous it is. Boyle.

To INGEST. n. s. [ingestus, Latin.] To throw into the stomach.

Nor was it at all, aptly ingested, received in the belly of the oliphant or intestine. Brow.

Some of the long funnels's curious mouth extend, Through which ingested meats with safe defend.

Ingestion. n. s. [from ingest.] The act of throwing into the stomach.

It is gotten room enough to grow into its full dimension, which is performed by the daily ingestion of millet and other food, that's in a short time after digested into blood.

Harvey.

INGLORIOUS. adj. [inglorius, Latin.]

Void of honour; mean; without glory.

Let fear them back to Egypt, churing

Inglorious life with indignities.

It was never the beginning of glory or desagreous for a king to be guided by his great council, nor dishonsurable for subjects to yield and bow to their king.

INGRESS. n. s. [ingressus, Latin.] Re-

Entry into.
INHABITABLE, adj. [inhabitable; French; inhabitable, Latin] Uninhabitable; uninhabitable; uninhabitable.

To INHABIT, v. a. [inhabita, Latin.] To dwell in; to hold as a dweller.

Not all the inhabitants of that grace whereby Christ inhabiteth whom he favoureth. Hooker.

They shall build houses and inhabit them. Isaiah.

Jesus shall be inhabited of devils. Matthew.

To INHABIT. To dwell; to live.

Learn what creatures there inhabitable. Milton.

They say, wild beasts inhabit here; but grief and wrong beare my fear. Wailer.

INHABITABLE, adj. [from inhabitable.]

1. Capable of being inhabited of a dwelling.

The fixed stars are all of them fain, with systems of inhabitable planets moving about them. Locke.

2. [Inhabitable, French.] Incapable of inhabitants: not habitable; uninhabitable.

Not in use.

The frozen ridges of the Athe.

Or any other ground inhabitable. Shakespeare.

INHABITANCE, n. f. [from inhabitable.] Residences of dwellers.

So the pains yet setting in the wild woods, tell us a former inhabitable. Cotton's Essay of Cornwall.

INHABITANT, n. f. [from inhabitable.] Dweller; one that lives or refides in a place.

In this place they report that they few inhabitanies, which were very fair and fat people. Abbot.

If the fever-dread of the sun were the sole cause of blackness in any land of negroes, it were also reasonable that inhabitanies of the same latitude, subjected unto the same vicinities of the sun, should also partake of the same heats.

Brown.

For his supposed love a third.

Lays greedy hold upon a bird, and

And is amazed to find his dear

A wild inhabitable. Wailer.

What happier natures shrink at with afflict.

The hard inhabitable contents is right. Pope.

INHABITATION, n. f. [from inhabitable.]

1. Habitation; place of dwelling.

Universal gain.

If the whole inhabitable perish'd. Milton.

2. The act of inhabiting or planting with dwellers; estate of being inhabited.

By knowing this place our better judge of the beginning of nations, and of the world's inhabitation. Raleigh.

3. Quantity of inhabitants.

We shall admire how the earth contained its inhabitants when young. Brown's Vigihe Err.

INHABITER, n. f. [from inhabitable.]

One that inhabits; a dweller.

The same name is given unto the inlanders, and midland inhabiteis, of this island. Brown.

Woe to the inhabiteis of the earth. Romans.

They ought to understand, that there is not only some inhabiter in this divine house, but also some Deter.

To INHABILATE, v. a. [inhabilis, Latin.] To draw in with air; to inspire; opposed to exhale or expire.

Martin was walking forth to inhale the fresh breez of the evening. Ambrose and Pope.

But from the breath deep the brittle inhale

The fragrant moisture. Pope.

There are the shepherd upon the grassy turf.

Teasing healthful the defending sun. Thomson.

INHARMONIOUS, adj. [in and harmonious.] Unnatural; not sweeter of found.

The more they were of him and his numbers, harmonious, I could recommend for the beauty and delicacy, but must decline for the looseness of his thoughts. Filton.

The identity of sound may appear a little harmonious, and thick the ear.

Brown's Wiike's Exp. Exmp.

To INHABIT, v. a. [inhabere, Latin.] To Exil in something else, for to be inseparable from it.

I will not go to's.

Let I furciale to honour mine own truth.

And every body's action, teach my mind

A much inherant bails of meath. Shakespeare.

2. Naturally conjoined; innate; inborn.

I mean not the authority which is annexed to your office, I can speak of that only which in inher and inherent to your perfected being. Juvenal.

The power of drawing iron is one of the endoself, and a power to be so drawn is a part of the complex one of iron, which power puts it inherant qualities.

Animal oil is various according to principles inherent in it. Abkard on Aliments.

They will be fain to decide in favour of themselves, and talk much of their inherent right. Swift.

The ideas of such modes can no more be falsified than the idea of redness was just now found to be inherent in the blood, or that of whiteness in the brain.

The obligations we are under of distinguishing ourselves as much by an inherent and habitual, as we are already distinguished by an external and relative boulia.

Bentley.

To INHERIT, v. a. [hereditare, French.]

1. To receive or posseffs by inheritance.

Treason is not inheritable, my lord. Shakespeare.

Which with pain purchased doubt inherit pain. Shake.

Prince Henry is valiant, for the cold blood he had, naturally inherit of his father he hath, like lead, thrift laid, adorned with excellent good scarce of terrible.

Bleeked are the mean, for they shall inherit the earth.

Mark.

No man can receive from his father good things, without enterprise, that was vested in him for the good of others: and therefore the son cannot claim or inherit it by a title, which is founded wholly on his own right.

Locke.

We must know how the first ruler, from whom that one claim, came by his authority, before we can know whether a man has a right to succeed him in it, and inherit it from him.

Locke.

Unwilling to fell an efface he had some prospect of inheriting, he formed delays. Addison.

2. To poiffes; to obtain possession of: in Shakespeare.

Not used.

Her last had wit, and knew that I had none, To bury so much gold under a tree.

And never after to inhabit it. Shaksp. Tint And.

INHERITABLE, adj. [from inherit.]

Intransferrible by inheritance; obtainable by succession.

A kind of inheritable estate accrued unto them. Carew.

By the ancient laws of the realm, they were inheritable to him by descent.

Byward.

shqo the same fate, and from the same original in Mores sanctus in was in David? And was not inheritable in one and not in the other? Locke.

INHERITANCE, n. f. [from inherit.]

1. Patrimony; hereditary possession.

When the fon dies, let the inheritance

Defend unto the daughter. Shakespeare's Henry V.

Is there yet any portion or inheritance for our father's house? Gen. xxviii. 14.

From our own inheritance of old. Milton.

Legal or unhappiness began to be bequeathed thee only a fact inheritance of war.

Gods! eneul gods! can't all my paint stone.

They reach my lastent's guild's head. Smibth.

2. The reception of possession by hereditary right.

Men are not proprietors of what they have privately, for themselves, their children have a title to part of it, which comes to be wholly theirs when death has INHOSPITABLE, adj. [from inhospitable.] Unkind to strangers.
Affording no kindness or entertainment to strangers.
All places else
Inhospitable appear, and declare,
Not knowing us, nor known.

INHIBITOR, n. f. [from inhiber.] An heir;
one who receives any thing by succession.

You shall give your several laws.
How you can grow, than spend a flame upon them,
For the inheritance of their love, and safeguard
Pope's not
Shakespeare.
Shakespeare.
Continuous.

INHERITRIX, n. f. [from inherer.] An heir;
A woman that inherits.

He hath given artificially some hopes to Mary Anne, Inheritors to the duchy of Brittany. Bacon.

mation.

In-he'er-ter.
In-he'er-ter.
In-he'er-ter.

In-itia-tion.
In-itia-tion.
In-itia-tion.

In-i-mi-ty.
In-i-mi-ty.
In-i-mi-ty.

In-ju-i-c-tion.
In-i-nju-i-c-tion.
In-i-nju-i-c-tion.

In-ju-i-ta-tion.
In-ju-i-ta-tion.
In-ju-i-ta-tion.

In-ju-i-ta-tion.
In-ju-i-ta-tion.

In-ju-i-ta-tion.
In-ju-i-ta-tion.

In-ju-i-ta-tion.
In-ju-i-ta-tion.

INHIBITION, n. f. [inhibition, French; inhibitation, Latin.]

1. Prohibition; embargo.
He might be judged to have imposed an obvious inhibition on it, because himself has not think enough to maintain the trade. Government of the Tongue.

2. [in law.]
Inhibition is a writ to inhibit or forbid a judge from further proceeding in the cause depending before him. Inhibition is most commonly a writ issuing out of a higher court. Christiana from a lower court; inferior, upon an appeal; and prohibition of the king's court to a court; Christiana, or to an inferior judicial court. Coke.

3. To inhibit, n. a. (in bold; and bold.) To have inherent; to contain in itself.
It is disputed, whether this light first created be the same which the sun inhabits and calls forth, or whether it had consequence any longer than till right, might have. Shakespeare.

INHOSPITABLE, adj. [in and hospitable.]
Affording no kindness or entertainment to strangers.
All places else
Inhospitable appear, and declare,
Not knowing us, nor known.

INHOSPITALITY, n. f. [in hospitable.]
Unkind to strangers.
Of himself he makes them flavers
Inhospitably and kills their infant male.

INHOSPITALITY, n. f. [in hospitable.]
Unkind to strangers.
Of himself he makes them flavers
Inhospitably and kills their infant male.

INHUMAN, adj. [inhuman, French; inhumanus, Lat.] Barbarous; savage; cruel; uncompassionate.
a just war may be prosecuted after a very unjust manner; by pernicious breaches of our word, by Inhuman.

INHUMANITY, n. f. [inhumanity, Fr. from inhumanus, Lat.] Cruelty; savagenease; barbarity.

Love which lover hurts is inshumanity, Sidney.
They are those of which we make up with the want of justice with inshumanity and impudence.

Each social joy fell,
And joyful inshumanity pervades,
And petrifies the heart.

INHUMATION, n. f. [from humidus, Latin.]
Inherence; the state of existing in something else.

To INHIBIT, n. a. [inhibit, Latin; inhibitor, French.]

1. To restrain; to hinder; to refer; to check.
Holding of the breath doth help somewhat to ease the hiccup, and vinegar put to the nostrils, or caraffed, doth it also, for that it is astringent, and subdueth the motion of the spirit.

The faces and planets being whirled about with great velocity, would suddenly, did nothing inhibit it, be scattered in pieces.

Bay. On the Creation.
Their motions also are excited and inhibited, are modified and managed, by the objects they think.

Bentley.

2. To prohibit; to forbid.
All men were inhibited by proclamation, at the dissolution, so much as to mention a particular
Clarendon.

Burial may not be inhibited or denied to any one.

AYLIFFE.

INHUMAN, adj. [inhuman, French; inhumanus, Lat.]

1. The act of calling in.
This fair pondered word, by the repeated injection of well-kindled charcoal, made to flash like melted metal; in, to. Begin. Pope's Od.

2. Any medicine made to be injected by a syringe, or any other instrument, into any part of the body.

Quincy.

3. The act of filling the vesicles with wax, or any other proper matter, to swell their shapes and ramifications, often done by anatomists.

Quincy.

INIMITABILITY, n. f. [from inimitable.]
Incapacity to beimitated.
Truths must have an eternal existence in some understanding in, or rather they are the same with the understanding itself, considered as variously representative, according to the various modes of inimitability or participation.

Noctis.

INIMITABLE, adj. [inimitable, Lat. im-imitable, Fr.] Above imitation; not to be copied.

The portal stones, inimitable on earth
by model, or by shading pencil drawn.
Million. What is most excellent is most inimitable. Diderot.

And imitate the inimitable force.
Diderot.
Virgil copied the ancient sculptors, in that inimitable description of military fury in the temple of Juno. Addison.

INIMITABLY, adv. [from inimitable.] In a manner not to be imitated; to a degree of excellence above imitation.
A man could not have been always blind who thus

Thus terribly and the heavier hours,
Inimitably wrought with light divine.
Pope.

Charm such as these, inimitable great. Brooke.

INJURIOUS, adj. [injure, Fr. from injurious.] Unjust; wicked.

INJURY, n. f. [injure, Latin, iniquiti, Fr.]

1. Injury; unrighteousness.
There is greater or less probability of an happy issue to a tumultuous, according to the righteousness or inshumanity of the cause for which it was commenced.
Smallridge.

2. Wickedness; crime.
Want of the knowledge of God is the cause of all injury amongst men. Hooker.

Till God at last,
Wrest in their iniquities, with
His presence from among them.
Millen.

INJURIOUS, adj. [initial, Fr. initials, from initiate, Lat.] To place at the beginning.
In the editions, which had no more than the initial letters of names, he was made by keys to hint the initiator without.
Pope.

2. Inculpant; not complete.
Moderate labour of the body conduces to the pres-servation of health, and cures many initial diseases;
but the toil of the mind destroys health, and generates ailments. Harvey.

The schools have used a moderate term to express this affliction, and have called it the initial fear of Rogers.

To INHIBIT, n. a. [iniler, Fr. initiait, Lat.] To enter; to instruct in the rudiments of an art; to place in a new flat; to put into a new society.
Providence would only initiate mankind into the useful knowledge of the sciences, leaving the rest to employ our industry. More's Ant, against Athithem.

To initiate his pupil in any part of learning, an ordinary skill in the governor is enough. Locke.

He could not be counted to half a dozen classes before he was one and twenty.

Spectator.
No forner was a converted initiate, but, by an easy figure, he became a new man.
Addison.

To INHIBIT, n. a. [initer, Fr. initiait, Lat.] To do the first part; to perform the first rite.
The king himself initiates to the powers.
Scatter with quivy'ng hand the gilded hour.
And the dream spinkles.
Pope's Oddy.

INJURIOUS, adj. [injuie, Fr. from initia-ate.] The reception, admission, or entrance
Injure. adj. [from injure; injurious, Latin.]—Injurious. adj. [from injure, injurious, Latin.]

1. Command; order; precept. The institution of God's law is described as being established by solemn injunction. Hunter.

2. Law.] Injunction is an interlocutory degree out of the chancery, sometimes to give possession unto the plaintiff for want of appearance in the defendants, sometimes to the king's ordinary court, and sometimes to the court-christian, to stay proceeding. Coke.

To INJURE, v. n. [injure, injure, Latin.]—Injure, v. n. [from injure; injurious, Latin.]—Injury, n. s. [injure, injurious, Latin; injury, n.]

1. To hurt unjuuuly; to mischief underestimate; to wrong.

2. To annoy; to affect with any inconvenience.

3. Jusjurious. adj. [from injure; injurious, French.]

1. Unjust; invasive of another's rights. The influence of Roman did exist.

2. Injure, adj. [from injure; injurious, Latin; injury, Latin.]

1. Command; order; precept. The institution of God's law is described as being established by solemn injunction. Hunter.

2. Law.] Injunction is an interlocutory degree out of the chancery, sometimes to give possession unto the plaintiff for want of appearance in the defendants, sometimes to the king's ordinary court, and sometimes to the court-christian, to stay proceeding. Coke.

To INJURE, v. n. [injure, injure, Latin.]—Injure, v. n. [from injure; injurious, Latin.]—Injury, n. s. [injure, injurious, Latin; injury, n.]

1. To hurt unjustly; to mischief underestimate; to wrong.

2. To annoy; to affect with any inconvenience.

3. Injurjous. adj. [from injure; injurious, French.]

1. Unjust; invasive of another's rights. The influence of Roman did exist.
INN

The same name is given unto the inhabitants of this island.

To INLADYATE, v. a. [brand lipada, Lat.]
To make stony, to turn to stone.

To INLADYATE, v. a. [brand lipada, Lat.]
To make stony, to turn to stone.

To INLADYATE, v. a. [brand lipada, Lat.]
To make stony, to turn to stone.

To INLADYATE, v. a. [brand lipada, Lat.]
To make stony, to turn to stone.

To INLADYATE, v. a. [brand lipada, Lat.]
To make stony, to turn to stone.

INN. n. f. [Inn, Sax., a chamber.
8. A house of entertainment for travellers.

How all this but a fair inn,
Of fairer guests which dwell within.
Shakespeare.

The Weft yet glimmers with some tears of day,
Now parts the farther traveller's pace.
Shakespeare.

To INN. v. n. [from the noun.]
To inn.

To INN. v. a. to: to house; to put under cover.

He that earns my land, spares my train, and gives me leave to join the crop.
Shakespeare.

The laws made in that parlour did not bear good fruit, yet the bloody bare afe that perch'd on harth, and bitter, all was famed as lapp'd into the king's barn.
Housman's Henry VIII.

Now clover or yedge, and make it fit to inn.
Shakespeare.

INNKEEPER. n. f. [inn and keeper.]
One who keeps lodgings and provisions for the entertainment of travellers.

Clergymen must not keep a tavern, nor a judge be an innkeeper.
Shakespeare.

INNOCENCE. n. f. (innocent, Fr. innocente, Lati
1. Purity from injurious action, from untainted integrity.

SIMPLICITY and spots INNOCENCE.
Shakespeare.

INNOCENT. adj. (innocent, Fr. innocent, - Lat.)
1. Pure from mischief.

Something
You may deserve of him through me as well.
To offer up a week, poor, honest lady,
It standeth an angry woman that Echo.
Shakespeare.

Wreck on innocent frail man his life.
Milton.

2. Free from any particular guilt.

Good madam, keep yourself within yourself.
The man is innocent, Shakespeare. Act. III.
The man is innocent, Shakespeare. Act. III.

The sober, mean, and tell three lies.
With crooked plagues the fertile follows till
And the round year with daily labour fills.
Shakespeare.
The great

Sung innocent, and spent its force in air. Peps.

INNOCENT. n. F. [from innocent.]

1. One free from guilt or harm.

So pure an innocent as that same lamb. Foxy. 2.

Thou hast killed the sweetest innocent.

That e'er did lift up eye,

Shake. Osbals.

If with the man that he is executing,

Why, then thou art an executioner. Shake. H. VI.

2. A natural; an idiot.

Innocents are excluded by natural defects. Hooker.

INNOVATE. v. a. [innove, Fr. innovate, Lat.]

1. To bring in something not known before.

Men pursue some few principles which they have observed upon, and care not to innovate, which draws unknown inconveniences. Bacon.

2. To change by introducing novelties.

From his attempts upon the civil power, he proceeds to innovate God's worship. South.

INNOVATION. n. f. [innovation, Fr. from innovate.]

Change by the introduction of novelty.

The love of things ancient doth argue frugality; but levity and want of experience maketh us into innovators. Bacon.

It is good that men in innovations would follow the example of time itself, which indeed innovateth greatly, but quietly and by degrees. Bacon's Essays.

In any other case, you may make in a government the form continue; but large intervals of time must pass between every such innovation, enough to make it of a piece with the constitution. Swift.

INNOVATORS. n. s. f. [innovateur, Fr. from innovate.]

1. An introducer of novelties.

I attach thee as a trasfigurat innovator.

I will not apply new remedies, must expect new evils; for setting them up again is simply, and if time of course alters things to the worse, and willow and council shall not alter them to the better, what shall I do? Shaks. Measure for Measure.

2. One that makes changes by introducing novelties.

He counsels them to detect and persecute all innovators of divine worship. South.

INNOXIOUS. adj. [innocat, Lat.]

Vol. L

1. Free from mischievous effects.

Innoxious flames are often seen on the hair of men's heads and horses' manes.

We may easily, by suitable precautions, be forewarned, and of innoxious qualities. Brown's Vulgar Err. Sent by the better genius of the night, Innocious warning on the horse's mane, The meteor fits. Thomson's Autumn.

2. Pure from crimes.

Stranger to civil and religious page.

The good man walk'd innocuous through his age. Pope.

INNOXIOUSLY, adv. [from innocuous.]

1. Harmlessly; without harm done.

Without harm suffered.

Animals, that can innocuously digest their poisons, become antidote to the poison digested.

INNOXIOUSNESS. n. s. [from innocuous.]

Harmlessness.

INNOCU'NDO. n. s. [innundo, from innocuus, Latin.]

An oblique hint.

As if the commandments, that require obedience and forbid murder, were to be interpreted for a libels innocuous upon all the great men that come to be con cerned. L. Jaffe.

Mercury, though employed on a quite contrary errand, owns it a matter of innocence. Dryden.

Purse your trade of scandal-picking. Your hints that Stella is no chicken; Your innocuous, when you tell us, That Stella loves is a talk with felows. Swift.

INNOMERABLE. adj. [innumerous, Fr. innumerable, Lat.]

Not to be counted for multitude.

You have fast innumerable substance

To furnish Romans, and to prepare the ways

You have for dignities. Shakespeare's Henry VIII.

Cover me, ye pests, Ye cedars! with innumerable boughs.

Hide me where I may never find them more. Milton.

In lines, which appear of an equal length, one may be longer than the other by innumerable parts. Locke.

INNUMERABLY, adv. [from innumerable.]

Without number.

INUMEROUS. adj. [innumerous, Lat.]

Too many to be counted.

'Twould be some solece yet, some little cheering,

In this close dungeon of innocuous boughs. Milton.

And thick shelter of innocuous boughs. Milton.

Enjoy the comfort gentle sleep allows. Pope's Odys.

INOCULATE. v. a. [inocule, in and acule, Lat.]

To propagate any plant by infecting its bud into another stock; to practice inoculation. See INOCULATION.

Not the ways are alike in all.

To ingraft, howsoe'er inoculate. May's Virgil.

Now is the season for the budding of the orangene.

Inoculate therefore at the commencement of this month.

But various are the ways to change the state.

To plants, to bud, to graft, to inoculate. Dryden.

To inocul. v. a. To yield a bud to another stock.

Viruses cannot so inoculate our oldstock, but we shall relish of it. Shakespeare's Hamlet.

Thy stock is much too much out of date, For tender plants' inoculation. Cleveland.

Where lilies, in a lovely brown,

Inoculation-carnation. Cleveland.

INOCULATION. n. s. [inoculat, Lat. from inocule.]

1. inoculation is practiced upon all sorts of stone fruit, and upon oranges and jatmines. Choose a smooth part of the stock; then with your knife make an horizontal cut across the rind of the stock, and from the middle of that cut make a slit downwards about two inches in length in the form of a T; but be careful not to cut too deep, lest you wound the stock; then having cut off the leaf from the bud, leaving the footstalk remaining, make a cross cut about half an inch below the eye, and with your knife slit off the bud, with part of the wood to it. This done, with your knife pull off that part of the wood which was taken with the bud, observing whether the eye of the bud be left to it or not; for all those buds which lose their eyes in stripping are good for nothing; then raising the bars of the flock, thrust the bud therein, placing it smooth between the rind and the wood of the stock; and so having exactly fitted the bud to the stock, tie them closely round, taking care not to bind round the eye of the bud. Miller.

In the stem of Elaians they all met, and came to be ingrafted all upon one stock, most of them by inoculation. Herod.

2. The practice of transplanting the small-pox, by infusion of the matter from ripened pustules into the veins of the uninfect, in hopes of procuring a milder sort than what frequently comes by infection. Quincy.

It is evident, by inoculation, that the inimical quantity of the matter, mixed with the blood, produces the disease. Arbuthnot.

INOCULATOR. n. f. [from inoculate.]

1. One that practices the inoculation of trees.

2. One who propagates the small-pox by inoculation.

Had John a Gaddesen been now living, he would have been at the head of the inoculators. Friend's Hist. of Physick.

INODORATE. adj. [in and odoratus, Lat.]

Having no scent.

Whites are more inodorate than flowers of the same kind coloured. Bacon's Natural History.

INODOROUS, adj. [odoratus, Lat.]

Wanting scent; not affecting the nose.

The white of an egg is a viscous, unactive, insipid, odorless liquor. Blackwood on Aliments.

INOFFENSIVE. adj. [in and offensiva.]

1. Giving no scandal; giving no provocation.

A stranger, inoffensive, unpertinent. Fleetwood.

However inoffensive we may be in other parts of our conduct, if we are found wanting in this trial of our love, we shall be disowned by God as traitors. Rogers.

2. Giving no uncles; causing no torment.

Should infants have taken offence at anything, mixing pleasant and agreeable appearances with it, must be used, 'till it be grown inoffensive to them. Locke.

3. Harmless; hurtless; innocent.

For drink, the glass.

She cheers, inoffensive Virtue. Milton.

With what 'e' gaii thou let'st thyself to write, The inoffensive fancies never bite. Dryden.

Hark, how the cannon, inoffensive now, Gives signs of gratulation. Philipps.

4. Unembarrassed; without flop or obstruction. A Latin mode of speech.

From hence a passage broad, Smooth, infallible, down to hell. Milton.

INOFFENSIVELY, adv. [from inoffensive.]

Without appearance of harm; without harm.

INOFFENSIVENESS. n. s. [from inoffensive.]

Harmlessness; freedom from appearance of harm.

INOFFICIous. adj. [in and officious.]

Not civil;
INQ.

1. Judicial inquiry or examination.

What confusion of face shall we be under, when that grand inquest begins; when an account of our opportunities of doing good, and a particular of our use or misuse of them; is given to.

INQUEST, n. s. [inquist, French; inquisito, Latin.] 1. Inquest. 2. Inquisition.

INQUISTION, n. s. [inquisitio, Latin.] 1. Inquisition. 2. Inquest.

INQUISTIVE, adj. [inquisitivus, Latin.] Curious; busy in search; apt to pry into any thing: with about, after, into, or of, and sometimes to.

The which he call'd Canitium, for his hire, New Canitium, which Kent we commonly inquire.

INQUIRY, n. s. [from inquire.] 1. Interrogation; search by question.

The men which were sent from Corinthians had made inquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate.

2. Examination; searched.

This is not absolutely necessary in inquiries after philosophical knowledge, and in controversies about truth.

3. Inquisition; protestation; search by examination.

What satisfaction may be obtained from those violent disputes and vast inquiries into what day of the month the world began? Brown's Leg. Err. II. 2. It is good enough for the inquisitors who have a mind to.

4. Inquisition; protestation; search by examination.

And ithalf to the accepting hand. Dabney.

5. Inquiry; protestation; search by examination.

Superficial inquirers may satisfy themselves that the parts of matter are united by fragments.

6. Inquiry; protestation; search by examination.

Glanville's Seesix.

This is a question only of inquirers, not disputers, who neither affirm nor deny, but examine.

INQUIRY, n. s. [from inquire.]

1. Interrogation; search by question.

The men which were sent from Corinthians had made inquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate.

2. Examination; searched.

This is not absolutely necessary in inquiries after philosophical knowledge, and in controversies about truth.

INQUIRY, n. s. [from inquire.]

1. Interrogation; search by question.

The men which were sent from Corinthians had made inquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate.

2. Examination; searched.

This is not absolutely necessary in inquiries after philosophical knowledge, and in controversies about truth.

Eccles. Natural History.

[In law.] A manner of proceeding in matters criminal, by the office of the judge.

Counsel.

The court established in some countries subject to the pope for the detection of hereby.

One kilo of her's, and but eighteen words.

But down the Seesx with inquisition.

Counself.

INQUISTIVE, adj. [inquisitivus, Latin.] Curious; busy in search; apt to pry into any thing: with about, after, into, or of, and sometimes to.

My boy at eighteen years became inquisition.

After his brother.

This tended, together with fear of imminent mischief, have been the cause that the thirtieth were ever the most inquisitive people after news of any nation in the world.

INIE.

INQ.
he is not insatiable into the comfortables of indifferent and innocent commands. Taylor.
It can be no duty to write his heart upon his forehead and to give all the insatiable and malicious words of a corrupted mind, which it is the protection of God only to know. South.
His old smoking flax, insatiable of fight, still longs to vaio. Dryden.
when the Collick arms will do, Art anxiously insatiable to know. Dryden.
A Dutch ambassador attending the king of Spain with the particularities of Holland, which he was insatiable after, told him that the water would, in cold weather, be so hard, that men walked upon it.
The whole neighbourhood grew insatiable after my name and character. Addison's Spectator.
A wife man is not insatiable about things impermanent. Brow.
They cannot bear with the impertinent question of a young insatiable and spigot mind.
Wants to the Mind.
insatiably, adv. [from insatiate.]
With curiosity; with narrow scrutiny.
Inquisitiveness, n. s. [from inquisitive.]
Curiosity; diligence to pry into things hidden.
Though he thought insatiablest an uncomely beast, he could not talk with the war. Silsby.
Heights that are too high, and depths in which reason will never touch the bottom, yet fully the pleasure ariseth from those it is great and noble; for though we may, in such matter to the insatiabilities of human reason, and so are large enough for it to take its full scope and range in.
South's Sermon.
Provided, delivering great conclusions to inspire our curiosity and insatiabilities after the methods by which things were brought to pass.
Burnet.
Curiosity in children nature has provided, in order that ignorance they were born with; which, without this but insatiabilities, will make them the more, Locke.
Insatior. n. s. [inquisitor, Latin; inquisitive, French.]
1. One who examines judicially.
In these particulars I have played myself the insatior, and find nothing contrary to religion or manners, but rather medicinal. Bacon's Essay.
Minds, the first insatior, appears, and lives and crimes with his accusers bears.
Dryden.
An officer in the provincial courts of Inquisition.
To inquir. v. a. [in and rail.] To inquire with rails.
In things indifferent, what the whole church doth think convenient for the whole, the same if any part do willfully violate, it may be reformed and invaded again, by that general authority whereunto each particular is subject.
Hooker.
Where lust St. Giles's ancient limits spread, An insatior column rears its lofty head; Here to fav's streets for's dial count the day, And from each other catch the circling ray.
Gay.
instead, n. s. [in and road.]
Insurrection; sudden and自习ary invasion.
Would you many, and they make in Italy. Shakspeare, Act, and Cleopatra.
From Scotland we had in former times some alarms and dangers into the northern parts of this kingdom.
Bacon.
By proof we see.
Our poor sufficient to disturb his heav'n,s And perpetually into storms, to alarm, Though insatiable winds may, Milton.
The folk of Shrewsbury exposed all North Wales to the daily wards of the enemy. Clarendon.
The country open, fought without defense; For posts frequent wards there hath none. Dryden.
Insana. s. [insanus, Latin.]
1. Insane.
2. Making mad.
Were such not here as do speak about? Or have we eaten of the infame root?
That takes the reason profanet. Shakspeare, Macbeth.
Insatiable. adj. [insatiabilis, Latin; insatiable, French.] Greedy beyond measure; greedy so as not to be satisfied.
Insatiabilities, n. s. [from insatiable.]
Greediness not to be appraised.
Some men's hydropic insatiabilities had learned to thirst the more, by how much more they drank. King Charles.
Insatiably. adv. [from insatiable.]
With greedinesses not to be appraised.
They were extremely ambitious; and insatiably covetous; and therefore no imperiously, from argument or miracles, could reach them. South.
Insatiable. adj. [insatiabilitus, Lat.] Greedy so as not to be satisfied.
My mother went with child.
Of that insatiable Edward. Shakspeare, Rich. III.
Insatiate to pursue.
Wals with heavy.
Milton.
Too oft has pride, And heaven disdains, and insatiate thirst.
Of others rights, our quiet backward.
Philips.
Insatiable. n. s. [from and insatiable,
Any thing engraved.
Timon is dead.
Entomb'd upon the very hem o' th' seas;
And to the grave close this insatiable, which
With was I brought upon. Shakspeare, Timon.
It was usual to wear rings on either hand; but when precious gems and rich insculptures were added, the custom of wearing them was translated unto the left.
To ins Amen. v. a. [in and feem.] To impress or mark by a seam or cancells.
Deep o'er his knee insam'd remained the fear.
Fope.
Insect. n. s. [insecta, Lat.]
1. Insects may be considered together as one great tribe of animals: they are called insects from a separation in the middle of their bodies, whereby they are cut into two parts, which are joined together by a small ligature, as we see in wasps and common flies.
Locke.
Bear, bird, insect, or worm, swift enter none.
Milton.
2. Any thing small or contemptible.
In ancient times the-faced plough employ'd.
The kings, and awful fathers of mankind.
And some with whom the great insects tribes are but the beings of a summer's day.
Thought.
Insectator. n. s. [from insector, Latin.]
One that persecutes or harasses with pursuit.
D'Urf.
Insectile. adj. [from insect.] Having the nature of insects.
Insectile animals, for want of blood, run all into legs.
Bacon.
Insectologist. n. s. [insect and soy-] One who studies or describes insects. A word, I believe, unauthorized.
The insect is like, according to modern insects- of the ichneumon-fly kind.
Dorothy.
Insecure. adj. [in and secure.]
1. Not secure; not confident of safety.
He is liable to a great many inconveniences every moment of his life, and is continually insecure not only of the great things of this life, but even of this life.
Tullian.
2. Not safe.
Insecunry. n. s. [in and security.]
1. Uncertainty; want of confidence.
It may be easily perceived with what insecurity of truth we ascribe effects, depending upon the natural period of time, upon arbitrary calculations, and such as vary at pleasure.
Brown.
2. Want.
INS.

2. Want of safety; danger; hazard.
   The unreasonable and precipitate, the danger and deferent inscurity of those that have not so much as a thought, all their lives long, to advance so far as caution and circumspection, and reduction of ambition.

INSECURITatis. m. f. (insec upto, Fr. in-fere, Latiu.) The art of scattering fee on ground.

INSECURITatis. m. f. (insec unto, Fr. infecto, Latiu.) Pursuit. Not in use.
   Not the king's own horse got more before the end.
   Of his rich chariot, that might fill the inscure feel.
   With the extreme hairs of his tail. Chapman's Illiad.

INSENSIT. adj. [insens, French; insensate, Italian.] Stupid; wanting thought;
wanting sensibility.

Ye be reprovable; obdurate insensible creatures.
Hammond.
   So fond are mortal men,
   As their own ruin on themselves t' invite,
   Insensible left, or to fensc reprobate,
   And with blindness internal struck. Milton's Agon.

INSENSIBILLITatis. m. f. [insensible, French;
from insensible.]

1. Insolvency to perceive.
   Insolvency of low motions may be thus accounted for motion cannot be perceived without perception of the parts of space it left, and those which it next acquired.
   Gronovius.

2. Stupidity; dulness of mental perception.

3. Corpulence; dulness of corporeal senes.

INSENSIBILIS. adj. [insensible, French.]

1. Imperceptible; not discoverable by the senses.
   What is that word honour? air; a trim recking.
   Who hath it? he that died a Wednesday.
   Dost he feel it no? Dost he hear it no. Is it insensible than? yea, to the dead. But will it not live with the living? no. Why? distraction will not suffer it. Shakespeare.
   The small and almost insensible grains were found upon Cleopatra's arm. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
   The darts and light bright of the circle will observe the rare and weak light of those dark colours round about it, and render them almost insensible.
   Newton's Opticks.

2. Slowly gradual, so that no progress is perceived.
   They fill away.
   And languish with insensible decay. Dryden.

3. Void of feeling; either mental or corporal.
   Ithough
   I was falling to my former state
   Insensible and forthwith to dissolve. Milton Allowing an obligation without being a slave to the giver, or insensible of his kindred. Wotton.

2. Void of emotion or affection.
   You grow insensible to the convenience of riches,
the delights of honour and praise.
   Temple.
   In this manner mankind insensible to their bounders, and have destroyd the empire of love.
   Dryden.

INSENSIBILITY. m. f. [from insensible.]
   Absence of perception; inability to perceive.
   The insensibility of the pain proceeds rather from the relaxation of the nerves than their obliteration.

INSSENSIBILITatis. m. f. [from insensible.]

1. Imperceptibility; in such a manner as is not discover ed by the senses.
   The planet earth, so football though the form,
   Insensible of three different motions moves.
   Milton.
   The hills rise insensible, and leave the eye a wait interrupted progress.
   Addison on Italy.

2. By slow degrees.
   Equal they were form'd,

INS.

Save what sin hath impair'd, which yet hath wrought
   Insensibly.
   Proposals agreeable to our passions will insensibly prevail upon our reason. Rogers's Sermons.
   Cudius
   Insensibly came on her side.
   Swift.

3. Without mental or corporeal senes.

INSEPARABILITatis. m. f. [from insensable.]

1. The quality of being such as cannot be severed or divided.
   The parts of pure space are immovable, which follows from their inseparable, motion being nothing but change of distance between any two things:
but this cannot be between parts that are insensible.
   Locke.

INSEPARABLE. adj. (inseparable, French; inscapabiiis, Latin.) Not to be disjoined;
United as to not be parted.
Ancient times figure both the incorporation and inseparable conjunction of soul and body, and the public soul of counsel by kings. Bacon.

Thus, my flade
   Insensible, must with me along;
   For death from fin no power can separate.
   Milton.
   Care and toll came into the world with fin, and remain ever since insensible from it. Locke.
   No body feels pain, that he within not to be called of, with a define equal to that pain, and insensible from Locke.
   The parts of pure space are inseparable one from the other, so that the continuity cannot be separated, neither really nor mentally.
   Locke.
   Together out they fly,
   Insensible now the truth and lie;
   And this or that unintack'd mortal e'er shall find.
   Pope.

INSEPARABLY. adv. [from insensible.]
   With indissoluble union.
   Brawsoning of metals in, when the better metal is so incorporate with the more rich as it cannot be separated; as if silver should be insensibly incorporated with gold. Bacon.
   Ilum thou shalt enjoy,
   Insensibly thine.
   Reflection of mind seems insensibly annexed to human understanding. Temple.
   Altith muff confess, that before that affilged period matter had existed eternally, inseparably ended with the principle of attraction; and yet had never attracted or not conveyed before, during that infinite duration. Berkeley.

INSERT. v. a. [interior, Fr. inter, insertum, Latin.] To place in or amongst other things.

Those words were very weakly inserted, where they are so liable to misconstruction. Stillingfleet.
   With the worthy gentleman's name I will insert it at length in one of my paper.
   Addison.
   It is the editor's interest to insert what the author's judgment had rejected. Swift.
   Poety and oratory omit things not essential, and insert little enough; so that may be prescribed, in order to place everything in the most alluring light. Wordsworth.

INSERTION. m. f. [insertion, Fr. inter-fusio, Latin.]

1. The act of placing any thing in or amongst other matter.
   The great advantage our historians labour under is too reduc'd in an interjection, by the incompleteness of records in their narration. Milton on the Classics.
   An excerpt, commonly called the twining of the guts, is either a circumstantial or insertion of one part of the history into another. Arbuthnot.

2. The thing inserted.
   He softens the relation by such insertions, before he describes the event. Browne.

To INSERT. v. a. [interior, Latin.] To be of use to any.
   INSERTION. m. f. [interior, Latin.]
   Conductive; of use to an end.

INS.

The providence of God, which dispensed of so part in vanity, where there is no discretion to be made,
makes not any parts indifferent to that intention.
Browne.

To INSIST. v. a. [in and insist.] To hide
in a shell. Not in use.
   Austria, hearing of our Marcus's banishment,
   Thrust forth his horns again into the world,
   Which were not two when Marcus, stood for Rome,
   But when once deep out of the sea. Cato.

To INSIST. v. a. [in and insist.] To shut in a ship; to stop, to embargo. Not used.
   We say simly to shiop.
   See them safely brought to Dover; where, in

To INSIST. v. a. [in and insist.] To include in a firme or precious cafe. It is written equos Kore.
   Warlike and martial Talbot, Burghundy
   Inseription thine in his heart. Shaksp. Henry VI.
   Equall'd in all its glosses, to infirime
Belus. Milton.

INSIDE. m. f. [in and side.] Interior part;
part within. Opposed to the surface or outside.

Look to be o'the inside of the paper?
   He did understand. Shaksp. Henry VIII.
   Show the inside of your parts to the outside of his hand, and no more also. Shaksp. Winter's Tale.
   It is not the outside of the one, the inside of the other, and there's the moiety I promised ye.
L'Estrange.
   As for the inside of their cell, none that them-selfs were concerned in it. Addison's Guardian.

INSIGNIFICANCE. m. f. [Latin.]

One who lives in wait.

INSIGNIOUS. adj. [infideus, French; in-sidestus, Latin.] Sly; circumventive;
diligent to entrap; treacherous.
   Since men mark all their steps, and watch our halts, et each of their ingenuous vigilance excite us so to behave ourselves, that they may find a conviction of the mighty power of Christliness towards regu-larizing the passions. Athanasius.
   They wing their course,
   And dart on distant coasts, if some sharp rock,
   Or these insinious, breaks not their career. Thomson.

INSIDIOUS. adv. [from insidious.] In a fly, and in a treacherous manner; with malicious artifice.
   The caille of Cadmus was taken by Phichas the Lacedemonian insinuous, and in violation of league.
   Senecc.

   Simeon and Levi spoke not only falsely but insidiously, nay hypocritically, abusing their profecyes and their religion, for the effecting their cruel defigns. Government of the Tongue.

INSIGHT. m. f. [insideus, Dutch.] This word had formerly the accent on the lafit syll.
   Introspection; deep view; knowledge of the interior parts; thorough skill in any thing.

   Hardly shepherl, such as thy merit, such may be her insight fullly to grant her reward. Sidney.

   Strange beat with careful diligence
   To fetch a leech, the which had great insight
   In that disease of grievous conclusion.
   And well could cure the same; his name was Patience. Spenser.

   Now will be the right season of forming them to be able writers, when they shall be thus taught with an universal insight into things.
   Milton.

   They are seen in those parts of knowledge, which are not a man's proper business, is to acquaint our minds to all sorts of ideas.
   Locke.

   A garden gives us great insight into the contri-buitions and addition of providence, and finds immu-nable subjects of meditation. Spontinse.

   Due consideration, and a deeper insight into things, would soon have made them sensible of their error.
   Woodward.
Insignificant. n.f. [significance; Fr. Insignifiance.]

1. Want of meaning; unmeaning terms. To give an account of all the insignificances and verbal nothingness of this philosophy, would be to transcribe the Garden of Paradise.

2. Unimportance. As I was ruminating on that I had seen, I could not forbear reflecting on the insignificance of human art, when I in comparison with the design of Providence, and the Grand Architect. My amends in modesty wou'd make.

With such insignificance of thought. Croce.

Insignificant. adj. [in and significant.]

1. Wanting meaning; void of significations. "When you can weigh and gravity explain, Those words are insignificant and vain. Blackmore.

2. Unimportant; wanting weight; ineffectual. This sense, though supported by authority, is not very proper. That I might not be vexed down by insignificance of testimonies, I proceeded to give the great name of your company to annihilate all such arguments. Glanv.

Calumny robs the publick of all that benefit it may derive, claim from the worth and virtue of particular persons, by rendering their virtue utterly insignificant. South.

3. Arguments to a good life will be very insignificant to a man that has a mind to be wicked, when remission of sin may be had under cheap terms. Tillson.

Nothing can be more contemptible and insignificant than the countenance of a people, ingenuously ingenuous. Addison.

Insignificantly, adv. [from insignificant.]

1. Without meaning. Birds are taught to the articulate words, yet they understand not their import, but use them significantly, as the organ or pipe renders the tune which it understands not. Hume.

2. Without importance or effect.

Insigne. adj. [in-seen, Lat. in and signiferus.]

1. Not what he appears; not hearty; dissembling; unhandsome; of persons.

2. Not found; corrupted; of things.

Ah why, Pericles, this caufeth fear. To render th'exp't's fine sensations insignificant? All the devotions of men's later extreme, the day refection and the midnight dream. Pope.

Insignificancy. n.f. [from insignificant.] Diffimilation; want of truth or fidelity.

If men should always act under a mask, and in disguises, that indeed betrays design and ingenuity. Bacon.

To insinuate, v. a. [in and sinue.] To strengthen; to confirm. A word not used.

All members of our cause.

That thing insignificant was the action. Shaks.

Insineuate. adj. [French.] Having the power to gain favour.

Men not to quick perhaps of conceits as slow to passions, and commonly less inventive than judicious, however prove very plausible, insignificant, and fortunate men.

To insinuate, v. a. [insinuare, Fr. insinuer, Fr. insinuer, Latin.]

1. To introduce anything gently. The water easily insinuates itself and placidly diffuses itself much without the appearance of goodselves, whereby to insinuate itself. Locke.

2. To push gently into favour or regard; commonly with the reciprocal pronoun.

There is no particular evil which hath not the appearance of goodselves, whereby to insinuate itself. Locke.

Insignificantly. adv. [from insignificant.]

1. Want of taste.

2. Want of life or spirit.

Dryden's lines shine strongly through the insigni-

The Insinuators. n.f. [from insinuare.]

1. Want of taste.

2. Want of life or spirit.

Dryden's lines shine strongly through the insigni-

Insipid. adj. [insipide, French; insipidus, Latin.]

1. Wanting taste, wanting power of affecting the organs of guilt.

Some earths yield, by distillation, a liquor very far from being medicinal or insipid. Boyle.

Our father devotes them to his own use, to the education of his children. The day reflection and the midnight dream. Pope.

2. Dulness, dullness, dulness; dull; dully; heavy.

The goods of this world to the use of the world. Insipidity. n.f. [insipide, Fr. from insignis; insipidus, Latin.]

1. Want of taste.

2. Want of life or spirit.

Dryden's lines shine strongly through the insigni-

Insipidity. adj. [from insipid.] Without taste.

2. Dully; without spirit.

One great reason why many children abandon themselves wholly to folly, and lose all their time insipidly, because they have found their curiosity satisfied. Locke.

Insipidness. n.f. [insipiditas, Latin.] Folly; want of understanding.

To insipid. v.n. [insipere, French; insipere, Latin.]

1. To stand or reft upon.

The combos being described, the cells in each side the port-part are so ordered, that the angles on one side insipid upon the centers of the bottom of the cells on the other side. Ray.

2. Not to recede from terms or affections; to pertifin.

Upon such large terms, and so absolute. At our conditions shall insipid upon.

Our peace shall stand firm as rocky mountains. Shaks.

3. To dwell upon in discourse.

They were there no other act of hostility but that which we have hitherto insipid upon, the intercepting of her supplies were irreparably injurious to her.

Decay of Pity. Insipience. n.f. [insipere, Latin.] Retaining upon any thing.

The breach of the subtruction must be at least double to the insipid well. Warner.

Insipience, n.f. [in sipere, in sipere, Latin.] Exception from that.

What is more admirable than the ftreets of every creature for the use we make of him? The delicacy of the voluptuous and the infignificancy of a camel for travelling in deserts. Bucch.

Insipid. n.f. [insipere, Latin.] The infeftion or ingraining of one branch into another.

Without the uses of thefe we could have nothing of culture or civility: no tilage, grafting on infipid.

Insipidity. n.f. [from insipid.] This word means in Shakespeare to signify confancy or regularity, but is now not used.

The heavens themselves, the planets, and the obvius.

Observe degrees, priority, and place.

Insipers, courts, proportion, lesson form, office and collum, in all line of order. Shaks.

Insipid. v. a. [in and siper.] To eat or drink.

To eat or drink to catch in a trap, garn, or snare; to inveigle.

Why Bresh'd thou sugar on that botted spider. Whole deadly web insipid thee about. Shaks.

She insipid.

Mankind with their fast looks. Milton.

By long experience Durery may no doubt insipid a generous, or perhaps a ruff; though Dryden once exclaimed in partial spite; he fib! — because the man attempts to write.

Fenton.

2. To intangle in difficulties or perplexities.

That which in a great part, in the weighty causes belonging to this present controversy, hath insipid the judgment both of fundry good and of some well learned men, is the manifest truth of certain general principles, wherupon the ordinances that ferer for usual practice in the church of God are grounded.

That the hypocrite reign not, let the people be insipid.

Job, xxx. 30.

3. Insipid is more frequent.

Insipid. n.f. [from insipere.] He that insipid.

Insubordinate. adj. [inseparable, French; inseparabilis, Latin.]

1. Averse from conversation.

If this sunder inseparable life Change not your offer made in heat of blood. Shaks.

2. Incapable of connexion or union.

The lowest ledge or row must be merely of those closely laid, without mortar, which is a general caution for all parts in building that are contiguous to board or timber, because lime and wood are inseparable. Wotton's Architectura.
INSCRIPTION. n. f. [inscription, from insolate.] Exposition to the sun.

To INScribe, v. a. [inscribe, Latin.] To engrave or write, as with a pen or pencil, on a stone or other substance; to compose or arrange, as a poem or other work; to place in a book or register.

INSOLENT. adj. [insolence, Latin.] 1. Not amenable to the laws, or to the authority of a court of justice; guilty of armed resistance, or of other crimes.

INSOLVENT. adj. [in solvo, Latin.] Unable to pay.

IN SOLEMNI. adv. [in solvo, Latin.] In a solemn manner.

INSOLVENCY. n. f. [insolvent,可以看出 Latin.] Inability to pay debts. An act of insolvent is a law by which imprisoned debtors are released without payment.

INSOLENT. adj. [insolence, Latin.] Pride excelled in contemptuous and overbearing treatment of others; petulant contempt.

INSOLENTLY, adv. [insolence, Latin.] With contempt of others; haughtily; overbearing.

IN SOLEMN. adj. [in solvo, Latin.] Solemnly, with gravity and dignity.

INSOLUBLE. adj. [in solvo, Latin.] Difficult to be solved; incapable of being resolved into its elements.

INSOLVABLE. adj. [in solvo, Latin.] Difficult to be solved; incapable of being resolved into its elements.

INSOLVENT. adj. [in solvo, Latin.] Unable to pay.

INSPIRATION. n. f. [from inspire.] 1. The act of drawing in the breath.

INSPIRING. adj. [inspire, Latin.] Inspiring, full of inspiration.

INSPIRIT. v. a. [inspire, Latin; inspi're, French.] To draw in the breath; opposed to expire.

INSPIRED. adj. [inspire, Latin; inspi're, French.] Proceeding from the influence of a higher power; inspired; moved by a divine influence.

INSPIRATION. n. f. [from inspire.] 1. The act of drawing in the breath.

In any inspiration of the diaphragm, the symptoms are a violence to the mind, and an equal exercise carried on to a high degree, which the greater pain is in ex-

INSPRIRE. v. a. [inspire, Latin; inspire, French.] To draw in the breath; opposed to expire.

INSPIRED. adj. [inspire, Latin; inspire, French.] Proceeding from the influence of a higher power; inspired; moved by a divine influence.

INSPIRATION. n. f. [from inspire.] 1. The act of drawing in the breath.

In any inspiration of the diaphragm, the symptoms are a violence to the mind, and an equal exercise carried on to a high degree, which the greater pain is in ex-
The ease or difficulty of an action, though it be not of itself an argument for or against it, may be very proper to be considered in the determination of it, for the determination of a cause is by the arguments presented to the judge, who takes them into consideration with those of the parties, and the arguments of the counsel, and his opinion is determined by the weight of the evidence and the force of the argument. Shakspeare.

Injustice. n. [from injustice.] The act of doing any unjust thing.

The act of willing the injustice of the air.

A beast of burden is a beast used for carrying burdens.

Inflation. n. [inflatable, from inflation.] The act of giving weight to a body.

The act of giving weight to a body, by placing it on or off a proper scale.

Upon the eleventh the bishop gives a mandate for his inflation.

Instalment. n. [from instal.] The act of giving payment for a service.

1. The act of instalment.

It is not easy.

To make a book William Hasting's of our mind, for the instalment of mild duke.

1. The feast in which one is instilled.

To feast with the best of the body, and to be instilled with the best of the body.

To feast with the best of the body, and to be instilled with the best of the body.

2. Immediate; without any time intervening; present.

Our good friend, below.

Your needful care to your beholders.

Which came in the best of the body.

This past stroke of death, done, and the body in the best of the body.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.

Nor can I do it.
The caliga was a military shoe with a very thick sole, tied above the instep with leather thongs.

To INSTITUTE, &c. To urge to ill; to provoke or incite to a crime.

INSTIGAT. o. a. [infligat, Lat. instillare, Fr.]. To urge to ill; to provoke or incite to a crime.

INSTIGAT'ION. o. s. [infligat, French, from infligat.] Incitation to a crime; encouragement to the impulse to ill.

Why, what need we

COMMUNE with you of this? But rather follow

Either the eagerness of acquiring, or the revenge of mistaking dignitaries, has been the great infligators of ecclesiastical feuds.

Bacon.

Shall any man, that wilfully procures the cutting of a single arm or leg, set up for an innocent? As if the lives that were taken away by his infligation were not to be charged upon his account.

We have an abridgment of all the barnefins and valiant that both the corruption of nature and the infligation of the devil could bring the fons of men to.

INSTIGATOR. o. s. [infligat, Fr. from infligat.] Inciter to ill.

That sea of blood is enough to drown in eternal miliery the malicious author or infligator of its effusion.

Shakespeare.

Either the eagerness of acquiring, or the revenge of mistaking dignitaries, have been the great infligators of ecclesiastical feuds.

Bacon.

Neither musical nor proper, was perhaps introduced by Bentley.

What native unconnected beauty must be infligated and inflamed through the whole, the whole dejection of so many parts by a bed printer and a work editor could not hinder from shining forth!

Here let us breathe, and truly Profuse to Milton.

INSTINCTIVE, adj. [from infligat.] Acting without the application of choice or reason; rising in the mind without apparent cause.

Rain'd

By quick instigat'ion motion, up springs,

A thought that shews our nature to; Milton.

It will be natural that Ulysses's mind should forebode; and it appears that the infligat'ion preface was a favourite opinion of Homer's.

Browne.

INSTINCTIVELY, adv. [from instinc'}.

By infligated; by the call of nature.

The very rats

Inflectingly had quitted it. Shakespeare, Temper.

To INSTITUTE. o. s. [infligat, institutum, Lat. institutus, Fr.]

1. To fix; to establish; to appoint; to enact; to settle; to prescribe.

God therefore has a law natural to be observed by creatures; and therefore, according to the manner of laws, the institution thereof is described as being established by solemn institution.

Holker.

A course of learning, and ingenious studies.

Shakespeare.

To the production of the effect they are determined by the laws of nature, institutus and impressed on them by inimitable wisdom.

Hall.

The corya of the Jews was instituted by God himself.

Shakespeare.

To institute a court and country party without materials, would be a very new system in politics.

Swift.

To educate; to instruct; to form by instruction.

If children were early instructed, knowledge would instinctively infuse itself.

Decay of Piety.

INSTITUTE, o. s. [institutus, Fr. institutum, Lat.]

1. Established law; settled order.

This law, though custom now directs the course, as nature's institutus, is yet in force, uncanseled, though diffused.

Dryden.

2. Precept; maxim; principle.

Thou art safe in mighty studies grown,

To make the Socrates instruct you the whole.

Dryden.

INSTITUTION. o. s. [infligat, institutum, French; institutus, Lat.]

1. Act of establishing.

2. Establishment; settlement.

The institution of God's Law is described as being established by solemn institution.

Holker.

It becomes, however, to be the way of salvation to all, that the institution and reformation of the world might be both wrought with one hand.

Holker.

This unlimited power placed fundamentally in the body of a people, is what legislators have endeavoured, in their several schemes or institutions of government, to depot in such hands as would prevent the people.

Swift.

3. Positive law.

They quarrel sometimes with the execution of laws, and sometimes with the institution.

Temple.

The holiness of the first fruits and the lamp is a holiness merely of institution, outward and nominal; whereas the holiness of the root is a holiness of nature, inherent and real.

Atterbury.

The law and institution founded by Moses was to establish religion, and to make mercy and peace known to the whole earth.

Forbes.

4. Education.

After baptism, when it is in infancy received, proceeds instruction and institution in the nature and several branches of the word, which was made at the font, and in a short intelligible manner.

Hammond.

It is a necessary piece of providence in the institution of our children, to train them up to something in the youth, that may honestly entertain them in their age.

L'Estrange.

Hustiering was not the effect of precept or institution.

Bentley.

INSTITUTIONARY. adj. [from institution.

Elemental; containing the first doctrines, or principles of doctrine.

That it was not out of fashion Aristotle declared in his politics, among the institutionary rules of Nature.

Hiller.

INSTITUTER. o. s. [instructus, French; institutionar.

1. An effectual; one who settles.

It might have succeeded a little better, if it had pleased the institutions of the civil months of the face to have ordered them alternately odd and even.

Holden in Times.

2. Instructor; educator.

The two great ails which every institution of youth should mainly and intentionally strive after.

Hiller.

INSTITUTER. o. s. [instructus, French; institutionar.

2. To teach, to form by precept; to inform authoritatively; to educate; to institute; to direct.

Out of heaven he made thee to hear his voice; that he might instruct thee.

Deut. xvi. 5.

His God and God him to diligence, and doth teach them the way.

Ex. xxiii. 26.

Chenanch, chief of the Levites, instructed about the songs, because he was skilled.

1 Chron. xiv. 22.

Thus approach the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law.

Rom. xi. 18.

Instruct me, for thou knowest.

Milton.

He ever by consulting at thy shrine

Return'd the wise, or the more instruct.

To give or follow what concerns him most.

Milton.

It has commonly in before the thing taught.

They that were instructed in the songs of the Lord were carried on the作l. fourcorn and eight.

1 Chron.

There are the things wherein Solomon was instructed for building of the house of God.

2 Chron.

3. To model; to form. Little in use.

They speak to the merits of a cause, after the postor has prepared and instructed the same for a hearing before the judge.

Agell.

INSTRUCTER. o. s. [from instruct.] A teacher; an instructor; one who delivers precepts or imparts knowledge.

It is often written INSTRUCTOR.

Though you have ten thousand instructors in Christ.

1 Cor. iv. 15.

After the Flood arts to Chalderfell.

The father of the faithful there did dwell,

Who both his parent and instructor was.

Ancient.

O thou
There is one thing to be considered concerning reason, which is, that it may be the proper instrument of its, and the useful way of exercising this faculty.

1. One who acts only to serve the purposes of 3.

He fearfully knew what was done in his own chamber, but as it pleased him to framestruments to themselves.

All the instruments which added to excape the child, were every one else when it was found. Stick.

In benefits as well as injuries, it is the principal that we are to consider, not the instrument; that which a man does by another, is to truth his own act.

The bold are but the instruments of the wife. They undertake the danger they advise. Dryden.

INSTRUMENTAL. adj. [Instrumen-, Latin.] 4.

Conducive as means to some end; organical.

All second and instrumental causes, without that operative faculty which God gave them, would become altogether silent, vain, and dead. Raleigh.

Prayer, which is instrumental to all things, hath particular promiss in this thing. Taylor.

It is not an essential part of religion, but rather an appendage to instrumental duty. Small. Small.

I discern some excellent final causes of the conjunction of body and soul; but the instrument / A know not, what invisible bands and fettles unite human and soul. Bentley.

2. Acting to some end; contributing to some purpose; helpful: used of persons and things.

The preteritory merit is of little weight, when they allege themselves instrumental towards the revelation. Swift.

3. Confiting not of voices but instruments; produced by instruments, not vocal.

They which, under presence of the law ceremonial abrogated, require the abolition of instrumen- metal, approve nevertheless the use of vocal melody to remain, must have some reason, wherefore the one should be thought a legal ceremony and not the other. Hooper.

Ot in bands, While they keep watch, or nightly rounding walk, With heavily touch of instrumental sounds In full harmonious manner joint'd, their songs Divide the night, and let our thoughts to heaven. Milton.

Sweet voices, mist with instrumental sounds, Acrost the vaulted roof, the vaulted root rebooms.

Dyden.

INSTRUMENTALITY. n. f. [Instrumen-tal, Fr.]

Subordinate agency; agency of any thing as means to an end.

Those natural and voluntary actions are done not by deliberation and formal command, yet they are done by the virtue, energy, and influx of the soul, and the instrumentality of the spirits. Hall.

INSTRUMENTALLY. adv. [Instrumen-
at, Fr.]

In the nature of an instrument; as means to an end.

Men's activity being here in this life is but instrumentally good, as being the means for him to be well in the next life. Dryg.

Historical preparation for the factament confuits in a flowing, peremptory habit, or principle of holiness, wrought chiefly by God's spirit, and instrumentally by his word, in the heart or soul of man. South.

INSTRUMENTALNESS. n. f. [Instrumenat.]

Usefulness as means to an end.

The instrumentality of riches to work of charity, has rendered it very political, in every Christian government, by laws to settle and secure property. South.

INSTRUIMENT, n. f. [Instrumen-
at, Fr.]

A tool used for any work or purpose.

If he confine with an instrument of iron, so that he die, he is a murderer. Num. xxxv. 16.

What artificial frame, what instrument, Did once a prayer or grace invent? Addison.

Which to the natures is prefer'd? Blackmore.

Box useful for turners and instrument makers. Merriam.

2. A frame constructed so as to yield harmonious sounds.

He that striketh an instrument without skill, may cause notwithstanding a very pleasant sound, if the player se that he striketh to chance to be capable of harmony. Hooper.

She took it most delight
In music, instrumen and poetry. Shakespeare.

In music, you have both a voice, a hand, and a heart. Nor, mist in music, in your pleasant pleasures flare, But when songs and instrument he heart.

Dyden.

3. A writing containing any contract or order.

He called Edna his wife, and took paper, and did write an instrument of covenants, and sealed it. Tituba.

4. The agent. It is used of persons as well as things, but of persons very often in an ill sense.

If haply, you my father do instruct, An instrument of this your calling back, Lay your blame on me. Shaksp. Othello.

5. That by means whereof something is done.

The gods would not have delivered a soul into the body which hath arms and legs, only instruments of war, that it were intended the mind should employ them. All voluntary self-denials and authorities which Christianity commands become necessary, not simply for themselves, but as instruments towards a higher end. Reputation is the smallest sacrifice those can make us, who have been the instruments of our mind. Swift.

The one is oppried with constant heat, the other with unbearable cold. Brown's Burial Brevirs.

Eyes that confide that horn for kindly fire, So fierce they flash their inflammable day.

Though great light be inflammable to our eyes, yet the highest degree of darkness does not at all dif- tate them; because the human imagination, leaves that curious organ unharmed. Locke.

2. Detestable; contemptible; disfiguring beyond endrance.

The method of submitting those who daily besh the world with those infirmities, must be so de- cured from writing any more. Dryden.

INSTRUMENTALITY, adv. [Instrumen-
at, Fr.]

To a degree beyond endrance.

They make them at their hands, the while their infirmities, but who was not also infirmities proud. South.

INSTRUMENTALITY, n. f. [Instrumen-
at, Fr.]

Inadequateness to any end or purpose want of requisite size or power; unfit of things and person.

The mind's speech or infirmities, which to that nature, indeed to the rest, must needs in this place as a dangerous weapon to be of every common prayer hath nothing to do. Dryden.

The infirmities of the light of nature are lighted and supported, that sinks, rather than that this added, these do not offend that end. Hume.

We will give you keep drinks, that your fender, unintelligent of our infirmities, may, though they cannot praise us, as with accusing us. Hume.

Though experience has discovered their defect and infirmities, I did certainly conclude them to be infaluable. Atharby.

Confider the less made use of to this purpose, and flew the infirmities and weaknesses of them. South.

INSTRUMENT, adj. [Instrumenat, Latin; in and inuic-] Inadequate to any need, use, or purpose; wanting abilities; incapable; unfit.

The bishop to whom they shall be prefented, may justly reject them as incapable and infirm.

We are weak, dependant creatures, infirm of heart to our own happiness, full of wants which of ourselves cannot relieve, exposed to a numerous train of evils which we know not how to defend. Regen.

Fedding falls by the bad flate, not by the inferior quality of ful. Abelard on Aliments.

INSTRUMENT, adv. [Instrumen-
at, Fr.]

With want of proper ability; not skillfully.

INSTRUMENTATION. n. f. [In and ingu-]

The act of breathing upon.

Imposition of hands is a current of parents in blessing their children, but taken up by the apostles instead of that divine infirmity which Christ used. Hume.

INSCRIPTION, n. [Inscript, French; inscrut-

Latin; belonging to an island.

The islands, being surrounded with the sea, is hardly to be invaded, having many other infirmities advan-

Tions. South.
INT

Take the fortune seriously, because trifles are an insult on the unfortunate. Broom on the Olympos.

Insult. n. [infanter, French; in- from Latin. Latin.]

1. To treat with infirmity or contempt. It is used sometimes with ever, sometimes without a preposition.

The poet makes his hero, after he was gluttoned by the death of Hector, and the honour he did his friends by Tiberius. to be moved by the tears of king Priam. Pope.

2. To trample upon; triumph over.

It pleased the king of his matter very lately.

Overly, at my misfortune.

Trited me behind; being down, insulted, railed, and

And put upon him such a deal of man.

That wothed him.

So kap the insulting fire his narrow jail,

And makes small outlets into open air.

Dyden.

Even when they sing at ease in full content.

Insulting to the fire they underwent,

Yet tell they find a future talk remain,

To turn the foil.

Dyden's Virgil.

Insulter. n. [from insult.] One who treats another with insolent triumph.

The monk, the merceds insolbear man.

Man, who rejoises in our feet's weakness.

Shall pity thee.

Rove's Jane Shore.

Insultingly. adv. [from insulting.] With contemptuous triumph.

Insultingly, he made your love his boast.

Gave me my life, and told me what it cost.

Dyden.

Insuperable, adj. [from insuperable.] The quality of being invincible.

Insuperable, adj. [insuperabili, Lat.]

1. Inivincible; insuperable; not to be conquered; not to be overcome.

This appears to be an insuperable objection, because of the evidence that send them in tor. Digneon Bades.

Much might be done, would we but endeavour; nothing is insuperable to pains and patience. Roy.

And middle nature; how they long to join,

Yet ever past the insulting line.

Pope.

Insuperableness. n. s. [from insuperable.]

Invincible; implausibility to be surmounted.

Insuperably. adv. [from insuperable.] Insusceptible; not to be endured.

A difference put upon a man in company is insuperable; it is heightened according to the greatness,

And multiplied according to the number, of the persons that hear. Stho.

The safer the enemy are, the more insuperable is the influence.

The thought of being nothing after death is a burden insuperable to a virtuous man; we naturally aim at happiness, and cannot bear to have it confined to our present being. Dyden.

To think that dwell under or near the equator this earth is a most pettiff and insuperable Snawer; and as for those countries that are nearer the Poles, a perpetual Spring will not do their business.

Insuperableness. n. s. [from insuperable.]

Insuperable; beyond endurance.

Then fell the to-puff a declaration of the insuperableness of her defect, that Dorus's ears pro- cured his eyes with tears to give testimony how much nicer for her other eye.

Insuperably. adv. [from insuperable.]

Beyond endurance.

But fail he, who stood aloof,

When vengeance, in his foot advanced;

In form of their proud arms, and warlike tools,

Spurn'd them to death by troops. Milton's Agitatet.

The first day's audience fully confirmed it, nor

That this poem was insuperably too long. Dyden.

Insurmountable. adj. [insuperable, Fr. in- and surmountable.] Insuperable; unconquerable.

This difficulty is insuperable, till I can make simple allowance for the sense.

Hope thinks nothing difficult, defies tell us, that difficulty is insuperable.

Watts.

Insurmountably. adv. [from insuperable.]

Insurmountably. Insuperably; unconquerable.

Insurrection. n. s. [insurgere Latin.] A feitical rising; a rebellious commotion.

Between the acting of a dreadful thing.

And the first motion, all the intial is

Like a pantomima, or a hideous dream:

The genius and the mode of instruments.

Are then in concert, and the state of man,

Like to a little kingdom, suffer then

This yoga, and time, made insurrection against kings, and that rebellion and fedition have been made therein. Estar.

There shall be an insurrection upon thee that fear the gods.

Infusions of base people are commonly more furious in their beginnings. Bacon's Essay VIL.

The trade of Rome had like to have produced another great broke by an insurrection in Egypt. Arbeatur.

Insurrection. n. s. [insurgere, Latin.]

The act of whispering into something.

Quite.

Insurrectionally, adj. [in and insurrection.] Not perceptible to the touch.

Dicks.

Intaglio. n. s. [Italian.] Anything that has figures cut in it.

We meet with the figures which Juvenal desoribes on antique intaglios and medals. Addison on Italy.

Intastable. adj. [in and tostes.]

Not raising any fennations in the organs of taste.

A word not elegant, nor used.

Something which is indivisible, insuperable, and insensible, as existing only in the fancy, may produce a pleasure superior to that of sense. Grew.

Integer. n. s. [Latin.]

The whole of any thing.

As, only signified a piece of money, but any integer from whence is derived the word are, of unit.

Grew's Museum.

It is a thing considered as comprising all its constituent parts.

A local motion kept in bodies integral, and their parts together.

Bacon's Natural History.

Uninjured; complete; not defective.

No wonder if one remain speechless, though of integral principles, who, from an infant, should be bred up among mutes, and have no teaching.

Held.

Not fractional; not broken into fractions.

Integral. n. s. The whole made up of parts.

Physicians, by the help of anatomical dissections, have searched into those various members of the body, arteries, nerves, and integuments of the human body.

Smelt.

Consider the infinite complications and combinations of several concurrences to the constitution and operation of almost every integral in nature.

Hale.

A mathematical whole is better called integral, when the several parts, which make up the whole are distinct, and each may subsist apart.

Watts.

Integrity. n. s. [integrat, Fr. integritate; from integer, Lat.]

1. Honestly; uncorrupt mind; purity of manners; uncorruptenedess.

Watts.

Mangest true judgments, and becomes the stake

Of that integrity which should become us.

Murray.

Nec tibi, this noble passion.

Child of integrity, path from my soul.

Wip'd the black scapules, reconcil'd my thoughts

To thy true good and honour.

Shaks. Macbeth.

Whoever has examined both parties cannot fail to see towards the extremes of either, without violence to his integrity or understanding.

Swift.

The libertine, instead of attempting to corrupt our integrity, will conceal and disguise his own vices.

Rogers.

2. Purity; genuine unadulterate state.

Language continued long in its purity and integrity.

Ethics.

3. Inintegrity; unbroken; whole.

Take away this transformation, and there is no calm, nor can it affect the integrity of the action.

Bacon.

Integument. n. s. [integrumentum, integre, Lat.] Anything that covers or envelops another.

He could no more live without his frise coat than without his skin; it is not indeed to proper his coat, as what the anatomists call one of the integments of Addisio.

Intellec't. n. s. intelle. Fr. intelle.s. Lat.] The intelligent mind; the power of understanding.

All heart they live, all head, all eye, all ear.

All intelligent man, for Milton.

All those arts, rational, and invensive, which vulgar minds gaze at, and the ingenious puruse, are but the reliques of an intellect delaced with sin and time.

French.

Intellcctive. n. s [intelleCtis, Fr. from intellect.] Having power to understand.

If a man as intelligeble be created, then either he means the whole man, or only by that which he is intelligeble.

Glow.

Intellectual. adj. [intelleCtual, French; intelleCtu'al, low Latin.]

1. Relating to the understanding; belonging to the mind; transacted by the understanding.

Religion teaches us to present God our bodies as well as our souls: if the body serves the soul in actions natural and civil, and intellectual, it must not be eaded in the only offices of religion.

Taylor.

2. Mental; comprising the faculty of understanding; belonging to the mind.

Logick is to teach us the right use of our reason, or intellectual powers.

Watts.

3. Ideal; perceived by the intellect, not the senses.

In a dark widow's intellectual gaze,

Beneath a bow'r for sorrow made.

The melancholy Cowley lay,

Cowley.

A train of phantoms in wild order rove.

And, join'd, this scene was innocent.

A train of phantoms in wild order rove.
They are the boll fung of intelligencers; for they have a way into the inmost closets of princes. However, they have no gatherings and intelligencers, who make them acquainted with the conversation of the whole kingdom.

Intelligent. adj. [Intelligent, Fr. intelligent, Lat.]

1. Knowing; instructed; skilful.

It is not only in order of nature for him to govern that is more intelligent, as Aristotle would have it; but there is no lack of ability for government, courage to protect, and above all, honesty.

Hamlet.

2. By times.

Intelligent; the earth is hony more the Sun for our equal Winters; when our stars

Leave the chill'f fold, be back wards his way, Phillips.

3. Time out the numerous footsteps of the presence, and interposition of a wise and intelligent architect throughout all this tremendous fabric. Wordsworth.

4. It has of before the thing.

Intelligent of beasts, they set forth

Their airy caravans. Milton.

5. Giving information.

Servants, whom seem no fools, Which are to Enforce the spiles and speculations

Intelligence. n. f. [intelligence, Fr. intelligence, Lat.]

1. Commerce of information; notice; mutual communication; account of things distant or secret.

It was perceived there had not been in the catalogues so much foresight as to provide that true intelligence might pass between them of what was done.

Hooker.

2. A mankind which! hence with, out of door.

A most intelligence bound! Shakespeare.

He furnished his employed men liberally with money and encourage- ment; giving them also in charge to advertise continually what they found.

Bacon's Henry VII.

The advertisements of neighbour princes are always so secret, that they receive intelligence from better authors than persons of inferior rank.

Hayward.

3. Let all the passions

Be well factor'd, that no intelligence

May pass between the prince and them. Dryden.

These tales had been sung to full children asleep, before ever Benfins set up his intelligence office at Coon.

Boswell.

2. Commerce of acquaintance; terms on which men live one with another.

Fellow squires are worse to be liked, which follow not upon affection to him with whom they range; these, or rather, upon common enthusiasm that 'tis intelligence that we see between great personages.

Bacon.

He lived rather in a fair intelligence, than any friendship with the favourites. Clarendon.

3. Spirit; unbodied mind.

How fully hath that satisfied me, pure

Intelligencer of heart, in angel! Milton.

The divinity, and great wisdom, being intermediate between the glorious God and man, as the glorious angels and created intelligences.

Hild.

4. The divinity of the heavens, and by the favour of the heavens they had hoped for that of the Intelligences, and by their favour, for that of the Supreme God. Stillingfleet.

The variety of motion, visible in the great variety and curiosity of bodies, is a demonstration that the whole mass of matter is under the conduct of a mighty intelligencer.

Coleridge.

Satan appearing as a cherub unto Uriel, the intelligencer of the sun, circumvented him even in his own province. Dryden.

4. Understanding; skill.

Hearts of long words, up boarded, hideously.

They think to be the chief prince of intelligences; and thereby wanting due intelligence.

Have mar'd the face of goody poet. Spranger.

Intelligencer. n. f. [from intelligence.

One who sends or conveys news; one who gives notice of private or distant transactions; one who carries messages between parties.

His eyes, being his diligent intelligencers, could carry unto him no other news but discemible.

Stony.

How deep you were within the books of heaven? To us, the imagin'd voice of heaven itself.

The very opener and intelligence

Between the grace and sensations of heavy.

And what they said, 1. Henry IV.

If they had instructions to that purpose, they might be the boll intelligencers to the king of the true state of his whole kingdom.

Bacon.

Intemperate. adj. [intemperant, Fr. intemperance, Lat.]

1. Immoderate in appetite; excessive in meat or drink; drunken; glutinous.

More women should die than men, if the number of burials answered in proportion to that of sickliness; but men be more intemperate than women, die as much by reason of their rices, as women do by the infirmity of their sex.

Grants.

Notwithstanding all their talk of reason and philosophy, and those unanswerable doubts, which over their cups or their coders, they pretend to have against Christiandie: persuade but the common man not to drink money, the intemperate man to abandon his revol, and I dare express that all their grace objections shall vanish.

South.

2. Pallofimo; ungooverable; without rule.

They are more intemperate in your blood

Than their pampers'd sons.

That rage in savagishfenss.

Shakespeare.

Ute not thy mouth to intemperate uttering; for therein is the word of God. Eccles. xin. 13.

3. Excessive; exceeding the use or convenient mean: as, an intemperate climate;

We have intemperate weather.

Intemperately. adv. [from intemperate.

1. With breach of the laws of temperance.

How godly do many of us contradict the plain precepts of the Gospel, by living intemperately or unjutly.

Tillotson.

2. Immoderately; excessively.

Do not too many believe no religion be pure, but what is intemperately right? Whereas no religion is true, that is not peaceable as well as good.

Sprat.

Intemperateness. n. f. [from intemperate.

1. Want of moderation.

Intemperature. n. f. [from intemperate.

Excess of some quantity.

Intemperable. adj. [in and tenable.

Indefensible; as, an intemperate opinion; an intemperate forfets.

To Intend. v. n. [intende, Latin.]

1. To stretch out. Obsolete.

The same adv ining high above his head,

With sharp intended sting to rude him smote,

The earth him with such weight did strike, that Ne living wight would have him lie behi. Fairy Q.

2. To enforce; to make intense; to strain.

What seems to be the ground of the affersion, is the inferior quality of a man's moral, conceived to cause or intend the heat of this opinion; we find that wider antiquity was not of this opinion.

Brewer.

By this the lungs are intended or remitted. Halie.

This attribute is in a certain sense, not only neither can be intended or remitted in the same body, but is always proportional to the quantity of matter.

Chymer.

Magnetism may be intended and remitted, and is found only in the magnet and in iron. Newton.

3. To regard; to attend; to take care of.

This they should carefully intend, and not when the sacrament is administered, imagine themselves called only to walk up and down in a white and shining garment.

Aubrey.

6Q2. Having
Having no children, the, did with singular care and tenderness educate the education of Philip. Bacon.

The king prayed them to have patience 'till a little snares, that was raised in his country, was over: flying, as his manner was, that openly,
Bacon.

1. To pay regard or attention to. This sense is now little used. They could not intend to the recovery of that country of the north. Neithers was there any who might there in the government, while the king intended his pleasure. Bencet Henry VII.

2. To intend; to design. The opinion the bad of his wisdom was soch, as made her esteem greatly of his words: but the words themselves founded the, as she could not imagine what they intended it. Sidney.

3. To intend; to plan. I know not why he intended his pleasure. Watson.

4. To go, therefore, might pow 'l intend at home; while here shall be our home, what shall we eat. The present number. Spenser's Paradise Lost. Watson.

5. To intend; to design. As deeply to affect what we intend, As closely to conceal what we import. Shakespeare.

6. To intend; to design. I must write this and seep, for his sires and epitaffes, being intended wholly for instruction required another style. Dryden.

7. To intend; to design. [French.] An officer of the higher class, who over sees any particular allotment of the public business. France.

8. To intend; to design. Those who commanded Alexander's fleet, and Orestes, his invendant general of marine, have both left relations of the Indies. Aristotle.

9. To intend; to design. [Fr. jurament, F. jurat.] Attention; patient hearing; accurate examination. This word is only to be found in Spenser.

10. To intend; to design. Be taught hereat designed. 'Till well ye wot, by grave intention.

11. To intend; to design. What woman, and whereas doth we uphold. Sidney.

12. To intend; to design. Out of my love to you, I came hither to acquaint you withal; that either you might stay him from his intention, or brook his dastardly will. now run by. Shakespeare.

13. To intend; to design. All that is for your profit, fear, profit, or some other end, but more or less within the intention of this emblem. E. Frye.

14. To intend; to design. To make tender; to soften. Autumn vulgar gives.

15. To intend; to design. Equal, intermixing, milky grain. Philip's.

16. To intend; to design. The act of intending or making tender. E. Frye.

17. To intend; to design. The nurse currest the cumber use of nourishment is for the prolongation of life, restoration of some degree of youth, and invigoration of the parts. Bacon.

18. To intend; to design. [in and tender.] That cannot hold. Not in use.

19. To intend; to design. I know I love in vain, strive against hope: Yet in this capacious and interminable, I still pour in the water of my love. Sidney.

20. To intend; to design. [intermin., Lat.] Raved to a high degree; strained; for want of height: not lax. To observe the effects of a distillation, procured with so intermin and unusual degree of heat, we ventured to come near.

21. To intend; to design. To observe the effects of a distillation, procured with so intermin and unusual degree of heat, we ventured to come near. Boyle.

22. To intend; to design. The found is still the comment to the sense. Ryswyl.

25. Intempest. [intempest, fr. intermin.] To great degree; not flight: not remisfull. If an Englishman concedes our words, how interminably is it heated, he cannot suppose that it will cool again.

26. Intempest. [intempest, fr. intermin.] The rate of the season enforced in a high degree; force; contrariety to laxity or remission. The water of springs and rivers, that sustains a diminution from the heat above, being evaporated more or less, in proportion to the greater or lesser intensity of heat. Woodward.

27. Intempest. [intempest, fr. intermin.] The act of forcing or straining any thing; contrariety to remission or relaxation. Sounds will be carried further with the wind than against the wind; and likewise to rise and fall with the imagination or remission of the wind. Bacon.

29. Intempest. [intempest, fr. intermin.] Stretches or increased with respect to itself; that which may admit encrease of degree. As his perfection is infinitely greater than the perfection of a man, it is infinitely greater than the perfection of an angel; and were it not infinitely greater than the perfection of an angel, it could not be infinitely greater than the perfection of a man, because the interminable distance between the perfection of an angel and the perfection of a man is finite. Hume.

30. Intempest. [intempest, fr. intermin.] Tired with that affidious attendance and interminable circumvolution, which a long fortune did require, he was not unwilling to dwell upon some part of these pains. Watson.

31. Intempest. By encrease of degree. God and the good angels are more free than we are, that is, interminably in the degree of rebellion; but not in the interminable power of the object, according to a liberty of execrise, but not of specification. Bramhall against Huber.

32. Intempest. [intempest, Lat.] 1. Anxiously diligent; fixed with close application: formerly with a well intention. Distractions in England made most men intent to their own safety. King Charles.

33. Intempest. [intempest, Lat.] 2. Commonly with on. When we use but those means which God hath laid before us, it is a good sign that we are rather intent upon God's glory than our own conversion. Taylor.

34. Intempest. [intempest, Lat.,] The on their mirth and dance. Milton.

36. Intempest. Men as intent upon this as on things of lower concernment, there are none so enslaved to the necessities of life, who might not find many vacancies that might be busiabed to this advantage of their knowledge. Locke.

37. Intempest. They are intent on one particular part of their theme, they bend all their thoughts to prove or disprove that which relates to that part without attention to the caufepheneses that may affect another. Watts.

38. Intempest. He intent and solicitous to take up the meaning of the speaker. Watts.

39. Intempest. [intempest, fr. intermin.] 1. A design; a purpose; a drift; a view formed; meaning.

Although the Scripture of God be filled with infinite variety of matter in all kinds, although it abound with all sorts of laws, yet the principal feple of Scripture is to deliver the laws of every infernal. Hooke.

Hitherto... Whereas commandments was given to destroy all places where the Canaanites had set the gods, the general had reference to a special intent and purpose, which, was that there shold be but one place whereto the people might bring offerings.

Thee... That accost him in his intent towards our wars, are a yoke of his discontented men. Shakes.

I'll urge his hatred more to Clarence. And, if I fail not, my deep intent, Clarence hath not another day to live. Shakespearu. This fury, fit for her intent the chaste. One who delights in war. Dryden's Abs.

The Athenians have a peculiar pretence only to afflit the Leontines; but with an intent to make themselves masters of that island. Grew.

Of darkness visible so much he lent. As half to thief, half veil the deep intent. Ducdali.

To all intents. In all senses, whatever be meant or designed.

There is no incurable blindness caused by a redulation not to see; and to all intents and purposes, he that will not open his eyes is prevented by blind as that he cannot. Smib.

He was miserable in all intents and purposes. L'Eplonge.

1. Eagerness of desire; clakensness of attention; deep thought; vehemence or ardour of mind.

Intempest is when the mind with great earnestness, and of choice, fixes its view on any idea, considers it on every side, and will not be called off by the ordinary solicitation of other ideas.

2. Mental prayer, brought with a vehement intention of the inferior powers of the soul, which cannot therein long continue without pain; it has been therefore thought good, by turns, to interpoal fill somewhat for the higher part of the mind and the understanding to work upon. Hooke.

She did Courfe o'er any exteriar with such a greedy intention, that the appetite of her eye did seem to search us up like a burning-glass. Shakes.

In persons puffed with other notions of religiion, the understanding cannot quit threat but by great examination, and it is not the hour and intention of the mind, and the thoughts dwelling a considerable time upon the surfey and dissection of each particular. Smib.

3. Design; purpose.

He with others the same intention and greater force.

Mett part of coronal delimiters proceed from laxity of the fibres; in which case the principal intention is to reduce the tonus of the solid parts. Arbuthnot on Aliments.

4. The state of being intense or strained. This for distinction is more generally and more conveniently written intention. According to a more precise and exact intention and remission; but sciences are not capable of such variation. Locke.

5. Intempest. [intempest, fr. intermin.] Deligcet; done by design. The glory of God is the end which every intelligent being is bound to consult, by a direct and intentional service. Rogers.

6. Intempest. [intempest, Lat.] By design; with fixed choice.

I find in myself that the principle doth extend many of its actions intempestively and purposefully. Locke.

7. Inwill, if not in action. Whenever I am willing to oblige you, I shall conclude you are intempestively doing so to me. Atterbury to Pope.

8. Intempest. [intempest, Lat.] Diligently applied; fully attentive.
INT

The naked relation, at least the Intercourse conference of that, is able, and at this disadvantage of time, to rend the hearts of pious contemplators.
Brown's Vulgar Errors.

INTENTELY, adv. [from intent.] With application; closely.

INTENTLY. adv. [from intent.] With close attention; with eager desire.

INTENDED, p. t. [from intend.] To be planned or to intend the truth of our beliefs, as not to proceed to a vigorous purpuit of all jujt, sober, and gaily living. Hammond. The old paintings of a foolish face may please a little, but when you fix your eyes intensly upon them, they appear disproportioned that they give a judicious eye pain.
Atterbury.
The China medal bears him with a volume open,
and reading intensely.
Page.

INTENTNESS, n. f. [from int.} The state of being intent; anxious application.
He is more engrossed from his intentions on a
Swift.

INTRODUCTION. n. a. [from introduc.] To introduce under; to bury.
Within their chiefest temple I'll erect
A tomb, wherein his corps shall be inter'd. Shak.
He made mention of the dead after them;
The god is oft. inter'd with their bones. Shak.
His body shall be royally inter'd.
And the last funeral pomp adorn his bier. Dryden.
The ashes in an old record of the covenant, we said to have been inter'd between the very wall and the altar where they were taken up.
Addison.

2. To cover with earth.
The last way is to inter them as you scarce prize.
Milton.

INTERCALAR. adj. [intercalate, Fr. intercalation, Lat.] Inserted out of the common order to preserve the equation of time, as the twenty-ninths of February in a leap year is an intercalary day.

INTERCALATION, n. f. [intercalation, Fr. intercalation, Lat.] Insertion of days out of the ordinary reckoning.
In thirty-three years there may be left almost eighteen days, omitting the intercalation of one day every four years, so allowed for this quittance of fix

INTERCIDE, w. n. [intercid, Fr. intercide, Lat.] To inter a extraordinary day.

INTERCESSION. n. f. [intercession, Fr. intercession, Lat.] Meditation; intercession; agency between two parties; agency in the cause of another, generally in his favour, sometimes against him.
Loving, and therefore constant, he used still the intercession of diligence and faith, ever hoping because he would not put himself into that hell to be hoped.
Sidney.
Consider, when you would send your gages the very defender of them, think to front his revenge with the interceded of such a duty d'ard as you seem to be?
Shakespeare.
He makes intercession to God against
Rom. xi. 2.
I see the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.
Pray only for this people, neither make intercession to me; for I will not hear thee. Jer. vii. 16.
To pray to the saints to obtain things by their mercy, is allowed and conformed to by the Roman church.
Stillingfleet.
Your intercession now is needless grown;
Retire, and let me speak with her alone.
Dryden.

INTERCESSOUR, n. f. [intercessor, Fr. intercessor, Lat.] Mediator; agent between two parties to procure reconciliation.

INTERRUPT. v. a. [interrupt, Fr. interrupter, Lat.] To stop; to make a pause.
The better course should be by placing of garisons which, whenever he shall look forth, he shall be and ready to interrupt his going or coming.
Spenser.

Who interrupts me in my expedition?
O, that might have interrupted thee,
By thronging thee.
Shakespeare's Richard III.
This in London, keeper of the king.
Mufler'd my soldiers, gather'd heads of friends,
March'd towards St. Albans. interrupt the queen.
Shakespeare.

Your intercepted packets
You write to the Pope. Shakel. Henry VIII.

If we hope for things which are at too great a distance from us, it is possible that we may be intercepted by death in our pursuits towards them.
Addison's Splicer.

1. To obstruct; to cut off; to stop from being communicated; to stop in the process.

2. To obstruct; to cut off; to stop from being communicated; to stop in the process.

It is used of the thing or person
pausing.

Though they cannot answer my desires,
Yet in some sort they're better than the tribune.
For that they will not interrupt me. Shak.

Behind the hole I fastened to the postboard, with pitch, the head of a sharp knife, to interrupt some part of the light which passed through the teole.
Newton's Opticks.

3. It is used of the act of pausing.
Since death's near and runs with so much force,
We must meet first and interrupt his course. Dryd.

4. It is used of that to which the pausage is directed.
On barred streets they rode in proud array,
Thick as the oaks that tower in May.
When swarming o'er the dusky fields they fly,
Now to the flower, and interrupt the sky.
Dryden.

The dilly veils,
Which voyaging from Troy the vixons bore,
While实现 vindictive interrupt the three. Pope.

INTERCHANGE. n. f. [from the verb.]

They have an interchange or trade with Elam.
Hosea.

1. Alternate succession.
With what delight could I have walked 'd thee round?
If I could joy in ought! sweet interchange
Of hills and valleys, woods, and plains.
Milton.
The original purpose of the lights in the firmament are interceptible to us by the interchanges of light and darknes, and fucception of fields.
Holding.

Removes and interchanges would often basing in the fift ages after the flood.
Burnet's Theoy.

2. Mutual donation and reception.
Let Diomede bear him,
And bring us Creidal hither. Good Diomede,
Furnish you fairly for this interchange.
Shak.

Farewell; the pleasure and the fearful time,
Cuts off the ceremonious views of love.
And simple interchange of sweet discourse.
Shak.

Since their more mature dignities made separation of their society, their encounters, though not per-fet, have been royally attainted with interchanges of gifts.
Shakespeare.
After so vast an obligation, owned by so free an acknowledgment, could any thing be expected but a considerable interchange of kindness.
Shak.

INTERCHANGEABLE. adj. [from interchange.]

1. Given and taken mutually.
So many testimonies, interchangeable warrants, and counterseals, running through the hands and relying in the power of so many several persons, is to sufficient to argue and convince all manner of falsehood.
Bacon's Of, of Alienation.

2. Following each other in alternate succession.
Just under the line they may form to have two Winters and two Summers; but there also they have four interchangeable feasons, which is enough whereby to make a garden.
Holden.

All along the history of the Old Testament we find the interchangeables providences of God, towards the people of Israel, always suited to their manners.
Tilley.

INTERCHANGEABLY. adv. [from interchangeable.]

Alternately; in a manner whereby each gives and receives.

In these two things the East and West churches, old interchangeably both confront the Jews and converse with them.
Haber.

This in myself I bodily will defend,
And interchangeably hurl down my page.
In this overweening Hapax's foot.
Shakespeare.

These articles were signed by our principle tories, and thee of Holland; but not by the French, although
although it ought to have been done interchangeably; and the minis ters here prevailed on the queen to execute a ratification of articles, which only one part had been good. Swift.

INTERCHANGEMENT. n. [inter and change.] Exchange; mutual transference. A contract and eternal bond of love, Confirm'd by mutual joiner of your hands, And having in the holy clois of lips, Strengthen'd by intercambio of your rings. Shakespeare.

INTERCIPIENT. adj. [intercipiens, Lat.] Obstructing; catching by the way.

INTERCIPIENT. n. [intercipiens, Lat.] An intercepting power; something that causes a stop. They command repulsen, but not with much astringency, unleas an intercipiens upon the parts above, left the matter should thereby be impelled in the pore. Braman.

INTERCISSION. n. [intercessus, Lat.] Interruption.

By cessation of oracles we may understand their intercession, not abolition, or consummate destruction. Deism.

To INTERCUE, v. n. [interclude, Lat.] To shut from a place or course by some thing intervening; to intercept. The voice is sometimes intercepted by a hoarse sort, or vilious plugging cleaving to the aorta art.

INTERCOLUMNIA. n. [intercolumnia, Lat.] The space between the pillars. The distance or intercolumniation may be near four of his own diameter, because the materials commonly laid over this pillar were rather of wood than stone. Wotton.

To INTERCOMMUN. v. n. [inter and common.] To feed at the same table.

Wine is to be forbore in consumptions, for that the spirits of the wine do pres upon the yielded juice of the body, and intercommun with the spirits of the body, and do rob them of their nourishment. Bassat's Natural History.

INTERCOMMUNITY. n. [inter and community.] 1. A mutual communication or community. 2. A mutual freedom or exercise of religion.

INTERCOSTAL. adj. [intercostal, Fr. inter et costa, Lat.] Placed between the ribs. The diaphragm terms the principal instrument of ordinary respiration, although to retained respiration the intercostal muscles may occur. Boyle.

By the assistance of the intercostal muscles, in deep suppressions, we take large gulls of air. More.

INTERCOURSE. n. s. [intercursus, Fr.] 1. Commerce; exchange. This sweet intercourse Of looks, and smiles, that smiles from reason flow, To smile away care, and see of love the food. Milton. 2. Communication: followed by with.

The choice of the place requisite many circumstances, as the situation near the sea, for the commodiousness of an intercourse with England. Wotton. What an honour is it that God should admit us into such a participation of himself? That he should give us minds capable of such an intercourse with the Deity.

INTERCURTENCE. n. s. [intercursus, Lat.] Puffage between.

Consider what fluidity palpable is capable of, without the intercurrens of a liquor. Boyle.

INTERCOURSE. n. s. [intercursus, Lat.] Running between.

If into a fire, filled with good spirit of nitre, you call a piece of iron, the liquor, whole parts moved briskly before, meeting with particles in the iron, altering the motion of its parts, and perhaps that of some very subtle intercurrence matter, those subtile parts begin to penetrate, and scatter abroad particles of the iron. Boyle.

INTERDICTION. n. s. [interdict, Fr. interdiction.] Truf- tick; intercourse. Obfolute.

The Gaultif speech is the very British, which is yet retained at this day in the nations of France, though the alteration of the trading and interdict with other nations has greatly altered the dialect. Spenser.

To INTERDICT, v. a. [interdict, Fr. interdiction.] 1. To forbid; to prohibit.

Abuse I paid's, through ways That brought me on a sudden to the leaf. Of interdicted kindred. Milton's Par. Lost. By magic, blest'sd, by spells concoct'd round, Nominal touch'd this interdicted ground. Tickell.

2. To prohibit from the enjoyment of communication with the church. An Archbishop may not only excommunicate and interdict his suffragains, but his vicar-general may do the same. Abiliff.

INTERDICTION. n. s. [from the verb.] 1. Prohibition; prohibiting decree.

Amongst others his fundamental laws, he did ordain the interdict and prohibitions touching en trance of strangers. Those are not fruits forbidden, no interdicts, Defend the touching of these viands pure; their taste no knowledge works at least of evil. Milton.

Had he liv'd to fee her happy change, He would have cared that husband interdicted, And join'd our hands himself. Dryd. Don. Sei. 2. A papal prohibition to the clergy to celebrate the holy offices. Nisi carried him self mentorially against the pope, in the intent, which he held the credit among the patriots. Wotton.

INTERDICTION. n. s. [interdiction, Fr. interdiiction, Lat. from interdict.] 1. Prohibition; forbidding decree.

Sternly be pronounce'd The right interdiction, which refunds Yet dreads in mine ear. Milton's Paradise Lost.

2. Curfe: from the papal interdict. An improper use of the word. The treuell life of thy throne, By his own interdicts bands secure. Shakes.

INTERDICTORY. adj. [from interdiction.] Belonging to an interdiction. Anywhere.

To INTEREST. v. a. [interfer, Fr.] To interest concern; to affect; to give share in.

The mystical communion of all faithful men is such as unites every one to be interested in those precious blessings, which any one of them receiveth at God's hands. Husker. Our joy, Although our left hand is to whole young love, The vines of France and milk of Burgundy, Strive to interfere. Shakespeare. King Lear.

To love our native country, and to study its benefit and value. Interests in its credit and esteem are natural to all men. Dryden. Spain, retaining the Spanish bride, gained a great nation to interfere themselves for Rome against Carthage. Dryden.

This was a goddes who used to interfere herself in marriages. Addison in M. Mill. 10 brothers did not discourage that ambitious and interfere people. Arbuthon in Cato.

To INTEREST, v. n. To affect; to move; to touch with passion; to gain the affections: us: this, is an interfere fory. INTEREST. n. s. [interfet, Lat. interest, Fr.] 1. Concern; advantage; good.

Give us a very competent comprehension of that one great interfere of others, as well as ourselves. Hammond.

INTERFERENCE. N. s. [interfere, Fr. interfere, Lat.] Divisions hinder the common interfere and publick good.

There is no man but God hath put many things into his possession, to be used for the common good and interfere. Calamy.

2. Influence over others. They, who had hitherto preferred them, had now left their interfere. Clarendon.

Gain each kind pow'r, each guardian desty. Then, coquett'd by the publick vow, They bear the dismal mischief far away. Prior.

3. Share; part in any thing; participation: as, this is a matter in which we have interfere. Swift.

Endeavour to adjust the degrees of influence, that each cause might have in producing the effect, and the proper agency and interfere of each therein. Watts.

4. Regard to private profit. Wherever interfere or power thinks fit to interfere, it little imports what principles; the opposite parties think fit to charge upon each other, Swift. When interfere call off all her feckoning train. Pope.

5. Money paid for use; utury.

Exert, great God, thy interfere in this. Swift.

6. Any surplus of advantage. With all speed You shall have your desire with interfere. Shak.

To INTERFERE, v. a. [inter and ferre, Lat.] 1. To interfere; to intermediate.

So cautious were their ancoucils in conversation, as never to interfere with party disputes in the state. Swift.

2. To claff; to oppose each other. If each act by an independent power, their commands may interfere. Smollett's Sermon.

3. A horfe is said to interfere, when the fide of one of his shoes strikes against and hurts one of his forelocks; or the hitting one leg against another, and striking off the skin. Parrier's Dil.

INTERFLENT. adj. [interfluens, Lat.] Flowing between.

It may consist of any terreous or aqueous corpuscles, kept swimming in the interfuentia matter. Boyle.

INTERFUGENT. adj. [inter and fugent, Lat.] Shining between.

INTERJUDICADO, adj. [inter and judicato, Lat.] Foud- ed or flatttered between.

Its ambient air indefinite, embracing round this florid earth. Milton.

INTERJACENCY. n. s. [from interjacens, Lat.] 1. The act or state of lying between. England and Scotland is divided only by the interjacency of the Tweed and some defect ground. Hales.

2. The thing lying between. Its fuscinations are but motions, which wind, storms, flames, and every interfugent intercurse. Brown.

INTERJACENT. adj. [in eructans, Latin.] Intercerning; lying between. The sea itself must be very broad, and void of little islands interfacent, else it will yield plentiful argument of passage to the kingdoms which are between. Raleigh.

Through this hole, objects that were beyond might be seen distinctly, which would not as all be seen through other parts of the glasses, where the air was interfacent. Newton's Opticks.

INTERJECTION. n. s. [interfeccion, Fr. inter- Fection, Lat.] 1. A part of speech that discovers the mind to be seized or affected with some passion: such as are in English, Of alas! oh! Clarke's Lat. Gram.

Their wild natural ones, when they express their passions, are the best but like natural interludes, to discover their passions or conjectures. Hale's Origin of Mankind.

1. Intervention; interpolation; act of something coming between; act of putting something between.

Laughing causes a continual expulsion of the breath, with the loud noise which makes the interjection of laughing.

INTERM. n. f. [interim., Latin.] Mean time; intervening time.

To INTERJOIN, v. a. [inter and join.] To join mutually; to intermarry.

Whose passions and whose plots have broke their sleep.

To take the one the other, by some chance.

Some trick nor in the sag thing that chance of dear friends, and interjoin their intents. Shakespeare's Orbello.

INTERIOR, adj. [interior, Lat. interior, Fr.] Interior; inner; outward; not superficial.

The foot-servants, that close by the snow, Not out of fear, but with the fond eye do teach, Which pray not to 'thi' interrior. Shakespeare.

The greater parts, thus sunk down, would harden, and continue the interior parts of the earth.

INTERKNOWLEDGE. n. f. [inter and knowledge.] Mutual knowledge. All nations have interknowledge one of another, either by voyage into foreign parts, or by strangers that come to them.

To INTERLACE, v. a. [interlace, Fr.] To intermix; to put one thing within another.

Some are to be interlaced between the divine rulings of the law and prophets. Hooper.

The ambassadors interlaced, in their conference, the purpose of their master to match with the daughter of Maximilian. Bacon. By the other acknowledged what services he had done for the commonwealth, yet interlacing some error, whereof they seemed to reproach him. Hayward.

Your argument is as strong against the use of these books as in plays; for the epick way is every where interlaced with dialogue. Dryden.

INTERLACE. n. f. [inter and laces.] The flow of time between any two events. Those dogs are calcined into such farts, which, after a short interlapse of time, produce coughs. Harvey.

To INTERLARD, v. a. [interlarder, Fr.] 1. To mix meat with bacon, or fat; to diversify lean with fat.

2. To interpose; to interpret between.

Should be interlarded, after the Persian custom, by ages young and old. Cato.

3. To diversify by mixture.

The laws of Normandy are the defteration of those English laws, and a transcript of them, though mingled and interlaced with many particular laws of their own, which altered the features of the original.

4. Heilps has used this word very harrrily, and probably did not understand it.

They interlaid their native drinks with choice of strongest brandy. Heilps.

To INTERLEAVE, v. a. [inter and leaves.] To chequer a book by the interposition of blank leaves.

INTERLINE. n. f. [inter and line.] 1. To write in alternate lines. When, by interlining Latin and English one with another, he has got a moderate knowledge of the Latin tongue, he may then be advanced farther. Locke.

2. To correct by something written between the lines.

He cancell'd an old will, and forg'd a new:
Made witty by the small expense of ligniting.
With a wet stroke, and a fresh interlining.
Dryden.

Three things render a writing susceptible: the person producing a talk instrument, the person that frames the two lines and the framing and lining up out of words contained in such instruments. Swift. Paré.

The more invok'd, fit down to write,
Blot out, correct, and interline.
Swift.

INTERLINEATION. n. f. [inter and invagination.] Correction made by writing between the lines.

Many clerksmen write in introductory manner, with such frequent blots and interlineations, that they are hardly able to go on without perpetual hesitation.

Dryden.

INTERLINK. v. a. [inter and link.] To connect chains one to another; to join in one another.

The fair image in pictures causeth us to enter into the subject which it imitates, and impresses it more on our mind, and our memory: there are two chains which are interlinked, which contain, and are at the same time contained.

Dryden.

INTERLOCATION. n. f. [interlocate, Fr. interlocutori, Lat.] Dialogue; interchange of speech.

The plainest and the most intelligible rehearsal of the plainers they favour not, because it is done by interlocution, and with a mutual return of sentences from side to side. Hooper.

2. Preparatory proceeding in law; an intermediate act before final decision.

These things are called accidental, because some new incident in judicature may appear upon them, to which the judge ought to proceed by intercommunication.

Ayliffe's Paviour.

INTERLOCUTOR. n. f. [inter and locum, Lat.] Dialogist; one that talks with another.

Some morose readers shall find fault with my having made the interlocutor compliment with one another.

INTERLOCUTORY. adj. [interlocutory, Fr. inter and locum, Lat.] Pertaining to, or connected with, one another.

1. Consulating of dialogue.

When the minister by exhortation raiseth them up, and the people by proportion of their readiness declare he speaketh not in vain unto them; their interlocutory forms of speech, what they are else but most effectual, partly connivings, and partly intimations of all purport.

There are several interlocutory discourses in the holy Scriptures, though the persons speaking are not otherwise mentioned or referred to.

2. Preparatory to decision of dialogue.

To INTERLOPE, v. a. [inter and lepor, Lat.] Dutch, to run. To run between parties and intercept the advantage that one, should gain from the other; to traffic without a proper licence; to forfend; to anticipate irregularly.

The pottion is defined to leave off this interloping trade, or admit the knights of the industry to their trade.

INTERLOPER. n. f. [inter and lepor.] One who runs into business to which he has no right.

The swallow was a fly-catcher, and was no more an interloper upon the spider's side, than the spider was upon the swallow's. L'Estrange.

INTERLUDE. n. f. [inter and ludere, Lat.] Somewhat played at the intervals of festivity; a farce.

When there is a queen, and ladies of honour attending her, there must sometimes be masques, and revels, and interludes. Bacon.

The enemies of Socrates hired Aristophanes to personate him on the stage, and, by the invinations of those interludes, conveyed a hatred of him into the people.

Dreams are but interludes, which fancy makes.

When monarch read sleepy, this mimick wakes. Dryden.

INTERLUDE. n. f. [inter and ludere, Lat.] Wafer interpolated; interpositions of a flood.

Those parts of Asia and America, which are now divided by the interlocution of the seas, might have been formerly contiguous. Hale.

INTERLUNAR. adj. [inter and luminare, Latin.] Belonging to the time when the moon, about to change, is invisible.

We add the two Egyptian days in every month, the intercalary and plenitary exemptions. Eratosthenes.

The sun to make a rest,
And slant as the moon.

When the defects the night,
Had in her vacant interlunar eye, Milton.

INTERMARRIAGE. n. f. [inter and marriage.] Marriage betwixt two families, where each takes one and gives one. Because the alliances and intermarriages, among so small a people, might unobstruct justices, they have been foregone for the sake of St. Marino.

Addison.

To INTERMARRY, v. n. [inter and marry.] To marry some of each family with the other.

About the middle of the fourth century, from the building of Rome, it was declared lawful for Romans and plebeians to intermarry. Swift.

To INTERMARRY, v. n. [inter and meddle.] To interpose officiously.

The practice of Spain hath been by war, and by condition of treaty, to intermarry with foreign states, and declare themselves protectors general of Catholics.

Seeing the king was a sovereign prince, the emperor should not intermarry with ordering his subject; or directing the affairs of his realm.

Hayward.

There were no ladies, who disposed themselves to intermarry in buffoons. Claudian.

INTERMEDDLER. n. f. [from intermedium, Fr.] One that interposes officiously; one that thrusts himself into business to which he has no right.

There's hardly a greater pett to government and families, than officious tale-bearers, and busy intermeddlers. Swift.

Our allies, and our shock-jobbers, direct her majesty not to change her secretary or treasurer, who, for the reasons that these officious intermeddlers demand their continuance, might never have been admitted into the least trust. Swift.

Shall strangers, fancy intermeddlers say,
Thus far, and that, are you allowed to punish.

INTERMEDDIARY, n. f. [from intermedium, Fr.] Interposition; intervention. An unauthorised word.

In birds the auditory nerve is affected by only the intermedium of the columella. Derham.

INTERMEDIATE. adj. [inter and medius, at.]
The analytical preparations of gold or mercury leave pads such unadulterated, whether the fabrics which produce be truly the hypothetical principles, or only forms interimititious of the divided bodies with those employed.

1. Something additional mingled in a mass.

In this height of impurity there wanted not an internalizing of levity and folly. Bacon's essay VI.

INTERMIS'DANE. adj. [inter and mundus, Lat.] Subsisting between worlds, or between orb and orb. The vast differences between those great bodies are called intermediusae, in which there may be some fluid, yet it is so thin and minute, that it is as much as nothing. Locke.

INTERMUTUAL. adj. [inter and mutual] Mutual; interchanged. Inter before mutual is improper. A solemn oath religiously they take, By internal vows professing there, This news to reveal, nor to forget in this.

INTEGRAL adj. [inter and Lat.] 1. Inward; not external. That ye shall be as gods, since I am man, Divine, My self, my confidence, and internal peace. Milton. Bad comes of setting our hearts upon the shape, colour, and external beauty of things, without regard to the internal excellence and virtue of them. Locke.

INTERNAL adj. [inter and Lat.] 2. Intrinsick; not depending on external accidents; real. We are to provide things honest; to consider not only the internal rectitude of our actions in the sight of God, but whether they will be free from all mark or suspicion of evil. Rogers.

INTERNALLY adv. [from internal]. 1. Inwardly. 2. Intellectually. We are symbolically in the sacrament, and by faith in the spirit of God internally united to Christ. Taylor.

INTERNE'CINE adj. [interne'ciosus, Latin] Endavouring mutual destruction. The Egyptians worship'd dogs, and for their faith made intercissio war. Hadsam. INTERNE'CIO. n. f. [interne'ciosus, Lat.] Mutual destruction; malice; slaughter.

INTERNUCIO. n. f. [interne'ciosus, Lat.] Meffenger between two parties. INTERPELLATION. n. f. [interpellation, Fr. interpellation, Lat.] A summons; a call upon.

In all courts judicial one citation, mention, or external interpellation is sufficient. Ayres.

1. To foist anything into a place to which it does not belong. The Athenians were put in possession of Salamis by a sea-line; and Alexander was greedily voted, or as some think, interpellated by him for that purpose. Pope.

2. To renew; to begin again; to carry on with interpellations. In this sense it is not in use.
INTERPRETER. n. s. [interpolare, Fr. inter prepare, L. int. prepare] Something added or put into the original matter.

I have changed the situation of some of the Latin verses, and made some interpolations.

Cromwell to Pope.

INTERPRETER. n. s. [Latin; interpreter, Fr.] One that foils in counterfeit passages.

You are your interpreter ought to have considered.

INTERPRETER. n. s. [from interpret.] 1. Interpretation; agency between two persons.

The interpolae of my lord of Canterbury's command for the publication of this mean discourse, may seem to take away my choice.

Sonde...

2. Interpretation; One that adds foul elements may be embodied by counterfeit globes, whose influential emissions are intercepted by the interpolae of the brilliant element.

Glandew's sylphs.

To INTERPOSE, o. a. Interpretare, Lati, interpretare, Fr.]

1. To place between; to make intervene.

Some weeks the king did honourably interpolate, both to give space to his brother's interpretation; and to show that he had a dislike with himself what he should do.

2. To thrust in as an obstruction, interpretation, or inconvenience.

What watchful care does interpret themselves

Bestow your eyes and nights.

Shakespeare.

Death ready hands to interpret his dart.

Human frailty will too often interpret usself among persons of the harmless kind.

Swift.

3. To offer as a fuccour or relief.

The common father of mankind fearfully interpolated his hand, and restored miserable man out of the great stupidity and futility whereinto he was plunged.

Woodward.

To INTERPOSE, o. a. Interpretare, Lati, interpretare, Fr.]

1. To mediate; to act between two parties.

2. To put in by way of interpretation.

But, interpreters Eleutherus, this objection may be made indeed almost against any hypothesis.

Bosky.

INTERPRETER. n. s. [from interpret.]

1. One that comes between others.

I will make hall; but, till I come again.

No bed shall e'ere be guilty of my stay.

No rest be interpret 'twixt us twain.

Shakespeare.

2. An interpreting agent; a mediator.

INTERPRETATION. n. s. [interepura, Fr. interpeta, Lati from interpret.]

1. Interpretation agency.

There never was a time when the interpretation of the magistrates was more necessary to secure the honour of religion.

Aburth.

Though warlike forces carry in them often the evidences of a divine interpretation, yet are they no sure marks of the divine favour.

Aburth.

2. Mediator; agency between parties.

The town and also they would have come to an open rupture, had it not been timely prevented by the interpretation of their common protectors.

Addison.

3. Interpretation; state of being placed between two.

These are the cold, fresh, and equal, by reason of the intense interpretation of the earth, as I know of no other part of the world of better or equal temper.

Rudolph.

She fits on a globe that floats in water, to denote that she is mistress of a new world, figurative from that which the Romans had before commet with the interpretation of the sea.

Addison.

4. Any thing interpolated.

A shelter, and a kind of shading cool interpretation, as a Summer's cloud.

Milton.

INTERPRET. v. a. [interpreter, French; interpreter, Lati.] To explain; to translate; to decipher; to give a solution to; to clear by exposition; to expound.

One, but painted thus,

Would be interpreted a thing peripht'd. Beyond fell-exploitation.

Shakespeare.

You should be women.

And yet your beards forbid me to interpret

That you are so,

Shakespeare, Macbeth.

Phileas told them his dreams; but there was none that could interpret them unto him.

Gen. xvi. 8.

An excellent spirit, knowledge, and understanding, interpreting of dreams, and dreaming of inventions, and disolving of doubts, were found in the fame Daniel.

Dan. v. 12.

Uniayful with what words to pray, let me interpret for him.

Milton's Paradise Lost.

INTERPRETABLE. adj. [from interpret.]

Capable of being expounded or deciphered.

No man's face is admissible: these singularities are interpretable from more intricate causes.

Collar.

INTERPRETATION. n. s. [interpretation, Fr. interprétation, Lati from interpret.]

1. The act of interpreting; explanation.

This is a poor epitome of your's.

Which, by the time of full translation, may now put all yourself.

Shakespeare.

Curiosity.

Look how we can, or sad or merely,

Interpretation will misquote our looks.

Shakespeare.

2. The fence given by an interpreter; exposition.

If it be obscure or uncertain what we mean, charity, I hope, being threescore and ten, which stand doubled of these minds, to lean so the hardest and want interpretation that their words can carry.

Hooker.

The primitive Christians knew how the Jews, who preceded our Savours, interpreted these predictions, and the marks by which the Messiah would be discovered; and how the Jewish doctors, who succeeded him, deviated from the interpretations of their forefathers.

Addison.

3. The power of explaining.

We beseech thee to prosper this great sign, and to give us the interpretation and use of it in mercy.

Baron.

INTERPRETATIVE. adj. [from interpret.]

Collected by interpretation.

Though the creed apostolic were sufficient, yet when the church hath erected that additional bulwark against heresies, and rejecting their additions may justly be deemed an interpretative filling with heresies.

Hammond.

INTERPRETATIVELY, adv. [from interpretative.] As may be collected by interpretation.

By this provision the Almighty interpretatively speaks to him in this manner: I have now thee placed in a well-furnished world.

Ray on the Creation.

INTERPRETER. n. s. [interprete, Fr. interpreters, Lat from interpret.]

1. An expounder; an expositor; an expounder.

What we oft do best,

By tick interpreters, or weak ones, is

Not ours, or not allowed: what work, as oft,

Hitting a great quality, is our best.

For our best sort.

Shakespeare. Henry VIII.

In the beginning the earth was without form and void; and darkness, confounded mist, and so it is understood by interpreters, both Hebrew and Christian.

Burnet.

We think most men's actions to be the interpreters of their thoughts.

Lace.

2. A translator.

No word for word be careful to transfer,

With the same faith as an interpreter.

Shakespeare.

How shall any man, who hath a genius for history, undertake such a work with spirit, when he considers that in an age or two he shall hardly be understood without an interpreter.

Swift.

INTERFUNCTION. n. s. [interprete, Fr. inter pungo, Lati.] Pointing between words or sentences.

INTERREGNUM. n. s. [Lat.] The time in which a throne is vacated between the death of a prince and accession of another.

Next enuf'a vacancy.

Thousand worth patience then poffeit's.

The interregnum of my great Earl.

Blefs me from such an anarchy!

Cowley.

He would brew the queen my memorial with the first opportunity, in order to that he may do it in this interregnum as full of power.

Swift.

INTERREIGN, n. s. [interregnum, Fr. interregno, Lati.] Vacancy of the throne.

The king knew there could be not any interregno or reign of title.

Burton's Henry VII.

His proof will be restored by interregno.

Shall the adulerer and the drunkard inherit the kingdom of heaven?

Hammond.

INTERROGATION. n. s. [interrogation, Fr. interrogaion, Lati.] 1. The act of questioning.

2. A question put; an enquiry.

How desirably forever such men may pretend to fanciety, that interrogation of God presses hard upon them.

Shall I count mere with the wicked balances, and with the bag of deceitful weights?

Government of the Tongue.

This variety is obtained by interrogation to things inanimate; by beautiful digressions, but those short.

Pope.

3. A note that marks a question; thus?

as, Does Job serve God for nought?

INTERROGATIVE. adj. [interrogatifs, Fr. interrogation, Lati.] Denoting a question; expressed in a questionary form of words.

INTERROGATIVELY, adv. [from interrogative.] A pronoun used in asking questions: as, who? what? which? whether?

INTERROGATOR. n. s. [from interrogate.] An asker of questions.

INTERROGATORY. n. s. [interrogatifs, Fr. interrogation, Lati.] A question; an enquiry.

He with no more civility began in capacious manner to put interrogatories unto him.

Sidney.

Nor time, nor place,

Will serve long interrogatories.

Shakespeare.

What earthly name can call the free face of a king?

Shakespeare.

The examination was summed up with one question.

Whether he was prepared for death?

The boy was frightsed out of his win by the last dreadful interrogatory.

Addison.

INTERROGATORY. adj. Containing a question; expressing a question; as, an interrogatory sentence.

 INTERRUPT. v. a. [interrupt, Fr. interruption, Lati.] To hinder the proceeds of any thing by breaking in.

Rage doth rend

Like interrupted waters, and o'beare.

What they are said to bear.

Shakespeare.
He might surely enough have engaged his body to horse against their whole incalculable army, there being neither tree nor bush to bar his course. See Clarendon.

This motion of the heavenly bodies seems partly uninterrupted, as that of the first, movable, interpo ted and interposed. Hist.

2. To hinder one from proceeding by interposi tion. Answer not before thou hast heard the cause; neither inspect men in the midst of their talk. Eras. vi. 8.

3. To divide; to separate; to restrict from continuity.

INTERUPT'DY. adv. [from interrupt.] Not in continuity; not without stoppages. The incident light that meets with a groiner li gar, will have its beam either refracted or uni duced, or else reflected more or less interuptedly than they would be, if the body had been unmolested. Bayes in Colour.

INTERUPT'. n. f. [from interupt.] He who interrupts.

INTERUPTION. n. f. [interruption, Fr. interrrup'tio, Latin.] 1. Interposition; breach of continuity. Places spared from the continent by the interru tion of the sea. Hole's Origin of Mankind.

2. Interference, interposition. You are to touch the one as soon as you have given a stroke of the pencil to the other, left the interru tion of time cause you to lose the idea of one part. Dryden's Troj. Fargy.

4. Interruption. This way of thinking on what we read, will be a rub only in the beginning when custom has made it familiar, it will be dispersed without selling or interruption in the course of our reading. Locke.

Amidst the interruptions of his sorrow, seeing his patient overwhelmed with grief, he was only able to say, you must go on, without making them fresh. Inters. Fargy.

INTERLACEFUL. adj. [inter and scapula, Lat.] Placed between the shoulders. To INTERSCIND. w. a. [inter and sindo, Latin.] To cut off by interruption.

DIFF'. To INTERSCRIBE. w. a. [inter and scribo, Lat.] To write between. Diff'.

INTERSECTANT. adj. [interceptans, Latin.] Dividing any thing into parts. To INTERSECT. w. a. [inter, Lat.] To cross; to divide each after mutually.

PERFECT and viviparous quadrapeds so stand in their position of promiscuity, that the opposite joints of neighbour legs confit in the same plane; and a line drawn from their navels intersects at right angles the axis of the earth. Brown.

Excited by a vigorous loadstone, the needle will sometimes develop in its animated extreme, and inter ter the horizontal circumference. Brown.

INTERSECT'. w. n. To meet and cross each other. The fugal future usually begins at that point where these lines intersect. Winifarn's Surgery.

INTERSECTION. n. f. [intersec'tio, from intersec'se, Lat.] Point where lines cross each other. They did spout over interchangeably from side to side in forms of arches, without any intersec'sion or meeting aliofs, because the pipes were not opposite. Weston's Architecture.

The full star of Ariës, in the time of Melon the Athenian, was placed in the very intersec'sion which is now elongated, and moved towards twenty-eight degrees, Brown.

Ships would move in one and the same surface; and consequently must needs encounter, when they either pass one another in direct lines, or meet in the intersec'sion of crost ones. Bentley.

To INTERSECT'. w. a. [intersec'se, Lat.] To put in between other things. If I may intersec's a short speculation, the depth of the sea is determined in Pliny to be fifteen furlong's.

Brew. Intersec'tion. n. f. [from intersec'se.] An infention, or thing infected between any thing.

These infrections were clear explications of the apostle's old form, God the father, ruler of all, which contained an acknowledgement of the unity. Hammond.

To INTERSECT'. w. a. [intersec'se, Lat.] To scatter here and there among other things.

The possibility of a body's moving into a void space beyond the utmost bounds of body, as well as into a void space intersec'sed amongst bodies, will always be such. Lombroso.

It is the editor's intent to insert what the author's judgment had rejected; and care is taken to intersec'se these additions, so that scarce any book can be bought without purchasing something unworthy of the author. Swift.

INTERSECT'. w. f. [from intersec'se.] The act of scattering here and there.

For want of the intersec'sion of now and then an elegieck or a lyric ode. Watts on the Mind.

INTERSEXULAR. adj. [inter and sexula, Lat.] Intervening between the flails. The intersec'tio that shal so much affinity with the first, that there is a rotation of that as well as of the fist. Bacon.

INTERSTICE. n. f. [interstitium, Lat. inter tice, Fr.] 1. Space between one thing and another. The fun thing through a large prifon upon a comb placed immediately behind the prifon, his light, which palled through the intersec'ses of the teeth, fell upon a white paper: the breadth of the teeth were equal to these intersec'ses, and seven teeth together with their intersec'ses took up an inch. Newton.

The force of the fluid will separate the smallsift particles which compose the fibres, so as to leave vacants in these places where they cohered before. Arbuthnot.

2. Time between one act and another. I will point out the intersec'ses of that which ought to be between one citation and another. Agiffen's Paragon.

INTERSTIAL. adj. [from intersec'se.]

Containing intersec'ses. In oiled papers, the intersec'sional division being adjusted by the accidence of oil, becomes more transparent. Brown.

INTERTEX'. n. f. [intersex', Latin.] Diversification of things mingled or won one among another. To INTERWEAVE'. w. n. [inter and joine, inter'twist', of渥] To unite by twilling one in another. Under this concourse of flusses, Whole branching arms thick intersec'se'd might shied

From dews and damps of night his shelter'd head. Milton.

INTERVAL. n. f. [intervals, Fr. intervalum, Lat.] 1. Space between places; intersec'sion; va cancy; space unoccupied; void place; vacancy; vacant space.

With any obstacle let all the light be now stripped which pales through any one intersec'sion of the teeth.

so that the range of colours which comes from these may be taken away, and you will see the face of the rest of the ranges to be expanded into the place of the range taken away, and there to be coloured.

Newton's Opticks.

2. Time palling between two affirmative points. The century and half following was a very busy period, the intersec'sions between every war being to short. Swift.

3. Remission of a delirium or delirer. Though he had a long ill, confessing the greatest heat with which it was govern'd, yet his intersec'sions of feve being few and short, lent but little room for the offices of devotion. Atterbury.

To INTERWEAVE'. w. n. [intervenoe, Lat. interweave, Fr.]

1. To come between things or perions.

2. To make intervals.

While we car each other thus all day Our task we chuse, what wonder, if so near, Looks interweave, andumble! Milton.

3. To croos unexpectedly.

Etreme the danger of an action, and the posinibilities of miscarriage, and every crost accident that can interweave, to be either a mercy on God's part, or a fault on ours. Taylor.

INTERWOVEN. n. f. [from the verb.] Opposicion, or perhaps interview. A word out of the French.

They had some sharper and some milder differen tes, which might easily happen in such an interweave of grandees, both vehement on the parts which they favoured. Burton.

INTERWOVEN. adj. [interweove, Latin; interwoven, French.] Intercedent; interpose; passing between. There be interweaves in the rife of eight, in tones, two blemis or half notes. Bacon.

Many arts were used to diffuse new affections, as all which overthrowing, for 4 omit things interweaves, there is conveyed to Mr. Villiers an intimacion of the king's pleasure to be from his servant. Burton.

INTERWOVEN. n. f. [from the verb.] Interweave, Fr. hundred.

Let us declare our quarrels at home, without the interweaving of any foreign power. Temple.

God will judge the world in righteousness by the interweaving of the man Christ Jesus, who is the Saviour as well as the judge of the world. Acts.

2. Agency between antecedents and consequents.

In the dispensation of God's mercies to the world, some things he does by himself, others by the interweaving of natural means, and by the medi ation of such instruments as he has appointed. LeStange.

3. Interposition; the state of being interweaved. Sound is fluid out by the interweave of that wax membrane, and not suffered to pass into the ear by the body of the wax. Holder.

To INTERWINE'. w. a. [interweite, Lat.] 1. To turn to another course.

The duke encountered the bargain, and gave the poor widow of Ergensius for the book, five wens. Watson.

2. To turn to another use.

INTERWINE'. w. f. [interweite, French.] Mutual flight; flight of each other. It is commonly used for a formal, appointed, or important meeting or conference.

The day will come, when the passions of former enmity being allayed, what we shall not come reconciled, such ourselves each towards other the same, which Joseph and the brethren of Joseph were, at the time of their interweaving in Egypt. Hooker.
INT

His fears were, that the interview between England and France might, through their animity, breed him some prejudice. Shakspe. Henry VIII.

Such happy interviews, and site events
Of love, and youth not lost, fongs, garlands, flow'rs, and charming sympathies, weakened the heart.

Milton's Paradise Lost.

To Intervolve. v. a. [interweave, Lat.]

To involve one within another.

MYSTICAL dance! which wonder flarrys sphere,
Of planets, and of all in her wheels
Rables nudity, makes intensate.

Eccentric, interwove'd, yet regular.

Then molt, when most irregularly form. Milton.

To Interswive, v. a. pteeter. Intervolve, you pass, or interwove, or interwoven, [inter and imbue] To mix one with another in a regular texture; to intermingle.

Then laid him down
Under the hospitable covert night
Of trees thick interswive, Milton.

At last words interswive with fight found out their way.

Milton.

I set me down to watch upon a bank
With ivy caped, and interswive
With wafting honeyfuckle. Swifl.

Can fly here natura ends, and act begins,
But what's like' the elements, and born like twigs,
So interswove'd, so lie, to marc the fame.

Nay, this mere nature, that mere art, can name.

Davenham.

The proud theatres dislofe the scene,
Which interswveen Britons seem to raise,
And show the triumph which their fame displase.

Dyden.

He fo interswve with truth with probable edition,
That he puts a pleasing fallacy upon us. Dyden.

It appeared a vellum planed with intersweven
That were covered with fruits and flowers, and interswiveed with a thousand little thinning feats that decorated them. Addison.

Orchard and flower-garden lie so mixt and interswiveen with one another, as to look like a natural wilderneffe.

Spedoner.

The Supreme Infinite could not make intelligent creatures, without implanting in their natures a most ardent deifie, interswiveen in the substance of their spiritual natures, of being reunited with himself, to himself. Leibniz. Schol.

I do not altogether disprove the intersweveray teets of scripture through the style of your sermon.

To Intervisuish, v. a. [inter and insw.] To with mutually to each other.

The seeming of all the patience, gamester's gill,
What tyrants and their subjects interswive.
All fall upon that man.

Downe.

Intesetable. adj. [inestablisht, Latin.]

Disqualified to make a will.

A peron excommunicated is rendered infamous and interswiveable both actively and passively.

Dyden.

J. Browne's Porson.

Intestate. adj. [inestatf, Fr. intestat.] Wanting a will; dying without a will.

Why should calamity be full of words?
—Witty attorneys to their client woes.

Airy successors to interswive joyes.

Poor bastanding orators of miseries. Shakspe.

Preset punishment purifies his maw.

When furtively and well'd, the peacock raw,
He bears into the bath: when planted in a feast of youth,
Repletion, appies, interswive death. Dyden.

Intestinal. adj. [inotent, Fr. intestine.]

Belonging to the guts.

The mouths of the ladles are open by the intestine tube, affording a straight instead of a spiral cylinder.

Intestine. adj. [inotent, Fr. intestine, Lat.] Internal; inward, not external.

1. Of these inward and intestine enemies to prayer, there are our past sins to wound us, our present cares to disturb us, our disordered passions to disorder us, and a whole swarm of loose and floating imaginations to molest us.

Of intestine war no more our passions wage,
E'n giddy, and the rage.

Pope.

2. Contained in the body.

Intestine stone, and ulcer, cholic, pangs. Milton's Par. Lost.

And moon-fruck madness.

A wooden join, that had not met,
Lost, by diffuse, the art to raise,
A sudden alteration feels,
Increased by now interswive wheels.

Swift.

3. Difermented. To design, I know not whether the word be properly used in the following example of Shakespear: perhaps for mortal and intestine should be read mortal intestine.

Since the mortal and intestine jar
Twist thy fiddulous countrysmen and us,
It hath is solemn foams been decered,
To' admit no traffic to our adverse towns. Shak.

But God, or Nature, while they contend,
To these interswve, disports put an end.
Dyden.

She saw her fow with purple death expire,
And dreadful serises of intestine wars.

Ingronious triumphs and dishonored feats.

Pope.

The intestines or guts may be inflamed by an acid substance taken inwardly. Arthburn on Diet.

INTHESTALL. v. a. [in and thrall.

To enslave, to shackle; to reduce to servitude.

A word now seldom used, at least in prose.

What though I be interswve'd, he seem's a knight,
And will not any way disfavour me. Shak.

The Turk, has fought to extinguish the ancient memory of those people which he has subjedted and interswve'd. Radigh.

Authors to themselves in all,
Both what they judge, and what they chuse; for to interswve'd them free, and free they must remain,
Till they interswve themselves. Milton's Par. Lost.

Sheoothe, but never can interswve my mind:
Why may not peace and love for once be join'd?

Petr.

Intemlament. n. f. [from internals.

Servitude, slavery.

Mofes and Aaron, sent from God to claim
His people from interswvealment, they return
With glory and spoil back to their promis'd land.

Milton.

To Interthone, v. a. [in and thron.

To raise to royalty, to seat on a throne: commonly embrance.

One, chief, in gracious dignity interswve'd,
Shines over the rest. Thomson's Summer.

INTIMACY. n. f. [from intimate.

Close familiarity.

It is in our power to confine our friendships and intimate to what we please.

Rogers.

INTIMATE. n. f. [intimado, Spanish; intim., Latin.]

1. Intimato; inward; inteine.

They knew not
That what I mention'd was of God, I knew
From interswve the ladles of Milton's Apographis.
Fear being to interswve to our natures, it is the strongest bond of laws.

Tillotson.

2. Near; not kept at distance.

Moses was sent by the command of the Mount, received there his private instructions; and when the multitude were thundered away from any approach, he was honoured with an intimate and immediate audience of the South.

INTIMATE friendships.

3. Familiar; closely acquainted.

United by this sympathetic bond,
You grow familiar, intimate, and fond.

Reformed.

INTIMATE n. f. [intimado, Spanish; intim., French; intim., Latin.]

A familiar friend; one who is trusted with our thoughts.

The design was to entertain his reason with a more eloquent converse, affin him an intimate whole intellect, which correspond'd with his as did the outward form.

Conf. of the Tongue.

To INTIMATE n. f. [intimacy, French; intimacy, low Latin.] To hint; to point out indirectly, or not very plainly.

Alexander Van Suchten tells us, that by a way he intimates, may be made a memory of copper, not of the silver colour of other mercuries, but green.

Boyle.

The names of simple ideas and substances, with the abstract ideas in the mind, intermix the real existence, from which was derived their original pattern.

Locke.

To the divinity that flies within us; 'Tis Heavn's inlent that points out an hereafter, And intimates eternity to man. Addison's Cato.

INTIMATELY. adv. [from intimate.]

1. Cloflyly; with intermixture of parts.

The same economy is observed in the circulation of the chyle with the blood, by mixing it intimately with the parts of the fluid to which it is united.

Arthburn.

2. Nearly; ineparably.

Quality, as it regards the mind, has its rise from knowledge and virtue, and that which is more essential to us, and more intimately united with us.

Spedoner.

3. Familiarly; with close friendship.

INTIMATION. n. f. [from intimate, Fr. from intimate.] Hint; obscure or indirect declaration or direction.

Let him frisly observe the first, firings and intimations; the first hints and whispers of good and evil that pass in his heart.

Of those that are only probable we have some reasonabile intimations; but not a demonstrative certainty.

Woodward.

Besides the more solid parts of learning, there are several little intimations to be met with on medita.

Addison.

INTIMAG. adj. Inward; being within the mast; not being external, or on the surface; internal.

Not used.

As to the composition or dilution of mixed bodies, which is the chief work of elements, and requires an intimate application of the agents, water hath the principality and cereus over earth.

Digby on Bodies.

INTIMIDATE. v. a. [intimdcier, French; in and imidus, Lat.] To make fearful; to daffardize; to make cowardly.

At that tribunal stands the writing tribe,
Which nothing can intimate or bridle.

Time is the judge.

Young.

Now guilt once harboured in the conscious brain, intimulates the brave, desgates the great.

Irene.

INTIRE. n. f. [integer, Lat. enter, Fr. better written entire, which see, and all its derivatives. Whole; undiminished; broken.

The lawful power of making laws, to command whole politic societies of men, belongeth properly unto the whole societies, that for any prince to counterfeit the fame of himself, and not either by open corrupts immediatly and personally received from God, or else by power derived at the first from their confent upon whose posessions he imposes laws, it is in any case tyranny. Locke.

INTIRENSES. n. f. [from intim; better entireness.] Wholeness; integrity.

So shall all times find me the same.
You this intimenesse better may fulfill,
When the pattern of the same you will.

Downe.

INTO. prep. [in and to]

1. Noting entrance with regard to place; opposed to out of.

Water introduceth vegetables the matter it bears along with it.

Woodward's Nat. Hist.

6 & 2

Acid.
INT

Acrifubiances, which pass into the capillary tubes, must irritate them into greater constriction. Arbuthnot on Alliments.

Note. Noting of one thing into another.

If you will acquire by mere continuance an habitual inclination to the fine it holds, how much more may education, being a constant sight and frequentance, induce by custom good habits of the same in your conversation? Wotton.

To give life to that which has yet no being, is to frame a living creature, fashion the parts, and having fitted them together, to put them into motion. Locke.

3. Noting penetration beyond the outside, or some action which reaches beyond the superficialities or open part.

To look into letters already opened or dropped is held an ungenerous act. Fipps.

4. Noting inclusion real or figurative.

They have denominated some herbs solar and some lunar, and such like toys put into great words. Bacon.

5. Noting a new state to which any thing is brought by the agency of a cause.

Compounded bodies may be resolved into other substances than such as they are divided into by the fire. Boyle.

A man must fin himself into a love of other men's fires, for a bare notion of this black art will not carry him so far.

Sure thou art born to some peculiar fate; when the mad people rise against the State, to look them in the face and command an awful silence with thy lifted hand. Dryden.

It concerns every man that would not trifle away his time, and feel himself into irrecoverable misery, with the greatest fearlessness to enquire into these matters. Tilloin.

He is not a frail being, that he should be lived into compliance by the force of arbitrary application. Smalridge.

In hollow bottoms, if any fountain chance to rise, they naturally spread themselves into lakes, before they find any office. Addison on Italy.

It would have been all irretrievably lost, it was not by these means collected and brought into one masts.

Why are these petitions charged upon me as their sole author; and the reader led into a belief, that they were never before maintained by any person of virtue? Addison.

It is no ways congruous, that God should be always frightening men into an acknowledgment of the truth, who were made to be wrought upon each other by their own evidence. A man may whore and drink himself into Atheism; but it is impossible he should think himself into it.

INTOLERABLE, adj. [intolerabilis, Latin; intolerable, French.]

1. Inadmissible; not to be endured; not to be borne; having any quality in a degree too powerful to be endured.

If we bring into one day's thoughts the evil of many, certain and uncertain, what will be and what will never be, our load will be as intolerable as it was unbearable in Taylor.

His awful presence did the crowd surpize, Nor durst the rash spectator meet his eyes; with fear, and with horror, with horror's awe, For so fierce, they flinn'd intolerable day. Dryden.

Some men are quickly weary of one thing; the same study long continued is as intolerable to them, as the appearing long in the same clothes to a court lady.

From Parmam's top th' Almighty ride, Insolent day proclaim'd the God. Browne.

2. Bad beyond sufferance.

INTOLERABLENESS n. s. [from intolerable.]

Quality of a thing not to be endured.

INTOLERABLY, adv. [from intolerable.]

To a degree beyond endurance.

INTOLERATE. adj. [intolerans, Fr.]

Not enduring; not able to endure.

Too great moisture affects human bodies with one class of diseases, and too great dryness with another; the same human bodies being limited and intolerant of excesses. Arbuthnot.

To INTEMPER. v. a. [in and temp.] To incline in a funeral monument; to bury. What commandment had the Jews for the conscience of the members of the bodies of the dead, after which custom notwithstanding our Lord was contended that his own most precious blood should be intemper'd in his; John. Holker.

This night's predominance or the day's shame, That darkness does the face of earth intemper Shakespeare.

Mighty heroes, more majestic than gods. And youths intemper'd before their father's eyes. Dryden.

To INTOXICATE. v. a. [intoxicare, Latin.] To thunder.

INTOXICATION n. f. [intoxication, Fr. from intoxicate.]

The act of thundering. Dryden.

To INTOX. v. n. [from intoxicate, Fr.]

To make a flow protracted noise. So swells each windpipe; as intemper to all Harmick twang. Pope's Dunciad.

To INTOXICATE. v. a. [intoxicare, Latin.]

To twit; to wear; to wring. The beast of all creatures of glads, that separate the finer parts of the blood, called animal spirits; and a gland is nothing but a canal variously intemper'd and wound up together. With revolting hand the king presents the gold, Which round th' intemper'd horns the gilder roll'd. Pope.

To INTOXICATE. v. a. [in and intoxicate, Adv.]

To inebriate; to make drunk. The more a man dwells upon the world, the more he intemperately; and age doth profit rather in the powers of understanding, than in the virtues of the will and affections. Bacon.

As with new wine intemperately both, They swim in mirth, and fancy that they feel Divinity within them breeding wings, Whence to form the earth. Milton.

Early mirth's, now my ancient mirth, That round Circcean liquor cease't influe, Wherewith thou didst intemper mine youth. Dryden.

What part of wild fury was there to the bacchantes which we have not seen equal'd, if not exceed by some intemper'd sailors? Dryden.

D Tacitus.

To INTOXICATE. v. n. [from intemper.]

Inebriation; ebriety; the act of making drunk; the state of being drunk. That king, being in unity with him, did so burn in hatred to him, as to drink of the lees and dregs of Perkin's intoxication, who was everywhere so elicit detected. Bacon.

Where can this proceed, but from that beclouding intoxication which verbal magic brings upon the mind. South.

INTOXICABLE. adj. [intoxicabili, Latin; intoxicable, French.]

1. Ungovernable; violent; ribbion; obdurate.

To those whom love is so natural a passion, that even the most intoxicable temples obey its force. Roger.

2. Unmanageable; furious.

By what means ferrets, and other noxious and more intoxicable kinds, as well as the more innocent and useful, got together. Woodward.
INTRODUCTION.

I. Any one who brings anything into practice or notice.

1. The beginning of the Earl of Essex. I must attribute to my Lord, of Leicester; but yet as an introducer or supporter, not as a power. Warton.

2. A memoir of the army, that the whole body of drinking to excess hath been lately, from their example, reduced among us; but whenever the introducers were, they have succeeded to a man. Swift.

INTRODUCTORY.

I. The act of conducting or offering to any place or person; the state of being offered or conducted.

2. The act of bringing any new thing into notice or practice.

The archbishop of Canterbury had purged the introduction of the liturgy and the canons into Scotland with great reprobation. Clarendon.

3. The preface or part of a book containing previous matter.

INTRODUCTIVE.

I. Introducing, Fr. from introduco. Serving as the means to something else.

The truth of Christ crucified, is the Christian's philosophy, and a good life is the Christian's Logic: that great instrumental introduction, art, that must guide the mind into the forming. Locke.

INTRODUCTION.

I. [From introitus, Lat.] Previous; serving as a means to something further.

This introduction discourse itself is to be but an essay, not a book. Swift.

INTROJEC'TION.

I. [From introgere, Lat.] The beginning of the Mass; the beginning of publick devotions.

1. The act of sending in.

If light be cast by introduction, or receiving in the form of that which is seen, contrary species or forms should be received confusedly together, which Aristotle threat to be absurd. Proclus.

All the reason that I could ever hear alleged by the chimerical for a general introduction of all facts and passions into our communion, is, that those who separate from us are still and obstinate, and will not suffer the rules of our church, and that therefore they should be taken away.

2. In the Scottish law. The act of intermediating with another's effects; as, be shall be brought to an account for his introductions with such an estate.

TO INTRODUCE.

I. To conduct or offer into a place, or to a person.

Mathematicians of advanced speculations may have other ways to introduce into their minds ideas of infinity. Locke.

2. To bring something into notice or practice.

This vulgar error whatsoever is able to reclaim, he shall introduce a new way of cure, concerning itself to the practice. Brown's Valuer Errors. An author who should introduce a物种 of words upon the stage, would meet with small applause. Browne.

3. To produce; to give occasion to.

Whatsoever introduces habits in children, preserves the care and attention of their governors. Locke.

4. To bring into writing or discourse by preparative.

If he will introduce himself by prefaces, we cannot help it. Layer's Trial.

INTRODUCTIVE.

I. [From introductus, Fr. from introduce.] One who conducts another to a place or person.

INTRODUCTORY.

I. From introductus, Lat. intraducere, Fr. This word is now generally written introducet, contrary to etymology.
1. To come in unwelcome by a kind of violence; to enter without invitation or permission.

Thy years want wit, thy wit want edge
And manners, to intrude where I am great.

2. It is fhowed by an before persons, or personal polleffions.

The Jewish religion was yet in polleffion; and therefore that this might so enter, as not to intrude, it was no fault being its warrant from the Exaimation of omnipotence.

3. To enroach: to force in uncailed or unreplimented; sometimes with into.

Let no man beguile you of your reward, in a voluntary humility, and worshiping of angels, intruding into their things which they hide not, by his fleshly mind.

4. To intrude, a. a. To force without right or welcome; commonly with the reciprocal pronoune.

Not to intrude one's elf to the mysteries of government, which the princes keep secret, is represented by the winds that are in a bull hide, which the companions of Ulisses we found to need not to be rend to them.

5. Intruder, n. f. [from intrude.] One who forces himself into company or affairs without right or welcome.

Unmanfully intruder as thou art! Shakespeare.

6. To intrude on; to overwhelm have.

Below the awning limits and equal mates. Shak.

7. intruder upon the polleffion, during the minority of the heir; they knew these lands were the rightful inheritance of the young lady.

DINNAR on Ireland.

Will you, a bold intruder, never learn
To know your basket, and your bread differ.

8. intruder, a. f. [from intrude.] One who forces himself into company or affairs without right or welcome.

She had been a great variety of faces: they were all strangers, and intruders, as such, had no acquaintance with.

9. The whole fraternity of writers rise up in arms against every new intruder into the world of fame.

Addison's Preface.

10. The act of thrusting or forcing any thing or person into any place or state.

Many excellent strains have been jollified by the intrusions of poetical ficions.

The separation of the parts of one body, upon the intrusions of another, and the change from rest to motion upon impulsive, and the like, seem to have some connection.

11. Encroachment upon any person or place; unwelome entrance; entrance without notice or permission.

I think myself in better plight for a lender than you are, the which hath something emboldened me to this unseasoned intrusio: I for they say, if moxey go before, all ways do lie open.

12. To intrust, a. a. [in and trust].

To treat with confidence; to charg even with any secret commiion, or thing of value:

INT

as, we intrust another with something; or we intrust something to another.

1. To twift, or wreath together.

This opinion, though falf, yet intrusio; with a troth, that the fouls of men do never perish, shaft the fear of death in men.

2. To be infurbed by being wreathed or twifted.

The wait and wheel divinie,
Which wandering foliage and rich flowis intrusts.

3. To INVADE, a. a. [invaude, Latin.]

To attack a country; to make an holfic entrance.

He will invade them with troops.

1. To attack; to affail; to assail.

There shall be feditious among men, and invade another: they shall not regard their kings a fleft.

2. To attack; to affail; to assail.

But where the greater malady is fix'd,
The letter is fcarce felt. Shakespeare's King Lear.

3. To violate by the first act of hostility; to attack, not defend.

Your foes are such, as they, not you, have made;
And virtue may repel, though not invade.

4. Invader, n. f. [from invade, Latin.]

One who enters with hostility into the polleffions of another.

The breath of Scotland the Spaniards could not endure; neither durn them, as invaders, in Ireland.

Their piety
Was a proud contrefall of baffe found no aid
Against invaders. Milton: Paradise Lost.

That knowledge, like the coal from the altar,
Ferces only to embroil and confufe the fierlous invaders.

Were we left, the nacked empire
Would be a prey expos'd to all invaders.

Did we have the country about Attica was the most hospitable of any in Greece, through which it happened that the mutines were not expelled by the fury of invaders.

2. An affaliant.

The contrivance was not only imprifed in that uncompounded style, but afterwards prudently enlarged for the repelling and preventing heretical invaders.

3. Encroacher, intruder.

The furniture was not only imprifed in that uncompounded style, but afterwards prudently enlarged for the repelling and preventing heretical invaders.

1. Intussusception, n. f. [intussuscepe, Latin.]

Strength; health; force.

2. Invalid, adj. [invalid, French; invalidus, Latin.]

Weak; of no weight or cogenacy.
inv

1. To discover; to find out; to exegitate; to produce something not made before.

The substance of the service of God, is far farther than it is any thing to be received from the hand of man, but rather to be received from God himself.

The sphere of Cupid forty years contains.

Milton.

Woe to them that invent to themselves instruments of murder.

2. To forge; to contrive falsely; to fabricate.

I never did such things as those men have maliciously invented against me.

Milton.

Ye rebellious matters of Maccabae's race, to which Nature's many instruc tions trace, With many, false and false inventions, Blackness.

Ye rebellious matters of Maccabae's race, to which Nature's many instruc tions trace, With many, false and false inventions, Blackness.

3. To feign; to make by the imagination.

I would invent as bitter learning terms, With full as many figures, as Tenet's.

Dryden.

As lean-fac'd envy in her loathsome case. Shak.

For he wonders what them made to glad: Or Bacchus' merry fault they did invent, Or Cepheus' francisch riles have made them mad. Shak.

INVENTOR. n. f. [from inventum, French.]

1. One who produces something new; a devourer of something not known before.

As a transitor, he was at first; as an inventor, he was afterwards. Dryden.

2. A forger.

INVENTION. n. f. [invention, French; inventio, Latin.]

1. Exagination; the art or power of producing something new.

O for a muse of fire, that would ascend The heights of heaven, and bring me to my right.

Shakespeare.

By improving what was writ before, Invention labour'd less, but judgement more.

Shakspere.

Invention is a kind of muse, which, by the col- lation of the other advantages common to histrionics, and being warmed by the fire of Apollo, is raised higher than the rest.

Shakspere.

Milton.

Shakspere.

3. Forgery; fiction.

We hear our bloody couriers, not confessing Their traitor piety, filling their hearers With strange inventions. Shakspere.
INV

If you can't accuse,
Do it without invention boldly.

Shaks.

4. The thing invented.

To be the systems, art and false in natural orments than artificial inventions.

Sidney.

INVENTIVE. adj. [inventive, Fr. from inventer.]

1. Quick at contrivance; ready at expedients.

Thoe have the inventiveness heads for all purposes, and roundest tongues in all matters.

Achab.

That inventive head
Her seal image from the temple drew,
The deepening garments of the cruel deale.

Dryden.

The inventive god, who never fails his part,
Inspires the wit, when once he warms the heart.

Dryden.

2. Having the power of excogitation or fiction.

As he had an inventive brain, so there never lived any man that believed better thereof, and himself.

Reason, remembrance, wit, inventive art,
No nature, but immortal, can impart.

Donbam.

INVENTOR. n.s. [inventor, Latin.]

1. A contriver; a framaker. In an ill sense.

In this upshot, purpoise mutch, Follin on the inventors' heads.

Shakespeare.

INVENTORIALLY. adv. [from inventory, whence perhaps inventorial.]

In manner of an inventory.

To divide inventorially, would daisy thearith-metic of this story.

Shaks.

INVENTORIUM. n.s. [inventaire, French; inventarium, Lat.]

An account or catalogue of movables.

I found,
Forsooth, an inventory, thus importing,
The several parcels of his estate.

Shakespeare.

He readeth that affilis us, the object of our misery, is as an Inventorie to particularise our abundance, our sufferers is a gain to them.

Shakespeare.

What ever looks,
For themselves dare not go o'er Cheshkad books,
Shall find their wardrobe's inventory.

Dryden.

Why were there much correspondence to have such an inventory of nature, wherein as, on the one hand, nothing should be wanting, so nothing repeated on the other.

In the daughters of Eve are reckoned in the inventory of their goods and chattels; and it is usual, when a man fills a bale of silk, to toss half a decan women into the bargain.

Addison

INVENTORY. n.s. [inventories, Fr. from inventer.]

A contriver; to place in a catalogue.

I will give out divers schedules of my beauty;
It shall be inventeried, and every particle and utensil labell'd.

Shakespeare.

A man looks on the love of his friend as one of the chiefest passions; the philosopher thought friends were to be inventeried as well as goods.

Goa, of the Tongue.

INVENTRESS. n.s. [inventories, Fr. from inventer.]

A female that invents.

INV.

At the time with all their utmost of letter trade;
history and tradition tell us when they had their beginning; and how many of their inventors and inventresses were defiled.

Burnet.

Inventories at the vocal frame;
The forest enthralled, from her sacred store,
Ealing'd the former narrow bounds.

Dryden.

INVERSE. adj. [inverse, Fr. invers, Lat.]

Inverted was my nature, opposite to directed.
It is so called in proportion, when the fourth term is so much greater than the third,
as the second is less than the first;
or so much less than the third as the second is greater than the first.

Every part of matter tends to every part of matter with a terror, which is always in a direct proportion of the quantity of matter, and an inverse duplicate proportion of the distance.

Carth.

INVERSION. n.s. [inverstion, Fr. inversions, Latin.

1. Change of order or time, so as that the last is first, and first last.

If he forms a plot to make a foolish invention of the precept of God, to do good that evil may come
of it.

Brow.

'Tis just the invention of an art of parliament;
their loading fist figked it, and then it was past among the lords and commons.

Dryden.

2. Change of place, so that each takes the room of the other.

To INVERT. v. a. [inversion, Latin.]

1. To turn upside down; to place in contrary method or order to that which was before.

With fate inverted, shall I humbly woo?
And some proud prince in wild Numidia born.

Dryden.

2. To place the last first.

Yet, every poet is a fool;
By demonstration Ned can shew it;

Hipp.

As such is Ned's inverted rule.

Prove every fool to be a poet.

Prior.

3. To divert; to turn into another channel; to imbezilze. Instead of this counsors or intercessors is now commonly used.

Shakespeare.

He is charged with inventing his resources to his own private use, and having secret intelligence with his enemies.

Knollee's History of the Turks.

INVESTEDLY. adv. [from invested.]

In contrary or reversed order.

Placing the frontpart of the eye to the hole of the window of a darkened room, we have a pretty landscap of the objects already, invertedly painted on the paper, on the glass of the eye.

Dibdin.

TO INVEST. v. a. [infriger, Fr. inviser, Latin.]

1. To dress; to clothe; to array. It has inv or with before the thing superinduced or conferred.

Their gulfure sad;
Inevitable, born and wornen, cost;

Shakespeare.

1. To invest with the golden moon;
So many haurical glories.

Shakespeare.

2. To invest them with the golden moon;
So many haurical glories.

Shakespeare.

To invest them with the golden moon;
So many haurical glories.

Shakespeare.

3. To invest them with the golden moon;
So many haurical glories.

Shakespeare.

Thet dyes the eyes thine forth in their full luster;

Duniam's Smyth.

2. To invest in possession of a rank or office.

When we solicit or hire divines, that which we do is only to desire that we make them places of publicRegressor, that we invest God himself with them, and that we sever them from common uses.

Hooke.

Hence, some gospel ministers,
In the name of God and the former prophese,
That they may not lose the office of God;

Shakespeare.

3. To adorn; to grace; as clothes or ornamments.

Hence, some gospel ministers,
In the name of God and the former prophese,
That they may not lose the office of God;

Shakespeare.

Hence, some gospel ministers,
In the name of God and the former prophese,
That they may not lose the office of God;

Shakespeare.
INVICTA,

1. Old; long established.

2. Obstinate by long continuance.

The vulgar conceived, that now there was an end of that confession. A confirmation to superstitious precepts, and to an ancient tacit expectation, which had by tradition been infulted and inveeterated
into men's minds.

Let not Atheists lay the fault of their sins upon human nature, which have their prevalence from long custom and inveeterated habit.

INVICTA,

1. Envious; malignant.

2. Likely to incur or to bring hatred. This is the most usual fenfe.

Agassiz found it an Invicta affair to give the preference to any one of the Grecian heroes.

Not to be further redolent, or rather inveeterated,
there are no causes which have contributed to the change of our morals.

INVICTA,

1. Malignantly; enviously.

2. In a manner likely to provoke hatred.

The clergy murmured against the privileges of the livery, they invictly insinuate the immunities of the clergy.

I. The
down, and every blessed spirit of peace;

"Wherefore do you ill translate yourselves?
Out of the speech of peace, that bears such grace,
Into the harsh and boister tongue of war?

Shakespeare.

INVICTA,

1. Long continuance of any thing bad;
obstinacy confirmed by time.

The inveeteracy of the people's prejudices compel them to make use of all means for producing them.

Addison.

2. [in physick.] Long continuance of a disease.

INVICTA,

1. Old; long established.

2. Obstinate by long continuance.

It is not every finfull violation of condition that can quench the spirit; but it must be a long inveeterated continuation of sinning, that at length produces and ends in such a cursed effect.

South.

He who writes faire honestly is no more an ensem-
ne the offender, than the physician to the patient;
which are precipitious harsh remedies to an insupportable
disease.

Boer.

In a well-instituted state the executive power will never let abuses grow inveeterated, or multiply so fast that it will be hard to find remedies.

Swift.

7. INVEETERATION, n. a. [inveeterate, Fr. inveeterer, Lat.] To fix and fettle by long continuance.

The vulgar conceived, that now there was an end of that confession. A confirmation to superstitious precepts, and to an ancient tacit expectation, which had by tradition been infulted and inveeterated
into men's minds.

Let not Atheists lay the fault of their sins upon human nature, which have their prevalence from long custom and inveeterated habit.

Bentley.

INVICTA,

1. Malignantly; enviously.

2. Likely to incur or to bring hatred. This is the most usual fenfe.

Agassiz found it an Invicta affair to give
the preference to any one of the Grecian heroes.

Not to be further redolent, or rather inveeterated,
there are no causes which have contributed to the change of our morals.

INVICTA,

1. Malignantly; enviously.

2. In a manner likely to provoke hatred.

The clergy murmured against the privileges of the livery, they invictly insinuate the immunities of the clergy.

I. The
down, and every blessed spirit of peace;

"Wherefore do you ill translate yourselves?
Out of the speech of peace, that bears such grace,
Into the harsh and boister tongue of war?

Shakespeare.

INVICTA,

1. Long continuance of any thing bad;
obstinacy confirmed by time.

The inveeteracy of the people's prejudices compel them to make use of all means for producing them.

Addison.

2. [in physick.] Long continuance of a
disease.

INVICTA,

1. Old; long established.

2. Obstinate by long continuance.

It is not every finfull violation of condition
that can quench the spirit; but it must be a long inveeterated
continuation of sinning, that at length produces and ends in such a cursed effect.

South.

He who writes faire honestly is no more an ensem-
ne the offender, than the physician to the patient;
which are precipitious harsh remedies to an insupportable disease.

Boer.

In a well-instituted state the executive power will never let abuses grow inveeterated, or multiply so fast
that it will be hard to find remedies.

Swift.

7. INVEETERATION, n. a. [inveeterate, Fr. inveeterer, Lat.] To fix and fettle by long continuance.

The vulgar conceived, that now there was an end of that confession. A confirmation to superstitious precepts, and to an ancient tacit expectation, which had by tradition been infulted and inveeterated
into men's minds.

Let not Atheists lay the fault of their sins upon human nature, which have their prevalence from long custom and inveeterated habit.

Bentley.

INVICTA,

1. Malignantly; enviously.

2. Likely to incur or to bring hatred. This is the most usual fenfe.

Agassiz found it an Invicta affair to give
the preference to any one of the Grecian heroes.

Not to be further redolent, or rather inveeterated,
there are no causes which have contributed to the change of our morals.

INVICTA,

1. Malignantly; enviously.

2. In a manner likely to provoke hatred.

The clergy murmured against the privileges of the livery, they invictly insinuate the immunities of the clergy.

I. The
down, and every blessed spirit of peace;

"Wherefore do you ill translate yourselves?
Out of the speech of peace, that bears such grace,
Into the harsh and boister tongue of war?

Shakespeare.

INVICTA,

1. Long continuance of any thing bad;
obstinacy confirmed by time.

The inveeteracy of the people's prejudices compel them to make use of all means for producing them.

Addison.

2. [in physick.] Long continuance of a
disease.

INVICTA,

1. Old; long established.

2. Obstinate by long continuance.

It is not every finfull violation of condition
that can quench the spirit; but it must be a long inveeterated
continuation of sinning, that at length produces and ends in such a cursed effect.

South.

He who writes faire honestly is no more an ensem-
ne the offender, than the physician to the patient;
which are precipitious harsh remedies to an insupportable disease.

Boer.

In a well-instituted state the executive power will never let abuses grow inveeterated, or multiply so fast
that it will be hard to find remedies.

Swift.

7. INVEETERATION, n. a. [inveeterate, Fr. inveeterer, Lat.] To fix and fettle by long continuance.

The vulgar conceived, that now there was an end of that confession. A confirmation to superstitious precepts, and to an ancient tacit expectation, which had by tradition been infulted and inveeterated
into men's minds.

Let not Atheists lay the fault of their sins upon human nature, which have their prevalence from long custom and inveeterated habit.

Bentley.

INVICTA,

1. Malignantly; enviously.

2. Likely to incur or to bring hatred. This is the most usual fenfe.

Agassiz found it an Invicta affair to give
the preference to any one of the Grecian heroes.

Not to be further redolent, or rather inveeterated,
there are no causes which have contributed to the change of our morals.

INVICTA,

1. Malignantly; enviously.

2. In a manner likely to provoke hatred.

The clergy murmured against the privileges of the livery, they invictly insinuate the immunities of the clergy.

I. The
down, and every blessed spirit of peace;

"Wherefore do you ill translate yourselves?
Out of the speech of peace, that bears such grace,
Into the harsh and boister tongue of war?

Shakespeare.
IN V

When much company is invited, then be as hearing as possible of your coat.

2. To allure; to persuade; to induce by hope or pleasure.

A war upon the Turks is more worthy than upon other Greeks, though feckery and hope of success might invite some other choice.

3. Nor art thou such

To visit them.

4. Milton's Paradise Lost

The liberal contributions such teachers met with, served all to invite more labours into that work.

Decay of Piety.

Shady groves, that easy steep invite,

And after wholesome days a sweet repose at night.

5. Invit. v. n. [invite, Lat.] To ask or call to any thing pleasing.

All things invite

To peaceful counsels.

6. Milton

Inviter. m. f. [from invite.] He who invites.

They forcibly cut out abortive votes, such as their invaders and encouragers most fancied.

King Charles.

Honour was the aim of the gurth, and interest was the hope of the invaders. Snowdrop's Siemens.

And grav's the tables grace.

But might the kind inviter's cheerful face.

Pope's Odyssey.

Invitingly. adv. [from inviting.] In such a manner as invites or allure.

7. But dure up a translation, the inviting's but done.

Decay of Piety.

To insinuate. v. a. [insinuare, Latin.] To flade; to cover with shades.

Dift.

Insinuation. n. f. [infusionis, Latin.] The act of sneaking or appointing.

The wife Author of Nature hath placed on the pure, unclouded seat of the human breast, a bird caustic; hold upon with her bile, and squeezes out an oily linement, fit for the Inulation of the feathers, and causing their filaments to cohere.

Rap.

Inulation. n. f. [inulation, French; inundation, Latin.]

1. The overflow of waters; flood; deluge.

 inundation, says Cowley, implies left than deluge.

Her father counts it dangerous,

That should give her bow down so much wary;

And in his wisdom halts our marriage.

To the inulation of her tears.

Shakespeare.

The same inundation was not full forty foot in most places; so that some few wild inhabitants of the country passed it.

Bacon.

All of the fountains of the earth are broken up.

Broke up, shall leave the ocean to usurp

Beyond all bounds, till inundation ride.

Above the highest hills.

Milton's Paradise Lost.

This inundation upon the Egyptians happened when it is Winter unto the Ethiopians.

Your care about your banks infracts a star.

Of threatening floods, and inundations near.

Dyder.

No intolerable inundation hides the grounds.

But current events glide within their bounds.

Gay.

2. A confluence of any kind.

Many good towns, through that inundation of the Irish, were utterly walled.

Spranger.

To invocate. v. a. [invocare, Latin.] To invoke; to implore; to call upon; to pray to.

Here the cold figure of a holy king

Is not lawful, that I invocate thy ghost.

To hear the lamentations of poor Anne.

If Dagon be thy god.

Go to his temple, invocate his aid

With solemn devotion.

Milton's Agrippa.

Here rather let me drudge, and earn my bread,

As current events glide within their bounds.

Consume me, and oft invocated death

Untill the welcome end of all my pains.

Milton's Agrippa.

INVOCATION. n. f. [invocatio, French; invocazione, Latin.]

1. The act of calling upon in prayer.

Is not the name of prayer usual to signify even all the service that ever we do unto God? And that for no other cause, as I suppose, but to shew there is in religion no acceptable duty, which devout invocation of the name of God doth not either preclude or inter.

Hooker.

2. The form of calling for the assent or presence of any being.

My invocation is

Honest and fair, and in his mistress' name.

Shek.

The proposition of Gnatius is contained in a line.

Way.

Will I myself to breathe out this one invocation.

Havelock.

The whole poem is a prayer to fortune, and the invocation is divided between the two deities.

Addison on Dryden.

INVOCATE. v. a. [invocare, Latin.]

This word is perhaps corrupted from the French word evocare,

Send.

A catalogue of the freights of a ship, or of the articles of goods sent by a factor.

To invocate. v. a. [invocare, Latin; invocare, French.] To call upon; to implore; to pray to; to invoke.

The power I will invoke dwells in her eyes.

Sidney.

One peculiar rule to follow.

From all the relics of whom to be invoc'd.

Milton.

Striking the T_hraic nap, invoces Apollo.

To make his hero and himself immortal.

Hor.

To invovle. v. a. [invovlo, Latin; involver, French.] To enwrap to cover with any thing circumfluent.

Leave a fingered bottom all invovled.

With drench and smoke.

No man could misc his way to heaven for want of light and yet to vain are they as to think they oppose the world by invoving it in darkets.

Decay of Piety.

In a cloud invovled, he takes his flight,

Where Grecia and Turgis mix'd in mortal fight.

Dryden.

2. To imply; to comprize.

We cannot demonstrate these things so as to shew that the contrary necessarily involves a contradiction.

Tillotson.

3. To entret; to join,

He knows his end with mine invovled.

Milton.

4. To take in; to catch; to conjure.

The gaitful number, as it moves along.

Invovles a vast involuntary throng.

Pope.

Sin we should hate altogether; but our hatred of it may involve the person, which we should not hate at all.

One death involves

Tyrants and slaves.

Thompson's Summer.

5. To entangle.

This presence of the name to a thing whereof we have no idea, is so far from helping at all, that it only serves the more to involve us in difficulties.

As obscure and imperfect ideas often involve our reason, so do devious words puzzle men's reason.

Tighe.

6. To complique; to make intricate.

Some wove'v'd their frisk'foly fonds.

Milton.

Syllogism is of necessity, even to the lovers of truth, to shew them the fallacies that are often concealed in flars, witty, or invovled discourses.

Lack.

7. To blend; to mingle together confederally.

Earth with hell mingle and invove.

INVOLUNTARIY. adj. [in voluntarius, Latin; involuentaire, French.]

1. Not having the power of choice.

The gathering number, as it moves along.

Invovles a vast involuntary throng,

Wherein is that ponderous and marble jaws

To call then us up again. Shakespeare's Hamlet.

Amidst the heat, and thro' the Turgis flames involved.

And by his loyal daughters truly moul'd. Dryden.

INVOLVEMENT. n. f. [involventia, Latin.] The act of burning.

INVOLVILE. adj. [invovlile, Fr. inutilis, Lat.] Ufelefs; unprofitable.

To refer to heat and cold is a comprehendent and involvile speculation. Bacon's Natural History.

INVULNERABLE. adj. [invulnere, Fr. invulnérable, Lat.] Not to be wounded; secure from wound.

Our
INW

- Our canons' malice vastly shall be pent
  Against th' invulnerable clouds of heav'n.
  Shake.

- That mortal dint none can retort.
  Vanilla, though by her beauty bought,
  Search'd in books for wisdom's aid,
  White in the very search betray'd.
  Swift.

To INWARD. n. & p. [and quizz.]
To incline or fortify with a wall.

3. Towards the internal parts, within.
   The parts of living creatures that are more inward, not much more than the outward parts.
   Queen's Natural History.

- The medicines which go to their magic occults are so strong, that if they were used inwardly they would kill; and therefore they work potently, though then uncertainly, inwardly.

2. With infection or incovency; concavely, he frettles out his arm in sign of peace, with his heart bending inward, Dyers' Dyes.

5. Into the mind or thoughts.

- Covering inward we were thickly dumb, looking toward us we speak and prevail.
  Hooker.

Celestial light.
Shine inward, and the soul through all her power's translate.
Milton.

INWARD. adj.
1. Internal; placed not on the outside but within.
He could not rest, but did his heart beat fast, and wide her inward tell with deep sighs.
Fair Queen.

To each inward part.

4. Inwardly, irritable.
On their own account, contributing not less than old age to the making down this festiviity of the body, may discover the inward trouble more plainly.
Pope.

2. Reflecting; deeply thinking.
With inward failure his fancy I need'd
But bent and inward to myself again
Perplex'd, thee matters I resolve'd in vain.
Prior.

5. Intimate; domestic; familiar.
That the least of the liberty of him himself all he may to yield equal justice unto all, yet can there not but great abuses lurk in so inward and absolute a privilege.
Spenser.

All my inward friends abhor me.
Job, xvi, 19.

4. Seated in the mind.
Princes have but their titles for their glory;
An inward heart for an outward tell;
And for unfeigned expectations.

They often feel a world of reticels ears.
Shak.

INWARD. n. & s.
1. Any thing within, generally the bowels.
Seldom has this sense a singular.

When I discovered to myself the inward
And for unfeigned expectations.

They often feel a world of reticels ears.
Shak.

INWARDLY. Adv. from inward.
1. In the heart; privately.

That which inwardly each man should be, the church inwardly ought to tell: he knows, I bless inwardly for my lord.
Shakespeare.

Mean was the king, though inwardly he mou'ded,
In pomp triumphant to the town return'd.
Dr. Johnson's Tale.

2. In the parts within; internally.
Let Benedick, like covered fire,
Concerning any inwardly inviting.
Shak.

2. Clandestines he prefers both outwardly and inwardly.
Abraham.

1. With infection or incovency.

INWARDNESS. n. & s. [from inward.]

- Incommodity; familiarity.

You know, my inwardly and love
Is very much unto the prince and Claudio.
Shak.

To INWARDLY, p. & a. [in and conv.]
1. To mix any thing in weaving, that it forms part of the texture.
A faire boke of the fairest fantasies, intends with an ivory winding-tale.
Down they call their crowns, intwove with amaranth and gold.
Milton.

And her fell falls of purple grape unfold
Rich top'y, studded with intwove gold.

2. To intertwine; to complicate.

The rod
Of thickset cover was, intwove made.
Milton.

To INWOVD. n. & a. [in and conv.]

1. To hide in woods. Not used.

He got out of the river, intwoved himself to the ladies left the marking his huge, Duyser.

To INWARDLY, p. & a. [in and conv.]
1. To cover by involv: to involve.

And over them Araline high did lade
Her cunning web, and spread her fatal net,
Intwove with blus' red eye.

This, as an amber drop intwove a bee,
Covering discovers your quick soul; that we may visit through-thine finerie of heart thought to thee.

2. To perplex; to puzzle; with difficulty or obscurity.

The case is no foner made than revel'd if it be not intwove, but plainly and perpécifully.

3. It is doubtful whether the following example should be in graves or living, from in and rap, rapio, Latin, to ravish or transport.

This pearl the gave me I do feel and tect;
And through its wonder it curvies me that.
Yet 'tis not madness.

For if such holy long
Enter up your fancy long;
Time will run back, and fetch the end of.

INWOVD'T. adj. [from inwovd.]
Alioned with work.
Counus, reverend fire, went looking soul,
His manor of the lady, intwove with figures dim, and on the edge.
Like to that fantastic flower infibled with west.

To INWOWED. n. & a. [in and conv.]
To Gird as with a wreath.
Bind their resplendent locks intwowed's with beams.
Not left the palm of peace intwoved's the bow.

Thoroum.

JOB. n. & s. [A low word now much in use, of which I cannot tell the etymology.]
1. Petty, piddling work; a piece of chance work.

2. A low mean lucrative buxty affair.

He was mean with his old friends, like an old favourite of a cunning minister after the job.
Abraham.

No check is known to bluff, no heart to throe,
Save when they lose a quarter, or a job.

Such perverts as these were never granted with a view of being a job, for the interest of a particular person to the damage of the publick.
Swift.

A little bed with a sharp instrument.

To JOB. n. & a.

1. To strike suddenly with a sharp instrument.

Nor an as with a galled back was feeding in a meadow, a raven pitched upon him, and hat jobbing of the fort.
L'Estrange.

2. To drive in a sharp instrument.

Let peacock and turkey leave jobbing their beak.
Swift.

The work would, where a small irregularity of stuff should happen, draw or job the edge into the flat.

JOBBERNOW. n. & s. [most probably from jobbe, Flemish, dull, and novell, Paul. Saxon, a head.]
Loggerhead; blockhead.

And like the world, men's jobbernows
Turn'd the round of the pole.
Haberdash.

JOCOKEY. n. & s. [from Jock, the diminutive of John, comes Jocky, or as the Scotch, jockey, used for any boy, and particularly for a boy that rides race-horses.

1. A fellow that rides horses in the race.

There were the wife ancestors, who heaped up greater honours on [the] jack's than on the pit himself.
Addison.

2. A man that deals in horses.

3. A cheat; a trickish fellow.

To Jocokey, n. & a. [from the noun.]

1. To juttle by riding against one.

2. To cheat; to trick.

JOCOSE. adj. [jocose, Lat.] Merry; wagghish; given to jest.

If the subject be facetious, all ludicrous terms and jocose or comical aim, should be excluded, lest young minds learn to trifle with the awful solemnities of serious.
Cottom.

JOCO'LESS. adv. [from jocose.] Wagghishly; in jest; in game.

Spondaneus imagines that Ulysses may possibly speak jocose, but in truth Ulysses never behaves with licentious.

JOCO'NESS. n. & s. [from jocose.] Wagghiness.

JOCO'ITY. gery; merriment.
A laugh there is of contempt or insensation, as well as of mirth or jest.

Brown's Fugger Errors.

JOCULAR. adj. [jocularis, Lat.] Used in jest; merry; jocose; wagghish; not serious; used both of men and things.

These jocular flanders are often as mischance as those of deepet design.
Government of the Tongue.
The fate is a damnable poem; the title is partly serious, and partly jocular.
Duyser.

Good Yelling, doth the jocularity.
Addison.

JOCULARITY. n. & s. [from jocular.] Merriment; disposition to jest.

1. The wit of the German were most of those of ours; when men could maintain infinite facet and perfert unliterably at the expenses of probability.

Brown's Fugger Errors.

JOCUND. adj. [jocundus, Lat.] Merry; gay; lovely; lively.

There's comfort yet, then be thou jocund.
Shakespeare.

No jocund heart, that Denmark drinks today.

But the great cannon to the clouds shall tell.
Shakespeare.

They on their mirth and dance.

Intent, with jocund musick charm his ear.
Milton.

& 3

Achilles.
JOI

Alcaeus found his fellow-wine-drinkers, rye, and jovial train.

Jo-curiously. adv. [from jucund.]

To JOI, v. a. [fiebo, Dutch.] To push; to shake by sudden impulse. To be seized by a sudden push.

Now leaps he upright, jogs me and cries, Do you see

Yonder well-fav’d youth ?

Jocundly; gaily, joyfully.

He ran his power of himself to leave it; but he is raised jovially and pleasantly, and daintied according to his heart’s desire.

To JOJ. v. a. [jocher, Dutch.] To push; to shake by sudden impulse, to be seized by a sudden push.

Now leaps he upright, jogs me and cries, Do you see

Yonder well-fav’d youth ?

Dryden, J. En.

3. To doth together; to collude; to encounter: this fene is to be found in the phrase to join battle, in which, battle be it not to signify fight, but troops in array, committantes exercitios, though it may likewise mean fight, as, committere prae-

4. To doth together; to collude; to encounter: this fene is to be found in the phrase to join battle, in which, battle be it not to signify fight, but troops in array, committantes exercitios, though it may likewise mean fight, as, committere prae-

When they joined battle, 13.3.3. was frustrated.

They should with resolute minds endure, until they might join battle with their enemies.

5. To allocate.

Go near, and join thyself to his chariot. Ait. That thou mightst be joined with him in battle.

6. To unite in one act.

Our beast letters are treason to his fame, Join’d with the loud applaus of publick voice.

Dryden.

Thy tuneful voice with numbers join’d, Thy words will more prevail than mine. Dryden.

7. To unite in concord.

Be perfectly joined together in the same mind.

1 Cor.

8. To act in concert with.

Know your own justice, sir, where’t ye lead, We jointly vow to join no other head.

9. To join with the rest; you are named against me.

Dryden.

Any other may join with him that is injured, and affect him in recovering satisfaction.

Lukes.

Joner. n. f. [from jom.] Conjunction; joining; not used.

A conjunction of letters of the same sound.

John. n. f. [from jom.] Conjunction; joining; not used.

A conjunction of letters of the same sound.

Joner. n. f. [from jom.]

One whose trade is to make utensils of wood compound.

The people wherewith thou plant ought to be smiths, carpenters, and joiners. Bacon’s Essay.

It is counted good workmanship in a joiner to bear his hand curiously even.

Joner. n. f. [from jom.]

Joinery is art whereby several pieces of wood are fitted and joined together by strait lines, squares, miters, or any bevel, that they shall form one entire piece.

Maxim.

Joner. n. f. [from jom.]

Joinery is art whereby several pieces of wood are fitted and joined together by strait lines, squares, miters, or any bevel, that they shall form one entire piece.

Maxim.

1. Antecedent of limbus; juncture of movable bones in animal bodies.

Droplets and scab, and join raking thens.

Milton.

1. One felt the same pain in the same joint.

Tempel.

Hinge; junctures which admit motion of the parts.

4. A knot or committee in a plant.

5. One of the limbs of an animal cut up by the butcher.

6. Out of joint. Luxurated; flapped from the socket, or correspondent part where it naturally moves.

7. Out of joint. Thrown into confusion and disorder; confounded; full of disturbance.

The time is out of joint, oh cursed sight !

That ever I was born to fit it right.

Shakespeare.

Join. adj.

1. Shared among many.

Entertain no more of it.

Shakespeare.

2. A joint brother had some us all. Shakespeare.

Though it be common in respect of some men, it is not so to all mankind; but is the joint property of this country, or this parish.

Lact.

3. Joint in the same nomination: as we say, jointheirs or cobs, jointheir's or cob theirs.

The fun and man did drive.

Pope.

4. Pride then was not; nor arts, that pride to sed.

Man walk'd with bead joint tenant of the flade.

Pep.

5. Combined; acting together in concert.

On your joint right now.

My hold of this new kingdom all depends.

Milton.

In a war carried on by the joint force of so many nations, France could found troops.

Add.

6. To join together in confederacy.

Not used.

The times

Male friends of them, joining their force against Cesar.

Shakespeare.

4. To divide a joint; to cut or quarter into joints.

He joints the neck; and with a frocke to strong.

The helm files off, and bears the head along.

Dryna.

Jointed. adj. [from joint.] Full of joints, or committees.

Three cubits high.

The jointed herbage shoots.

Joint. n. f. [from joint.] A fort of plane.

The jointer is somewhat longer than the surf-plane, and hath its sole perfectly straight; its office is to follow the fore plane, and shoot an edge perfectly straight, when a joint is to be fit.

Jointly. adv. [from joint.] Together; not separately.

I began a combat first with him particularly, and after his death with the others jointly.

Sidney.

Because all that are of the church cannot jointly equally work, the first thing in policy required is a difference of persons in the church.

Hooker.

The prince told him he could lay no claim to his gratitude, but desired they might go to the altar together,
To joll the heart, jollhood, thou canst not recall it.

Shakespeare

Bad man been a dwarf, he had scarce been a reasonable creature; for he must then have either had a head only to his shoulders, and not have body and blood enough to supply his brain with spirits; or he must have had a small head, and so there would not have been brain enough for his business.

Gower

JOY, n.f. (from jovial.) A species of

A flower, whose flowers of this kind are greatly esteemed for their strong sweet smell.

Miller

Nor gradual bloom is wanting,
Nor hyacinths of purest virgin white,
Nor lilies and blushing inward;
Nor jupiller

Of potent fragrance.

Tanym's Spring

JORDAN, n.f. (from Jor, Jrons, and, recepta-

A pot.

They will allow us sner a jordan, and then we will laugh in your expediency, and your chamberd breeches bead like a bunch.

Shakespeare

This China jordan let the chief enforce

Replenish, not ingloriously at home. Popes DANCE.

Let no man thy jay from dinner; go, get it ready.

Shakespeare

This nor hurts him nor profits you a jot;

Forbear it therefore; give your guide to Heaven's.

Shakespeare

This bond doth give them here no jot of blood.
The words express a pound of flesh. Shakespere

I argued

Against Heav'n's hand, or will; nor bate one jot

Of heart or hope; but still bear up and bear

On. I. B. Dryden

You might, with every jot as much justice, hang me up because I'm old, as best me because I'm imperfect. Shakespere

A man may read the discourses of a very rational author, and yet acquire not one jot of knowledge.

Locke

The final event will not be one jot less the consequence of our own choice and actions, for God's having from all eternity foreseen and determined what that event shall be. Roger

JOYFUL, adj. (from jovial, fr. jovialis, Lat.)

1. Under the influence of Jupiter.

The fixed stars are astrologically differentiated by the planets, and are esteemed martial or jovial, according to the colours whereby they answer the planets.

Brown's Familiar Astrolog.

Gay; merry; airy; cheerful; lively; jovial.

Shakespeare

Like a jolly troop of huntsmen, come

Our English lady. Shakespeare's King John.

O sightinagle!

Thou with lusty hope the lover's heart doth fill,

While the jolly hours bound on propitious May.

Milton

All men grieve to this is jolly,

Nought so far at melancholy,

Ev'n griefs had learn'd to groan;

But free from punishment, as free from fear,

The jaks liv'd jolly, and without a king.

Shakespeare

This gentle knight, inspir'd by jolly May;

Forsook his easy couch at early day.

Dryden

A stephej to the easy flow of the rows,

And with his jolly pipe delights the groves.

Prior

2. Plump; like one in high health.

He catches at an apple of Sodom, which though it may entertain his eye with a douce, jolly white and red, yet, upon the touch, it shall fill his hand only with tough and sourness.

Swift

To JOLT, v.n. (I know not whence derived.)

To shake as a carriage on rough ground.

Every little uneveness of the ground will cause such a jolting of the chariot as to hinder the motion of its shafts.

Hilliard

Violent motion, as jolting in a coach, may be use'd in this sense, and give

Arderius ad Jov.

A coach and foxes his utmost exercise you can bear, and know how glad you would be, if it could wait you in the air to avoid jolting.

Swift

To JOLT, v.a. To flink one as a carriage doCS.

JOLLY, m. (from the verb) Shock; violent agitation.

The symptoms are; bloody water upon a sudden jolt of the coach or diligence.

Swift

The first jolt had like to have shaken me out; but afterwards the motion was easy.

Swift

JOLLY, n. (I know not whence derived.)

A great head; a doct; a blockhead.

Colin
Colla, my dear, when shall it please thee fing,
As thou wert wont, songs of some justice:
Thy verse was not too long from the lyre:
To fight and live, and to do in thy praise,
Being a true friend of the author's muse.

Passion, love, and friendship, blend in thee:
Then may the world enjoy thy sweet profession
And live to rouse the echoes of thy name.

Here's joy, the gift of the gods, and beauty,
And friendship's smiles, and all that's dear to man,
And every pleasure that can give contentment
To those who love thee, and to all mankind.

JOY, n. s. [from the noun.] To tra tact. 1. Gentlemen of good e tune to musick and to the opera.

JOYFUL. adj. [from joy.] Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
joyfully, with joy. Gladly,
IRE.

With two fair eyes his midstis burns his breast;
He looks and languishes, and leaves his site.
Forgets his food, and pining for the loss,
Is grief of the grave, and gurts the growing grubs.
Dryden.

3. Giving no pleasure.
A joy's delight, black, and sorrowful issue.
He sits alone, as lost in as a rated.
Shakesp. Henry VI.

Here love his golden chains employ's;
Here lights his constant lamp, and waves his purple wings.
Reigns here, and revels not in the bought faults
Of horses, lovers, lustred, unreflect's.
Caxton fruition.

The poet's heart (thou God!) and if any others, could evade this their inscrutes, as to take by violence, it surely would be a very jolly possession.
Decay of fancy.

He forgets his sleep, and loses the rain.
That youth, and health, and war are jolly to him.
Addison.

Jovous, adj. [jovous, Fr.]
1. Glad; gay; merry.
Most jovous minds, on whom the shining sun
Did throw his face, my soul I did elecere,
And that my satter friend did not joveous deem.
Fairies Queen.

Jovous the birds; fresh pales and gentle airs
Whisper'd it.
Milton.

Then jovous birds frequent the loaly grove,
And I, by thy command, know their jovous lays.
Fly by her fairest bank the sons of Areus, Favorits of heav'n, with happy care protect.
Their feecy charge, and jovous drink her way.
Prior.

2. Giving joy.
They all as glad as birds of jovous prime,
Then led her forth, about her dancing round,
Fairies Queen.

3. It has of sometimes before the cause of jovous.
Round our death-bed-every friend should run,
And jovous of our conquest early win.
And while the malicious world with cautious tears
Should grode our happy end, and with it theirs.
Dryden.

SPECACUAMIAS, n. s. [An Indian plant.]
Spectacuanythus, a small irregularly contorted root, rough, dense, and firm. One foot is of a dusky greyish colour on the furrows, and of a paler grey when broken, brought from Peru; the other foot is a smaller root, resembling the former; but it is of a deep dusky brown on the furrows, and white when broken, brought from the Brasil. The grey ought to be preferred, because the brown is apt to operate more strongly.

IRASCIBLE, adj. [iraeeibles, low Lat. iratible, Fr.]
Partaking of the nature of anger.

These irascible passions follow the temper of the heart, and the conscious phratrations on the crisis of the brow.

I know more than one instance of irascible passions subdued by a vegetable diet.

Ink in a distillate.

IRE. n. s. [Fr. ira., Lat.] Anger; rage; passionate hatred.
She like'd not his deffer; she
Tain would be free, but dreaded parents ira. Sidney.
If I digg'd up thy forefather's graves,
And hong their rotten coffins up in chains,
It could not flace mine ire, nor ease my heart. Shak.
Or Neptune's ire, or Juno's, that so long Pursued the Greek and Cytheria's son.
Milton.
The sentience, from the head remou'd, may light
On me, solve cause of this all this woe;
Meth not only just object of his ire.
Milton.
For this the avenging power employs his darts,
And empties all his quiver in our hearts; Thus will peril, ridicule in his ire,
Then seconded by an angel, sent to fire.
Dryden.

IREFUL, adj. [ire and full.] Angry; raging; furious.

The irreful bafled Orleans, that drew blood
From tis, my joy, I soon encountered.
Shakesp.
IR

Socrates was pronounced by the oracles of Delphi to be the wisest man of Greece, which he would turn to be himself. In the last, dying. There could be nothing in him to verify the oracle, except that he was not a wife, and knew it; and others were much wife, and knew it not.

'The dean, intrinsically grave, Still shou'dn't the fool, and la'dn the knife. Swift.

IRONMONGER, n. f. [Iron and Menger.] A dealer in iron.

IRONWOOD, n. f. A kind of wood extremely hard, and so powerful as to sink in water. It grows in America.

IRONWORT, n. f. [Sideritis, Lat.] A plant. Miller.

IRONY, adj. [from iron.] Made of iron; partaking of iron.

The force they are under less, and that of their fate but imaginary; it is not strong if the irony chains have more solidity than the contemplative. Hammond's Fundamentals.

Some springs of Hungary, highly impregnated with vitriolic fumes, disfigure the body of one metal, and form a sort of iron particles, putting into the springs, and deposit, in lieu of the iron particles carried off, coppery particles. Woodward on Iron.

IRONY, n. [Ironie, Fr.] A mode of speech in which the meaning is contrary to the words: as, Balangrook a good man.

So grave a body, upon so solemn an occasion, should not deal in irony, or explain their meanings by contrasts. Swift.

IRRADIANCE, n. f. [irradiance, French; irradiation, Latin.]

1. Emission of rays or beams of light upon any object.

The principal affection is its translucency: the irradience and sparkings, found in the persons of Brog, the Devil.

2. Beams of light emitted. Love not the heavy-spirits! Or do they mix Irradiance virtual, or immediate touch. Swift.

1. To adorn with light emitted upon it; to brighten.

When he thus perceives that those operous bodies do not hinder the eye from judging light to have an equal plenary diffusion through the whole planet that it is of difficulty to allow air, that is diaphanous, to be everywhere mingled with light.

It is not allowing a conversing grace; such as are ex irradiate and put a circle of glory about the head of him upon whom it descends, South.

2. To enlighten; to illumine; to illuminate; celestial light.

September and the mind through all her powers irradiate; there plant eyes; all mill from thence Purg and Dispence, Milton's Paradise Lost.

3. To animate by heat or light.

Etherial or fiery mild lights, inflamed, irradiate, and put much more simple parts of matter into motion.

4. To decorate with shining ornaments.

No weapon, nor faw his father's bow. Our thorns irradiate, or imbrace the floor. Pope.

IRRADITION, n. s. [irradiation, Fr. from irradie.

1. The act of emitting beams of light.

If light were a body, it should drive away the air, which is likewise a body wherever it is assembled; for with the whole sphere of the irradiation of it, there is no point but light is found.

The generation of bodies is not effected by radiations, actions, or insensibly unto the propagation of light; but herein a transmutation is made materially from some parts, and ideally from every one.

Dibdin on Bodies.

2. Illumination; intellectual light.

The means of immediate union of these intelligible objects to the understanding, are sometimes distinct, and supernatural, as by immediate irradiation or relation.

IRRATIONAL, adj. [Irrationality, Lat.]

1. Void of reason; void of understanding; wanting the discurse faculty.

Outrage from lifeless things: but didst first Daughter of sin, among the irrational Death introduc'd. His hand eat't and lives. And knows, and speaks, and reason and discerns Irrational till then. Milton's Paradise Lost.

2. Absurd; contrary to reason.

Since the brain is then untroubled, and that humour of air are precipitated to the lungs before they arrive to the brain, no kind of benefit can be effected from so irrational an operation.

Hurry on consumption.

I shall quietly submit, not wishing so irrational a thing as that every body should be deceived. Pope.

IRRATIONALITY. n. f. [from irrational.]

Want of reason.

IRRATIONALITY, adv. [from irrational.]

Without reason; aburdly.

IRRECLAIMABLE, adj. [in and reclaimable.

Not to be reclaimed; not to be changed to the better.

As for obstinate, irremovable, professed enemies, we may expect their calumny will continue.

Addison's Freeholder.

IRRECONCILABLE, adj. [irreconcilable, Fr. in and reconcilable.]

1. Not to be recalled to kindreds; not to be appeased.

Wage eternal war, and irreconcile our grand foe. Milton.

A weak unequal faction may animate a government; but when it grows equal in strength, and irreconcilable by animosity, it cannot end without some crime.

There are no factions, though irreconcilable to one another, that are not united in their affection to you.

Not to be made consistent: it has wifh'd or so.

As the was fridly virtuous berself, so the always put the bell construction upon the words and actions of them her accounts, when they were irreconcilable to the rules of honesty and decency.

Ambachts' HIJ, of John Bull.

Since the fence I oppose is attended with such great irreconcilable, I must need offer anything farther in support of the one, or in disproof of the other. Rogers.

This eternal power of gravitation or attraction is irreconcilable with the Atheist's own doctrine of a chaos.

Bentley.

All that can be transmitted from the stars is wholly unaccountable, and irreconcilable to any system of science.

Bentley.

IRRECONCILABLENESS. n. s. [from irreconcilable.]

Impoffibility to be reconcilable.

Irreconcilably. adv. [from irreconcilable.]

In a manner not admitting reconciliation.

In a conversation, adv. [in and reconcilable.]

Not stoned.

A servant dies in many irreconcilable inequities. Shakespeare.

IRRECOVERABLE. adj. [from irrecoverable.]

Beyond recovery, not repair.

O dark, dark, dark amidst the blaze of noon; Milton's American.

Irrcove'rably, dark, total eclipse. Without all hope of day.

The credit of the backwash is irrecoverably lost by the fast breach with the bankers. Temple.

Irreducible. adv. [in and reducible.]

Not to be brought or reduced.

These observations form to argue the complicity of and be irreconcilable to the evidence.

Irrefrangible. n. f. [from irrefragable.]

Strength of argument not to be refuted.

Irrefragably. adj. [irrefragabilis, school Latin; irrefragable, Fr.]

Not to be confuted; superior to argumental opposition.

Strong and irrefragable the evidence of Christianity must be, they who refuted them would ruin every thing. Attermay's Sermons.

The danger of introducing unexperienced men was so as an irreconcilable stink for wounding by slow degrees. Swift.

Irrefragably. adv. [from irrefragable.]

With force above refutation.

That they denied a future state is evident from the impenetrability, which are of no force but only on that supposition, as Origen largery and irrefragably proves. Attermay.

Irrefutable. adj. [irrefutabilis, Latin.]

Not to be overthrown by argument.

Irregular. adj. [Irregular, Fr. irregularis, Latin.]

1. Deviating from rule, custom, or nature.

The amorous youth Obtain'd of Venus his desire, How 'er irreconcilable, Sib. Prior.

2. Neglect of method and order.

This irregularity of its unruly and tumultuous motions might afford a beginning unto the common opinion. Brown.

As the vast heaves of mountains are thrown together with so much irregularity and confusion, they form not being according to the laws of virtue. A poetical word for malicious. Rogers.

Irregularity. n. s. [irregularity, Fr. from irregular.

1. Deviation from rule.

This irregularity of its unruly and tumultuous motions might afford a beginning unto the common opinion. Brown.

As the vast heaves of mountains are thrown together with so much irregularity and confusion, they form not being according to the laws of virtue. A poetical word for malicious. Rogers.

2. Neglect of method and order.

This irregularity of its unruly and tumultuous motions might afford a beginning unto the common opinion. Brown.

As the vast heaves of mountains are thrown together with so much irregularity and confusion, they form
The story of Decalut and Pyrrha teaches, that piety and innocence cannot mislead the divine protection, and that the only way inexpressible is that of our probation.

Irreparably. adv. [from inexpressible.] Without recovery; without amends.

Such adventures befal ariths irreparably. Boyle.

The cutting off that time industry and gifts, whereby the world would have been, were irreparably injurious to her. Decy of Phyli.

Irrepleviable. adj. [in and repelable.] Not to be remedied. A law term.

Irreprehensible. adj. [irreproachable; fr. irreprochethibilibis, Latin.] Exempt from blame.

Irreprehensibly. adv. [from irreproachable.] Without blame; free from reproach.

Irreplicable. adj. [in and reproachable.] Free from blame; free from reproach.

He was a serious Christian, of an innocent, irreproachable, nay, exemplary life. Afterw. Their prayer may be, that they may raise up and breed as irreproachable a young family as their parents have done, Pape.

Irreproachably. adv. [from irreproachable.] Without blame; without reproach.

Irrepovable. adj. [in and reprovable.] Not to be blamed; irreproachable.

Irresistible. n. f. [from irreversible.] Power or force above opposition.

The doctrine of irreversibility of grace, if it be acknowledged, there is nothing to be afraid to prudence, Hammond.

Irresistible. adj. [irreversible, Fr. in and irresistable.] Superiour to opposition. Fear death grow from an apprehension of the Deity, indued with irrefrangible power to hurt; and it is of all affections, anger excepted, the unquieft to admit conference with reason, Hooker.

Irresistibly. adv. [from irreversible.] In a manner not to be opposed.

God irrefringly lays all manner of events on earth. Dryden. Food of pleasing and endearing ourselves to those we esteem, we are irrefringly led into the fame indecision, and averitions with them, Rogers.

Irrestitless. adj. [A barbarous ungrammatical conjunction of two negatives.] Irrefrangible; refflcient.

Three old eyes, whose irrefrangible flame Strikes every dung, and makes Selligst tame. They can to gazing multitudes give law, Convert the factious, and the rebel aw. Glanvill.

Irresolute. adj. [in and irresolute, Lat.] Not to be broken; not to be dissolved.

In factional war amicable the common and vulgar arts are so well mingled, that both in the open fire and in inflaming vellies they settle to each other, peaks which in facts vellies by fire alone.

Boyle.

Irresolutely. adv. [in and irresolute.] Without fettle determination.

Divines of my friends have thought it strange to hear me speak so irreverently concerning those things, which some take to be the elements, and others the principles of all mixed bodies. Boyle.

Irreverent. adj. [irreverent, Fr. in and resolute.] Not confant in purpose; not determined.

Where he evil us'd, he would outgo His father, by as much as a performance Does in irreverent purpotes. Shakesp. Henry VIII.

To make reflections upon what was, the part of ingenow but fraud men. Temple.

So Myrrha's mind, impel'd on either side, Takes evry heaet, but cannot long abide. Irreflatable on which the should rely.

At last herb'd in all, is only fit'd to die. Dryden.

Irresolutely. adv. [from irreversible.] Without firmness of mind; without determined purpose.

Irreolution. n. f. [irrefutation, Fr. in and resolution.] Want of firmness of mind.

It hath most force upon things that have the fightest motion, and therefore upon the spirits of men, and in them upon such affections as more instantly; as upon men in their decrees. Bacon's Natural History.

Irrefutation on the schemes of life, which offer themselves to our choice, and necessarily in pursuing the greatest good of all our unhappinesses. Addis.}

Irrespective. adj. [in and respective.] Having no regard to any circumstances.

Thus did the jew, by parroting himself of his particular resolution, think, it safe to run into all fins! Ham. According to this doctrine, it must be refolved wholly into the absolute irrefolution will be of God.

Irrespectively. adv. [from irreversible.] Without regard to circumstances.

He is convinced, that all the promisse belong to him absolutely and irrespectively. Hammond.

Irretrievable. adj. [in and retrieved.] Not to be repaired; irrecoverable; irreparable.

Irretrievably. adj. [from irretrievable.] Irreparably; irrecoverably.

It would not defray the charge of the extraction, and therefore must have been irretrievable lost, and difficult to mankind, was it not by this means collected. Woodward.

Irreverence. n. f. [irreverentia, Latin; irreverence, French; in and reverence.] 1. Want of reverence; want of veneration; want of respect.

Having seen one scandalous irreverence towards God's worship in general, 'tis easy to make application to the several parts of it. Decy of Phyli.

They were a sort of attributes, with which it was a matter of religion to confide them on all occasions, and which it was an irreverence to omit. Bp. Kept.

2. State of being disregeard.

The concurrence of the house of peers in that fury can be imputed to no one thing more than to the irreverence, and from the judges were judiely in, who had been always looked upon there as the oracles of the law. Clarendon.

Irreverent. adj. [irreverent, Fr. in and reverence.] Not paying due homage or reverence; not expressing or conceiving due veneration or respect.

As our fear excludeth not that holds which becomes faint, so, if our familiarity with God do not favour of fear, it draweth too near that irreverent confidence wherewith true humanity can irreverent. Hooker.

Knowledge men fought for, and covered it from the vulgar jaws as jewels of infallible price, fearing the IRRITATION. n.f. [irritus, Latin; irritive, Fr.] The act of laughing at another.

Ham, by his inconsiderate and unnatural irritus, and expelling of his father, incurs his curse.

Wywood.

To IRRITATE. v. t. [irrite, Latin; irrit; irrit.] 1. To provoke; to tease; to exasperate.

The ear, speaking to the flesh-holders in impertinent languages, did not irritate the people.

Bacon.

Land's power at court could not qualify him to go through with that difficult reformation, whilst he had a fuperior in the church, who, having the reins in his hand, could drive him out of his house.

be the more remits to irritate his choleric disposition.

Claridon.

2. To fret; to put into motion or disorder by any irregular or unaccustomed contact; to stimulate; to incense.

Cold maketh the spirits vigorous, and irritabat them.

Bacon's Natural History.

Irrasive. adv. From irritative.

Without change.

The title of fundamentals, being ordinarly confined to the doctrines of faith, hath occasioned that great variety, in which so many myriads of Saffidians have fallen, and stilled ireverently, by conceiving heaven a reward of true opinions.

Hammond on Fundamentals.

IREVOCABLE. adj. [irrevocably, adv.; irrepressibly, Latin; irreversibly, French.] Not to be recalled; not to be brought back; not to be re-versed.

Give thy hand to Warwick, and, with thy hand, thy faith irreiirocable, that only Warwick's daughter shall be thine.

Shakespeare.

Firm and irreiirocable is my doom, which I have put upon her, Shagpl, as you like it.

That which is past gone and irreiirocable, that his regal throne forever shall endure.

Milton's Paradise Lost.

By her irreiirocable fate... War shall the country waste, and change the state.

Dryden.

The other victory flame a moment flood, then, as a thing which is extinguish'd wood: for ever lost, the irreiirocable light.

Foskot the black'ning coals, and funk to night.

Dryden.

Each facetted heart receiveth eternal weight, and each irreiirocable word is fate.

Pope.

IREVOCABLY. adv. From irrevocable.

Without recall.

Hair were kept out four or five minutes, the fire would be irreiirocably extinguished.

Dryoge.

To IRRIGATE, v. a. [irrigus, Latin.] To wet; to moisten; to water.

The heart, which is one of the principal parts of the body, doth continually irrigate, nourish, keep hot, and provide all the members.

Ray on the Creation.

They keep a bully charge near their lips, with which, in often interrupted sleep.

Their frying blood compels to irrigate.

Their dry and'dry tongue.

A. Phillips.

IRRIGEION. n.a. [from irrigate.]

The act of watering or moistening.

Help of ground is by watering and irrigation.

Bacon.

IRRIGIOUS. adj. [from irrigate.]

1. Watery; watered.

The top of a map.

Of some irriguous valley spreads her store.

Milton.

2. Dowy; moist.

Phillips seems to have miffaken the Latin phrase irrigus fofor.

Rath Elepens.

Dryd'n and irriguous bowl, and thought

To exhale his furious by irriguous sleep.

Improb't: him death's steep oppress.

Phillips.

ISCHIA. [is, Greek.]

1. A termination added to an adjective to express diminution, a small degree, or incipient rate of any quality: as, blaje, tending to blue; bright'fe, somewhat bright.

2. In music, it is likewise sometimes the termination of a gentle or poffeitive adjective; as, Swedifh, Danifh, the Danifh territories, or territories of the Danes.

3. It likewise notes participation of the qualities of the substantive to which it is added; as, fool, foolish; man, manifio; rogue, rogue.

TISCLE. n. f. [More properly ticle, from ice; but ice should rather be written icy; 177, Saxon.] A pendent flout of ice, that doth not know this lady.

—the moon of Rome; chaffe at the iScles.

The frosts and snows tender body spare.

Thos: are not limbs for icles to tear.

Dryden.

SINGLASS'S. n. f. [from ice, or icy, and glas; ichtyapollia, Latin.] A tough, firm, and light substance; of a white colour, and in some degree transparent, much resembling glue. The fish from which iganflys is prepared, is one of the caratilaginous kind: it granulates in twenty feet in length, and greatly resembles theurgeon.

It is frequent in the Danube, the Borofhenes, the Volga, and the larger rivers of Europe. From the intellines of this fish the iganflys is prepared by boiling.

The cure of putrefaction requires an intercropping diet, as alliv brod hos, hardthorn, ivory, and iganflys.

Fisher.

tho: make it clear by reiterated fermentations, and others by additions, as iganflys.

Marguin.

SIGNGLASS Stone. n. f. A foil which is one of the pureft and simplit of the natural bodies.

The mafles are of a brownfifh or reddifh colour; but when the plates are separated, they are perfectly colourles, and more bright and pellicid than the finest glasses.

It is found in Muscovy, Perfa, the ifland of Cyprus, in the Alps and Apennines, and the mountains of Germany.

Hill's Mat. Med.

ISLAND. n. f. [Infala, Latin; sola, Italian; celand, Erfe. It is pronounced iand.] A tract of land surround'd by water.

He will carry this island home in his pocket, and give it his fon for an apple.—And sow the kernels in the fca, bring forth more iands.

Shakespeare's Tempeft.

Within a long receipt there lies a bay.

An ifland shaded; from the rolling sea,

And forms a port.

Dryden.

Island of blifi amid the suffer'd feas. Thomson.

ISANDER. n. f. [from island. Pronounced islander.] An inhabitant of a country sur- round'd by water.

We, as all islanders, are lunates, or the moon's men.

Cuvan.de.

Your dinner, and the generous islanders

By you invited do attend your presence.

Shakespeare.

There are many bitter sayings against islanders in general, representing them as fierce, treacherous, and unchristian: those who live on the continent have frequent intercourse with men of different religions and languages, that they become more kind than those who are the inhabitants of an island.

Addison's Vitulaker.

A race of rugged mariners are they,

Unpolish'd men, and boil'tous as their seas.

The native islanders alone their care,

And they be the habihtants of a foreign air.

Pope.

ISLE. n. f. [Ile, French; Infala, Latin. Pronounced ile.]
1. An island; a country surrounded by water.

The defile of this noble duke
In the misty morn of famous life. Shaksp.

The dreadful fight
Between a nation and two whales I write; Thou hast the same, or, if thou hast not, Wall.

2. 'Written, I think, corruptly for aile, from aile, Fr. from -aile, Latin, the hill, being probably at first only a wing or fide walk. It may come likewise from -aile, French, a walk.' A long walk in a church or pubhc building.

Over the twilight groves and dukly caves,
Loosed sounding and intermingled graves,

Black melancholy falls. Pope.

I. OPEREMETRICAL. n. s. [θερ., πρ., and μερ.]. In geometry, are such figures as have equal perimeters or circumstances, of which the circle is the greatest. Harr.

II. S.C.E. n. s. [σκελες, Fr. or equin-gular triangle]. That which hath only two fides equal. Harr.

3. Exit; cregifi; or passage out.

Unto the Lord belong the issues from death. Ps.

Let us examine what bodies touch a moveable wall in close quarters, as the only means to find an issue out of this difficulty. Digby on Bodies.

We might have easily preventetl those great returns of money to France, and if it be true, the French are so impoverished, in what condition must they have been, if that issue of wealth had been stopped? Swift.

3. Event; confidue.

Spirits are not finely numbered;

If I were ever fearful

To do a thing, where I the issue doubted,

Whereof the execution did cry out

Against the non-performance, 'twas a fear

But let the issue correspond grove

To good beginnings of each enterprise. Fastox.

If things were cast upon this issue, that God should never prevent sin till men determined it, the better for sin, and for Satan.

The wisest sayings and reflections will be found the issues of chance, and nothing else so happily lifts a man's mind over so many hindrances. Porter.

Our present condition is better for us in the issues than that uninterupted health and security that the Assemblies then had. Bentley.

4. Termination; conclusion.

He had preferred Augustus alive, under pretense of having him publicly executed after their war, of which they hope for a soon and prosperous issue. Sideny.

What issue of my love remains for me!

How wild a passion works within my breast!

With what prodigious flames am I possest? Dryden.

Him at a loss to bring difficult matters to an issue, says his alter ego, and this solves the difficulty. Brome.

5. Sequel deduced from premises.

I am to pray you not to misunderstand my speech

To groftet issues, nor to larger reach,

Than to fulpicion. Shaksp. Othello.

6. A fontanel; a vent made in a muscle for the discharge of humours.

It is easy to see that the sanguine humour is in his left arm was caused by trepidation,

Of his issue. Win. Harvey.

7. Evacuation.

A woman was diseased with an issue of blood.

Mar. Is. 20.

3. Progny; offspring.

O nation miserable

Since that the issue of thy throne,

By his own interruption stands secure. Shaksp. Maccbeth.

Not where Aballin kings their issue guard,

Mount Amara, though this by some supposed

True Paradise, under the the Arkish line

By short and sudden means: Milton's Paradise Lost.

This old peaceful prince, as Heaven's decrees:

Was blest with no issue to succeed.

Dryden's Ann.

The frequent productions of madness, in all the Species of animals, and strange issues of human birth,

Carry with them difficulties, not possible to confide with this hypothesis. Locke.

[In law.] Issue hath divers applications in the common law: sometimes used for the children begotten between any man and his wife; sometimes for profits growing

From an amercement, fine, or experience of suites; sometimes for profits of lands or tenements; sometimes for that Point of matter depending in suit, whereupon the parties join and put their cause to the trial of the jury. Issue is either general or special: general issue seamen to be that whereby it is referred to the jury to decide in their verdict, whether the defendant.

The courts of equity try such things as the plaintiff layeth to the charge of his.

Special issue then must be that, where special

Matter being alleged by the defendant for his defence, both the parties join thereupon, and so grow to a definitive, if it be ascertained, or to try by

The jury, if it be quaeest falsi. Cowell.

To Issue, u. u. [from the noun: issue, French: issues, Italian:].

1. To come out, to pass out of any place.

Waters issued out under the threshold of the house.

From the utmost end of the head branches thereof issued out a juicy juice. Raphe's History.

Waters issued from a cave.

Ere Pallus issued from the thunderer's head, Dolaus all his people had ancient right. Pope.

2. To make an eruption; to break out.

Three of matter Ford's brothers watch the door with puddles, that none should issue out, otherwise you might slip away. Shaksp.

See that none henceforth issue not a sly. Milton.

Mait, arm your Ardians, issue to the plain.

With faith to friend, sliall the Trojan train.

Dyedan.

At length there issued from the grove behind,

A False assembly of the female kind.

Dyedan.

A bearing part shall these kind of alarms,

Straight issue through the fides assembling swarms.

Dyedan.

Full for the part the Ctenarchus stand,

And fur the tail's, and issue on the land.

The Pope's Dyssey.

3. To proceed as an offspring.

Of thy sons that shal1 issue from thee, which thou shalt beget, shall they take away.

2 Kings xx. 18.

4. To be produced by any fund.

These alluvages issued out of the offerings made to the altar, and were payable to the priesthood.

Ayllif's Parergon.

5. To run out in lines.

Pipe made with a belly towards the lower end,

And issuing into a straight concave again. Bacon.

To issue, u. s.

1. To send out; to send forth.

A weak degree of heat is not able either to digest

The parts or to issue the spirits.

Dryden's Ann.

The commissitor should not money out to its otherwise. Tomp.

2. To send out judicially or authoritatively.

This is the more frequent sense. It is commonly followed by a particle, out or forth. Shaks. Corn.

5.1 If the council should send out any order against them, or if the king sent a proclamation for their repair to their houses, so some noblemen published a pro-

5.2. It is used absolutely for the state of a person or affair.

How is it with our general?

—Even so

As a man by his own alms imployed,

And with his charity plain. Shaksp. Coriol.

5.3. It is used
2. To long; to have continual desire.

This sense appears in the following examples, though some of them are equivocal.

Matter Shallow, you have yourself been a great fighter, though now a man of peace. Mr. Page, though now I am of peace, if I see a sword out, my finger itcheth to make one. Shaksp.

Caffin, you yourself.

Are much accustomed to have an itching palm, to fell and mart your offices for gold. Shaksp.

The idling ear being an epidemic disease, gave fair opportunity to every mountebank. Dryden. All flesh hath an itching palm, and fair shall be upon the laughing side. Pope.

ITCH. adj. [from itch.] Infected with the itch.

ITEM. adv. [Latin.] Also. A word used when any article is added to the former.

ITEM, n. f. 1. A new article.

I could have looked on him without the help of admonition, though the catalogue of his endowments had been tabulated by his side and I to peruse him by items.

2. A hint; an incitement.

If this discourse have not concluded our weakness, I have one item more of mine: if knowledge can be found, I must relate that which I thought I had. Glauce.

To iterate. v. a. [itero, Lat.]

1. To repeat; to utter again; to inculcate by frequent mention.

We covet to make the psalms especially familiar unto all: this is the very cause why we iterate the Psalms oftener than any other part of Scripture besides the Gospels: wherefore we intrewe the people together with their ministers, and not the miniser alone, to read, as other parts of scripture he doth.

In the first ages God gave laws unto our fathers, and their memories forested instead of books; whereas the imperfections being known to God, he relieved the same by often putting them in mind: in which respect we see how many times one thing hath been iterated into the bell and wilete.

The king, to keep a decency towards the French king, sent new letters ambassadors to intreate unto him the decree of his citie, and to iterate his motion that the French would desist from hostility.

There are two kinds of reflections of sounds; one the at distance, which is the echo, wherein the original is heard diffusely, and the reflection also diffusely; the other, when it is sent, is reflected singly, and when it returneth immediately upon the original, and so iterate it not, but amplifies it.

2. To do over again.

After his birth, and well reverenced by fune, after the faith thereof hath been drawn out by iterated devotions.

Shaksp.

Deut xxviii. 37.

ITCH. n. f. [itch, Saxon.]

1. A cutaneous disease extremely contagious, which overspreads the body with small pustules filled with a thin serum, and raised, as microscopes have discovered, by a small animal, it is cured by sulphur.

2. The sensation of uneasiness in the skin, which is cased by rubbing.

3. A confant teasing desire.

A certain itch of middling with other people's matters, put upon writing. L'Esprec. He had still pedeges in his head, and an itch of being thought a divine king. Dryden. For a company a child is to be kept, not by prohibitions, for that will but give him an itch after it, but by other ways.

At half mankind when genrous Master manes, All know his ways, and feel that knaves. Thack.

Shaksp. The Lord will smite them with the fescb and with the itch, whereas thou canst not be healed. Deut xxviii. 37.

As if divinity had catch'd the itch on purpose to be scratch'd. Hudibras.

2. The sensation of uneasiness in the skin, which is cased by rubbing.

3. A confant teasing desire.

A certain itch of middling with other people's matters, put upon writing. L'Esprec. He had still pedeges in his head, and an itch of being thought a divine king. Dryden. For a company a child is to be kept, not by prohibitions, for that will but give him an itch after it, but by other ways.

At half mankind when genrous Master manes, All know his ways, and feel that knaves. Thack.

Shaksp. The Lord will smite them with the fescb and with the itch, whereas thou canst not be healed. Deut xxviii. 37.

As if divinity had catch'd the itch on purpose to be scratch'd. Hudibras.

2. The sensation of uneasiness in the skin, which is cased by rubbing.

3. A confant teasing desire.

A certain itch of middling with other people's matters, put upon writing. L'Esprec. He had still pedeges in his head, and an itch of being thought a divine king. Dryden. For a company a child is to be kept, not by prohibitions, for that will but give him an itch after it, but by other ways.

At half mankind when genrous Master manes, All know his ways, and feel that knaves. Thack.

Shaksp. The Lord will smite them with the fescb and with the itch, whereas thou canst not be healed. Deut xxviii. 37.

As if divinity had catch'd the itch on purpose to be scratch'd. Hudibras.

2. The sensation of uneasiness in the skin, which is cased by rubbing.

3. A confant teasing desire.

A certain itch of middling with other people's matters, put upon writing. L'Esprec. He had still pedeges in his head, and an itch of being thought a divine king. Dryden. For a company a child is to be kept, not by prohibitions, for that will but give him an itch after it, but by other ways.

At half mankind when genrous Master manes, All know his ways, and feel that knaves. Thack.

Shaksp. The Lord will smite them with the fescb and with the itch, whereas thou canst not be healed. Deut xxviii. 37.

As if divinity had catch'd the itch on purpose to be scratch'd. Hudibras.

2. The sensation of uneasiness in the skin, which is cased by rubbing.

3. A confant teasing desire.

A certain itch of middling with other people's matters, put upon writing. L'Esprec. He had still pedeges in his head, and an itch of being thought a divine king. Dryden. For a company a child is to be kept, not by prohibitions, for that will but give him an itch after it, but by other ways.

At half mankind when genrous Master manes, All know his ways, and feel that knaves. Thack.

Shaksp. The Lord will smite them with the fescb and with the itch, whereas thou canst not be healed. Deut xxviii. 37.

As if divinity had catch'd the itch on purpose to be scratch'd. Hudibras.

2. The sensation of uneasiness in the skin, which is cased by rubbing.

3. A confant teasing desire.

A certain itch of middling with other people's matters, put upon writing. L'Esprec. He had still pedeges in his head, and an itch of being thought a divine king. Dryden. For a company a child is to be kept, not by prohibitions, for that will but give him an itch after it, but by other ways.

At half mankind when genrous Master manes, All know his ways, and feel that knaves. Thack.

Shaksp. The Lord will smite them with the fescb and with the itch, whereas thou canst not be healed. Deut xxviii. 37.

As if divinity had catch'd the itch on purpose to be scratch'd. Hudibras.

2. The sensation of uneasiness in the skin, which is cased by rubbing.

3. A confant teasing desire.

A certain itch of middling with other people's matters, put upon writing. L'Esprec. He had still pedeges in his head, and an itch of being thought a divine king. Dryden. For a company a child is to be kept, not by prohibitions, for that will but give him an itch after it, but by other ways.

At half mankind when genrous Master manes, All know his ways, and feel that knaves. Thack.

Shaksp. The Lord will smite them with the fescb and with the itch, whereas thou canst not be healed. Deut xxviii. 37.
JUD  One court there is in which he who knows the secrets of every heart will fix the judge himself. Sherlock. Also, when every justice shall have each piece of wit. With the same spirit the author wrote: Pope. To JUDGE. n. a. [juge, Fe judica, Lat.]
1. To pass sentence. My wrong be upon thee; the Lord judge between thee and me. Genesis. Ye do not judge for man, but for the Lord, who is with you in the judgment. 2. To form or give an opinion. I think of Lomond. Locke. 2. To form or give an opinion. Both what they judge and what they judge. Milton. I did not know the original, I should never be able to judge, by the copies, which was left by the Virgilian method. Ouida. Whether it be a divine revelation or no, reason must judge, which can never permit the mind to reject a greater evidence, to embrace what is less evident. Locke. He proceeds in his inquiry into sciences, resolved to judge of them freely. Locke.
3. To discern; to distinguish; to consider accurately. Doth God know? Can he judge through the dark cloud? Job, xxii. 13. I have seen in thy face, is it comely to women unto God uncovered? 1 Corinthians. How properly the tories may be called the whole body of the British nation, I leave to any one's own judgment. Addison.
To JUDGE. v. a.
1. To pass sentence upon; to examine authoritatively; to determine finally. Chaos shall judge the strife. Milton. Then thou, whom form of laws, Council'd to thine, when traitors judge'd their cause. Dryden.
2. To pass severe censure; to doom severely. This is a feene feld found only in the Scriptures. He shall judge among the heathen, he shall fill the places with the dead bodies. Psalms. Judge not, that ye be not judged. Matthew. Let no man judge you in meat or drink. Colossians. Ju'GGER. n. s. [from Juge.] One who finds out errors, or palates sentences. The vulgar threatened to be their oppressors, and judges of their judges. King Charles. They who guide themselves merely by what appears, are ill judges of what they have not well examined. Dryden.
JUDGMENT. n. f. [judgment, Fr.]
The power of discerning the relations between one term or one proposition and another. O judgment! thou art fled to brutish beasts, and men have left their reason. What, Julius Caesar! The faculty, which God has given man to supply the want of certain knowledge, is judgment, whereby the mind takes any proposition to be true or false, with receiving a demonstrative evidence in its proofs. Locke. Judgment is that whereby we join ideas together by affirmation or negation: so, this tree is that. Watts.
2. Doom; the right or power of passing judgment. If my fulfil'd be falle, forgive me, God; For judgment only doth belong to thee. Shaksp. 3. The act of exercising judgment; judicatory. They gave judgment upon him. 2 Kings. When thou, O Lord, hast stood dilectis in majesty fore, er; or in judgment on my soul, O how shall I appear? Addison's Spectator. 4. Determination; decision. Where distinctions or identities are purely material, the judgment is made by the imagination. otherwise by the understanding. Glanville's Specif.
JUL

I saw a juggler that had a pair of cards, and would tell a man what card he had thought, Bacon.

Ariffius was a famous poet, that flourished in the days of Croesus, and a notable juggler, Sandys. Fortune-tellers, jugglers, and impostors, do daily delude mankind. Brown's Vulgar Errors.

The juggler which another's sight can know, but teaches how the world his own may know.

One who is managed by a juggler fancies he has money in hand; but let him grasp it never so carefully, upon a word or two it increases or dwindles.

What magic makes our money rise,
When dropped to the southern main?
Or do the'jugglers cheat our eyes?
Swift.

2. A chaste; a trickish fellow. One who juggles thee or me, that he may blossom, you thief of love; what, have you come by night, and fold my love's heart from him. Shakespeare.

Teofficer, juggler, or juicer of peace. Donne.

Jugglingly adv. [from juggler.] In a deceptive manner.

JUGULAR adj. [jugular, Latin.] Belonging to the throat.

A gentleman was wounded into the internal jugular vein, that he might die without. Wither's Surgery.

JUICE n. s. [ju, Fr. jus, Dutch.]
1. The liquor, sap, or water of plants and fruits.
2. Juice in language is less than blood; for if the words be not becoming and signifying, and the sense gentle, there is juice: but where that wanteth, the language is thin, scarce conveying the bone. Ben Jonson's Discoveries.

An animal whose juices are unbound can never be mollified: unbound juices can never repair the fluids.

JUICLESS adj. [from juice.] Dry; without moisture; without juice.

Divine Providence has spread her table every where; not with a jewel set green caraper, but with stuffing herbs and nourishing gruits. More.

When Boers' spirits blusters bore, Beware th' inclement heavens; now let thy hearth Crackle with juiceless boughs. Phillips.

JUICELESS. n. s. [from juice.] Plenty of juice; succulence.

JUICY adj. [from juice.] Moist; full of juice; succulent.

Earth being taken out of watery woods, will put forth herbs of a fat and juicy habitus. Bacon.

Each plant and juiceless ground will stick, Milton.

The mufk's furnishing worth that, in its youth, its tender nostrum, loads the spreading boughs. With large and juicy offering. Phillips.

To JUCE v. n. [jucer, French.]
1. To perch upon any thing as birds.
2. Juking, in Scotland, denotes fill any complaisance by bending of the head.

Two siffs travelled; the one laden with oats, the other with money: the money-merchant was to proud of his truth, that he went juking and rolling of his head. L'Estrange.

JUJE  n. s. [siziphus, Latin.] A JUJEUS adj. plant whose flower consists of several leaves, which are placed circularly, and expand in form of a rose. The fruit is like a small plum, but it has little flesh upon the stone. Miller.

JULAP n. s. [A word of Arabick origin, now Lat. jupar. Fr. julp.] is an extemporaneous form of medicine, made of simple and compound water sweetened, and serves for a vehicle to other drugs not so convenient to be taken alone. Quincy.

JULUS n. s.
1. July flower.
2. Julius. ind. Among botanists, denotes those long worm-like tufts or palms, as they are called in willows, which at the beginning of the year grow out, and hang pendulous down from hazels, walnut-trees, &c. Millar.

JULY n. s. [Julius, Lat. juliet, Fr.] The month annually called quintilis, or the Shali, as Drain, formed a part of Julius Caesar; the seventh month from January.

July I would have drawn in a jacket of light yellow, eating cherries, with his face and bosom decorated. Peacham.

JUMART n. s. [French.]
Mules and jumentes, the one from the mixture of an ass and a mare, the other from the mixture of a bull and a mare, are frequent.

To JUMBLE v. n. [in Chaucer, jumble, von, shooter, French, Skinner.] To mix violently and confusedly together.

Perform and humours may be jumbled and disordered; but nature, like quicksilver, will never be killed. L'Estrange.

A verbal concordance leads not always to texts of the same meaning; and one may observe, how apt that is to jumble together passages of Scripture, and thereby disturb the true sense of holy Scripture. Locke.

Writing is but just like dice,
And lucky means make people live;
And jumbled words if fortune throw, 'tis well.

Peri-o.

Is it not a firmer foundation for tranquillity, to believe that all things were created, and are ordered for the best, than that the universe be mere bungling and blundering: all ill-favouredly cobbled and jumbled together by the unguided agitation and rude struggles of matter? Bentley.

How jealous and cowardly embraces,
How fierce and quick' eye get a jumbled face. Pope.

That the universe was formed by a fortuitous concourse of atoms, I will no more believe, than that the beholder of the alphabet would fall into a most ingenuous treatise of philosophy. Swift.

To JUMBLE v. n. To be agitated together.

They will all meet and jumble together, into a perfect harmony. Swift.

JUMBLE n. s. [from the verb.] Confused mixture; violent and confused agitation.

Had the world been composed from that supposes jumbled, this hypothesis has been tolerable. Glanville.

What jumble here is made of ecclesiastical revenues, as if they were all alienated with equal justice. Locke.

JUMENT n. s. [jument, Fr. jumentum, Latin.] Bealt of burthen.

Jumentous, as horses, oxen, and stiles, have no ratification, or beelathing. Brown's Vulgar Errors.

To JUMP v. n. [jumper, Dutch.]
1. To leap to skip; to move without step or slip.

Not the worst of the three but jumps twelve feet and an half by the square. Shakespeare, Winter's Tale.

The herd come jumping by me,
And fearer, quench their thirst, while I look on.

And take me for their fellow-citizen. Dryden.

So have I seen from Sever's brink,
A flock of geese jump down together,

JUN

Swim where the bird of Jone would fluke,
And swimming never wet a feather.

Swift.

Candidates petition the emperor to enter into the court with a dance on the rope, and whoever jumps the highest shall have the office. Guillet's Travels.

2. To leap suddenly.

One Peregrinus jumped into a fiery furnace at the Olympic games, only to fwo the company how far he could carry him. Callier.

We see a little man prepare a great deal, and to jump to the conclusion. Spectator.

3. To jolt.

The noise of the prancing horses, and of the jumping chariots. Nhal. ii. 3.

To agree; to tally; to join.

Do not embrace me till each circumstance Of place, time, fortune, do cohere and jump.
That I am Viola. Shakespeare, Twelfth Night.

In some sort it jumps with my Luminous. Shakespeare.

But though they jump not on a just account, Yet do they all confirm a Turkish fleet. Shakespeare. Because I will not jump with common spirits.

And rank me with the barbarous nations. Shakespeare. Herein perchance he jumps not but Lipus. Hakewill.

Never did truly quire with knighth,
Or knight with quire, 'tis jump more right;
Their arms and equipage doit hit,
As well as virtue, para, and wit.
Their chance how perfectly the jump.
And commonwealth, in nature jump.
As for a fly that goes to bed,
Rich, with his tail made his head;
So in this mangle fate of ours,
The rabble are the supine powers. Hakewill.

Good with jump, and mire the nimble of the two.

More.

Good now, how your devotions jump with mine.
I am happier for finding our judgments jump in the noticing.
Pope to Swift.

To JUMP v. n. To pass by a leap; to pass eagerly or carelessly over.

Here, upon this bank and thistle of time.
We'd jump the life to come. Shakespeare, Measure for Measure.

JUMP and Electron, so nicely. Olofete.

Otherwise one man could not excel another, but all should be either absolutely good, as hitting jump that indivisible point or center wherein goodness consists, or else milling, it they should be excluded out of the number of well-doers. Hooker.

But since to jump upon this bloody question.
You from the Poleack war, and you from England, Were arrant men of war.
Myself the while to draw the Moor apart,
And bring him jump, where he may Calio find.
Solstitiating his will, but to Shakes. Othello.

JUMP. n. [from the verb.]
1. The act of jumping; a leap; a skip.

The surest way for a learner is, not to advance by jumps, and large strides: let that, which he fetc himself to learn next, be as nearly conjoined with what he was last, as is possible. Locke.

2. A lucky chance.

Do not exceed

The prefcript of this scour, our fortune lies
Upon this jump of vagabond, and Cleopatra.

[3. Jump. French.] A wastcoat; a kind of loose or timber flies worn by sickly ladies.

The weeping calk's fear'd into a jump.
A fig the prelbyt er's worn to the dump. Chaucer.

JUNCATE, D. / [juncate, Fr. juncature ital.] 1. Cheefcakes; a kind of sweetmeat of curds and sugar.

2. Any delicacy.

A goodly table of pure ivory.
All spred with juncates, fit to entertain
The Hazardous guests.
With flowers told of many a feast,
How fairy Nab the juncates eat. Milton.

A turtive or private entertainment. It is now improperly written juncake in this sense, which alone remains much in use.

See JUNCKET.

JUNCOWS
JUNCUS. adj. [Juncus, Lat.] Full of bulrushes.

Junction. n. s. [junctio, Fr.] Union; coalition.

Upon the juncioin of the two corps, our fate discovered a great cloud of dust. Addition.

Junctura. m. s. [junctura, Latin.]

1. The line at which two things are joined together.

2. Joint articulation.

She has made the back-bone of several vertebras, as being less in danger of breaking than if they were all one entire bone without these juxta-junctions.

All other animals have transferrable bodies; and though some do raise themselves upon their hinder legs to an upright posture, yet they cannot endure it long, neither are the figures or juncures, or order of their bones, fitted to such a posture. Rule.

3. Union; amity.

The juncion of them so apt for that de central completion and juncure of hearts, which I define to bear in those holy offices to be performed with me.

4. A critical point or article of time.

To this juncion in time, they bid farewell to all the pleasures of this life. Addition.

When any law does not conduct to the publick safety, but in some extraordinary juncures, the very solemnity of it would endanger the community of that law ought to be laid asleep. Addition.

JUNE n. s. [June, Fr. Junius, Lat.] The sixth month from January.

June is drawn in a mantle of dark green. Younger.

JUVENIL. adj. [junior, Lat.] One younger.

The fruits, my juncion, by a year, are varied with fulness and fear, who wisely thought me age a acre, when death approach'd to stand between. Swaff. According to the nature of men of years, I was resigning at the rate of my juniors, and unequal di fraction of it.

Juli. Toler. Juliperus. m. s. [juncus, Latin.] A tree.

A clyther may be made of the common deodons, or of mallows, bay, and juniper berries, with oil of Myrrh. Witman.

Junct. n. s. [probably an Indian word.]

1. A small ship of China.

America, which have now but junks and canoes, whereas in China, you see the newer Bark's. New's Australia.

2. Pieces of old cable.

Junkt. n. s. [properly juncture.] See Juncate.

1. A sweetmeat.

You know, there wants no juncures at the feast. Shakespeare.

2. A stolen entertainment.

To Junkt. n. s. [from the noun.]

1. To feast secretly; to make entertainments by stealth.

Whatever good bits you can pilfer in the day, save them to juncure with your fellow-servants at night. Swaff.

2. To feast.

Job's children juncured and feasted together often, but the reckoning cut them near at last. South.

The spouse would have no revelling or juncuring. South.

JUNTO. n. s. [Italian.] A cabal; a kind of men combined in any secret design.

Would men have spent toilsome days and watching, seeing, and in the knowledge of the par juncure to this work, at length come and dance attendance for approbation upon a junct of petty

JUR.

JURIES. n. s. [juribus, Fr. juras, Lat.]

A civil lawyer; a man who professes the science of the law; a civilian.

This is not to be misunderstood by the principles of jurif.

JURIST. n. s. [juris, Fr. juras, Lat.]

1. The science of law.

2. Distinct to which any authority extends.

JURISPRUDENCE. n. s. [jurifprudencia, Fr. jurisprudence, Latin.] The science of law.

JURMAN. n. s. [jury and man.] One who is impannelled on a jury.

JURY, m. n. s. [jury and man.]

The hungry judges frown on the dissenting sign, An host of angry-looking fellows are kept up.

Note: No judge was known, upon or off the bench, to use the least indulgence, that might affect the JURY evidence will be as deceitful as the verdict.

Species on Hendred.

You shall find your lordship judge and jury, You are so miserable, I see your end.

'Tis my upholding. Shaks. Henry VIII.

I am in good faith! to any witness, and Juror, or judge.

About mon the juries went together, and because they could not agree, they were blin.

Hayward.

JUROR. n. s. [jury and man.] One who has been a juror and never cleared, or twelve, sworn to deliver a truth upon such evidence as shall be delivered them touching the matter in question.

There be three manners of trials in English court, one by a petit jury, by battle, and the third by a trial. Juror.

The trial by a trial, or a trial by battle, or a trial by a jury. Juror.

To be the action civil or criminal, publick or private, personal or real, decent or un speakable, as they find it, so passeth the judgment. Juror.

This jury is used not only in circuits of justices errant, but also in other courts, and matters of all offices, as, if the charged person make inquisition in any thing touching his office, he doth it by a jury of inquest: if the coroner inquire how a subject found dead came to his end, he doth it by a jury of the justices of peace in the quarter-feelion, if the inquest in his office, and turn, the bill of a hundred, the steward of a court-feet or court-baron, if they inquire of any officer or the decide any man's estate, or by party, they do it by the same manner: so that where it is said, that all things be triable by parliament, battle, or assize, in this place, is taken for a jury or inquest to be, and the same kind of jury where this kind of trial is used. Juror.

This jury, though it appertain to most courts of the common law, yet it is most notorious in the half-year courts of the justices errants, commonly called the great assize, and in the quarter-feelions, and in them it is most ordinarily called a jury, and that in civil cases; whereas in other cases it is, in the general assize, there are usually many juries, because there be more of cases, both civil and criminal, commonly to be tried, whereas one is called the great assize, and the common petit jury. Juror.

The grand jury in Try one, and closer than any other, as to consider of all juries of Indemnity preferred to the court; which they do either appropriate writing upon them their words, billa vera, or disallow by writing ignominies. In such a case, they do approve, if they touch life and death, are farther referred to another jury to be consider'd of, because the cause is of such importance; but others of lighter moment are left to the allowance, without more being signified by the bench, except the party travels the indictment, or challenge it for insufficiency, or remove the cause to a higher court by certiorari, in which two things are here referred for another jury, and in the latter transmitted to the higher court, that there to pass upon civil cases real, are all, or so many as can conveniently be held, of the same hundred where the land or tenement in question doth lie, and four at the heat; and they, upon due examination, bring in their verdict either for the defendant or tenant; according unto which, judgment passeth afterward in the court where the cause first began; and the reall hereof is, because those juries of assize are, in this case, the chief of the counties only to take the verdict of the life by the virtue of the writ called nisi prius, and to return it to the court, where the cause is depending.

The jury falling on the prisoner's life, May in the sworn twelve a thief or two.

Gulliver than him they try.

I think, my noble juror and holy cause can witness.

Shakespeare.

Claudius was acquainted by a corrupt juror, who had paltry taken shares of money before they gave up their verdict.

Bacon.

JURMAN. n. s. [jury and man.] One who is impannelled on a jury.

The hungry judges frown on the dissenting sign, An host of angry-looking fellows are kept up.
J U S

Interests of any one single juryman, much less of a whole jury, for Honeft either alfo nor London Temple. Sidney.

The god Pan guided my hand jufi to the heart of the beauti Leu. Sic.

To take it, while yet 'tis prafie, before my age. Dryden.

Men are commonly fo jufi to virtue and goodness, as to praise it in others, even when they do not pra- tife it themselves. Tllifion.

2. Honest; without crime in dealing with others. Smiff.

Jufj balances, jufi weights, and a jufi ephah. Lev. xiii.

3. I know not whether jufi of has any other authority. Pope.

Jufi of thy word, in ev'ry thought sincere. Who knew no wish but what the world might hear. Pope.

4. Exact; proper; accurate. Boulieu's numbers are excellent, his expressions noble, his thoughts jufi, his language pure, and his flile complis. Dryden.

Thofe fenes were wrought, Embelliff'd with good morals and jufi thought. Giffart.

Jufi precepts thus from great examples giv'n, She drew from them what they deriv'd from Hear'n. Pope.

5. Jufi to the tale, as prefent at the fray, Or taught the labours of the dreadful way, Pope. Once on a time La Mancha's knight; they fay, A certain hard banding on the way, Difguif'd in terms as jufi, with looks as fage, As 'e could Dennis of the laws o' th' fage. Pope. Though the fyllogifm be irregular, yet the infe- rences are jufi and true. Woff's Largin.

A jufi man fadeth seven times and rifieth. Prov. xxvii. He fhall be recompenced at the refurrection of the jufi, Millet.

The jufi th' unjult to serve. Fairfeil.

7. True; not forged. Crime were laid to his charge too many, the lead whenfe of being jufi had beare him of effima- tion and credit. Homer.

8. Grounded on principles of juflice; rightful. He thought jufi right

Did fhall create your leader. Milton.

Whole damnation is jufi. He befid fings, spread water o'er thy th' lands, And a molt jufi and glad increafe it yields. Demifus.

5. Complete without superfluity or defect. He was a comely perfonage, a little above jufi nature, well and strait limbed, but fheener. Bacon's Henry VII.

10. Regular; orderly. When all

The war fhall hand ranged in its jufi array, And dreadful pomp, then will I think on thee. Addison.

11. Exactly proportioned. The prince here is at hand: pleafure your lordship To meet his grace, jufi dilance 'twixt our armies! Shakespeare.

12. Full; of full dimensions. His foldiers had Khimithes with the Numidians, is that once the Khimithes was like is now come to a jufi battle. Knolles's History.

There is not any one particular above mentioned, but would take up the billifhe of a jufi volume. Halliwell's Origin of Manufcribed.

There feldom appeared a jufi army in the civil wars. Dunciaces of Newcastle.

J u s. a d v i.

1. Exactly; nicely; accurately. The god Pan guided my hand jufi to the heart of the beauti Leu. Sic.

They go about to make us believe that they are jufi of the fame opinion, and that they only think fuch ceremonies are not to be fubmitted to, or which are un- profitable, or when-at good or better may be eflab- lished. Homer.

There, ev'ry jufi there, he flood: and as the fpeke, Where left the fpeke, is the call her loke. Dryden.

A few understand him right: jufi as when our Saviour faid, in an allegorical fense, except ye eat the fhep of the fohn of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Bentley.

'Tis with our judgments at two watches none, Then turn'd their beholds heads, and man his own. Pope.

2. Merely; barely. It is the humour of weak and trifling men to value themselves upon jufi nothing at all. L'Efrange.

3. Nearly; almost; tantam non. To smooth the feas; a fofe Efnatuan But jufiin'tud and gently dwell'd the fall. Dryden. Give me, ye gods, the product of one field, That fo I neither may be rich nor poor; And having jufi enough, not covet more. Dryden.

9. J u s t i c e of the Forrest. [juficiarius Forfic.] Is a lord by his office, and hath the hearing and determining of all offences within the king's forreft, committed againft venison or vert; of thee there be two, whereof the one hath jurifdi- tion over all the forrests on this fide Trent, and the other of all beyond. Cowell.

8. J u s t i c e of the Common Pleas. [jufiiciarius Communium Placitum.] Is a lord by his office, and is called dominus juficiarius communium placitum. He with his affifants originally did hear and determine all caufes at the common law; that is, all civil caufes between common perfons, as well perfonal as real; for which caufe it was called the court of common pleaf, in opposition to the pleaf of the crown, or the king's pleaf, which are special, and appertaining to him only. Cowell.

7. J u s t i c e of the Common Pleas. [juficiarius Communium Placitum.] Is a lord by his office, and is called dominus juficiarius communium placitum. He with his affifants originally did hear and determine all caufes at the common law; that is, all civil caufes between common perfons, as well perfonal as real; for which caufe it was called the court of common pleaf, in opposition to the pleaf of the crown, or the king's pleaf, which are special, and appertaining to him only. Cowell.

6. J u s t i c e of the King's Bench. [juficiarius de Basia Regin.] Is a lord by his office, and the chief of the reft; where- fore he is also called capitans juficiariorum Angliae. His office especially is to hear and determine all pleaf of the crown; that is, what action or defence committed agamst the crown, dignity, and peace of the king; as matters, actions, and causes, and fuch like: but it is come to pass, that he with his affifants hearth all per- fonal actions, and real also, if they be incident to any perfonal action depending before them. Cowell.

Give that whiffper his erand, He'll take my bed chiet jufiice warrant. Prior.

J u s t i c e of the Common Pleas. [juficiarius Communium Placitum.] Is a lord by his office, and is called dominus juficiarius communium placitum. He with his affifants originally did hear and determine all caufes at the common law; that is, all civil caufes between common perfons, as well perfonal as real; for which caufe it was called the court of common pleaf, in opposition to the pleaf of the crown, or the king's pleaf, which are special, and appertaining to him only. Cowell.

5. J u s t i c e of the Court. [juficiarius Curiae.] One deputed by the king to do right by way of judgment. Cowell.

And you, Elders, order judges and juficiaries, that they may judge in all Syria. L'Efrange.

4. Right; affention of right. Draw th' fword, That if my fpeces offer a noble heart, Thy arms may do thee jufiice, Shakespe. King Lear.
11. Justices of Great Delivery. [Judiciarii, de Glad in delibe ratione.] Are such as are sent with commission to hear and determine all causes appertaining to such as for any offence are cast into gaol, part of whose authority is to punish such as let to mainprize those prisoners that by law be not bailable. The like by likelihood, in ancient time, were sent to countries upon several occasions; but afterward justices of assize were likewise authorized in that.

12. Justices of Nijs Prius are all one now-twopen with justices of assize; for it is a common adjournment of a cause, in the common pleas, to put it off to such a day: nisi prius judicarii venent ad causas partes ad causandam affijfari; and upon this clause of adjournment they are called justices of nisi prius, as well as justices of assize, by reason of the wit or action that they have to deal in.

13. Justices of Peace. [Judiciarii ad Pacem.] Are they that are appointed by the king's commission, with others, to attend the peace of the country where they dwell; of whom some, upon especial respect, are made of the quorum, because some bufineses of importance may not be dealt in without the presence of them, or one of them.

The justice, 1. In fair round belly with good capon lin'd, 2. With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut, 3. Full of wife laws and modern instances, 4. And he'll play his part, Shakspe. As you like it. 5. Thou haft appointed justices of the peace to call poor men before them, about matters they were not able to unfer. Shakspe. 6. The justice of peace are of great use: anciently they were confessors of the peace; there are the same, living that several acts of parliament have enfranchised their jurisdiction.

To justice. a. [from the noun.] To administer justice to any. A word not in use.

As for the title of procurator, wherein the emperors have been judge, and party, and judg'd him well, God forbid but that it should endure an appeal to war.

Whereas one Styward, a Scot, was apprehended for having king's goods and committed to the king delivered him to the French king, to be judg'd by him at his pleasure. Hayd. 1. To Justicement. m. f. [from justice.] Procedur in courts.

Justice. n. [from To justice.] Administrator of justice. 2. An old word. It was a singular good justice; and if he had not died in the second year of his government, was the like prince to have reformed the English by his wisdom and practice in Ireland.

Justiciable. m. f. [from justice.] Rank or office of justice. Swift.

Justicable. adj. [from justice.] Prooper to be examined in courts of justice.

Justifiable. adj. [from justice.] Defensible by law or reason.

Justice is the ways of God, and justice to men. Mil ton's Agrippa.

Although some animals in the water to carry a justifiable resemblance to some land, yet are the upper part which bear the like names unlike. Brown's Vulgar Errors.

Justifiableness. m. f. [from justifiable.] Reuitude; possibility of being fairly defended.

Vol. I.
1. Sharpness; edge.
No, not the hangman's beards half the keenness
Of thy sharp edge,
Skepsis. Merchant of Venice.
2. Rigour of weather; piercing cold.
3. Afpyrity; bitterness of mind.
That they might keep up the keenness against the court, its lordship furnished them with informations,
the king's disadvantage.
Cleaveron.
4. Eagles; vehemence.

Keep, v. a. [cepan, Saxon; kepen, old Dutch.]
1. To retain; not to lose.
I kept the field with the death of some, and flight of others. — Sidney.
We have examples in the primitive church of such as by fear being compelled to sacrifice to frantic gods and kept still the office of preaching the gospel. — Whitgift.
2. To have in custody,
the crows of Stephen's, first king of Hungary,
was always kept in the castle of Vizgere. — Knoller.
She kept the fatal key. — Addison.
3. To preserve; not to let go.
The Lord God merciful and gracious, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity. — Exod. xxviii.
I spared it greatly, and bade keep me a grape of the culler, and a plant of a great people. —
Exod. ix. 21.
4. To preserve in a state of safety.
We were safe by the duke keeps his galley. — Dryden.
5. To protect; to guard.
Behold I am with thee to keep thee. — Gen. xxxiii. 1.
6. To refrain from flight.
Foul dwelt with a souldier that kept him. — Acts, xxi. 9.
7. To detain, or hold as motive.
But what's the cause that keeps you here with me?
— That I may know what keeps me here with you. — Dryden.
8. To hold for another.
A man delivers money orstuff to keep. — Exod. xiv. 15.
Refer'd from night, and keep for thee in store. —
9. To tend; to have care of.
God put him in the garden of Eden to keep it. — Gen. ii. 15.
While in her goddess the keep sheep on the moor, it chanced that a merchant saw and liked her. — Currer.
Count it thine
to till and keep, and of the fruit to eat. — Milton.
10. To preserve in the same tenor or state.
To keep the true flame, I will keep this order. — Bona.
Take this at least, this last advice my fare,
Keep a little rein, and move but gently on:
The couriers of themselves will run too fast,
Your all too much to moderate their haste. — Addison.
11. To regard; to attend.
While the star and course of heav'n I keep,
My weary'd eyes were feild' with fatal sleep. — Dryden.
12. To not suffer to fail.
My mercy will I keep for him for ever. — Psal. lxix.
13. To hold in any state.
Ingenious flame, and the apprehensions of dis-pleasure, are the only true refrainers: those same ought to hold the reins, and keep the mind in order. — Locke on Education.
14. To retain by some degree of force in any place or state.
It is often followed in this sense by particles; as, down, under, in, off. — This wickedness is found by thee; no good deed of mine have been able to keep it down in thee. — Sidney.
Venus took the guard of noble Hector's corpse, and kept the dogs off: night and day applying reose force.
16. To keep off the dogs.
Of rosy balms, that to the dogs were horrible in taste. — Chapman's Ham.
The Chiches fall where they will; which sheweth that their law of keeping out strangers is a law of pululation and fear. — Bacon.
And those that cannot live from him; unfed.
Ungratefully the crows of Stephen's, first king of Hungary,
was always kept in the castle of Vizgere. — Knoller.
She kept the fatal key. — Addison.
To prevent; not to let go. — The Lord God merciful and gracious, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity. — Exod. xxviii. 7.
17. To hold for another.
A man delivers money or stuff to keep. — Exod. xxi. 15.
Refer'd from night, and keep for thee in store. —
18. To keep; to have care of.
God put him in the garden of Eden to keep it. — Gen. ii. 15.
While in her goddess the keep sheep on the moor, it chanced that a merchant saw and liked her. — Currer.
Count it thine
to till and keep, and of the fruit to eat. — Milton.
10. To preserve in the same tenor or state.
To keep the true flame, I will keep this order. — Bona.
Take this at least, this last advice my fare,
Keep a little rein, and move but gently on:
The couriers of themselves will run too fast,
Your all too much to moderate their haste. — Addison.
11. To regard; to attend.
While the star and course of heav'n I keep,
My weary'd eyes were feild' with fatal sleep. — Dryden.
12. To not suffer to fail.
My mercy will I keep for him for ever. — Psal. lxix.
13. To hold in any state.
Ingenious flame, and the apprehensions of dis-
K E E

20. To observe; not to violate. It cannot be, the king should keep his word in loving us; he will suspect us still, and find a time to revenge this offence in other faults. Shakesp.

21. To have in the house. Battle takes, call’t thou me bond. I confess the term: Nor shall my Nell keep lodgers. Shak., Henry V.

22. To maintain; to hold. They were honourably brought to London, where every one of them kept house by himself. Hayward.

23. To refrain; to with-hold. If any rebel or vain spirit of mine Did, with the least affections of a welcome, Give entertainment to the mode of it; Let have for ever keep it from my head. Shakesp.

24. To keep back. To refer; to with-hold. Whatever the Lord shall answer, I will declare; I will keep nothing back from you. Jer. viii. 8. Some are so close and reserved, as they will not shew their wars but by a dark light, and form al- ways to keep back fonrehow he may secure. Addin.

30. To keep back. To with-hold; to re- strain. Keep back thy servant from presumptuous fans. Psal. xix.

31. To keep company. To frequent any one; to accompany. He’s not doth know, so shall the world perceive, That I have turn’d away my former self, So will I choose to keep company. Shakesp.

32. To keep company with. To have familiar intercourse. A virtuous woman is not only avoid immo- decity, but the appearance of it; and the could not approve of a young woman keeping company with men, without the permission of father or mother. Dryden.

33. To keep in. To conceal; not to tell. I perceive in you so excellent a touch of mo- deity, that you will not extrait from me what I am willing to keep in. Shakesp.

34. To keep in. To restrain; to curb. If thy daughter be flamelet, keep her in straitly, lest the abuse herself through over-much liberty. Eccles. xii. 11. It will teach them to keep in, and to mather their inclinations. Locke on Education.

35. To keep off. To bear to diliance; not to admit. It is the people, not the officers; for they The touch to slander. Locke.

36. To keep off. To hinder. A superficial reading, accompanied with the common opinion of his invincible obdurate, has kept off some from seeking in him the coherence of his discourse. Locke.

37. To keep up. To maintain without abatement. Land kept up its price, and sold for many years purchase than correspondent to the interest of money. Locke.

38. To keep up. To maintain, to continue. You have enough to keep you alive, and to keep up and improve your hopes of heaven. Taylor.

39. To keep under. To opprese; to subdue. O happy mixture! where thythings contrary do quality and correct the one the danger of the other's excess, that neither boldness can make us presume, as long as we are under with the sense of our own weaknesses; nor, while we truth in the mercy of God through Christ Jesus, fear be able to tyrani- zation over us. Locke.

40. To keep under. To abate. In gray, that smothered a longer time, and kept under by violence, but it will break out at last. Stillingfleet.

To live like wise that have their hope in another life, impose, that we keep under our appetites, and do not let them loose into the enjoyments of flesh. Atterbury.

K E E

1. To remain by some labour or effect in a certain state. With all our force we keep aloof to sea, and gain the island where our velvets lay. Pope’s Odyssey.

2. To continue in any place or state; to stay. She would give her a leon for walking so late, that she should make her keep within doors for one fortnight or other. Shakesp., Othello.

What! keep a week away? seven days and nights! Eightcoret eight hours? and lovers absent hours! Oh weary reckoning! Shakesp., Othello.

If we will keep in favour with the king, To be her men, and wear her livery. Shakesp., Twelfth Night. But that keep tall by my young men, we have already. Ruth ii. 11.

The necessity of keeping well and the maritime powers, will persuade them to follow our mares, Trench.

On my better hand Aeneas hung And with unequal races tripped along. Creaulaphon. Dryden’s Ennius.

The gods is born in secret piau; Nor visited the camp, nor in the council join’d; But keeping close, his glowing heart he led. Whopes of vengeance open to his eye. Hom. And while it keeps there, it keeps within our au- thor’s limitation. Locke.

A man that cannot fence will keep out of battles and gamblers company. Locke on Education.

There are cages in which a man must guard, if he intends to keep fair with the world, and turn the people. Cato.

The endeavours Achilles used to meet with Hector, the contrary endeavours of the Trojans to get out of reach, are the intrigue. Pope’s View of Epic Poetry.

3. To remain unhurt; to lift; to be durable. Didst me not, although I be not false. Dost beauty keep which never sun can burn. Nor storms do turn? Sidley. God will keep in a vessel half full of wine, so that the grapes taste not the wine. Bacon.

If the malt be not thoroughly dried, the ale it makes will not keep. Maritimer’s Hymenius.

4. To dwell; to live continually. A breath thou art, Service to all the skye influences, That do this habitation, where thou keep’st. Hay all. Shakesp., Measure for Measure.

Knock at the fludty, where they lave, he keeps, To ruminate strange plots of due revenge. Shakesp., Measure for Measure.

5. To adhere sturdily; with: to. Did they keep to one constant dreed they would sometimes be in fashion, which they never were. Addin.

Addin’s Spectator.

It is whilist we keep to our rule; but when we forsoak that we go astray. Baker on Learning.

6. To keep up. To go forward. So cheerfully he took the doors; No shrunk, nor slept from death. But, with unalter’d pace, kept on. Dryden.

7. To keep up. To continue unfoshed. He gave back of a composition; yet be still keep- up, that he might free his country. Life of Seneca.

8. The general idea of this word is care, continuance, or duration, sometimes with an intimation of coercion or coercion. Keep, n. f. [from the verb.]

1. Custody; guard. Plan, thou god of Shepherds all, Of which of our lands keep. Spranger.

The prison frong. Within whole keep the captive knights were laid. Was one partition of the palace-wail. Dryden.

2. Guardianship; restraint. Youth is last looked into when they fland in most need of good keep and regard. Aescham.

K E E P, n. f. [from keep.]

1. One who holds any thing for the use of another. The good old man having neither reason to dis-KEPHER, fox, To'M, his "Drefled; think but cerneau, Moxon't Addfon. Carru). The Bacon, in to a but Hidney. adj. fee To[...]

KE'KEEPFR Kelp. Kell. Kell. To Walk Through A With §iiit, caftle. With fea-weed More by as and like wood inwraps made entangle We in the watch any fwallowed this thing. king's to the king's house. hen, Sometimes a keeper here in Winter tooth. Dvh the whole Winter-time, at still of midnight, Walk round about an oak with wagged horns. Shakespeare. The first fat bucket of all the season's first, and keeper takes no fee in compliment. Dryden. 4. One that has the superintendence or care of any thing. Hifikah went unto Hildah, keeper of the wardrobe, 2 Kings.

KEEPER OF THE GREAT SEAL. [Coff. magni jgilli. Lat.] is a lord by his office, and called lord keeper of the great seal of England, and is of the king's privy council, under whom hands pass all charters, commissions, and grants of the king. This lord keeper, by the statute of 5 Eliz. c. 18 hath the like jurifediction, and all other advantages as hath the lord chancellor of England. Cowell.

KEEPERSHIP, n.f. [from keeper.] Office of a keeper. The god of the fire is kept at Lancaster: this keepership is annexed to the signification of the calf. Carew.

KED. n.f. [cauge, Fr.] A small barrel, commonly used for a fish barrel. KELL. n.f. [A sort of potage. Ausf.] It is so called in Scotland, being a foup made with thrashed greens.

KELL. n.f. The omentum; that hath inserting the guts. The very weight of bowels and kell, in fat people, is the occasion of a rupture. Wifeman's Surgery. KELL w.f. A falt produced from calcined sea- weed. In this and other, the workmen use the silver of a faw-worked called kell, and urine. Boyle on Colours.

KELIION. n.f. [more properly keefair.] The wood next the keel. We have added close pillars in the royal ships, which being fasten'd from the keelson to the beams of the second deck, keep them from settling, or giving way. Raleigh.

KEITTER. n.f. [He is not in kelter, that is, he is not ready; from kelter, to grid, Danith. Skinner.]

KEIN. v.o. a. [sennan, Saxox; dominan, German; now written, perhaps less properly, to come.] To separate or dif- entangle by a denticulated instrument.

Yet are men more booke than they, More kem'd and bath'd, and rubb'd and trimm'd, More sleek; Ben Jonson. The head and hair are sleek; and then thou kem'dst the tassets on thy cheek. Dryden.

KEIN. v.o. a. [sennan, Saxox; dominan, Dutch, to know.] 1. To fee at a distance; to defery. At once as far as angels, he views The definl situation, waste and wild. Milton. The next day about evening we saw, within a...
KEY

KERSHEW, n. [fertilearia]. An herb.

KETSEY, n. f. [karsy, Dutch; carise, Fr.]. Coarse flax.

KETTLE. n. f. [celt, Saxon; kettle, Dutch]. A vessel in which liquor is boiled. In the kitchen the name of pot is given to the boiler that grows narrower towards the top, and of kettle to that which grows wider. In authors they are Confounded. The fire thus forc'd, the few the kettle out, the流传 the kettle, and kettle forth. From the bottom KETTLEDRUM. n. f. [kettle and drum]. A drum of which the head is spread over a body of brass. As he draws his draughts of Rhenish down, the kettle drum and trumpet thus bray out: The triumph of his pledge. Shakespeare, Hamlet.

KEY, n. f. [cox, Saxon].

1. An instrument formed with cavities correspondent to the wards of a lock, by which the bolt of a lock is pulled forward or backward.

2. An instrument by which something is secured or opened.

3. An explanation of any thing difficult.

4. The parts of a musical instrument which are struck with the fingers.

KID, n. f. [from kidney, a child].

5. [In music.] Is a certain tone whereeto every composition, whether long or short, ought to be fitted; and this key is said to be either flat or sharp, not in respect of its own nature, but with relation to the flat or sharp third, which is joined with it.

Hurric.

6. [Key; Dutch; gaud, French.] A bank raised perpendicular for the ease of landing and width of the ship. A key of fire ran along the shore, and lighten'd all the river with a blaze. Dryden.

7. Key cold was a proverbial expression, now out of use. Poor and figure of a holy king! Pale ashes of the house of Lancaster. Shakespeare.

KEY'AGE. n. f. [from key.] Money paid for lying at the key, or quay. Shakespeare.

KEY'HOLE. n. f. [key and hole]. The perforation in the door or lock through which the key is put. Makes doors fast upon a woman's wit, and will it out to all the cadeney that that, and 'twill out at the key-hole. Shakespeare.

I looked in at the key-hole, and saw a well-made man. Johnson.

I keep her in one room; I lock it; The key, look here, is in this pockets: The key-hole is that left? Milt. Cajm.

KEY'STONE. n. f. [key and stone]. The middle stone of an arch.

If you will add a keystone and chapters to the arch, the height of the upper part of the keystone be the height of the arch. Milton.

KIB. n. f. [from kib, a cut, German, Skinner; from kitch, Welsh, Miniver]. An ulcerated chilblain; a chap in the heel caused by the cold. Shakespeare.

If you're a kib, 'twould put me to my finger. Shakespeare.

The toe of the peafan comes so near the heel of our country, that it galls his fite. Johnson.

One booted of the cures, calling them a few shkices. Johnson.

KIBED. adj. [from kib.] Troubled with kites: as, kibed heels.

To KICK, v. a. [tauchen, German; calce, Lat.]. To strike with the foot. He must endure and digg all affronts, adore the foot that kicks him, and his hands that strikes him. South. Johnson.

I rang'd Turene once upon a day, To see a footman kick'd that took his pay. Pope. Another, whose foot had employments at court, valued not, now and then, a kicking or a caging. Swift.

To KICK, v. n. To best the foot in anger or contempt.

Wherefore kick ye at my sacrifices, which I have commanded? Samuel ii. 59.

Johnson vexed fat and kicked. Dunciad, III. 11.

The doctrines of the holy Scriptures are terrible engines to wicked men, and this is that which makes them kick against religion, and frustrate the dealings of the Lord in their hearts. Gifford.

KICK, m. f. [from the verb]. A blow with the foot.

KID, n. [from kidney].

1. What are you dumb? Quick, with your answer, quick.

Before my foot salutes you with a kick. Dryd. Tur.

KICKEER, n. f. [from kick]. One who strikes with his foot.

KICKSHAW. n. f. [This word is fupposed, I think with truth, to be only a corruption of quelques chose, something; yet Kickshaw men have underflood it otherwise; for he was wont to kickshaw, if he thought it used in contempt of dancing.]

1. Something uncommon; fantastical; fome thing ridiculous.

Shall we the menofe of Paris to take our youth into their flight and nudity, and lend them over back and transformed into mimicks, apes, and kickshaws? Milton.

2. A diff that changed by the cooksery that it can scarcely be known.

Some pigeons, a joint of mutton, and any pretty little trifle.

Shakespeare, Henry IV.

In wit, as well as war, they give us vigour; Creely was left by kickshaw and foup-magre.

Fenton, a.

KICK-SY-WICK-SY, n. f. [from kick and advice]. A made word in ridicule and disdain of a wife.

Hamlet.

He wears his honour in a box, unseen, That huge his kick-sy-wick-sy here at home, Spending his money narrowly in his arms. Shakespeare.

KID, n. f. [kid, Danish].

1. The young of a goat.

Leaping wanton kids in pleasant spring. Fair Quee.

There was a herd of goats with their young ones, upon which Sir Richard Graham set he; would have ran one of the kids, and carry him close to their lodging.

By the lion ramp'd, and in his paw Dandled the kid. Milton.

So kids and whelpes their fires and dams express. And to the great I meard't by the left. Dryden.

From cudewad, Welsh, a faggot. A bundle of heat or fury.

To Kid, v. a. [from the noun]. To bring forth kids.

K'IDER, n. f. An engrosser of corn to enhance its price. Aironwurb.

To KIDNAP. v. a. [from kind, Dutch, a child, and rap.] To steal children; to steal human beings.

KIDNAPPER, n. f. [from kidnap]. One who steals human beings; a manfeater.

They were compounded with the merchant, upon condition that he might have his child again; but he had cost it out, that the merchant himself was the kidnapper.

Le Égarre.

These people lie in wait for our children, and may be considered as a kind of kidnappers within the law. Spenser.

KIDNEY, n. f. [Etymology unknown.]

1. There are two in number, one on each side: they have the same figure as kidney-beans; their length is four or five fingers, their breadth three, and their thickness two; the skin is under the liver, and the left under the spleen. The use of the kidneys is to separe the urine from the blood, by which the motion of the heart and arteries, is thrust into the emulent branches, which carry it to the little glands, by which the ferosity, being separated, is received by the orifice of the little tubes; which go from the glands to the pelvis, and from thence it runs by the ureters into the bladder.

Quinty.

A youth labour'd under a complication of fevers, from his melancholy and kidney. Wifham's Swissy.
KIN

His grief some pity, otherwise blame.

The fatal cause all kindly seek.

With, who with left designing ends,

Kinder entertain their friends;

With good words, and countenance freely,

Strive to treat all politely.

KINDLY. adj. [from kind; probably from kindle, subtintive.

1. Homogeneous; homogeneous; kindred of the same nature.

This competency I bezech God I may be able to digests into kindly juice, that I may grow thereby.

Hammond.

2. These fine feels not

Notonly enlighten, but with kindly heat,

Of various influence, heavy and warm.

From D'yJen.

The Suid, Prior, and A Milton's may

But tongue,

From

And temper

Of beginning,

If ye keep

Her husband

Her husband

Of,

To

Plur.

To Kindred.

Ifabella, kings of Spain, recovered the great and rich kingdom of, Granada from the Moors.

Haric.

3. A card with the picture of a king.

The king unclean

Lurk'd in her hand, and mount'd his captive queen.

Bacon.

4. King at arms, a principal officer at arms, that has the pre-emminence of the society; of whom there are three in number, viz. Carter, Norroy, and Clarencieux.

Philipps.

A letter under his own hand was lately showed me by sir william Dugdale, king at arms, Walton.

Haren.

5. To King, n. a. [from the noun.]

1. To supply with a kind.

A word rather ludicrous.

England is so lily kind'd, her sceptre so fantastically borne,

That fear attends her not.

Sometimes am I a kind.

Then treason free me with myself a beggar,

And I am, then coughing penury

Perfidious, I was better when a king:

Then am I kind'd again. Shakespeare's Richard II.

KINGAPPLE. n. f. A kind of apple.

The kindapple is preferred before the jenettng.

Shak.

KINGCRAFT. n. f. [king and craft.]

The art of governing. A word commonly used by kings James.

KINGCUP. n. f. [king and cup.]

The name is properly, according to Gerard, king cup.

The flower, crowfoot.

Jane is drawn in a mantle of dark green, and upon his head a garland of, kingcups, and maidenhair.

Peach.

Fair is the kingcup that in meadow blooms,

Fairs the daily that befeath her growth.

Gay.

KINGDOM. n. f. [from king.]

1. The dominion of a king; the territories subject to a monarch.

You'll receive, you shall receive,

Molt learned, revered sir, into our kingdom.

Shak.

Modes gave unto them the kingdom of Sinai, king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og, king of Bashan.

Num. xxii.

2. A different class or order of beings.

A word chiefly used among naturalists.

The animal and vegetable kingdoms are so nearly joined, that if you take the lowest of one, and the highest of the other, there will scarce be perceived any difference.

Linneus.

3. A region; a tract.

The mighty king's is no bar

To stop the foreign guest, but they come.

As o'er a brook, to see fair Paris.

Shak.

KINGFISHER. n. f. [halcyon.] A species of bird.

When dew refreshing on the pasture fields

The moon beautes, Kingfishers play on shore.

Bitterns, herons, sea-gulls, kingfishers, and water-rats, are great enemies to fish.

Mortimer's Hist.

KINGLIKE. { ad. [from king.]

1. Royal; sovereign; monarchical.

There ruling in large and ample empire.

O' France, and all her almost kings dukedoms.

Shak.

Yet this place

Had been thy kingly seat, and here thy race,

From all the ends of people earth, had come

To reverence thee.

Dryden's State of Innocence.

In Spain, a king is highly, indeed, thought the people were perfectly free, the administration was in the two kings and the episcopi.

Swift.

The cities of Greece, when they drove out their tyrannical kings, either chose others from a new family, or abolished the kingly governments, and became free states.

Swift.

2. Belonging to a king; suitable to a king.

Why list thou with the vile

In loathsome beds, and leav't the kingly couch.

A watch-cate to a common 'barum bell?'

Shak.

Then shalt thou give me with thy kindness,

What husband in thy power I will command.

Shak.

3. Noble; august; magnificent.

He was not born to live a subject life, each action of his bearing in it, that, a kind entertainment,

Such a kingliness, such a kingly heart for enterprises.

Sidney.

I am far better born than is the king;

More like a king, more kindling in my thoughts.

Shak.

KINGLY. adv. With an air of royalty; with superfluous dignity.

Adam bow'd low; let, king, from his face

Rout'd nor.

Milton's Paradise Lost.

His hat, which never valued to human pride,

Walker with res'treco took, and laid aside

Low bow'd the reef, it, kindl'd, did without

Dunciad.

KINGSEOIL. n. f. [king and oil.] A scrofulous distemper, in which the glands are ulcerated, commonly believed to be cured by the touch of a king.

Four eyes are frequently a species of the kindgseeil.

Doubtless from their beginning, from various hominy inflaming the tonics adepts.

Witman's Surgery.

KINGSHIP. n. f. [from king.] Royalty; monarchy.

They designed and proposed to me the new-modeling of sovereignty and kindgships, without any reality of power, or without any necessity of subjection and obedience.

King Charles.

We know how successful the late usurpation was, while his army believed him real in his seal against kindgship, but when they found out the imposture, upon his aspiring to the same highness, he was presently dejected and oppressed by them, and never able to crown his usurped greatness with the addition of that title which he passionately thirsted after. South.

KING'SPEAR. n. f. [acropolis.] A plant.

KINGSTONE. n. f. [saguinum.] A species of grass.

Dinsworth.

KINGFOLK. n. f. [kin and folk.] Relations; those who are of the same family.

Those lords, since their first grants of those lands, have believed them amongst their kindgfolk.

Spenser.

My kindfolk have failed; and my familiar friends forgotten me.

Jebb. xii. 14.

KINGMAN. n. f. [kin and man.] A man of the same race or family.

The jury had made be chosen out of their nearest kind'man, and their judges he made of their own father's.

Spenser.

Both fair, and both of royal blood they seem'd.

When kingfishers to the crown the heralds descend.

Dryden.

Let
Thick being culpable of this crime, or favours of their friends, which are such by whom their kitchen and sometimes amended, will not fudder any such statute to pass.

Can we judge it a thing freemly for any man to go about the building of an house to the God of heaven, with no other face but if his end were to rear up a kitchen or a parlour for his own use.

He was taken into service in his court to a safe office in his kitchen; so that he turned a broth that had worn a crown.

We see no new built palaces since, No kitchen seen of velvet fire.

Garden in which corulent plants are produced. Gardens, if planted with such things as are fit for food, are called kitchen gardens.

A kitchen is a more pleasant fight than the finest orangery.

A maid under the cookmaid, whose business is to clean the utensils of the kitchen.

The fat of meat scummed off the pot, or gathered into a spoon.

As a thisty wench forages kitchenjaff, And barring the droppings and the nest Of waiting candlers, which in thirty year, Reluctly keeps, perchance buys wedding cheer.

Instead of kitchenjaff some cry
Object-groaning minstrelsy.

This cap was moulded on a porginget,
A velvet dill, for fe, for 'tis lewd and hilly.
Why 'tis a cockle or a walnut fheel,
A cow, a teit, a teit, a baby's cap.
But is not pretention to write verfe to her.
Who make the better poems of the two?
For all their little knack, that you can chase.
Alas! what are they but poems in prose?}

K.NA

At the same season, if your mother's cat
Had bitten't, though your fish'd ne'er been born.

The eagle timbered upon the top of high oak,
And the cat kittered in the hollow trunk of it.

1. To make a small tharp noise.

Next in Scotland it denotes to piller, or deal away suddenly with a fratch.

To K.NA. v. n. [knappen, Dutch; knoap, Erfe.] To bite. Perhaps properly to bite something brittle, that makes a noise when it is broken; so that knap and knob may be the same.

I had much rather lie knocking crafts, without fear, in my own holes, than be mounties of the world with ears.

An ass was willing, in a hard Winter, for a little warm weather, and a mouthful of fresh grass to be known upon.

To Knobble. v. n. [From knobs] To bite idly, or wantonly; or nibble. This word is found perhaps no where else.

Horses will knobble at walls and rai glass into.

KNACK. n. s. (ensnare, skill, Sax.] 1. A little machine; a pretty contrivance; a toy.

When I was young, I was wont
To load my file with -knacks: I would have ranked it.

The pedlar's staken treasury, and have pour'd it
To her acceptance.

For thee, fond boy,
If I may ever know thou didst but fight
That thou no more shalt fee this knack, as never
I mean thou shalt, we'll bar thee from trecution.

This cap was moulded on a porginget,
A velvet dill, for fe, for 'tis lewd and hilly.
Why 'tis a cockle or a walnut fheel,
A cow, a teit, a teit, a baby's cap.
But is not pretention to write verfe to her.
Who make the better poems of the two?
For all their little knack, that you can chase.
Alas! what are they but poems in prose?

In the church, when the fourth high, so at sometimel
She is seen to pass over a cloud, with ethereal
Both, flying slots, leen tar and dry waters.
A leopard and a cat sien to differ just as a kite
Both, a common evacuation.

2. A name of reproach denoting rapacity.

Debreit kite: thou lief. Shak., King Lear.

3. A fictitious bird made of paper.

A man may have a great elan conveyed to him,
But if he will madly burn, or childishly make paper
Kites, of his deeds, he forfeits his title with his evidence.

Government of the Tongue.

K.N.B. n. s. [from kites]. One that kites.

K.B.aINGC.RUST. n. f. (killing and craft.).

Crab formed where one loaf in the oven touches another.

These be'd with kibjngcrust, and thefe
Brought him small beer.

K.NIT. v. s. [from knit.].

A large bottle.

Skinner.

A long fishy active fiddle.

The kept in a cafe' fitted to it, almost like a dancing-master's kite.

Grosi's Museum.

3. A small wooden vesse] in which Newcastle salmon is sent up to town.

KITCHEN. n. f. [kitchen, Welth; këg, Flemith; ceyene, Saxon; cufine, French; cainna, Italian; hyfen, Erfe.]

The room in a house where the provisions are cooked.

Vol. 1.
KNA

Knag, n. f. [knag, a wart, Danish.] It is retained in Scotland. A hard knot in wood.

Knagy, adj. [from knag.] Knotty; set with hard rough knots.

Knaph, n. f. [knaph, Welsh, a protruberance, or a broken piece; cneb, Saxon, a protruberance.] A protruberance, a swelling or prominence.

You shall see many fine seats set upon a knot of ground, enriched with higher hills round about it, whereby the heat of the sun is gone in, and the wind found, as you shall see them in many wild woods. Bacon.

To Knap, v. a. [knappen, Dutch.] To bite; to break short. He knappt the spear in funder. Common Prayer.

His will knappe a-pieces with his teeth. More.

2. [Knaph, Erse.] To strike fio as to make a sharp noise like that of breaking. Knap a pair of tomes some depth in a vessel of water, and you shall hear the sound of the knots. Bacon's Natural History.

To Knap, v. n. To make a short sharp noise.

I reduced the shoulders to size, that the stansers by heard them knot in before they knew they were gone. Wilmans.

Knabottle, n. f. [papaw, phaumam.] A plant.

To Knapp, n. v. n. [from knap.] To break off with a sharp quick noise.

Knappack, n. f. [from knappen, to eat.] The bag which a heifer carries on his back; a bag of provisions.

The tradition of this church shall not be repealed, till I see more religious motives than soldiers carry in their knappacks. King Charles.

If you are for a merry jaynt, I'll try for once whether you can be fast in faith: there are hinges in Winter, and bars in Winter: I wish my knappack, and you with your bottle at your back: we'll leave honour to madmen, and riches to knaves, and travel till we come to the ridge of the world. Dryden.

Knaweed, n. f. [jucca, Latin.] A plant.

Miller.

Knae, n. f. [knor, German.] A hard knot.

A cake of flour lye baking on the ground, and prickly thistles instead of trees are found; or woods with knots and knaves deserted of old, Headles the mott, and hideous to behold. Dryden.

Kna'Ve, n. f. [cneb, Saxon.] 1. A boy; a male child. 2. A servant. Both these are obloque. For as the moon the eye doth please; While gentle beams not hurting light, Yet hath in it the greater praise, Because from him doth come her light; So if my master play with her, What then must I that keep the knave, Sidney.

He eats and drinks with his domestic fiddocks.

A servile hind of any of his knaves. Dryden.

3. Petty rascal; a scoundrel; a dishonest fellow.

Most men rather break their being repeated knaves, than for their honesty be accounted fools; knave, in the mean time, calling for a name of credit, Saxon. Ch. 14.

If we're brought in play upon', Or but by casting knave get, What poor'rn'nd videos win us! Haddara.

Kna'vish, adj. [from knave.] 1. Dishonestly; tricks; petty villainy.

Kna've, n. f. [cneb, Saxon; knot, Dutch.] 1. The joint of the leg where the leg is joined to the thigh.

Thy royal father
Was a most tainted kng: the queen that bore thee, Often upon her knave then on her feet.

Did every day the liv'd. Shakespeare's Macbeth.

Scottish kin is a kind of strong nourishment, made of the knave and fines of beef so long boiled. Bacon.

I beg and claspy thy knave. Milton.

Weared with length of years, worn out with toil, Lay down and bearest thy knave, Down'd the cause of all her miseries; And cast her languishing regards above. For help from heav'n, and her ungrateful Jove. Dryden.

2. A knee is a piece of timber growing crooked, and so cut that the trunk and branch make up an angle.

Maxen's Meab, Exon.

Kne

Such diapasons are the sifter timber to make great politics of: like to knife timber, that is good for fronds that are to be toffed; but not for building, that shall Rand long time.

To Kneel, v. a. [from the noun.] To supplicate by kneeling. Go you that banish'd him, a mile before his tent fall down, and kneel the way into his marches. Shakespeare. Cymbeline.

Return with her! Why, the hot blooded France, that downwets took Your youngest born; I could as well be brought To kneel his throne, and quarter-like pension beg. Shakespeare.

Kne'e'def, adj. [knee and deep.] Raising to the knees.

Kne'knot, v. n. [knot, to close, + kneel.] To sink to the knees.

The country poxent meditates no harm, When evil does to beaks of keep him warming; In winter weather uncool'd be gone, Almost knecked through, like elm in tomy-foolly. Dryden.

Kned'grass, n. f. [gramen, gentilis.] An herb.

Kne'holm, n. f. [aquifolium.] An herb.

Kne'fand, n. f. [kne and pan.] A little round bone about two inches, pretty thick, a little converse on both sides, and covered with a smooth cartilage on its foreside. It is soft in children, but very hard in those of riper years: it is called patella or mola. Over it passes the tendon of the muscles which extend the leg, to which it serves as a pulley. Quincy.

The kneepan must be flown, with the kneeling thereof, by a fine shadow under the joint. Proehom in Drangon.

To Kneel, v. n. [from knee.] To perform the act of genuflection; to bend the knee.

When thou do'st ask me blessing, I'll kneel down, And ask of thee forgiveness. Shakespeare's King Lear.

Ere I was raised from the place that she'd'd my duty kneeling, came a retaking, Stow'd in his halles, half breathing, passing forth From Contempl, his mistress, falution. Dryden.

A certain man kneeling down to him that fell, Lord, have mercy upon my son: for he is lunatick. Matt. xxii. 14.

As soon as you are dreelled, kneel and say the Lord's prayer. Taylor's Guide on Devotions.

Kne'tribute, n. f. [knee and tribute.] Genuflection; worship or obeisance shown by kneeling.

Receive from us Kne'tribute yet unpaid, profiration vile. Milton.

Knel, n. f. [kneel, Welsh; cnyllen, to ring, Sax.] The found of a bell rung at a funeral.

I would not with them to a fairer death, And so his knell is knoll'd. Shakespeare.

Sea memes hauty ring his knell. Shakespeare.

Hark, now I hearn them ringer. Shakespeare. Tempest.

When he was brought again to the bar, so bear His kntl rang out, his judgement, he was fain'd With such an agony, he sweate extremely. Shakespeare.

All these motions, which we saw, Are but as ice, which crackles at a thaw: Or as a late, which in moist weather rings. Dryden.

Unhappy faw, and pupil to bell, Which his horas work, as hours do tell. Unhappy 'till the last, the kind relasing knell. Cowley.
KNI

At dawn, poor Stella danced and sang;
The morning sun sparkled on her brow;
At night her fate was wondrous:
Saw, and felt, and had her triumph.

KNIT. The precursor of known.

KNIFE. n.s. plur. knives. [comp. Saxon: kif; Dano. kif.] An implement edged and pointed, wherein meat is cut, and animals killed.

Come, thick night,
And pall thee in the dimness of sleep.
That my keen knife cut not the wondrous make.

Shakespeare.

NIGHT. A sleepless power, by thy tender life
Should bleed upon a barbarous knife,

The far-cried pikes with ready knives break

The back of life, and in fall bows receive

The streaming blood.

Dryden's An. Ev'n to his steep he flatters, and fears the knife,
And, trembling, in his arms takes his accomplish'd wife.

Shakespeare.

NIGHTINGALE. Pain is not in the knife that cuts us: but we call it cutting in the knife, and pain only in ourselves.

Warton.

KNIGHT. n.s. [surn. Sax. knects; Ger. a servant or pupil.]

1. A man advanced to a certain degree of military rank. It was anciently the custom to knight every man of rank or fortune, that he might be qualified to give challenges, to fight in the lists, and to perform feats of arms. In England knighthood consults the title of for: as, Sir Thomas, Sir Richard. When the name was not known, it was usual to say Sir knight.

That same knight's own sword this is yore,
Which Merlin made.

Spenser.

Abandon this forested place,
When every eagle in law is right,
No spurre in debt, and no poor knight.

Shakespeare, King Lear.

This knight; but yet why should I call him knight,
To give leaping to this raving fire? Daniel.

No spurre with knight did better fit
In parts, in manner, and in wit.

Hudibras.

2. Shakespeare uses it of a female, and it must therefore be understood in its original meaning, pupil or follower.

Upon a field of the night,
Those that fly thy virgin knight,
For whose which, with songs of woe,
Round about her tomb they go.

Shakespeare.

3. A champion.

He suddenly unites the poke,
Which out of it sent such a smoke,
As ready was them all to choke.

Sagacious was the pother,
So that the knights each other loth,
And flood as still as any pot.

Dryden.

To help their knight against their king,
And save the first footman?

Denham.

KNIGHT ERRANT. [chevalier errant.] A wandering knight; one who went about in quest of adventures.

Like a bold knight errant did proclaim
Combat to all, and bore away the dame.

Denham.

The ancient errant knight
Won all their mistressies in fights;
They took the ladies to their fraterns,
To put them into amorous cabinets.

Hudibras.

KNIGHT ERRANTY. [from knight errant.] The character or manners of wandering knights.

That which with the vulgar pages for courage is
A bottom foot of knight errantry, seeking out needful Errantry.

NOT.

A hinting evidence;

a knight dabbed at the whipping post, or pillory.

There are knights of the soft, and holy cheats
Enough, to swear of the broadest counti dictions, where pious frauds shall give them an extraordinary call.

South.

KNIGHTS OF THE SHIRE. One of the repre sentatives of a county in parliament: he formerly was a military knight, but now any man having an estate in land of fix hundred pounds a year is qualified.

To KNIGHT. v. a. [from the noun.] To create one a knight, which is done by the king, who gives the person kneeling a blow with a sword, and bids him rise up from Favour亲戚 came thick upon him: the next St. George's day he was knighted.

Warton.

The lord protector knighted the king and immediately the king风 up, took the sword from the lord protector, and dubbed the lord mayor of London knight.

Hayward.

The hero William, and the martyr Charles
One knighted Blackmore, and one penfod Quaires.

Pope.

KNIGHTLY. adj. [from knight.] Beauti filing a knight, bestowing a knight.

Let us take care of your wound, upon condition that a more knightly combat shall be performed between us.

Sidney.

How dare your pride profane against my laws:
As in a lifted field to fight your cause:

Unwield the royal grant, nor marry by

A knight of the street to try.

Dryden.

KNIGHTHOOD. n.s. [from knight.] The character or dignity of a knight.

The sword which Merlin made,
For that his mourning, when he knighted swore,
Wherewith to dew his foes eternal Shame.

Foley Queen.

Speak truth on this knighthood, and thine oath,
And to defend thee Heaven and thy valor.

Shakespeare.

Is this the sir, who some waste wife to win,
A knighthood bought, to go a-wowing in? Ben Jonson.

If you need must write, write Caesar's style,
You'll gain at least a knighthood or the byes. Pope.

KNIGHTLESS. adj. [from knight.] Unbecoming a knighthood.

Aloof, thou cursed miscreant.

That hail with knighthood guilt, and treacherous
Fair knighthood fully shamed. Foley Queen.

To KNIT. v. a. pret. knit or knotted.

[crnct, Saxon.]

1. To make or unite by texture, without aloom.

George that knits up the ravelled sleeve of ease,
The birth of each day's life, foul labour's bath,
Balm of last mists.

Shakespeare, Macbeth.

A thousand Cupids in those clubs do sit;
Those curious sets thy slender fingers knit, Waller.

2. To tye.

Send for the country; get tell him of this;
I'II have this knot knit up tomorrow morning.

Shakespeare.

3. To join; to unite. This was formerly a word of extensive use; it is now less frequent.

His gait did grate for grief and high disdain,
And knotting all his force, got one hand free.

Spenser.

Thence, mine enemies, are all knit up
In their distractions: they are in my powers.

Shakespeare.

Let the wile world end,
And the promised flame of the last day
Knit earth and heaven together!

Shakespeare's Henry VI.

Lay your highness;
Command upon me, which my duties are
With a rock indissoluble tie
For ever knit.

Shakespeare, Macbeth.

KNOW.

This royal hand and mine are newly knit,
And the conjunction of our inward souls
Married in league.

Shakespeare, King John.

By the severity of Venus' doğe, and
By that which knitted souls, and professes loves.

Shakespeare.

I'ye be come peaceably, mine heart shall be knit unto you.

That their hearts might be consoled, being knit together in love.

Col. v. 2.

He doth fundamentally and mathematically demonstrat the finest knottings of the upper timbers, which make the roof.

Warton's Architecture.

Pride and impudence, in faction knots, Unler the chair of wit! John Tayler's New Inn.

Ye knit my heart to you by asking this question.

Beacon.

These two prisons were agreeable to be joined in marriage, and thereby knit both realms into one.

Hayward.

Come, knit hands, and beat the ground.

In a light fantastic round.

Milton.

God gave several abilities to several persons, that each might help to supply the public needs, and, by joining to fill up all wants, they be knit together by justice, as the parts of the world are by nature.

Taylor's Rule of Living Holy.

Nature cannot knit the bones where the parts are under a discharge.

Wfoman's Surgery.

4. To contrast.

What are the thoughts that knit thy brow in frowns,
And turn thy eyes coldly on thy prince?

Adlai.

5. To tie up.

He saw heaven opened, and a certain veil de descending upon him, as it had been a great sheet, knit a/the four corners, and let down to the earth.

Acts. x. 11.

KNIT. v. n. 1. To weave without a loom.

A young shepherd, if knitting and singing: her voice comforted her hands at work, and her hands kept time to her voice's music.

Sidney.

Make the world distinguish Julia's son.

From the vile offspring of a knoll, that sin
By the town-wall, and for her living knits. Dryden.

2. To join; to close; to unite. Not used.

Our fever'd navy too
Have knit again; and bow, threatening most seas-like.

Shakespeare.

KNIT. n.s. [from the verb.] Texture.

Let their heads be flexibly com'd, their blue caps bro'd, and their garters of an indifferent kind, tuck'd.

Pamela.

KNITTER. n.s. [from knit.] One who weaves or knits.

The spinners and the knitters in the fun,
And the three maids that weave their thread with bones.

Do use to chant it.

Shakespeare, Twelfth Night.

KNITTING NEEDLE. n.s. [knit and needle.] A wire which women use in knitting.

He gave her a cuff on the ear, she would prickle him with her knitting-needle.

Archibald's John Bull.

KNITTEL. n. s. [from knit.] A string that gathers a purpel round.

Anfivort.

KNOB. n.s. [cump; Saxen; knepp; Dutch.] A protuberance; any part bluntly rising above the rest.

Just before the entrance of the right side of the heart is a remarkable knob or bunch, raised up from the subjacent fat.

Ray.

KNOT. v. n. [from knob.] Set with

Knobs; having protuberances.

The horns of a red deer of Greenland are pointed at the top, and knobbed or tubercled at the bottom.

Owte.

KNOLDER. n.s. [from knobby.] The.

Nobility of having knobs.

Knobly. adj. [from knob.] 1. Full of knobs.

2. Hard; stubborn.

6 X 2.

The
The informer continued in a knobby kind of ob-fluence, producing full to conceal the names of the authors.

To Knock. v. a. [enruean, Saxon; ence, a, blow, Welfh.]
1. To claff; to be driven suddenly together.
Any hard body thrust forwards by another body contiguous, without knocking, gives no noise.
Bacon's Natural History.

They may say, the atoms of the chaos being vaduously moved according to this clacky law, must needs knock and interfere. Bentley.

2. To beat, as at a door for admittance;
commonly with at.

Villain, I say, knock me at this gate,
And rap me well, or I'll knock your knave's gate
Shakespeare.

Whether to knock against the gates of Rome,
Or rudely thrust in parts remote,
I bid the rascal knock upon your gate,
And could not get him for my heart to do it.
Shakespeare.

For harbours at a thousand doors they knock'd,
Not one of all the thousand but was lock'd.
Dryden.
Knock at your own doors, and all your gates shall be lock'd.
Dryden.

3. To Knock under.
A common expression, which denotes that a man yields or sub-mit's. Submifion is expressed among good fellows by knocking under the table.
Following commonly by a particle: as, to knock up, to roufe by knocking; to knock down, to fell by a blow.

To Knock. v. a. [from the verb.]
1. To affect or change in any respect by knock.

How do you mean removing him?
Why, by making him incapable of Obelio's place;
knocking out his brains.
Shakespeare. Othello.

He that has his hands knocked off, and the prison doors set open to him, is perfectly at liberty.
Locke.

Time was, a fober Englishman would knock his servants up, and rife by five o'clocK.
Indue his family in every rule,
And fend his wife to church, his son to school.
Pop.

2. To daff together; to strike; to collide with a sharp noise.

So when the cook sew my jaws thus knob'd
She would have made a pancake of my pocket.
Cleveland.

At him he lan'd his spear, and pierce'd his head.
Shakespeare. Midil.
On the hard earth the Ly Rican knob'd his head,
And lay supine; and forth the spirits fled.
Dryden.

'Tis the sport of the times.
When heroes knob their knotty heads together,
And fall by one another.
Reyn.

3. To Knock down.
To fell by a blow.

He began to knock down his fellow-citizens with a great deal of zeal, and to fill all Arabia with blooded.
Addison.
A man who is grog in a woman's company, ought to be knocked down with a club.
Dryden.

4. To Knock on the head.
To kill by a blow to destroy.

He betook himself to his orchard, and walking there was knob'd on the head by a tree.
Shakespeare. Richard Il.

Excels, either with an appoint or a man on the head; or with a fever, like fire in a strong-water-shop, burns him down to the ground.
Grew's Cofmology.

Knock. n. f. [from the verb.]
1. A sudden stroke; a blow.

Some men are apt to perceive how the motion of the ear should wave them from a knob perpendicularly directed from a body in the air above.
Browne's Variorum Errors.

And thinks that Agamemnon feels the knocks.
Dryden.

2. A loud stroke at a door for admission.

Such knobs and croffords of grain is objected here,
as will hardly suffer that form, which they cry up here as the only just reformation, to go on so freely here as it might do in Scotland.
King Charles.

5. Difficulty; intricacy.
A man shall be perplexed with knots and problems of business, and contrary affairs, where the documentum and its dubium and both parts of the contrariety from equally weighty; so that, which way farer the choice determines, a man is fated to venture a great concern.
Scripture's Sermons.

6. Any intrigue, or difficult perplexity of affairs.

When the discovery was made that the king was living, which was the knot of the play united,
the reft is flut up in the compass of some few lines.
Dryden. Duftry's.

7. A confederacy; an association; a small band.

Oh you pandefcal rascals! there's a knot, a gang,
a conspiracy against me.

What is there here in Rome that can delight thee?
Where not a fool, without thine own foot knot,
But fears and hates thee.
Livy's Caxialf.

A knot of good-fellow bores a tum. of money of a gentleman upon the king's highway.
L'Estrange.

1 am now with a knot of his admirers, who make request that you would give notice of the window where the knight intends to appear.
Addison's Spectator.

8. A clatter; a collection.

The way of fortune is like the milky way in the sky, which is a meeting or knot of a number of small stars, not set alined, but giving light together.
Bacon's Essays.

In a picture, besides the principal figures which compose it, and are placed in the midst of it, there are less groups or knots of figures disposed at proper distances, which are the parts of the piece, and seem to carry on the fame design in a more inferior manner.
Dryden.

To Knot. v. a. [from the noun.]
1. To complicate in knots.

Happy we who from such queens are freed,
That were always telling beads;
But here's a queen when the rides abroad
Is always knotting threads.
Selley.

2. To intangle; to perplex.

3. To unite.
The party of the papists in England becomes more and more, both by the dependence towards Spain, and amongst themselves.
Bacon.

To Knot. v. t.
1. To form buds, knots, or joints in vegetation.
Cut hay when it begins to knot.
Dormer's Husbandry.

2. To knot for fringes.

Knot'ERBERRYBUSH. n. f. [chamemorum.]
A plant.

Knot'GRASS. n. f. [knot and grass; polygon-um.] A plant.

Your minimum of hindring knots made.

Knotted. adj. [from knot.] Full of knots.
The knotted oak shall flow's of honey weep.
Dryden.

Knot'tness. n. f. [from knot.] Nulesses of knots; uneaveness; intricacy; difficulty.

Virtue was represented by Hercules naked, with his lion's skin and knobbed club; by his oaken club is signified reason ruling the appetite; the knottings thereof, the difficulty they have to feel after virtue.
Pearson on Drawing.

Knotty. adj. [from knot.]
1. Full of knots.

I have seen tempests, when the folding winds have rived the knotty oaks.
Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.
KNO

The timber in some trees more cleanly, in some more knotty: try it by speaking at one end, and laying the ear to the other; for if it be knotty, the voice will not pass well. Bacon.
The knotty oak has its lifting branches bow. Rafflesum.
One with a brand yet burning from the flame, Amd'mt with a knotty club another came. Dryden's Enni.

Where the vales with violet sown and knotty burrs and thorns disgrace the ground. Dryden.

2. Hard; rugged.

Bacchus.

We were made by nature for the wife with which; They are their tools; and 'tis the sport of statesmen, When heroes knock their knotty heels together, And fall by one another. Rowe's Ambitious Stepmother.

3. Intricate; perplexed; difficult; embarrassment.

King Henry, in the very entrance, of his reign, met with a point of great difficulty, and knotty to solve, able to trouble and confound the wittiest kings. Bacon.

Prince exercised skill in getting intricate quest. "Come, if the head was best at the cutting of knotty difficulties, carried the prize. L'Estrange. Some on the bench the knotty laws unite. Dryden.
ThyEpheus.

Eight were the farms, reform the state: A thousand knotty points they clear, Till stopper and my wife appear. Prior.

To KNOW, v. a. preter, I knew, I have known. [not in Saxon.]

1. To perceive with certainty, whether intuitive or diffuse.

O, that a man might know The end of this day's business is it come! Skir.
The memorial of virtue is immortal, because it is known with God and with men. Locke, iv. 1.
The gods all things know, Milton.

Not from experience, for the world was new.
He only from their cause their natures knew. Dryden.

We doubt not, neither can we properly say we think and admire you above all other men: there is a certainty in the proposition, which we know it. Dryden.

When a man makes use of the name of any simple idea, which he perceives is not understood, he is obliged by the laws of Insignificance, and the end all speech, to make known what idea he makes it stand for. Locke.

2. To be informed of; to be taught.

You shall call him it shall be known to you why his hand is not removed from you. 1 Sam. vi. 3.

Led on with a desire to know what nature might concern him. Milton.

One would have thought you had known better things than to expect a kindness from a common enemy. L'Estrange.

3. To distinguish.

Numeration is but the adding of one unit more, and giving to the whole a new name, whereby to know it from those before and after, and distinguish it from every familiar or greater multitude of unit. Locke.

4. To recognize.

What are known, thus to roll on me, that is neither known to me, nor known to me? Shakes.

They told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread, Acts, xvi. 35.

At nearer view he thought he knew the dead, and call'd the weathered man to mind. Flatman.

Tell me how I may know it. Milton.

5. To be no stranger to; to be familiar with.

What are you? - A most poor man, made tame to fortune's blow. Who, by the art of known and feeling, found That his stock was without a name, Shakes. King Lear.

6. To converse with another sex.

And Adam knew Eve his wife. Genesis.

To KNOW, v. n. or.

1. To have clear and certain perception; not to be doubtful.

I know of a fact that the Lord hath sent his angel, and delivered me out of the hand of Herod. Acts.

2. To not be ignorant.

When they knew within themselves they speak of that they do not well know, they would nevertheless seem to others to know of that which they may not well speak. Bacon.

Not to know things remote, but know That which before us lies in daily life. Is the prime wildrom. Milton.

In either world there is no confederacy that will fling our confessions more cruelly than this, that we did wickedly, when we knew to have done better; and close to make ourselve miserable, when we understand the way to have been happy. Tillotson.

They might understand these excellencies which they blindly valued, so as not to be further imposed upon by bad opinion, and to know when nature was well limited by the most able masters. Dryden.

3. To be informed.

The prince and Mr. Poins will put on our jerkins and aprons, and Sir John must not know of it. Shakes.

There is but one mineral body, that we know of, heavier than common quicksilver. Boyle.

4. To know for. To have knowledge of.

A colloquial expression.

He fak'd a good knotty brew; but for the party that own'd it, he might have more dislike of it he knew for. Shakes. Henry IV.

5. To know of. In Shakespeare, is to take cognizance of; to examine.

Fair Hermes, in this carriage your delight.
Know of your youth, examine well your blood, Whether, if you yield not to your father's choice, You can endure the livery of a man.

For ay to a flashy bonnet we'll. Shakes.

KNOWABLE, adj. [from known.] Cognoscible; possible to be discovered or understood.

There are referred into a confided ignorance, and I shall not pursue them to their old asylum; but yet it may be, there is more knownable in these, than in left acknowledged mysteries. Glaville.

'Tis plain, that under the laws of war is compounded also the law of nature, knowable by reason, as well as the law given by Moses. Locke.

These two arguments are the voices of nature, the universal judgments of all real beings and future facts created, that are naturally knowable without revelation. Bentely.

KNOWER, n. f. [from one who] Who has skill or knowledge.

If we look on a vegetable, and can only say 'tis cold and dry, we are pitiful knowers. Glaville.

I know the respect and reverence which in this address I ought to appear in before you, who are a general knowledge of mankind. Southem.

KNOWING, n. f. [from known.] Knowledge.

1. Skillful; well instructed; remote from ignorance.

That you have heard, and a knowing ear, That he, which hath our noble father born, Pur'd my life. Shakes. Hamlet.

The knowing of these have of late reformed their hypotheses. Boyle.

What we call the elegance glorious is to be knowing in that profession, unfotted in their lives, active and laborious in their charges. South.

The necessity of preparing for the offices of religion was so pressed upon their years long, and didcles of common sense, without the help of revelation, taught all the knowing and intelligent part of the world. Southem's kenmore.

Belling, one of the first who of any consideration at Venice, painted very dearly, according to the manner of his times: he was very knowing both in architecture and perspective. Dryden.

KNU

All animals of the same kind, which form a species, are more knowing than others. Aristotle.

2. Conscious; clear; intelligible.

Could any but a knowing and prudent eagle Begin such motions and align such laws? If the Great Mind had form'd a different frame, Might not your writing wit the system blend? Blackmore.

KNOWINGLY, adv. [from knowing.] With skill; with knowledge.

He knowing'ly and wittingly brought evil into the world. More.

They who were rather fond of it than knowingly admired it, might defend their inclination by their reason. Dryden.

To the private duties of the closet he repaired, as often as he entered upon any buffets of conidence: I speak knowingly. Atherbury.

KNOWLEDGE, n. f. [from known.]

1. Certain perception; indubitable apprehension.

For knowledge, which is the highest degree of the speculative faculties, consists in the perception of the truth of affirmative or negative propositions. Locke.

Do but say to me what I should do, That in your knowledge may by me be done, And I am prudent unto it. Shakes. Much of Venice.

2. Learning; illumination of the mind.

Ignorance is the curse of God, Knowledge the wing wherewith we fly to heaven. Shakes.

3. Skill in any thing.

Shipmen that have knowledge of the sea. Kings.

Acquaintance with any fact or fact. Sidney.

4. Cognizance; notice.

Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldst take knowledge of me, seeing I am a stranger? Ruth.

A state's anger should not take knowledge either of fools or women. Ben Jonson.

5. Information; power of knowing.

I pulled off my headpiece, and humbly entrenced her pardon, or knowledge why she was cruel. Sidney.

To KNOWLEDGE, v. a; [got in use.] To acknowledge; to know.

The prophet Hosea tells us that God faith the Jews, they have revenged, but not by me: which prove us plainly, that there are governments which God doth not know; for though they be ordained by his secret providence, yet they are not acknowledged by his revealed will. To Knobble, v. a. [whisper, Danish.] To beat.

KNUCKLE, n. f. [cynacle, Saxon; knobble, Dutch.]

1. The joints of the fingers protuberant when the fingers close.

Thus often at the Temple-stairs we sat Two trickons, of a rough athletic mien, Smallly dipute forming kernel of the blood, With knuckles bruised'd, and false bearded in blood. Garib.

2. The knee joint of a calf.

Jelly, which they used for a reherasive, is chiefly made of knuckles of veal. Bacon's New Food Hift.

3. The articulation or joint of a plant.

Divers herbs have joints or knuckles, as it were drops in their germination: as gillyflowers, pinks, and violets. To Knuckle, v. n. [from the noun.] To submit: I suppose from an old custom of striking the under side of the table with the knuckles, in confession of an argumental defeat. Knukledled KNUCKLED. adj. [from knuckle.] Jointed.

The reed or cane is a watery plant, and growth not but in the water; it hath these properties, that it is hollow, and it is knuckled both stalk and root; that, being dry, it is more hard and fragile than other wood; that it putteth forth no boughs, though many stalks out of one root. Bacon’s Nat. Hist.

KNUFF. n.f. [perhaps corrupted from know, or the same with clout.] A lout.

An old word preserved in a rhyme of prediction.

The county knuff, Hob, Dick, and Hick,
With clubs and clouted shoon,
Shall fill up Duffendale
With slaughter’d bodies soon. Hayward.

KNUR. n. f. [knur, German.] A knot; a hard substance.

The flinty nodules found lodged in the strata, are called by the workmen knur and knots. Wood.

END OF THE FIRST VOLUME.